7186<sup>3</sup>. If (man were introduced into Heaven solely of the Lord's mercy) all in Hell would be elevated into Heaven; for the mercy of the Lord is towards all; but . . . the mercy of the Lord inflows with all, but is diversely received; and, by those who are in evil, is rejected; and, as they have imbedded this in the world, they retain it in the other life.

7206<sup>2</sup>. For all the truths which proceed from the Lord are from . . . mercy; but as they do not receive the mercy of the Lord, they expose themselves to damnation. Nor do the truths of faith which proceed from the Lord save, if the man believes that he is saved from the truths of faith with him, and not from mercy; for man is in evils; and, from himself, is in Hell; but from the mercy of the Lord he is withheld from evil, and is kept in good; and this with a mighty force.

7273<sup>2</sup>. The order with the evil who are condemned, is that of truth Divine separated from Divine good, thus from mercy; for the reason that they have not received Divine good, and thus have rejected mercy. But the order with the good who are saved, is that of truth Divine conjoined with Divine good, thus with mercy; for the reason that they have received the Divine good, thus the mercy of the Lord.

7439<sup>3</sup>. Nor do they believe that man is to be prepared for Heaven through his whole life in the world, and that this is effected from the mercy of the Lord; and that they are not admitted into Heaven from mercy alone however they have lived in the world . . .

8307. 'In Thy mercy Thou hast led Thy people' (Ex.xv.13)=the Divine influx with those who had abstained from evils, and had thus received good; (for) 'to lead in mercy'=to receive the Divine.

—'. With mercy from the Lord the case is this: the Lord's mercy is perpetual with every man; for the Lord wills to save all men . . . But this mercy cannot inflow until evils have been removed . . . but as soon as they have been removed, mercy inflows; that is, good from mercy from the Lord, which is charity and faith. Hence it may be evident that the mercy of the Lord is universal; that is, towards all; and is also peculiar towards those who abstain from evils.

—<sup>e</sup>. Hence it is that man cannot be gifted with spiritual good by the Lord; thus cannot be led from mercy, unless he desists from evils.

8318<sup>3</sup>. When they are in the cupidity (of possessing all things which belong to the neighbour); they are devoid of all charity and mercy . . .

8393. Sins are continually remitted to man by the Lord; for He is mercy itself; but the sins adhere to the man . . . and are not removed from him, except through a life according to the precepts of faith . . .

8440. 'To hear,' when said of Jehovah, = 'to have mercy and bring aid.

8573<sup>2</sup>. In all love there is intercession, consequently in all mercy, for mercy is of love . . .

8652. The mercy and presence of the Lord in the Church. Sig. and Ex.

—, 'Help,' when predicated of the Lord, = mercy; for help from Him is mercy; and it also = presence; for where there is the reception of mercy there is presence . . .

8676. Mercy towards those who are in the good of truth and the truth of good. Sig.

—<sup>e</sup>. The Divine love from which there is good to man who is in a state of misery, because from himself he is wholly in evil and in Hell, is mercy.

8700<sup>2</sup>. Consequently it is impossible for those who are in Hell to be able to be led forth thence into Heaven and saved from the pure mercy of the Lord; for it is the reception of the Lord's mercy, when they have lived in the world, through which everyone is saved. Those who receive it then, in the other life are in the Lord's mercy; for they are then in the faculty of receiving it there. To give it to others . . . provided they have faith . . . is impossible, because it is contrary to order; that is, contrary to the Divine which is order.

8717<sup>e</sup>. Therefore the Lord provides for the good who receive His mercy in time such things as conduce to the happiness of their eternal life . . .

8875. Hence the zeal of the Lord, which in itself is love and compassion, appears to them as anger; for when the Lord from love and mercy protects His own in Heaven, they who are in evil are indignant and angry against the good, and rush into the sphere where are Divine truth and Divine good . . . (which) then operate with them, and cause them to feel torments such as are in Hell. Hence it is that they attribute to the Divine wrath and anger . . . when yet in the Divine there is nothing . . . but pure clemency and mercy. —<sup>3</sup>. III.

8879. 'And doing mercy to thousands' (Ex.xx.6) = good and truth with them in perpetuity. 'Mercy' = the influx of good and truth from the Lord, and the derivative spiritual life which is gifted through regeneration; for such things as are of eternal life and happiness are given by the Lord from mercy.

9174<sup>e</sup>. By 'to have mercy and lend' (Ps.cxii.5) is described the state of those who are in genuine charity.

9182<sup>e</sup>. 'To betroth in mercy and in compassions' (Hos.ii.19) = from love towards those who are in good, and in love towards those who are in truths. The mercy of the Lord is predicated towards those who are in deficiency and yet in longing for good; and 'compassions,' towards those who are in ignorance and yet in the longing for truth.

9211. As the Lord does this from Divine mercy, the man attributes all things to mercy alone . . .

9219. 'Because I am merciful' (Ex.xxviii.27) = that from Him is all aid from mercy . . . for all things which are from the Divine are from mercy; for the Esse itself of the Lord is Divine love; and love is called mercy when towards those who are in miseries; thus relatively to the whole human race . . .

9293. The reception of good from mercy, and thanksgiving. Sig. and Ex.

9336<sup>3</sup>. Believing that the life of Hell with a man can in a moment be transcribed into the life of Heaven with him from mercy; when yet the whole act of regeneration is mercy; and no others are regenerated than those who in the world receive the Lord's mercy in faith and life. Sig.

9452. The Lord from Divine mercy regenerates man . . . thus from Divine mercy He withdraws man from evils and falsities . . . and afterwards from Divine mercy elevates him to Himself in Heaven . . . These things are what are meant by the remission of sins from mercy . . . It would be unmercifulness to see a multitude of men in the Hells, and not to save them, if it could be done otherwise; when yet the Lord is mercy itself . . .

9453. These remove from themselves and reject these mercies of the Lord.

9511<sup>e</sup>. 'To give to those for whom it is prepared' = to confer from mercy on those who are in the good of life and of faith.

9528. 'Of Shittim woods' = from mercy; (for) the good of merit is mercy . . . For the Lord from pure love, thus from pure mercy, assumed the Human . . . Mercy is the Divine love towards those who are constituted in miseries.

9532. 'Thou shalt overlay it with gold' = a representative of this good from mercy . . . The reason it is from mercy, is that all the good of love is from mercy, which mercy is signified by the Shittim wood.

9546. The presence of the Lord with peace and heavenly joy from mercy. Sig.

9849. From mercy in perpetuity for the Spiritual Kingdom. Sig. and Ex.

9850. A representative of the Divine conservation of good and truth in perpetuity from mercy. Sig. and Ex.

9904. From mercy to eternity. Sig.

10232<sup>2</sup>. For the Lord inflows constantly and continually with His mercy, and provides that . . .

10433. That the Lord from mercy remembered. Sig. and Ex.

10441. Mercy for them. Sig. and Ex. 10448.

10577. 'I will do grace to whom I do grace, and I will do mercy to whom I do mercy' (Ex.xxxiii.19) = that Divine truth and good will be revealed to those who receive . . . 'To do mercy' = to gift with celestial good and truth; here, to reveal it.

[A.10577]<sup>7</sup>. For 'grace' is predicated of faith, and 'mercy,' of love . . . III.

—<sup>3</sup>. Therefore, in the Word, it is said 'mercy and grace' when the Lord is implored; and 'mercy and Truth' when the Lord is described. III.

10579<sup>8</sup>. For truth is the recipient of good, and so also of mercy and peace.

10617. 'Merciful and gracious' (Ex.xxxiv.6)=that from Him is all good. —<sup>c</sup>.

10659<sup>4</sup>. To be withdrawn from evils, to be regenerated, and thus to be saved, is mercy, which is not immediate . . . but mediate; that is, for those who recede from evils, and thus admit the truth of faith and the good of love into their life from the Lord. Immediate mercy . . . is contrary to Divine order . . .

H. 318. Because the mercy of the Lord is universal . . .

324. They wondered that an adorer of a graven image should be moved with so great an affection of mercy . . .

420<sup>2</sup>. The Lord from mercy leads everyone who receives Him . . . And thus to be led by the Lord, from infancy to the last of life, and afterwards to eternity, is the mercy which is meant. 480<sup>e</sup>.

521. That no one comes into Heaven from immediate mercy. Chapter.

522. What Divine mercy is shall first be told. Divine mercy is pure mercy towards the whole human race to save it; and also is continual with every man, and never recedes from anyone . . . In proportion, therefore, as a man abstains from evil, in the same proportion the Lord leads him through His own Divine means from pure mercy; and this from infancy to the end of his life in the world, and afterwards to eternity. This is the Divine mercy which is meant. Hence it is evident that the mercy of the Lord is pure mercy; but is not immediate . . .

523<sup>2</sup>. Into this order man is brought back by the Lord from pure mercy, through the laws of order . . . Hence it is evident again, that the Divine mercy of the Lord is pure mercy; but is not immediate.

524. If men could be saved from immediate mercy, all would be saved . . . because the Lord is mercy itself . . .

S. 90. They explained the sense of the Word in Ps. xxxii.2, from the letters alone, which was, in sum: That the Lord is merciful also to those who do evil. De Verbo 4<sup>2</sup>.

P. 221. Such immediate mercy is not possible. Ex. 279<sup>4</sup>. —<sup>6</sup>. Ex.

280. All these believe in immediate mercy.

335. That the operation of the Divine Providence is continually effected through means from pure mercy. Gen.art.

337. The reason the Divine Providence operates all things from pure mercy, is that the Divine Essence is pure love . . . That this Love is pure mercy, is—1. Because it operates with all, . . . who are such that they can do nothing from themselves. 2. Because it operates with the evil . . . equally as with the good . . .

3. Because it leads them in Hell, and snatches them thence. 4. Because it there perpetually struggles with them, and fights for them against the devil . . . 5. Because it also came into the world, and underwent temptations . . . 6. Because it continually acts with things unclean, and renders them clean; and with things insane, and renders them sane; thus labours continually from pure mercy.

338. That instantaneous salvation from immediate mercy is not possible. Gen.art.

—<sup>8</sup>. That the doctrines of the Churches in the Christian world, interiorly regarded, are against instantaneous salvation from immediate mercy; but that still the external men of the Church establish it. Ex.

340. That instantaneous salvation from immediate mercy is the flying fire-serpent in the Church. Gen.art. T.487<sup>4</sup>.

—<sup>4</sup>. That by the faith of instantaneous salvation from pure and sole mercy, there is induced security of life. Ex.

M. 222<sup>2</sup>. There are many spheres which proceed from Him; as . . . a sphere of mercy and grace.

T. 428. They who from birth are compassionate—miserabundi, and do not make their natural mercies spiritual by doing them from genuine charity . . .

516<sup>e</sup>. (This confession is based upon this) that all things are of immediate mercy.

D. 220. A contention about mercy.

—<sup>c</sup>. Mercy was almost taken away from them.

2098. That the Lord saves man from mercy alone. Ex.

2225. That each and all things are from mercy. Ex.

2416. Those who are merciful and innocent . . . affect all the good . . . so that they love them from the whole heart . . . for innocence and mercy are the Lord.

2417. Evil Spirits . . . did not know what mercy and innocence are . . .

2420. They who have mercy in the life of the body . . . receive much in the other life.—They who are merciful, and indeed who bestow a little mercy from the heart, in the other life receive indefinite things . . . for through mercy, because from mercy, is all happiness; and they receive so much mercy in each and all things, with happiness, that it is ineffable, with the greatest perception.

2589. That no mercy . . . can be of man. Ex.

2946. This comes from pure mercy . . .

3593. On unmerciful mercy. Ex. 3594.

3596. Those who are thus merciful do not suffer themselves to be touched with mercy by the Lord . . .

3599. In a word, to be merciful towards such is unmercifulness; for it is mercy towards the unmerciful; and therefore, if they do not suffer themselves to be instructed, their mercies are unmerciful. It is also evident from this that they entice wives and virgins to adultery and scortation by the excitation of mercy; namely that they should have mercy on them, which mercy, however, is nefarious . . .

3600. (Thus) love, charity, and mercy are not, if they are an affection only, [and] unless there are Knowledges of faith . . .

3907. The mercy of the Lord . . . is what determines all things . . .

3997. (These Sirens) can move pity-misericordias.

—<sup>e</sup>. Therefore I can not pity their lot. 4344<sup>2</sup>.

4273<sup>e</sup>. The influx is mercy . . .

4346<sup>2</sup>. There is mercy where sometimes mercy does not appear . . .

4421. On punishments, that they are of mercy. Ex.

4700. On those who believe Heaven to be given from mercy. Ex.

4797. On the Moravian Church, and on mercy.

—<sup>2</sup>. That no one can be saved from mercy, unless through the life of good they have received it in the world . . .

5890. On simple mercy. 5891.

E. 295<sup>5</sup>. Hearing and help from love . . . is signified by, 'For the sake of the greatness of Thy mercy' (Ps. lxix.13).

316<sup>8</sup>. 'Mercy,' in the Word, when said of the Lord, = the Divine good of the Divine love. 541<sup>e</sup>. 659<sup>e</sup>.

340<sup>11</sup>. Protection from evils and falsities, which otherwise would take away the influx, is meant by, 'May Jehovah keep thee, and have mercy on thee' (Num.vi.24,25).

—<sup>15</sup>. Conjunction through truth thence is meant by 'mercy.'

365<sup>24</sup>. 'Mercy'=good from the Lord.

—<sup>29</sup>. 'Mercy'=removal [from evils].

412<sup>4</sup>. 'To illuminate the faces, and to have mercy' (Num.vi.25) = to illustrate with Divine truth and to gift with intelligence and wisdom. . . 'To have mercy,' which is said of the illumination of the faces, in the Word is predicated of truth . . .

—<sup>10</sup>. Mercy is the Divine love towards the miserable.

555<sup>22</sup>. By 'merciful women' (Lam.iv.10) are signified affections of falsity as if of truth.

696<sup>19</sup>. 'Mercy'=the reception of Divine good.

701<sup>7</sup>. 'My mercy will I save for him to eternity' (Ps. lxxxix.28)=the eternity of the Divine good from Him.

805<sup>8</sup>. (They teach) that there are redemption and salvation without the means of life and faith; and thence that there is immediate mercy. Ex.

946<sup>2</sup>. Therefore it is also said, 'In mercy and in Truth;' for 'mercy' also is of good, because it is of love.

Mercy-seat. See PROPITIATORY.

Mere. Merus.

I. 9<sup>8</sup>. The sun of the natural world is mere fire.

T. 94<sup>e</sup>. As the mere Son of Mary; thus as a mere man. 380<sup>4</sup>.

Ath. 83. Almost all who pass from the world . . . regard the Lord as a mere man . . .

Merely. Duntaxat. T.7.etc.

Meretricious. See under HARLOT.

Meribah. Meribah.

A. 1678<sup>2</sup>. 'At the waters of Meriboth (of contentions) Kadesh' (Ezek.xlvii.19; xlviii.28). Ex.

8588. 'And Meribah' (Ex.xvii.7)=the quality of the complaint; (for) 'Meribah,' in the Original Language, means 'contention' or 'chiding'; and 'chiding'=complaint. . . Therefore 'Meribah,' here, = the quality of the complaint . . . in temptation. III.

E. 444<sup>9</sup>. See MASSAH, here.

Merit. Meritum.

Merit, To. Mereri.

Meritorious. Meritorius.

See under HIRE, JUSTIFY, and WOOD.

A. 874<sup>2</sup>. Whatever man produces from himself cannot be good . . . for he is always thinking about merit . . .

876<sup>2</sup>. Either that he may merit Heaven, or . . . 952.

—<sup>e</sup>. When from proprium, or from merit, the interiors are filthy . . .

1017. He supposes . . . that he cannot but place merit in works . . .

1110. They who have placed justice and merit in good works, and have thus attributed the efficacy of salvation to themselves, and not to the justice and merit of the Lord, and who have confirmed themselves therein in thought and life . . . seem to themselves to be cleaving wood . . . When they are in their labour, and are asked whether they are not fatigued, they reply that they have not yet done enough labour to be able to merit Heaven. When they are cleaving the wood, it appears as if there were something of the Lord beneath the wood; so that the wood is merit. The more of the Lord there is in the wood, the longer they remain such; but when this begins to disappear, it then tends to the end of the vastation. At last they become such that they can be admitted into good Societies; but they still fluctuate long between truth and falsity. Of these, because they have led a pious life, the Lord has much care, and repeatedly sends Angels to them. These are they who in the Jewish Church were represented by 'the hewers of wood' (Josh.ix.23,27).

1111. Those who have persuaded themselves to merit Heaven by good works . . . seem to themselves to be cutting grass, and are called sawyers of grass. They are cold, and study to warm themselves by this sawing. Sometimes they go about, and inquire from those whom they meet whether they will give them any heat; which Spirits can do. But the heat which they receive has no effect upon them, because it is external . . . and therefore they return to their sawings, and thus acquire heat by their labour. . . They are always hoping that they will be taken up into Heaven; and sometimes consult how they can be let in there by their own power. These, as they have performed good works, are among those who are vastated; and are . . . at last intronned into good Societies, and are instructed.

1396. A certain Spirit who had wanted to arrogate merit to himself from his acts, and from his doctrine . . . said that he was nothing, and that he wanted to serve them. But, at his first coming . . . they appreciated his quality . . .

[A.] 1661<sup>4</sup>. (The man then) places the merit of self in victory . . .

1679<sup>9</sup>. As he who believes that he will merit salvation by works, and confirms himself in it—the merit itself, self-justification, and confidence, are the evils which are thence. And, on the other hand, he, who believes that piety of life is impossible unless merit is placed in works—the evil thence is that which extinguishes with him all piety of life . . .

1712. In like manner they who attribute to themselves the goods which they do, and place merit in them, not knowing that then they are not goods . . . and that the proprium and self-merit which they place in them are evils and falsities which obscure and darken.

1774. There are Spirits who do not want to hear anything about the interior things of the Word . . . They are especially those who have placed merit in works . . . 1877<sup>2</sup>.

1813<sup>2</sup>. In like manner he who wants . . . to believe that the goods of charity and the truths of faith are from himself, consequently to merit Heaven through them, acts and thinks against the good and truth of faith . . .

1936<sup>3</sup>. No one is ever rewarded in the other life on account of good acts, if he has placed merit in them.

1947<sup>6</sup>. Sometimes another evil is raised up (from the renunciation of the delights of the body); namely, merit on account of the renunciation.

2027. Those have not the faith of charity . . . who place merit in the acts of their life; for they thus want to be saved not from the justice of the Lord, but from self; (and) prefer themselves to others . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. They are sometimes seen running about and confirming self-merit from the literal sense of the Word; and hating the truths which are of the internal sense. Their sphere is self-regardful; and is thus destructive of all ideas which do not look to them as some deity. (Further des.)

—<sup>e</sup>. The case is otherwise with those who from simplicity of heart have supposed themselves to merit Heaven, and have lived in charity . . .

2196<sup>5</sup>. The Rational from appearances supposes that he merits salvation when he does what is good; when yet man can merit nothing from himself; but all merit is the Lord's.

2273. Man is not saved on account of temptations if he places anything of merit in them; for if he places anything of merit in temptations it is from the love of self, which boasts itself thence, and believes itself to have merited Heaven above others . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. He (then) has either succumbed in the temptation, or he comes again into like ones, and sometimes into more grievous ones, until he has been reduced to the soundness that he believes himself to have merited nothing.

2276<sup>3</sup>. Their small estimation of the Lord's merit, etc. Sig.

2308<sup>2</sup>. That (the infants) may know . . . that they are not in Heaven from their own merit . . .

2371<sup>3</sup>. (It is false that) because no one can merit by any good, heavenly good is not given by the Lord, in which merit is regarded as something enormous.

—<sup>5</sup>. They who study to do what is good from themselves, because the Lord has so commanded . . . having been instructed, . . . are so averse to self-merit that they are saddened when they only think of merit . . .

—<sup>6</sup>. They who do not do this, but lead a life of evil . . . in the other life . . . want to merit Heaven . . .

2380<sup>4</sup>. The reason some suppose themselves not to be in good when they are, is that . . . the Angels . . . insinuate that they are not in good, lest they should attribute the good to themselves, and their thought be bent into self-merit . . .

2439<sup>3</sup>. With some (this truth) is meritorious, because they want to merit and be saved by means of it.

2609<sup>e</sup>. ('Not to steal'=) that they should take nothing from the Lord, nor attribute anything of justice and merit to self.

2657<sup>6</sup>. When (the first Rational) does anything good, it perceives thence no other delight than that it seems to itself to have merited the favour of another . . . But the second Rational . . . begins to feel some delight in good and truth itself . . . and then rejects merit, until at last it rejects it as what is enormous.

2715<sup>2</sup>. So that his good is defiled with what is meritorious.

2784. The merit of justice. Sig. and Ex. 2798.

—'. 'To cleave woods'= to place merit in the goods which are of works. (This) could be evident to me from . . . the cleavers of wood, in that they are those who have wanted to merit salvation through the goods which they have done. There are also others . . . from a certain Earth, who in like manner have claimed to themselves all good, and who in like manner appear to cleave wood. Sometimes, when these seem to themselves to labour, their faces shine from a certain fatuous fire, which is the good of merit which they attribute to themselves.

—<sup>e</sup>. They who attribute good to themselves and make it meritorious, are said in the Word to adore wood, or a graven image of wood.

2798<sup>2</sup>. The merit of justice was that which was adjoined to the Divine Rational when He was undergoing inmost temptations, and from which He then fought . . .

2930<sup>5</sup>. There is an affection of truth . . . from the love of meriting.

3147<sup>7</sup>. Thus (these good works) are either meritorious or hypocritical . . .

3451<sup>3</sup>. If anyone says that good works are to be done in order that he may have a reward in Heaven, according to the literal sense of the Word in Matt. x. 41, 42; xxv. 34-46, and elsewhere; and yet when he does good works never thinks about merit, he in like manner is in the Lord's Kingdom, because he is in truth as to the life.

3463<sup>3</sup>. He does indeed do what is good to others, but because it is so commanded, thus not from the affection of the heart . . . and, in doing what is good, he thinks of merit; whereas he who acts, not from the precept, but from charity . . . thus from freedom . . . as he has the reward in the delight, he does not think of merit.

3701<sup>r</sup>. Such Knowledges are insinuated into him as are not quite contrary to those he had before; as that . . . (by doing these things) he can merit Heaven.

3720<sup>s</sup>. Those who place merit in good works appear to themselves to be cleaving wood; and those who place merit in truths, in that they have believed themselves to know truths above others, and yet have lived evilly, appear to themselves to be cleaving stones.

3906<sup>s</sup>. The perception that good from the proprium (must have) merit in the good which it does.

3956. It is known in the Churches that a man can merit nothing by the goods which he does . . . and that to merit, or merit, regards man; thus that it conjoins itself with the love of self, and with the thought of the pre-eminence of self above others . . . and therefore the works which are done for the sake of reward are not good in themselves . . . Charity towards the neighbour has in it that it wills to him as well as to itself . . . and therefore the affection of charity is averse to all merit . . .

3993<sup>s</sup>. 'White'=truth; properly, the merit and justice of the Lord, and thence the justice and merit of the Lord with man. This white is called bright . . . But white in the opposite sense=Own justice, or Own merit; for truth without good is attended with such merit; for when anyone does what is good not from the good of truth, he always wants to be recompensed. 4007, Ill.

3994<sup>s</sup>. 'The white in the lambs'=the merit which is placed in goods . . . For he who places merit in goods acknowledges and believes that all good is from himself . . . and hence he demands recompense from merit; and therefore also such a one despises others in comparison with himself; nay, he even condemns them . . .

4007. This is what is called the justice and merit of the Lord with man.

—4. Those who believe from the Lord . . . attribute nothing of truth and good to themselves, still less believe that they merit through the truths and goods with them . . . This is to 'put on white vestments,' and also to 'be made white in the blood of the Lamb.' There are two things which are put off by all who enter into Heaven; namely, proprium and the derivative confidence, and self-merit or Own justice; and they put on a heavenly proprium . . . and the merit or justice of the Lord; and, in proportion as they put on these, in the same proportion they come interiorly into Heaven. Sig.

4075<sup>s</sup>. The Societies which are such as to believe good to be from self, and who thence place merit in their goods, served (the Lord) for this use: to introduce Himself into the Knowledge of such good, and thence into wisdom concerning good without merit. Such as is the good which is from the Divine.

4145<sup>s</sup>. He who is being regenerated, at first believes . . . that he merits something; for he does not yet know . . . that good can inflow from another source . . . Unless he believed this at first, he would never do what is good. But by this he is initiated . . . into Know-ledges concerning good and . . . merit; and when he has thus been brought into the affection of doing what is good, he begins to think and believe . . . that good inflows from the Lord, and that through the good which he does from proprium he merits nothing; and, at last, when he is in the affection of willing and doing what is good, he then completely rejects merit; nay, is averse to it; and is affected with good from good. When he is in this state, good inflows directly.

4174. 'Stolen . . . '=the evil of merit . . . The evil of merit is when a man attributes good to himself, and supposes that it is from himself, and therefore wants to merit salvation. It is this evil, which, in the internal sense, is signified by 'theft.' But with this evil the case is this: in the beginning all who are being reformed suppose that good is from themselves, and thence that through the good which they do they merit salvation; for to suppose (this) comes from this: that they suppose good to be from themselves, for the one coheres with the other. But those who suffer themselves to be regenerated, do not confirm this in thought . . . but it is successively dissipated. For so long as a man is in the external man . . . he cannot do otherwise than think thus, for he thinks solely from the external man. But when the external man with its concupiscences is removed, and the internal man begins to operate—that is, when the Lord inflows through the internal man with the light of intelligence, and thus illustrates the external man—he then begins to believe otherwise, and does not attribute good to himself, but to the Lord. Hence it is evident what is the evil of merit . . . through which is good . . .

—e. But if when a man arrives at adult age, he confirms it in thought, and completely persuades himself that he merits salvation through the good which he does—this evil adheres and is rooted in, and cannot be amended; for they claim to themselves that which is the Lord's, and thus cannot receive the good which continually inflows from the Lord; but, when it inflows, they at once derive it into themselves, and into their proprium, and thus defile it. These are the evils which in the proper sense are signified by 'thefts.'

4319. But the goods are not appropriated to them; for they who believe goods to be from themselves, claim and attribute them to themselves, and thus place merit in them.

4638<sup>r</sup>. 'Go ye rather to them that sell, and buy for yourselves'=the good of merit: they who boast of this are 'those who sell.' Moreover, those who are in truth in which there is not good, in the other life above others make meritorious that which they have apparently done as good in the external form, although it was evil in the internal one. Sig. . . Such are they who are here meant by 'the foolish virgins.'

4730<sup>s</sup>. He confirms himself against charity . . . by thinking . . . that if he does the works of charity or piety, he cannot but place merit in them.

4801<sup>s</sup>. Those are primary (in Heaven) who . . . had not believed themselves worthy of mercy; and who thus, from merit, are the last.

4943. In the Lower Earth . . . are those also who have placed merit in good acts and in works; many of whom appear to themselves to be cleaving wood. The place where they are is coldish, and they seem to themselves to acquire heat by their labour. I have spoken with them, and it has been given to ask them whether they want to go out from that place. They said that as yet they had not merited it by their labour. But, when this state has been passed through, they are taken out from thence. These are also natural, because to want to merit salvation is not spiritual; and besides they set themselves before others; and some of them despise others. These, if in the other life they do not receive joy above others, are indignant against the Lord; and therefore when they are cleaving the wood, it sometimes appears as if there were something of the Lord beneath the wood, and this from their indignation. But, as they have led a pious life, and have done thus from ignorance, in which there was something of innocence, Angels are at times sent to them, and comfort them; and besides, there sometimes appears to them at the left from above as it were a sheep, from the sight of which also they receive consolation. 8740<sup>c</sup>. 9486<sup>c</sup>.

[A.] 5069<sup>2</sup>. They who believe themselves to be just from themselves, or so justified that they no longer have anything of evil . . . are among the unjust; for they attribute good to themselves, and also place merit in good; and such can never adore the Lord from true humiliation . . .

5084<sup>c</sup>. If they are told that joy in Heaven . . . is to serve others . . . without any reflection of merit and recompense—this comes before them as it were sadly.

5135<sup>12</sup>. 'A thief' = the evil of merit . . .

5758<sup>3</sup>. Man cannot be in humiliation . . . unless he acknowledges that from himself there is nothing but evil, and that all good is from the Lord; besides that otherwise he attributes to himself for merit the things which he does . . . Hence is the spring of many evils . . .

6389<sup>2</sup>. If they do what is good to these, it is from the end of recompense by the Lord; then that which they do they regard as merit, and thus regard the Lord's mercy as a debt . . .

6390<sup>c</sup>. 'To sit among the burdens' = to be among meritorious works.

6392<sup>2</sup>. Hence, too, it is, that many reject good works, believing that they cannot exist with anyone without the end of meriting by them; for they do not know that those who are led by the Lord want nothing more than to do good works, and that they think of nothing so little as of merit by them; for this is in the new will . . .

6393. 'To bear a burden' = to do works for the sake of meriting; and therefore 'to incline the shoulder to bear a burden' = to labour with all our exertions to do works for the sake of meriting.

—<sup>5</sup>. (Refs. to passages on the subject of merit.)

6394. 'To be a servant unto tribute' = those who want to merit by works; for these (persons) are the lowest services.

6559. Penalty according to merit (or desert). Sig. and Ex.

8002<sup>4</sup>. 'Hirelings' . . . in a more interior sense, = those who do what is good for the sake of a reward in the other life; thus who want to merit through works.

8172<sup>2</sup>. He who believes, when he is tempted, that he can resist from his own forces, succumbs. The reason is that he is in falsity; and because he thence attributes merit to himself . . .

8740. In order to become warm (the saints of Jupiter) seem to themselves to be cleaving wood; and, when they are cleaving, there appears something of a man beneath the wood, which they are then at the same time endeavouring to strike. This takes place because they attribute merit to themselves . . .

8906. They who attribute to themselves the things which are the Lord's, also place merit in works, and make themselves justice. Refs.

9180. They who learn truths . . . in order that they may merit Heaven . . . are meant by, 'hirelings who shall come in their hire;' that is, who will submit themselves and serve.

9211. The interior things of this law (of usury) are, that . . . we are to believe that there is nothing of merit in the deeds which are from self, but only in the deeds which are from the Lord with self. For the Lord Himself alone has merited . . . and when a man believes this, he places nothing of merit and of rewards in deeds from himself . . .

9449. The signs that sins have been remitted, are . . . (that) they are unwilling to merit through anything of charity and faith.

9472. 'And Shittim woods' = the goods of merit which are from the Lord; thus of the Lord alone; (for) 'woods' = the good of merit. The good of merit is the good proceeding from the Lord's Divine Human, which is Christian good, or spiritual good with man. This good is that through which man is saved; for the good which proceeds from any other source is not good . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. As the good of merit, which is of the Lord alone, is the one only good which reigns in Heaven, and which makes Heaven, therefore this wood was the only wood employed in the construction of the tabernacle; by which Heaven was represented.

9486. 'Shittim wood' = justice also, which is the good of merit. For, from His Own power, the Lord reduced the universal Heaven into order, and subjugated the Hells; and at the same time made the Human in Himself Divine: hence merit and justice are His. On this account, the one only good which reigns in Heaven, and which makes Heaven, is the good of merit and the justice of the Lord; thus His Divine Human; for this was made merit and justice.

—<sup>2</sup>. From these things it is evident that the Lord as to His Divine Human has merit and justice from Himself.

9528. The good of merit is mercy. Ex.

9674. The good of merit which is of the Lord alone conjoining and supporting. Sig. and Ex.

9689. The support of the uniting medium . . . through the good of merit which is of the Lord's Divine Human. Sig. and Ex.

9715. The justice and merit which are of the Lord alone. Fully ex. (See JUSTICE, here.) —<sup>2</sup>. —<sup>6</sup>. —<sup>7</sup>.

9974. They who believe that by the goods which they do they merit Heaven, do goods from themselves, and not from the Lord.

9976. Therefore they who place merit in works, love themselves; and they who love themselves despise the neighbour; nay, are angry with God Himself if they do not receive the hoped-for reward . . .

9978. They who place merit in works cannot fight against the evils which are from the Hells; for no one can do this from himself. But for those who do not place merit in works the Lord fights and conquers.

9979. The Lord alone has merited, because He alone from Himself has conquered the Hells . . . Hence the Lord alone is merit and justice.

9982<sup>e</sup>. But in proportion as man comes into the good of love and of faith, in the same proportion he is removed from regarding merit in the goods which he does.

9983. To do good which is good must be from the love of good . . . They who are in this love abhor merit; for they love to do . . . N.151.

10175a. By the expiation of everyone by silver, is signified the ascription of all things of worship to the Lord . . . that no one may have merit.

10218<sup>e</sup>. These are they who justify themselves by this, that they impute all things of faith and love to themselves for merit; and consequently believe that of themselves they merit Heaven . . . The numbering of the people by David involved this evil. Ex.

10219<sup>e</sup>. There are three plagues which follow those who attribute to themselves the truths and goods of faith and love, or who believe that they merit Heaven from their works . . . These three penalties are—1. That they cannot receive anything of the good of love and truth of faith. 2. That evils and falsities constantly pursue them. 3. And that the truths and goods received from infancy perish. Sig.

H. 10. Those who . . . place merit in good acts . . . are not received into Heaven. The Angels shun them. They regard them as stupid, and as thieves . . .

302<sup>e</sup>. If man believed . . . that all good is from the Lord . . . he would not make the good with him meritorious . . . But as man does not believe in any influx from Heaven . . . and thence supposes that all things he thinks and wills are in himself . . . he defiles with merit the good which inflows. P.320, Gen.art.

341. The proprium of the Lord is that which is called the justice and merit of the Lord.

535. Besides, they who have led a life withdrawn from worldly things, blaze with merit, and thence continually desire Heaven, and think about heavenly joy as a reward . . . and when they are let among the Angels, and into their joy, which is devoid of merit . . . they marvel . . . and, as they are not receptive of that joy, they depart, and consociate with their own . . .

(e). That genuine charity is not meritorious. Refs.

N. 150. On merit. Chapter.

— . They who do goods that they may merit, do not do goods from the love of good, but from the love of reward; for he who wants to merit wants to be recompensed. Those who do thus, regard and place delight in reward, and not in good; and therefore they are not spiritual, but natural.

152. Those who do good for the sake of reward . . . do good from themselves . . . Hence it is that in the good of merit there lies concealed the good of the love of self and of the world; and this good is from man . . . and all the good which is from man . . . is evil.

153. Genuine charity and genuine faith are devoid of all merit; for the delight of charity is good itself, and the delight of faith is truth itself; and therefore those who are in this charity and faith, know what non-meritorious good is; but not those who are not in charity and faith.

155. As all good and truth are from the Lord, and nothing from man; and as the good from man is not good, it follows that no man has merit; but the Lord alone. The merit of the Lord is that from His Own power He has saved the human race, and also that He saves those who do good from Him. Hence it is that in the Word he is called 'just' to whom are ascribed the merit and justice of the Lord; and he 'unjust' to whom are ascribed his Own justice and self-merit.

157. To think and believe that those come into Heaven who do what is good; and also that good is to be done in order that they may come into Heaven, is not to regard reward as the end; thus neither is it to place merit in works; for those also think and believe this who do good from the Lord. But those who think, believe, and do thus, and are not in the love of good for the sake of good, do regard [reward as the end], and place [merit in works]. T.440.

C. J. 42<sup>e</sup>. They sometimes call this good meritorious, and thus not acceptable to God; but still they call it good, because it is useful.

L. 18. That the imputation of the Lord's merit is nothing else than the remission of sins after repentance. Gen.art.

—<sup>3</sup>. These are the merit and justice of the Lord; and these can never be imputed to man . . .

P. 90<sup>e</sup>. And the good in which man is, if done for the sake of salvation, is meritorious good; whereas the good in which the Lord is, is not meritorious.

321<sup>e</sup>. Therefore (the Divine Providence) does not appropriate good to anyone; for thus it would become meritorious.

R. 86. That . . . they are not willing that works should be meritorious, because this is contrary to the merit and justice of the Lord. Sig. and Ex.

— . 'The works of the Nicolaitans'=meritorious works.

— . But still, all those do meritorious works who put the truths of faith in the first place, and the goods of charity in the second; but not those who put the goods of charity in the first place. The reason is that charity does not want to merit; for it loves to do what is good; for it is in it, and acts from it, and from good looks to the Lord, and from truths [sees] that all good is from Him; and therefore it is averse to merit.

[R.86]°. Those who place merit in works claim to themselves justice ; for they say that justice is on their side, because they have merited ; when yet it is the highest injustice, because the Lord alone has merited, and alone does good with them.

107<sup>2</sup>. Those who have placed merit in their works (appear before the Angels) like these graven images naked, without any covering on their private parts. They also appear . . . like sheep covered with ordure.

115. That there are among them those who do meritorious works. Sig.

253. Confession that the Kingdom is the Lord's . . . from merit and justice. Sig.

758. Among (the Babylonians) there is also this nefarious thing : that the works which are done according to their doctrinal things, they make merits, by transcribing into them, and thus into themselves, the merit and justice of the Lord ; when yet . . . that which is from the Lord remains the Lord's with the recipients . . .

875<sup>14</sup>. And faith alone is meritorious, because its charity is natural . . .

M. 526. In the world, merits can be as it were transcribed by men ; that is, children can be benefited for the sake of their parents . . . but the good of merit cannot be inscribed on their souls, but only adjoined extrinsically. The like is not possible with men as to their spiritual life. Ex.

B. 5. (The doctrinals of the Roman Catholics) concerning . . . merits. Quoted.

14. On merits ; from the Formula Concordiae.

T. 319. In the celestial sense, by 'thieves' are meant those who . . . claim to themselves His merit and justice. These . . . believe not in God, but in themselves.

404. If the love of the world makes the head . . . the man . . . worships God ; but from merely natural love which places merit in all the worship . . .

423<sup>3</sup>. These do not place merit in works ; because they do not think about it ; but about duty . . .

425<sup>2</sup>. They who place charity itself in these benefactions, cannot do otherwise than place merit in these works ; and although they profess with the mouth that they do not want them to be merits, still a belief of merit lies concealed within. This is manifestly evident from them after death : they then enumerate their works, and demand salvation as the reward . . .

439. That in the exercises of charity a man does not place merit in works, while he believes that all good is from the Lord. Gen.art.

—. It is hurtful to place merit in works which are done for the sake of salvation ; for in this evils lie concealed about which the doer knows nothing. There lies concealed a denial of the influx and operation of God with man ; trust in our Own power in the things of salvation ; faith in self, and not in God ; the justification of self ; salvation by our Own forces ; the annihilation of the Divine grace and mercy ; the rejection of reformation and regeneration through Divine means ; in special, derogation from the merit and justice of the Lord God the Saviour, which they claim for themselves ; besides a continual looking to reward, which they regard as the first and last end ; the submergence and extinction of love to the Lord and of love towards the neighbour ; a total ignorance and imperceptibility of the delight of heavenly love, which is devoid of merit ; and the sole sensation of the love of self . . . Hence it is that before the Angels the good of merit appears like rust ; and the good not of merit like bright crimson.

440<sup>2</sup>. They who are in this delight do not want to hear about merit ; for they love to do . . .

442. Hence it follows, that if a man believes that all the good which is good in itself is from the Lord, he does not place merit in works ; and in the degree in which this faith is being perfected with a man, the phantasy concerning merit is taken away from him by the Lord.

—<sup>3</sup>. In this state the man does the exercises of charity in abundance without fear of merit ; and finally he perceives the spiritual delight of charity, and then he begins to be averse to merit as what is noxious to his life. Merit is easily wiped away by the Lord with those who imbue charity by acting justly and faithfully in the work, business, and office in which they are . . . But merit is with difficulty taken away from those who believe that charity is acquired by [giving] alms and the aiding of the needy ; for these, while they are operating these things, in their mind first openly, and afterwards tacitly, want a reward, and draw to themselves merit.

627. Therefore, these three : faith, imputation, and the merit of Christ, are in the present Church one, and may be called a Triune . . . 628.

—<sup>4</sup>. The imputation of this faith is vain ; because the merit of Christ is not imputable.

632. That the faith which is imputative of the merit and justice of Christ . . . first arose from the decrees of the Nicene Council concerning the three Divine Persons . . . Gen.art.

640. That the imputation of the merit and justice of Christ is impossible. Gen.art.

D. 363. Those who suppose from the Word . . . that they merit Heaven . . . are devastated . . . by corresponding phantasies ; but chiefly by this : that they seem to themselves to be carrying water from lakes or the sea . . . into a trough, to give the flock to drink ; and when the trough is full they rest until they draw it again . . .

1178<sup>e</sup>. (Such Spirits) attribute to themselves merit . . .

1583. A certain Spirit who wanted to arrogate merit to himself . . .

1642. That all things are given to him who is such that he does not attribute to himself anything of merit ; but nothing to those who arrogate it to themselves. Ex.

2652. That those who in any way want to merit Heaven, put themselves far from it. Gen.art.

2946. For no one can merit anything of good from himself . . .

4650. On the evil who have placed merit in works. Gen.art.

4773. (A region there filled with those who) in the world had believed that they should merit salvation by their works . . .

5015. He believed that he had merited above others . . .

6060. In (Zinzendorf's) doctrine there was nothing of truth, except that merit is not to be placed in works. When it is said that neither should merit be placed in faith alone . . . they answer nothing.

6075. On merit in good works.—Good works are done with merit, and without merit, which may be illustrated by this . . . He who performs his office for the sake of merit, [does so] that he may be praised; thus for the sake of reputation and honour, and promotion afterwards; or for the sake of gain . . . Whereas he who does not place merit in it, does it for the sake of duty, in that it belongs to his office; in this there lies concealed the fear of God, and also the general love; but in the former there is the love of self and of the world. (Another examp.)

E. 293. The merit and justice which appertain to the Lord's Divine Human . . . Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>3</sup>. The Lord's merit. Def. 805<sup>6</sup>.

794<sup>3</sup>. But if a man does and speaks what is good, true, sincere, and just, for the sake of self and the world . . . these deeds or works are all evil; and, if Heaven is regarded in them, they are meritorious, all of which are iniquitous.

797<sup>6</sup>. They close Heaven to themselves by this: that although their life is life merely natural . . . still they attribute to themselves the merit of the Lord, by saying at heart, If I shall only believe with trust and confidence that the Lord has suffered the cross for me, and has thereby redeemed me, I shall have eternal life; and this because that justice and that merit are imputed to me through faith; and nothing of it through the works of life: when yet what is imputative of the Lord's merit has no existence . . . And therefore to impute to one's self the merit of the Lord, and not to live according to His precepts in the Word, and thus to live from Him, is blasphemy; because it involves the possibility of living solely to self and the world—thus evilly—in the Lord.

—<sup>10</sup>. If the man still does goods, because they are commanded in the Word, he does no other goods than moral goods from the natural man, which goods . . . are meritorious . . .

810<sup>4</sup>. By the merit of the Lord is meant that He Himself from His Own power will save those who believe in Him, and do the things which He commands. This merit cannot be imputed; but implored.

D. Love xvii<sup>3</sup>. They importuned Heaven from merit . . .

Merum. Merum.

A. 9139<sup>5</sup>. 'A vineyard of merum' (Is.xxvii.2)=the Spiritual Church.

R. 635. By 'poured out unmixed-mixtum mero' (Rev.xiv.10) is signified wholly falsified.

E. 374<sup>10</sup>. 'The blood of grapes,' and 'merum' (Deut.xxvii.14)=all the truth thence.

887. 'To be mixed with merum' (Rev.xiv.10)=to be conjoined with falsified truths.

—<sup>2</sup>. Because by 'merum' is meant inebriating wine, and thence also inebriation; consequently, in the spiritual sense, delirium in truths through falsities . . . Moreover, the word by which 'merum' is expressed in the Original Language is derived from a word which means to be inebriated. As this is signified by 'merum,' and those who falsify the Word are spiritually inebriated, that is, are delirious as to truths, therefore in two places where 'merum' is mentioned in the Word, it treats of the falsification of truth . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. 'Thy merum is mixed with waters' (Is.i.22)=truth made vile and destroyed through the falsification of it.

Mesentery. Mesenterium.

A. 5181<sup>e</sup>. They who pertain to the lymphatics are afterwards carried into places which they said relate to the mesentery. I have been told that there are as it were labyrinths there; and that they are afterwards taken away thence to various places in the Grand Man, in order to serve for use, as is the chyle in the body.

P. 164<sup>6</sup>. Those who receive are carried to their places through infinite windings . . . almost as is the chyle through the mesentery and the lacteal vessels there into the receptacle; and from this through the thoracic duct into the blood.

D. 1020. On the mesentery. Gen.art.

Mesha. Mescha.

A. 1249. By 'Mesha' (Gen.x.30) is signified truth . . . or the terminus a quo.

Meshech. Meschech.

A. 1149. See GOMER, here.

1151<sup>3</sup>. See GOG, here.

—<sup>5</sup>. 'Meshech and Tubal' (Ezek.xxxii.26)=doctrinals which are rituals; and which are called 'uncircumcised' when there is no love; hence are 'pierced with the sword, and a terror in the land of the living.'

1154<sup>2</sup>. See JAVAN, here. E.355<sup>12</sup>.

Mesopotamia. Mesopotamia.

A. 1238<sup>2</sup>. The first Ancient Church was in Mesopotamia, etc. 2385<sup>5</sup>.

4680<sup>3</sup>. The Hebrew Church was in Syria and Mesopotamia, etc.

S. 102. These Ancients with whom the ancient Word is still in use in Heaven were from Mesopotamia, etc. . . the inhabitants of all which kingdoms were in representative worship, and thence in the knowledge of correspondences.

E. 827<sup>2</sup>. Idolatrous and magical things were then with various nations in Asia; as in Mesopotamia, etc.

Messenger. Nuntius.

See REPORT-nuntiare.

A. 4239. 'Jacob sent messengers . . .' (Gen.xxxii.3) = to communicate.

M. 79<sup>6</sup>. A messenger came running . . .

D. 5953. Concerning a wing upon the head: that they are messengers.

Messiah. Messias.

A. 276<sup>a</sup>. They would acknowledge no other Messiah than a worldly one. 2520<sup>b</sup>. 2708<sup>c</sup>.

2921<sup>e</sup>. 'Christ' stands for 'Messiah,' 'Anointed,' 'King' (and=) Divine truth. 3007. 3008, Ill. 3009.

3398<sup>3</sup>. The Messiah whom they expected... 3857<sup>6</sup>.

3481. Treat of the Messiah and His Kingdom...

— When I said that 'Messiah,' in the Hebrew language, is the same as 'Christ' in the Greek, they did not want to hear.

— Again, when I said that the Messiah is most holy, and that Jehovah is in Him...

—<sup>2</sup>. Afterwards, that the Kingdom of the Messiah will be eternal...

4289<sup>2</sup>. They did indeed know that the Messiah would come...

4669<sup>e</sup>. The Divine Spiritual, or the Divine truth... is what is signified by 'Christ,' or 'Messiah.'

4692<sup>3</sup>. Concerning the Messiah, or Christ, they thought nothing else than that He would be the greatest prophet...

4769<sup>2</sup>. Hence they acknowledged the Christ, or Messiah... no otherwise than as a King...

9144<sup>10</sup>. 'Anointed,' which in the Hebrew idiom is 'Messiah'...

9409<sup>2</sup>. They did not want to hear that the Messiah would come for the sake of salvation...

9954<sup>13</sup>. 'Messiah the Prince' (Dan. ix. 25) = the Lord as to the Divine Human.

S. 23<sup>e</sup>. They wanted a Messiah who would exalt them...

R. 664. The Lord is called 'King' in His Divine Human, because this is Messiah...

779<sup>2</sup>. 'Messiah,' and 'Christ,' mean 'the anointed.'

T. 689. By the baptism of John... they were inserted among those in Heaven who had expected and longed for the Messiah. 691<sup>e</sup>.

691<sup>e</sup>. Unless they had been prepared by the baptism of John to receive the Messiah, who was Jehovah God in a human form...

Ad. 475. I attest... that I have been intromitted... by the Messiah Himself, the Saviour of the world, Jesus the Nazarene...

510. They can never believe that the Messiah alone lives in them...

942. All Spirits... are disposed by the Messiah alone... 943.

943<sup>e</sup>. All human thought, will, and action are directed by the Messiah alone...

955. The Best, or Highest Good, is the Messiah only, who is the love itself of Jehovah the Parent...

1513<sup>e</sup>. The Messiah deigning...

1515. God Messiah, occurs. 1574, etc. etc. D. 149, Pref. etc. etc.

D. 2256. Whether I knew their Messiah... 2257.

2878. I spoke with learned Jews about God Messiah... 4388. D. Min. 4832.

5907. They persuade themselves that their Messiah is in that mist...

E. 315<sup>33</sup>. By 'Messiah' is meant the Lord as to Divine truth.

375<sup>10</sup>. The anointing of the Lord as to the Divine Human was effected through the Divine good itself of the Divine love... Hence it is that the Lord was called 'the Messiah'... which, in the Hebrew language, means 'the Anointed.' 684<sup>4</sup>. —<sup>8</sup>.

—<sup>33</sup>. As by 'the Anointed,' 'Messiah,' or 'Christ,' is signified the Lord as to the Divine Human; thus as to Divine good united to Divine truth... Ath. 148. 156.

—<sup>36</sup>. For the Lord is called 'the Messiah' from the Divine Human.

J. (Post.) 292. Some of the Jews (there) say that the Messiah is in Heaven...

Metal. Metallum.

Metallic. Metallicus.

A. 1551. The Most Ancients compared the goods and truths with man to metals...

1837<sup>2</sup>. The Lord's Church... is compared to metals...

8298<sup>2</sup>. All metals = good or truth; in the opposite sense, evil or falsity...

W. 190<sup>e</sup>. In metals and stones there are conglomerations of parts in a three-fold order.

192. Stony and metallic parts are homogeneous.

207. There is a like order of these (discrete) degrees... in every metal and stone. The parts of these are such, from which is the whole. Ex.

R. 211. For the metals in their order = such things as are of good and truth...

913. The metals... correspond... Hence it is that these metals are also in the Spiritual World...

M. 171. There is a natural sphere from metals...

T. 499<sup>2</sup>. If there were not an analogue to free-will in every metal... there would not be any metal... for this freely absorbs the ether, breathes out its native things, and rejects the obsolete ones, and reintegrates itself with new ones. Hence there is a magnetic sphere around the magnet, an iron one around iron, etc.

D. Min. 4578. The useful sciences are... metallics, etc.

E. 176. The metals... from correspondence = spiritual and celestial things...

Metamorphosis. Metamorphosis.

W. 354. The metamorphosis (of insects). E. 1198<sup>3</sup>.

P. 298<sup>2</sup>. Who can believe that an evil man... undergoes such a metamorphosis when he comes (into his internal state)?

D. Wis. viii<sup>5</sup>. The metamorphosis of caterpillars into chrysalids and butterflies (a type of the resurrection).

Metaphorical. Metaphoricus.

A. 898<sup>11</sup>. This appears like a metaphorical utterance . . . but in the Word there are not metaphorical utterances . . . but real correspondences. 9272<sup>2</sup>. 9828<sup>4</sup>.

Metaphysical. *Metaphysicus.Metaphysicians. *Metaphysici.Metaphysically. Metaphysice.

A. 3348. They call these things metaphysics and logic . . . D.4446.

4658. They had been logicians and metaphysicians . . . D.3947.

W. 189<sup>2</sup>. Which remain no longer than while things analytical and metaphysical are in the thought.

P. 201<sup>3</sup>. What then is a universal Providence than a metaphysical word . . .

R. 421<sup>2</sup>. Among them were some who had been metaphysicians and Scholastics . . .

655<sup>4</sup>. One was found skilled in the metaphysical art, who could turn the ideas of things into ideas of terms, and hide the things themselves under formulas . . .

B. 34<sup>e</sup>. Because it is a metaphysical word . . .

T. 17<sup>e</sup>. They murmured some terms borrowed from the metaphysical art . . .

52<sup>e</sup>. But as these things are metaphysical, they cannot but be in thick darkness . . .

D. 3460. See KNOW-scire.

E. 1103<sup>3</sup>. Who can (convert the idea of three gods into the idea of one God) by what is metaphysical which transcends the apprehension?

Ath. 108. I said, What need is there of the metaphysical term essence . . . Can you ever think metaphysically?

139. The three Persons . . . are conjoined into one metaphysical God . . .

Inv. 53. How can the metaphysical term essence make one out of three?

Mete. See MEASURE.

Mete out. Exaequare.

E. 629<sup>10</sup>. 'To mete out the heavens with a span' (Is.xl.12)=to ordinate the Heavens thence.

Metempsychosis. Metempsychosis. T.79<sup>6</sup>. 171<sup>2</sup>.Meteor. Meteor.

P. 35<sup>e</sup>. It is like a meteor . . . which vanishes. T.42<sup>e</sup>.

M. 315. I saw a meteor. Des. and Ex. T.697.

T. 110. It was a meteor which the common people call a dragon. Des. and Ex.

335. Below these meteors stood some who were disputing about inaginary things . . .

376<sup>3</sup>. Which are nothing but meteors, and disappear of themselves.

759<sup>2</sup>. Not knowing that a falling star is a meteor from fatuous light, which when it falls into the brain can confirm every falsity, which is done by means of fallacies . . .

Method. Methodus. D.628.Method. Modus.

A. 4077. 'He has changed my hire in ten modes' (Gen.xxxi.7)=a very great change; for . . . 'modes'=changes. 4179.

4224. Without a substance, which is a subject, there is not any mode . . .

4227. And this by various methods. . . By other methods . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. Loosed from the body and . . . the gross modes of sensations.

6465. The like is the case with the modes and forces which proceed from them as substances.

9534<sup>2</sup>. Lest one should do evil to another beyond the measure.

9668. 'According to the manner which thou hast been made to see in the mount' (Ex.xxvi.30)=to the quarters according to the states of good and the derivative truth in Heaven . . .

P. 335. There are means and methods of the Divine Providence . . . The methods are those by which these things are done.

336. The methods by which the Divine Providence operates . . .

M. 311. The order of conjugal love with its measures (or limits) . . . 312.

353<sup>2</sup>. Fills it with pleasantnesses beyond measure.

Methusael. Methusael.

A. 404. 'Mehujael begat Methusael, and Methusael begat Lamech' (Gen.iv.18). All these names=heresies derived from the first one which was called 'Cain.'

527<sup>e</sup>. By 'Methusael' and 'Methuselah' is signified something which is about to die.

Methuselah. Methuselah.

A. 463. The eighth Church was called 'Methuselah.' 516. 523.

515. Their ages were not so great; as that of Jared 962 years; and that of Methuselah 969 years.

527. See METHUSAEL, here.

533. Both these Churches, which were called 'Methuselah' and 'Lamech' expired immediately before the Flood.

Metrical. Metricus.

D. 3423. On the metrical thought of Spirits.—Spirits and Angels speak metrically, so that the discourse flows spontaneously . . . They ceased with me in unities . . . being carried into the unity by the accent . . . Metrical speech goes from the interiors towards the exteriors through mediate ends so called, all of which are unities . . .

Metropolis. Metropolis. E.555<sup>7</sup>.

E. 1088. The like is signified by all the other metropolitan cities as by the kingdoms . . . and by the kingdom is signified the Church, but by the metropolitan city, the Church as to doctrine.

Micha. Micha. A.2598. H.324. D.2411.

Michael. Michael.

A. 1705<sup>e</sup>. 'Michael,' and other Angels in the Word . . . are so named from their office.

S192<sup>e</sup>. The names 'Michael,' 'Raphael,' etc., do not mean one Angel, who is supreme among those who are with him; but the angelic function itself; thus also the Divine of the Lord which belongs to that function.

H. 52<sup>e</sup>. 'Michael,' 'Gabriel,' and 'Raphael' are nothing but angelic Societies, which are so named from their functions. E.302<sup>2</sup>.

S. 61. They believed they should be Michaels and Raphaels.

R. 548. 'Michael and his Angels fought with the dragon, and the dragon fought and his angels' (Rev. xii. 7) = the falsities of the former Church fighting against the truths of the New Church.

—<sup>2</sup>. By 'Michael' is not meant any Archangel, nor by 'Gabriel,' and 'Raphael;' but there are meant ministries in Heaven. The ministry which is 'Michael,' there, is with those who confirm from the Word that the Lord is the God of Heaven and earth; and that God the Father and He are one as soul and body are one; and also that we are to live according to the precepts of the decalogue; and that then man has charity and faith. 'Michael' is mentioned also in Dan.x.13,21; xii.1; and by him is meant the like ministry; as is evident from Dan.ix.x.xi. and the last verses of xii. . . Moreover those who are in these ministries are in Heaven called Michaels and Gabriels.

—<sup>e</sup>. Michael in Daniel is called 'a prince;' and by 'a prince,' in the Word, is signified a principal truth.

564. That the reasonings from falsities in abundance which the dragonists bring forth, fall into nothing from the spiritual truths rationally understood, which the Michaels, from whom is the New Church, bring forward. Sig. and Ex.

— . By the Michaels are meant the men of the New Church; by 'Michael,' the wise there; and by 'his Angels,' the rest.

839<sup>4</sup>. The two Angels said, We are from a Society of Heaven which is called Michael; and we have been commanded by the Lord to descend into the place called Armageddon . . . T.113<sup>4</sup>.

T. 110. The Spirit replied that he had been cast down, as an angel of the dragon, by the Angels of Michael . . .

300. Gabriel and Michael are not the names of two persons in Heaven; but by these names are meant all in Heaven who are in wisdom concerning the Lord, and worship Him.

477. All who are in this great Interval, as to their interiors are conjoined either with the Angels of Heaven, or with the devils of Hell; but, at this day, either with the Angels of Michael, or with the angels of the dragon.

D. 5429. 'Michael,' in the Apocalypse, is those who are in the Heavenly Doctrine; 'the blood of the Lamb' with which they have conquered, is the Divine truth of that doctrine.

5742. See LAST JUDGMENT, here.

5747. All those are called 'Michael' who were fighting for the Divine of the Lord, and that He and the Father are one; and thus that there is one God; and also for the life which is called the life of faith, or charity. . . Those who were 'Michael' were chiefly from the ancient Heavens, and from infants everywhere then [become] adults.

5879. 'Michael' is those who are in the knowledge of doctrinal things and of the Word, and at the same time in the life of charity.

E. 735. 'Michael and his Angels fought with the dragon . . . ' = a combat between those who are for the life of love and charity, and for the Divine of the Lord in His Human, against those who are for faith alone and separated, and who are against the Divine of the Lord in His Human.

—<sup>2</sup>. By 'Michael and his Angels' (are meant) those who acknowledge the Divine Human of the Lord, and who are for the life of love and charity; for those who are for the latter, cannot do otherwise than acknowledge the Divine Human of the Lord; for the reason that otherwise they cannot be in any love to the Lord, and thence neither in any charity towards the neighbour; for this charity and that love are solely from the Divine Human of the Lord, and not from the Divine separated from His Human, nor from the Human separated from His Divine; and therefore after the dragon with his angels had been cast forth into the earth, a voice was heard from Heaven: 'Now is come salvation, and power, and the Kingdom of our God, and the Power of His Christ.' From these things it may be evident what is meant by 'Michael and his Angels.'

—<sup>2</sup>. As to what concerns Michael in special, it is believed from the sense of the letter that he is one of the Archangels; but there is no Archangel in the Heavens . . . But by those Angels who are named in the Word, as by 'Michael,' and 'Raphael,' are meant administrations and functions; and, in general, determinate and stated parts of the administration and function of all the Angels; and therefore, here, by 'Michael,' is meant that of the function of the Angels above mentioned; namely, the defence of that part of the doctrine from the Word, that the Human of the Lord is Divine, and also that the life of love to the Lord and of charity towards the neighbour is to be lived, in order that anyone may have salvation from the Lord; consequently that of the function which has to do with combating against those who separate the Divine from the Human of the Lord, and who separate faith from the life of love and charity; nay, who bear charity in the mouth and not in the life.

—<sup>3</sup>. The name 'Michael,' from its derivation in the Hebrew language, means 'Who is as God?'; and therefore by 'Michael' is signified the Lord as to this Divine truth: that the Lord is God even as to the Human; and that we are to live from Him; thus in love to Him from Him, and in love towards the neighbour.

— . 'Michael' is also mentioned in Daniel . . . and by him there is signified the genuine truth from the Word which will be for those who are of the Church to be instantiated by the Lord; in like manner as here; for by 'Michael' are meant those who will be for the doctrine of the New Jerusalem, of which doctrine there are two essentials; namely, that the Human of the Lord is Divine, and that the life of love and charity is to be lived.

—<sup>4</sup>. Michael is also mentioned in the Epistle of Jude the apostle, in these words: Michael the Archangel, when disputing with the devil he convicted concerning the body of Moses, dared not utter a sentence of blasphemy; he said, 'The Lord rebuke thee' (ver.9). These words were adduced by the apostle Jude from ancient books written by correspondences; and in them by Moses was meant the Word; and by his body, the sense of the letter of the Word; and as by the devil they understood those who are here meant by 'the dragon' . . . it is evident that Michael disputing convicted the devil concerning the body of Moses—that they had falsified the letter of the Word: and, as the Word in the letter is such, that it can be warped by the evil from its genuine sense, and yet be received by the good according to the understanding of it, therefore it was said . . . that Michael dared not utter a sentence of blasphemy. 740<sup>16</sup>.

Microcosm. Microcosmus.

A. 452<sup>2</sup>. Hence it is that man was called by the Ancients a little world or microcosm. 5115. 6013<sup>2</sup>. 6057. 9278<sup>3</sup>. H. 30(o). D. Wis. xii. 3<sup>4</sup>.

6057. So that the internal man is a Heaven in the least form; and the external a world in the least form, thus a microcosm.

W. 251. The natural man, as to his understanding and will, is like a natural world, and may also be called a world or microcosm . . .

319. Man was called by the Ancients a microcosm, from the fact that he relates to the macrocosm, which is the universe in the whole complex. Ex.

—<sup>c</sup>. That the Ancients called man a microcosm, or little universe, they drew from the science of correspondences. . . The Angels know . . . that all things of the universe, regarded as to uses, relate to man in an image. 320, Ex. 323. 366<sup>e</sup>.

T. 71<sup>2</sup>. Therefore man was called by the Ancients a micro-uranus, and a microcosm.

— Hence it is a law of order that from his micro-uranus, or little Spiritual World, man must rule his microcosm, or little natural world; as God from His macro-uranus, or Spiritual World, rules the macrocosm, or natural world, in each and all things of it.

604<sup>e</sup>. The spiritual region of the human mind is a Heaven in least effigy; and the natural region is a world in least effigy; therefore by the Ancients man was called a microcosm; and also may be called a micro-uranus.

E. 969<sup>2</sup>. For man is a microcosm; he is born from his parents an image of the world . . .

Microscope. Microscopium.

See OPTIC.

A. 1869<sup>2</sup>. Occurs. 4224. 6614<sup>2</sup>. H. 269<sup>2</sup>. P. 3<sup>2</sup>. D. 2298. 2558<sup>e</sup>. 2896. 2898. 3720. J. (Post.) 77.

Micro-uranus. Micro-uranos.

See MICROCOSM, at T. 71<sup>2</sup>, and 604.

Middin. Middin.

E. 355<sup>38</sup>. 'To ride upon white asses, and to sit upon Middin' (Judg. v. 10) = the perception of good and the understanding of truth. . . 'Middin' = the Rational as to truth.

Middle. See under MEDIUM.

Middle. Meditullium.

A. 468<sup>2</sup>. Remains . . . in the 'middle—medio—or middle of the earth.'

C. J. 14. The reason the Reformed constituted the middle—medium—or Middle, was that the Word is read by them, and the Lord is worshipped . . . 20, Ex. (See J. 48).

22. (Thus) the Judgment . . . was not effected upon those who were in the Middle; but upon those who were around it . . .

43. The other great city like London is not in the Christian Middle . . .

S. 106. In the Middle, where Christians are, with whom is the Word, there is the greatest light . . .

R. 631. The reason is that the Christian Heaven, which has been collected from the Reformed, makes the Middle, and the Papists are around it; and therefore when the Middle is new, there is at the same time what is new in the circumferences . . . —.

M. 183. A garden made the middle of the grove.

477<sup>4</sup>. Towards the middle of the dwellings . . .

T. 335<sup>3</sup>. The middle (of a spider's web).

476<sup>2</sup>. Man himself as to the body is not kept in that Interval or middle (the World of Spirits) . . .

569<sup>3</sup>. (Nausea, vomiting, and swooning excited) with infernals if they pass beyond the middle of this gulf (which is between Heaven and Hell). I once saw a devil . . . who could make himself an Angel of light, passing beyond the middle . . . who did not feel any odour hostile to his life. The reason was that there were no Angels present. But as soon as they were present, he was seized with convulsions . . .

770. In the middle of the earth.

800<sup>2</sup>. The Dutch in the Christian Middle. 801. C. J. 48.

828. In that World, everyone dwells at a distance from the Middle, where Christians are, according to the confession of the Lord and of one God . . . C. J. 68.

D. 4665. (The middle between this world and the universe; and the guard stationed there. Vain attempt of a Spirit to pass over it.)

5421. See LAST JUDGMENT, here. 5458. 5466. 5653. etc.

5471. There is the Middle, where are those who are truly Christian; and in its midst is the New Jerusalem, four-square.

Coro. 52<sup>2</sup>. The Land of Canaan was in the middle of our whole world . . .

Midian. *Midian.Midianite. Midianita.

A. 1360. Abram, etc., were idolaters, and so were the nations from them, as the Ishmaelites and Midianites . . .

1362. The Ishmaelites, Midianites, and others, acknowledged Abram as their father . . .

3239. '(Keturah) bare to (Abraham) . . . Midian,' etc. (Gen.xxv.2)=the general lots of the Lord's Spiritual Kingdom . . . Ex.

3240<sup>2</sup>. The derivations of truth in the Spiritual Kingdom are what are represented by 'the sons of Midian.'

— The doctrinals of faith are for those who are in the truth of faith, and are signified by 'the sons of Midian.'

3242. 'The sons of Midian, Ephah and Ephraim, and Hanoch, and Abidiah, and Eldaah' (ver.4)=the derivations from the third lot; (for) 'Midian'=those who are in the truth of faith; and (therefore) his 'sons'=the derivations thence. Ex. . . Those who are in the truth of faith—that is, who profess faith, and call it essential, from the fact that they have been so taught—and nevertheless are in the good of life . . . are in the Lord's Spiritual Kingdom. . . For anyone may easily be persuaded that faith is the essential . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. Therefore, they who are in the truth of faith, and still are in the good of life, are they who are called 'Midian;' but the truths according to which they live, are 'the sons of Midian.' As they who are in the truth of faith conjoined with the good of it are 'Midian;' so also in the opposite sense are they who are in falsity, from the fact that they have not the good of life. III.

— 'The dromedaries of Midian and Ephah' (Is. lx.6)=doctrinal things.

— The Midianites who drew Joseph out of the pit, and sold him to the Ishmaelites, and into Egypt to Potiphar = those who are in the truth of simple good. 4747<sup>o</sup>.

—<sup>3</sup>. That by 'Midian' are also signified those who are in falsity, because they have not the good of life, may be evident from (Num.xxii.4,7, et seq.) . . . 'Midian,' in a good sense, = those who are in the truth of simple good, and who thus suffer themselves to be easily persuaded; in the opposite, as here, those who falsify truths . . .

—<sup>4</sup>. The scortations of the sons of Israel with the women of the Midianites . . . (Num.xxv.) have a like signification. Ex.

—<sup>5</sup>. In like manner the things related about the Midianites in Judg.vi.vii.viii.

—<sup>6</sup>. 'The curtains of the land of Midian' (Hab.iii.7)=a religiosity from falsity.

3762<sup>o</sup>. 'Midian' (Judg.vi.3)=those who are in falsity, because not in the good of life.

4650<sup>o</sup>. 'Who smote Midian in the field of Moab' (Gen. xxxvi.35)=purification from falsity.

4756. 'There passed by men, Midianites, traders' (Gen.xxxvii.28)=those who are in the truth of simple good, (and who have) the Knowledges of truth.

—<sup>2</sup>. (Thus) Joseph was sold to the Ishmaelites, but was drawn out of the pit by the Midianites, and was also sold by the Midianites into Egypt to Potiphar . . . Ex. under JOSEPH, here; and under ISHMAELITE, at A.4788<sup>2</sup>. 4968.

4788. 'The Midianites sold him unto Egypt' (ver.36) = that those who are in some truth of simple good consulted scientists.

5955<sup>2</sup>. Because by 'Midian,' against whom they went (Judg.vii.) was represented truth which is not truth, because [there is] not the good of life.

6773. '(Moses) dwelt in the land of Midian' (Ex.ii.15)=life among those who are in simple good; (for) 'Midian'=those who are in the truths of simple good. 6774<sup>o</sup>.

6775. 'And the priest of Midian had seven daughters' (ver.16)=the holy things of that Church. . . 'Midian'=those who are in the truths of simple good . . . Those are said to be in simple good who are in the externals of the Church, and believe the Word simply, as to its literal sense, each one according to his apprehension; and they also live according to those things which they believe . . . The internal of the Church inflows with them through good, but as they are not in interior truths, the good which inflows becomes general, thus obscure . . . They who are such are gifted with Heaven in the other life according to the quality of the good from truths. Such are they who are here meant by 'Midian.' But, in the proper sense, they are those who are outside the Church, and live in good according to their religiosity.

6827. 'And Moses was pasturing the flock of Jethro his father-in-law the priest of Midian' (Ex.iii.1)=that the Law from the Divine was instructing those who were in the truth of simple good; 'the priest of Midian'=the good of the Church where those are.

7019. 'Jehovah said to Moses in Midian' (Ex.iv.19)=illustration and confirmation from the Divine in that state. . . 'Midian'=the truth of simple good.

7602<sup>2</sup>. By 'Midian' are signified those who are in the truth of simple good; and, in the opposite sense, those who are not in the good of life. . . It is the state which the Midianites then represented, which is here described (Judg.vii.13).

8643. 'Jethro the priest of Midian' (Ex.xviii.1)=the good of the Church which is in the truth of simple good.

8815<sup>o</sup>. 'Midian, Amalek, and the sons of the east,' around whose camp the three hundred men of Gideon sounded their trumpets, (Judg.vii.)=those in evils and the derivative falsities.

9595<sup>4</sup>. 'The curtains of Midian'=the truths with those who are in simple good.

E. 410<sup>o</sup>. For the sons of Israel were taken possession of by the evil which is signified by 'Midian' . . .

430<sup>1</sup>. For by 'Midian' (Num.xxxi.) are signified those who are in the Knowledges of truth; but still not in life according to them . . .

455<sup>o</sup>. By 'Midian,' there, (Judg.vii.) are meant those who do not care for truth, because they are merely natural and external; and therefore they were smitten by those who with the tongue lapped waters in the hand like a dog; for by these are meant those who have an appetite for truths . . .

502<sup>11</sup>. By 'the Midianites' (Judg.vii.) were signified those who are in the falsities of evil.

555<sup>15</sup>. For the Midianites (Num.xxxi.) represented and thence signified the truth which is not truth because not from good; thus falsity. Hence it was that the women who had Known a man were to be slain, and those who had not Known one were to be vivified. That the Midianite women=the defilement of good through falsities, and thence good adulterated and profaned, which is filthy adultery, is evident from those things which are related concerning the scortation of the sons of Israel with the Midianite women (Num.xxv.).

Midst. See under MEDIUM.

Midwife. Obstetrix.

Midwife, To act as. Obstetricari.

Midwifery. Obstetricatus. A.4921.

A. 4588. 'The midwife said to her, Fear not' (Gen. xxxv.17)=perception from the Natural. . . 'A midwife'=the Natural . . . because when interior temptations are being undergone, that is, when the interior man is undergoing temptations, the Natural is then like a midwife; for unless the Natural assists, no birth of interior truth can ever come forth; for it is the Natural which receives into its bosom interior truths when they are born. Further ex.

—<sup>e</sup>. By 'the midwives' (Ex.i.) is represented the Natural in so far as it is recipient of goods and truths.

4921. 'The midwife took' (Gen.xxxviii.28) = the Natural. Ex.

6673. 'The king of Egypt said to the midwives of the Hebrew women' (Ex.i.15)=influx from separated scientifics into the Natural where are the scientific truths which are of the Church. . . 'The midwives'=the Natural . . . because the Natural receives that which inflows from the Internal, and thus as it were acts as a midwife. 6675. 6678. 6681.

6683. 'Midwives'=scientific truths in the Natural.

6686. 'A midwife' = the Natural where are the scientific truths which are of the Church. 6687.

Migdol. Migdal.

A. 8130. 'They encamped . . . between Migdol and the sea . . .' (Ex.xiv.2)=the beginning of a state to undergo temptations.

Mighty. Validus.

See PREVAIL=valere, and under FORCE, STRENGTH, and STRONG=fortis.

A. 6423. 'He shall sit in the might of his bow' (Gen.xlix.24)=that he is safe by the fighting truth of doctrine. . . The might of doctrine is truth . . . Ex.

7217<sup>c</sup>. Before the merely natural, these appear weak and sick in spirit; but they are strong and mighty; whereas they who are merely natural appear to themselves strong and mighty, and also are so as to the body; but as to the spirit they are quite feeble=invalidus, because they are spiritually dead.

7330. A mighty power against falsities. Sig.

9163<sup>2</sup>. 'The mighty and the broken' (Ezek.xxx.22)=those things which have not suffered injury and resist, and those which have suffered injury and do not resist.

R. 769. 'That mighty city' (Rev.xviii.10)=a religiosity so fortified.

D. 6037. See POWER=potentia, here.

E. 2817. Occurs. 304<sup>6</sup>.

518<sup>36</sup>. Are called 'mighty' from cupidity.

696<sup>30</sup>. 'The city of the mighty nations' (Is.xxv.3)=those who are in truths of doctrine, and through them in goods of love; and because all spiritual power is thence, they are called 'the mighty nations.' —.

1135. 'Mighty,' when said of doctrine and its religiosity . . . =fortified by arts . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. Those are called 'mighty,' in the Word elsewhere, who are in evils and the derivative falsities, and who have fortified themselves by arts against the goods and truths of the Church; thus with whom the Church has been devastated, and who devastate the Church with others. Ill.

Mighty one. Potens.

A. 1179. 'As Nimrod, mighty in hunting before Jehovah' (Gen.x.9)=because so many were persuaded. . . 'Mighty in hunting'=captivating lower minds.

—<sup>2</sup>. Such were anciently called 'mighty ones.' Ill.

—<sup>e</sup>. In the Original Language, the Word by which 'mighty one' is expressed [means] also 'a man-vir,' which word is predicated of faith, and that in both senses.

8315. 'The mighty ones of Moab' (Ex.xv.15)=those who are in the life of falsity from that love. . . 'The mighty ones'=things which reign and prevail.

—<sup>e</sup>. The word by which 'mighty ones' is expressed in the Original Language is predicated of those who are in truth from good; and, in the opposite sense, of those who are in falsity from evil. Ill.

R. 337. By 'the mighty' (Rev.vi.15) are signified those who are in erudition. (=external truths. E.408. —<sup>3</sup>,Ex.)

Migrate. See REMOVE=migrare.

Milan. Milanus, Mediolanus.

D. 3729. When thinking of Milan, the first thing which recurs is that men are assassinated there at night.

5648. See LAST JUDGMENT, here.

Milcah. Milkah.

A. 1369. 'The name of the wife of Nahor was Milcah . . .' (Gen.xi.29)=the marriages of evil with falsity in idolatrous worship . . . The wives=falsities.

2861<sup>2</sup>. It treats of those who are saved outside the Church, who are signified by those who were born to Nahor the brother of Abraham by Milcah his wife . . .

2863. 'Behold Milcah she also hath borne sons to Nahor thy brother' (Gen.xxii.20)=those outside the Church who are in brotherhood from good . . . For Terah had three sons, Abram, Nahor, and Haran, who worshipped other gods; and Milcah was the daughter of Haran, who became the wife of Nahor . . . Hence it may be evident what is signified by Milcah and Nahor; namely, by 'Milcah' the truth of those nations; and by 'Nahor,' the good.

Milchom. Milchom.

A. 2468<sup>16</sup>. See MOLOCH, here.

Mild. Mitis.

Mild, To become. Mitescere.

A. 987. The gentle beasts correspond to good affections. H.110.

1007<sup>e</sup>. Why such mild words are here used.

3909. Every natural affection, when it ascends towards interior things . . . becomes milder . . . —.

4681. The signification of this word becomes mild as it ascends . . .

5032<sup>2</sup>. (Those in natural good) are mild and upright hereditarily . . .

—<sup>e</sup>. They had done good like gentle animals . . .

6489<sup>e</sup>. He is bent . . . into a milder Hell . . . 8391<sup>e</sup>.

6516<sup>e</sup>. A milder (pronunciation).

7426. Two kinds of men in Venus . . . one, gentle and humane . . .

8311. If falsities are applied to good, they become mild . . .

9192<sup>7</sup>. As the falsities thence are mild and flexible . . .

H. 359. 'Learn of Me, because I am meek . . . ' (Matt.xi.29).

578<sup>e</sup>. Therefore their Hells are milder.

586<sup>2</sup>. In the milder Hells, appear . . .

P. 86<sup>e</sup>. With the good, the evils in the circumferences become mild . . .

M. 487. That adulteries committed by these are mild.

T. 473<sup>e</sup>. The mild beasts receive (influx) through Heaven . . .

D. 5932<sup>e</sup>. This Hell was among the milder ones.

E. 304<sup>4</sup>. 'Blessed are the meek' . . . 'The meek' = those who are in the good of charity.

1006<sup>2</sup>. Adulteries originating from the milder evils and derivative falsities are milder.

Mildew. Rubigo.

E. 638<sup>20</sup>. 'Blasting and mildew' (Amos iv.9)=evil and falsity in the extremes, or from the Sensuous Corporeal. A.1069<sup>3</sup>.

Mile. Milliare.

A. 1274<sup>2</sup>. Occurs. 1277. D.2771. E.1219<sup>3</sup>.

9049<sup>6</sup>. By 'a mile' (Matt.v.41) is signified that which leads to truth; for the like is signified by 'a mile' as by 'a way.'

E. 556<sup>9</sup>. 'Whosoever shall compel thee to one mile, go with him two' (Matt.v.41)=that if anyone wants to lead away from truth to falsity and from good to evil, he is not to be opposed, because he cannot do it. By 'a mile' the like is signified as by 'a way;' namely that which leads away and leads.

924. See FURLONG, here.

Militant. See under COMBAT.

Military. See under SOLDIER.

Milk. Lac.

Suckle. Lactare.

Nurse. Lactatrix.

Suck. Lactere.

Suckling. Lactens.

A. 680<sup>5</sup>. 'Wine and milk' (Is.lv.1)=the Spiritual and the Celestial.

2015<sup>3</sup>. 'To suck the milk of the gentiles' (Is.lx.16)=to be gifted with goods. (=the insinuation of celestial good. 6745<sup>3</sup>.)

2183. 'Abram' took butter and milk . . . (Gen. xviii.8)=all these [goods] thus conjoined.<sup>1</sup>

2184. 'Butter'=the Celestial of the Rational; 'milk'=the Spiritual thence.

—<sup>2</sup>. 'Milk' (Is.vii.22)=spiritual good.

—<sup>3</sup>. 'Milk of the flock' (Deut.xxxii.14) = the Celestial Spiritual of the Rational.

—<sup>4</sup>. As to 'milk,' it=the Spiritual from the Celestial, or the Celestial Spiritual . . . That 'milk'=the Spiritual which is from the Celestial is from this: that 'water'=the Spiritual; by 'milk,' because there is fat in it, the Celestial Spiritual; or, what is the same, the truth of good; or, what is the same, the faith of love or of charity; or, what is also the same, the Intellectual of the good of the will; or, what is still the same, the affection of truth in which is the affection of good; and, what is still the same, the affection of Knowledges and knowledges from the affection of charity towards the neighbour . . . All these things are the same as the Celestial Spiritual . . . Ill.

—<sup>5</sup>. 'Buy wine and milk' (Is.lv.1); where 'wine'=the Spiritual which is of faith; 'milk,' the Spiritual which is of love. ('Wine'=spiritual truth; 'milk,' spiritual good. 2967<sup>9</sup>.) ('Milk'=the good of truth. 8976<sup>e</sup>.)

—. 'His teeth whiter than milk' (Gen.xlix.12)=the Celestial of the Spiritual which is of His Natural. (=justice. 4007<sup>2</sup>.)

—<sup>6</sup>. 'The hills shall go with milk' (Joel iii.18) . . . 'milk,' here, =the Celestial Spiritual.

—. 'A Land flowing with milk and honey' . . . Here, by 'milk' nothing else is meant than an abundance of celestial spiritual things. 5620<sup>9</sup>.

2643. 'Sarah shall suckle sons' (Gen.xxi.7)=that He implanted the Human in the Divine. . . That 'milk'=the Spiritual from a celestial origin, or truth from good, see above; thus 'to suckle'=to implant this . . . and the Divine truth is the same as the Divine Human.

3183. 'A nurse'=innocence. —<sup>2</sup>,Ex.

—. 'Sucklings'=the first state of infants, which is a state of innocence. —<sup>3</sup>,Ill.

—<sup>e</sup>. 'Their queens—dominae—thy nurses' (Is.xlix.23)=wisdom, which is innocence.

3519<sup>7</sup>. 'Not to seethe a kid in its mother's milk' (Ex. xxiii.19; xxxiv.26)=that they should not destroy the innocence of infancy. (=that the good of a posterior state of innocence is not to be conjoined with the truth of a prior state of innocence. 9301<sup>e</sup>)

3755. 'Woe . . . to them that give suck in those days' (Matt.xxiv.19=those who have imbued . . . the good of innocence. . . 'To suckle'=a state of innocence.

3812<sup>4</sup>. 'Whiter than snow, and fairer—candidi—than milk' (Lam.iv.7)=that they were in celestial truth.

4378. 'The flocks and herds giving suck' (Gen.xxxiii.13)=interior and natural goods, which have not yet attained Divine life. . . 'Those giving suck'=recent things; here, spiritual things nascent in the Natural. Ex.

4563. A nurse, in so far as she suckles an infant, properly=the insinuation of innocence through the Celestial Spiritual; for 'milk'=the Celestial Spiritual . . .

5236<sup>2</sup>. 'A suckling,' 'an infant,' and 'a child'=the three degrees of innocence. . . and also the three degrees of love and of charity . . . 5608<sup>7</sup>.

5620<sup>3</sup>. 'Milk' (Is.vii.22)=spiritual good.

5943. In proportion as things partake of fat, in the same proportion they=good; as milk, etc.

6380. 'His teeth white with milk' (Gen.xlix.12)=that the Divine Natural is nothing but the good of truth. . . 'Milk'=the Celestial Spiritual; or, what is the same, the good of truth.

6740. For by the milk which a nurse insinuates, is signified the good of truth; or, what is the same, the Celestial Spiritual.

6745. 'Suckle him for me' (Ex.ii.9)=that it should insinuate into it good in agreement with the religiosity. 'To suckle'=to insinuate good. Ill. 6749.

—e. 'Suckling'=innocence.

6857. 'Flowing with milk and honey' (Ex.iii.8)=the derivative pleasantness and delight; (for) 'milk'=the Celestial Spiritual, or the truth of good; and, as it=the truth of good, it=also the pleasantness of it; for they are conjoined.

8056. 'A Land flowing with milk and honey' (Ex.xiii.5)=where there are gladness and joy . . . Gladness is predicated of truth . . . and 'milk' is predicated of the truth of good.

9301. 'Milk'=the truth of innocence. Hence 'a mother's milk'=the truth of the first innocence.

10530. 'To a Land flowing with milk and honey' (Ex.xxxiii.3)=the pleasantness and delight from the good of faith and of love. . . 'Milk'=spiritual good, which is the good of faith.

10835. (In the Sixth Earth) they drink milk with water; and their milk is from cows which are woolly like sheep.

T. 23<sup>2</sup>. This is to take away from children all spiritual milk—lacticinum.

D. 1163. The spiritual are very much delighted with milk, especially uncooked; for when I was eating this it was such a delight that I can scarcely describe it. Therefore milk belongs to the spiritual; but butter to the celestial; not that they are delighted with them as foods; but on account of the representations . . . This arises from the agreement of the spheres . . .

1842. The state of those who wanted to be innocent from themselves was represented by an infant . . . which vomited milk . . . Such is the state of those who . . . simulate innocence, or who want to be innocent from themselves, which they sustain no otherwise than as when milk is poured into such stomachs as do not endure milk . . . as are wont to be the stomachs of those who have indulged too much in inebriating drink.

2084. It is known that infants love milk, and that adults are unaccustomed to milk, so that some will not even tolerate it, because it does them harm; and therefore it is a rule of the physicians that milk is injurious in diseases. The reason it is injurious, when yet it is the simplest food, and more harmless than all things, is that they are accustomed to drinks which are repugnant [to it], especially to ales. Hence their stomach and intestines are accustomed to these, and so also is the blood, which thus do not tolerate the food of milk. When such are first consociated in the other life, there is a species of repugnance; for I have perceived from some a manifest odour of ale, when I have been drinking milk.

4018. There was represented an oblong vessel in which there was as it were milk, which was turned into a . . . bright white cloud, which concentrated itself towards the centre . . . signifying that the Angels were coming together . . .

6088<sup>2</sup>. I saw magnates . . . to whom was given only milk with bread, (because) they were doing no work . . .

E. 175<sup>3</sup>. 'Milk' (Is.lx.)=the delight of the good of love.

304<sup>45</sup>. 'Milk' (Is.vii.)=the truth through which is good. 617<sup>9</sup>.

314<sup>3</sup>. 'A child,' 'suckling,' and 'weaned one—ablactatum'=these degrees of innocence. Ex.

—7. 'Milk of the flock'=the internal good of truth.

372<sup>5</sup>. 'Milk' (is predicated of the good of truth).

376<sup>4</sup>. 'Milk' (Is.lv.)=the good of this truth. (=Divine truth spiritual natural. 617<sup>10</sup>.)

—5. 'The hills shall flow with milk'=that there is spiritual life from the good of charity towards the neighbour. 433<sup>13</sup>.

433<sup>4</sup>. 'White as to the teeth from milk'=that the external Human, or Natural, is nothing but the good of truth. (=that His Sensuous was in like manner Divine truth from Divine good. 556<sup>21</sup>.)

619<sup>7</sup>. 'Milk'=the delight of spiritual good.

710<sup>7</sup>. 'Them that give suck'=those who receive the truths of this good; for the milk which is given in suck=the truth from the good of love. The reason it is said 'Woe to them,' is that they cannot guard the goods and truths which they receive, because Hell then prevails, and takes them away; whence comes profanation . . .

840<sup>2</sup>. 'Wine and milk' (Is.lv.)=spiritual truth, and the derivative natural truth; both from good.

Milky Way. Via Lactea.

A. 10589. The Angels found that (the Spirits of the Fourth Earth) were from a star, which is their sun . . . the situation of which is low down near the Milky Way . . .

D. 5426. The fallen multitude (of the dragons) appeared like a starry mass; as it were a Milky Way.

Mill, Millstone. See under GRIND.

Millet. Milium. A.2596. 3332°. 3941<sup>5</sup>. H.325.

Million. Million. H.415. A.9441. D.4769.
See under THOUSAND.

Mimic. Mimus. T.380<sup>4</sup>. 381<sup>4</sup>. D.5076.

Mind. Animus.

A. 828. It is the first flower of love which . . . conjoins the minds of the consorts.

949. Their mind was continually in (longing for the goods of others).

950. With a mind to meet those . . .

959. The punishers had a mind to kill them . . .

1079<sup>2</sup>. The animus of hatred then shines forth . . .

1143°. Who keep the mind in the historical context.

1276. Over head are those who breathe high things with an elate mind.

1327<sup>3</sup>. Not with a deliberate intention . . .

1389. They at once know the quality of another's mind . . .

1484. That they captivated the mind. Sig.

—°. The things which are of the mind, or of the affection of knowing and learning.

1641°. Keeps his mind in the sense of the things, and not in the words . . .

1762. They expressed the sense of their mind by changes induced on my face.

—°. When they were communicating the interior sense of their mind . . .

1795<sup>2</sup>. See MIND-mens, here. H.30. P.324<sup>3</sup>. T.32<sup>2</sup>.

1835. (When) not so remote from charity, their minds are more flexible.

1850. This opinion . . . possessed the minds of the most instructed.

1886. Pref.<sup>2</sup>. Would strengthen his mind in the negative.

1967. The Spirits keep his mind fixedly in the thought . . .

—°. Those who are in infirmity of mind . . .

1983<sup>4</sup>. An immission thus into the minds of others.

2072. All the interior affections of the lower mind and of the mind-mentis are expressed by the face.

2216<sup>2</sup>. Is easily distinguished from cheerfulness of mind . . .

2219°. They who breathe such things in the mind . . .

2307°. He had such a disposition to command others.

2310. Historicals detain the lower mind in themselves; and thus draw away the mind-mentem—from thinking . . .

2699<sup>2</sup>. Some who had been of infantile mind . . . appear to themselves in white.

3127. The animus of that affection. Sig.

—°. 'To run' = propensity or animus.

3226. By the sense of his mind he can express . . .

3527. If he has learned to simulate, he assumes as it were another lower mind . . . for it is the lower mind which appears in the face. . . He is affected . . . by the mind-mente—which thus shines from the countenance.

3608. Perception . . . concerning the animus of natural good then. Sig.

3610. The animus of inverting the state and of depriving truth of life from itself. Sig.

—<sup>3</sup>. This animus lies deeply hidden . . .

3849<sup>4</sup>. The outermost affections are those which are of the body . . . those next interior are of the lower mind, and are called natural affections . . .

3983. That he has known animus and power. Sig.

—°. That to know the quality is to know the animus, is evident.

4121<sup>2</sup>. Those who have been of discordant mind are dissociated.

4126°. His sphere manifests the quality of his mind; that is, the quality of his will and thought.

4145<sup>3</sup>. Afterwards (in conjugal love) comes conjunction of minds, in that the one wills as the other . . .

4215<sup>2</sup>. There is a correspondence of the internals with all things of the face; hence the lower mind shines forth from the countenance; and the interior mind or mind-mens, from the eyes. . . Gladness of the lower mind and joy of the mind-mentis—produce singing . . .

4292<sup>4</sup>. All things of the body represent those of the lower mind and of the mind-mentis.

4299. The thoughts and affections are the interiors, because they are of the lower mind and mind-mentis.

4301<sup>3</sup>. This delight (in seeing) is not of the eye; but is of the lower mind and its affection.

4326<sup>2</sup>. The influx from the cerebellum insinuates itself especially into the face; as may be evident from the fact that the mind is inscribed on the face . . . so that from the face another knows what affections he has, and what are the changes of his lower mind and mind-mentis.

4658<sup>3</sup>. If his mind were to inhere in these things while he is dancing . . .

4750°. They hide this disposition.

5402. The mind to procure for themselves truths through scientifics. Sig.

5576<sup>3</sup>. When he is of a cheerful mind . . . his food nourishes better.

5655. The mind to procure good for truths. Sig.

—°. 'To descend' = the mind, or intention-intentio.

7363. They consociate with themselves such as agree in minds.

7737. That it would not enter into their mind. Sig.

—°. Thus, by 'the face' is signified the mind.

8118<sup>3</sup>. When the cupidity of dominating . . . invaded the mind . . .

8948. The appearance of everyone there is according to his mind and life.

8998. Marriages . . . are conjunctions of lower minds and of minds-mentium.

9182<sup>2</sup>. Legitimate conjunction takes places when the minds are conjoined ; and . . . no conjunction . . . when the minds are disjoined.

—<sup>3</sup>. Legitimate conjunction, which is that of minds, takes place when both are of like good and truth . . .

9296. Worship from a grateful mind . . . Sig.

9333<sup>2</sup>. This error is seated in many minds . . .

10756. For all things which are of the mind are presented in some natural shape in the body . . .

10837. When a youth sees one to whom his mind draws him . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. From their faces they see whether they agree in minds ; for the face of everyone there is the index of the mind.

H. 56<sup>2</sup>. Beauty, etc., affect both the senses and the minds.

91. Hence the face is called the index of the mind.

284<sup>e</sup>. How it compares with that rest of mind possessed by those who are content in God.

290<sup>e</sup>. The cupidities into which their lower mind is carried.

299. The grief of mind . . . which is called melancholy.

319. When this is seated in one's mind . . . in the same proportion he is led by the Lord.

330. The infants who die . . . are of a like infantile mind . . .

335<sup>e</sup>. By games suitable to the minds of the infants.

361<sup>2</sup>. Because thus he can remove his mind from an idle life.

362. The rich who have rejected the things of Heaven and the Church from the mind are in Hell.

363. The body . . . is the external form corresponding to the internal form which is of his lower mind and mind-mentis.

375. The essential of marriage is the union of the minds or of the minds-mentium. Hence, such as are the minds or minds-mentes in themselves, such is the union. (Continued under MIND-mens.)

418. Whence man has interior activities serviceable to the operations of his mind . . .

427. As they were of diverse minds . . . after a short time they were disjoined.

—<sup>2</sup>. They then see each other no longer . . . unless they are of a like mind from a like love.

486. For the face is the image of everyone's mind.

493. In the first state of man after death . . . he is of like mind . . .

533. When anything arises which he knows to be insincere . . . and to which his mind is carried . . .

555. The elation of mind in externals which is called pride.

— His mind would become torpid.

— Celebrated in the minds of others.

N. 41. The interiors which are of the mind-mentis . . . are turned to that which he loves above all things ; and the exteriors which are of the lower mind are turned to where the interiors are turned.

J. 13. As many men . . . so many faces, and so many minds.

— Innumerable parts constitute the body ; and innumerable affections constitute the mind.

W. 416<sup>e</sup>. Serve for captivating minds.

P. 141. No one is reformed in a state of sickness of mind ; because sickness of mind takes away rationality . . . for the mind-mens is sick and not sound ; and a sound mind-mens is rational, but not a sick mind-mens. Such sicknesses are . . . griefs of mind from misfortunes, anxieties and anguish of mind-mentis—from a vitiated state of the body . . .

317<sup>2</sup>. As he sees the mind of another from his face.

R. 480. A motion of the mind with many in the Church to receive the doctrine. Sig.

M. 244<sup>2</sup>. There are many causes which conjoin lower minds, but not souls . . .

246. The first external cause of cold is a dissimilitude of lower minds and manners.

—<sup>2</sup>. But external similitudes and dissimilitudes are not of souls, but of lower minds. By lower minds are meant the external affections and derivative inclinations . . . For we say, Have I a mind to do this or that ? by which is perceived the affection and inclination to it. The persuasions taken up concerning this or that kind of life are also wont to form these lower minds . . .

T. 103<sup>2</sup>. As the soul is the man himself . . . it is evident whence it is that the mind-mens, the lower mind, the nature-indoles, the inclination, and the affection of the father's love dwell in offspring after offspring . . .

373. In every work which proceeds from man, there is the whole man such as he is as to the mind, or such as he is essentially. By the mind is meant his affection of love and the derivative thought. These form his nature-naturam ; in general, his life.

405<sup>1</sup>. The phantasy of this love carries their minds away . . .

433<sup>2</sup>. Which exhilarated the mind of everyone . . .

— As by their . . . feasts such consociations of minds were signified . . .

521. Sons are born into a general likeness of their parents as to . . . minds.

— You might thus be convinced of the likeness of lower minds and minds-mentium.

535. When anyone is revolving evil in the mind, and intending it . . .

678<sup>e</sup>. So draw away their mind, and alienate them from Christianity.

Ad. 61. The lower or natural mind-mens, commonly called the animus . . .

88. The third of man's faculties in succession is the natural mind-mens, or animus. (See MIND-mens, here, and at 653.)

647. These Genii correspond completely to that power in man which has been called above the lower mind-mens, or animus. It is the nature of these Genii that they there excite those affections which are called the passions of the lower mind . . .

[Ad.] 916. To animals a certain mind-mens-has been given which is called the animus; from which they are called animals; and the like is also given to man, which has been called by us above the natural mind-mens; but in order that it might be of service to his intellectual mind-menti . . .

933<sup>3</sup>. And the natural mind-mentem-itself, or animus . . .

— The passions of the lower mind; thus the properly animal life . . .

949. Cupidities, which are longings in the natural mind-mente; from which this mind-mens-is called the animus; and these cupidities, the cupidities of the animus.

950<sup>3</sup>. To these succeed again infra-celestial goodnesses, which are middle ones between the spiritual and the natural ones, and properly affect the natural mind-mentem, or animus, which men have in common with animals.

952<sup>e</sup>. To these succeed the evils which properly touch the lower mind-mentem, or animus . . .

D. 377<sup>2</sup>. (These mice, etc.) are formed according to . . . the purpose for the sake of which they are misers.

515. Nor can a man's lower mind be torn to pieces without perishing, because it coheres with the body.

516<sup>e</sup>. With a mind to persevere.

526<sup>e</sup>. Whether he (acknowledged this) from his mind, I do not yet know.

610. They retain in mind the companions they had had in the life of the body.

625. With a mind to chastise.

647. Speech and persuasions have no effect when the mind desires, or is affected with love. Ex.

865<sup>e</sup>. Others who have a like animus . . .

908<sup>e</sup>. Has the mind intent on wealth.

909. There was his mind . . .

951. That the Angels can examine the mind of a man separated as it were from the man. Ex.

— What he had had, or had intended, in the mind.

1558a. How the minds of the inhabitants in this world are in common. Ex.

2182. The mind is Known (from their speech).

3663. It came into my mind that . . .

3861<sup>2</sup>. The mind, or the affections of the man, appear inscribed on the face.

3963. Men not only as to the mind and memory, but also as to sense.

4277<sup>e</sup>. Until such a disposition ceases.

4278. Their deceitful disposition.

4538. Keeping the mind in these things, and thus driving to them.

4731. Similitudes of minds effect such things.

4848<sup>e</sup>. They induced into the minds of others whatever they wanted.

6052. The love of commanding sinks the mind into its proprium.

6054<sup>e</sup>. Unless he has an intention to marry her.

6056<sup>e</sup>. His place in the temple agrees with his mind.

6060. Debilitated in mind . . . because his conceit had been depressed.

6072. The love of uses holds together the mind in its delight. D. Wis. xi<sup>4</sup>.

6073. He rejected the Word from his mind.

E. 544<sup>3</sup>. In the Spiritual World there is a communication of minds; that is, of thoughts and affections.

866<sup>e</sup>. All the evil have a mind and cupidity, consequently a will, to destroy the truths of Heaven . . .

932<sup>2</sup>. It is in their mind that good works may be omitted.

1185<sup>2</sup>. Eminence and opulence (are what) principally affect minds, because they are proper to the natural man.

D. Love xv<sup>2</sup>. They keep the mind as in a prison . . .

Mind. Mens.

Mental. Mentalis.

See under DEGREE, IDEA, REGION, SENSE, SOUL, SOUND-sanus, THINK, UNDERSTANDING, and WILL.

A. 35. When the understanding is ruled by the will, they together constitute one mind, and thus one life; for then, that which the man wills and acts, he also thinks and intends. But when the understanding is dissident from the will, as is the case with those who say they have faith, but live otherwise, then the one mind is drawn asunder into two; one of which wants to betake itself into Heaven, and the other tends to Hell; and, as the will does everything, the whole would rush to Hell, unless the Lord had mercy on him. 44<sup>2</sup>.

111. Many do not know what the will and understanding are, and that they constitute one mind . . . 116.

310. Seed from a celestial origin is such that love rules the whole mind, and makes it one mind. For the human mind consists of two parts: the will and the understanding. To the will belongs love, or good; to the understanding, faith, or truth. From love, or good, they perceived what is faith, or truth; thus the mind was one mind. (And then) if they decline from truth and good, it is very dangerous; for they thus pervert their whole mind, so that in the other life it can scarcely be restored.

1745. The mind such as it was with the Lord. Sig. and Ex.

1795<sup>2</sup>. Such as are the lower mind and mind, such is the estimation of all things which come forth through the External . . .

1974. Affected the mind.

1999. When the mind is kept in . . .

2011<sup>e</sup>. Therefore the human mind is (then) in no fallacy.

2176<sup>2</sup>. Historicals attract the mind.

2177<sup>2</sup>. That human minds may, through that Supper, be conjoined with heavenly minds . . .

2231<sup>2</sup>. (Thus) the will is one thing, and the understanding another ; and thus the human mind is distinguished into two parts, which do not make a one. Yet man has been so created that these two parts should constitute one mind ; and that there should be no other distinction, than . . . such as there is between a flame and the derivative light . . .

2268. The human mind as to truths is . . . called 'a city' . . . 2851<sup>7</sup>.

2310<sup>e</sup>. The Word . . . unites angelic minds with human ones . . .

2479<sup>e</sup>. In proportion as the mind can be withdrawn from sensuous and corporeal things, it is elevated to spiritual and celestial things.

2728<sup>e</sup>. When good united to truth flows down into a lower sphere, it presents this union of minds . . . and therefore the union of minds from good united to truth . . . is conjugal love itself.

2731. The conjunction of minds is such that . . .

2734. And there becomes the union of minds, in which is Heaven.

2737. With those who live in conjugal love, the interiors of the mind are open through Heaven even to the Lord . . .

2857<sup>e</sup>. Every temptation in which the man conquers, elevates his mind, and the things of his mind . . .

2927. From gladness and joy the mind is elevated.

3020. The rational mind is what disposes all things . . . and by influx into the natural mind, ordines them ; but the natural mind is that which ministers and administers. As the natural mind is distinct from the rational mind, and is in a degree below it, and also acts from a certain proprium, it is called, relatively, the elder servant of the house, and the administrant of all things which are there.

—<sup>2</sup>. The things which are in the natural mind are all scientifics, thus also all Knowledges of every kind whatever ; in a word, each and all things which belong to the exterior or corporeal memory. To it also belongs all the Imaginative, which is the interior Sensuous with man . . . and also all the natural affections, which man has in common with brute animals.

—<sup>3</sup>. But the rational mind is interior. The cognitive things which are there are not open before the man ; but, while he lives in the body, are imperceptible ; namely, each and all things which belong to the interior memory ; and also all the Cognitive which is perceptive of what is fair and just, and also of what is true and good ; also all spiritual affections, which are properly human . . . This mind inflows from these things into the natural mind, and excites the things which are there, and views them with a kind of sight, and thus judges and concludes.

—<sup>e</sup>. That these two minds are distinct, is manifestly evident from the fact that with many the natural mind dominates over the rational mind . . . and that it does not dominate, but serves, solely with those who are in the good of charity . . .

3129. Hence it is that the mind both rational and natural is called a house or family . . .

3212<sup>3</sup>. When man is being regenerated . . . although he has a like face, he has not a like mind. His mind, when he is regenerate, is open towards Heaven, and there dwell therein love to the Lord and charity towards the neighbour with faith ; it is the mind which makes another and a new man.

3223. The interior mind of man, where are his intellectual ideas which are called immaterial, is in the light of Heaven . . . 3224.

3224<sup>3</sup>. For truths and goods, which are from the light of Heaven, inflow into the interior mind, which with them is closed, (and they are therefore denied). The truths and goods cannot be acknowledged except with those with whom that interior mind has been opened . . . This mind is opened solely with those who are in innocence, in love to the Lord, and in charity towards the neighbour ; but not with those who are in the truths of faith, unless they are at the same time in the good of life.

3347. The Angels compared human minds to the external form of man, which comes forth and subsists from innumerable forms which are within. Enum.

—<sup>2</sup>. But they compared angelic minds to those things which are within, which are relatively indefinite and also incomprehensible . . .

3509<sup>2</sup>. The rational mind is distinguished into two faculties, called the will and the understanding . . .

—<sup>e</sup>. As the natural mind is regenerated through the rational mind . . .

—<sup>e</sup>. 'Isaac' = the rational mind as to good . . . 'Rebekah,' as to truth.

3527<sup>2</sup>. The Most Ancients could see the minds of another conspicuous as in a form in his face.

3849<sup>4</sup>. The outermost affections are those of the body, and are called appetites and pleasures ; those which are next interior are of the lower mind, and are called natural affections ; but the internal ones are of the rational mind, and are called spiritual affections.

4054. The brain, where is the mind of man . . .

4215<sup>2</sup>. There is a correspondence of the internals with all things of the face ; hence the lower mind shines forth from the countenance, and the interior lower mind, or mind, from the eyes. 4299.

4292<sup>4</sup>. In a word, all things which are of the body represent those which are of the lower mind, and which are of the mind.

4390<sup>e</sup>. The human mind in the universal has no other objects than those which are of truth and good ; its understanding, those which are of truth ; and its will, those which are of good.

4454. Their will and understanding made . . . one mind ; and therefore they had a perception of truth from good . . . 5113<sup>3</sup>.

4574<sup>2</sup>. For man has been so created that the understanding and the will should constitute one mind ; and they (do so) when the understanding acts as one with the will ; that is, when the man thinks and speaks as he wills and thence acts. Then also his intellectual things are forms of his will . . . Hence it follows, that, regarded in itself, the Intellectual is nothing but the Voluntary formed.

[A.] 4835<sup>4</sup>. As the mind of man (appears in a representative image) in his face.

4973. 'The house'=the mind in which is good; here, the natural mind.

— There are with every man a natural mind and a rational mind; the natural mind in his external man; the rational mind in his internal man. Scientifics are the truths of the natural mind . . . 5301.

5023. See HOUSE, here.

5145. The faculties of the mind are in the head . . .

5180<sup>2</sup>. They hold the mind of another in the thing they want to know.

5293. The mind of man, where are his interior understanding and interior will, or where are the intentions or ends, is nourished even when it lives in the body (solely by these spiritual and celestial foods).

5301. The natural mind or man is what is meant by the Natural, simply so called.

— That the mind is the man himself.

5302. 'The land (of Egypt)'=the natural mind; and, as it=the natural mind, it=the man himself; for man is man from his mind; for the mind itself constitutes the man; and such as the mind is, such is the man. By the mind is signified the Intellectual and the Voluntary of man; consequently his veriest life.

5311. That the natural mind shall be subordinate and submissive thereto. Sig. and Ex.

5614<sup>3</sup>. As the interior or rational mind of the man who is in good is in the Spiritual World, and his exterior or natural mind in the natural world, it cannot be otherwise than that each mind thinks, but the interior one spiritually, and the exterior one naturally; and that the Spiritual falls into the Natural, and they act as one by correspondence.

—<sup>4</sup>. That the interior mind of man, whose ideas of thought are called intellectual . . . does not think from the words of any language, consequently not from natural forms, may be evident . . . for he can think in a moment what he can scarcely utter in an hour; thus by means of universals . . .

5835. The mind of man, which is the man himself, and where is the life of man, has two faculties; one, which is allotted to the truths of faith, and the other which is allotted to the good of charity; (the former) is called the understanding, and (the latter) the will. In order for man to be man, these two faculties must make a one. But at this day (they) are completely disjointed. Ex. . . But they ought not to be disjointed. Ex. . . These two faculties are (therefore) to be conjoined, which is effected through regeneration by the Lord; and this through the implantation of the truth of faith in the good of charity; for thus . . . the man is gifted with a new understanding; and . . . with a new will. Hence come two faculties which make one mind.

6032<sup>2</sup>. So the intellectual mind, which is man's internal eye . . .

6141. That the mind must be cultivated with the scientifics of the Church. Sig. and Ex.

— 'The ground'=the receptacle of truth: the receptacle itself is the mind; here, the natural mind, because it is the ground of Egypt.

6158. For the nourishment of the mind. Sig. and Ex.

— When man is called 'a field,' it is his mind which is meant; for man is man . . . from his mind; that is, from understanding and will, which constitute the mind; and also from the truth of faith and the good of charity, which constitute a mind still more interior. This, namely the mind, when it is in the genuine sense a man, is nourished and supported by truth and good.

6222<sup>2</sup>. These . . . cause the Intellectual and the Voluntary to constitute one mind.

6326. All the operations of the mind are variations of its form; which variations in the purer substances are of such perfection that they cannot be described; and the ideas of thought are nothing else; and these variations come forth according to the changes of the state of the affections. Examp.

6502. Evils and falsities . . . induce sicknesses of mind . . .

6629. Hence the elevation of their mind to interior things.

7130. There are with man two minds; one is the natural mind, and the other is the rational mind; the natural mind is the mind of the external man, but the rational mind is the mind of the internal man. The things which are of the natural mind are called scientifics; but the things which are of the rational mind are called intellectual reasons. They are distinguished also by this: that the things which are of the natural mind are for the most part in the light of the world, which is called the lumen of nature; but the things which are of the rational mind are in the light of Heaven, which light is spiritual light.

7179<sup>2</sup>. (The will and understanding) conjoin themselves with those who are in good and thence in truth; and also with those who are in evil and thence in falsity. With the latter and the former these two faculties make one mind. It is otherwise with those who are in truth as to faith, and in evil as to life; and so also with those who are in falsity as to faith, and in apparent good as to life.

7353. 'Bed-chambers'=the interiors of the mind.

—<sup>6</sup>. The Ancients compared the mind of man to a house . . . The human mind also is such; for the things—res—which are there are distinguished scarcely otherwise than as a house is into its chambers. Ex.

7408. For all things which are in the mind of man are disposed into series, and as it were into bundles; and into series within series, or into bundles within bundles. Ex.

7848. Whether you say man, or his mind, it is the same . . .

8243<sup>2</sup>. Hence, concerning the face, they have the idea as of the mind in form.

8378. With those with whom [the sense of] taste commands, the body sickens, or at least becomes languid within; consequently also the mind; for this behaves itself according to the state of the recipient parts, which are of the body . . .

8455<sup>2</sup>. Thus makes the mind of man a Heaven.

8505. 'Field' = man; here, the mind of man . . .

8631. They represented the intellectual mind as a beautiful form . . .

8694<sup>3</sup>. The mind is then at rest and serene . . .

8701<sup>9</sup>. In the other life, all are reduced to this state : that they have one mind . . .

8734<sup>3</sup>. The conjunction of lower minds (consists in this :) that the mind of the one presents itself in the mind of the other with all the good of his thought and will towards him, and thus affects him. And spiritual disjunction (consists in this :) that the mind of the one presents itself in the mind of the other with the thought and will of destroying him; whence comes rejection.

8783. For, at first, human minds apprehend only earthly and worldly things . . .

8998. For, regarded in themselves, marriages are conjunctions of lower minds and of minds . . .

9003<sup>2</sup>. The nourishments of human minds. Ex. and III.

9093. He who divides his lower mind or mind, destroys it; for the mind of man is consociated of two things (the understanding and the will); and he who divides these two parts, disperses the things which are of the one part; for the one lives from the other; hence the other perishes likewise.

9300<sup>2</sup>. With a regenerate man the understanding and will make one mind; and they communicate reciprocally . . .

H. 30. The interiors of man which are of his mind and lower mind are in a like (tripartite) order: he has an inmost, a middle, and an ultimate . . . Therefore man communicates with the Heavens as to his interiors . . .

90. The interiors, which are of his mind . . . make his Spiritual World; and the exteriors, which are of his body . . . make his natural world. (Their correspondence.)

314. For angelic minds and human minds are similar . . .

356<sup>9</sup>. The human mind is like ground, which is such as it is [made by] cultivation.

367. Marriage in the Heavens is the conjunction of two into one mind. . . The human mind consists of two parts, (the understanding and will); and when these act as a one they are called one mind. N.28.

375. The mind is formed solely from truths and goods . . . consequently a union of minds which have been formed from genuine truths and goods is the most perfect.

425<sup>2</sup>. It is not allowable for anyone in Heaven or Hell to have a divided mind. Ex.

533. In proportion as Heaven is conjoined, the higher things which are of his mind are opened . . .

J. 12<sup>2</sup>. The form of Heaven is like the form of the human mind, the perfection of which increases according to the increments of truth and good, whence are intelligence and wisdom. The reason the form of a human mind which is in heavenly wisdom and intelligence is like the form of Heaven, is that the mind is the least image of that form . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. The human and the angelic mind is such that it can be enriched to eternity; and, as it is enriched, so it is perfected; which is done especially when the man is led by the Lord; for he is then introduced into genuine truths which are implanted in the understanding, and into genuine goods which are implanted in the will; for the Lord then disposes all things of such a mind into the form of Heaven, even until it is a Heaven in the least form.

25. Man has been created to the form of Heaven as to his mind; and the form of Heaven is from the Divine Itself.

27<sup>3</sup>. All things which are of the spiritual mind are presented in forms before their sight. Hence it is that the Spiritual World cannot be described as to its magnificent and amazing things.

Life 43. Man has two faculties, one of which is called the will, and the other the understanding. These are distinct from each other, but are so created that they may be a one; and, when they are a one, they are called the mind; and therefore these are the human mind, and are all the life of man there.

—<sup>2</sup>. Nothing is of more importance than to know how the will and the understanding make one mind. They make one mind as good and truth make a one; for there is a like marriage between the will and the understanding as there is between good and truth . . . Thus the will with man is the very esse of his life, and the understanding is the derivative existence of life; for the good which is of the will forms itself in the understanding, and in a certain way presents itself to view.

81. Cunning and deceit insinuate themselves into the man's spiritual mind, in which is his thought with understanding.

86. Man has a natural mind and a spiritual mind; the natural mind is below, and the spiritual mind is above. The natural mind is the mind of his world; and the spiritual mind is the mind of his Heaven. The natural mind may be called the animal mind; but the spiritual mind the human mind. Moreover, man is distinguished from an animal by this: that he has a spiritual mind; by this he can be in Heaven while in the world; by this also it is that man lives after death.

—<sup>2</sup>. Man can be in the spiritual mind with the understanding, and thence in Heaven; but he cannot be in the spiritual mind with the will . . . unless he shuns evils as sins; and if he is not there with the will also, he is still not in Heaven; for the will draws the understanding downwards, and makes it equally as natural and animal as itself.

—<sup>4</sup>. So long as a man does not shun evils as sins, the concupiscences of evil block up the interiors of the natural mind on the side of the will; and are there like a dense veil, and like a black cloud, below the spiritual mind, and prevent it from being opened. But verily as soon as a man shuns evils as sins, the Lord inflows from Heaven, and takes away the veil, and disperses the cloud, and opens the spiritual mind, and thus introduces the man into Heaven.

F. 32. Every man has a natural mind and a spiritual mind; the natural mind is for the world, and the spiritual mind is for Heaven. As to the understanding, man is in both; but not as to the will, until he shuns and is averse to evils as sins. When he does this, the spiritual mind is opened as to the will also; and, when it is opened, there inflows thence into the natural mind spiritual heat from Heaven—which heat in its essence is charity—and vivifies the Knowledges of truth and good which are there, and from them forms faith.

W. 40<sup>2</sup>. Appearances are the first things from which the human mind forms its understanding . . .

135. That all the interiors both of the mind and of the body of the Angels are turned to the Lord as a Sun. Gen.art.

136. The will and understanding rule the body . . . from which it is evident that the body is a form corresponding to the understanding and will . . . and that the form of the body corresponds to the form of the understanding and will . . . Hence it is that the mind—or the will and understanding—rules the body at its beck . . . (Thus) the interiors of the mind act as one with the interiors of the body; and the exteriors of the mind, with the exteriors of the body.

137. As the interiors of the mind make one with the interiors of the body, it follows that when the interiors of the mind turn themselves to the Lord as a Sun, the interiors of the body also do in like manner; and as the exteriors of both the mind and the body depend upon their interiors, these, too, do in like manner. . . From these things it is evident that because an Angel turns his face and body to the Lord as a Sun, all the interiors of his mind and body are also turned thither. The like holds with man: if he has the Lord constantly before his eyes . . . he then regards Him not only with the eyes and face, but also with the whole mind and the whole body; that is, with all things of the will and understanding, and at the same time with all things of the body.

138. When the interiors are opened, love and wisdom inflow into the interiors of the mind; and the heat and light of Heaven into the interiors of the body.

—<sup>2</sup>. (But) with those who are not in love and wisdom . . . the interiors of both mind and body are closed; and, when they are closed, the exteriors react against the Lord.

155. Keep the mind in an idea abstracted from space and time . . .

162. They no longer want to elevate the mind above nature; and therefore their mind is closed above and opened below . . .

186<sup>2</sup>. It is the like with men: the interiors of their mind are distinguished into as many degrees as there are Angelic Heavens. (Continued under DEGREE.)

203. For man as to the interiors which are of his mind is a Heaven in the least form.

219. The interiors which are of the mind are in no power, except through the forces in the body . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. The interiors which are of the mind correspond to the interiors of the body; and the interiors of the body correspond to its exteriors . . . and therefore the former two are in power through the exteriors of the body.

239. In a word, the mind of man, which consists of the will and the understanding, from creation, and thence from birth, is of three degrees; thus man has a natural mind, a spiritual mind, and a celestial mind; and thereby man can be elevated into angelic wisdom, and can possess it while he lives in the world; but still he does not come into it until after death . . .

260. That the natural mind, because it is the covering and containant of the higher degrees of the human mind, is the reagent; and, that if the higher degrees are not opened, it acts against them; but if they are opened, it acts with them. Gen.art.

—<sup>2</sup>. Another reason why the natural mind reacts against the spiritual mind, is that the natural mind consists not only of substances of the Spiritual World, but also of substances of the natural world . . .

—<sup>e</sup>. It is the same whether you say the natural and spiritual man, or the natural and spiritual mind.

261. (Thus) if the spiritual mind is closed up, the natural mind continually acts against those things which are of the spiritual mind; and fears lest anything should inflow therefrom to perturb its states . . . 262.

262<sup>e</sup>. When a man is such, he successively closes up the spiritual mind closer and closer: confirmations of evil by means of falsities especially close it up.

263. But the state of the natural mind is altogether different when the spiritual mind is open. Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. When the natural mind acts from the delights of its love, and from the pleasant things of its thought, which in themselves are evils and falsities, then the reaction of the natural mind removes those things which are of the spiritual mind . . . and causes action to take place from such things as agree with its reaction. Thus are effected an action and reaction of the natural mind which are opposite to the action and reaction of the spiritual mind; and hence is effected a closing up of the spiritual mind, like the retorsion of a spire.

—<sup>3</sup>. But if the spiritual mind is opened, the action and reaction of the natural mind are inverted; for the spiritual mind acts from above or from the interior, and at the same time through those things which are disposed to compliance with it in the natural mind, from below or from the exterior; and it retorts the spire in which are the action and reaction of the natural mind; for this mind is from birth in the opposite against those things which are of the spiritual mind.

—<sup>4</sup>. Such is the change of state which is called reformation and regeneration. The state of the natural mind before reformation may be compared to a spire twisting or circumflexing downwards; whereas after reformation it may be compared to a spire twisting or circumflexing upwards . . .

266. As the natural mind can be elevated (as to the understanding even to the light in which are the Angels of the Third Heaven, and can see truths, acknowledge them, and then speak them), it is evident that an evil man, equally with a good man, enjoys that faculty which is called rationality . . . and that he can think and speak those truths. Ex.

269<sup>e</sup>. The malignity of evil increases according to the degree of the closing up of the spiritual mind; for thus the natural mind is also closed above; and this is not restored in the descendants, except by, from the Lord, shunning evils as sins. Thus and no otherwise is the spiritual mind opened; and, through it, the natural mind is brought back into a correspondent form.

270. That all evils and the derivative falsities, both ingenerated and superinduced, reside in the natural mind. Ex.

— The reason evils and the derivative falsities reside in the natural mind, is that this mind is in form or image a world; whereas the spiritual mind is in form or image a Heaven, and evil cannot lodge in Heaven; and therefore this mind is not opened from birth, but is only in the potency of being opened. Moreover, the natural mind derives its form in part from the substances of the natural world; but the spiritual mind solely from the substances of the Spiritual World; and is conserved in its integrity by the Lord, in order that the man may be able to become a man; for he is born an animal, but becomes a man.

—<sup>2</sup>. The natural mind with all things belonging to it is circumflexed into gyres from right to left; but the spiritual mind into gyres from left to right. Thus these minds are in a contrary turning towards each other: a sign that evil resides in the natural mind; and that from itself it acts against the spiritual mind: and the circumgyration from right to left is turned downwards, thus towards Hell; whereas the circumgyration from left to right goes upwards, thus towards Heaven...

273. That the natural mind, which is in evils and the derivative falsities, is a form and image of Hell. Ex.

— The quality of the natural mind as it is with man in its own substantial form, or the quality of it as it is in its form woven from the substances of both worlds in the brains—where this mind resides in its primes—cannot be described here. A universal idea concerning that form will be given in what follows, where the correspondence of the mind and the body is to be treated of. Here, something shall be said concerning its form as to the states and their changes through which are presented perceptions, thoughts, intentions, volitions, and the things which belong to them; for the natural mind which is in evils and the derivative falsities, is, as to these things, a form and image of Hell. This form supposes a substantial form as a subject; for changes of state are not possible apart from a substantial form which is their subject...

—<sup>2</sup>. As to the form or image whereby the natural mind resembles Hell: that form or image is such, that the reigning love with its concupiscences—which is the universal state of this mind—is as the devil is in Hell; and that the thoughts of falsity originating from that reigning love, are as the devil's crew...

274. That the natural mind, which is a form or image of Hell, descends through three degrees. Ex.

— The natural mind, from its two faculties, which are called rationality and freedom, is in this state: that it can ascend through three degrees, and descend through three degrees. It ascends from goods and truths; and it descends from evils and falsities; and, when it ascends, the lower degrees which tend to Hell are closed; and, when it descends, the higher degrees which tend to Heaven are closed. The reason is, that they are in reaction.

275. That the three degrees of the natural mind... are opposite to the three degrees of the spiritual mind... Ex. (See DEGREE, here.)

276. That the natural mind which is a Hell, is in all oppositeness against the spiritual mind which is a Heaven. Ex.

277. That all things which are of the three degrees of the natural mind are enclosed (or included) in the works which are done by the acts of the body. Gen.art.

— All things of the mind... of a man are in his acts or works, enclosed therein... (Continued under DEGREE.)

291<sup>e</sup>. The affections are mere states of the forms of the mind.

369<sup>2</sup>. Hence it is, that he who elevates his mind to the Lord, is wholly elevated to the Lord; and that he who casts down his mind to Hell, is wholly cast down thither... It is from angelic wisdom, that the mind of a man is a man, because God is a Man; and that the body is the external of the mind which sensates and acts; and that thus they are one, and not two.

372. That all things of the mind relate to love and wisdom; and all things of the body to the heart and lungs. Ex.

374. That there is a correspondence of the will and understanding with the heart and lungs; and thence a correspondence of all things of the mind with all things of the body. Ex.

386. That the mind of man is his spirit, and that the spirit is a man; and that the body is the external through which the mind or spirit sensates and acts in its world. Ex.

—<sup>e</sup>. As the mind of man is his spirit, the Angels, who are Spirits, are called minds.

387. The reason that the mind of man is his spirit, and that the spirit is a man, is that by the mind are meant all things of the will and understanding of man; and these are in principles (or beginnings) in the brains, and in principiates (or derivatives) in the body; thus they are all things of man, as to their forms; and, as it is so, the mind—that is, the will and understanding—actuates the body and all things of it at its beck. Does not the body act whatever the mind thinks and wills? The mind erects the ear to hear, and directs the eye to see; the mind moves the tongue and lips to speak; it acts the hands and fingers to do whatever it pleases, and the feet to walk where it wills. Is the body anything else than the obedience of its mind? Can the body be such a thing unless the mind in its principiates is in the body? Is it congruous with reason to think, that the body from obedience does, because the mind so wills? In this case they would be two, the one above and the other below; and the one must command, and the other must hearken. As this is not in agreement with any reason, it follows, that the life of man is in principles in the brains, and in principiates in the body...

388. (Thus) the mind of man is the man himself. (Continued under HUMAN FORM.)

[W.388]<sup>6</sup>. The mind of man, not only in general, but also in every particular, is in a perpetual endeavour after the human form, because God is a Man.

P. 124. In a like form, from the connection of all things, is also the human mind ; for the human mind is a spiritual man ; and also is actually a man. Hence it is that the spirit of man, which is his mind in the body, is in all form a man . . .

174. The things which are done by the Lord in the interior substances and forms of the mind are infinitely many . . .

178<sup>2</sup>. The mind of man is continually in these three things, which are called end, cause, and effect. If one of these is absent, the human mind is not in its life. Ex. . . This life of the mind would be diminished . . . in an event foretold.

181. The reason there is the like in the spiritual things of the mind as in the natural things of the body, is that all things of the mind correspond to all things of the body ; and therefore also the mind actuates—agil—the body in externals . . . it actuates the eyes to see, etc. . . The mind not only actuates the externals to these things, but also the internals in the whole series ; from the inmosts, the ultimates ; and from the ultimates, the inmosts. Thus, while it is actuating the mouth to speak, it actuates the lungs, the larynx, the glottis, the tongue, the lips ; and each one distinctly and simultaneously to its own function ; and also the face to agreement.

—<sup>2</sup>. Hence it is evident that the like which has been said about the natural forms of the body, is to be said about the spiritual forms of the mind ; and that what has been said about the natural operations of the body, is to be said about the spiritual operations of the mind ; consequently, as man disposes the externals, [so] the Lord disposes the internals . . .

—<sup>e</sup>. The mind of man is also in its whole form a man ; for it is his spirit, which after death appears as a man exactly as in the world . . . and thus the things which have been said about the conjunction of externals with internals in the body, are to be understood also about the conjunction of externals with internals in the mind ; with the sole difference, that the one is natural, and the other spiritual.

196. Now, as it is the mind of man which thinks, and as it thinks from the delight of its affection ; and not the body ; and as the mind of man is his spirit, which lives after death ; it follows that the spirit of man is nothing except affection and the derivative thought.

199<sup>3</sup>. That in the interiors of the mind of man there are such infinite things that they cannot be defined by numbers, is evident from the infinite things in the body, of which nothing arrives at the sight or sense, except the action alone in much simplicity, to which there yet concur thousands of motor or muscular fibres, thousands of nervous fibres, thousands of little blood-vessels, thousands of things of the lungs which co-operate in every action, thousands of things in the brains and in the dorsal spine ; and still more by far in the spiritual man, which is the human mind ; all the things of which are forms of affections and of the derivative perceptions and thoughts. (Continued under Soul.)

279<sup>1</sup>. Hence it may be evident, that the operations of the purely organic substances of the mind are nothing else (than changes and variations of its state and form) ; with the difference that the operations of the organic substances of the body are natural, whereas those of the mind are spiritual ; and that the latter and the former make a one by correspondences.

—<sup>8</sup>. It cannot be shown to the eye of what quality are the changes and variations of the state and form of the organic substances of the mind—which are affections and thoughts ; but still they can be seen as it were in a mirror from the changes and variations of the state of the lungs in speech and singing ; for there is also a correspondence. Ex.

—<sup>9</sup>. Now as sound and speech are produced from no other source than the affections and thoughts of the mind . . . it is evident that the affections of the will are changes and variations of the state of the purely organic substances of the mind ; and that the thoughts of the understanding are changes and variations of the forms of these substances . . . (Continued under MEMORY.)

—<sup>o</sup>. These changes and variations are infinitely more perfect in the organics of the mind than in the organics of the body. Ex.

296<sup>15</sup>. These . . . are the secret operations of the soul in the body. Man feels nothing of them . . . and yet the like take place in the interiors of the mind of man, for nothing can take place in the body unless it is thence—for the mind of man is his spirit ; and the spirit is equally a man—with the sole difference, that the things which take place in the body, take place naturally ; and those which take place in the mind, take place spiritually. There is a likeness in every way.

299. He who does not know the quality of Heaven and the quality of Hell, cannot at all know what is the quality of the mind of man—the mind of man is his spirit which lives after death. The reason is that the mind or spirit of man is in all the form in which is Heaven, or Hell : it does not differ at all, except that the one is the greatest, and the other the least ; or, that the one is the effigy, and the other is the type. Ex.

307<sup>2</sup>. For the mind of man, which in itself is spiritual, cannot be elsewhere than among the spiritual, among whom also it comes after death.

—<sup>3</sup>. The Lord rules the interiors of the mind of man (by transferring the man's spirit from one Society of Hell into another, if he is evil ; or, if he suffers himself to be reformed, he is led out of Hell, and carried up into Heaven, and is also there transferred from one Society into another, and this up to the time of his death) ; but He rules its exteriors in the World of Spirits . . . The reason is that for the most part man is different in externals from what he is in internals . . . and therefore his external is ruled in one way, and his internal in another ; his external is ruled in the World of Spirits, and his internal either in Heaven or in Hell, so long as he is in the world ; and therefore when he dies, he comes first into the World of Spirits, into his external, and there he puts this off, and is then carried into his place, to which he has been inscribed.

319. It has been said above that man's affections of love and derivative thoughts are changes and variations of the state and form of the organic substances of his mind. It shall now be told what and of what quality are these changes and variations. An idea of them may be procured from the heart and lungs—that they are expansions and compressions, or alternate dilatations and contractions . . . The like exist in all the other viscera of the body, and others like them in their parts, by means of which the blood and animal juice are received and promoted. (—<sup>2</sup>) The like exist in the organic forms of the mind, which are the subjects of the affections and of the thoughts of man . . . with the difference, that the expansions and compressions, or reciprocations, of the latter, are relatively in such higher perfection, that they cannot be expressed in the words of natural language, but only in the words of spiritual language, which can sound no otherwise, than that they are vorticular ingyrations and egyrations, after the manner of perpetual and inflexed spires, wonderfully confasciated into receptive forms of life. (—<sup>3</sup>) With the good (these substances and forms purely organic) are spirated forwards; but with the evil backwards; and those which are spirated forwards are turned to the Lord, and receive influx from Him; whereas those which are spirated backwards are turned to Hell, and receive influx thence. It is to be known that in proportion as they are turned backwards, in the same proportion they are open behind, and closed in front; and conversely . . .

320. (It is) an appearance, that wisdom and prudence are from man, and that they do not flow according to the state of the organisation of their mind.

324<sup>3</sup>. (By the taking away of his material body) man's immortal [part] is laid bare, which is his mind, and then becomes a spirit in a human form; his mind is this spirit. That the mind of man cannot die, was seen by the Sophi or ancient wise ones; for they said, How can the lower mind or mind die, when it can be wise?

326<sup>3</sup>. It is the like with all things which are in the human mind: in it there are innumerable things, and each thing there is consociated and conjoined according to the affections, or according as one thing loves the other.

R. 736. 'This is the mind' (Rev. xvii. 9) = that this is the understanding and interpretation of the things which have been seen.

M. 6<sup>4</sup>. There is a certain current hidden in the affection of the will of every Angel which attracts the mind to be doing something. By this the mind tranquillizes itself, and satisfies itself . . .

44<sup>5</sup>. The chaste love of the sex is the deliciousness itself of the mind and thence of the heart . . .

—<sup>6</sup>. (Their love) at once conjoins their souls, and afterwards their minds . . .

55<sup>7</sup>. The conjunction of minds and not at the same time of bodies . . . is spiritual love.

94. As a man progresses from knowledge into intelligence, and from this into wisdom, so does his mind change its form; for it is opened more and more, and conjoins itself more nearly with Heaven . . . If, therefore, he stands still at the first threshold . . . the form of his mind remains natural; and this form receives the influx of the universal sphere, which is that of the marriage of good and truth, no otherwise than . . . beasts and birds receive it.

101. That two consorts are the form (of the marriage of good and truth) in their inmosts . . . as the interiors of their mind are opened. Ex.

— . There are three things of which every man consists, and which follow in order with him: soul, mind, and body. The soul is his inmost; the mind is his middle; and the body is his ultimate. Everything which inflows from the Lord into man, inflows into his inmost, which is the soul; and descends thence into his middle, which is the mind; and through this into his ultimate, which is the body. Thus does the marriage of good and truth inflow . . . 158.

102. For the mind is opened successively, from infancy even to extreme old age. For man is born corporeal; and, as the mind is opened proximately above the body, he becomes rational; and, as this Rational is purified . . . from fallacies . . . and concupiscences . . . it is opened, which is effected solely by means of wisdom; and, when the interiors of the rational mind have been opened, the man becomes a form of wisdom; and this form is the receptacle of love truly conjugal. Ex.

145. In the same proportion his mind is elevated into a higher aura . . .

156a. On the conjunction of souls and minds by marriage . . . Chapter.

158. That conjugal love conjoins two souls and thence minds into a one. Ex.

— . The soul, being the inmost of man, is from its origin celestial; the mind, being his middle, is from its origin spiritual; and the body, being the ultimate, is from its origin natural . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. (For) the souls and minds of men are not in space . . .

172. Hence does the union of souls and the conjunction of minds take place effectively . . . because in the Prolific of the husband is his soul, and also his mind as to its interiors which are conjoined with the soul.

178<sup>2</sup>. For the soul makes not only the inmosts of the head, but also the inmosts of the body; in like manner the mind, which is middle between the soul and the body; and which, although it appears in the head, is still actually in the whole body also . . . Hence it is that the acts which the soul and mind intend, flow into the body in an instant . . .

179. That . . . love truly conjugal . . . is a union of souls, a conjunction of minds . . . Ex.

180e. For innocence and peace are of the soul, tranquillity is of the mind, inmost friendship is of the bosom, full confidence is of the heart, and the longing of the lower mind and of the heart to make all good mutual to the other, is of the body from them.

187. With both (men and women) the external form which is of the body is integrated (or made entire) according to the integration of the internal form which is of the mind; for the mind acts into the body, and not the reverse . . .

188. That with men there is an elevation of the mind into higher light, and with women there is an elevation of the mind into higher heat . . . Ex.

[M.188]<sup>3</sup>. Regarded in themselves, these elevations are openings of the mind; for the human mind is distinguished into regions . . .

191. According to the conjunctions of their minds by conjugal love . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. With these . . . the ardour of the body . . . forcibly draws into communion with itself the lower things of the mind; whereas with those who love each other interiorly, the mind is the prime agent, and draws the body into communion with itself. It appears as if love ascends from the body into the soul . . . but still it descends from the mind, and acts into the lower things according to their disposition; and therefore a lascivious mind acts lasciviously, and a chaste mind chastely; and the latter disposes the body, whereas the former is disposed by the body.

192. That marriages induce other forms on souls and minds. Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. They are then Spirits and Angels, who are nothing else than minds and souls in a human form, stripped of the exuviae . . . and, when these have been cast out, the forms of the minds are clearly seen, such as they had been within their bodies; and then it is clearly seen that with those who live in marriage those forms are different from the forms with those who do not. Des.

203. The mind is (then) closed up from below; and is sometimes twisted like a spire into the contrary direction. But with some it is not closed up, but remains half-open above; and, with some, it remains open.

214. That with those in love truly conjugal the conjunction of minds increases . . . but that with those who are not in conjugal love, it decreases. Ex.

221. As the mind, while it is acting, is also in the body, it follows that the latter has the like states.

230<sup>e</sup>. (Used in the sense of meaning.)

249. While a man . . . is in any use, his mind is bounded and circumscribed as in a circle, within which it is successively co-ordinated into a truly human form, from which, as from a house, he sees various concupiscences outside of himself . . .

260. It is believed at this day that the mind of man is in the head, and nothing of it in the body; when yet both soul and mind are in both the head and the body; for the soul and the mind are the man; for both constitute the spirit which lives after death . . .

270. There are three regions of the human mind, one above another; and in the lowest region dwells natural love; in the higher one, spiritual love; and in the highest, celestial love; and in each region there is the marriage of good and truth . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. See MARRIAGE LOVE, here.

273<sup>2</sup>. For Angels and Spirits have a mind and a body; and the affections and derivative thoughts are of the mind, and the sensations and derivative pleasures are of the body.

293<sup>4</sup>. Through this wisdom the interiors of the mind and thence of the body (of the husbands) are opened . . .

303. That by betrothal the mind of the one is conjoined with the mind of the other . . .

305. For there are in human minds three regions, of which the highest is called celestial, the middle spiritual, and the lowest natural. Man is born in this lowest, and he ascends into his higher region, which is called spiritual, by means of a life according to the truths of religion; and into the highest one, by means of the marriage of love and wisdom. In the lowest region . . . reside all the concupiscences of evil, and lasciviousnesses; but in the higher region . . . there are not any of (these) . . . and in the highest region . . . is conjugal chastity in its love. Man is elevated into this region by means of the love of uses . . .

310. Consequently, the mind speaks through its organ, and the mind acts through its organs in the body. Hence it is evident that such as is the mind, such are the speech . . . and the deeds; (and therefore) the mind, through a continual influx, builds the body to activities concordant and synchronous with itself; and therefore the bodies of men, regarded interiorly, are nothing but forms of their minds exteriorly organized to effect the behests of the soul. (Therefore) the minds or spirits are first to be united . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. For . . . the form of the mind is also interiorly the form of the body. (Continued under MARRIAGE LOVE.)

313. That the states of the minds of both (consorts) proceeding in successive order inflow into the state of marriage . . . Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. That all those things which precede in minds form series; and that the series are collected together, one beside the other, and one after the other; and that these together compose the ultimate, is as yet unknown in the world; but as it is a Truth from Heaven, it is here adduced; for by means of it there is opened what influx operates . . .

380<sup>6</sup>. Do you not know that the human mind is capable of being elevated above sensuous things . . .

—<sup>7</sup>. (Used in the sense of opinion.) T.79.

491<sup>e</sup>. It follows that the form of the human mind is according to the confirmations, being turned to Heaven if its confirmations are in favour of marriages; but to Hell if they are in favour of adulteries; and such as is the form of the mind of a man, such is his spirit, consequently such is the man.

497<sup>e</sup>. As conjugal love opens the interiors of the mind, and thus elevates them above the sensuous things of the body even into the light and heat of Heaven; so the love of adultery closes up the interiors of the mind, and thrusts down into the body the mind itself as to its will . . .

530<sup>2</sup>. The mind of every man, according to his will and derivative understanding, actually dwells in one of the Societies (of Heaven or Hell); and intends and thinks in like manner as do those who are there . . .

—<sup>e</sup>. For the deeds follow the body into the tomb; but the mind rises again.

I. 8. That . . . love and wisdom inflow . . . into the soul of man; and, through this, into his mind, its affections and thoughts; and, from these, into the senses, speech, and actions of the body. Gen.art.

— Through the soul into the rational mind . . .

—<sup>4</sup>. For the mind is subordinate to the soul ; and the body is subordinate to the mind ; and the mind has two lives, one of the will, and the other of the understanding. The life of the will is the good of love, and its derivations are called affections ; and the life of the understanding is the truth of wisdom, and its derivations are called thoughts : through the latter and the former the mind lives. But the senses, speech, and actions are the life of the body . . .

—<sup>5</sup>. The human soul, which is a higher spiritual substance, receives influx immediately from God ; but the human mind, being a lower spiritual substance, receives influx from God mediately through the Spiritual World ; and the body, being from the substances of nature, which are called matters, receives influx from God mediately through the natural world.

12. The soul inflows into the human mind . . .

14. By the human mind are meant its two faculties, which are called the understanding and the will . . .

16<sup>6</sup>. As the angelic Heaven is distinguished into three degrees, so therefore is the human mind distinguished into three degrees, because it is an image of Heaven . . .

T. 13<sup>e</sup>. They (thns) close up the higher things of the mind for God, and open the lower things of their mind for the devil . . .

32<sup>2</sup>. The mind—animus—of one is never exactly like that of another ; and therefore it is said, As many heads so many minds—animi ; consequently the mind—that is, the will and understanding—of one, is never the same as that of another . . .

34. The human mind, from which and according to which man is man, is formed into three regions, according to three degrees. Enum.

—<sup>2</sup>. The human mind, organized according to these three degrees, is a receptacle of the Divine influx . . .

37<sup>2</sup>. (There are) two essentials and universals by which human minds come forth and subsist, which are the will and the understanding . . . and the will is the receptacle of love, and the understanding of wisdom ; and therefore the two correspond to the Divine love and the Divine wisdom, from which they originate.

38<sup>3</sup>. For there is a perpetual correspondence of all things of the mind with all things of the body. Hence it follows that the human mind is organized, interiorly of spiritual substances, and exteriorly of natural substances, and finally of material things ; the mind whose delights of love are goods, interiorly of spiritual substances such as are in Heaven ; but the mind whose delights are evils, interiorly of spiritual substances such as are in Hell . . .

40. Human and angelic minds are these forms.

—<sup>3</sup>. In the same proportion he casts down his mind from Heaven to earth, and . . . becomes natural, sensual, and corporeal ; for he closes up the higher regions of his mind . . . and, when the higher regions of the mind, where dwells the true light of life, have been closed up, the region of the mind below them opens itself, into which only the lumen of the world is admitted . . .

69. The human mind is distinguished into three degrees. (Continued under DEGREE.)

71<sup>2</sup>. God created man's rational mind according to the order of the whole Spiritual World ; and his body according to the order of the whole natural world . . .

147. The human mind is distinguished into three regions. Enum. The minds of all men who deny the holiness of the Word and the Divinity of the Lord think in the lowest region . . .

151. The mind of man consists of understanding and will ; and understanding is to think ; and will is to do . . .

152. For the human mind grows as does its body ; but the latter in stature, and the former in wisdom. Thus also is the latter exalted from region into region. Enum. But this exaltation of the mind does not take place except from time to time ; thus as the man procures for himself truths, and conjoins them with good.

154<sup>5</sup>. In the Internal of man, by which is meant his voluntary and perceptive mind, there are congeries of ideas . . .

156. That the spirit of man is his mind, and whatever proceeds from it. Ex.

— The mind of every man is his internal man, which actually is the man, and is within the external man which makes his body ; and therefore when the body is rejected . . . it is in a full human form. Therefore they err who believe that the mind of man is solely in the head. It is there in principles (or beginnings) only, from which there first goes forth everything which man thinks from the understanding and acts from the will ; but it is in the body in the principiates (or derivatives) formed for sensating and acting ; and, as it adheres to the corporeals inwardly, it imparts to them sense and motion ; and also inspires the perception as if the body thought and acted from itself . . . (Continued under SPIRIT.)

186. In what region of the mind do the theological things with man reside ? . . . At first I believed that they were in the highest region ; for the human mind is distinguished into three regions, as a house is into three stories . . . An Angel said, With those who love truth because it is truth, theological things rise up even into the highest region . . . and are in the light in which are the Angels ; but moral things, theoretically contemplated and perceived, place themselves beneath these in the second region, because they communicate with spiritual things ; and political things beneath these in the first region ; but scientifics . . . make the door to these higher things . . . 482. 494.

—<sup>2</sup>. But with those who love truth . . . only for the glory of their reputation, theological things reside in the lowest region (of the mind) where are scientifics . . . Beneath these, in the same region, are political things ; and beneath these moral things ; because with these persons the two higher regions are not opened on the right side ; and therefore they have no interior reason of judgment, nor affection of justice . . .

224<sup>2</sup>. The understanding is a receptacle of Divine truth, and the will of Divine good ; consequently, the human mind, which consists of these two principles, is nothing else than a form of Divine truth and Divine good spiritually and naturally organized. The human brain is that form. And as the whole man depends on his mind, all things which are in his body are appendages, which are actuated by these two principles . . .

[T.] 296<sup>2</sup>. The human mind is like a house of three stories . . .

350<sup>e</sup>. The human mind is like soil . . .

351<sup>2</sup>. He who does not know that the human mind is organized; or that it is a spiritual organism ceasing in a natural organism, in which and according to which the mind operates its ideas, or thinks, cannot but suppose that perceptions, thoughts, and ideas are nothing but radiations and variations of light inflowing into the head . . . But . . . the brains are organized, and the mind dwells in them . . . What then is the nature of this organization? . . . It is an ordination of all things in series, as it were in bundles . . . Ex.

—<sup>o</sup>. From these things it may be seen, that unless there were such an ordination of substances in the human mind, man would not have anything analytic of reason; which everyone has according to the ordination, thus according to the abundance of the Truths cohering as it were in a bundle; and the ordination is according to the use of reason from freedom.

357<sup>2</sup>. Has not man a rational mind . . .

366<sup>2</sup>. The difference is that the evil block up the way . . . to prevent God from entering into the lower things of their mind; but the good . . . open the door, and invite God to enter into the lower things of their mind; as He dwells in its highest things . . .

375. Only mental and perishable things . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. There is not anything in the mind to which there does not correspond something in the body . . .

381<sup>4</sup>. Such is the mind of hypocrites: it can be opened on the side of Hell, and on the side of Heaven; and, when it is opened towards the one side, it is closed up towards the other . . .

392<sup>2</sup>. Therefore the human mind in which charity is conjoined with faith . . . is likened to 'a garden' . . .

395. The human mind is distinguished into three regions . . . From the highest region man looks to God; from the second one he looks to the world; and from the third one he looks to himself. As the mind is such, it can be elevated and can elevate itself upwards, because to God and Heaven; it can be poured forth and can pour itself forth to the sides in every direction, because into the world and its nature; and it can be let down and can let itself down downwards, because to the earth and to Hell. In these respects the sight of the body emulates the sight of the mind: it also can look up, look around, and look down.

—<sup>2</sup>. The human mind is like a house of three stories, between which there is a communication by means of stairs; and in the highest of which dwell Angels from Heaven; in the middle one, men from the world; and, in the lowest, Genii. The man in whom these three loves have been rightly subordinated, can ascend and descend at pleasure; and, when he ascends into the highest story, he is together with the Angels as an Angel; when he descends thence into the middle one, he is together with men there as an Angel man; and when he descends from this further, he is together with Genii as a man of the world, and instructs, reproves, and masters them.

403<sup>2</sup>. All the works done by a man . . . are done according to the state of the mind in his head . . .

420. In common perception the mind of man is indeed the internal man; but the mind itself is divided into two regions (a spiritual one and a natural one). The spiritual mind looks principally into the Spiritual World . . . but the natural mind principally into the natural world . . . All the action and speech of man proceed from the lower region of the mind directly, and from its higher region indirectly; because the lower region of the mind is nearer the senses of the body, and the higher region is more remote from them. There is this division of the mind with man, because he has been created to be spiritual and at the same time natural; and thus a man and not a beast. Further ex.

475. The mind of man is kept by the Lord in the Spiritual World. The mind of man is his spirit which lives after death; and his spirit is continually in consort with his like in the Spiritual World; and, through the material body . . . is with men in the natural world . . .

498. Free will . . . resides in man's soul . . . and from that . . . it flows into his mind, into its two parts . . .

578. If (these) inflowed into the spiritual organism of the mind of those who are in the delight of evil . . . they would be tortured . . . As this organism consists of perpetual spirals, it would involve itself in the spires . . .

601<sup>e</sup>. Religion is allotted the highest seat in the human mind . . .

603. The human mind is distinguished into three regions. Enum. By regeneration, man is elevated from the lowest region which is natural, into the higher one which is spiritual; and, through this, into the celestial one . . . from which it is evident that the mind of a regenerated man has been elevated into the spiritual region; and there from the higher mind it sees the things which are going on in the lower or natural mind. Ex.

608. Therefore the human mind is distinguished into three degrees or regions according to the Heavens.

658. Every learned man knows that there are two faculties or parts of the mind: the will and the understanding; but few know how to discriminate them justly . . . They who cannot do this cannot procure for themselves any notion about the mind except a very obscure one. (Continued under WILL.)

720<sup>e</sup>. After death, the interiors of their mind have been fixed . . .

816. Their minds are continually . . . travelling . . . outside their city . . . and as is the state of a man's mind in the natural world, such is it in the Spiritual World; for the mind of a man is his spirit, or the posthumous man living after his departure from the material body.

Ad. 88. Man's highest life, or rather faculty, is what is properly called his soul; the second in succession is called his intellectual mind, which . . . is heavenly; but the third, which succeeds to this again, is the natural mind or animus . . .

653. The soul itself is the highest power in man ; to it succeeds the intellectual mind ; and to this the lower mind, or animus ; then, finally, the external sensations. These are the principal substances of man . . .

916. See MIND-animus, here.

917. Man consists of four faculties ; namely, of the soul properly so called ; of the intellectual mind, to which is added the will ; of the natural mind, which men have in common with brute animals ; and, finally, of sensation, which is fivefold. These are the essential parts of man.

918. But the essential parts of brute animals are three ; namely, the soul, which is their principal essence ; also the natural mind, or animus ; and external sensation, which is in like manner fivefold. But they have no intellectual mind . . . but in place of it is the soul, which rules their natural mind ; and this the body.

922. At the time of the Fall the way between the soul and the rational mind was closed . . .

923. How the mind of man is formed ; that is, conceived and born . . . cannot be perceived, unless it is known that there are four faculties ; namely, the soul, properly so called ; the rational mind, properly the human mind ; the natural mind, properly the animal mind ; and sensation, which is properly of the body.

924. The formation itself of the human mind is effected by means of the external senses, especially through the hearing and the sight . . . 987.

D. 1827. They do not know that there is a certain natural mind, which is almost like the animus of brutes ; for to it belong the cupidities, the phantasies, the imagination ; and to it are attributed the material ideas. This mind is distinct from the corporeal things. Besides, there is a mind more interior, which is truly human ; for it does not exist in brute animals ; to it belong the understanding and the will ; and that it is more interior, or higher, may be clearly evident from this : that man can think, and thence can will, which a brute animal cannot do ; and moreover it can command the concupiscences of the natural mind . . . There is besides an inmost mind, as in the Heavens where is the Inmost Heaven, and which cannot be described ; for it is known that the things which are of the thought are ruled from the inmosts . . . Thus does man correspond to the Heavens . . .

1828. And therefore there are three degrees of life within man . . . which are distinguished into an interior one, which is of the natural mind ; into a more interior one, which is of the intellectual mind ; and into an inmost one, which corresponds to the Inmost or Third Heaven.

2769. Animals . . . cannot elevate their minds towards Heaven.

2770. The inmost soul of the brutes is in the sphere of our intellectual mind . . .

2904. That men are spiritual minds. Ex.

3474. Certain Spirits inferred that they have a proprium which is not evil ; to wit, the inmost and the more interior minds. Ex. 3475.

6005. An arcanum : that the Lord conjoins good with truth in the spiritual mind . . . and what is done by the Lord in this mind does not come to the manifest perception of man, but only obscurely . . .

E. 98. Unless it is known that all things which are done by man flow from the interiors which are of his mind ; and that the mind is the all in all things which man does ; and that the body is only obedience . . .

— These two faculties are called by the one word mind . . .

112<sup>3</sup>. His spiritual mind . . . is then empty . . .

126. There are two minds with man, one exterior and the other interior. The exterior mind is called the natural mind ; and the interior mind is called the spiritual mind. The natural mind is opened by means of the Knowledges of the things—rerum—which are in the world ; and the spiritual mind by means of the Knowledges of the things—rerum—which are in Heaven . . .

148. With those who live according to the Lord's precepts, and who acknowledge the Divine in His Human, the interior mind is opened, and then the man becomes spiritual . . .

177<sup>3</sup>. For these loves open the interior or higher mind, which is formed to receive the light of Heaven ; and through that mind the light of Heaven inflows with them and illustrates them ; but they do not perceive truths in this mind while they are living in the world ; but they see them in the lower mind, which mind is of the external or natural man . . . Their interior or spiritual mind looks to the Lord ; and then the Lord elevates that mind, and at the same time the lower or natural mind, to Himself . . .

263. The elevation of the mind, and attention. Sig.

351<sup>o</sup>. That which is done in Heaven inflows also into the minds of men ; for the minds of men make a one with the minds of Spirits and Angels.

401. There are two minds with man, a spiritual one and a natural one. The spiritual mind thinks and perceives from the light of Heaven ; but the natural mind from the light of the world . . . This mind is that which is called the natural man ; but the former, the spiritual man. As the natural mind is below or outside the spiritual mind, it is therefore around it ; for it wraps it round on every side ; and therefore it is called 'sack-cloth of hair ;' for, when the spiritual mind . . . is closed up, the natural mind . . . is in thick darkness as to all things of Heaven and the Church ; for all the light which the natural mind has, and which makes its intelligence, is from the light of its spiritual mind . . .

—<sup>35</sup>. For all the light of truth is from spiritual good ; and spiritual good resides in the higher or interior mind, which is called the spiritual mind. This mind cannot be opened with those who are in the love of self ; for in each thing they look to self : if they elevate their eyes to Heaven, still the thought of their spirit sticks in the view of self . . .

404. It is said the spiritual man, and there is meant the spiritual mind, which is the higher or interior mind of man ; whereas the lower or exterior mind is called the natural man. . . 'Rolled up like a book' = that it has been closed up ; for the spiritual mind . . . is opened through truths applied to life, thus through goods ; but is closed up through falsities applied to life, thus through evils ; and the closing up is as if the roll of a book were being rolled up.

[E.] 406. There are with man two minds ; one higher or interior, which is called the spiritual mind ; and the other lower or exterior, which is called the natural mind. The natural mind is first opened and cultivated with men, because this mind stands forth nearest the world ; whereas the spiritual mind is opened and cultivated afterwards ; but in proportion as the man receives the Knowledge of truth which are from the Word, or from doctrine from the Word ; and therefore it is not opened with those who do not apply them to life. And, when the spiritual mind is being opened, the light of Heaven inflows through this mind into the natural mind, and illustrates it, from which this mind becomes spiritual natural ; for the spiritual mind then sees in the natural one almost as a man sees his face in a mirror, and acknowledges the things which agree with itself. But when the spiritual mind has not been opened, as takes place with those who do not apply to their life the Knowledge of truth and good . . . a mind is still formed with him interiorly in the Natural, but this mind consists of mere falsities and evils, for the reason that the spiritual mind has not been opened ; in consequence of which the light of Heaven is not let into the Natural by the right (or straight) way, but only through chinks round about, whence it has the faculty of thinking, reasoning, and speaking, and also the faculty of understanding truths ; but not the faculty of loving them, or of doing them from affection ; for (this faculty) is given solely through the influx of the light of Heaven through the spiritual mind ; for the light of Heaven [coming] through the spiritual mind is conjoined with the heat of Heaven . . . whereas the light of Heaven inflowing through chinks into the Natural, is the light separated from the heat of Heaven . . . whence it may be evident that the man with whom the spiritual mind has been opened is like a garden and a paradise ; and that the man with whom the spiritual mind has not been opened is like a solitude, and a land covered with snow ; because the mind makes the man ; for his mind is the understanding and the will ; and therefore it is the same whether you say the mind, or the man ; thus whether you say the spiritual and the natural mind, or the spiritual and the natural man. 408.

504<sup>18</sup>. For Divine influx from Heaven with the good opens the spiritual mind, and adapts it to receive ; but, with the evil, who have not any spiritual mind, it opens the interiors of their natural mind, where evils and falsities reside ; whence they have aversion towards all the good of Heaven, and hatred against truths, and concupiscence for every crime ; whence comes their separation from the good, and presently damnation.

513<sup>20</sup>. Therefore when no truth of Heaven is any longer acknowledged, and no good of Heaven affects, the spiritual mind, which is called the spiritual man, is closed ; and the natural mind receives mere falsities from evil . . .

514<sup>22</sup>. For the stormy motions of the natural man are appeased by the Lord, when the spiritual mind is being opened ; and the Lord inflows through it into the natural mind.

527<sup>4</sup>. For every man has a lower or exterior mind, and a higher or interior mind ; (the former) is the natural mind, which is called the natural man ; but (the latter) is the spiritual mind, and is called the spiritual man. The reason the mind is called a man, is that man is man from his mind. These two minds . . . are entirely distinct ; through the lower mind man is in the natural world and together with men there ; whereas through the higher mind he is in the Spiritual World with the Angels there. These two minds are so distinct, that so long as he lives in the world, man does not know what is being transacted with himself in his higher mind ; and when he becomes a Spirit . . . he does not know what is being transacted in the lower mind. Hence it is said that 'God distinguished between the light and the darkness . . .'

569<sup>8</sup>. For the Spiritual is the Divine inflowing ; for it is the light of Heaven, which is Divine truth proceeding ; and this inflows through the higher mind, which is called the spiritual mind, into the lower mind, which is called the natural mind ; and conjoins this with itself ; and, through the conjunction, makes it so that the natural mind makes a one with the spiritual mind . . .

572<sup>2</sup>. It follows that there is no intelligence with those who are in the falsities of evil ; for the higher and spiritual mind is with them closed, and only the lower mind, which is called the natural mind, is open. This mind, when the higher one is closed, does not receive anything of truth and good, consequently no intelligence from Heaven, but only from the world ; and therefore, instead of intelligence, these have only knowledge ; and, from this, thought ; from which proceeds reasoning ; and, through this, the confirmation of falsity and evil against truth and good.

579<sup>2</sup>. For the Divine things of the Word can never be conjoined except with heavenly love . . . if with any other love . . . the higher mind, which is called the spiritual mind, is closed, and the lower mind only, which is called the natural mind, is opened ; nay, with those who conjoin the truths of the Word with the affection of the love of self, the natural mind also is closed, and only the ultimate of this mind, which is called the Sensuous, is opened. . . .

625<sup>5</sup>. The man who in the world has lived a life of love to the Lord and a life of charity towards the neighbour, after his departure from the world, comes into this ineffable intelligence and wisdom ; for his interior mind, which is the mind itself of his spirit, is then opened ; and, when he becomes an Angel, the man thinks and speaks from this mind ; consequently such things as he could not utter or comprehend in the world. Such a spiritual mind, which is like the angelic mind, is in every man ; but in the world, as he there speaks, sees, hears, and feels by means of the material body, it lies hidden within the natural mind, or lives above this mind ; and the man is then completely ignorant of what he is thinking therein ; for the thought of that mind inflows then into the natural mind; and there limits, bounds, and presents itself to be seen and perceived . . .

644<sup>3</sup>. There are with every man two minds; one interior which is called the spiritual mind, and the other exterior which is called the natural mind. The spiritual mind is created for the reception of the light of Heaven; and the natural mind for the reception of the light of the world; and therefore the spiritual mind, which is the interior mind of man, is Heaven with him; and the natural mind, which is the exterior mind of man, is the world with him. The interior mind . . . is opened in proportion as the man acknowledges the Divine of the Lord; and a man acknowledges this in proportion as he is in the good of love and of charity, and in the truths of doctrine and of faith. But this interior mind . . . is not opened, in proportion as a man does not acknowledge the Divine of the Lord, and does not live a life of love and of faith; and this mind is closed in proportion as a man is in evils and the derivative falsities; and, when it has been closed, the natural mind becomes Hell with the man; for in the natural mind is evil and its falsity; and therefore when the spiritual mind, which is Heaven with him, has been closed, the natural mind, which is Hell, dominates.

654<sup>4</sup>. With every man there is an Internal, which sees from the light of Heaven, which Internal is called the internal spiritual man, or the internal spiritual mind; and an External, which sees from the light of the world, which External is called the external natural man, or the external natural mind. With every man of the Church the Internal must be conjoined with the External; and when they have been conjoined, the spiritual man . . . dominates over the natural man . . . From this conjunction a man is a man of the Church, and an Angel. But, when the natural man is not conjoined with the spiritual, and subordinate to it, which is the case especially when the spiritual man has been closed up—and it has been closed up with those who deny the Divine things of the Word and of the Church; for they then see nothing from the light of Heaven—then the natural man is in blindness as to spiritual things; and, by means of his Rational, he perverts all the truths of the Church; and, by means of the ideas with him, he turns them into falsities. Tr.

714<sup>2</sup>. What is heavenly and Divine . . . cannot inflow immediately into the natural mind; but mediately through the spiritual mind, which can be opened and formed for the reception of heavenly light and heat; that is, for the reception of Divine truth and Divine good. The reason why these cannot inflow immediately into the natural mind, is that in this mind reside the hereditary evils of man, which are of the love of self and of the world. Hence, regarded in himself, the natural man does not love anything except himself and the world . . . and therefore it has been provided by the Lord that these evils may be removed, and that thus there may be a place for the truths and goods of spiritual love; namely through the opening and formation of the spiritual mind, which is above the natural mind; and through the influx thence of Heaven from the Lord through that mind into the natural mind.

730<sup>21</sup>. Every man is born natural, and also lives natural, until he becomes rational; and, when he has become rational, he can be led by the Lord, and become spiritual; which is effected through the implantation of the Knowledges of truth from the Word, and at the same time through the opening of the spiritual mind, which receives those things which are of Heaven . . . This opening . . . is not possible except through temptations . . .

739<sup>3</sup>. For the spiritual degree, or spiritual mind, contracts itself at any evil or falsity of evil, as a fibril of the body does at a sting . . . The like is the case with the interior mind of man, which is called the spiritual mind, at the touch or afflatus of evil and the derivative falsity. But verily when things homogeneous, which are Divine truths from the Word, and which derive their essence from good, approach this mind, it opens itself; but the opening is effected no otherwise than through the reception of the good of love inflowing through Heaven from the Lord, and through the conjunction thereof with the truths which the man had committed to memory . . . Hence it may be evident how the second or middle degree is opened. (Continued under DEGREE.)

759<sup>4</sup>. All who are of (the Church which is called 'the New Jerusalem') have the understanding illustrated . . . and, as they thus see truth, they acknowledge it, and receive it in the affection of the will; whereby truths with them become spiritual; and consequently the spiritual mind, which is above the natural mind, with them is opened; and being opened it receives angelic sight, which is the sight of truth itself from the light of it . . .

775<sup>3</sup>. (Thus) the understanding and will—which in one word are called the mind—consequently also, intelligence and wisdom, reside in the brains; and are there in their primes . . . and the organs which are formed to receive the senses, and to perform motions, are derivations thence . . . as principiates from their principles, or as substantiates from their substances; and these derivations are such that the brains are present everywhere . . . whence it follows that the universal body, and each and all things of it, are forms under the view, auspices, and obedience of the mind, which is in the brain . . . so that a part in which this mind is not present, or to which it does not give its life, is not a part of man's life. From these things it may be evident, that the mind, when it is in its thought which is of the understanding, and in its affection which is of the will, has extension into each single thing of the whole body, and there, by means of its own forms, it expatiates, as do the thought and affections of the Angels into the Societies of the universal Heaven.

—4. If, therefore, the mind is in the faith of falsity, and in the love of evil, then the whole of its body is in the like; that is, the whole man; as may be manifestly evident from a man when he becomes a Spirit, good or evil; for then his whole spiritual body, from head to heel, is altogether such as is his mind. If his mind is heavenly, his whole spirit, even as to the body, is heavenly; if his mind is infernal, his whole spirit, even as to the body, is infernal . . .

[E.] 790<sup>3</sup>. Every man has two minds, one natural, and the other spiritual; and, as it is the mind which wills and thinks, every man has also a natural will and thought, and a spiritual will and thought; the natural mind wills and thinks as a man in the world; and the spiritual mind wills and thinks as an Angel in Heaven . . .

—<sup>4</sup>. As every man has two minds . . . and the natural mind is opened and formed through such things as are in the world, and the spiritual mind is opened and formed through such things as are in Heaven . . . therefore it is necessary that man's spiritual mind be opened and formed through those things which are in the Word. Ex. . . When the spiritual mind is closed, the natural mind is opened and formed only through such things as are in the world . . . From these things it follows that faith is not faith so long as only the natural mind has been opened.

—<sup>5</sup>. The spiritual mind is opened primarily by this: that the man abstains from doing evils, because they are contrary to the Divine precepts in the Word. Fully ex.

—<sup>6</sup>. These things have been said concerning the opening of the spiritual mind: its formation shall now be spoken of. The spiritual mind is formed from those things which are in the man's memory from the Word. Fully ex.

—<sup>7</sup>. Fourthly: Truths elevated into the spiritual mind, are not in a natural, but in a spiritual form. Ex. . . Hence it is that when a man becomes a Spirit, and his spiritual mind is opened, he no longer thinks and speaks naturally, but spiritually.

—<sup>8</sup>. Fifthly: So long as a man lives in the world, he does not at all know that he thinks in the spiritual mind; but only what he thinks from that mind in the natural one. But after death the state is changed: he then thinks from the spiritual mind, and not from the natural one.

—<sup>9</sup>. When the spiritual mind of man has been opened and formed, then the Lord forms the natural mind; for the natural mind of man is formed by the Lord through the spiritual mind. The reason is, that the spiritual mind of man is in Heaven, and his natural mind is in the world; for the Natural cannot be formed to the idea of such things as are in Heaven, except from Heaven, nor until communication and conjunction have been effected with Heaven. The formation is effected by the Lord by means of influx from the spiritual mind into the natural one, whereby the things which are in the natural mind are disposed so as to correspond to those which are in the spiritual one. . . The things which are in the natural mind from the spiritual one, are called rational truths, moral truths, natural truths; and, in general, scientific truths; and the goods which are in the natural mind from the spiritual one, are called affections and longings for those truths . . . and, in general, uses. All things which are from the spiritual mind in the natural one come under the view and into the perception of the man.

—<sup>10</sup>. It is to be known that this formation of both minds with man lasts from his infancy to his old age, and afterwards to eternity; sometimes from the middle age of man to his last one, and then to eternity; but still differently after the life in the world . . . and, as the man is formed, so is he perfected in intelligence and wisdom, and becomes a man; for no man is a man from his natural mind; from this he is a beast rather . . .

—<sup>11</sup>. (Thus) although the will and the understanding are two faculties of life, still they act as a one; and therefore these two faculties are called one mind. These are in the natural man. In the spiritual man also there are will and understanding, but much more perfect, which also are called one mind. The latter, therefore, are called the spiritual mind; and the former, the natural mind. But these are such with the man whose spiritual mind has been opened and formed; but it is altogether different with the man whose spiritual mind is closed, and only the natural mind opened.

—<sup>12</sup>. Charity and faith act as a one, like the will and understanding . . . but these [do so] in the natural mind; whereas in the spiritual mind instead of charity there is the love of good, and instead of faith there is the perception of truth.

794<sup>3</sup>. The spiritual mind is what is called the internal and spiritual man; and the natural mind, the external and natural man.

797<sup>11</sup>. It is the like if it is said that Heaven is closed to a man, or that the higher mind of man, which is called his spiritual mind, is closed; for the spiritual mind of man is his Heaven; and therefore man has conjunction with Heaven through it: and the natural mind of man is his world; and therefore through it he has conjunction with the world.

798<sup>4</sup>. With these (who are in faith from charity) the spiritual mind is opened; whereas with the former (who are in natural faith) the natural mind only is opened; but more deeply and interiorly according to the quality of the faith and the derivative quality of the life. The mind of these latter, viewed in the light of Heaven, appears snowy, such as is rational light; and the Rational is the middle between the spiritual mind and the natural mind.

—<sup>6</sup>. To do good from charity is impossible for anyone except him whose spiritual mind has been opened; and the spiritual mind is opened solely by this: that the man abstains from doing evils, and shuns and is at last averse to them, because they are contrary to the Divine precepts . . .

862. For good opens the spiritual mind, which receives light from Heaven, and illustrates the natural mind. Hence truths, when they appear, are acknowledged and received, and falsities are rejected . . .

865<sup>2</sup>. This (signification of 'first-fruits') originates from the fact that there are two minds with man, a natural mind and a spiritual mind. From the natural mind alone there is not produced anything except evil and the derivative falsity; but as soon as the spiritual mind has been opened, there is produced good and the derivative truth. This which is first produced is meant by 'the first-born' and 'the first-fruits.' And as all things which are born and produced from the spiritual mind are not from man but from the Lord, therefore these were sanctified to Jehovah . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. But in order that this may come still more clearly into the understanding, it is to be known that the merely natural mind is formed to the idea or image of the world ; but the spiritual mind to the idea or image of Heaven ; and that the spiritual mind is not opened with any one, except through the acknowledgment of the Divine of the Lord, and through a life according to His precepts ; and, before this mind has been opened, there is not produced any good and the derivative truth ; but, as soon as it has been opened, it is then produced ; and that which is produced is from the Lord. The first thing, therefore, which is produced, is called 'holy ;' and it signifies that all things which are produced afterwards are holy. From these things it is evident, that 'the opening of the womb' = the opening of the spiritual mind . . .

—<sup>e</sup>. For with (those who will be of the New Church), and not with any others, is the spiritual mind opened ; and therefore no others are led by the Lord . . .

897<sup>2</sup>. The genuine reason why no others can be let into spiritual temptations than those who are in the marriage of good and truth, is that the spiritual mind, which is properly the internal man, cannot be opened with others ; for, when this mind is being opened, then temptations come forth. The reason is, that Heaven—that is, the Lord through Heaven—inflows through the spiritual mind of man into his natural mind. There is no other way for Heaven—that is, for the Lord through Heaven—into man ; and, when Heaven inflows, it then removes the obstacles, which are the evils and the derivative falsities, which reside in the natural mind, or in the natural man ; and these cannot be removed, except by a living acknowledgment of them by the man, and grief of soul on account of them. Hence it is that in temptations man has anguish from the evils and falsities which rise up into the thought . . .

923<sup>3</sup>. For these have not any spiritual good ; and this good . . . alone opens the spiritual mind, through which the Lord inflows, and illustrates ; and, without the opening of this mind, illustration is not possible, consequently neither is the understanding of truth. He who believes that he can see any truth of the Church from the lumen of reason alone, is much mistaken. He can indeed know it from another ; but he cannot see it in light . . .

969<sup>2</sup>. Man is born from his parents an image of the world, and is born anew that he may be an image of Heaven . . . Man is an image of the world as to his natural mind, and he is an image of Heaven as to his spiritual mind. The natural mind, which is the world, is below ; and the spiritual mind, which is Heaven, is above. The natural mind is full of evils of every kind ; as thefts, adulteries, murders, false witnesses, concupiscences ; nay, blasphemies and profanations of God. These evils, and many others, reside in that mind ; for the loves of them are there, and the derivative delights of thinking, willing, and doing them. These things are innate in that mind from the parents ; for man is born and grows up in the things which are in that mind, being restrained only by the bonds of civil right, and by the bonds of moral life, from doing them . . . Who cannot see that the Lord cannot inflow from Heaven with man, and teach and lead him, before these evils have been removed . . .

970<sup>4</sup>. In a word, so long as man does not desist from evils because they are sins, his spiritual mind is closed ; but as soon as man desists from evils because they are sins, the spiritual mind is opened ; and, with this mind, Heaven also ; (and then) the man comes into another light as to all things which are of the Church, of Heaven, and of eternal life ; although, so long as he lives in the world, he can with difficulty notice the difference between this light and the former one. The reason is that a man in the world thinks naturally even about spiritual things ; and spiritual things are enclosed in natural ideas, until the man passes . . . into the Spiritual World . . .

983<sup>3</sup>. When the understanding of truth, which is with the man, makes a one with the affection of good which is with the woman, there is a conjunction of two minds into one mind. This conjunction is the spiritual marriage from which descends conjugal love ; for when two minds have been conjoined, so that they are as one mind, there is love between them . . .

1050<sup>2</sup>. Man has two minds . . . the natural mind is opened with him by means of knowledges and the Knowledges of truth and good ; and the spiritual mind is opened by means of a life according to them. (Continued under PROFANATION, and also at 1055<sup>3</sup>.)

1056<sup>2</sup>. The love of dominating by means of the holy things of the Church, completely closes up the interiors of the human mind from the inmosts towards the outermost, according to the quality and quantity of this love. Ex. . . Man has a spiritual mind, a rational mind, a natural mind, and a sensuous mind. Through the spiritual mind, man is in Heaven, and is a Heaven in the least form ; through the natural mind, he is in the world, and is a world in the least form. The Heaven with man communicates with the world in him through the rational mind ; and with the body, through the sensuous mind. With man after his birth the sensuous mind is first opened ; afterwards, the natural mind ; and, as he studies intelligence, the rational mind ; and, as he studies wisdom, the spiritual mind. Then, afterwards, in proportion as the man is wise, the spiritual mind is to him as the head, and the natural mind is as the body, to which the rational mind serves for conjunction, as the neck does to the head ; and then the sensuous mind is as the soles of the feet. With infants, all these minds are disposed by the Lord by means of the influx of innocence from Heaven so that they can be opened. But with those who from childhood begin to be inflamed with the desire of dominating by means of the holy things of the Church, the spiritual mind is completely closed, and also the rational mind, and finally the natural mind down to the sensuous mind . . . and thus they become merely sensuous, who are the most stupid of all in spiritual and the derivative rational things, and the most astute of all in worldly and the derivative civil things.

1061. 'This is the mind having wisdom' (Rev. xvii. 9) = the understanding of these things in the natural sense from the spiritual. Ex.

1092<sup>5</sup>. Man is in the Spiritual World with his head, as he is in the natural world with his body. By his head is here meant his mind, which is understanding, thought, will, and love; and by his body are here meant his senses . . . and where his mind is, there is the whole man with head and body when he becomes a Spirit.

[E.] 1163<sup>3</sup>. The man's mind, before it was conjoined with Heaven, was turned backwards, because it had not yet been brought forth from Hell . . . But after the mind has been conjoined with Heaven, it is turned forwards, and is elevated to the Lord, and looks from right to left; that is, from good to truth, which is according to order. Thus is the turning effected.

1202<sup>4</sup>. As man has a spiritual mind, and this mind is above his natural mind; and as his spiritual mind can view such things as are of Heaven and the Church, and also the things which are of the state as to good manners and the laws . . . therefore man is able not only to think rationally . . . but also to receive influx through Heaven from the Lord, and to become intelligent and wise. This no beast can do . . .

—<sup>5</sup>. As man has a spiritual mind, and at the same time a natural mind; and as his spiritual mind is above his natural mind; and as his spiritual mind is such that it can view and love truths and goods in every degree, conjointly with the natural mind, and [also] abstractedly from it, it follows that the interiors of man, which are of both his minds, are able to be elevated to the Lord by the Lord, and to be conjoined with Him. Hence it is that every man lives to eternity. It is not so with a beast. A beast does not enjoy any spiritual mind, but only a natural one; and therefore its interiors, which are solely of knowledge and affection, cannot be elevated by the Lord, and be conjoined with Him; and therefore it does not live after death.

J. (Post.) 308. In such a decreasing continuous degree is the human mind . . .

D. Love xiii<sup>4</sup>. For the mind of man in each thing of it expatiates into all things of its body . . . Unless there were a body for the mind, the man would be neither mind nor man.

xvii<sup>6</sup>. Thus is his spiritual mind opened . . . D. Wis. xi. 7a.

D. Wis. v<sup>e</sup>. Both taken together are the human mind.

viii<sup>2</sup>. That in man there is an angelic mind . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. That such a mind cannot be formed except in man . . .

—<sup>6</sup>. That an angelic mind cannot be procreated . . . except in man. Ex.

xii. 3<sup>4</sup>. For the mind of man is his Spiritual World . . .

5 M. 5. The same mind remains with them after death; and as the mind is not only in the head, but also in the whole body, they have a like body also; for the body is the organ of the mind, and is continued from the head; and therefore the mind is the man himself.

— That the mind is in the whole body; and is the man himself who lives after death. Ex.

Coro. II. As the mind . . . had thought in the material body . . . and the material body was only obedience, it follows that the mind, which is a substantial man, and is called the spirit, undergoes the Judgment . . .

29<sup>2</sup>. Every man has a natural mind and a spiritual mind. They are distinct from each other as are the two stories of one house, which are conjoined by stairs; and in the higher story of which dwell the master and mistress with their children, but in the lower one their servants . . . The spiritual mind with man, from birth to first childhood, is closed up; but from this first age the spiritual mind is gradually opened; for there has been given to every man the faculty, and afterwards the power, of preparing for himself stairs by which he ascends and talks with the master and mistress; and afterwards descends, and executes their commands. This power has been given him by means of the gift of free will in spiritual things. Ex.

Inv. 14. The human mind is of three degrees . . . In the first is the soul; in the second is the spirit or mind; in the third is the body. (Continued under DEGREE.)

— That [part] of the body is called the mind which is in principles; thus where the first of it is; all the rest are propagated and continued thence. What is the mind if it is solely in the head . . .

Mine. Fodina.

H. 586. (Likeness of some Hells to mines.) D. 4900.

T. 245. The Word is like a mine . . . These mines are opened according to the understanding of the Word.

D. 5729. The Mongols have a diamond mine.

E. 1208<sup>e</sup>. From the vegetation of minerals into such forms in mines. W. 61<sup>e</sup>.

Mine. Meus.

M. 229<sup>2</sup>. They think . . . She is mine . . . he is mine. 316<sup>3</sup>.

Mineral. Mineralis.

W. 223. There is not the least in any mineral (in which there are no degrees of both kinds).

M. 389<sup>e</sup>. There is something similar (to the love of children) in minerals—mineralis. Ex.

Mineral Kingdom. Regnum Minerale.

H. 104<sup>2</sup>. The correspondences in the mineral kingdom are the more noble and ignoble metals, precious stones and non-precious ones, and earths of various kinds, and also waters. Besides these, there are also correspondences which are prepared from these things by human industry . . .

S. 66<sup>e</sup>. From the mineral kingdom. In the bosom of the earth, in certain places, there are minerals impregnated with gold, silver, and iron. From the exhalations stored away in the earth gold draws its element; silver its; and iron its. E. 1084<sup>5</sup>.

W. 61<sup>3</sup>. The relation to man from each and all things of the mineral kingdom appears solely in the endeavour to produce forms which have relation; which are . . . each and all things of the vegetable kingdom; and thus to perform uses; for as soon as a seed falls into the bosom of the earth, it cherishes it, and gives of its abundance from every side, in order that it may grow, and present itself in a form representative of man. That there is such an endeavour in its dry things also, is evident from corals at the bottom of the sea, and from the flowers in mines, formed from the minerals there, and also from the metals. The endeavour to vegetate, and thus to perform uses, is the ultimate from the Divine in created things.

65. Ultimates are each and all things of the mineral kingdom, which are matters of various kinds from substances stony, saline, oily, mineral, metallic, superinduced with soil consisting of vegetable and animal [elements] broken up into the finest dust. In these lie concealed the end and also the beginning of all the uses which are from life. The end of all uses is the endeavour to produce these [uses]; and the beginning is the force acting from this endeavour. These are of the mineral kingdom.

185<sup>2</sup>. Without a Knowledge of these degrees, nothing can be known . . . of the distinctions . . . among the matters of the mineral kingdom.

190<sup>2</sup>. It is the same in all things of . . . the mineral kingdom. . . In metals and in stones there is a conglobation of parts in a three-fold order.

313. The forms of the uses of the mineral kingdom cannot be described, because they do not appear to the sight. The first forms are the substances and matters from which are earths, in their leasts; the second forms are congregates of these, which are of infinite variety; The third forms are from plants fallen to dust and from the remains of animals, and from the continual evaporations and exhalations of these, which add themselves to the earths, and make their soil. These forms of the three degrees of the mineral kingdom relate to creation in this: that, actuated by the sun through the atmospheres and their heat and light, they produce uses in forms, which have been the ends of creation.

338<sup>e</sup>. (The evil uses) in the mineral kingdom are all poisonous earths.

T. 366<sup>2</sup>. It is the like with the subjects of the mineral kingdom: each of them . . . receives influx according to the form of the contexture of the parts . . . Some of them adorn themselves with the most beautiful variegated colours; some transmut the light without variegation; and some confuse and suffocate it in themselves.

E. 1208<sup>2</sup>. Hence . . . the mineral kingdom is only a storehouse, in which are, and from which are taken, those things which compose the form of the two (other) kingdoms.

Docu. 302. I. Par. 6. There is not a single object in the mineral kingdom which does not give out an odour; and, indeed, in the form of an impalpable powder, by which seeds are impregnated.

Minerva. Minerva.

T. 159<sup>5</sup>. See APOLLO, here.

D. 3952. They are called Pallasas, not Minervas.

4775<sup>2</sup>. See JUPITER (the god) here.

Mingle. See MIX.

Minister. Minister.

Minister, To. Ministrare.

Ministry. Ministerium.

Ministration. Ministratio.

See under CLERGY, LAITY, and PRIEST.

A. 50<sup>2</sup>. The Angels do indeed lead; but they only minister; for it is the Lord alone who rules man through the Angels and Spirits; and as it is done with the ministry of the Angels, it is said 'Let us . . . ' 300<sup>e</sup>.

1097. Celestial men are called 'the priests of Jehovah;' spiritual ones, 'the ministers of God' (Is. lxi. 6).

1419. 'Whoever would be great among you shall be your minister . . . as the Son of Man is not come that it may be ministered to Him, but that He may minister . . . ' (Matt. xx. 27, 28).

1437<sup>2</sup>. Those who ministered; the things by means of which the [things] were ministered; and also the places where the ministration was (were all representative).

1925<sup>2</sup>. The Lord uses the ministry of Angels by infilling them with the Divine . . .

2181. 'Boy' = one who ministers and administers . . .

2252<sup>4</sup>. (The Levites numbered up to fifty years of age) = the full or ultimate state of discharging the ministry.

2276<sup>4</sup>. The reason the Levites were taken to discharge the ministry—which is described by coming to exercise warfare, and to do work in the tent—from a son of thirty years, to fifty (Num. iv.) was that by 'thirty' were signified those who were to be initiated; thus, who could as yet exercise warfare but little, as understood in the spiritual sense.

3587<sup>e</sup>. When reformation by the ministry of truth has been finished.

3670<sup>2</sup>. The Regal itself and the Sacerdotal itself are holy, whatever be the quality of him who ministers . . .

—<sup>e</sup>. The Holy in which were the priests when they were ministering.

4122. With whom the Angels are present as ministers . . .

4250<sup>e</sup>. When good dominates . . . truths are nothing else than ministers and servants.

4790<sup>e</sup>. 'Attendants' = those things which minister.

4926<sup>e</sup>. By 'Uzzah' was represented that which ministers; thus truth; for this ministers to good.

4976. '(Joseph) ministered to him' (Gen. xxxix. 4) = that the Scientific was appropriated to its own good; (for) 'to minister' = to be of service in supplying that of which another is in need; here, to be appropriated, because it treats of the natural good to which the Scientific is to be appropriated. Moreover, 'to minister' is predicated of scientifics; for by 'a minister,' and by 'a servant,' in the Word, is signified the Scientific or natural truth; because this is subordinate to good, as to its lord. Ex.

4977. For good is lord, and truth is minister; and, when it is said of a lord that he set a minister over, or of good that it set truth over, in the internal sense it is not signified that it ceded the dominion to it, but that it applied itself.

[A.] 5081. 'Upon his two ministers the stewards' (Gen. xl.2)=from the sensuous things of the body of both kinds . . . The sensuous things of the body . . . relatively to the interior man, are ministers like stewards . . . for they minister to him. Ex.

— In general, all exterior things are ministers relatively to interior ones . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. This word, in the Original Language, signifies a minister, steward, chamberlain, eunuch. In the internal sense, by it is signified the natural man as to good and as to truth. Ill.

5088. '(Joseph) ministered to them' (ver.4)=that he instructed. 'To minister' = to instruct. That 'to minister,' here, is not to minister as a servant, is evident from the fact that Joseph was set over them; and therefore 'to minister,' here, = to sub-minister the things which would conduce to their [welfare].

—<sup>e</sup>. 'To be set over' is predicated of the good of life; and 'to minister' of the truth of doctrine.

5164<sup>2</sup>. 'Servants' are said relatively to the Divine truth which is from the Lord; and 'ministers' (Matt. xx.) relatively to the Divine good from Him.

6482<sup>2</sup>. The royalty is not only with the king himself, but also with his ministers, who administer in such things as he himself cannot . . .

—<sup>e</sup>. The reason the Angels are His ministries, is that they may be in an active life . . . but still the ministries which they perform are not from them, but from influx from the Lord.

6731. The ministries of that religiosity which is from falsity. Sig.

— 'Girls' = ministries. Ex.

6822. Good can be insinuated into another by anyone in the Country; but not truth, except by those who are teaching ministers. If others (do it), heresies come forth, and the Church is disturbed and torn to pieces.

8241. 'Moses His servant' = the Lord as to the Divine truth proceeding from Him and ministering.

—<sup>2</sup>. 'A servant' = one who ministers; and therefore the Lord as to the Divine Human, when He was in the world, is called 'a servant' . . . for He then 'ministered.'

9274<sup>2</sup>. The will is the man himself; and the understanding is his minister.

9419. 'Joshua his minister' (Ex.xxv.13)=what is representative . . . because what is representative is of service and ministers. —<sup>2</sup>, Ex.

9806<sup>2</sup>. When it is treating of the twofold ministry, which is of judgment, and of worship. (Continued under JUDGE.)

9925. 'To minister' (Ex.xxviii.35)=while in worship and evangelization. (For 'to minister,' when said of Aaron, by whom is represented the Lord, = worship and evangelization. Ex.

10083<sup>2</sup>. 'To minister the ministry of Jehovah' (Num. viii.).

— The Levites represented truths ministering to good; and Aaron, the good to which they ministered . . . For in truths there must be life from the Divine in order for them to minister to good.

10242<sup>2</sup>. Worship from the good of faith, or from the good of charity . . . was represented by the ministration of Aaron and his sons in the Tent of the Assembly . . . and worship from celestial good . . . was represented by the ministration of Aaron and his sons at the altar.

10245. 'In approaching to the altar to minister' (Ex. xxx.20)=worship from the good of love; (for these words)=to represent the Lord as to the good of love.

10272<sup>2</sup>. By ministrant goods and truths are meant the goods and truths which are in the natural or external man, which are called Knowledge and scientifics. Ex. . . There are also goods and truths ministrant to these again . . .

10335<sup>e</sup>. As the truth of faith ministers to the good of love . . . it is said of Aholiab that Jehovah gave him with Bezaleel, which is to serve him.

10557. 'And his minister Joshua' (Ex.xxxiii.11)=Divine truth ministering . . . in the place of Moses.

H. 51<sup>2</sup>. The prefects, officers, and servants in one royal palace . . .

108. The queen-bee lays eggs; the rest minister to her.

213<sup>e</sup>. The governments in the Heavens . . . differ according to the ministries which belong to each Society. 217.

218. Governors who are such do not dominate and command; but minister and serve; for to do good to others from the love of good is to serve; and to provide—prospicere—that it may be done, is to minister. Neither do they make themselves greater than the rest; but less . . . Nevertheless they have honour and glory . . . (which) they accept not for the sake of self, but for the sake of obedience . . . These things are what are meant by the Lord's words (in Matt.xx.27,28; Luke xxii.26).

381. An image of conjugal love . . . in order that they may be waited on in sickness and old age.

W. 220<sup>2</sup>. Hence it is that inaugurations into the ministry are made by the imposition of hands.

333<sup>e</sup>. Man is only a . . . minister steward . . .

P. 113. Concupiscences are its ministries and attendances, by means of which it governs the exterior things . . . But, as is the king, such are the ministers and attendants . . .

197<sup>e</sup>. Put on the garments of political ministers . . . M. 354<sup>2</sup>. T. 663.

206<sup>2</sup>. All are as servants and ministers of their lord . . .

210<sup>2</sup>. If you want to be led by the Divine Providence, use prudence, as a servant and minister, who faithfully dispenses the goods of his lord.

R. 3<sup>2</sup>. The Lord says this (Matt.xx.) because by 'a servant,' and 'a minister,' is meant one who is of service and ministers by teaching; and, abstractedly from person, Divine truth, which was Himself. (Continued under SERVANT—servus.)

—<sup>3</sup>. In Heaven, all are called servants of the Lord who are in His Spiritual Kingdom; but ministers, who are in His Celestial Kingdom. The reason is, that (the former) are in wisdom from Divine truth; and (the latter) are in love from Divine good ; and good ministers ; and truth is of service.

20. Those in wisdom from the Lord are called 'kings' sons,' and 'kings ;' and those who are in love from Him are called 'ministers,' and 'priests' . . .

128. 'And charity and ministry' (Rev.ii.19) = the spiritual affection which is called charity, and its operation. . . The reason 'ministry' = its operation, is that those are called 'ministers,' in the Word, who operate the things which are of charity. A man a worshipper of God is now called 'a servant,' now 'a minister ;' and 'a servant of God' he is called who is in truths ; and 'a minister of God,' who is in goods. The reason is that truth is of service to good ; and good ministers to truth. . . That he who is in good is called 'a minister.' Ill.

224<sup>2</sup>. We are Englishmen, and we have heard many things from our sacred ministry . . . Some of them have said, We are ministers of God, and we know.

417<sup>9</sup>. Ministers of God, seduce not the flock.

500<sup>4</sup>. When afterwards promoted to an honoured ministry, they think (only) about themselves and the world . . .

533<sup>2</sup>. In the Heavens . . . there are ministries and priesthoods . . .

548<sup>2</sup>. By 'Michael' . . . is meant a ministry in Heaven. (This) ministry is with those who confirm from the Word that the Lord is the God of Heaven and earth. . . By 'Gabriel' is meant the ministry with those who teach from the Word that Jehovah came into the world . . . Moreover, those who are in these ministries are named Michaels and Gabriels.

786. Those not in any order of the ministry. Tr.

795<sup>6</sup>. Concerning the ministers (of the Papists) there is the idea that they are full of the Lord . . .

937. 'His servants shall minister unto Him' (Rev. xxii.3). . . By 'the servants' of the Lord are signified those who are in truths from Him ; and by 'the ministers,' those who are in good from Him. Hence by 'the servants who shall minister unto Him' are signified those who are in truths from good through the Word from the Lord, and do His commandments.

962. All clothed with the garment of the sacerdotal ministry.

M. 5. In other rooms they talked the news about courts, ministries . . .

7<sup>4</sup>. From the number of their courtiers, ministers, and retinue, and the magnificent vestments of these . . .

15. The dress of the prince and his ministers. Des.

20<sup>3</sup>. Then the attendants took loaves . . . and gave to each guest . . .

196. The understanding is nothing else than the ministry and servitude of the will.

207<sup>2</sup>. In Heaven there are administrations, ministries, functions . . . Ex.

308<sup>2</sup>. As the ecclesiastical order . . . ministers those things which are of the priesthood with the Lord, that is, which are of His love, and thus also the things which are of blessing, it is necessary that marriages be consecrated by His ministers ; and, as they are also the heads of the witnesses, that the consent to the covenant be heard, accepted, confirmed, and thus established by them.

483<sup>6</sup>. We fear only some of the ecclesiastical ministry . . .

B. 59. Those ministers of the Church who are ambitious for a reputation of wisdom . . .

T. 14<sup>3</sup>. The Word from which the ministers proclaim a God . . .

106. The state of information by masters and ministers.

— . The state of every student who is being initiated into the ministry before he becomes a priest.

141. As if some minister of the Church were to teach . . . and beside him another minister stands, and murmurs into his ear . . .

146. Inauguration into the ministry carries these things with it.

154<sup>2</sup>. It is the like with every minister of the Church ; both with him who is in truths, and with him who is in falsities ; each has his own mouth and his own intelligence ; and each speaks from his own mind ; that is, from his own spirit which he possesses.

381<sup>4</sup>. Ministers, who are hypocrites . . . at the time when they are ministering holy things, and teaching truths from the Word, know no otherwise than that they believe them . . .

418. Who loves . . . any minister of the Church . . . except from his learning, integrity of life, and zeal for the salvation of souls ?

429. By the debts of charity, are not here meant the debt of functions in a kingdom and republic ; as of a minister that he should minister . . .

441<sup>2</sup>. Like these are priests who perform the debts (or duties) of their ministry solely for the sake of the emoluments attached to them . . .

459<sup>4</sup>. When I have consulted the ministers of the Church, I have heard that faith was the only means . . .

—<sup>10</sup>. Besides, to a minister is given the opportunity to bless . . .

482<sup>6</sup>. This free will is at this day denied by many ministers of the Church.

484. What, then, are Heaven and Hell, except fables of the ministers and prelates—praesulum—of the Church . . .

487<sup>3</sup>. Religion . . . is to be taught by ministers both small and great . . .

539<sup>6</sup>. It does no harm for anyone burdened in conscience to enumerate his sins before a minister of the Church, for the sake of absolution . . .

568<sup>4</sup>. We have heard from our ministers, that the internal man is not anything but faith.

577<sup>6</sup>. While the minister is preaching . . .

660. A comparison may be made with a minister of the Church : that he is estimated from his will and love, and at the same time from his understanding in spiritual things ; and not from his affability and dress.

D. 1282<sup>2</sup>. Their aiders are with them in that deepest . . .

1531<sup>2</sup>. They are of service as ministries for instructing others . . .

1761. They employ the harmless as ministries . . .

3934. As kings and their chief ministers openly write Falsities . . .

E. 155. 'And ministry and faith' (Rev.ii.19)=good and truth there.

—<sup>1</sup>. The reason 'ministry'=good, is that 'ministry,' in the Word, is said of good. Hence it is that the function of Aaron, of his sons, and of the Levites, has been called 'ministry;' and, in general, [so has] the function of priests; and that by 'to minister to Jehovah' or the Lord, is meant to worship Him from the good of love. Hence it is evident that, 'ministry' has relation to works . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. That 'ministry,' and 'to minister,' in the Word, are said of the good of love. Ill.

—<sup>3</sup>. 'He shall make His ministers a flaming fire' (Ps.civ.4)=that they are recipients of the Divine good. Hence it is evident that by 'ministers' are meant those who are in the good of love.

—<sup>3</sup>. 'Ministers of His, doing His will' (Ps.ciii.21). . . 'Ministers'=those who are in goods.

—<sup>4</sup>. 'Ye shall be called the priests of Jehovah, the ministers of our God' (Is.lxi.6). The priests are called 'ministers,' because they represented the Lord as to the good of love. Hence it is that those who are in the good of love, are called, in the Word, 'priests.' From this also it is that they are called 'ministers of God.' Hence it is that the function of Aaron and his sons is called 'ministry' . . . and that to enter into the Tent of the Assembly and perform the ministry there, and also to approach the altar and perform the ministry there, is called 'ministry.' Ill.

—<sup>5</sup>. Of those who are in the Celestial Kingdom, 'to minister,' is said . . . Hence it is evident what is signified by 'to minister,' and 'a minister,' in the following places. Ill.

—<sup>6</sup>. As 'to minister' is predicated of the good of love, it is said 'to minister to Jehovah' . . . and therefore it is said of the Lord that He 'will minister.'

—<sup>e</sup>. (Thus) by 'ministry' is signified all that is done from the good of love; thus the good of love.

282<sup>2</sup>. 'The rams of Nebaioth shall minister to thee' (Is.lx.7)=the truths which lead the life from spiritual affection.

336<sup>9</sup>. 'To minister' is predicated of good.

340<sup>6</sup>. 'To minister'=worship from spiritual good.

409<sup>2</sup>. The Lord as to His Divine Human is called 'Servant' and 'Minister,' Ill. —<sup>4</sup>.

419<sup>11</sup>. By 'ministers' (Ps.civ.) are meant those who are in the Lord's Celestial Kingdom; and, as they are recipient of the Divine good, it is said that 'He makes them a flaming fire.' 504<sup>14</sup>.

—<sup>1</sup>. That ministers are called 'ministers' from the reception of Divine good. Ref.

478<sup>9</sup>. Those who are in good are called in the Word 'the Lord's ministers;' and [are said] 'to minister to Him.'

527<sup>5</sup>. 'With the Levites the priests My ministers' (Jer.xxxiii.21)=conjunction with the Lord through Divine good.

734<sup>14</sup>. The ministry of the Levites was called 'welfare.' Ex.

951. The garments in which the Angels go clothed correspond to their ministries . . . Therefore Aaron and sons had garments of linen, in which they ministered. Ill.

—<sup>2</sup>. The Divine good ministers all things through the Divine truth.

1015<sup>9</sup>. To be 'delivered by the judge to the minister' . . .

1033<sup>2</sup>. The Babylonians persuaded the people that . . . no others (understand the Word) who have not been inaugurated into the ministry.

1053<sup>9</sup>. In this kind of profanation are all who are in sacred ministries, and who, by means of the holy things of the Church, seek for themselves honour and glory, and rejoice at heart from these; and not from the use, which is the salvation of souls.

1062. Which their ministers and monks teach.

1091. (The Pope) has made his ministers deities.

1143. The Vicar and his ministers . . .

1226<sup>6</sup>. By uses in the Heavens and on earth are meant ministries, etc.

—<sup>7</sup>. In this love is everyone who is delighted with the use in which he is for the sake of use, whether king, magistrate, priest, minister . . .

D. Wis. x. 4. The ministry (of the will and understanding).

xi. 4. In the Heavens, as in the world, all are in some function and ministration.

5. To bestow useful contributions and debts on the ministry of the Church (a general use).

C. 131. From these is the common good . . . What is Divine is there by means of ministers . . .

134. That ministries, etc., are the goods of use which individuals perform, from which comes forth the common good. By ministries are meant priestly offices and their duties.

135. They who are in ministries perform [the use] that what is Divine is there.

Abom. 24. Hence it follows that there is not any ministry, etc.

Ministering Spirits. Tjensteandar.

D. 3985. As he knew that there are Spirits who are of service to man, called ministering Spirits . . .

Minnith. Minnith.

A. 3941<sup>7</sup>. The goods of love and of charity are 'wheat minnith and pannag' (Ezek.xxvii.17). (=goods and truths in general. E.375<sup>35</sup>.) (=the truths and goods of the Church of every kind. 433<sup>22</sup>.) 619<sup>12</sup>.

Minute. Minutum.

Minute. Minutus.

See SMALL.

A. 637<sup>9</sup>. Could not live one minute. 687<sup>2</sup>. 697.

1382. Thousands of years appear as if they had lived a minute. D.3476.

1641. They express more in a minute than . . . —<sup>2</sup>. 2209<sup>2</sup>. 8734. H.240.

6987<sup>2</sup>. Man can think in one minute what . . . D.2009.

8458. 'A minute round thing' (Ex.xvi.14)=the good of truth in its first formation; 'minute' is predicated of truth. 8459.

—<sup>2</sup>. Truth is presented in a discrete quantity; as much, or as minute.

9333<sup>3</sup>. So that not a very little thing—minutulum—is wanting.

Miracle. Miraculum.

Miraculous. Miraculosus.

Miraculously. Miraculose.

See PRONIGY.

A. 863<sup>e</sup>. The Lord miraculously provided, and distinguished the Intellectual from the Voluntary of man . . . Without this miraculous Providence, no one could ever have been saved. 4601<sup>3</sup>.

1880<sup>3</sup>. When the interior sight was first opened to me, and they saw the world through my eyes . . . the Spirits and Angels said, This is a miracle of miracles . . . but now that it has become familiar, they marvel nothing.

2383<sup>2</sup>. All the miracles which have been done by the Lord have always involved such things . . .

2916<sup>4</sup>. All the miracles which have been done by the Lord, being Divine ones, involved states of His Church. 3316<sup>e</sup>.

4013. When the magi were doing magical miracles (they used a rod). Ex.

4031<sup>2</sup>. He supposes that the Lord could save everyone . . . as by miracles . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. They who once acknowledge at heart, and afterwards deny, are they who profane; hence manifest miracles do not take place at this day, but miracles not manifest, or invisible; which are such things as do not infuse what is holy, or take away freedom from man; and therefore the dead do not rise again; and man is not withheld from evils through immediate revelations, and through Angels . . .

4208<sup>4</sup>. In order that (the Israelites) might be kept in externals, so many miracles came forth with them; which would never have done so if they had been in internals . . . 4281<sup>e</sup>. 4289<sup>3</sup>. 4311<sup>4</sup>. 5508<sup>4</sup>. 7290.

4288<sup>5</sup>. This miraculously of the Divine Providence . . . 4311<sup>2</sup>.

4317<sup>6</sup>. They succumbed . . . whenever they did not see miracles.

4545<sup>7</sup>. Done miraculously by representatives . . .

4936. Magi appeared with rods . . . who believe that they can do miracles with them . . .

5223<sup>2</sup>. The magi communicated with Spirits, and thence learned illusory arts, by means of which they did magical miracles.

5508<sup>3</sup>. Hence it is that no miracles are done at this day; for, as these are all things visible and comprehensible, they compel the man to believe; and things which compel take away freedom; when yet all the reformation and regeneration of man are done in his freedom . . .

5573<sup>3</sup>. (Impotence of miracles to convince. Ex.) D.3521.

6910. 'I will smite Egypt with all my marvels'=means of Divine power against falsities. . . That 'marvels'=means of Divine power, by means of which those in falsities are subjugated, is evident from the marvels or miracles done in Egypt, by means of which they were at last driven to let the sons of Israel go. Every marvel or miracle there=a means of Divine power. 7030. 8304.

6988<sup>3</sup>. All the miracles done by the Lord=the state of the Church and of the human race saved by His Advent into the world; namely, in that those were then delivered from Hell who had received the faith of charity. The Lord's miracles involve these things. In general, all the miracles treated of in the Old Testament =the state of the Church and of the Lord's Kingdom. In this are Divine miracles distinguished from diabolical or magical miracles, however much they may appear similar in the external form; as the miracles of the magi in Egypt.

7290<sup>2</sup>. But with those who are in internal worship, that is, in charity and faith, miracles do not take place; for they are hurtful to them; for miracles compel to believe; and what is compelled does not remain. Ex.

—<sup>3</sup>. Although they had seen so many miracles in Egypt.

—<sup>4</sup>. Miracles would effect still less at this day . . .

—<sup>e</sup>. That miracles effect nothing. III.

7317<sup>3</sup>. They who have been in miraculous faith. Sig.

7337. It is to be known that Divine miracles differ from magical miracles as Heaven does from Hell. Divine miracles proceed from the Divine truth, and advance according to order. Effects in ultimates are miracles when the Lord pleases that they should be presented in that form. Hence it is that all Divine miracles represent the states of the Lord's Kingdom in the Heavens, and of the Church on earth. This is the internal form of Divine miracles. Such is the case with all the miracles in Egypt, and also with all the rest treated of in the Word. So, also, all the miracles which the Lord Himself did when He was in the world, signified the coming state of the Church; as, that there were opened the eyes of the blind, the ears of the deaf, the tongues of the dumb, that the lame walked, the maimed and the lepers were healed, signified that such as are signified by the blind, etc. would receive the Gospel and be spiritually healed; and this by the Advent of the Lord into the world. Such are Divine miracles in their internal form.

—<sup>2</sup>. Whereas magical miracles involve nothing whatever; they are done by the evil to acquire power for themselves over others; and in the external form they appear like Divine miracles. The reason that the like things appear, is that they flow from order; and the order appears alike in the ultimates where miracles are presented. Examps.

[A.] 7465. It is to be known that each miracle done in Egypt=a peculiar state into which those come who in the other life are in falsities and infest. There are ten states into which they come successively . . .

8078<sup>3</sup>. Faith merely natural is faith which is insinuated through an external way . . . as the faith of miracles, which is when it is believed that it is so solely from miracles.

8200<sup>2</sup>. All miracles have been done by means of the Divine truth.

8364<sup>6</sup>. For Divine miracles are distinguished from others by this: that they involve and regard the states of the Church and of the Heavenly Kingdom; and besides, the Lord's miracles were especially healings of diseases. Ill. 8408<sup>2</sup>. 9051<sup>6</sup>. 9086<sup>2</sup>. 9325<sup>9</sup>. S.17<sup>4</sup>.

8588<sup>6</sup>. With the Jews, holy worship was miraculously elevated into Heaven . . .

8615<sup>3</sup>. All the miracles treated of in the Word were done by means of correspondences.

10566. He who worships God solely on account of a miracle, worships only the name of God . . .

10751<sup>6</sup>. Compelled faith, such as is that which enters by means of miracles, does not inhere; and also would do harm to those with whom faith can be implanted by means of the Word in a state not compelled.

S. 17<sup>4</sup>. (Signification of the Lord's miracles ex. seriatim.)

P. 130. That no one is reformed by means of miracles and signs, because they compel. Gen.art.

— . It cannot be denied that miracles induce faith, and strongly persuade that that is true which he who does the miracles says and teaches; and that this in the beginning so takes possession of the external of the man's thought, that it as it were binds and fascinates it. But the man is thereby deprived of his two faculties, which are called rationality and freedom; so that he cannot act from freedom according to reason; and then the Lord cannot inflow through the internal into the external of his thought, except solely to leave to the man to confirm from his rationality that thing which has been made of his faith by means of the miracle.

—<sup>2</sup>. Such blindness and deafness are induced on the human mind by means of miracles.

131. From these things it may be evident that faith induced by means of miracles is not faith, but persuasion; for there is not anything rational in it, still less anything spiritual . . . When a miracle alone leads the man to acknowledgment (of God), worship, and piety, he acts from the natural man, and not from the spiritual. For a miracle infuses faith by an external way, and not by an internal way; thus from the world, and not from Heaven; and the Lord does not enter by any other way with man than the internal way, which is by the Word, doctrine, and preachings therefrom; and, as miracles close this way, no miracles are done at this day.

132. That miracles are such, may be manifestly evident from the miracles done before the Jewish and Israelitish people. Although they had seen so many miracles in the land of Egypt, and afterwards at the Sea Suph, and others in the wilderness, and especially upon Mount Sinai . . . nevertheless, a month after . . . they made for themselves a golden calf, and acknowledged it as Jehovah . . . Also from the miracles done afterwards in the Land of Canaan; and yet they as often receded from the commanded worship. In like manner from the miracles which the Lord, when He was in the world, did before them; and yet they crucified Him.

—<sup>2</sup>. The reason miracles were done with them, was that the Jews and Israelites were completely external men . . . And as they could not be brought to the representation of these things through the internals of worship, they were . . . driven and compelled through miracles.

—<sup>6</sup>. But after the Lord had manifested Himself, and had been received and acknowledged in the Churches as God eternal, miracles ceased.

133. But the effect of miracles with the good is different from with the evil. The good do not want miracles; but they believe the miracles which are in the Word; and if they hear anything about a miracle, they do not attend to it otherwise than as to a light argument which confirms their faith; for these think from the Word . . . and not from the miracle. But it is otherwise with the evil: these can indeed be driven and compelled to faith through miracles; nay, to worship, and to piety; but only for a short time; for their evils are shut in; the concupiscences and derivative delights of which are continually acting into their external of worship and of piety; and, in order that they may get out of their confinement . . . they [do not] think about the miracle, and at last call it a trick or artifice, or a work of nature, and so they return into their evils. And he who, after worship, returns into his evils, profanes the truths and goods of worship . . . Besides, if miracles were to be done with those who do not believe from the miracles in the Word, they would have to be done continually . . . From these things it may be evident whence it is that miracles do not take place at this day.

282. The Lord could have healed the understanding with every man . . . through miracles . . . But to heal the understanding alone, is to heal the man only outwardly . . .

R. 424<sup>3</sup>. By the miracles in Egypt is described the vastation of the Church . . . 399.

M. 535. I heard . . . from the lower regions, Do miracles, and we will believe; and I asked whether these things are not miracles; and it was replied, They are not; and I asked, What then are miracles? and it was said, Manifest and reveal future things, and we will have faith. But I replied, Such things are not given from Heaven, because in proportion as a man knows future things, in the same proportion his reason and understanding, with his prudence and wisdom, fall into idleness, are torpid, and are ruined; and I asked again, What other miracles shall I do? And then there was a cry, Do miracles like those which Moses did in Egypt. To this I replied, Perhaps you will harden your hearts at these like Pharaoh and the Egyptians; and it was replied that they would not. But I returned, Asseverate to me that you will not dance around the golden calf, and adore it as did the descendants of Jacob; which they did in the space of a month after they had seen all Mount Sinai burning, and had heard Jehovah Himself speaking out of the fire; thus after a miracle which was the greatest of all—a golden calf, in the spiritual sense, is the pleasure of the flesh—and it was answered from the lower regions, We will not be like the descendants of Jacob. But I then heard this said to them from Heaven, If ye believe not Moses and the Prophets—that is, the Word of the Lord—ye will not believe from miracles any more than did the sons of Jacob in the wilderness; nor any more than they believed while they saw with their eyes the miracles done by the Lord Himself, when He was in the world. T.849.

T. 91. Divine miracles are done according to Divine order; but according to the order of the influx of the Spiritual World into the natural world . . .

104°. The state of glorification is also the state of union. In this state He was . . . when He did miracles.

282. The Laws were promulgated from Mount Sinai with so great a miracle in order that they might know that those laws are . . . also Divine laws.

344°. Living faith; and miraculous faith.

501. It is asked at this day, why miracles are not done, as formerly; for it is believed that if they were done, everyone would acknowledge with the heart. But the reason miracles are not done at this day, as before, is that miracles compel, and take away free will in spiritual things; and, from spiritual, they make the man natural. All in the Christian world . . . can become spiritual; and they become spiritual solely from the Lord through the Word; and the faculty for this would perish, if man were brought to believe through miracles; for . . . everything which is compelled in spiritual things betakes itself into the natural man, and closes up the spiritual man as with a door . . . and bereaves this of all power of seeing any truth in light; and therefore he would afterwards reason about spiritual things from the natural man alone . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. But the reason why miracles were done before the Advent of the Lord, was that then the men of the Church were natural, to whom the spiritual things which are of the Internal Church could not be opened . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. Miracles are not done at this day, especially on account of this reason: that the Church has taken away all free will from man . . . The man who believes this becomes more and more natural; and the natural man . . . regards everything spiritual invertedly, and thence thinks against it. The higher region of the mind, where free will in spiritual things primarily resides, would be closed up; and the spiritual things which had been as it were confirmed through miracles, would occupy the lower region of the mind, which is merely natural; falsities concerning faith, conversion, and salvation, thus remaining above this region; whence it would come to pass that satans would dwell above, and Angels below . . . Hence, after some time, the satans would break down the barrier, and would burst forth with fury upon the spiritual things which had been allotted the place below, and would not only deny, but would also blaspheme and profane them; thence the latter lot of the man would become much worse than the former.

D. 227. Concerning miracles: that they effect nothing without faith. Ex.

655. What is a miracle.—A miracle is that which is done by the Lord, when anything concerns Him, faith in Him, His Heaven, or the Church in the universal; and thus passes through His Heaven; and thus the Spirits effect it, without any co-operative force of theirs. This is a miracle, and is called 'the finger of God.'

656. But verily false miracles are those which are prepared by evil Spirits by artificial methods; and in fact for no end except a very depraved cupidity. Such is also permitted, and in the external face it appears alike; but it has no internal face; but it is not distinguished except by those who are in faith in the Lord.

1391. That Jonah was swallowed by a whale . . . actually took place in the world; and also the miracles of Egypt; and many other things which are called miracles.

1755. If Spirits were allowed to exercise such magical arts, they could easily induce the minds of men to believe that they were miracles . . . Hence are false miracles, which are of the devil, and which were those of the magi of Egypt.

2433. Concerning the miracles of this time.—In ancient times . . . when there was external worship . . . there were manifest miracles. Enum.

2434. But it is not so at this day. Manifest miracles have ceased; and miracles have succeeded which are unknown to man, and do not appear, except to those to whom the Lord reveals them. For all contingencies, which are all in all things, in the most general, in the generals, in single things, in the most singular things, are miracles; but invisible, and continual, which, as manifest miracles were to cease, are not evident, because there is no faith from miracles. Ex.

3521. Therefore faith cannot be rooted by means of miracles; still less persuasion; but it must be without miracles for them to be persuaded. (How they would explain the miracles.) 3570.

3892. Man cannot possibly be reformed through miracles.

4123. There are Spirits who do not want anything to be said about the things revealed; but they have been told that these are in place of miracles; and that without them [people] do not know that the book is such; they do not buy it, read it, understand it; they are not affected with it; they do not believe it; in a word, they ignore it; nor do they want to hear anything about the interior things of the Word . . .

4322. That no one becomes good without means, or miraculously. Ex.

4759. They who have faith from revelation, can be confirmed . . . from miracles, because they are in the affirmative . . . But they who have not faith from revelation, cannot be confirmed . . . from miracles, because they are in the negative. Ex.

[D.] 4770<sup>2</sup>. New Churches had been so commenced before; namely, the Jewish Church through miracles . . . the Christian Church through miracles . . .

5416. The Jesuits fled to their arts, which appeared like miracles. Des.

D. Min. 4580<sup>3</sup>. They who have been in the good of life . . . can be brought to the affirmative through experiences, and through miracles. They who are in evil of life cannot; because evil is recipient of the negative . . .

4724. Why miracles were done in the time of the apostles, in order that the Church might be instaurated. This was because it was entirely unknown everywhere that the Lord had come into the world, who would save souls; and because it would never be received by anyone without miracles . . . For these reasons miracles were done; but now when doctrine has been received, they are done no longer. The inrooting of truth and good with the gentiles is from external things; but with Christians, who are in the Knowledge of internal things, otherwise.

E. 152<sup>18</sup>. For all Divine miracles involve such things as are of the Church and Heaven. 376<sup>29</sup>.

401<sup>18</sup>. This miracle (of the sun standing still), if it had been done just so, would have inverted the universal nature of the world; which is not done by the rest of the miracles in the Word . . .

419<sup>24</sup>. This miracle of the Lord (the stilling of the storm) involves arcana . . . Divine miracles differ from miracles not Divine in this: that (the former)=Divine things, because what is Divine is in them; whereas miracles not Divine=nothing, because there is nothing of what is Divine within them; and besides, in the description of the Divine miracles in the Word, and in each thing of it, there is a spiritual sense. This miracle involves the temptations of the spiritual [man] . . . 455<sup>22</sup>. 475<sup>17</sup>. 502<sup>11</sup>. 543<sup>6</sup>.

617<sup>4</sup>. This miracle was done because the Lord had previously taught them . . .

700<sup>11</sup>. Hence miracles were done by the ark. Fully ex.

706<sup>2</sup>. That a sign and a miracle differ . . .

—. 'Signs' relate to the things of truth . . . 'miracles,' to those of good. Ill.

—. They are called 'signs' because they testified and persuaded; 'miracles,' because they excited and induced amazement. Yet they agree in this: that the things which excite and induce amazement also testify and persuade; as those things which excite the will also persuade the understanding . . . Further ill.

—<sup>5</sup>. Here, miracles are called 'signs' . . .

—<sup>6</sup>. For the miracles which the Lord did in abundance . . . were not signs to them; for the reason that miracles are not signs except with the good.

—<sup>14</sup>. Although these were miracles, still they are called 'signs' . . . They would have been called 'miracles' if applied to the evil; for with these such things only induce amazement . . . and do not persuade to believe . . .

815<sup>4</sup>. See FAITH, here.

—<sup>8</sup>. (Therefore) the Lord could not do miracles in His own country . . .

—<sup>9</sup>. Miraculous faith . . . is meant here . . . because the Jewish nation believed in Jehovah solely on account of the miracles . . . Moreover, miraculous faith was the first faith with those with whom a new Church was to be instaurated. Moreover, this faith is the first faith with all in the Christian world at this day, and therefore the miracles done by the Lord have been described, and are also preached; for the first faith with all is historical faith . . .

—. What those miracles signified which the disciples were to do . . .

1000<sup>2</sup>. All the miracles done in Egypt signified . . .

1155<sup>3</sup>. That man is not reformed by external means . . . By external means is by miracles and visions . . . Ex.

Can. God viii. 12. God acts with men from primes through ultimates; not through anything of man, but through what is His own in him. With the Jews He acted through the Word with them . . . through it also He did miracles through Elijah and Elisha. But, as the Jews had perverted the Word, God Himself came and made Himself the Ultimate; thus, then, He did miracles from Himself.

Abom. 31. I have spoken with Paris, whose miracles constitute two volumes, as to how he did his miracles: that [it was] by means of Spirits who entered into the memory of the man, (and persuaded him . . . but still he had not been given to any religion, and thus had not known anything of the truth of the Church . . . Abom. 3/18.) Inv. 29.

Coro. I. This New Church is not being established by any miracles . . .

LI. But in place of them there has been revealed the spiritual sense of the Word; and the Spiritual World has been disclosed; and the nature of Heaven and Hell has been manifested; and also that man lives as a man after death; which are more excellent than all miracles. Inv. 39. 43. 46. 52. 55<sup>6</sup>.

De Miraculis I. Miracles were done in the Church before the Lord's Advent, because they were then external or natural men . . .

II. After the Lord's Advent, when man . . . became internal . . . miracles have been prohibited . . .

III. Miracles would abolish worship truly Divine, and would introduce the former idolatrous worship, as also has been done for many ages back. Yet these miracles were not Divine, but such as had been done by the magi of yore.

IV. That in place of miracles at this day there has been made the manifestation of the Lord Himself, in-tromission into the Spiritual World, and illustration there by means of immediate light from the Lord in such things as are the interiors of the Church: but principally the opening of the spiritual sense in the Word, in which is the Lord in His Divine light.

V. That these revelations are not miracles, since every man as to his spirit is in the Spiritual World without separation from his body in the natural world; but I, with a certain separation, but only as to the intellectual part of my mind, and not as to the voluntary part. And, as to the spiritual sense, by means of it the Lord is in that light, and by means of it in his natural lumen, with all who approach Him in faith.

Inv. [VII.] That this Church is instaurated and established not through miracles, but through the revelation of the spiritual sense, and through the introduction of my spirit and at the same time of my body into the Spiritual World, in order that I might know there what Heaven and Hell are; and that, immediately in light from the Lord, I might imbibe the Truths of faith, through which man is led to eternal life.

6. Miracles close up the internal man, and take away all free will . . . And miracles are like veils and bolts to prevent anything from entering; but this bolt or barrier is successively broken down, and all truths are dissipated.

29. These things which are afterwards mentioned are not miracles; but are testimonies that I have been introduced by the Lord into the Spiritual World . . .

55. De Miraculis.

(60.) De Miraculis [Fragmentum]. All things which are viewed in nature . . . take place from the influx of the Spiritual World into the natural; and, in themselves, are marvels; which, on account of their accustomed aspect and perennial recurrence, are not accounted as miracles. But know that the miracles which are related in the Word were done in like manner by means of influx from that prior World into this posterior one; and that they were done by means of the bringing in-illationem-of such things as are in the Spiritual World into corresponding things in the natural world; as that the manna [descended] upon the camp of the Sons of Israel every morning, [was] things flowing down from the bread in Heaven, and brought into the receptacles of nature. In like manner the bread and fishes into the baskets of the apostles . . . and also the wine from Heaven into the water in the waterpots at the wedding . . . and that the fig-tree withered, through there being no longer the influx of spiritual aliment for it, which was nourishing it from the root. In like manner in the rest. So that miracles have not been done from causes sought out from nature, according to the insanities of certain of the learned at this day. And therefore miracles are of the Divine omnipotence according to the order of the influx of the Spiritual World into the natural, merely with this difference: that the things which come forth actually in the Spiritual World are actually brought into such things in the natural world as correspond. That this is so, and can be done, is of the Divine omnipotence which is meant by 'the finger of God,' from which the Lord produced His own miracles.

Docu. 302. A. All things of nature are like sheaths around spiritual things, and like tunics around muscular fibres. This is the cause of all the wonders and miracles in nature.

Mire. See DIRT-coenum.

Miriam. Mirjam.

A. 8337. 'And Miriam the prophetess the sister of Aaron took a timbrel in her hand' (Ex.xv.20)=the glorification of the Lord from the good of faith. 'Miriam'=the good of faith . . . which proceeds mediately from the Lord. . . As Miriam, with the women, represented external good, it is added, 'the sister of Aaron,' and not the sister of Moses . . .

Mirror. Speculum.

See SPECULAR.

A. 1510<sup>e</sup>. At the side were seen small mirrors . . . D. 4395-

4104<sup>4</sup>. Images and mirrors of heavenly things . . .

4302<sup>2</sup>. So that the things of Heaven appear as in a mirror . . .

4373. Like an image in a mirror, which appears in the mirror . . .

5033<sup>e</sup>. With these there is no mirror from the interior, but only from the exterior.

5036<sup>6</sup>. It may be compared to a man who sees himself in a mirror . . .

5113<sup>3</sup>. All the truths of faith appeared (to the man of the Celestial Church) in his Intellectual as in a mirror.

5118<sup>2</sup>. With the regenerate, goods and truths are presented in the Natural as in a mirror . . . 5168<sup>2</sup>. 5477<sup>2</sup>.

5165<sup>2</sup>. Unless the exterior Natural served interior things as a plane, in which they see themselves as in a mirror, man could not think at all.

5201. Scientifics are . . . as it were mirrors, in which an image of interior things presents itself; and, in this image, as again in a mirror, the truths and goods of faith present and represent themselves . . .

5259. Like one who sees something in a mirror, and does not know that there is a mirror there . . .

5286<sup>2</sup>. The interior looks out-prospicit-in the exterior, almost as a man [looks at] himself in a mirror . . .

5695. The face is so formed that the interiors appear in it, as in a representative mirror . . .

6384<sup>e</sup>. The Intellectual of these is illustrated, and is thus in a certain perception of spiritual truth, to which scientifics which are below serve as a mirror . . . 9394.

H. 56<sup>e</sup>. From these things it can be seen as in a mirror . . . For from the things which come forth in the natural world can be seen as in a mirror the things which are in the Spiritual World.

W. 21. The infinite things in God Man appear in Heaven, etc., as in a mirror. 22.

63<sup>e</sup>. An Angel sees his image (in the things around him) scarcely otherwise than as in a mirror.

R. 938<sup>2</sup>. The Divine truths of the Word . . . are like mirrors in which the Lord's face is seen.

T. 6<sup>e</sup>. To (such) the Holy Scripture is like a mirror in which he sees God . . .

11<sup>3</sup>. Knowledges about God are mirrors of God; and those who know nothing about God do not see God in any mirror turned to the eyes, but in a mirror at the back, which is covered with quicksilver or black glue . . .

32<sup>2</sup>. From this infinite variety the infinity of God the Creator can be seen as in a mirror.

[T.] 373. If we view works thus, they are as mirrors of the man.

508<sup>o</sup>. Enter into the mysteries of the Word . . . for its several Truths are so many mirrors of the Lord.

D. 1999. Like an image in mirrors . . .

2106. Spirits could recognize themselves from my face in a mirror. Ex. 2205, Ex. 3019.

E. 726<sup>4</sup>. As in a natural mirror can be seen . . .

Coro. 51<sup>2</sup>. Into the focus of a burning mirror.

Miser. See under AVARICE.

Misery. Miseria.

Miserable. Miser, Miserabilis.

Miserably. Misere.

See under MERCY.

A. 267<sup>e</sup>. That the state of his life would be miserable. Sig. 270.

279. Misery thence. Sig.

995<sup>2</sup>. Those who thrust themselves down into miseries (ascetically) . . .

2220<sup>3</sup>. No mercy, is described by, 'they have not strengthened the hand of the miserable and needy' (Ezek. xvi. 49).

2417<sup>8</sup>. The miserable (a class of the good).

4182. 'My misery' (Gen. xxxi. 42) = temptations.

4658. Lamenting that now they lead a miserable life, because they had imbued these things without any use.

5042<sup>e</sup>. Those who are constituted in miseries; that is, those who are in temptations; for these are in miseries, and are principally meant by 'the miserable' in the Word.

5132<sup>2</sup>. Charity is affected with mercy towards those who are in miseries.

— The Divine love is mercy, because all the human race is constituted in miseries.

5353<sup>2</sup>. As with those who are in misfortunes, miseries, and diseases, the loves of self and the world are removed . . .

5573<sup>2</sup>. (It is not necessary to make ourselves miserable.)

7318. Truth is falsified when it is said that no one can enter into Heaven except him who is miserable and poor . . . and who reduces himself into miseries.

8676<sup>e</sup>. Man is in a state of misery, because, from himself, he is wholly in evil, and in Hell.

9960<sup>7</sup>. 'Miserable-miser et miserabilis' (Rev. iii. 17) = without truths implanted in the life; thus without good.

10457. 'The voice of a miserable cry do I hear' (Ex. xxxii. 18) = their interior state lamentable.

P. 217<sup>6</sup>. They are vile slaves in Hell; in contempt and misery.

2201<sup>0</sup>. Whence, instead of wealth, they have misery.

R. 209. 'And miserable and poor' (Rev. iii. 17) = that they are without truths and goods. By 'the miserable and poor,' in the spiritual sense of the Word, are meant those who are without the Knowledges of truth and good; for these are spiritually miserable and poor. Ill.

—<sup>e</sup>. By 'the miserable,' and 'the poor,' are chiefly meant those who are not in the Knowledges of truth and good, and yet long for them . . .

D. 1285. On those who suppose that true Christians must by all means suffer miseries. Ex. 1286. 1325.

1327<sup>a</sup>. By the miserable and the poor are meant those who are spiritually miserable and poor . . . and thus also those who suffer persecutions from those things which are false and evil, and who endure them, as in temptations; thus who fight against the crew of devils.

3790. A certain miserable wheel driven by water.

6043<sup>2</sup>. They are in a state almost miserable.

6044<sup>e</sup>. He who is in the falsities of evil and the evils of falsity (there) dwells miserably, is clothed miserably, and is fed miserably; and will live with such in Hell who had been wicked; thus continually in misery.

D. Min. 4584. 'The miserable,' in general, are all the poor, and also the sojourners and the bound. While 'the poor' regard truths; 'the miserable' regard goods.

E. 238. 'And miserable and poor' = that neither do they know that they have not the Knowledges of truth, nor the Knowledges of good . . .

— Spiritual misery and poverty is nothing else than a defect of the Knowledges of truth and good; for a Spirit is then miserable and poor.

—<sup>2</sup>. By 'the miserable,' in the Word, are meant those who are not in truths because not in the Knowledges of them. Ill. —<sup>6</sup>.

365<sup>15</sup>. By 'the miserable' (Ps. xxxvii. 11) are here meant those who are in temptations in the world.

388<sup>16</sup>. By 'the miserable' (Ps. lxxiv. 19) are meant those who are being infested by falsities, and are thence in anxiety, and are awaiting deliverance.

650<sup>63</sup>. By 'the life of the miserable' (id.) is signified the spiritual life oppressed by evils and falsities.

817<sup>9</sup>. 'In her shall the miserable of the people hope' (Is. xiv. 32) = that with those who are not wise from themselves, and who overcome in temptations against these falsities, there shall be intelligence and salvation.

J. (Post.) 23. They are reduced into miseries.

Misfortune. Infortunium, Infortunitas.

Unfortunate. Infortunatus.

See under DISEASE.

A. 8. This state rarely comes forth without misfortune, etc., which cause that the things of the body and the world become quiescent . . .

268<sup>2</sup>. When the External as it were dies; as it is wont to do in misfortunes, etc.

762. In place of spiritual temptations, there are now misfortunes, etc. . . which master and break his life of pleasures and of cupidities a little, and determine and elevate the thoughts to interior and pious things.

2041<sup>8</sup>. When the cupidities of these loves . . . are lulled, which takes place when they are in misfortunes, etc. . . they apperceive something of heavenly lumen, and of comfort thence . . . 3147<sup>2</sup>.

4227. By attributing misfortunes to the upright (they remove them).

4352<sup>3</sup>. See CONFIDENCE, here.

6493. Evil Spirits have found out how to produce a sphere from which are things unfortunate.

—<sup>0</sup>. When such a thing prevails as is contrary to Him, things unfortunate happen.

6494. What is unfortunate, is represented to them by a dusky cloud.

7564<sup>2</sup>. The truths and goods which are not the Lord's are as to a great part the things which a man does in a state of misfortune, sickness, etc.; and not in a free state; for these things are for the sake of self.

8392. A state of compulsion is a state of dejected mind from misfortune, etc.

P. 140. The reason no one is reformed in a state of misfortune, if at that time only he thinks about God, and implores aid, is that it is a state of compulsion; and therefore when he comes into a free state, he returns into his former state . . . It is otherwise with those who, in a free state, had before feared God.

—<sup>2</sup>. By states of misfortune are meant states of despair from dangers; as in battles, duels, shipwrecks, falls, conflagrations, threatened or unexpected loss of wealth, of office, and thence of honour, and in other like things. To think about God in these alone is not from God, but from self; for the mind is then as it were incarcerated in the body; thus is not in freedom, and thence neither in rationality, without which reformation is impossible.

D. 3678. Some are wont to flee to prayers at all evils and common misfortunes . . . There is no aid from this.

4137. In proportion as (Angels, Spirits, and men) are left to themselves, in the same proportion is what is evil and false produced; therefore in the same proportion misfortune; and, if it does not appear in the present, it does so successively and afterwards . . .

4138. On misfortunes.—It was perceived that no misfortunes . . . can happen to the man who is with the Lord. For evil Spirits were at hand when any horse threatened evil: they were suddenly cast down. They who were with me said that they can perceive from such things the quality of the Spirits who bring misfortunes with them; which was afterwards confirmed.

4562. There has often happened to me . . . slight misfortunes; and it was afterwards shown by the Angels that they happened because such Spirits were present; and also because their sphere prevailed against the sphere which is from Heaven . . . Moreover, evil Spirits, by their arts, found out a sphere; and, when they presented it, things unfortunate came forth, exactly as if they were fortuitous, or chance. Thence, also, it was perceived that all things and the least of all things are directed by the Divine Providence, even as to the least step, and the least nod; and that when such a thing prevails as is contrary to the influx from the Divine, what is unfortunate happens. But what is unfortunate is such a thing as concerns the eternal blessedness and happiness of man; but not that which concerns such things as are in the world; for these appear to man as happy, when yet they are hurtful.

5568. (These Babylonians) are present for the most part when a man is in misfortunes, etc.

De Min. 4630. On the misfortunes of the faithful.—I spoke with angelic Spirits about the misfortunes of the faithful, which it is known they suffer, and that still more than the unfaithful. The reason was stated why some of them are thus let into temptations: some, lest they should attribute what is good to themselves . . . To prevent this, they equally are let into common misfortunes, so that they perish as to life, and as to wealth and possessions, equally with others. But if they were not such as to attribute to themselves good, they would often be excepted from common misfortune. Thus there are hidden causes which act; for it is known that when misfortune is at hand, many of the faithful think about what is good, and thus that they should be spared on account of the good which they have done; and if they were then to be spared, they would glory that it was because they were good . . .

4751. Concerning fear and the derivative misfortunes. (See FEAR, here.)

4784. Concerning misfortunes and fortune; and also concerning things fortuitous: whence they are.—There were certain Spirits who excited a sphere of misfortune; namely, by exciting such Spirits as want to destroy; or, rather, they excite such a sphere among Spirits. Then misfortunes happened, which had not been foreseen by them; and, as they had used this art, they were punished. Hence it was evident whence are misfortunes, and things not foreseen, which are supposed to be contingent; namely, that they are from Spirits who are continually endeavouring to destroy man . . . Unforeseen misfortunes are nothing else than perpetual endeavours of evil Spirits; and this because unforeseen goods come forth from the Lord. This from experience: it appears incredible; but still it is so.

J.(Post.) 301. They said that they should not turn themselves to them, because they would disturb them, and misfortune-infortunitas—would result to them.

Misgab. Misgab.

A. 24687. The falsities with which they are imbued are signified by 'Misgab,' etc. (Jer. xlviii. 1).

Missionary. Missionarius.

See under EMISSARY.

A. 10812. Monkish Spirits seen who had been travelling monks, or missionaries.

Mist. See under VAPOUR.

Mist. Nebula.

Misty. Nebulosus.

A. 581. In Hell, under a misty and dense rock . . .

D. 2700. Lest they should be veiled over with such a misty sphere.

[D.] 5765c. Where they were not seen, except as a mist.

E. 937<sup>2</sup>. 'I will come to thee in the mist of a cloud' (Ex. xix. 9). It is said 'in the mist of a cloud,' because by 'a cloud' is signified the Word in the letter.

De Verbo 7<sup>7</sup>. Whereas a mist agrees with falsities.

Mist. Nimbus.

Misty. Nimbosus.

A. 1267. (The Antediluvians) under a misty rock. 1512. 1673<sup>2</sup>.

1507. One who had seemed to himself to be great and wise in comparison with others . . . was encompassed as it were with a mist; which, advancing from him, began to cover over the Spirits, causing them distress . . . Such is the sphere of authority there. D. 2681.

3340. In the Hells . . . there appears a thick dark mist, in which they live.

4050. A well seen from which came forth a bright mist. Ex.

4299<sup>2</sup>. The misty and thick dark sphere which exhales from the evils and falsities of those who are in Hell, appears like a mountain or rock, beneath which they are hidden.

4415<sup>2</sup>. They looked through my eyes into the light of the world, and perceived it as a dark mist. . . In such is man.

4423<sup>2</sup>. Those of the old Church are then in a kind of inundation . . . which appears like a foggy mist. . . The state of those who are in this foggy mist is that they cannot possibly see what the truth of faith is, and still less what its good is; for the light of Heaven . . . cannot penetrate into this mist. This is the state of a devastated Church.

4598<sup>2</sup>. Progression towards interior things . . . in the other life . . . is from a kind of mist into the light; for they who are solely in exterior things are relatively in a mist; and are also seen by the Angels in a mist. . . and, wonderful to say, they who are in a mist cannot see those who are in light that they are in light; whereas they who are in light can see those who are in a mist that they are in a mist.

4674<sup>2</sup>. They cast themselves down from the light there into some infernal mist, where they receive their former respiration, and appear to themselves . . . as Spirits not evil.

4728<sup>5</sup>. For the thick dark mists which appear around them, are 'the mountains.'

5246<sup>2</sup>. This state (of temptation), when presented to view there . . . appears like a mist exhaled from dirty places . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. But, when the state of temptation ceases, this mist is dissipated . . .

6624<sup>2</sup>. The Angels distinctly apprehended all things . . . which appeared around that thing—rem—as a mist.

8137<sup>2</sup>. Each Hell is separated from another as by mists, clouds, or waters. Evils and falsities . . . appear before the eyes of Spirits as mists and clouds . . . the falsities from the evils of those who had been of the Celestial Church as mists.

8265. Lest those who are in falsities and evils should be wholly destroyed and tortured, they are covered over by their own falsities and evils as with mists, which are of such a nature as to break the influx of the Divine, or to repel, or suffocate it; as earthly mists or clouds are wont to do the rays of the sun. Sig.

8946<sup>2</sup>. All in Hell are covered over with dense mists; for mists are falsities.

H. 209. A higher Heaven appears as something misty above their heads.

462. Like the difference of what is clear relatively to the obscurity of a mist.

583. The Heavens . . . sometimes appear to Spirits as mists. . .

585. When the Hells are opened, there is an exhalation, (sometimes) like a mist and a dense cloud.

—<sup>2</sup>. A mist and a dense cloud correspond to the derivative falsities.

C. J. 23. There was seen above them . . . as it were a mistiness, which appeared from the presence of the Lord in the angelic Heavens . . . especially from His presence in the Ultimate Heaven, lest any of them should be taken away and perish, on account of their conjunction with them.

W. 292. There is a general sphere around many in Society, (which appears) in Hell under the shape of a gross and black mist.

M. 7<sup>2</sup>. There then appeared as it were a mist ascending from the lower regions (which made them think) that they were kings and princes.

115<sup>2</sup>. The Angel . . . passing through the mist, ascended . . . and then the circle . . . let itself down, and dispelled the mist which had induced darkness on the earth.

268. They were to be approached from the east, lest we should enter into the mist of their phantasy . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. Lo, a house . . . standing in a mist, which continually flowed forth like smoke through the chinks of three of the walls.

T. 22<sup>2</sup>. Like the difference between those who stand in clear light . . . and those who stand in a dense mist. . .

119<sup>2</sup>. If one from a mountain sees a dense mist rising up . . .

D. 222. By the reflections of the brightnesses of all objects.

1883. On the penalty of some who are immersed as it were in deep mists.

2684. This is the sphere which is . . . like a mist. . .

3385. A Spirit who ascended like an invisible mist.

3498. There came a great crowd . . . like a mist.

4679<sup>2</sup>. The falsities at first appeared like a gross mist; afterwards, like waters.

D. Min. 4786<sup>2</sup>. For there is a misty rock which goes over them . . .

J. (Post.) 240. The lower things appear as it were misty.

Mistaken. See under DECEIVE—fallere.

Mistress. Domina.

A. 1911. 'Her mistress was vile in her eyes' (Gen. xvi.4) = that this Rational held cheap truth itself adjoined to good. 'Mistress,' or Sarai, = truth adjoined to good.

—<sup>6</sup>. Mistress; that is, intellectual truth.

1936. 'Return to thy mistress' (ver.9) . . . 'Mistress' = the affection of interior truth.

2015<sup>5</sup>. 'Mistresses' (Is.xlix.23)=goods, from which they will be suckled. (=wisdom. 3183<sup>e</sup>.) (=the insinuation of good, which is of wisdom. 6740<sup>2</sup>.)

M. 283<sup>e</sup>. That the master and mistress should agree . . .

291<sup>3</sup>. A ruling wife . . .

Mistress. Maitresse. M.459. D.6054.

Mitigate. Mitigare. M.487. 530. Ad.3/5709.

Mitre. Cidaris.

A. 9818<sup>21</sup>. 'A mitre of beauty—decoris' (Is.xxviii.5) = the intelligence which is of truth. (=Divine intelligence. 9857<sup>2</sup>.) 9930<sup>6</sup>. (=intelligence. R.189<sup>2</sup>.)

9827. 'And a mitre' (Ex.xxviii.4)=intelligence and wisdom . . . because it is a covering for the head; and by the head are signified the interior things of man, which are of intelligence and wisdom.

— Like the mitre, the turban—tiara, the hat.

—<sup>2</sup>. But the mitre which belonged to Aaron = wisdom also, because it was of fine linen, and the crown of holiness was placed on it, which was a plate of pure gold, on which was engraved 'Holiness to Jehovah' . . . whereas the mitre of linen, and the rest of the garments of linen, which also belonged to Aaron, signified the intelligence which is of truth, and not the wisdom which is of good. Concerning . . . this mitre, see Lev.xvi.4; Ezek.xliv.18. For 'linen'=truth in the Natural of man; thus 'a mitre of linen'=natural intelligence (or, the intelligence of the Natural).

9934. 'It shall be upon the mitre' (ver.37)=from infinite wisdom; (for) 'a mitre'=intelligence; and, when said of the Lord, who was represented by Aaron, 'a mitre'=Divine or infinite wisdom. 9943.

9943. 'Thou shalt make the mitre of fine linen' (ver. 39)=wisdom there.

10008. 'Thou shalt place the mitre upon his head' (Ex.xxix.6)=the Divine wisdom.

R. 675<sup>7</sup>. One of the bishops . . . snatched the mitre from his own head, and threw it upon the table, saying, I will not resume it until I have taken vengeance upon the enemies of the faith of our Church . . . Upon the mitre was a plate, on which was engraved Faith Alone. Then, suddenly, there appeared a monster rising out of the earth . . . like 'the beast' . . . which took the mitre, and stretched it out beneath, and put it upon its seven heads; and then the earth yawned beneath its feet, and it subsided into Hell.

M. 20<sup>2</sup>. The bridegroom wore a mitre.

103<sup>3</sup>. (The prize was) a mitre set round with precious stones.

114. A voice was heard, The African shall have the mitre.

264. I saw rising up another devil, on whose head was a mitre, wound round in spires as if of an adder, the head of which stood up from the vertex.

266. The other Angel wore . . . a mitre studded on the right side with some firestones.

T. 595<sup>3</sup>. A primate crowned . . . with a mitre of two steps (or degrees).

E. 204<sup>9</sup>. 'A mitre'=the wisdom which is of Divine truth.

272<sup>4</sup>. 'A mitre of beauty'=the intelligence which is of truth from that good.

—<sup>5</sup>. 'Thou shalt be a crown of beauty in the hand of Jehovah, and a mitre of a kingdom in the hand of thy God' (Is.lxii.3); 'a crown of beauty'=the wisdom which is of good; and 'a mitre of a kingdom'=the intelligence which is of truth.

427<sup>7</sup>. 'The mitre' (of Aaron) represented intelligence and wisdom, and its front part love, from which are intelligence and wisdom . . . These things were upon the front of the mitre . . . because a mitre=the like as the head; namely, Divine wisdom; and the front (or forehead) the Divine good of love.

1189<sup>2</sup>. 'As a bridegroom setteth on a mitre' (Is.lxi. 10). 'To set on a mitre'=to put on wisdom.

Coro. 51<sup>3</sup>. Like one who regards a primate of the Church solely from his mitre and the jewels in it; or any other dignitary or leader from his fillet and head-band—mitra.

Mitre. Mitra.

Coro. 51<sup>3</sup>. See MITRE—cidaris, here.

Mix. Miscere.

Mixture. Mixtio.

See under PROFANE.

A. 3993. 'Speckled'=mixed with evil; 'spotted'=mixed with falsity.

—<sup>8</sup>. With man there is no . . . good with which evil is not mixed; nor . . . truth with which falsity is not mixed . . .

— There are evils with man with which goods cannot be mixed, and there are evils with which they can; in like manner falsities. Unless this were the case, no man could ever be regenerated. (Continued under EVIL.)

3995. That afterwards all the good of truth shall be his in which falsity and evil are mixed. Sig. and Ex. 4000. 4005. 4006.

4005<sup>3</sup>. There are goods mixed with evils, and truths mixed with falsities . . . and the mixtures and temperings of these are so various and manifold as to exceed myriads of myriads . . .

4551. Before man comes to good . . . he has very many falsities mixed with truths . . .

6156<sup>2</sup>. When a man comes into a state of evil, (remains) are withdrawn and hidden away . . . lest they should be mixed with evils, and thus perish.

[A.] 6724. 'She bituminated it with bitumen and pitch'=good mixed with evils and falsities. Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. It is to be known, further, that good can be mixed with evils and falsities, but still not therefore be conjoined; for the one shuns the other . . .

7554<sup>e</sup>. For all stench is from evils mixed with goods, and from falsities mixed with truths.

7975. 'Much mixed crowd' (Ex.xii.38)=goods [and truths] which are not genuine. Ex.

9470<sup>e</sup>. As they who are in celestial truth cannot be in spiritual truth . . . it was ordered that 'no garment should be put on mixed from wool and linen' (Deut. xxii.11).

9994<sup>2</sup>. Therefore the cakes, as they=the Celestial of the second order, are said to be 'mixed with oil;' and the wafers, as they=the Celestial of the third order, are said to be 'anointed with oil' (Ex.xxix.2).

R. 635. By 'to mix wine,' and 'what is mixed,' is signified the falsification (and profanation) of truth also in Ps.lxxv.9. E.960<sup>e</sup>.

D. 1304. Let them beware lest they mix holy things with profane ones, and thus profane holy things.

3334. The general mixed sphere of all . . . which mixture the Angels at once recognize . . .

4450. How (Sirens) mix holy things with profane ones . . . 4462.

E. 376<sup>37</sup>. 'Men of strength to mingle strong drink' (Is.v.22). Ex. 618<sup>3</sup>.

503. 'Hail and fire mingled with blood' (Rev.viii.7) =destroying infernal evil and falsity commingled with the truths and goods of the Word . . . thus Divine truth falsified.

520. 'Wormwood'=truth mixed with the falsity of evil.

—<sup>2</sup>. Truth is mixed with the falsity of evil, when evils of life . . . are confirmed by the sense of the letter of the Word; in like manner falsities of religion by those who are in the love of self, and thence in the conceit of Own intelligence. Ex.

887. 'To be mixed with merum' (Rev.xiv.10)=to be conjoined with falsified truths. Ex.

1116. 'In the cup in which she hath mixed, mix to her double' (Rev.xviii.6)=much retribution in proportion as they have profaned truth. . . 'To mix'=to profane; for he who commingles falsity with truth, or truth with falsity, profanes it. Ill.

Mix together, Commingle. Commiscere.

Commingling, A. Commixtio.

See under PROFANE.

A. 301. At last they do not care whether they mix together profane with holy things . . . The things which have been mixed together by profanations adhere mixed together . . .

408. The reason why the new light or morning does not come until the Church has been devastated, is that the things of faith and charity have been mixed together with things profane; and, so long as they are mixed together, nothing of light or of charity can ever be insinuated; for the tares destroy all the good seed.

593<sup>e</sup>. They who have the doctrine of faith . . . are able to mix together truths with falsities . . .

1001. Being the Lord's, it is never to be mixed together with the things of man's will. Sig.

1003. 'Not to eat the flesh in its soul, the blood'=not to mix together profane with holy things. Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. The commingling of what is holy and of what is profane.

2256<sup>2</sup>. But goods are never so commingled with evils, or evils with goods, that they cannot be separated; for, if they were commingled, the man would perish to eternity . . . 2269<sup>e</sup>. 2284<sup>2</sup>.

2426. The Lord constantly provides that evil be not commingled with good . . .

4424. Goods and truths are profaned when commingled with falsities and evils.

5135<sup>4</sup>. He then commingles evils with goods, and falsities with truths, so that they cannot be separated. 6959<sup>2</sup>.

5897<sup>8</sup>. This is the commingling of truth and falsity . . .

8004. That this good must not be commingled with the good of another. Sig. and Ex.

9020. When the truth of faith which has once been acknowledged is afterwards applied to evil, it is commingled with the falsity from evil; whence is profanation.

9298. That the worship of the Lord from the truths of the Church must not be commingled with falsities from evil. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. Truths with the evil are not commingled with the falsities from evil with them so long as they are only in the memory . . . But if truths are falsified to favour evil . . . then they are commingled; whence is the profanation of truth.

9673. A guard lest spiritual good and celestial good be commingled; thus the Middle and the Inmost Heaven. Sig. and Ex.

10465. 'He sprinkled it upon the faces of the waters'=a commingling with truths. . . It is signified that falsity from infernal delight had been commingled with the truths which are from Heaven.

P. 24<sup>e</sup>. (Therefore) the Lord exquisitely separates good and evil, lest they should be commingled, with man . . .

226. He then commingles holy with profane things; which, when they have been commingled, cannot be separated otherwise than by the destruction of the whole.

227<sup>2</sup>. The Lord separates evil and good so that the one is interior and the other exterior, and thus provides against their being commingled.

—<sup>4</sup>. That he then commingles good and evil, inasmuch that they cannot be separated. Ex.

—<sup>5</sup>. This freedom with its rationality has been destroyed with those who have commingled good and evil in themselves . . .

—<sup>6</sup>. Such is the lot with those who in this way commingle holy with profane things.

228<sup>2</sup>. But when a man comes into the use of his rationality and freedom . . . if he then acknowledges truths and lives according to them, and afterwards denies them, he commingles holy with profane things . . . Whereas if a man is in evil from the time when he has become of his own rationality and freedom . . . and afterwards acknowledges the truths of faith and lives according to them, provided he then remains in them to the end of life, he does not commingle them . . .

231<sup>7</sup>. This is the worst kind of profanation ; for the reason that they commingle holy with profane things so that they cannot be separated . . .

233<sup>2</sup>. With a hypocrite . . . the evil is within and the good is without ; and so the two are . . . not commingled.

—<sup>7</sup>. Many truths can be received by the understanding, and be stored up in the memory, and yet not be commingled with the evil of the will . . .

—<sup>10</sup>. That if (the will were to receive truths) sooner and more, the will would adulterate good, and the understanding would falsify truth, by commingling them with evils and the derivative falsities. Ex.

R. 204. (The 'lukewarm') have commingled truths with falsities, and goods with evils . . .

M. 146. With them, the chaste is above, and the non-chaste beneath, and there is as it were a door on hinges interposed by the Lord . . . lest they mix themselves together.

483<sup>2</sup>. What is more detestable than for a man to commingle his soul with the soul of a husband in his wife ?

T. 430. These things are not to be mixed up (that is, confounded).

D. 1006. They commingle holy with profane things.

1978. Thus a commingling of ideas . . . The penalty. 2059 (Immixtae). 2067. 2073.

E. 235<sup>4</sup>. 'To commingle a spirit of perversities in the midst of her' (Is.xix.14)=to pervert and falsify them.

—<sup>7</sup>. Truths commingled with falsities are cast out. Sig.

519<sup>8</sup>. When the interiors are evils and falsities, and the exteriors goods and truths, there is a commingling of both . . .

—<sup>10</sup>. Good and evil, and the truth of good and the falsity of evil, are commingled when evil and falsity are in the spirit of man, but good and truth in his deeds and speech ; for what is interior acts into what is exterior . . .

—<sup>e</sup>. But the commingling of good and evil, and of truth and falsity, is not the profanation of good and truth. Ex.

652<sup>7</sup>. Lamentation on account of the defect and commingling of truth with falsity. Sig.

—<sup>7</sup>. That these delights will cease, is signified by 'all joy is mixed together' (Is.xxiv.11).

746<sup>8</sup>. This disputation (about good and evil, and truth and falsity) is signified by 'I will commingle Egypt with Egypt . . .' (Is.xix.2).

Mizpah. Mizpah.

A. 4198. '(He called it) Mizpah, because he said,

Jehovah look between me and thee' (Gen.xxxi.29)=the presence of the Divine Natural of the Lord . . .

—<sup>e</sup>. The quality of the presence is signified by 'Mizpah;' here, the quality with those who are in the goods of works, or with the gentiles . . . for the name 'Mizpah,' in the Original Language, is said from 'to look.'

Mizraim. Mizraim.

A. 1160. 'The sons of Ham : . . Mizraim' etc. (Gen.x.6)= . . . so many nations, by which, in the internal sense, are signified the Knowledges, knowledges, and worships which are of faith separated from charity. 1163.

1163. By 'Mizraim,' or Egypt, are signified knowledges, or various scientifics, by means of which they want to explore the secrets of faith, and by means of which they confirm the principles of falsity thence derived. 1165.

1165. 'Mizraim' or Egypt, also=simply knowledges ; thus those who are useful. 1193. 1195.

1193. 'Mizraim begat Ludim, and Anamim, and Lehabim, and Naphtuhim. And Pathrsim and Casluhim, from whom came forth Philistim and Caphtorim' (ver.13)=so many nations, by which are signified so many kinds of rituals. Ex.1194.

Moab. Moabus.

Moabite. Moabita.

Moabitish. Moabiticus.

A. 576<sup>e</sup>. See AMMON, here. 2313<sup>e</sup>.

1360<sup>e</sup>. So were the Moabites and Ammonites idolaters, who were descendants of Lot.

1364. Lot is here mentioned as the father of the idolatrous worships signified by Moab and Ammon.

2324<sup>2</sup>. It is the end of this External Church which is signified by Moab and the Son of Ammon.

2466. The religiosity signified by 'Moab and the son of Ammon' . . . is adulterated good and falsified truth. Ex.

2467. 'She called his name Moab' (Gen.xix.37)=the quality of the religiosity of that Church as to good. 'He is the father of Moab even to this day'=that thence are such.

2468. What the religiosity is, and what the nature of it, which is signified by 'Moab and the sons of Ammon,' is evident from their origin . . . and also from many places in the Word, both historical and prophetic . . . They are, in general, those who are in external worship, which appears in some respects holy ; but not in internal worship ; and who seize upon as goods and truths the things which are of external worship, but reject and despise the things of internal worship. Such a worship, and such a religiosity, is characteristic of those who are in natural good, but who despise others in comparison with themselves. (Ex. by comparisons.) For there is a general good with them which appears not unbeautiful, but the particulars which enter are filthy. In the beginning, indeed, not so ; but successively ; for they suffer themselves to be easily imbued with all things whatever which are called goods, and derivatively with all falsities whatever, which, because they confirm them, they suppose to be truths; and this because they despise the interior things of worship; and they despise these because they are in the love of self. These people come forth and are derived from those who are in external worship only, and who are represented in this chapter by Lot; and this when the good of truth has been desolated. They are described in the Word such as they are in the beginning, when their good has not as yet been so much defiled; then, when it is being defiled; and also, when, afterwards, it has been completely defiled; and that they reject the interior things of worship and of doctrine. (III. seriatim.)

[A.2468]<sup>10</sup>. 'Moab My wash pot' (Ps.lx.cviii.)=good defiled with falsities.

—<sup>16</sup>. The god of Moab was Chemosh.

—<sup>17</sup>. These things, then, are 'Moab' and 'Ammon;' but the kinds of their falsity, by which they adulterate goods, and extinguish truths, are many; and are enumerated by Jeremiah, but by mere names. III.

3242<sup>3</sup>. 'Moab' in a good sense,=those who are in natural good, and who suffer themselves to be easily seduced; but, in the opposite, those who adulterate goods. 548o.

3322<sup>5</sup>. See EDOM, here.

4779<sup>4</sup>. 'Moab'=those who adulterate goods. . .

6000<sup>8</sup>. 'Moab'=natural good; and, in the opposite sense, good adulterated; here, it treats of its vastation.

8311<sup>2</sup>. These things are described by . . . 'the powerful ones of Moab' . . .

8315. 'The powerful ones of Moab' (Ex.xv.15)=those who are in the life of falsity from that love of self. . . 'Moab' represents those who are in natural good, and who suffer themselves to be easily seduced; thus who are in the derivative life of falsity; for those who are in natural good, and not in good from the truth of faith, thus not in spiritual good, suffer themselves to be led away to believe all falsities whatever; thus to live according to them. They are led away from truths to falsities especially by means of those things which favour their loves. These are they who are meant by 'Moab.'

8908<sup>4</sup>. 'Moab' (Is.xvi.6)=those who are in the evil of the love of self, and who therefore falsify truths.

9494<sup>3</sup>. 'Moab,' whose power would be destroyed (Num. xxiv.17)=those who adulterate the goods of the Church.

10184<sup>2</sup>. The vastation of all goods with those who are meant by 'Moab,' who are those who are in natural good, and who suffer themselves to be easily seduced. Sig.

10652<sup>3</sup>. This profanation is signified by the scortation of the people with the daughters of Moab (Num.xxv.). By 'Moab' are signified those who adulterate goods; and by his daughters, the affections of that evil; and by whoredom with them, profanation.

S. 18<sup>3</sup>. By 'Moab' (in the Word) is signified the adulteration of good.

P. 251<sup>4</sup>. It is not known what kingdoms in the Christian world relate to the Moabites and Ammonites . . . but still there are those which relate to them.

R. 114<sup>6</sup>. By Moab, and thence by his king and his daughters, are signified those who defile and adulterate worship.

E. 235<sup>5</sup>. 'Moab'=those who adulterate the goods of the Church; and therefore 'vomiting' is predicated of them. 315<sup>10</sup>.

316<sup>17</sup>. By 'Moab' are signified those who are in spurious goods, and thence in falsified truths, which, in themselves, are falsities. The destruction of these falsities is signified by 'the horn of Moab is cut off;' and the destruction of those evils by 'his arm is broken' (Jer.xlviii.25).

401<sup>33</sup>. As by 'Moab,' in the Word, are signified those who are in a life of falsity from the love of self; and, by their worship, the worship of self, therefore when the Israelitish people acceded to the worship of the Moabitish people, it was commanded that the heads of the people should be hung before the sun (Num.xxv.).

411<sup>23</sup>. These things are said of Moab, by whom is signified the adulteration of good and truth, and, derivatively, those who pervert the good and truth of the Word.

— . Whence the perpetual adulterations which are signified by 'Moab.' Ex.

417<sup>9</sup>. By 'Moab' are signified those who are in the ultimates of the Word, of the Church, and of worship; and, in the opposite sense, those who adulterate these things by this: that they turn them to themselves, and regard the honour of self in each thing of them; and therefore 'the corners of Moab' (Num.xxiv.17)=the adulterations of the Word, and, derivatively, of the Church and of worship, such as are with those who are such. The like things are signified by 'the corner of Moab' in Jer.xlviii.45.

532<sup>2</sup>. By 'Moab' are meant those who are in falsities from evil; by 'his glory,' and by 'his great multitude' (Is.xvi.14) are meant those falsities. . .

637<sup>16</sup>. By 'Moab' are signified those who are in natural good, and who adulterate the goods of the Church. That, with them, the understanding of truth is null, and also the knowledge of truth, is signified by, 'in all the heads of Moab baldness, and every beard shaved. . . ' (Jer.xlviii.37,38).

653<sup>6</sup>. By 'Moab' is meant the natural man, who, from the love of self, adulterates the goods of the Church.

655<sup>7</sup>. As by 'Moab' are meant those who adulterate the goods of the Church. . .

727<sup>4</sup>. 'The waster of Moab' (Jer.xlviii.18)=the adulteration of (the external of the Church and of the Word, which is the sense of its letter). — .

811<sup>17</sup>. By 'Moab' are meant those who are in natural delight, and who therefore adulterate the goods of the Word.

— . 'I will bring back the captivity of Moab in the extremity of days' (ver.47)=that, with those who are meant by 'Moab,' truths will be opened, and they will be instructed in them (at) the Advent of the Lord.

Mobility. Mobilitas.

A. 422<sup>2</sup>. They cast themselves to Hell, where they have respiration and mobility. Hence it is that life is represented in the Word by mobility. D.4089<sup>e</sup>.

Mock. Illudere.

Illusory. Illusorius.

See ILLUSION.

A. 2654. 'Ishmael mocking' (Gen.xxi.9)=not agreeing with and favouring the Divine Rational. 'To mock'=that which is of affection against that which does not agree with and favour itself.

3301<sup>e</sup>. See ELISHA, here.

5014. 'To mock us' (Gen.xxxix.14)=that it would rise up against.

5028<sup>e</sup>. Ultimate truth serves as a witness to the natural man against the spiritual, that he had as it were mocked.

5223<sup>a</sup>. Illusory arts of the magi.

7467. 'Let Pharaoh not add to mock' (Ex.viii.29)=that he should not deceive by a lie.

E. 655<sup>10</sup>. (The Lord's being mocked=the blaspheming of truth.)

8117. That they will deride and blaspheme the truths and goods of the Word, is signified by 'it shall mock kings, and dominators shall be laughter to it' (Hab.i.10).

Mock at. Irridere.

Mocking, A. Irrisio.

A. 961. (On those who have made jokes from the Word.) 1878. D.1304.

1080. That he derided. Sig. For with those who are in no charity, there is a continual contempt, or continual derision, of others.

1091. That external worship separated from internal is such that it derides. Sig.

2403. A mocking. Sig.

2654<sup>a</sup>. It would mock at or ridicule this.

4269. Where evils are, there they are mocked at.

5128<sup>a</sup>. They also mock at truths.

5567<sup>e</sup>. He did not appear with a face, but only as to the teeth, because he had been able to mock at others...

7290<sup>e</sup>. He would laugh at all who attributed these things to the Divine.

7332<sup>e</sup>. Without this use, the evil utterly ridicule truths.

9232<sup>e</sup>. The simpler Spirits... laughed at them... The reason of their derision was soon disclosed...

H. 575. Conjoined with contempt for others, enmity, ridicule...

Mock at. Subsannare.

Mocker. Subsannator.

Mockery. Subsannatio.

A. 1877<sup>a</sup>. They mock at the things which are of the internal sense of the Word. 9407<sup>a</sup>.

2126<sup>e</sup>. They mocked at this reply.

5022<sup>e</sup>. If what is internal or spiritual is mentioned, they ridicule it...

5719. They who despise and ridicule the Word in the letter...

6907<sup>a</sup>. Whenever they hear anyone professing the truths of the Church... they mock in themselves...

7332<sup>e</sup>. If the truths of doctrine did not serve them as means for gain, they would mock at them.

7665. A mockery. Sig.

9348<sup>a</sup>. From the love of self spring... the derision and vituperation of others... In the other life... they deride the Word.

H. 506<sup>e</sup>. In the other life... from their evil cupidities they burst out... into mockeries and blasphemies.

575. The gnashing of teeth is the continual disputing of falsities... conjoined with... mockery, etc.

P. 208<sup>e</sup>. All are... deriders of the Divine Providence.

D. 5138. Concerning mockers, hypocrites.

E. 654<sup>55</sup>. 'This is their derision in the land of Egypt' (Hos.vii.16)=the vituperation of doctrine from the natural man, and the contempt of the latter.

7781<sup>a</sup>. See BLASPHEME, here.

Mode. See METHOD.

Moderate. Moderare.

Moderate. Moderatus.

Director. Moderator.

Control. Moderamen.

A. 967. Angels who moderate the punishment. H.391. 543. D.1494. 3299.

1992<sup>a</sup>. Angels were present... who moderated the chiding.

5479. The Lord... moderates the influx of good according to the state... It is this moderation which is (here signified).

7111. 'The directors' (Ex.v.6)=those who proximately receive; for the directors were from the sons of Israel, and the exactors from the Egyptians...

—<sup>3</sup>. 'Directors.' Ill.

—<sup>e</sup>. That directors were governors of the people distinct from their princes, elders, and judges. Ill.

7136. 'The directors of the sons of Israel were smitten' (ver.14)=that those who proximately received and communicated the infestations were injured by the injected falsities. 7137. 7141. 7155.

7250<sup>e</sup>. The Lord moderates...

8566. That they should be more moderate in their complaints. Sig.

C. J. 40<sup>e</sup>. Directors are set over the English there.

42. Here the directors dwell. J.(Post.)268.

54<sup>e</sup>. I heard from a director of that society. D.6041<sup>e</sup>.

P. 77. His freedom and rationality... regulate... —<sup>2</sup>.

3287. The presidents, the directors, the leaders in the Church...

R. 54. The Lord moderates and tempers His Divine...

344. The Lord providing and moderating. Sig. and Ex.

611. The director (of a heavenly Society).

752. Sixtus V. told me he was the Governor-præfectus—as chief Director of a Society of Catholics . . .

M. 14. The grandees and directors (of a heavenly Society). 207<sup>6</sup>.

166. That to a wife is given . . . the greatest prudence in moderating her husband's affections. 208<sup>2</sup>. —<sup>3</sup>.

208<sup>3</sup>. The freedom of a husband, which regards his inclinations and affections, the Lord Himself regulates from within, and through his wife from without . . .

T. 412<sup>3</sup>. The directors of this age can perform uses to society . . . and still not love the neighbour . . .

—<sup>4</sup>. They who have performed uses from love towards the neighbour are promoted to be directors of a heavenly Society, and are in splendour and honour . . .

443. So to regulate the life . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. The understanding regulating . . .

574. The understanding can . . . moderate concupiscences . . .

641<sup>3</sup>. If anything . . . not thus moderated were to touch them . . .

691<sup>2</sup>. Therefore there are perpetual temperatures which modify and moderate the ardour of that Love . . .

D. 1741. Such phantasies are moderated . . .

3525. There are two angelic Spirits with every man . . . whose office it is to regulate and rule the evil Spirits who come to him.

5050. Nor are there wanting directors of the Hells . . .

6088<sup>2</sup>. The directors are fed splendidly . . .

D. Min. 4793<sup>6</sup>. By a control of the order there . . .

E. 412<sup>16</sup>. The Divine love tempered and moderated proceeds to Angels . . .

734<sup>12</sup>. 'The directors shall speak unto the people' (Deut.xx.8).

735<sup>2</sup>. In the Societies of Angels there are directors set over the rest; but they are not Archangels under whose arbitrary power they stand: such a government has no existence in the Heavens; for no one there in his heart acknowledges anyone above himself, except the Lord. Sig.

J. (Post.) 12. The best, who are directors and magistrates, dwell in the middle of the city.

19. Without leave from some director . . .

104. Louis XIV. was made director by the Lord over the best Society of the French nation . . .

328. There are in London ten directors with like authority.

D. Love v<sup>2</sup>. Which flows from the control of the cerebellum.

xiii<sup>2</sup>. The Church, etc. are loved by the governor and directors, if . . .

Moderately. Mediocriter. W.239<sup>3</sup>.

Modern. See under TO-DAY.

Modern. Neotericus. M.315<sup>8</sup>. 5M.8.

Modest. Modestus.

Modesty. Modestia.

Modestly. Modeste.

A. 1125. Modest speech of the Church 'Enos.'

2590. The Gentiles behave themselves modestly . . . 2602.

4047<sup>6</sup>. (The Spirits of the pia mater) were modest and pacific. D.1727. 1728.

5180<sup>2</sup>. Some of the (Spirits of the chyle) are modest; some petulant.

5378. (The Spirits of the peritoneum) answered them modestly. D.991.

8242<sup>6</sup>. There shone forth from (the faces of the inhabitants of Jupiter) what was sincere and modest.

8622<sup>6</sup>. In other respects they have appeared modest. . .

8948. (The Spirits of Saturn) are modest.

9696. In other respects (the Spirits of the First Earth) were modest . . .

M. 164. Modesty (one of the virtues which pertain to the moral wisdom of the men-virorum).

218. The intelligence of women is modest . . .

292<sup>6</sup>. I added, From her connate modesty.

D. 220<sup>2</sup>. They are very modest.

1797. Their dress modest . . .

2643. These infernals had appeared modest . . . 3007.

2787<sup>2</sup>. Otherwise he is modest . . .

2906. In the sight of men he had appeared modest. . .

4377. Their modest rejections of the evil endeavours . . . were instantaneous, with such modesty that they never hurt those who were making them.

4748. Charles XII. an example of those who are exteriorly civil and modest.

D. Min. 4660. Those who are modest, but study themselves only.

Modest. Pudicus.

Modesty. Pudicitia.

M. 297<sup>2</sup>. They would prostitute their modesty.

431. The modest and chaste delights of conjugal love.

Modest. Verecundus. A.1640<sup>6</sup>.

Modify. Modificare.

Modification. Modificatio.

A. 1042. The modification of the rays of light in the rain drops.

—<sup>1</sup>. The modification of spiritual light . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. The rays of light which fall upon and as it were modify them are from the Lord.

1043. There is a spiritual modification which (must) be perceived by man by means of colours.

1623<sup>2</sup>. Every colour consists of innumerable rays, so that myriads constitute one general Perceptible, which is as it were a modification of the origins of light from the celestial and spiritual things which produce it.

3001<sup>e</sup>. But, in the Spiritual World, all modifications which come forth from the influx of life are spiritual. Hence come such differences of intelligence and wisdom.

3337<sup>2</sup>. The imagination of man is . . . the forms and shapes of such things as he has taken up with the sight of the body, wonderfully varied, and, so to speak, modified. But his interior imagination, or thought, is . . . the forms and shapes of such things as he has drawn in with the sight of his mind, still more wonderfully varied, and, so to speak, modified.

3343. Spiritual things, which are of truth, are made by modifications of heavenly light . . .

3628<sup>2</sup>. The ear, with its forms constructed therein to the modifications of (the aerial atmosphere).

—<sup>3</sup>. Unless there were interior modifications, which are of life (in the ear), to which correspond the exterior modifications which are of the air, hearing would not come forth.

4224. Without a substance . . . there is not any modification . . .

4407. The eye is modified by a more subtle atmosphere than the ear.

4414<sup>e</sup>. Intelligence and wisdom are . . . an eminent modification of heavenly light.

4523. The eye has been formed correspondently to the modifications (of the ether and of light).

4530. Colours, there, in their essence, are variations, or, so to speak, modifications of intelligence and wisdom. 4677.

4922. The variegations or modifications of that light are the derivative variegations, and, so to speak, modifications of wisdom and intelligence . . .

7408<sup>2</sup>. For modifications receive their form from the forms which are substances in which they are, and from which they flow. (See FORM, here.)

8603<sup>4</sup>. The forms or substances recipient of life are subjects, and the things which result from their changes and modifications are forces, which are to be called lives . . .

9466. The colours are modifications of heavenly light, thus of intelligence and wisdom.

9467<sup>2</sup>. For all the colours which appear in Heaven are modifications of heavenly light and flame upon these two planes . . . Therefore the modifications of this light and flame are variegations of truth and good . . .

9814. The modification of this light according to the subjects which receive it, which are Angels, presents various phenomena to view; as clouds . . .

H. 239<sup>3</sup>. The ideas of thought of the Angels . . . are also modifications of the light of Heaven; and their affections . . . are variations of the heat of Heaven.

244. There is a speech by the face which ceases in what is sonorous modified by ideas.

M. 151a<sup>4</sup>. (The notion that) the understanding is only a modification of the light from the sun . . .

T. 39<sup>o</sup>. The love of the will modifies (the life of man).

443<sup>2</sup>. In the third period of man's life the will acts into the understanding, and the understanding modifies it.

Ad. 925<sup>o</sup>. For thought is only a modification . . .

D. 4063. The eye has been formed entirely according to all the modifications of the ether; and the ear according to all the modifications of the air.

E. 595<sup>5</sup>. The rainbows seen by the Angels . . . all come forth from the light of Heaven and its modification in the spiritual natural sphere there . . .

726<sup>3</sup>. These ethers and airs . . . when modified molecularly—singillatim—give light. —<sup>4</sup>. (See ATMOSPHERE, at these refs.)

944<sup>2</sup>. The light of the sun is the modification or interior action (of its fire) in substances which are outside the sun . . . called the atmospheres.

— The light proceeding (from the Lord as a Sun), which is Divine truth, is the modification or interior action in substances which are outside Him. These substances, in which this modification is effected, are the spiritual atmospheres . . .

1131<sup>4</sup>. The light of the sun . . . affects material substances by modifying them, and the heat by changing their states.

1206<sup>4</sup>. Light modifies substances, and heat actuates them . . . The presence of the sun in the substances, which appears as light, causes the activity of the forces or substances of each individual according to its form in which it is from creation. This is modification.

J.(Post.) 267<sup>o</sup>. Newton said, Now I know that colours are modifications of the light in the objects . . .

D. Love xix. The internal sensories are modified and actuated by spiritual light and heat.

Modulate. Modulari.

Modulation. Modulatio.

M. 55. The Angels perceive the subject—rem—of the affection from the symmetry and flowing forth of the modulation.

E. 448<sup>12</sup>. To simulate good affections in externals is signified by 'to modulate upon the psaltery . . .' (Amos vi. 5).

Mogul. See MONGOL.

Mohammed. Mahumed.

Mohammedan. Mahumedanus.

Mohammedanism. Mahumedanismus.

H. 514<sup>2</sup>. Behind (the places of instruction for adults) are those who have been addicted to the Mohammedan religion, and who in the world have led a moral life, and have acknowledged one Divine, and the Lord as the Very Prophet; who, when they recede from Mohammed, because he cannot at all help them, accede to the Lord, and worship Him, and acknowledge His Divine, and are then instructed in the Christian religion.

515<sup>e</sup>. The Mohammedans are instructed by Angels who had previously been in the same religion, and have been converted to the Christian one.

516. All the instruction there is given from doctrine which is from the Word . . . Christians are instructed from the Heavenly Doctrine . . . The rest, as the Mohammedans, and the gentiles, from doctrines adapted to their apprehension, which differ from the Heavenly Doctrine only in this: that spiritual life is taught by means of moral life which is in agreement with the good dogmas of their religion, and from which they had drawn their life in the world.

J. 47. The Judgment was performed . . . also upon all who are called Mohammedans . . . It was performed first upon those of the Papal religion; then upon the Mohammedans . . .

48. Beyond (the Papists) were the Mohammedans, also distinguished according to their countries, who all appeared then in the west near the south.

50. The Judgment upon the Mohammedans des. (See LAST JUDGMENT, here.)

—2. Most of these (good Mohammedans, who in the world had acknowledged the Lord as the Greatest Prophet, and as the Son of God, and who had believed Him to have been sent by the Father to instruct the human race, and who at the same time had lived a spiritual moral life according to their religiosity) when instructed, receive faith in the Lord, and acknowledge Him to be one with the Father. There is also given them communication with the Christian Heaven by means of influx from the Lord; but they are not commingled with them, because religion separates. All from that religion, as soon as they come among their own in the other life, at first seek Mohammed; but he does not appear, but instead of him two others, who call themselves Mohammeds. These have obtained seats in the middle, under the Christian Heaven, to the left there. The reason these two are instead of Mohammed, is that all . . . after death are first led to all whom they had worshipped in the world . . . But when they perceive that they can render them no aid, they recede from them . . . Where Mohammed himself is, and his quality . . . shall be told in the book in which the Apocalypse is explained.

69. The First Heaven (which passed away) came forth not only from Christians; but also from Mohammedans and gentiles; all of whom had formed for themselves such Heavens in their own places. Ex.

C. J. 68. On the Mohammedans in the Spiritual World; and on Mohammed.—The Mohammedans in the Spiritual World appear behind the Papists, in the west, and make as it were a compass. The reason they appear (next behind the Christians) is that they acknowledge our Lord as the Greatest Prophet, the Son of God, the Wisest of all, who was sent into the world in order to teach men. T. 828.

69. As religion (resides in the supremes with man, and as his lower things live and shine from the supreme ones), and as Mohammed dwells in their lower minds together with their religion, therefore some Mohammed is always placed in their sight; and, in order that they may turn their faces to the east, above which is the Lord, he is placed beneath in the Christian Middle. It is not Mohammed himself who wrote the Koran, but another who discharges his office; nor is he always the same, but he is changed. Formerly, there was one from Saxony, who, having been taken by the Algerines, became a Mohammedan. As he had been a Christian also, he was (sometimes) impelled to speak before them about the Lord: that He was not the Son of Joseph, as they had believed in the world, but the Son of God Himself; by which he insinuated into them the idea of the unity with the Father of the Person and Essence of the Lord. To this Mohammed, others have afterwards succeeded, who have been impelled to say like things. Hence many of them accede to the true Christian faith concerning the Lord; and they who accede are carried to a Society nearer the east, where communication is given with Heaven, into which they are afterwards elevated. In the place where this Mohammed has his seat there appears fire as of a torch, in order that he may be known; but this fire is visible solely to the Mohammedans. T. 829.

70. Mohammed himself, who wrote the Koran, does not come into view at this day. I have been told that in the first times he was set over them; but, as he had wanted to dominate as God over all things of their religion, he was cast out of his seat, which he had below the Papists, and was sent down to the right side near the south. Once, some Societies of the Mohammedans were excited by the wicked to acknowledge Mohammed as God; and in order that the sedition might be appeased, Mohammed was brought up from the Lower (Earth), and was shown them; and he was then seen also by me. He appeared like the corporeal Spirits, who have no interior perception, with a face verging to black; and I heard him saying these words only, I am your Mohammed; and presently, as it were subsiding, he returned into his place. T. 830.

71. As regards their religion, it has been permitted to be such because it agrees with the genius of the Orientals; and it has therefore been received in so many kingdoms; and also because in it the precepts of the decalogue are made at the same time [a matter] of religion; and something from the Word was also in it; and especially because the Lord has been acknowledged as the Son of God, and the Wisest of all. By this religion, moreover, the idolatries of many nations have been dissipated. The reason an interior religion was not opened to them by means of Mohammed, was on account of polygamy, which exhales what is unclean to Heaven.

72. Many of them are receptive of the truth . . . I have spoken with them about the one God, the resurrection, and marriage. (Their sentiments on these subjects stated.)

S. 105<sup>3</sup>. Around the Papists are the Mohammedans, who acknowledge the Lord as the Greatest Prophet, and as the Son of God.

117<sup>9</sup>. The Mohammedan religiosity, which succeeded, and which destroyed the prior religiosity of many nations, was taken from the Word of both Testaments. E. 1177<sup>3</sup>.

P. 255. The Mohammedan religion (is of the Divine Providence) because it acknowledges the Lord as the Son of God, the Wisest of men, and as the Greatest Prophet who came into the world to teach men. The greatest part of them make Him greater than Mohammed. M.342. T.833.

—<sup>3</sup>. The Mohammedan religiosity was raised up, of the Lord's Divine Providence, to destroy the idolatries of many nations. Fully cx.

—<sup>3</sup>. In order that all these idolatries might be extirpated, it came to pass of the Lord's Divine Providence that a new religion accommodated to the genius of the Orientals was begun, in which there should be something from both Testaments of the Word, and which should teach that the Lord came into the world, and that He was the Greatest Prophet, the Wisest of all, and the Son of God. This was done by means of Mohammed, from whom that religion has been called the Mohammedan religion.

—<sup>4</sup>. This religion would not have been received by so many kingdoms, and could not have extirpated the idolatries, unless it had been made suitable and adapted to the ideas of the thoughts and to the life of them all. The reason it did not acknowledge the Lord as the God of Heaven and earth, was that the Orientals acknowledged God the Creator of the universe, and could not comprehend that He had come into the world, and had assumed the Human . . .

—<sup>5</sup>. From these things it may be seen, that the Mohammedan religion also arose of the Lord's Divine Providence; and that all of that religion who acknowledge the Lord as the Son of God, and at the same time live according to the precepts of the decalogue, which they have also, come into a Heaven which is called the Mohammedan Heaven. This Heaven also is divided into three Heavens, highest, middle, and lowest. In the highest Heaven are those who acknowledge the Lord as one with the Father, thus as the Only God Himself. In the second Heaven are those who renounce a plurality of wives, and live with one; and in the ultimate one, those who are being initiated.

M. 341. That at this day it has been permitted to Mohammedans to marry a plurality of wives, because they do not acknowledge the Lord Jesus Christ as one with Jehovah the Father, and thus as the God of Heaven and earth, and thence cannot receive love truly conjugal.—From the religion delivered by Mohammed the Mohammedans acknowledge Jesus Christ as the Son of God, and the Greatest Prophet, and that He was sent into the world by God the Father to teach men; but not that God the Father and He are one, and that His Divine and Human are one Person, united as soul and body . . . Therefore the followers of Mohammed could not acknowledge our Lord as any God from eternity, but only as a perfect natural man . . . and therefore they could not do otherwise than pass Him by in their worship; and this the more, because they declare Mohammed also to be the Greatest Prophet; and do not know what the Lord has taught. It is for this reason that the interiors of their minds . . . could not be opened . . .

342. That the Mohammedan Heaven is outside of the Christian Heaven; and that it is divided into two Heavens, lower and higher; and that no others are elevated into their higher Heaven than those who renounce concubines and live with one wife, and acknowledge our Lord to be equal with God the Father, to Whom is given dominion over Heaven and earth. Gen.art.

— As they have made the Koran the book of their religion, and as, consequently, Mohammed, who wrote it, is seated in their thoughts, and as they follow him with some worship, they think but little about our Lord. T.833.

343. The reason the Mohammedans also have a Heaven, is that all in the universal world who acknowledge God, and, from religion, shun evils as sins against Him, are saved. That the Mohammedan Heaven is distinguished into two, lower and higher, I have heard from themselves; and that in the lower Heaven they live with a number of both wives and concubines, as in the world; and that those who renounce concubines, and live with one wife, are elevated into the higher Heaven. I have heard also that it is impossible for them to think of our Lord as one with God the Father; but that it is possible for them to think of Him as equal, and also that to Him is given dominion over Heaven and earth, because He is His Son; and therefore this faith is with those to whom ascent into the higher Heaven is given by the Lord. T.832.

344. I have spoken with one who came instead of Mohammed. Mohammed himself is never present, but a substitute in his place . . . He sent me an ebony spoon . . . and at the same time there was opened a communication for the heat of their conjugal love, which was perceived by me like the foul heat of a bath. T.834.

348. As polygamy . . . exists at this day with the Mohammedans, it cannot be imputed to them as sin; (and) lest it should be sin to them, they remain natural . . . It is for this reason that although from the Koran they acknowledge our Lord as the Son of God, still they do not approach Him, but Mohammed; and so long they remain natural; and thence do not know that there is anything of evil, and not even of lasciviousness, in polygamy. . . Therefore, after death, they have their own Heavens, and there enjoy delights according to their life.

352. In the Christian Heavens there is heavenly light, which is Divine Truth, and heavenly heat, which is Divine love . . . Thence it is that all communication between the Christian Heavens and the Mohammedan Heavens has been taken away . . . If there had been a communication, no others could have been saved than those who were in heavenly light and at the same time in heavenly heat from the Lord; nay, neither could these be saved if there were a communication of the Heavens; for from the conjunction all the Heavens would be so severely shaken that the Angels could not subsist; for what is unchaste and lascivious would inflow from the Mohammedans into the Christian Heaven . . . and what is chaste and pure would inflow from the Christians into the Mohammedan Heaven, (and thus) the spiritual things of the Christian Heaven would continually encompass and torture them, and would take away all the delight of their life; and,

moreover, would insinuate that polygamy is siu, and thus they would be constantly rebuked.

466<sup>3</sup>. A Christian cannot love a concubine and a wife equally, as a Mohammedan polygamist can do . . .

B. 37. The Mohammedans abhor Christianity because they believe there is the worship of three gods in it. T.183.

T. 137<sup>12</sup>. (He said) I once thought from (an eminent person at Gothenburg with whom I am associated) that your new doctrine savours of Mohammedanism . . .

678. In the Spiritual World, Christians are in the middle; Mohammedans are around them . . .

—<sup>e</sup>. Without the Christian sign, which is baptism, some Mohammedan Spirit . . . might apply himself to newly born Christian infants, and also to older children, and insuflute into them an inclination for his own religion . . .

828. On the Mohammedans in the Spiritual World. Gen.art.

831. The Mohammedans are hostile to Christians on account of the faith of three Divine Persons and the derivative worship of three Gods, so many Creators; and, to the Roman Catholics, on account of their genuflections before images; and hence they call the latter idolaters, and the former fanatics; saying that they make a three-headed God; and that they say one and mutter three . . .

D. 339. On Mohammed and the Mohammedans.

— (These Spirits) seemed to have found another Heaven, where Mohammed reigned; they spoke with Mohammedans who had been dead some years . . . God Messiah appeared to them in glory, through an Angel, when they fell upon their faces and devoutly adored. Afterwards Mohammed was raised up thence quickly, and was with me, and spoke many things to me, and . . . when he was instructed about God Messiah, he spoke modestly . . . and thought in like manner; and he instructed those who were in the deep that from himself he could do nothing at all; and that he perceived that he was no god, but a simple man . . . He wants to be instructed in the doctrine of true faith. I showed him the city of Amsterdam . . .

340. The Mohammedans confessed, when they heard the interior things of the Word, and heavenly Truths, that they had fallen into heavenly happiness; and now, while I am writing these things, they fall upon their faces and adore the God of the universe, who is Jesus Christ; saying that they perceived it in a heavenly manner.

344. On Mohammed.—There was represented as it were a distinct Heaven, where there were worshippers of Mohammed; but there were only Spirits there, and not Angels. When these Spirits heard what was being said in this Heaven, they asked that they too might ascend and speak; and, when they came, they spoke so skillfully and prudently . . . that the Spirits of the Heaven of Christians were affected with shame. . . They were interrogated about Mohammed; and they replied that they had acknowledged Mohammed, knowing no otherwise; but that they want to adore one God only, the Creator of Heaven and earth. Then Mohammed . . . replied to them that he can do nothing from himself . . . thus he was raised up thence and adored the Supreme God, God Messiah indisputably.

345. Mohammed said that the Spirits who were in the Heaven where he was diminishing . . . He was instructed that they are being taken up into the angelic Heaven, and are there being instructed in the doctrine of faith; and that all their infants are in the Heavens.

346. Mohammed said that he knew no otherwise than that he was living upon earth . . .

347. That the infants only of the Mohammedans come immediately into Heaven; but not so immediately their boys and girls. Ex.

403. That the Mohammedan Spirits are very docile, and are obedient to their Mohammed, and perform all offices to him from the heart. . . They were then instructed that they should adore God Messiah only . . . with which instruction they were enkindled, and most humbly gave thanks to God, promising that they would lay it to heart.

407. On the Mohammedan Spirits. (Their washings.) 403<sup>e</sup>.

447. On Mohammed: that he drove away a crowd coming to him; and said that they should go to Jesus the Son of God.

477. On another Mohammed.

480<sup>e</sup>. The Mohammedans are docile, and suffer themselves to be led, and easily receive the faith.

509. On Mohammed.—According to his longing, Mohammed underwent temptations. . . These things show that Mohammed stood in the faith, although he was so tempted. 510. 511.

512. On the Spirits of Mohammed: how they are instructed in order to become Angels.

2995. The Mohammedans with me at first did not care for (scientifics) . . . thinking that if they receive good it is sufficient . . .

2996. On Mohammed.

3030<sup>e</sup>. The Mohammedan Heaven was opened by those who want to seek another Lord.

3033. Among these were both the Mohammeds . . .

3040. Choirs from the Mohammedans have become so familiar to me, that I could know (them) from the sound alone.

3494. Certain Mohammedans came almost at once after death into gres. Ex.

4658<sup>e</sup>. It was the effigy of Mohammed's coffin.

4748. Charles XII. praised the Mohammedan religion in preference to the Christian.

4831. I was brought to the region where the Mohammedans are, which is towards the right, in the plane of the right sole; and, when I had been brought there and was held in the idea concerning the Lord that the Father is in Him and the Holy Spirit from Him, thus that He is the one only God, then all who were there were in the same idea and completely acknowledged it. This [occurred] through the whole tract. J.(Post.)84.

5060. See LAST JUDGMENT, here. 5061. 5240. 5241. 5242. 5243. 5258-5262. 5264. 5265. 5663a-5669a. 5729. 5731. 5809<sup>a</sup>. 5856. 5861.

— On two mountains where there were Mohammedana they lived more harmoniously than Christians. In their first mountain they said that they live well, because they . . . obey their magistrate . . . They were better as to the understanding than most Christians. J.(Post.)85.

5061. I spoke with them about a plurality of wives ; and their elders examined with me the reasons why it has been commanded by the Lord that men should have only one wife ; and they found justice in them ; but that this had been conceded them in the world for the reason that they were Orientals ; and, if a plurality of wives had not been conceded them they would have blazed into adulteries like wild beasts, and so all there would perish. They entered well into reasons. J. (Post.)85.

5063. I spoke further with them : that true Christianity consists in this : that men ought to live in charity towards the neighbour, which is to be sincere, to be just, to be upright ; thus to do what is sincere, just, and good for their own sakes ; and to esteem and venerate them as Divine things, because the Divine of the Lord is in them, because they are from Himself ; as they also know ; for they say that there is nothing good with them except what comes from above, that is, from God ; and thus that as to whether men are Christians must be considered from the good of life ; also that the true faith ought not to make dissensions . . . It was said concerning the Lord, that He was conceived from Jehovah, and that therefore He called Jehovah His Father . . . Christians also know that He rose again as to the body, and took all things of His body with Him . . . They wondered at the stupidity of Christians, saying that they had been ignorant of these two things. When I spoke with them about various things which are from the Word, and which are of the doctrine of the true Church, I apperceived what is holy from them. J. (Post.)87.

5246. Many of the Mohammedana become Christians, acknowledging the Lord as the only God, because the Father is in Him, and He in the Father. When, then, they are led into Heaven, they are led first to the east, and thence to the north, and there they ascend higher and higher even to the west, and there are in what is still higher . . . J.(Post.)91.

5247. Some of them appeared to go further ; some to descend to the south ; some to be carried elsewhere . . .

5248. Mohammedans are in natural lumen more than Christians, and also long to know truths more than they do. Examp.

5268. On the Mohammeda.—The first Mohammed dwelt at the left beneath the plane of the sole ; and there he held his court, and inflowed thence into the Mohammedan nation ; but under the guidance of the Lord. There appeared as it were something luminous there, such as is wont to come from candles. I have been sent thither, and perceived what is lascivious commingled with what is conjugal, which was filthy, because it excited venery . . . It is said that in their stead others are now succeeding, who are to be kept there by the Lord, for the reason that the common people think much about Mohammed . . . That lascivious sphere is from the plurality of wives . . .

5600. Concerning a certain Christian with the Mohammedans.—There was a discourse concerning the Mohammedana, that they acknowledge the Lord, but only as the Greatest Prophet, and that they do not acknowledge His Divine, for the reason that they could not apprehend how the Divine could be possible as distinguished into three Persons . . . That Christian wanted to know whether such was their doctrine, and approached them at the western part . . . They asked him what he believed . . . He said that he believed that God is one ; but they examined the ideas of his thought . . . and said . . . that at heart he believed in three . . . and that a Christian ought to speak as he thinks . . . and that it ought to be to the shame of Christians to think three gods, and that the very Gentiles are wiser . . . and he therefore receded . . . for he was affected with shame . . . The Mohammedana held him in the idea of his thought . . . so that he could not deny it . . . I afterwards presented the Trinity in one Person, and this in the Lord, with certain things from the Word ; and they then said that they perceive that it can be so ; and they would have been able to believe it if they had not opined differently in the world ; although they see that He is greater than they had believed, from the fact that He has bound Mohammed, and also because He is called the Son of God, and because He was conceived from God Himself. J.(Post.)95.

5662a. (The syncretists) concluded that they would make one Church out of many . . . and even want the Mohammedans to be consociated ; for the reason that they acknowledge the Lord as the Greatest Prophet, and as the Son of God . . .

5666a. Mohammed himself, who wrote the Koran, and was buried at Mecca, was taken out from his place—he was deep down in a place a little behind the right foot—and was elevated above, to the left of my head, and there he appeared (to his worshippers). (Continued under LAST JUDGMENT.)

5669a. Some of the Mohammedans, when they had heard many things about the Lord, wanted to accede to that Church ; but it was said to them that they should remain in their own religion, provided they think about the Lord from their doctrine from the Koran : that He was the Greatest Prophet, the Son of God, and the Wisest of men ; because they cannot acknowledge His Divine at heart, but only some of them with the mouth, and from the Intellectual ; because from infancy they had imbued themselves with the faith of such things ; and spiritual good has been formed from such things as had been of their faith in the world, which cannot be so suddenly extinguished by what is new of faith ; provided they live in their own good, do what is sincere and just, and know that everything just is Divine ; and that thus they can still live happy in their own way, and be successively led to the Lord. It was added that those who live in what is just and in their own good can be better than Christians, because these derogate all the Divine from the Lord. Ex. . . Hence they saw that good Mohammedans in their hearts think better about the Lord than Christians do. J. (Post.) 97.

[D. 5669a]. They also acknowledge Moses as a great prophet, but less than the Lord; but about Moses they think nothing further.

580<sup>b</sup>. There is a book among the Mohammedane, which is in their hands, and is common there, in which some pages have been written by correspondences, and from which there is some light in the Heavens. J. (Post.) 98.

5952. On the Greeks and the Mohammedans.—There were with me many from Greece, who dwell with Mohammedans: they complained about the Mohammedans, because they frequently say to them that they worship three gods. . . The Mohammedans do not recede from this infestation until they reply that they are only the names of the one God; they then acquiesce.

—Afterwards there were with me Mohammedans thence, and they made inquiry concerning the three names of the one God. I then said how the case is; namely, that Christians have taken this from the sense of the letter of the Word, where three are named, when yet they are the names of the one God. They said that they too have the Word; but read it little. They believe that our Lord is the Greatest Prophet. But I said that He was born from God, and that this is clearly told in Matthew and Luke. They said that they had not at all known this, and that they had believed Him to be the son of Joseph. I afterwards told them why the Lord came into the world; not to reconcile the human race to the Father, but to make His Human Divine, and thus keep the Heavens in order down to ultimates, and the human race, to which the Divine could no longer reach in any other way. On hearing these things they were silent, and many acquiesced. J. (Post.) 100.

6021. Concerning the Lord with the Mohammedans.—The Mohammedans are most averse to the three Persons of the Divinity, because thus there would be three gods; and therefore when Christians and Mohammedans are talking together about God, the latter say that they make three gods; and when they reply that they have one God, they are indignant, and ask which of the three is truly God. Then some reply that God the Father is, because He created the universe. They say that so the two others are little gods. . . but when they hear that they are equal, they recede, and despise Christians as small, and as of almost no judgment in spiritual things.

—<sup>2</sup>. A certain person had a domestic servant of the Mohammedan religion, whom he interrogated concerning God, saying, What do you believe about Christ? He said that He is the Saviour. What about God? He said that He is the Creator and the Supporter of the universe. He then asked him, Has not God saved? He said that He has saved. What then did he believe about Christ? Is He not God? He said that He is God. Then he said that thus there are two. Then the servant departed, saying that he makes two gods, and therefore did not want to be his servant. In time afterwards he understood that by Christ whom he called the Saviour he understood God the Creator of the universe as to salvation; thus the same, and not another.

—<sup>3</sup>. Thus the Mohammedane who are saved acknowledge the Lord as one with the Father; and they almost hate Christians because they make three gods.

E. 1180<sup>c</sup>. A Mohammedan sees from the Koran that there is one God; that the Lord is the Son of God; that all good is from God; that there are a Heaven and a Hell; that there is a life after death; and that the evils which are in the precepts of the decalogue are to be shunned. If he does these things, he also believes them, and is saved.

J. (Post.) 71. On Mohammed. Gen.art.

76<sup>c</sup>. See MARBLE, here.

77. Once the two Mohammeds were taken up into Heaven, because they longed for it; and then they spoke with me thence. They said that they saw thence in one idea of thought innumerable things which below Heaven they had believed to be one simple thing. . .

78. There were Mohammedane in the western quarter, dwelling upon rocks, who had been rejected by Mohammed in the Christian world, because they had worshipped Mohammed as God. . . and it was found that they had then thought nothing about the Lord. . . as the Greatest Prophet and the Son of God. (Continued in D.5665a. 5666a.)

79. The two Christian Mohammeds. Ex. 80.

81. With the first Mohammed there appears something luminous, as from a torch, and the Mohammedans look thither, and he inflows into them thence by means of Spirits. . . Mohammed is skilful in instructing those who interrogate him. . . The sphere of his life appeared exteriorly delightful; interiorly concealing what is lascivious. . . It was an unclean heat, but that with the Mohammedans is a delightful heat.

82. The reason Mohammeds are continually substituted in place of the other. . .

83. I heard that Mohammed saying that he acknowledges the Lord as the Only God. . .

84. On the Mohammedans. Gen.art.

—<sup>c</sup>. Hence it was given to know that there are many of the Mohammedans who receive faith concerning the Lord, that He is one with the Father.

88. I saw a Mohammedan infestation by Christians in a certain city. . .

89. I was brought to the Mohammedans who are in the eastern quarter. (A conversation with them about God and the Trinity.) The Mohammedans comprehended this: they said that they were thinking and longing for illustration, which was afterwards given them. . .

90. I spoke with the Mohammedans about the resurrection. (They were told the doctrine held by Christians on the subject,) and the Mohammedane then replied that they wonder such a fallacy can reign with Christians. . . and that they know that they will live after death; that they will live in happy marriage; and that they will drink wine; and this after they have cast off the exuviae which had served them as an ultimate covering in that gross sphere. . .

92. Many Mohammedans, from natural lumen, apprehend better about spiritual things than Christians, because they think much and long for truths. They have well understood that all things in Heaven and the world relate to good and truth . . .

93. In the Judgment I saw that the Mohammedans were brought from the west and round about in their compass around the Papists. Fully ex.

96. The abodes of the Mohammedans after death are palaces. For most part they are in the western quarter. After the Last Judgment many come anew into that quarter who had thought little about the God of the universe, and nothing about the Lord, but worshipped Mohammed as God; and, as they could not find him, they chose another on a lofty mountain above Christendom . . . and then, at the command of the new Mohammed, they betook themselves into the Christian world, and infested them in various ways . . .

101. They were told that there are Mohammedans who have received the faith that the Lord is one with the Father; and that they have a Heaven in which are all happy things; and that they live there from the Lord in the spiritual marriage of good and truth.

Ath. 167. The Mohammedans have not acknowledged three Persons, but one God: they have therefore denied the Divinity of the Lord, and have acknowledged the Father alone as God.

De Conj. 46. On a plurality of wives with the Mohammedans. Gen.art.

— I have spoken with the Mohammedans about the spiritual marriage: that it is the marriage of good and truth; and that good loves truth and truth good like two consorts . . . This they understood well, and also that conjugal love descends from this spiritual origin . . . from which it is evident that they . . . cannot have love truly conjugal; and it was said that . . . polygamy has been permitted them because they are in hot regions . . . and therefore they burn with libidinous heat, and therefore if polygamy had not been permitted them many of them would rush into adulteries more than Europeans, and thus would act contrary to their religiosity, (to do which) is to profane what is holy. It was shown further, that all their love of marriage is lascivious, thus not spiritual; nor can it become spiritual unless they acknowledge the Lord.

47. Their lot in the other life is such, that at first, as in the world, they associate a plurality of wives, besides concubines; but as, in the Spiritual World, conjunction is of minds, and as those who are of a different mind cannot be together, they separate themselves spontaneously, and at last are conjoined with such a woman as is of a like mind: thus they gradually separate themselves from their women, and at last are united to one, with whom their mind agrees. Moreover, they who persist in polygamy, in process of time become so weak and impotent that they nauseate marriage; for lasciviousness carries this with it.

48. Those of them who are in their Heaven have only one wife; they have rejected more; for the Mohammedan Heaven is distinct from the Christian Heaven; but those who at last, as many do, acknowledge the Lord to be one with the Father, are separated, and are in Heavens which communicate with the Christian Heavens; and with these there is conjugal love.

49. They have heard conjugal love described by the Angels as to its deliciousnesses and pleasantnesses, and that it lasts to eternity, with an infinite variety of deliciousnesses and pleasantnesses, and they have wondered; and thence many of them have received faith concerning the Lord, and have been sent among the Angels of the Christian Heaven, and instructed concerning the Lord, and in the doctrine of love and faith in Him.

D. Wis. vii. 2<sup>3</sup>. That Christians could not enter to the Mohammedans, on account of their respiration, I have seen.

Molar. See under GRIND.

Mole. Talpa.

A. 893<sup>2</sup>. 'The moles and the bats' (Is.ii.20)=those who are in darkness; that is, in falsities and the derivative evils. 9424<sup>8</sup>.

10582<sup>5</sup>. 'To bow themselves to the moles and the bats' (id.)=to worship such things as are in thick darkness and in the shade of night, which is [to worship] external things without an internal.

R. 566<sup>8</sup>. Before the eyes of angelic Spirits, some were seen as bats; some as owls; some as moles . . . and they fled away into their darkness . . . T.162<sup>8</sup>.

T. 165<sup>8</sup>. He then sees truths no more than a mole.

E. 410<sup>8</sup>. The evils and falsities of doctrine from which is their worship are signified by 'the moles and the bats' (id.), because their sight is in darkness, and they shun the light.

Molech. Molech.

A. 2468<sup>16</sup>. The god of the sons of Ammon was Molech and Milchom. III.

R. 748. They worshipped Molech there by a wicked sacrifice.

E. 768<sup>26</sup>. 'To give of his seed to Molech' (Lev.xx.2,3; xviii.21)=to destroy the truth of the Word and of doctrine by application to the filthy loves of the body; as to murders, hatreds, revenges, adulteries, and the like; whence, instead of Divine things, infernal falsities are accepted. These falsities are signified by 'the seed given to Molech.' Molech was the god of the sons of Ammon (1 Kings.xi.7); and was placed in the Valley of Hinnom, which was called Tophet, where they cremated their sons and daughters (2 Kings.xxiii.10); by the fire of which were signified the above-mentioned loves. And as, by 'the seed given to Molech' is signified such infernal falsity; and stoning was the death penalty for the truth of the Word and of the derivative doctrine being injured and destroyed, it is said that 'the man who should give of his seed to Molech, dying he shall die,' and the people of the land shall stone him with stone.'

Molecule. Molecula.

A. 6614. The abundance of ideas from the angelic Heaven is presented visible as a bright cloud distinguished into molecules; each molecule, which consisted of innumerable things, produced with a Spirit one simple idea . . .

D. Wis. ii<sup>3</sup>. Around the cerebrum, and also within it, and in the cerebellum, and in the spinal marrow, there are spherules, as it were molecules, called the cortical and cineritious substances and glands . . . These are the initial forms . . .

Mollified. See SOFTEN.

Molten. Fusilis.

A. 3574<sup>2</sup>. 'A molten thing of silver' (Hos.xiii.2)=good falsified. (=falsity appearing as truth. 8932<sup>6</sup>. R.242<sup>2</sup>.)

8869. 'A molten thing'=that which is from the voluntary proprium. (See GRAVE, here.)

8941<sup>9</sup>. What is religious, hatched from Own intelligence, and not from the Word, is meant by 'molten things,' 'graven things,' etc.

9424<sup>7</sup>. 'The covering of the graven things of silver, and the clothing of the molten thing of gold' (Is.xxx.22) = the scientifics of falsity and of evil which are acknowledged and worshipped as truths and goods.

— Here, also, (Is.xlviii.5) 'idol,' 'graven thing,' and 'molten thing'=doctrinal things from Own intelligence.

—<sup>8</sup>. Here, also, (Jer.x.14,15) 'the graven thing,' and 'the molten thing'=doctrinal things from Own intelligence, which, in the external form, which is from the external sense of the Word, appear as truths; but in the internal form are falsities. Hence that man is said to be 'a fool from knowledge;' and the molten thing is said to be 'a lie;' and that 'there is no breath in them' . . .

10406<sup>2</sup>. The conjunction (of these falsities) to the favouring of external loves, so that evils may appear as goods, is signified by 'a molten thing.' (See GRAVE, here.)

—<sup>3</sup>. Such things are signified by 'graven things,' and 'molten things,' in the following places. III.

—<sup>4</sup>. By 'a graven thing, and 'a molten thing,' are meant the falsity which is devised, and the evil which the falsity favours.

—<sup>10</sup>. As the falsities and evils of doctrine which are signified by 'graven and molten things' are fabricated by man's Own intelligence under the guidance of his love, they are called 'the work of man's hands,' 'the work of the hands of the artificer,' and 'the work of the hands of the smith.' III.

10407. 'He made it a calf of what is molten' (Ex. xxxii.4)=according to the delight of the loves of that nation. . . 'What is molten'=worship made to the favouring of external loves.

10653. 'Gods of what is molten thou shalt not make to thyself' (Ex.xxxiv.17)=the worship of self and not of the Lord; (for) 'to make gods of what is molten'=to institute worship according to the love of self; and worship according to the love of self is the worship of self and not of the Lord; for the worship of self is the end, and the worship of the Lord is the means to this end . . . Such worship exists with those who regard the holy things of the Church as the means, and dominions as the end.

E. 3864. 'To cast a molten thing' (Is.xliv.10)=doctrine from Own love.

419<sup>16</sup>. By 'molten things' are signified the things which a man hatches from Own intelligence; all of which are falsities and evils.

539<sup>12</sup>. The doctrinal things which are from Own intelligence, in which are the evils of falsity and the falsities of evil, are signified by 'molten things of silver,' and by 'idols' (Hos.xiii.2). 'Their silver'=that which is from Own intelligence; and 'the work of the artificers'=this intelligence; and therefore it is said, 'in their intelligence they have made themselves idols, wholly the work of the artificers.' That these doctrinal things, being false, will pass away, is signified by, 'they shall go away like smoke out of a chimney' . . .

5874. 'Idols,' 'graven things,' and 'molten things'=the falsities of doctrine, of religion, and of worship. III.

—<sup>5</sup>. This falsity is also meant by, 'his molten thing is a lie' (Jer.x.14).

—<sup>16</sup>. The like things are signified by 'graven things,' 'molten things,' and 'idols,' in the following places. III.

654<sup>50</sup>. 'Casting a molten thing, but not from My spirit' (Is.xxx.1)=worship from infernal falsity, and not from Divine truth.

1186<sup>2</sup>. By 'a molten thing,' and by 'an idol' (Hos. xiii.2) is signified worship according to doctrine which is from Own intelligence.

Moment. Momentum.

Momentary. Momentaneous.

A. 24<sup>9</sup>. Thus do each and all the moments (or movements) of regeneration proceed from evening to morning . . .

59<sup>2</sup>. If the Lord did not protect man every moment . . .

2292. According to each and all the moments (or movements) of their inclination, the infants are impelled to receive the truths of good and the good of truth . . . H.336<sup>6</sup>.

2342<sup>9</sup>. Without the internal sense (these rites) are of no moment.

2694<sup>3</sup>. When some moments have passed by, they return to the same state of opinion.

3226. Can express in a moment of time what . . .

3854<sup>3</sup>. Every least moment of man's life has a continual series of consequences to eternity . . . and thus each and all the moments (or movements) of the life of both his understanding and his will. 6490. D.Min. 4652.

3957<sup>3</sup>. This life cannot be transmuted into another in a moment . . .

4063<sup>3</sup>. When a man is being regenerated, it is not effected in a moment . . .

4931. Man would not subsist for one moment . . .

4939<sup>9</sup>. 5849. 10219<sup>2</sup>.

5006<sup>4</sup>. Man's life in the world is scarcely like a moment, relatively to his life after death . . .

520<sup>2</sup>. For the man who is in good is reborn every moment, from his first infancy to the last of his life in the world, and then to eternity . . .

535<sup>4</sup>. Regeneration . . . is not effected in one moment; but from the first infancy up to the last of life, and afterwards to eternity.

539<sup>8</sup>. For they believe that sins are remitted in a moment . . . and that a man is justified by the confidence of one moment.

561<sup>4</sup>. For a man can think in a moment what . . .

599<sup>2</sup>. The Angels lead and guard man, and thus every moment, and moment of a moment; for if the Angels were to intermit [their care] for only one moment, the man would be precipitated into evil . . .

661<sup>7</sup>. The Angels perceive his life in a moment . . .

729<sup>8</sup>. No one ought to be persuaded in a moment concerning truth . . .

871<sup>3</sup>. The Lord regards such things as are momentary—as the things of this world relatively are—no otherwise than as means to eternal things . . .

933<sup>6</sup>. Believing that the life of Hell with a man can in a moment be transcribed into the life of Heaven . . .

H. 269<sup>6</sup>. Man does not know any movement of the progression when he is being regenerated.

P. 177<sup>2</sup>. Evil . . . does not receive good in a moment; nor does good . . . cast out evil from man in a moment. If either were done in a moment, life would not remain in the man. 183<sup>2</sup>.

202<sup>2</sup>. Unless the Lord leads a man every moment even the most minute, the man recedes . . . —<sup>3</sup>, Ex.

217. These three points are now to be illustrated one by one. 219. 278a.

233<sup>5</sup>. This delight cannot be removed in a moment . . . —<sup>6</sup>. This turning is not possible in a moment . . .

279<sup>4</sup>. The error . . . that the state of a man's life can be changed in a moment. Ex.

—<sup>6</sup>. That they who believe in momentaneous salvation . . . do not know that the affections . . . are mere changes of the state of the purely organic substances of the mind . . . Ex.

280. All these believe in . . . momentaneous salvation.

338. That momentaneous salvation from immediate mercy is not possible. Gen.art.

—<sup>2</sup>. That the faith concerning momentaneous salvation . . . is taken from the natural state of man. Ex.

* 340. That momentaneous salvation . . . is the flying fire-serpent in the Church. Gen.art.

—<sup>4</sup>. That by the faith of momentaneous salvation . . . security of life is induced. Ex.

R. 500<sup>3</sup>. They believe that the remission of sins . . . is given in a moment in the act of faith . . . and they who have once imbued these things, afterwards make sins of no account . . .

896. This carrying away (in the spirit into a mountain) is done in a moment, because it is done by a change of state . . .

B. 64. Enormous births; as momentaneous salvation . . .

T. 78<sup>3</sup>. In our World such things are created in a moment . . .

—<sup>4</sup>. The reason creation in our World is momentaneous . . .

349<sup>2</sup>. The comment is to be divided into these points.

514. The second point is: As this contrition is not repentance, is it of any moment?

515. The third point is . . .

603<sup>6</sup>. In a moment or two, a man can think and conclude what . . .

794. All things which are looked at in the Spiritual World are created by the Lord in a moment . . .

D. 2010. Can think more quickly and distinctly within one moment than . . .

2714. Each moment of life is the beginning of consequences . . .

3024a. With him who is in faith, the better it is the less the ideas are determined to one thing; but so that they are applicable to each movement (or point) . . .

3399<sup>6</sup>. Ideas are moments (or movements) and varieties of respirations . . .

4136<sup>6</sup>. The moments (or beats) of the spiritual pulse, to the moments (or beats) of the celestial one, are as two and a half to one.

4480. On the reasoning of some that . . . they are justified in a moment.

4784. They took note of all the movements of thought and affection . . . I wondered how they could take note of all the movements of the thought.

D. Min. 4692<sup>6</sup>. So that the moments of his life appear like scattered pebbles.

E. 716<sup>3</sup>. These falsities from evil cannot be expelled from a man in a moment.

795<sup>2</sup>. It may be said that both (charity and faith) come forth at the same—pari—moment . . .

1211<sup>4</sup>. Creation there is instantaneous; and its duration is sometimes long, and sometimes momentary.

J. (Post.) 323. Houses (there) are formed in a moment, and in a moment are destroyed . . . Garments in a moment are put on, new ones are given, they are changed. The tables upon which is their food come forth in a moment, and are afterwards dissipated in a moment.

Monad. Monas.

A. 5084<sup>4</sup>. A fallacy of sense . . . that there are simple substances, which are monads and atoms. See W.229.

I. 17<sup>2</sup>. (Such) cannot but terminate the ideas of their thought in the atoms of Epicurus, or in the monads of Leibnitz, or in the simple substances of Wolff . . .

J. (Post.) 263. Leibnitz said . . . that he had indeed acknowledged monads as unities: but that there were in them simpler and purer substances, by means of which the monad has been formed, from which came forth the changes of state therein . . . and Leibnitz therefore wondered that Wolff had maintained his monad—which he calls a simple substance—to be created out of nothing; and, when divided, to fall into nothing . . .

Monarch. Monarcha. P.251<sup>2</sup>.

Monarchical. Monarchicus. T.9<sup>2</sup>.

Monastery. Monasterium.

Monastic. Monasterialis.

See under MONK.

A. 4951<sup>6</sup>. Many such who have plundered many houses for the monasteries.

5036<sup>5</sup>. No longer believes it holy . . . to give to monasteries . . .

H. 535<sup>3</sup>. See WORLD, here.

J. 55<sup>5</sup>. They multiply monasteries, from which they place spies and guards everywhere.

58<sup>2</sup>. That great city was full of temples and monasteries.

—<sup>4</sup>. The whole anterior tract . . . was as it were excavated, and full of monasteries.

R. 759. Those who continually aim to establish firmly (their Divine majesty and super-regal glory) by the multiplication of monasteries . . . Sig. 770.

— . By gifts given to monasteries . . . 784.

M. 54<sup>4</sup>. Those who in the world have been shut up in monasteries, whether virgins or men, after passing a monastic life, which lasts for some space of time after death, are set loose and let out, and obtain the longed-for liberty of their desires, whether they want to live as conjugal ones, or not. If [they want to be] conjugal ones, they become so; if not, they are carried to the celibates at the side of Heaven; but those who have burned with forbidden lust, are cast down. 155<sup>2</sup>.

513. In kingdoms of the Catholic religion (the women for whom these burn) are monastic virgins . . . D. 3896.

D. 3187. See MARTYR, here.

4553<sup>6</sup>. Obtaining wealth for their monasteries from the sick . . .

5254. See LAST JUDGMENT, here. 5271. 5305. 5315. 5316. 5324. 5331. 5338. 5341. 5410.

5457. Those who had perpetrated nefarious things outside and inside of monasteries . . . Des.

5598. They began to institute monasteries . . .

6110<sup>52</sup>. Virgins who have imbued piety even to some melancholy become sad wives, and cannot be among the happy in Heaven . . . Hence [this is the case with] those women who have lived in monasteries.

J. (Post.) 109. Women and virgins who have lived in monasteries, and have thought lascivious things; and, still more, those who have done lascivious things; are cast into Hells where there are direful things. But those who have studied piety alone, and have not done any work, are divided among the followers of their own religion, to act as domestic servants, learning that bare piety in idleness does not conduce to salvation. But those who have been industrious and have loved to work, are allotted places among those women in the Churches with whom it is well.

—<sup>2</sup>. Those women who have been diligent in monasteries, by serving others there in various ways, for food, for clothing, and for other functions there, and who have done these things from charity and affection, have been brought outside that mountain in the confines between the south and the west, and form a Society which is safe from infestations by the men; and are sent to those who teach the truths of faith; for they are more docile than the rest.

Money. Moneta.

Monetized. Moneticus.

T. 78<sup>2</sup>. The coins of gold and silver (there, are correspondences).

320. They may be compared to impostors who coin false monies, and gild them . . .

519. They are like coins made of the lees of oil, or dried dung, and overlaid with gold.

D. 4045. There appeared . . . great silver coins, which were turned into a thicker—crassiorum—plate of silver, which filled the pocket of my garment. It perhaps signified those things which have now been given me.

4543. In a dream I had gold given in coins . . . Nordberg changed them into other gold, not monetized.

Money. Pecunia.

See COIN.

A. 2482. See MEMORY, here.

3957<sup>4</sup>. He leaves behind him cares for the acquiring of money and wealth; for such things are not there.

4751<sup>2</sup>. Avarice . . . is a love altogether earthly, having nothing for its end but money, in which, not in act, but in power, it believes itself to be above all.

C. J. 48<sup>3</sup>. The reason the Dutch are in these quarters of the Christian Middle, is that trade is their final love, and money the mediate subservient love, and this love is spiritual. But, where money is the final love, and trade the mediate subservient love, the love is natural, and partakes of avarice. P.220<sup>6</sup>.

D. 1166. While I have had cares concerning necessary monies . . . so that I have detained my lower mind somewhat in them, I have then fallen into a state as it were corporeal, so that the Spirits could not speak with me; as they also said: that they had been as it were absent . . .

2450. I have spoken with Spirits concerning the possession of money without use. Certain Spirits are of such a character, from the life of the body, that they want to possess money for the sake of money, and not for the sake of any use except that they may be delighted with the money. When I have asked for the sake of what use, whether it was for the sake of garments, houses, or food, they have said that it was for the sake of the delight from seeing the money, the silver and the gold; thus for the sake of no use from them. Such a cupidity is called avarice, and is most filthy, because most gross; for money is for the sake of use . . . When the use perishes, it is completely dead, and a carcase.

2566. The reason there is such a multitude of insane Spirits . . . is that the human race at this day regards no other use than self . . . They only acquire and scrape together money, silver and gold, merely to become rich . . . never for the sake of their friends and companions, still less for the sake of any use to the commonwealth . . .

2910. There are three dominant loves, from which all other loves spring . . . thus all cupidities, evils, and falsities . . . (The last of them) is the love of the Earth, which is the love of money for the sake of no end; but only for the sake of money, which is the most sordid.

3500. (The Dutch) have their life not so much in money, as in trading itself; so that their money was not so much in money-boxes, in wares . . . but in trade.

3624<sup>2</sup>. Whenever it has been given to think . . . about money-matters (etc.), and when I have been kept long in this reflection, the Spirits at once injected troublesome and evil things, together with things confirmatory and cupidities; and I observed that when I have not been in the thought of such things for months and years, I had no care at all, still less did they induce any trouble. These are the reflections of thought; and he who is detained in them is the more infested by evil Spirits the longer he is detained.

4385. (The Jewish Spirits said that their delight was) to have money; not for the sake of use, but for the sake of the money. But it was given to say that as there is no money in the other life, and consequently no delight from money, what delight do they want to have now? . . . Thus are they gradually led to thoughts about eternal life.

4728<sup>2</sup>. (Wolff) was especially in the love of money without use; thus in filthy evil.

5963. When (the Russians) are told, when they set their hearts too much on money, that they should give something from their money to the poor or needy . . . because it is by the command of God, they do it; but after some time they receive more; for they are blessed.

E. 193. 'Talents,' 'pounds,' and 'money' (Matt. xxv. 14-31; Luke xix. 13-25) = the Knowledges of truth and good from the Word.

840<sup>6</sup>. 'The purse,' and 'the scrip' = the like as the coins and the money in them; namely, the Knowledges of good and truth from the Word.

J. (Post.) 17. The Dutch are not so much for money . . . Money is their mediate end, and is loved for the sake of trading; thus it is in the second place; and they who are such are loved in Heaven; for everyone is estimated according to his use. It is otherwise with the avaricious, as with the Jews, with whom money is in the first place . . .

Money-box. Cista.

D. 3500. See MONEY-pecunia, here.

Money-changer. Nummularius.

E. 840<sup>4</sup>. By 'the tables of the money-changers' (Matt. xxi. 12) are signified (those who make gain for themselves) from holy truths.

Money-making. See HIRE, PROFIT.

Mongols. Mogolenses.

Mogul. Mogol.

R. 655<sup>7</sup>. Than in knowledge concerning the kingdom of the Mogul, of the diamond mine there, and of the treasure and court of its emperor.

T. 245<sup>2</sup>. Like the treasures with the emperors of the Mogul and of China.

D. 5729. (The Last Judgment on the Mongols. Fully quoted under LAST JUDGMENT.)

Monk. Monachus.

Monkish. Monachalis.

See MONASTERY.

A. 10785<sup>2</sup>. It was found that it was monks (who had) disturbed the angelic Spirits of the Sixth Earth.

10812. The monkish Spirits were seen, namely, those who had been travelling monks, or missionaries.

— (A conversation with one of these monks. His dense ignorance of the truths of faith, and his cupidity for gain and dominion, cause him to be cast into Hell.) D. 5513a<sup>22</sup>.

J. 56<sup>7</sup>. (The Papists) there send forth monks, to allure the gentiles to their religiosity . . .

61<sup>6</sup>. See LAST JUDGMENT, here.

C. J. 78. When monks penetrate (to the Africans) . . . They sell them. D. 6095<sup>2</sup>.

R. 294<sup>2</sup>. Near them were Papists with monks . . .

—<sup>31</sup>. One of the monks arose, and said . . . Another monk said . . .

767. By 'the merchants of the earth' are meant the lower ones in the order, who are called monks.

T. 582. The flagellation of one monk for the whole company . . .

817. The monks by clandestine arts procure a communication for themselves (with the Protestants) . . .

820<sup>2</sup>. Converted monks there teach them . . .

824. The monks especially seek there for the saints . . .

D. 3597. See JESUIT, here. De Conj. 98.

3598<sup>e</sup>. In Italy, where the monks insinuate themselves with wives . . .

4958. They were exciting the white monks . . .

5103. See LUTHER, here.

5249. See LAST JUDGMENT, here. 5271. 5285, et seq., 5419. 5732. 5738.

5450<sup>e</sup>. Those who were such were monks, because they keep all in . . . thick darkness: hence the papistical thick darkness.

5513a<sup>17</sup>. Among others who come thither are monks . . . They travel about in the same way in the other life . . .

5833. He wondered that so many of the lower monks make themselves Christ . . .

5957. Concerning a certain monk who lived in the Dark Ages . . .

E. 1044. The interiors with the monks . . . appeared so empty that they did not know a single truth which leads to Heaven. They have been explored, and were seen to be such.

[E.] 1055. The Word is read . . . but little with the monks, who teach. 1062.

J.(Post.) 111. That they might be instructed by their own, who had been upright monks . . .

Monkey. See APE.

Monogamist. Monogamus.

Monogamous. Monogamicus.

See under WIFE.

M. 70. For monogamous marriages—which are those of one man with one wife—correspond to the marriage of the Lord and the Church . . .

77<sup>4</sup>. We counsel you to live monogamists . . .

—<sup>5</sup>. Therefore all of us in this Heaven are monogamists . . .

141. That chastity is predicated solely of monogamous marriages, or those of one man with one wife. Ex.

369. That spiritual jealousy exists with monogamists, and natural with polygamists. Ex.

— In the Christian world, where there are monogamous marriages . . .

Monomania. See INSANE at D.3626.

Monosyllable. Monosyllaba. Ad.3/23.

Monosyllabic. Monosyllabicus. A.7191<sup>2</sup>.

Monster. Monstrum.

Monstrous. Monstrosus.

Monstrosity. Monstrositas.

A. 4533<sup>2</sup>. Some (of the infernals) appear as monsters. 4623<sup>2</sup>. 4839<sup>9</sup>. Ex. 5057<sup>6</sup>. 5302<sup>2</sup>.

5199<sup>6</sup>. In the light of Heaven (the infernals) appear as monsters. 6605<sup>6</sup>. 6626. —<sup>6</sup>. H.80<sup>6</sup>. 131<sup>2</sup>. E.554<sup>3</sup>.

7042<sup>2</sup>. They then appear to themselves as monsters.

10153<sup>3</sup>. In the Hells . . . are forms of hatred and revenge; thus such monsters as cannot be described.

H. 131<sup>6</sup>. If a man is evil, he appears (to the Angels) as a monster, deformedly according to his evil.

553<sup>2</sup>. Their bodies are monstrous.

—<sup>3</sup>. At the openings which are called 'the gates of Hell,' there for the most part appears a monster, which represents in general the form of those who are therein.

—<sup>4</sup>. As soon as anything of the light of Heaven is let in, their human forms are turned into monstrous ones, such as they are in themselves . . .

W. 24<sup>2</sup>. The Church would then appear as one body with a number of heads upon it; thus not as a man, but as a monster.

254<sup>2</sup>. A natural man, who has become sensuous through evils and the derivative falsities, in the Spiritual World in the light of Heaven appears . . . as a monster . . .

287<sup>6</sup>. In proportion as a man does not receive (the love and wisdom from the Lord), he becomes a monster after death.

P. 204. Hell is in . . . a monstrous human form . . .

228<sup>2</sup>. He then commingles holy with profane things, and becomes . . . such a monster.

293. Hell constitutes one monstrous man.

296. Everyone in Hell is in the form as of a man, although monstrous; and all the fibres and vessels in it are inverted.

302<sup>6</sup>. In its form Hell is like a monstrous man, whose soul is the love of self and Own intelligence' . . .

R. 153<sup>6</sup>. All (satans and devils, in the light of Heaven) as to their faces and bodies, appear as monsters; but in their own light . . . not as monsters, but as men.

601<sup>2</sup>. If a Church is in truths falsified, it appears (before the Lord) as a monstrous man. —.

675<sup>7</sup>. Suddenly there appeared a monster rising out of the earth . . . exactly like the 'beast' . . .

M. 231<sup>4</sup>. As these see nothing of what is just, in Heaven we contemplate them not as men, but as monsters. Des.

T. 32<sup>6</sup>. All there are so conjoined, that . . . the universal Hell represents one monstrous devil.

68. Hell (before God) is as one giant which is a monster; and therefore to act against one evil and the derivative falsity, is to act against that monstrous giant . . . which no one can do except God . . . 123<sup>6</sup>.

504<sup>8</sup>. Instead of the serpent, there was seen a monstrous man . . .

797<sup>4</sup>. A fourth table sometimes appeared there, on which were seen monstrous things in various forms . . .

D. 4626. When any Hell is opened, or when any devil appears thence, he appears monstrous according to the quality of the Hell. Des. 4629<sup>6</sup>.

4718. Those who are evil, . . . as to the face, when seen in the light of Heaven, appear . . . as monsters of various deformity. —.

E. 790<sup>10</sup>. In proportion as he rejects, suffocates, and perverts the truths and goods of the Word . . . he is a monster, and not a man . . .

J.(Post.) 302. As (the Moravians) went away, they appeared as monsters . . . and this monstrous [appearance] was increased even to their entrance beneath the earth . . . and when they came thither, the monstrosity remained, and appeared before the eyes of themselves and their brethren.

D.Love xiv<sup>2</sup>. Those whose love is from the sun of the world . . . do indeed appear in the Spiritual World as men; but in the light of Heaven as monsters.

Monstrous. Immanis.

A. 1787<sup>3</sup>. The Lord's temptations were the most monstrous (or frightful) of all.

T. 123<sup>6</sup>. Hell is like a monstrous lion.

488. The monstrous faith that . . .

E. 388<sup>9</sup>. 'A monstrous lion' (Hos.xiii.8)=the power of falsity from evil.

403<sup>6</sup>. By 'the teeth of a lion' are signified the falsities of that evil; and, as these destroy all the truths and goods of the Church, they are called 'the teeth of a lion, and the molars of that monstrous lion' (Joel i.6).

Month. Mensis.

A. 851<sup>2</sup>. The spiritual man . . . also becomes 'the seventh : ' not 'the seventh day,' like the celestial man ; but 'the seventh month.' 852.

858. 'The tenth month' (Gen. viii. 5)=the truths which are of remainus.

894. 'In the beginning, in the first of the month' (ver. 13)=the first termination.

900. 'The second month' (ver. 14)=every state before regeneration.

1825. The last time of the Church is signified by 'the third day, 'the third month, etc.

3814. 'He dwelt with him a month of days' (Gen. xxix. 14)=a new state of life.

—'. 'Months,' etc.=states, the quality of which appears from the numbers . . . But when 'a month,' etc. is mentioned in the singular, there is signified an entire state ; thus the end of a former and the beginning of the following one . . . Here, therefore, by 'a month' is signified the end of the former state and the beginning of the following one ; thus a new state ; as also elsewhere in the Word. III.

—'. 'Yielding its fruit every month' (Rev. xxii. 2)=a state always new as to the reception of good, and its consequent exercise.

—<sup>2</sup>. As the end of a former state and the beginning of the following one, or a new state, is signified by 'a month,' it was commanded that the numbering of (the sons of Levi, and of the first-born males of the sons of Israel) should be 'from the son of a month and upwards' (Num. iii. 15, 40).

—<sup>3</sup>. 'A month of days,' here (Deut. xxi. 11, 13) manifestly =the end of a former state and the beginning of the following or new one.

4901. 'About three months after' (Gen. xxxviii. 24)=a new state ; (for) 'three'=what is complete . . . and 'a month,' a state ; for all times=states . . . Ex. —<sup>4</sup>.

6721. 'She hid him three months' (Ex. ii. 2)=the fulness of time in which it did not appear . . . 'A month'=time and state.

7827. 'This month is to you the head of the months' (Ex. xii. 1)=that this state is the principal of all states. 'A month'=the end of a former state and the beginning of the following one ; thus a new state. 7828.

7831. 'On the tenth of this month' (ver. 3)=a state of the initiation of the interiors . . . By 'a month' is meant an entire state from beginning to end ; thus the whole state of deliverance which is signified by the Passover . . .

8053. 'In the month Abib' (Ex. xiii. 4)=the beginning of a new state. 'A month'=the end of a former state and the beginning of the following one ; thus also a new state. That 'the month Abib'=the beginning from which are all the following states, is evident from the things which are said about this month in the preceding chapter ; namely, 'This month is to you the head of the months ; this is the first to you in the months of the year.'

8057. 'Thou shalt keep this service in this month' (ver. 5)=the perennial worship of the Lord on account of deliverance . . . 'A month'=the end of a former state and the beginning of a new one . . . Hence also by 'a month' is signified what is perennial.

8400. 'In the fifteenth day of the second month' (Ex. xvi. 1)=the state relatively . . . By 'a month' is signified the end of a former state and the beginning of the following one ; thus a new state.

8750. 'In the third month' (Ex. xix. 1)=the fulness of the state. Ex. 'A month'=a state.

10283<sup>12</sup>. 'A month of days'=perpetually.

Life 97<sup>e</sup>. Let them resist evils in intention only once a week, or twice a month, and they will perceive a change.

R. 427. 'To torment them five months' (Rev. ix. 5)=to induce a stupor for a short time . . . because this is signified by 'five ;' for times, whether months, etc. do not signify time, but state. 439.

446. By 'an hour, a day, a month, and a year' (ver. 15) is signified continually and perpetually, the same as by all time. E. 571.

489. By 'forty-two months' (Rev. xi. 2) is signified even to the end, when not anything remains.

—<sup>e</sup>. The reason they are called 'months,' is that by 'a month' is signified a full state. III.

935. 'Yielding its fruit every month'=that the Lord produces goods with a man according to every state of truth with him. By 'a month' is signified the state of life of man as to truth.

—<sup>2</sup>. The reason why by 'months' are signified the states of life as to truths, is that by 'months' are meant the times designated by the moon. III.

—<sup>3</sup>. By 'months' are signified states of truth ; and, in the opposite sense, states of falsity with man. III.

D. 5668<sup>e</sup>. The infants speak in the angelic language within a month.

E. 401<sup>24</sup>. By 'the products of the months' (Deut. xxxiii. 14) are signified all things which proceed from the Spiritual Kingdom of the Lord. 'Months' here =the same as 'moons ;' namely, truths from good ; for, in the Original Language, there is the same word for both.

548. 'Five months'=so long as they are in that state. 561.

—<sup>2</sup>. For 'a month'=a state . . . The reason 'months'=states, is that all the times in the Word . . . =states of life.

555<sup>18</sup>. Occurs.

633. 'For forty-two months'=even to the end of the Old Church, and to the beginning of the New one. 'Months'=states ; here, states of the Church ; for by times . . . are signified states, and these states are designated by the numbers . . .

796. 'Forty-two months' (Rev. xiii. 5)=plenary vastation and consummation ; thus destruction until there is nothing of truth and good remaining.

J. (Post.) 222. After they have been in the Spiritual World a month, all reject the third Person . . .

Monument. Monumentum.

A. 4676<sup>e</sup>. Therefore they build for themselves magnificent monuments . . .

[A.] 929<sup>3</sup>. As is evident from the most ancient books and monuments of the Gentiles.

L. 24<sup>2</sup>. The Angel said to the woman who came to the tomb . . .

R. 506. 'Not to permit to be in tombs' (Rev.xi.9)= to reject as damned; for 'to be put in tombs, or to be buried, = resurrection and continuation of life . . . Hence by 'not to be put in tombs' . . . is signified to remain in earthly and unclean things, and on this account to be rejected as damned. Ill. 603<sup>e</sup>. E.659.

E. 659<sup>13</sup>. By these words is not meant that those who are in the sepulchres or 'in the tombs,' will hear the voices of the Lord . . . (But) by 'to go forth out of the tombs' (John v.28) is signified out of the material body, which first takes place with everyone immediately after death, and afterwards when the Last Judgment comes forth; for then exterior things are removed, and interior things are opened . . .

—<sup>15</sup>. That 'the tombs had been opened' (Matt. xxvii.52)= . . . regeneration, and the resurrection of the faithful to life . . .

—<sup>20</sup>. Therefore 'to be drawn out of the tombs'=no resurrection to Heaven, nor regeneration; but resurrection to Hell, and consequently damnation. Ill.

899<sup>9</sup>. By 'the tombs' which should be opened are meant the places in the Lower Earth where there have been reserved and guarded by the Lord those who have heretofore lived the life of charity, and have acknowledged the Divine of the Lord . . . These places are signified in the spiritual sense by 'the tombs.' —<sup>10</sup>.

Mood. Affectus. A.2326.

Moon. Luna.

Moonlet. Lunula.

Lunar. Lunaris.

See NEW MOON, and under LUMINARY, and SUN.

A. 337<sup>2</sup>. 'The moon'=faith. 1808<sup>3</sup>. Ill. 1861<sup>4</sup>.

— 'Until there be no moon' (Ps.lxxii.5)=that faith will be love.

862. Faith is called 'night,' because it receives its light from charity, as the moon does from the sun; and therefore faith is also compared to the moon, and is called 'the moon.'

1053<sup>e</sup>. The Lord is a Moon to the Heaven of the spiritual Angels.

1326<sup>3</sup>. 'The moon shall not cause her light to shine' (Is.xiii.10)=the truths of faith [not doing so].

1529. The Lord appears to the spiritual Angels as a Moon. 1861<sup>15</sup>. 2669<sup>2</sup>. 2708. 2776<sup>3</sup>.

1531. That I might be confirmed in the fact that the Lord appears . . . to the spiritual Angels as a Moon . . . I plainly saw the Moon shining, which was encompassed by a number of smaller Moonlets, the lumen of which was almost solar, according to . . . 'The light of the moon shall be as the light of the sun' (Is.xxx.26). . . The Moon appeared in front, at the right. D.4220.

1808<sup>e</sup>. By 'the moon' are signified spiritual things.

1967. When they see anything in lunar lumen . . .

1984<sup>3</sup>. Charity and faith are 'the sun and moon' which will be darkened.

1997<sup>e</sup>. To the spiritual Angels, who are in the affection of truth . . . the Lord appears as a Moon.

2034<sup>e</sup>. The Lord appears as a Moon in the Heaven of the spiritual Angels; and . . . the Moon is the Spiritual of His love. Refs.

2120. 'The moon shall not give her light' (Matt. xxiv.29). . . By 'the moon' is meant faith. 2441<sup>5</sup>.

2242<sup>4</sup>. 'The sun shall be darkened, and the moon shall not cause her light to shine'=no love and no charity.

2441<sup>7</sup>. As (when they began to worship them) the sun and moon received an opposite sense, they=the love of self and of the world. Hence, in the Word, by 'the worship of the sun and moon' is meant the worship of self and of the world. Ill.

2495<sup>2</sup>. 'The moon' (Matt.xxiv.)=the faith of love and of charity.

—<sup>4</sup>. 'The moon shall blush' (Is.xxiv.23)=that faith shall blush.

2708. The light from the Lord with the spiritual is as the light of night from the moon . . . 2716<sup>e</sup>. 2849.

3235<sup>2</sup>. The Lord appears to the spiritual as a Moon, because they are in spiritual love; that is, in charity towards the neighbour. The difference is like that between the light of the sun by day, and the light of the moon by night; and also such as there is between the heat of them both, from which are germinations.

3272<sup>2</sup>. 'The moon' (Rev.xii.)=spiritual love. Refs.

3355<sup>3</sup>. 'The sun and moon' (Joel ii.)=the good of love and its truth.

3693<sup>3</sup>. 'Thy moon shall not be gathered' (Is.lx.20)=that they shall be in the life of truth and in intelligence, because in the spiritual love and light of the Lord.

—<sup>4</sup>. 'The moon' (Ps.civ.19)=intelligence; and 'the sun,' wisdom from the Lord.

3969<sup>16</sup>. The Spiritual Kingdom lives from truth; and therefore the Lord . . . appears to the spiritual as a Moon.

4060<sup>2</sup>. 'The moon shall not give her lumen' (Matt. xxiv.)=that . . . charity towards the neighbour, which is 'the moon' . . . will not appear. . . 'The moon'=the Spiritual of love; that is. . . 'the moon'=charity towards the neighbour which is through faith. Refs. The reason of this signification of . . . 'the moon' is that the Lord in the other life appears . . . as a Moon to those who are charity towards the neighbour, who are called the spiritual. Refs.

4288<sup>3</sup>. In the representative Church . . . when they looked at the moon, they were filled with a holy veneration, because the moon=spiritual love.

4696. 'Behold the sun and the moon' (Gen.xxxvii.9)=natural good and natural truth. . . 'The moon'=spiritual good, or truth. . . 'The moon,' in the supreme sense, also=the Lord, because He appears as a Moon to those in Heaven who are in spiritual love. . . And the light from the Moon in Heaven is the spiritual of love, or truth. Here, therefore . . . 'the moon'=natural truth, because it is predicated of Leah . . . for by 'Leah' is represented natural truth.

4697<sup>a</sup>. By 'the sun and moon' are signified love and charity, or good and truth. Ill.

4735<sup>e</sup>. 'The moon . . . turned into blood'=truth falsified and profaned.

4779<sup>f</sup>. 'The moon' (Rev. vi. 12)=the truth of faith.

4918<sup>g</sup>. 'The moon' which was under her feet=the truth of faith. Refs.

6015<sup>h</sup>. That the good of faith can no longer inflow, is signified by 'the moon shall not make her lumen to shine.' (=that charity and faith cannot come forth with man. 8902<sup>h</sup>.)

6697<sup>e</sup>. Some of the planets have moons, which are called satellites, and which range about their orb in stated times, as the moon does round ours; and the planet Saturn, because it is very far distant from the sun, has also a great lunar ring, which gives much . . . reflected light to that Earth.

7171<sup>e</sup>. (In the ideas of Spirits and Angels) the moon appears to the left, at a considerable altitude: the satellites also to the left relatively to their own planet.

7233<sup>g</sup>. When the voluntary proprium has been separated from the new Voluntary which is in the intellectual part, the lumen there is feeble, such as is the nocturnal lumen from the moon and stars relatively to the diurnal lumen from the sun. Hence, also, it is, that by 'the moon,' in the Word, in the internal sense, is meant the good of spiritual love; and by 'the sun,' the good of celestial love. Refs.

7988<sup>g</sup>. By the moon (as one of the 'army of the heavens') is signified the good of faith.

8902<sup>g</sup>. 'The moon'=faith in the Lord. Refs. 8906<sup>g</sup>.

9228. 'The light of the moon shall be as the light of the sun' . . . 'The moon'=faith from the Lord; thus faith in the Lord.

9232. On the Spirits and inhabitants of the moon. Gen. art. U. 111. D. 3241.

— Some Spirits appeared above the head, and voices were heard thence like thunders . . . I supposed that there was a vast multitude of Spirits . . . (but) the Spirits who were thundering were . . . few, and were as small as children . . . D. 3243.

9233. Some (of them) were sent down . . . and one was carrying another on his back . . . Their faces appeared not unbecomful, but were longer than the faces of other Spirits. In stature they were like boys of seven, but of robuster body. Thus they were dwarfs. I was told by the Angels that they were from the moon.

9234. The one who was carried by the other, was let down and came to me, applying himself to my left side below the elbow; and spoke thence, saying that when they utter their voice they thunder so, and thus terrify the Spirits who want to inflict evil! on them . . . He receded from me to some others, but not quite out of sight, and thundered in like manner. They showed, further, that their voice when sent forth from the abdomen, like an eructation, so thunders. D. 3242a, Ex.

9235. This comes forth from the fact that the inhabitants of the moon do not speak so much from the lungs as do the inhabitants of other Earths; but from the abdomen; and thus from some air collected there; for the reason that the moon is not circumfused with a like atmosphere to that of other Earths. D. 3244.

9236. The inhabitants of the moon relate, in the Grand Man, to the . . . xiphoid cartilage, to which the ribs are connected in front, and from which descends the linea alba, which is the support of the muscles of the abdomen. D. 3245.

9237. Spirits and Angels know that there are inhabitants even in the moon; for they often speak with them: in like manner in the moons or satellites around the Earths Jupiter and Saturn. Those who have not seen them . . . still do not doubt that there are men in these moons, because they are equally Earths; and where there is an Earth there is man; for man is the end for the sake of which is an Earth . . .

9684<sup>g</sup>. The Lord appears to those of the Spiritual Kingdom as a Moon. The Lord appears . . . as a Moon also at a middle altitude opposite the left eye . . . From the Lord as a Moon there is light with those in the Spiritual Kingdom . . . The light in the Heavens is the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord's Divine Human, which, when received by the Angels who are of the Spiritual Kingdom, is called the truth of faith from the good of charity towards the neighbour. Of this good and that truth consists the Middle Heaven, which is called the Spiritual Heaven. The candlestick in the Habitation represented the Moon from which those of the Spiritual Kingdom have light; thus it represented the Lord as to Divine truth there; for . . . the Lord appears to those who are of that Kingdom as a Moon.

— This good becomes spiritual good by the reception of Divine truth as of light from the moon.

— Hence, in the Word, . . . by 'the moon' is signified the Lord as to spiritual good. Refs.

— Hence it is . . . that the south in Heaven is where the Lord appears as a Moon.

9755<sup>g</sup>. 'The statutes of the moon and of the stars for a light by night' (Jer. xxxi. 35)=the goods of faith and of knowledges, from which is the light of truth in the darkness.

10130<sup>g</sup>. Those who love the neighbour from the Lord, turn their eyes to the Lord as a Moon. In like manner those who do truth for the sake of truth.

10604<sup>g</sup>. By 'the moon' (Matt. xxiv.) the Angels do not perceive the moon, but faith in the Lord.

H. 1 (f). 'The moon,' in the Word, = the Lord as to faith, and thence faith in the Lord. Refs.

1118. Before the left eye, the Lord . . . appears as a Moon, of a like bright whiteness, but sparkling more; and of similar size to the moon of our Earth; but that moon appears encompassed with, as it were, a number of lesser Moonlets, each of which is in like manner bright white and sparkling.

— To those who receive Him in the good of faith, the Lord appears as a Moon, bright white and sparkling according to the reception. These are in His Spiritual Kingdom. The reason is . . . that the good of faith corresponds to light . . .

[H.] 119. Hence it is that in the Word, the Lord . . . as to faith is compared to 'the moon'; and also that . . . faith from the Lord to the Lord is signified by 'the moon,' Ill.

—<sup>2</sup>. In these passages, by 'the moon' is signified faith.

122. The moon of the world appears to the Angels as a certain darkness opposite to the moon of Heaven. . . The reason is that . . . the luminosity of the world corresponds to falsity from the love of self . . .

123. Those who turn themselves to the darkness which is in place of the moon, are in the Hells in front, and are called Spirits.

146. The distance between the Sun and Moon in the Heavens is thirty degrees; hence there is a like difference of the quarters.

159<sup>2</sup>. Afterwards this bright whiteness (in which the Sun appears in the third state of the celestial Angels) was seen to advance to the left, towards the Moon of Heaven, and to add itself to its lumen; from which the Moon then shone forth beyond its measure; (which was) the fourth state with those in the Celestial Kingdom, and the first with those in the Spiritual Kingdom. D.4639.

S. 14<sup>2</sup>. By 'the moon which shall not give her lumen' (Matt.xxiv.) is meant the Lord as to faith. 112<sup>6</sup>.

W. 233<sup>6</sup>. The mediate illustration of men through the angelic Heaven which was before the Lord's Advent, may be compared to the light of the moon, which is the mediate light of the sun; and as, after His Advent, that illustration was made immediate, it is said in Isaiah, that 'the light of the moon shall be as the light of the sun;' and in David, 'In His day the just shall flourish, and much peace even until there is no moon' (Ps. lxxii.7).

429. Whereas those who have shunned evils as sins are in the Ultimate Heaven, and are there in a light like the nocturnal lunar light.

P. 167. With some (in the highest Hell) the light is like the nocturnal light from the moon.

R. 27<sup>6</sup>. 'The moon shall not give her lumen' (Matt. xxiv.)=no longer intelligence and faith.

53<sup>2</sup>. 'The light of the moon' (Is.xxx.)=faith from charity.

332. 'The moon became as blood' (Rev.vi.12)=that with them . . . all the truth of faith was falsified. E.401.

— As 'the sun'=the good of love, 'the moon'=the truth of faith; for . . . the moon is bright white from the light from the sun . . . and light=truth from that good.

414. By the light of the moon and stars is signified Divine truth natural from the Word. . . Divine truth in the natural sense of the Word is like the light of the moon and stars in the night; for the spiritual sense in-flows into the natural sense as the sun with its light into the moon, and presents the light of the sun mediately.

447<sup>2</sup>. 'The moon'=the truth of faith.

533. The reason the moon was seen 'under the feet' of the woman, is because the Church on earth, which has not as yet been conjoined with the Church in the Heavens, is meant. By 'the moon' is signified intelligence in the natural man, and faith; and by being seen under her feet is signified that it will be on earth.

—<sup>2</sup>. The Church on earth will be; therefore the moon was seen under the woman's feet, by which here in special is signified faith, through which, such as it is at this day, there is no conjunction.

919. 'The city has no need . . . of the moon . . .' (Rev.xxi.19). . . By 'the moon' is here signified natural intelligence and faith, separated from spiritual intelligence and faith, which is Own intelligence, and faith from self. Ill.

—<sup>2</sup>. 'The moon'=intelligence from the Lord, and faith from Him; hence, in the opposite sense, 'the moon'=Own intelligence, and faith from self. . . Therefore it was an abomination to adore the moon, etc. Ill.

935<sup>2</sup>. See MONTH, here. E.401<sup>24</sup>.

M. 380<sup>4</sup>. Upon the table there was a candle, because there was . . . only the nocturnal lunar light there.

T. 22<sup>3</sup>. They see the earthy parts as lunar brightness, and the watery ones as spots.

D. 555. The moons (of Jupiter) shine for them, so that they live in light . . .

1670. From one of the satellites of Jupiter, which, like the moon, are encompassed with dissimilar atmosphere . . .

4219. Thus the light of the spiritual is from the Lord appearing as a Moon; and, although he does not appear as a Moon, still their light is like the light as of a Moon shining in a lively manner.

4387. The affection of truth is the moon.

E. 175<sup>12</sup>. 'The moon' (Luke.xxi.25)=faith in the Lord. (=faith from love. 304<sup>47</sup>.)

270<sup>3</sup>. By 'the moon and sun' (Is.xxiv.23) is meant their idolatrous worship, and also the falsity of faith and the evil of love.

275<sup>16</sup>. By 'the statutes of the moon and stars from which is the light by night' are signified truths from spiritual good, and from Knowledges, from which is intelligence.

298<sup>5</sup>. 'The moon' (Ps.cxxi.6)=the falsity of evil.

304<sup>5</sup>. 'The moon' (Is.xiii.10)=faith.

329<sup>22</sup>. By 'the moon,' in the Word, is signified the Divine Spiritual, which is Divine truth; and therefore it is said that 'the moon shall be turned into blood' (Rev.vi.12; Joel.ii.31).

365<sup>16</sup>. 'Even until there is no moon'=that there will not be truth separated from good, but conjoined so that they are one; that is, that truth also is good . . . Such is the truth with those who are in the good of love to the Lord from the Lord. 401<sup>8</sup>, Fully ex.

372<sup>3</sup>. That hence there is no truth of faith, is signified by, 'the moon shall not make her lumen to shine' (Ezek. xxxii.7). By . . . 'the moon' is signified the truth of faith.

401. 'The moon became as blood' (Rev. vi. 12) = that . . . all the truth of faith was falsified . . . (For) 'the moon' = spiritual truth, which is called the truth of faith.

—<sup>2</sup>. That 'the moon' = spiritual truth, is for the reason that the Lord . . . in the Heaven where are the spiritual Angels appears as a Moon. . . That the Lord appears as a Moon, is from the light from that Sun; for the Moon derives its lumen from that Sun; and the light in Heaven is Divine truth.

—<sup>3</sup>. That in the Word . . . by 'the moon' is signified the Lord as to Divine truth spiritual, is evident from the following passages. Ill.

—<sup>8</sup>. 'His throne . . . shall be firm to eternity as the moon' (Ps. lxxxix. 37) = the Heaven and the Church which are in spiritual good, which is Divine truth.

—<sup>9</sup>. Therefore . . . those who are in the light of the moon in Heaven are not in pure Divine truth, for they are in many false things, which they have derived from not understanding the Word in the sense of the letter, and which false things appear to them as truths . . . But these falsities are those in which there is no evil, and therefore they are accepted by the Lord as if they were truths.

—<sup>10</sup>. That then there shall be truth in the Lord's Spiritual Kingdom as before there had been truth in the Celestial Kingdom . . . is meant by, 'the light of the moon shall be as the light of the sun.'

—<sup>11</sup>. That there shall not perish . . . the good of charity towards the neighbour with those who are in that Church, is meant by . . . 'Thy moon shall not be gathered.' For the Lord appears . . . to those who are in truths from the good of charity towards the neighbour as a Moon. Hence by . . . 'thy moon' is signified the good of charity, which is its essence is truth from good.

—<sup>12</sup>. 'The moon' (Is. xlii. 10) = the good of charity towards the neighbour, which in its essence is truth from good, and is called the truth of faith. . . 'The moon does not make its light to shine' . . . is said according to the appearance. Ex.

—<sup>14</sup>. 'The moon darkened' = no longer any truth. Ill.

—<sup>18</sup>. 'The moon stood still in the valley of Ajalon' (Jos. x. 12, 13) = that the Church had been completely devastated as to all truth. Ex.

—<sup>26</sup>. 'The light,' and 'the moon' (Job xxxi. 26) = spiritual truths.

—<sup>31</sup>. 'The moon,' in the opposite sense, = falsities thence. Ex.

— The Ancients, with whom the moon signified the Lord as to Divine truth . . .

—<sup>38</sup>. 'The moon' (Rev. xxi.) = natural lumen; for, regarded in itself, natural lumen is from natural love, and the quality of the lumen is according to the quality of the love.

—<sup>39</sup>. 'The moon' (Is. lx. 19) = natural lumen thence. But by . . . 'the moon' in (ver. 20) is meant . . . the Moon of the Angelic Heaven; and by . . . this Moon is signified Divine truth.

411<sup>21</sup>. Most of those in the Spiritual World who have light from the Moon there, dwell upon rocks . . .

412<sup>16</sup>. To the rest (of the Angels), the Lord appears as a Moon.

422<sup>4</sup>. There are also quarters in the Spiritual World which . . . are distant from these quarters about thirty degrees, and which are under the auspices of the Lord as a Moon; for the Lord appears . . . as a Moon to those who are in charity towards the neighbour and the derivative faith.

525. 'There was smitten . . . the third part of the moon . . . ' = that all the good and truth of faith has perished. . . 'The moon' = the good and truth of faith from the Lord.

—<sup>2</sup>. Before the eyes of the Angels, the Lord appears as . . . a Moon before those who are in the good and truth of faith. Hence it is that . . . by 'the moon' is signified the good and truth of faith.

527<sup>2</sup>. By the light from the moon and stars, which is called 'the light of night,' and 'the night,' is meant natural light, such as is with the Angels who look to the Lord as a Moon. . . Those Heavens look to the Lord as a Moon which are in the natural affection of truth; that is, which love truth in order that they may be learned, and may instruct others. As these love it for the sake of what is useful for self, and not for the sake of the truth itself, they are in the light which proceeds from the Lord as a Moon . . .

573<sup>3</sup>. By 'the moon' is signified truth from good.

—<sup>8</sup>. By 'the moon,' in the opposite sense, is signified what is false of faith.

594<sup>9</sup>. 'As the moon' (Ps. lxxxix.) = as to the truth of faith.

659<sup>24</sup>. 'The moon' (Jer. viii. 2) = faith in both senses derived from this love.

708. 'The moon under her feet' = faith with those who are natural, and are in charity; 'the moon' = faith in which is charity.

—<sup>2</sup>. Besides these distinctions of the Heavens (into two Kingdoms and three Heavens), there is also the distinction of them, that there are those who receive light—that is, intelligence—from the Lord as a Sun, and there are those who receive light and intelligence from the Lord as a Moon . . . Those who receive light from the Lord as a Moon, are those with whom the Intellectual and Rational has not been interiorly opened, but only the Natural, and thence they have thought from the memory about the things to be believed; and to think from the memory about these things, is to think solely from such things as they have heard from a master or preacher, which they say and also believe to be truths, even although they should be falsities; for they do not see them any further. These, if they have also been in the faith of charity in the world, in the Heavens are under the Lord as a Moon; for the lumen from which is their intelligence is like the lumen of the moon in the night time . . . Such, also, is the difference, that those who are under the Lord as a Moon, can see nothing in the light of those who are under the Lord as a Sun, for the reason that with them there is not genuine light, but reflected light, which can receive falsities, provided good appears in them, equally as truths. As those who are in the Heavens under the Lord as a Moon are all natural and sensuous, and have nothing in common with those who are in the Heavens under the Lord as a Sun, and as they are also in falsities in which however there is good, the moon was seen under the feet of the woman ; and thereby is meant the faith with those who are natural. —<sup>3</sup> Further ex.

[E. 708]<sup>1</sup>. Those Heavens which are under the Lord as a Moon are also three : higher ones, middle ones, and lower ones ; or, what is the same, interior ones, middle ones, and exterior ones ; but still all in these Heavens are natural . . . for the Natural is distinguished into three degrees in like manner as is the Spiritual. The exterior Natural communicates with the world ; the interior with Heaven ; and the middle conjoins. But still those who are in the Heavens under the Lord as a Moon cannot enter into the Heavens which are under the Lord as a Sun, because their interior sight or understanding has been formed to receive the lunar light there, and not to receive the solar light there . . . But those in these Heavens are those who have been in charity according to their religiosity, or according to their faith . . . From these things it may be evident that by 'the moon' is here meant the faith with those who are natural and are in charity ; and that the moon was seen 'under the feet,' because those who are in the Heavens which are under the Lord as a Moon have nothing in common with those who are in the Heavens under the Lord as a Sun ; inasmuch that the former cannot rise up to the latter.

768<sup>17</sup>. 'The night' = the light of truth . . . such as is with those who are in the Heavens and earth under the Lord as a Moon . . .

C. 210<sup>2</sup>. Therefore those who have done what is good from obedience are in the ultimates of Heaven, and are in light and heat as of the moon . . .

Moor. Maurus.

P. 277<sup>3</sup>. An infant is born black from a black or Moor by a white or European woman, and conversely.

D. 432. That the Moors or Africans seek to be white. —I have heard that the Moors or Negroes, as the Africans, in the other life do not want to be black, but white. They esteem whiteness as beauty, after they have been prepared ; because the Angels of God Messiah are all bright white ; and the interior ones love to be clothed in white garments.

Moorfields. Moorfields.

J.(Post.) 268. See LONDON, here.

Moph. See under EGYPT.

Moraeus. Moraeus. D. 471<sup>7</sup>.

Moral. Moralis.

Morally. Moraliter.

Morality. Moralitas.

Moralist. Moralista.

See under MANNERS.

A. 1111. They who have lived a good civil and moral life, but have persuaded themselves of their meriting Heaven by works . . . (Continued under MERIT.)

1835<sup>3</sup>. There are very many who have lived a moral and civil life . . . but solely for the sake of self . . . In the other life they are among the infernals, because within them there is nothing of good and truth, but evil and falsity, nay, hatred, revenge, cruelty, adulteries, which do not appear before man . . . in proportion as these fears, which are external bonds, prevail.

1906<sup>3</sup>. By these remains . . . of truth . . . man has that he can . . . understand what the good and truth of civil and moral life are . . .

2284<sup>3</sup>. See JUDGE, here.

2915. As to moral life, they live in what is honest and decorous . . . Honesty is the complex of all the moral virtues ; decorum is only the form thereof.

3690<sup>3</sup>. For a life according to these (commandments) is only a moral life . . .

—<sup>4</sup>. But he who is being regenerated is by degrees led from this more remote life, that is, from a moral life, into . . . a spiritual life.

4167<sup>2</sup>. See JUST, here.

4538<sup>4</sup>. By good is not meant civil good and moral good ; for these are learned in the world by means of laws and statutes, and by reflections upon the manners of men. Hence it is that the nations which are outside the Church also know such things. (Continued under GOOD.)

4574<sup>3</sup>. See HONESTY, here.

4941. When those who have led a good moral life have been detained (in the Lower Earth) for some time, they successively put off these principles, and put on principles of truth. 4944.

5126<sup>3</sup>. From adolescence to the age of early manhood—juvenilem aetatem, a communication is opened between the Natural and the Rational by this : that he then learns the truths and goods of civil and moral life, and especially the truths and goods of spiritual life . . .

6598. Honest in moral life ; just in civil life ; and good in spiritual life . . .

8257. Life according to the laws of what is just and honourable, without (spiritual life), is civil and moral life. This life makes a man a citizen of the world . . .

8861<sup>2</sup>. The truths of the civil state which are of what is just, and also the truths of the moral state which are of what is honest . . .

8871. The things which are seen in natural light, which are such as relate to civil and moral good and truth. To counterfeit these things. Sig.

8981<sup>2</sup>. Those who from infancy have thought little about eternal life . . . but still have lived a good moral life, and have also believed in the truths of doctrine of their own Church, when they come to a more adult age, cannot be reformed otherwise than by the adjunction of spiritual good when they are in combat ; but still they do not retain this good, but only confirm by it the truths of their doctrine. Ex.

8987<sup>3</sup>. A life according to these truths they call a moral life, which they separate from the doctrine of the Church, and call moral theology. 9300<sup>2</sup>.

9182<sup>3</sup>. Moral and civil good and truth make the life of the external man . . .

9255<sup>6</sup>. By this moral law concerning the leading back of the stray oxen and asses of an enemy, are signified . . .

9812<sup>2</sup>. To Divine good natural pertains also . . . moral good, which is that of all the virtues which belong to what is honourable (or honest).

9993<sup>3</sup>. When he is delighted with the arcana of the civil state in kingdoms, and with the arcana of the moral state with man. By the moral state is meant the state of the loves and affections, and thence of the thoughts . . .

10067<sup>11</sup>. It is to be known that the things which are of the civil and moral state, now spoken of, conjoin themselves in the external man . . .

10112<sup>2</sup>. Those who have been born within the Church, and still at heart deny the Lord, whatever may be their quality in moral life . . . cannot be saved. Ill.

H. 33<sup>2</sup>. Those who live morally, and believe in the Divine, and do not so much care to be instructed, are in the Ultimate or First Heaven.

319. It is known that the Gentiles live a moral life equally with Christians, and many of them a better one than Christians. A moral life is lived either for the sake of the Divine, or for the sake of men in the world. A moral life which is lived for the sake of the Divine is a spiritual life. In the external form both appear alike; but in the internal form they are completely unlike: the one saves the man; and the other does not save him; for he who lives a moral life for the sake of the Divine is led by the Divine; whereas he who lives a moral life for the sake of men in the world is led by himself. Examp.

—<sup>2</sup>. The man whose moral life is spiritual has Heaven in him; whereas he whose moral life is solely natural has not Heaven in him. The reason is that Heaven inflows from above, and opens his interiors, and through the interiors inflows into the exteriors; but the world inflows from below, and opens the exteriors, but not the interiors . . .

356<sup>6</sup>. The simple (in Heaven) are those who have acknowledged the Divine, have loved the Word, and have lived a spiritual moral life . . .

468. Truths are of three kinds: civil, moral, and spiritual. . . Moral truths relate to those things which are of the life of every man relatively to societies and social relations—consortia; in general, to what is sincere and right; and, in special, to virtues of every kind.

—<sup>2</sup>. There are three degrees of life with every man . . . The Rational is opened . . . to the second degree by means of moral truths . . . but not by merely knowing them . . .

484. It is to be known that all works and deeds are of moral and civil life; and hence that they regard what is sincere and right, and also what is just and fair. What is sincere and what is right are of moral life; and what is just and what is fair are of civil life. . . The works and deeds of moral and civil life are heavenly, if they are done from heavenly love. . . But (they) are infernal, if they are done from infernal love . . .

495<sup>2</sup>. Most believe that they will come into Heaven, because in the world they had led a moral and civil life; not thinking that the evil and the good lead a similar life in externals . . .

512<sup>4</sup>. The interiors of man are opened . . . in proportion as what is Divine and heavenly inflows into the sincere things which are of moral life, and into the just things which are of civil life with man, and makes them spiritual; because the man then does them from the Divine, because for the sake of the Divine . . .

528<sup>2</sup>. In order that a man may receive the life of Heaven, he must by all means live in the world . . . and then by a moral and civil life receive a spiritual one . . .

529. The life of man . . . is threefold; namely, spiritual life, moral life, and civil life. (Continued at full length under LIFE.)

531. The laws of spiritual . . . civil . . . and moral life are delivered in the ten precepts of the decalogue; in the first three the laws of spiritual life; in the four following ones the laws of civil life; and in the last three the laws of moral life. In the external form the merely natural man lives according to the same precepts in like manner as the spiritual man . . . but he does these things solely for the sake of himself and the world . . . Hence it is that he is completely disjoined from Heaven; and therefore he, as he is not a spiritual, is not a moral man, nor a civil man. For, although he does not kill, still he hates everyone who opposes him . . . and thus continually kills; although he does not commit adulteries, as he believes them allowable, he is perpetually an adulterer . . . and although he does not steal, as he desires the goods of others, and esteems fraud and evil arts as not contrary to law, in mind he is continually acting the thief. In like manner with the precepts of moral life, which are not to bear false witness, and not to covet the goods of others . . .

N. 106<sup>3</sup>. That civil good, which is what is just; and moral good, which is the good of life in a society, and is called sincerity; are the neighbour. Refs.

257<sup>2</sup>. That the doctrine of charity has been rejected into a science, which is called moral theology. Ref.

J. 50. (The Mohammedans who had) at the same time lived a spiritual moral life according to their religiosity . . .

56<sup>3</sup>. Therefore they have (there) a similar moral life, and a similar civil life . . .

C. J. 10. (Those in the Former Heaven) had lived morally well; but had not done goods from the origin of good . . .

Life 7<sup>2</sup>. They had thought . . . concerning the good of life that it was a moral accessory for the public good.

12. There are civil good, moral good, and spiritual good. . . Moral good is that which a man does from rational law: through this good and according to it is he a man . . . Moral good is the middle one . . .

13. The man who has spiritual good is a moral man, and also a civil man; but the man who has not spiritual good, appears as if he were a moral and a civil man, but still is not. (Continued under GOOD.)

14. (Thus) with the man who has spiritual good, moral good is the spiritual middle, and civil good is the spiritual ultimate. Hence it is that it is said that the man who has spiritual good is a moral man and a civil man . . .

[Life] 16. The Moral and the Civil with those (who do good from themselves), as to essence, are natural: whereas . . . the Moral and the Civil with those (who do good from the Lord), as to essence, are spiritual.

53. These Laws were promulgated with such a miracle in order that they might know that they are not only civil and moral laws, but also spiritual laws . . . T.282.

108. There are moral men who keep the precepts of the second table of the decalogue . . . and those of them who confirm with themselves that such things are evils, because they are hurtful to the commonwealth, and thus contrary to the laws of humanity, also exercise charity, sincerity, justice, chastity. But if they do these goods, and shun those evils, solely because they are evils, and not at the same time because they are sins, they are still merely natural, and with the merely natural the root of evil remains implanted . . . and therefore the goods which they do are not goods, because from themselves.

109. A natural moral man may appear before men in the world exactly like a spiritual moral man; but not before the Angels in Heaven. Before (the latter) he appears like an image . . . It is different with a spiritual moral man. For a natural moral man is an external moral man; and a spiritual moral man is an internal moral man; and what is external without what is internal is not alive . . .

111. There are various and manifold causes which make a man moral in the external form; but if he is not moral in the internal form also, he is nevertheless not moral. Examps.

F. 64. The Last Judgment was executed (solely) upon those who had been moral in externals . . .

W. 66<sup>2</sup>. Man can think analytically and rationally about the civil and moral things which are within nature . . .

209. The doctrine of degrees . . . has extension also to civil, moral, and spiritual things . . . because everything civil, moral, and spiritual is not anything abstracted from substance; but they are substances. Ex.

211. As all things—res—civil, moral, and spiritual, progress by means of degrees . . . not only by continuous degrees, but also by discrete degrees . . .

P. 36. For there are civil truth, moral truth, and spiritual truth. Those who are in the perception of spiritual truth from the affection of it, are also in the perception of moral and civil truth; for the affection of spiritual truth is the soul of these.

73<sup>5</sup>. The delight of the love (of reputation for the sake of honour or gain) is to appear in the external form as a moral man . . .

96<sup>4</sup>. There is indeed what is civil and moral in the knowledge of beasts; but they are not above this knowledge; because they have not what is spiritual, which gives to perceive what is moral, and thence to think of it analytically.

117<sup>2</sup>. Natural moralists also are such, who believe that civil and moral life with its prudence produces all things, and the Divine Providence nothing.

254<sup>5</sup>. That those (who are completely ignorant about God), if they have led a moral life, are instructed after death by the Angels, and in their moral life receive what is spiritual. Ref.

283. The reason man is permitted to think evils even to the intention of them, is . . . in order that they may be removed by means of civil, moral, and spiritual things; which is done when he thinks that it is contrary to what is just and fair, contrary to what is honourable and becoming, and contrary to what is good and true; thus contrary to the tranquillity, the gladness, and the blessedness of life. By means of these three the Lord heals the love of a man's will . . . But . . . still the man is not in good unless the evils which (have thus been removed) to the sides, tend downwards . . . (which is the case) when the man is shunning his evils as sins . . . for he then condemns them to Hell, and makes them look thither.

296<sup>10</sup>. For the sake of the ends that he may appear as a civil and moral man . . .

322. It is from (this power to understand truth) that a man is able to become a civil and moral man; and he who is civil and moral can also become spiritual; for what is civil and moral is the receptacle of what is spiritual. He is called a civil man who knows the laws of the kingdom wherein he is a citizen, and lives according to them; and he is called a moral man who makes these laws his manners and his virtues, and from reason lives them.

—<sup>2</sup>. I will now say how civil and moral life is the receptacle of spiritual life. Live these laws not only as civil and moral laws, but also as Divine Laws, and you will be a spiritual man. . . A civil and moral man keeps these laws that he may be or may appear to be a good citizen; but if he does not at the same time make these laws Divine, he is only a natural civil and moral man; but if he makes them Divine laws also, he becomes a spiritual civil and moral man. The difference is, that the latter is not only a good citizen of the earthly kingdom, but also a good citizen of the Heavenly Kingdom . . . The goods which they do, distinguish them. The goods which civil and moral men do, are not goods in themselves; for the man and the world are in them. The goods which spiritual civil and moral men do, are goods in themselves; because the Lord and Heaven are in them.

—<sup>3</sup>. (Thus) every man, because he has been born in order that he can become a natural civil and moral man, has also been born that he can become a spiritual civil and moral man. It is only that he should acknowledge God, and not do evils because they are against God; but do goods because they are with God. By this, spirit comes into his civil and moral things, and they live; but without this, there is not any spirit in them, and hence they do not live. And therefore a natural man, however civilly and morally he may act, is called dead; but a spiritual man alive.

326. Some may think that those who do not acknowledge God can be saved equally as those who acknowledge, provided they lead a moral life. Ex.

335. There are means for forming and perfecting natural civil life . . . rational moral life; and . . .

celestial spiritual life. These means follow in succession . . .

R. 272<sup>e</sup>. But he who lives according to them only because they are civil and moral truths, is not saved.

417<sup>7</sup>. They think only of moral charity . . .

450<sup>2</sup>. But those who live a moral life solely for the sake of themselves and the world, do not know this. . . But let them know that when any one dies, he comes into his interiors . . . and therefore the moral things of their life in the world then become like the scales of fishes, which are wiped away. Quite different is what takes place with those who make the precepts of moral life Divine, and then also the civil ones, because they are of love towards the neighbour.

484<sup>8</sup>. Those (solifidians) prevailed who said that the goods which a man does in the state or progression of faith, are only moral, civil, and political goods, which contribute nothing to salvation. 541<sup>3</sup>.

500<sup>2</sup>. They have confirmed with themselves (the adverse proposition) that life according to the precepts of the decalogue is not spiritual life; but only moral and civil life . . .

634<sup>2</sup>. (Those live according to the doctrine of justification by faith alone) who avoid evils (solely) on account of civil and moral laws . . .

865. The Judgment . . . upon those who had been in civil and moral good and no spiritual good . . . Sig. and Ex.

M. 44<sup>2</sup>. The youths (in Heaven) are of such morality that they may be called moralities in their own form; and the beauties of the maidens and the moralities of the youths correspond to each other, as mutual and co-adaptable forms.

102<sup>e</sup>. Moral wisdom shuns evils and falsities as leprosy; especially lascivious things . . .

163. That the conjunction of the wife is effected . . . with the moral wisdom of the husband from without. Ex.

164. To the moral wisdom with the men belong all the moral virtues, which regard life, and enter into it . . . The virtues which pertain to the moral wisdom of men are of various names; and are called temperance, sobriety, probity, benevolence, friendship, modesty, sincerity, courtesy (or obligingness), civility; and also assiduity, industry, expertness, alacrity, munificence, liberality, generosity, activity, intrepidity, prudence; besides others.

—<sup>e</sup>. Justice is of moral wisdom . . .

168<sup>e</sup>. Neither is the moral wisdom of the man possible with women, in so far as it derives from his rational wisdom.

293<sup>4</sup>. To live from Him according to these things, whence is spiritual morality . . .

432<sup>4</sup>. That (he who is in love truly conjugal) becomes more and more moral and civil, because a spiritual soul is in his morality and civility; and the more anyone is morally civil, the more he is a man.

I. 12. That spiritual things thus clothed in man cause that he can live rational and moral; thus spiritually natural. Gen.art.

VOL. IV.

T. 14<sup>4</sup>. The external from which by morality he acts the hypocrite, is (then) buried.

186. Theological things, with those who love truth because it is truth, rise up even into the highest region (of the mind) . . . But moral things, theoretically contemplated and perceived, place themselves beneath these, in the second region, because they communicate with spiritual things . . . Those with whom spiritual, moral, political, and scientific things, are thus subordinated, think . . . and act . . . from justice and judgment . . . (Continued under MIND.)

300. The Angels have names according to their moral and spiritual life.

312<sup>2</sup>. Their bodies by which they exercise their moralities . . .

384. That there is no faith with all those in Christendom who reject the Lord and the Word, although they live morally . . . Ex.

443. That a moral life when it is spiritual at the same time, is charity. Gen.art.

— . Every man learns from parents and masters to live morally; that is, to act as a civil person and to display the offices of honesty, which relate to the various virtues . . . and, as he advances in age, to superadd rational things, and thereby to perfect the moral things of life. For moral life with children even to the first adolescence is natural, and afterwards becomes more and more rational. He who reflects well, can see that moral life is the same as the life of charity . . . Still, in the first period of age, moral life is the life of charity in outermost; that is, it is only its exterior and anterior part . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. (Thus) no one, from the morality of the external man, can form a conclusion as to the morality of the internal . . .

—<sup>e</sup>. It is quite otherwise with those who are moral interiorly, or as to the spirit, which they become through regeneration by the Lord. These are they who are meant by the spiritual moral.

444. That moral life, when it is at the same time spiritual, is the life of charity, is because the exercises of moral life and of charity are the same; for charity is to will well to the neighbour, and thence to act well with him; and this is of moral life also. The spiritual law is . . . 'All things whatever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them . . . ' This same law is the universal law of moral life. But to enumerate all the works of charity, and to compare them with the works of moral life, would fill many pages; let but the six precepts of the second table of the Law of the decalogue serve for illustration. That these are precepts of moral life is evident to everyone; and they also contain all things which are of love towards the neighbour . . .

445. If moral life is regarded in its essence, it can be seen that it is life according to human laws, and at the same time according to Divine ones; and therefore he who lives according to these two laws as one law, is a truly moral man; and his life is charity. Anyone, if he will, can comprehend the quality of charity from external moral life. Only transcribe external moral life, such as it is in civil social relationships—consortis, into the internal man . . . and you will see charity in its type.

[T.] 455<sup>a</sup>. Every man who . . . has led a civil moral life for the sake of various uses as ends, and yet has not curbed the concupiscences residing in the internal man, may believe that his friendship is not such (as is that of the evil for each other). Ex.

459<sup>2</sup>. One said . . . It is my opinion that morality inspired with faith is charity . . . Ex.

564<sup>2</sup>. Every man rightly educated is rational and moral . . . He who has become rational and moral from the world, and not also from Heaven, is not rational and moral except with the mouth and gesture; and within is a wild beast . . . Whereas he who is rational and moral from Heaven also, is truly rational and moral . . . Therefore there is the spiritual rational and moral man, and also the merely natural rational and moral man; and in the world the one is not distinguishable from the other . . . but by the Angels they are known from one another as well as doves are from owls, or as sheep are from tigers.

565. A description of the merely natural rational and moral man.

568<sup>2</sup>. Every man from infancy . . . learns to act morally . . . and when evils spring from their native fountain, he begins to hide them . . . thus he studies only for a moral life in externals, and thus becomes a double man . . . You have said that you have lived morally . . . but have you ever explored your internal man . . .

—<sup>4</sup>. To these things they replied, What is the internal man? . . . We have heard from our ministers that the internal man is nothing but faith, and that piety of the mouth, and morality of the life, are the sign of it . . . To which the Angels replied, Saving faith is in the internal man; so is charity; and Christian faithfulness and morality are thence in the external man . . .

—<sup>5</sup>. I have seen evil moral persons like wild beasts (when their external man was put off).

574<sup>e</sup>. External morality, which is learnt for the sake of covering up their internals, makes (men like apes).

583. Truths and goods . . . are received by man inwardly in such things of him as are from the natural world, which are called things civil and moral.

593<sup>e</sup>. However he may simulate the Christian and moral citizen.

654. (A Christian and a heathen both) do the goods of civility and morality . . . which in part are similar to the goods of love towards the neighbour . . .

754. The good (in a consummated Church) which is then believed to be good, is only the natural good which a moral life produces.

D. 1220<sup>e</sup>. Moral life. Def.

5150. Some had lived morally; but their Moral had been only for the world . . .

5424. They had lived morally . . . but had cared nothing to know the doctrinal things of the Church . . .

5503. Those who were brought to the south were those who had led a moral life from Knowledges about it; so that they had lived well morally and not spiritually, because they had no Knowledges about the truths of faith . . .

5537. If they only think that it is not to be done because it is morally evil, still it is well . . . because such a Moral is a plane for spiritual good and truth . . .

5587. The celestial . . . never think . . . about moral things, and civil things as to what is just and fair, because they see all these things from the truths in which they are.

5744. They had lived morally well; but had not thought about the Lord . . .

5795. (A Christian) ought to live a moral man, and a good one; but with him—because he thinks that all good and truth are from the Lord—a moral man is a spiritual man; but not with those who do not believe in the Divine . . . or with whom moral life is for the sake of self and the world. Their moral life is natural and not at all spiritual.

5798. (Thus) the moral life which is led by both the evil and the good is the same; but is from a different origin . . .

6073. Saying to himself that moral or natural theology teaches better (than the Word) . . . The Angels said (to him), that moral life without theological life does not effect any use; it does not purify from evils; and alone does not conduce to eternal life.

E. 107<sup>3</sup>. Those in Knowledges . . . and not in good of life according to them, can live a moral life equally with those who . . . through Knowledges are in the good of life; but still their moral life is natural and not spiritual; because in their life they do not live sincerely, justly, and well from religion; and those who do not live well from religion cannot be conjoined with Heaven; for religion makes a man spiritual, and conjoins him with the Angels. Ex.

182. 'The Church in Sardis' = those who lead a moral life but not a spiritual one, because they lightly esteem the Knowledges of spiritual things . . . 184.

— What moral life is, and what spiritual life; also what moral life from spiritual is, and what moral life without spiritual. Ex.

— Moral life is to act well, sincerely, and justly with our associates, both in employments and in business of all kinds; in a word, it is the life which appears before men . . . But this life is from a twofold origin, being either from the love of self and the world, or from love to God and towards the neighbour. (The former) moral life is not in itself moral life, although it appears as moral; for (with this man) what is good, what is sincere, and what is just subserve for means to the end, which is, either that he may be raised above others, and command them, or that he may gain wealth . . . (Thus) in his moral life there is hidden nothing else than to obtain all things in preference to others, so that he wants all others to serve him, or else to possess their goods; from which it may be seen that his moral life is not moral life in itself . . . And as all means . . . in their essence are such as are the ends . . . such a life, regarded in itself, is only cunning and fraud ; which also manifestly appears with those with whom these external bonds are loosened. Examps.

—<sup>3</sup>. But spiritual life is quite different, because it is from . . . love to God and from love towards the neighbour ; and hence their moral life also is different, and is life truly moral. Ex.

— . To appearance these lead a like moral life to the former . . . but still their moral life is spiritual . . . Their moral life is only the effect of spiritual life . . . for they act well, sincerely, and justly . . . from the fear of God and from the love of the neighbour . . .

186. That they suppose themselves to be alive because they lead a moral life, when yet they are dead. Sig. and Ex.

187. For moral life without spiritual is also natural life ; (and those who are in it are in natural lumen only).

— . That spiritual life, relatively to moral life without it, is as wakefulness to sleep. Ex.

188. That the things which are of moral life may be vivified. Sig. and Ex.

— . For spiritual life and moral act as one with those who are spiritual ; as do will and action ; will is of the spiritual man and its life, and action is of the moral.

— . Lest the moral life be destroyed by evils and falsities. Sig. For moral life without spiritual is nothing else than natural life ; for all the goods which a man does from moral life without spiritual, are from no other origin than the love of self and of the world . . . For the reason the man wants to be called moral, is that he counterfeits what is good, sincere, and just in the external form, in order to obtain ends which are for the sake of self and the world.

189. That otherwise the Divine is not in the moral life. Sig. and Ex.

— . For moral life, which is the external life of man, must be either from a spiritual origin or from an origin not spiritual ; it is not permitted to be from both ; that is, something of it from one origin, and something from the other . . . The 'works,' therefore, must be either 'full before God,' or they are null before God.

195. Those who lead a moral life from a spiritual origin, by applying the Knowledges of truth and good from the Word to the uses of their life. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. A man lives a moral life from a spiritual origin when he lives it from religion ; thus when he thinks, when what is evil, insincere, or unjust, presents itself, that this must not be done because it is contrary to the Divine laws. (One thus) acquires for himself spiritual life ; and his moral life is then from it ; for by such thought and faith the man communicates with the Angels of Heaven, and (thus) his internal spiritual mind is opened . . . (Thus) to lead a moral life from a spiritual origin is [to do so] from religion ; and, within the Church, from the Word. For those who lead a moral life from these things are elevated above their natural man ; and thus above their proprium ; and are led by the Lord through Heaven. Hence it is that they have faith, the fear of God, and conscience ; and also the spiritual affection of truth . . . Many of the Gentiles live such a moral life ; for they think that evil is not to be done because it is contrary to their religion . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. But to lead a moral life not from religion, but only from fear of the law in the world, and from fear of the loss of reputation, honour, and gain, is to lead a moral life not from a spiritual origin, but from a natural origin ; hence with these there is no communication with Heaven. And as they think insincerely and unjustly about the neighbour, although they speak and act otherwise, their internal spiritual man is closed . . . (and thus) they are not in the light of Heaven ; and therefore such persons, within themselves, have little regard for Divine and heavenly things, and some deny them, believing nature and the world to be everything. . . . Of those who lead a moral life solely from a natural origin, it is said that they 'defile their garments.' Ex.

—<sup>5</sup>. For in the Spiritual World all . . . appear clothed according to their moral life ; and therefore those who have lived a moral life from a spiritual origin appeared clothed in resplendent white garments . . . But those who have lived a moral life from a natural origin only, appeared clothed according to the quality thereof. Des.

388<sup>2</sup>. The evil life which is signified by 'the evil wild beast,' exists equally with those who lead a good moral life, if they have not spiritual life. Ex.

394<sup>2</sup>. All those in the Spiritual World who are interiorly evil, however much they have led a moral life in externals in the world, cannot at all endure anyone who adores the Lord, and who lives a life of charity . . .

413. Only those of the evil (have been reserved to the Last Judgment) who could lead a moral life in externals . . . 912<sup>2</sup>.

714<sup>2</sup>. Every man . . . becomes . . . rational, according to moral and civil life, and the lumen thence acquired.

741<sup>4</sup>. But civil and moral good separated from spiritual good, is not good in itself, because it is from man ; nay, in proportion as self and the world are hidden in it, it is evil ; and therefore it cannot be conjoined with faith . . .

789<sup>2</sup>. They call the doctrine of life moral theology . . . 796<sup>2</sup>.

794<sup>3</sup>. For sincerity is moral good and truth ; and justice is civil good and truth. 831<sup>2</sup>.

798<sup>6</sup>. And whatever a man does from the Lord, is not natural moral, but is spiritual moral.

902<sup>3</sup>. If (these precepts) are done solely from the civil law, or from the moral law, the man remains natural . . .

918<sup>2</sup>. When a man does good because it is truth . . . charity becomes moral good, which in the external form is a like good to that which is with every man who at this day becomes a moral and civil man. But the difference is, that genuine moral good is good from spiritual good, from which it proceeds ; for spiritual good is from the Lord, whereas moral good is from man ; and therefore unless the good from man is from the Lord, thus through man from the Lord, it is not good. The end for the sake of which it is, declares the quality of it. Moral good separated from spiritual good regards man, his honour, gain, and pleasure, as the ends for the sake of which it is ; whereas moral good from spiritual good regards the Lord, Heaven, and eternal life as the end.

[E.] 948<sup>4</sup>. He who is wise, lives (according to the precepts of the decalogue) as a civil man, as a moral man, and as a natural man ; but he who does not live according to them as a spiritual man cannot be saved ; for to live according to them as a spiritual man, is to do so on account of what is Divine in them ; whereas to live according to them as a civil man, is to do so on account of what is just, and in order to shun the penalties of the world ; and to live according to them as a moral man, is to do so on account of what is honourable, and in order to shun the loss of reputation and of honour ; but to live according to them as a natural man, is to do so on account of what is human, and to shun the ill report of not being of a sound mind. All laws, whether civil, moral, or natural, dictate that men are not to steal, to commit adultery, to kill, to bear false witness ; but still a man is not saved if he shuns these evils from these laws only, and unless he shuns them also from the spiritual law, and thus shuns them as sins ; for with this man there is religion, and there is faith that there is a God, a Heaven, and a Hell, and a life after death ; nay, with this man there is also civil life, and also moral life, and natural life ; civil life, because there is what is just ; moral life, because there is what is honourable ; and natural life, because there is what is human. Whereas not to live according to these precepts as a spiritual man, is not to be either a civil man, a moral man, or a natural man ; for with him there is not what is just ; there is not what is honourable ; nay, there is not what is human ; because there is not what is Divine in these things. Ex.

967<sup>o</sup>. Whereas by a life (according to these precepts) from obedience to civil and moral law, the man is conjoined with the world, and not with Heaven ; and to be conjoined with the world and not with Heaven is to be conjoined with Hell.

1000<sup>2</sup>. If a man abstains (from adulteries) from any natural or moral law, and not at the same time from the Divine law, he is still interiorly unchaste and an adulterer. Ex.

J. (Post. 201. They who have been in faith alone, and have led a moral life, have made themselves Heavens, where . . . there is a wintry light (which in the sight of the Angels is) thick darkness . . .

D. Wis. xi. 5a. Moral truths are those which the Word teaches concerning the life of man with the neighbour, which is called charity ; the goods of which, which are uses, in sum have relation to justice and equity, to sincerity and rectitude, to chastity, to temperance, to Truth, to prudence, and to benevolence. To the truths of moral life also pertain things opposite, which destroy charity ; and, in sum, have relation to injustice and inequity, to insincerity and fraud, to lasciviousness, to intemperance, to lying, to cunning, to enmity, hatred, and revenge, and to malevolence. The reason why these latter also are called truths of moral life, is that all things which a man thinks to be so, whether evil or good, are classed among truths . . . These are moral truths.

—<sup>2</sup>. That a spiritual man is also a moral and a civil man. Ex.

— The goods of charity are nothing else than moral goods . . .

— The reason why a moral man is also a civil man, is that civil laws are uses themselves in act, which are called exercises, works, and deeds. Examp.

— It is moral not to bear hatred to the neighbour . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. That what is spiritual is in what is moral and civil. Ex.

—<sup>4</sup>. It follows that he who separates what is spiritual from what is moral and civil, is neither a spiritual man, nor a moral, nor a civil man. From experience.

C. 23. The good before a man shuns evils as sins is civil and moral good ; whereas in proportion as a man shuns evils as sins the good becomes both civil and moral and also spiritual ; and not before.

57. Moral good, which is human good itself—for it is the rational good according to which man lives with man as a brother and associate—is the neighbour in proportion as it derives from spiritual good ; for moral good without spiritual good is external good : it is of the external will, and is not internal good. It may be evil, which ought not to be loved.

60. According to his moral good, a man is a man above the world and lower than Heaven—homo supra-mundanus et infracoelestis.

Moravian. Moravianus, Zinzendorfian.
Moravianism. Moravianismus.

See ZINZENDORF.

C. J. 86. On the Moravians in the Spiritual World. Gen.art.

— With the Moravians, who are also called Herrenhuters, I have spoken much. They first appeared in a valley not far from the Jews ; and after they had been explored and exposed, they were conveyed into uninhabited places . . . They knew how to captivate minds skilfully, saying that they were the remains of the Apostolic Church, and that therefore they salute each other as brethren, and as mothers those who receive their interior secrets ; and also that they teach faith better than all others ; and that they love the Lord because He suffered the cross, calling Him the Lamb, and the Throne of Grace ; besides other like things, by which they induce the belief that the Christian Church itself is with them. Those who, captivated by their bland speeches, accede, are explored by them as to whether they are such as they dare disclose their secrets to. If not, they conceal them ; and if they can, they reveal them ; and then they warn them ; and also threaten those who publish their secret concerning the Lord.

87. As they had done similarly in the Spiritual World, and yet it was perceived that they were not thinking so interiorly, in order that this might be exposed they were intromitted into the Ultimate Heaven ; but they could not endure the sphere of charity and derivative faith of the Angels there, and fled away. Afterwards, as they had believed in the world that they alone would be living, and that they would come into the Third Heaven, they were carried up into that Heaven also ; but when they perceived the sphere of love to the Lord there, they were seized with anguish of heart, and began to be interiorly tortured, and to be moved convulsively like those in the death agony, and therefore they cast themselves thence headlong. By these things it was for the first time made manifest that inwardly they cherished nothing of charity towards the neighbour, and nothing of love to the Lord. They were afterwards sent to those upon whom the office of exploring the interiors of the thoughts has been enjoined ; and it was said by these that they hold the Lord cheap, so reject the life of charity as to abhor it, and that they make the Word of the Old Testament useless, and despise the Word of the Evangelists, and merely of their good pleasure take from Paul where anything is said about faith alone ; and that these are their secrets which they conceal from the world.

88. After it had been made manifest that they acknowledge the Lord as the Arians do, despise the Word . . . and bear hatred to the life of charity . . . then those who had been in the Knowledge and at the same time in the faith of their secrets, were judged to be Anti-Christians, who reject the three essentials of the Christian Church . . . and they were cast outside the Christian world into a desert which is in the confine of the southern quarter, near the Quakers.

89. See ZINZENDORF, here.

90. They say that they have a sensation, and an interior confirmation of their dogmas therefrom. But it was shown them that their sensation had been from visionary Spirits, who when with a man confirm all things of his religiosity ; and that they enter more closely with those who, like the Moravians, love their religiosity, and think much about it. Moreover these Spirits have spoken with them, and they recognized each other.

P. 259. (The existence of heresies, as Moravianism, an argument against the Divine Providence.) Ex. E.1176<sup>2</sup>.

321<sup>3</sup>. Those who are instructed by an influx . . . are instructed by some enthusiastic Spirit, either Quaker, or Moravian . . .

D. 3488. On the best Spirits . . . like those of the primitive or Moravian Church.

3492. It is now said that they were from the Moravian Church, with whom the image of the primitive Church has been preserved.

4785. On the Moravian congregation.—(The secrets of their religion opened.)

4791. Concerning those who are of the Moravian Church.—They appeared a little to the right, in the plane of the sole of the foot. . . They joined the devil in persecuting me when reading and studying the Word. (The secrets of their faith explored, and stated.) They believe that when they love the Lord as a man they can do whatever they please . . . without being condemned, because they are in the Lord.

4792. (When reasoned with) they said that all things with them are holy from the Lord, including evils of life . . . They were told that their sensation . . . comes from the influx of those who had been in that doctrine in the world. They (pre-eminently) want to make proselytes, because they believe themselves alone to be happy ; and therefore those Spirits have such a desire, and influx, whence comes the sensation. E.1182<sup>4</sup>.

4793. They are in a kind of hatred against those who think differently, especially against those who make the Lord to be God . . . They do good to each other ; but this is from friendship, which counterfeits charity. They are also against the Word of the Old Testament ; and, in general, against the internal sense. Thus they no longer love the Lord ; but now begin to persecute Him ; for they make one with the devil in secret . . .

4794. A Spirit who was with me, who was in good . . . was secretly treated by them most shockingly, in the way of adulteration . . . from which it was given to know in what way they believe the truths and goods of the Word . . .

4795. From use and life in the world . . . they hide from others the secrets of their faith, and speak about them only among themselves ; for they fear of being called Socinians . . . Hence also they have social intercourse among themselves, and impress that they alone are those who will be saved . . . Hence it is that those of them who are evil, are interiorly evil ; and think evil interiorly about others, and also do evil to them in secret. 4800.

4796. The reason there is interior friendship with them, is that they think much about their own salvation ; and that they will be saved and no others. 4801.

4797. The same have believed that they are saved from mercy ; but only they ; and that to be saved from mercy is to be received into Heaven, of whatever quality they are as to life, provided they are in such a faith and sensation as they. (They are shown the impossibility of this.)

4798. It is among their secrets that even nefarious things done by them are remitted . . . and therefore they do not restrain themselves from nefarious things, but [perpetrate] them against those who are outside their congregation . . . because they consider them as dead, and as infernal.

— . They infested me a whole night. Des.

4799. It was all who were thus acting conjointly ; and therefore they were removed to the right, in the plane of the sole of the foot, very far off.

— . The Lord cannot be with those who are profane as to the ends of life, and therefore they are kept in this : that they love the Lord as a man, and as it were one of themselves . . . so that there is no faith in the Lord, and therefore no love.

4803. They were brought back into a certain state of their life, in which a number of them together killed a man who had divulged their secrets. Des. . . They had also confirmed themselves in [the belief] that they had done rightly . . .

4804. They believe that they cannot do good . . .

4805. The quality of their state as to truth . . .

4806. (Six of them poison one of their brethren who said that he believed in God the Son.)

[D.] 4807. (They plotted to kill another who had said that the former one ought not to be killed.)

4808. (They determine to kill still another.)

— They are such that if they do not unanimously agree, they think about murdering him who thinks differently; and this from a nefarious zeal for their religiosity.

4809. They were told that the truth of faith and evil of life do not accord; but this they utterly denied, saying that they are still living, and (that therefore) evil is not evil with them . . .

4810. When they are speaking with others about the Lord, they say . . . that the Father is God, and the Lord is His Son, and thus avoid calling the Lord God, and hide what they believe; otherwise they would be counted among the Socinians. For this reason also they so often say the Lamb of God.

4813. Continuation concerning the Moravians.

4815. By such crimes, the rest in that congregation are terrified, and do not dare to speak a word against their persuasive heresy. . . They are interiorly cruel. They listen very attentively to the opinion of another; and if it is different, they think about killing him. Among themselves they say that this is allowable, and good, because it is against the dead, who are infernal . . .

— Nor does one do a benefit to another: if so, he at once becomes an enemy; but they as it were urge that he should give. Such deadly vengeance is there against all who do good. Nor do they speak ill against evil-doers.

— All who admit their persuasive heresy, they believe to be living, and saved . . . and no others.

4816. Where the Lord has spoken concerning love and doing good . . . they said that the Lord then spoke insanely, being in evil like themselves . . .

— They have pretended to be Lutherans . . . but behind the ears is hidden a serpent.

—<sup>9</sup>. They do not call the goods of charity the fruit of faith; but say that the fruit of faith is salvation, however a man lives.

4817. Continuation concerning the Moravians.

— They have loved the Lord because they believed themselves alone to be saved, and to reign in Heaven over all . . . Hence it was evident that the love and honour of the Lord with the Moravians was from the love of self . . .

5808<sup>4</sup>. See LAST JUDGMENT, here.

5886. Concerning the Moravians.—The Moravians appear to the left, near the sole of the foot; and above the head also those who act as a one. The latter suppose themselves to be in Heaven . . . They are almost Socinians . . .

5886a. Therefore those who were above were cast into the north, in order to form some Society there . . . thus remotely from the Christian world. Thither were brought also those who were below. But when they were there, they did not want to be quiet; but . . . excited the Babylonians to introduce evil from behind; and therefore they were conveyed away more remotely to the angle of the north; and were there sent into a cavern, which tended obliquely below the west, to prevent them from injuring others whose religious opinions were not like their own.

5987. See ESPALIER, here.

5988. Concerning the Moravians.—I have been . . . with the Moravians, who were not in the former place to the right, below; but a little in front, in a like plane; and a certain leader, who seemed to be Zinzendorf, at the left at some distance. These with one mouth praised (the declaration of the truths of the Church) . . . but it was perceived . . . that even then they were obstinately and hardly in their own doctrine against them . . . So had they done in the world in order to allure others to themselves, and when in this way they had conjoined them with themselves, they cautiously divulge so much of their secrets as they appear to receive.

—<sup>2</sup>. They utterly deny the Divine of the Lord, and make His Human viler than the human of another, saying that . . . His conception was spurious; that He did not rise again with the body, but was carried off by the disciples or others; and that when he was transfigured it was a vision induced by some Spirits; and many such things which are mentioned about the Lord in the Word, they deny, pervert, and profane . . . These nefarious secrets they have been compelled to divulge, in order that I might know of what quality they are; and therefore it was said to them that they are devils, and worse than the infernals, where all deny the Lord; but not in so nefarious a manner, by acknowledging and profaning . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. As they have said that they loved the Lord . . . they were told that such love does not conjoin at all, except with some simple ones in the Ultimate Heaven . . .

5989. Still, those can be saved from that congregation who have not confirmed themselves in such things, and still more those who have not known them, and have believed the Lord to be primarily worshipped there, and that life also ought to be together with faith.

—<sup>2</sup>. They have foully killed some of their people who had denied such things, supposing that they would divulge their secrets, and that so the congregation would perish, and that they could no longer be among Christians.

—<sup>4</sup>. They believe that when they have their faith they are justified and living, consequently if they receive their secrets; and that then all things which they do are good. Even evil is good, which they explain in a nefarious manner; as the killing of those who are against their religion; and also defrauding and stealing, and the like things . . .

—<sup>5</sup>. They clandestinely attempted to murder me . . .

—<sup>6</sup>. Afterwards all of them were called together, and they were explored as to whether they unanimously believed that the Lord has only a human and not a Divine, and as to whether they had completely rejected everything of charity; and it was found . . . that some of them had not held so nefarious a dogma, and that they had not known those nefarious secrets, and therefore they were gathered together and separated; and those who had held such nefarious dogmas were two-thirds, and these appeared black ; but one-third were not such, who appeared [to have] something of light, in which there was something fiery. When they had been separated, those nefarious ones were given to many, for servitude . . . and thus it came to pass that they were never together so as to make any congregation ; for in that case they would attempt nefarious things. The rest were also divided, and were sent into suitable Societies ; although they wanted to be together ; but this was forbidden.

5990. The organist with whom I dwelt was also infested by them, and they wanted to kill him too, because he had not approved of their nefarious dogmas ; but for a number of reasons they did not dare to do it . . .

5995<sup>2</sup>. The Zinzendorffians say . . . that they (like the Lord) are sons of God ; that they have been adopted ; that they are without sins ; that they are the life and the Truth ; that God is in them, and they in the Lord ; that by 'doing' and 'deeds' is meant such a life ; thus that evils and goods of life are not to be thought about ; that any evil with them is not regarded by God. They do not want the goods of life to be the fruits of faith, because life is not attended to by God, but faith, and because works effect nothing. They make all good works meritorious. The goods which they do mutually they call goods of friendship. They call their life blameless, because it is living through faith.

6017. Concerning the Moravians.—I was with the Moravians who have confessed their errors, and have begun to want to receive truths, because they see themselves to be in a miserable state, and thus not as they had believed, that they should come into Heaven in preference to all others. I spoke with them about the Lord, whose Divine they did not as yet want to accept. They wanted to call Him God as men [are so called], Aaron, for instance ; scarcely as the Angels are. They acknowledged that life effects [something], and not faith alone ; and that good is to be done as of ourselves. Concerning baptism they said that they had made it a vain thing, but still had held to it for the sake of the Reformed ; and that the Holy Supper was only a seal . . .

6043. On Zinzendorf and the Moravians.

—<sup>2</sup>. He was brought to his followers who had been long dead, and saw that they do not know anything of truth, and that they are in a state almost miserable, in hope and expectation only, often between hope and fear. They have hope from their persuasion in the world that they are living above all others. When they want to receive truths, falsities oppose themselves, which cannot be dispelled. These know that the sensation, on account of which they had gloried in the world, had been from Spirits who were of the same sect . . . They are skilful in falsifying the Word . . . They are Arians : this is one of their secrets . . . When they say that they are living above others, and it is asked where are the truths and goods through which is life, they say, In faith . . . J.(Post.)41.

—<sup>3</sup>. In their preachings it is customary to say, Thou believest that thou art approaching Heaven, and in proportion as thou believest that thou approachest, thou goest away ; and thus they do not reveal what this means ; but they understand that [such persons] acknowledge the Divine of the Lord as equal with the Divine of the Father, and that they should do good works. Those who divulge their secrets, and refuse [to belong to] their sect, they want to kill ; and if they do it they make the excuse that it is for the sake of the Truth ; and on account of this hatred of theirs . . . Zinzendorf removed himself a little from them. On account of their falsities, and of their having no goods, they completely close Heaven against themselves : all things which they call truths are falsities : they are not willing that faith should operate goods, but that all things are good through their faith. They say that the Lord is to be loved on account of the passion of the cross ; but is not to be worshipped : that the Holy Supper is only in remembrance of His passion, and that they approach it from obedience. They live together apart, because they had done so in the world ; and when convinced by others that they are in falsities, and as to what truths are, they depart, saying that they do not want to be convinced.

6060<sup>2</sup>. I have spoken with one of the Moravians . . .

6081. Concerning the Moravians and Zinzendorf.—The Moravians . . . ascended on high . . . and were there divided into a few Societies ; but, as they wanted to dominate . . . they looked down, and bound themselves with a certain devil, through whom they compelled others who did not acknowledge their religiosity to obey . . . but when their time came, they were cast down in their order, and were compelled to enter a cavern, which they entered complaining . . . but as they could not remain there . . . they were sent out, and most of them were cast into deserts, where they live miserably. Those who wondered at this were told the reason : that they have rejected the three essentials of the Church and of Heaven . . .

6101<sup>3</sup>. (This English bishop) has communication with the Moravians in the desert.

6102. Concerning the Moravians.—They said to some of them that they acknowledge the Divine of the Lord, but were then compelled to open the thoughts of their hearts . . . and then said openly that the Divine of the Lord is no other than what is with men who are in faith in the Father ; and that He was an entirely simple man, simpler than many among themselves ; and that they believe the things which He has spoken no otherwise than as they believe any other simple man . . . Also that He was born of Mary from Joseph as father, and that the things which are set forth in Luke are figments. Also that God the Father has not been content with Him, because He said that men should have faith in Him ; but still He called Him His Son because He suffered the cross. Besides more things which are scandals.

D.Min. 4762. Concerning the Moravian Church.—(Their definition of faith.)

4763. It is a Society of interior friendship . . . They take away from others the interior delight of life . . . For all who are within the Society they call brethren, and with these they have the delight of life interiorly ; but all others, who are outside their Society, they spurn, and call dead . . . All the good of charity which others do, whether they give to the poor, pour out prayers, frequent churches from piety . . . they hold cheap . . . believing that they place merit in these things, and that such can be saved with more difficulty than robbers, adulterers, and miscreants; consequently they completely reject the life of good. But they praise the life of good of those who are within their congregation, provided it is not such as stands out and appears. But they do this not from charity, but from interior friendship; for friend praises friend, and thinks well about him; and this in the degree in which he perceives delight from social intercourse with him.

[D.Min.]4764. These in the other life are such that wherever they come they destroy the things which are of innocence and heavenly love; except those among them who do not despise others in comparison with themselves . . .

4766. They were shown that they cannot possibly be in true humiliation towards the Lord, and consequently in love to Him, if they believe that they have been chosen in preference to others . . .

4770. They reject the Old Testament as abrogated . . .

4797. Concerning those who are of the Moravian Church. (Their situation and quality.) 4803.

4806. Concerning the Moravian congregation.—They are Societies of interior friendship . . . but not among the best ones. Ex. . . When they apperceive that others are saved, they think little about the Lord . . . Above others they are in principles concerning faith . . .

E. 893<sup>2</sup>. This is manifestly evident with those who are of the Moravian congregation, who are pre-eminently defenders of faith separated, (and who) say that . . . all are rejected from Heaven who in their life think from religion about the doing of goods . . .

J.(Post.) 45-57. (In these paragraphs are collected and repeated the statements made in the Spiritual Diary concerning the Moravians.) Also in 278-280.

282. Concerning the Moravians in London (there).

294. Concerning the Moravians.—They have said that they were the remains of the Apostolic Church, and therefore call themselves brethren; and therefore some of their Society which is beneath the earth were sent to those who had been converted and were of the Church in the time of Paul and the Apostles. (Their conversation with the Colossians, Thessalonians, etc., stated at full length. 295-297.)

300. The reason they could become such in the world, when yet they pray to the Father and are religious, is that they have denied the Divine of the Lord . . .

302. Some hundreds of them went to a Society where charity reigned, and those hundreds were in the persuasion that they were living, and that those who were in charity were dead. From this persuasion the Angels of the Society of charity appeared before their eyes to be blackish, and they themselves somewhat exteriorly to be Angels . . . Therefore they were commanded to go away, and as they went they appeared monstrous . . . and this monstrosity remained and appeared before their own eyes and those of their brethren; and they were afterwards punished long and severely, to prevent them from approaching other Societies, and by persuasion inducing such a thing on others, and thus alluring them to their insane dogma, so that they should believe that they are living . . . The punishment lasted until they asseverated that they would do so no more; for their desire to allure and lead others to their side by various cunning arts is very great. They are deceivers.

366. On the Moravians. I spoke with them about their brotherhood, as to whether it is of love or of charity. They said not, but only of friendship, because [it comes from being] of the same opinion with them. They do not admit the word love or charity into religion.

De Verbo 13<sup>2</sup>. The Moravian Spirits confirm all things of Moravianism (with the man to whom they speak).

More. Plus.

A. 549<sup>e</sup>. One (Angel) loves another more than himself. 1594<sup>e</sup>. 2057<sup>2</sup>. 4286. 6711. D.3906. 4046<sup>e</sup>.

2130<sup>2</sup>. The more who come there, the happier they are . . .

2590. Many Christians who have led an evil life.

2715<sup>2</sup>. The celestial love the neighbour more than themselves.

3629<sup>e</sup>. The more there are, the better is the correspondence; because perfection and strength are from the unanimous multitude of many . . .

4286<sup>2</sup>. The natural Angels do not love others more than themselves.

6368. The deliverance of many from Hell. Sig. and Ex.

H. 71. In proportion as there are more (or many) in one Society . . . the more perfect is its human form. Ex. J.12.

379. Conjugal love not possible between one husband and a number of wives.

N. 9. So that from many (Churches) it makes one.

D. 4104. He who in the life of the body loves the neighbour as himself, in the other life loves the neighbour more than himself. See A. 548.

D.Wis. i<sup>2</sup>. These receive more of light . . . But this more is an apparent more; for they are not more wise than in so far as the love with them makes a one with the wisdom.

More interior. Intimior. See under HEAVEN.

D. 677. Concerning more interior things. 680. 1214.

1139. Concerning Spirits who do not want to hear the interior and more interior things of the Word. 1140.

1178. They cannot tolerate the more interior things; but desire to remain solely in interior ones. 1179. 1180.

1737. When interior and more interior things favour their cupidities . . .

1747. The cuticular ones are averse to interior and more interior things.

1827. There is a mind still interior, or more interior . . .

2462. Concerning the more interior and inmost things of the Word.

2477. Concerning the inscrutability of inmost and more interior things.

2487. That the inmost and more interior things of man cannot be injured, but only his interior things.

2562<sup>e</sup>. How much more the more interior things which inflow into the interior ones.

Moreh. Moreh.

A. 1401. 'The oak-grove of Moreh' (Gen.xii.6) is the third state (of the Lord).

1439. 'Even to the oak-grove of Moreh'=the third state; namely, the first perception, which is 'the oak-grove of Moreh.' 1442, Ex. 1443, Ex.

1443. By the trees of an oak-grove are signified exterior perceptions, or those of scientifics . . . Hence it is that 'the oak-grove of Moreh'=the Lord's first perception; for He was still a child . . . Moreover, the oak-grove of Moreh was where the sons of Israel also first came when they had passed over Jordan, and saw the Land of Canaan (Deut.xi.29,30) by which also the first of perception is signified.

2145. The perception which is signified by 'the oak-groves of Mamre' . . . is more interior than that which is signified by 'the oak-grove of Moreh.'

Moria. Moria. D.6046.

Moriah. Moriah.

A. 2775. 'Go to the land of Moriah' (Gen.xxii.2)=a place and state of temptation. . . That 'the land of Moriah'=a place of temptation, is evident from the fact that Abraham was commanded to go thither, and to offer his son there for a burnt-offering, and thus to undergo the last of temptation. That Jerusalem, where the Lord Himself endured the last of temptation, was in that land, is evident from the fact that on mount Moriah the altar was built by David, and afterwards the Temple by Solomon (2 Chron. iii. 1). Compare 1 Chron.xxi.16-28 with 2 Sam.xxiv.16-25. 2777.

Moribund. Moribundus. H.518<sup>e</sup>.

Morning. Mane.

See under DAWN, EARLY, and EVENING.

A. 22. 'There was evening, and there was morning, day first' (Gen.i.5) . . . 'The morning' is every following state, because it is one of light, or of Truth and the Knowledge of faith. . . 'Morning' in general = all things which are proper to the Lord. Ill.

—<sup>2</sup>. As it is 'morning' when there is faith, 'the Advent of the Lord into the world is called 'the morning.'

—<sup>e</sup>. 'Morning' is in like manner taken in the Word for every Advent of the Lord; thus it is a word of the new creation.

408. The Church then begins anew, or a new light shines forth, which in the Word is called 'the morning.' 1837<sup>2</sup>.

2333. 'In the morning ye shall rise and go on your way' (Gen.xix.2)=thus confirmation in good and truth.

—<sup>1</sup>. 'Morning,' in the Word, =the Kingdom of the Lord, and whatever belongs thereto; thus principally the good of love and of charity.

—<sup>3</sup>. When 'morning' is read (in the Word), the Angels do not then get the idea of any morning of a day; but the idea of morning in a spiritual sense. Ill. . . . Thus for 'morning' they perceive the Lord, or His Kingdom, or the heavenly things of love and of charity; and these with variety according to the series of the things . . .

2405<sup>5</sup>. 'In the morning will He give judgment for light' (Zeph.iii.5); 'the morning'=the time and state of the Judgment, which is the same as the Advent of the Lord; and this is the same as the approach of His Kingdom.

—<sup>6</sup>. As 'the morning' signified these things, in order that the same might be represented, it was commanded that Aaron and his sons should . . . 'order the lamp from evening even to morning before Jehovah' (Ex.xxvii.21). 'The evening,' here, is the twilight before the morning. In like manner that the fire upon the altar should be kindled every dawn (Lev.vi.5). And also that nothing of the paschal lamb, or of the sanctified things of the sacrifices, should be left till the morning (Ex.xii.10; xxiii.18; xxxiv.25; Lev.xxii.29, 30; Num.ix.12); by which was signified that when the Lord came, sacrifices should cease.

—<sup>7</sup>. In a general sense it is called 'morning' both when the dawn appears, and when the sun rises; and then 'morning' is taken for Judgment both concerning the good and upon the evil. Ill.

—<sup>8</sup>. As 'the morning,' in the proper sense, =the Lord, His Advent, and thus the approach of His Kingdom, it is evident what 'morning'=besides; namely, the rise of a new Church; for this is the Lord's Kingdom on earth; and this both in general and in particular; nay, even in the singular: in general, when any Church in the world is being raised up anew; in particular, when a man is being regenerated . . . and in the singular, as often as the good of love and of faith is operating with him; for in this is the Advent of the Lord. Hence the Lord's resurrection on the third day in the morning involves all these things . . .

2540. 'Abimelech arose in the morning early—in matutino' (Gen.xx.8)=clear perception, and the light of confirmation from celestial good. . . 'Morning,' here, =clear perception. 2673.

2780. 'Abraham arose in the morning early' (Gen.xxii.3)=a state of peace and of innocence; as is evident from the signification of 'morning,' and of 'arising in the morning,' when predicated of the Lord, who, here, is 'Abraham.'

—<sup>9</sup>. 'Morning,' in the universal sense, =the Lord, and hence His Kingdom, consequently the Celestial of love in general and in particular; and, as it =these things, it =the state itself in which they are, which is a state of peace and of innocence. A state of peace in the Heavens is circumstanced as is a state of dawn on earth . . .

—<sup>e</sup>. As, in the supreme sense, 'morning'=the Lord, and the state from Him which effects and affects those things which are in His Kingdom, 'morning,' and 'to arise in the morning,'=many things which come forth in that state, and this in predication to those things which follow together in the internal sense.

[A.] 3171. 'They arose in the morning' (Gen.xxiv.54)=a degree of elevation. 'Morning'=the Lord, His Kingdom, and the derivative state of peace.

3458. 'In the morning they arose early' (Gen.xxvi.31)=a state of illustration . . . for 'the morning,' and 'the dawn,' in the supreme sense,=the Lord; and, in the internal sense, the Celestial of His love; hence, also, a state of peace.

3579<sup>4</sup>. See Dew, here.

3723. 'In the morning Jacob arose early' (Gen.xxviii.18)=a state of illustration . . . 'Morning'=the advent of heavenly light; thus, here, elevation from obscurity into light . . .

3837. 'It was in the morning' (Gen.xxix.25)=illustration in that state. 'Morning'=illustration.

4214. 'In the morning Laban arose early' (Gen.xxxi.5)=the illustration of that good by the Lord's Divine Natural. 'To arise early in the morning'=illustration.

4240<sup>3</sup>. 'The morning cometh' (Is.xxi.12)=the Advent of the Lord, and the consequent illustration with those who are in 'the night'; that is, in ignorance; but illustration by the Lord's Divine Natural. 6000<sup>6</sup>.

5097. 'Morning'=a state of illustration; thus what is revealed and clear. 'The reason 'morning,' or 'early,'=these things. Ex.

— Morning, or early, in Heaven is a state of illustration, namely, as to those things which are of good and truth; which state comes forth when it is acknowledged, and still more when it is perceived, that good is good and that truth is truth. Perception is internal revelation. Hence by 'morning' is signified what is revealed; and as, then, that becomes clear which before had been obscure, by 'morning' is also signified what is clear.

—<sup>2</sup>. Besides, by 'morning,' in the supreme sense, is signified the Lord Himself; for the reason that the Lord is the Sun from which is all the light in Heaven; and He is always in the rising; thus in early morning—matutino. He is always rising also with everyone who receives the truth which is of faith, and the good which is of love.

5579<sup>2</sup>. In the Spiritual World, after this hunger, there comes twilight and morning. 5962<sup>2</sup>.

5672. The times of the day, as morning, etc., in the other life, correspond to the illustrations; and the illustrations there are those of intelligence and wisdom . . . The alternations of the illustrations there are like morning, noon, and evening on earth . . .

5725<sup>3</sup>. This is the morning, or spring, of Spirits. Des.

5740. 'In the morning it was light' (Gen.xliv.3)=a state of illustration then. . . 'Morning,' in the supreme sense,=the Lord; and therefore when it is said, 'in the morning it was light,' it=a state of illustration; for all illustration is from the Lord.

5962<sup>2</sup>. Spirits and Angels have morning, noon, and evening; also twilight, and again morning; and so on. It is their morning when the Lord is present and blesses them with manifest happiness; they are then in the perception of good . . .

6073<sup>2</sup>. For twilight and morning, which follow the night,=the first of the Church.

6110. When it is morning with the Angels, goods are subministered to them; when it is noon, truths . . .

—<sup>6</sup>. Morning in Hell is the heat of cupidities . . .

6442. 'He shall seize in the morning . . .' (Gen.xlix.27)=(the deliverance of the good) when the Lord is present . . . 'Morning,' in the supreme sense,=the Lord.

6829<sup>2</sup>. When man emerges from temptation, spiritual light appears together with its heat; that is, truth with its good. Hence he has gladness after anxiety. This is the morning which succeeds the night in the other life . . . 7193<sup>3</sup>.

7218<sup>2</sup>. But when Spirits have a state of morning and noon, their thought is in a free state; for then they are allowed to think about the things which they love; thus about the truths and goods of faith and of charity.

7435. 'To arise in the morning'=elevation. Refs. 7538.

7681. 'It came to pass in the morning' (Ex.x.13)=a state of Heaven in order. 'Morning'=the Lord's Kingdom; and, in the supreme sense, the Lord Himself; and also a state of illustration (Refs.); but here by 'morning' is signified Heaven in order. Ex.

7844<sup>4</sup>. By 'morning' (Dan.viii.14) is meant the light and the rise of a new Church from the Lord (when He came into the world).

7860. 'Ye shall not leave of it until the morning' (Ex.xii.10)=the duration of this state before the state of illustration in Heaven. 'Morning'=Heaven and the state of illustration there. 8478. 8480.

—<sup>2</sup>. The state of their elevation into Heaven is represented by the introduction into the Land of Canaan. This state is that which is meant by 'the morning.'

7924. 'Even till morning' (ver.22.)=to a state of illustration.

8108<sup>2</sup>. When it is morning and noon (in Heaven), there is illustration of the understanding by the Lord; but this illustration is then tempered with what is obscure of truth, as with a cloud. (Continued under EVENING.)

8211. The end and the beginning of these variations is the morning; and, in special, the twilight; for then night is ended and day begins. In the state to which morning corresponds, the good begin to be illustrated as to the things which are of faith, and to grow warm as to the things which are of charity; and so on the other hand, for the evil then begin to be darkened by falsities, and to be chilled by evils; consequently to the latter the morning is a state of thick darkness and destruction; and to the former it is a state of illustration and salvation. —<sup>3</sup>, III.

—<sup>4</sup>. As 'the morning'=(these things), it = the time of the Last Judgment, when those who are in good are to be saved, and those who are in evil will perish; consequently, it=the end of the former Church, and the beginning of the new Church . . . Ill.

— In these passages, 'morning'=the Advent of the Lord, and the illustration and salvation then; thus [it is predicated] of a new Church.

8226. 'At the turn of the morning' (Ex.xiv.27)=the presence of the Lord. Ex.

8246<sup>2</sup>. The beginning of every state (in the Spiritual World) corresponds to morning on earth; and is also sometimes meant by 'morning,' in the Word. . . When it is morning, they are in love; when noon, they are in truth . . .

8247. 'In the morning ye shall see the glory of Jehovah' (Ex.xvi.7)=that in the beginning of a new state is the Advent of the Lord.

—<sup>2</sup>. It is said 'in the morning they should see the glory of Jehovah,' because the sunrise and the consequent light, which in Heaven illustrates the external and internal angelic sight; and consequently the presence and Advent of the Lord . . . corresponds to the early morning time on earth, and is here signified by 'the morning.'

8431. By that which has been given in the early morning time, is signified spiritual good . . . for the morning state in the other life is when spiritual good, or that of the internal man, is in clearness; and natural good, or that of the external man, is in obscurity . . .

8455. The morning is a state of peace.

8485. 'Morning by morning' (ver.21)=constantly. Ex.

8497. 'Till the morning' (Ex.xvi.23)=coming enjoyment. 8498.

8687. 'From morning even till evening' (Ex.xviii.13)=in every state, interior and exterior . . . For, in the other life, they are interiorly in good and truth when in the morning state there; that is, in a state corresponding to the early morning time . . . When they are in the morning state, they are in spiritual delight.

8750<sup>2</sup>. The Sun in the other life . . . does not distinguish the day into morning, noon, etc. . . Hence in Heaven instead of times there are states; but as in the innermost sphere of Heaven there is a certain progression according to the Divine heavenly form . . . the Angels are alternately in the good of love, in the truth of faith, and in obscurity as to both. Hence it is that there is a correspondence of the states there with the times in the world; namely, of a state of the good of love with morning; of a state of the truth of faith with noon . . .

8812. 'When it was morning' (Ex.xix.16)=a state when in good; (for) 'morning'=a state of the good of love. —<sup>3</sup>.

9299. 'The fat of My feast shall not remain overnight even till morning' (Ex.xxiii.18)=the good of worship not from proprium, but always new from the Lord. . . 'The morning'=the Lord and His Advent . . . hence, here, by 'morning,' where it treats of the good of worship not from proprium, is signified that good always new from the Lord.

9387. 'He arose in the morning early' (Ex.xxiv.4)=

joy from the Lord; (for) 'morning,' and 'early'=the Lord, and the things which are from Him; as peace, innocence, love, joy. The reason 'morning,' and 'early,' =these things, is that . . . the alternations of the day . . . correspond to so many states in Heaven. Hence morning corresponds to the Advent and presence of the Lord, which is when the Angel is in a state of peace, innocence, and heavenly love, and is thence in joy.

9787. 'From evening even to morning before Jehovah' (Ex.xxvii.21)=constantly in every state. . . 'Morning'=the beginning of another state . . . and 'morning' involves every state of light which is signified by the following day; for, with the Lord, following and future things are together in the present . . .

10114. 'What was left . . . until the morning' (Ex.xxix.34)=the spiritual and celestial goods which have not been conjoined with the new state. Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. A new state is every state of the conjunction of good and truth, which is when a man who is being regenerated acts from good . . . and not as before from truth. There is also a new state when (the Angels) are in the good of love, which state is there called morning . . . and there is also a new state when an old Church ceases and a new Church begins. All these new states are signified in the Word by 'morning.' Ill.

10134. 'One lamb thou shalt do in the morning' (Ex.xxix.39)=the removal of evils by the good of innocence . . . in a state of love and of the derivative light in the internal man. . . 'Morning'=a state of love and the derivative light in the internal man.

—<sup>3</sup>. The reason 'morning'=(this,) is that in the Heavens . . . the states as to love and the derivative faith are varied as the times as to heat and light are with men in the world. . . Hence in the Word by 'morning' is signified a state of love . . .

—<sup>4</sup>. The reason why by 'morning' is signified a state of love and the derivative light in the internal man, is that when an Angel is in a state of love and light he is in his internal man . . .

—<sup>7</sup>. These states (of regeneration as to love and faith) are also meant in the Word by 'morning,' etc.; and in like manner the states of the Church; its first state is also called 'morning,' in the Word . . . But when the Church is in its night, the morning then begins from twilight with another nation, where a new Church is being instaurated.

—<sup>9</sup>. The first state of the Church (as with a man in particular) is a state of infancy, thus also of innocence, and consequently of love to the Lord. This state of it is called 'morning' . . .

—<sup>10</sup>. That 'morning'=the first state of the Church, and also a state of love. Ill.

—<sup>11</sup>. 'Morning' (Dan.viii.14)=the first state of the Church after the Lord's Advent; and, in the supreme sense, it=the Lord Himself . . . because He is the Sun of Heaven, (which) never sets, but is always the Rising.

—<sup>11</sup>. 'The morning cometh and also the night' (Is.xxi.12)=that although there is illumination with those of the new Church, still there is night with those who are in the old one.

—<sup>12</sup>. As 'morning,' in the supreme sense,=the Lord, and thence love from Him to Him, the manna . . . rained down every morning . . .

[A. 10134]. And as the Lord is the Rising and the morning, and as everything of heavenly love is from Him, He rose again on the morning of the Sabbath day.

—<sup>13</sup>. By the time when 'the cock crew' was signified the last state of the Church . . . Hence it is that it was said that Peter should 'deny thrice.' This was done in the twilight, when the morning was about to come (John xviii.28).

10135. When the Angels are in a state of love, it is morning with them, and the Lord then appears to them as a rising Sun . . .

—<sup>4</sup>. But it is to be known that this (heavenly) morning involves noon also . . . for when 'morning and evening' are mentioned in the Word, the whole day is meant, thus by 'morning,' noon also . . . Hence it is that by 'morning' is here signified a state of love and also of light in clearness . . .

10200. 'In the morning in the morning' (Ex.xxx.7) = when the state of love is in clearness; (for) 'morning' = when the state of love is in clearness; hence 'in the morning in the morning,' or in each morning—singulis matutinis, = when there is this state.

10413. 'To rise in the morning' (Ex.xxii.6) = excitation by their loves; for by 'morning' is signified a state of love; and by 'to rise,' elevation to it. . . But when 'to rise in the morning' is said of those who are in externals without an internal, thus of the evil, by 'to rise' is not signified elevation, but excitation; and by 'morning' is not signified a state of heavenly love, but a state of infernal love; for when the evil are in this state they are in their morning; for they are then in the delight of their life. Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. When it is morning with those who are in the Heavens, they are in a state of heavenly loves, and thence in their joy; whereas in the Hells they are then in a state of infernal loves, and thence in their torment; for then everyone wants to be the greatest, and to possess all things of another's, and hence come intestine hatreds, fiercenesses, and cruelties . . .

10605. 'Be ready at the morning, and come up in the early morning—matutino—to Mount Sinai' (Ex.xxxiv.2) = a new rise of the revelation of Divine truth. 'Morning' = a rising state, or a rise. Ex.

H. 155<sup>2</sup>. Morning corresponds to the state of their love in clearness . . .

—<sup>e</sup>. 'Morning,' in the Word, = the first and highest degree of love.

289<sup>2</sup>. This peace is circumstanced comparatively as is the morning or dawn in the spring time. (Continued under DAWN.)

C. J. 13. That the state of the world and of the Church . . . after the Last Judgment is like morning and day. Ex.

—, When the light of truth appears, and truth is received, the state of the Church in the world is like morning and day. Hence it is that these two states of the Church are called in the Word 'evening and morning.' III.

—<sup>e</sup>. Therefore the Lord . . . was buried in the evening, and afterwards rose again in the morning.

S. 99. The state of the Church after the Lord's Advent is called 'morning.'

W. 73<sup>e</sup>. When times are predicated of the Church, by its 'morning' is meant its first state . . .

R. 151<sup>2</sup>. The reason it is called 'the morning—matutina—star' (Rev.ii.28) is that by 'morning—matutinum,' or morning, is signified the Advent of the Lord, when there is a new Church. III.

476<sup>e</sup>. 'Morning' (Ezek.vii.7) = the beginning of a new Church; and therefore it is said 'the time is come.'

752. Every morning (Sixtus V.) proposed to himself nine or ten things (to be done that day.)

816<sup>4</sup>. But the first state of a new Church is called 'morning.' In the evening, man is called to the Church; and, when those who have been called are present, the morning is come.

M. 17<sup>2</sup>. Every morning . . . are heard the sweetest songs of maidens and girls . . .

42. One morning I looked up into Heaven . . .

103. One morning before sunrise, I looked out towards the east . . .

155a. One morning the sweetest singing . . . awoke me . . .

T. 764. That after this night the morning follows; and that the Advent of the Lord is this morning. Gen.art.

—, As the present Church in Christendom is night, it follows that the morning draws nigh; that is, the first of a new Church.

—<sup>2</sup>. In these passages by . . . 'morning' is meant the first time of the Church.

—, The Lord Himself is also called 'the morning' in the following passages. III.

D. 4639<sup>2</sup>. For when it is morning in the Inmost Heaven, it is evening in the Second or Spiritual Heaven. Ex.

5627. Nor do they know what . . . morning is.

E. 179. 'Morning' = the Lord as to the Divine Human; hence 'the morning—matutina—star' = intelligence and wisdom from Him. 'Morning' is often read of in the Word, and it = various things according to the series in the internal sense: in the supreme sense, it = the Lord, and also His Advent; in the internal sense, it = His Kingdom and Church, and their state of peace. It also = the first state of a new Church; and also a state of love; likewise a state of illustration; consequently a state of intelligence and wisdom; and also a state of the conjunction of good and truth, which is when the internal man is being conjoined with the external. The reason 'morning' = such various things, is that in the supreme sense it = the Divine Human of the Lord, and hence it also = all things which proceed therefrom; for the Lord is in those things which proceed from Him . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. The reason the Divine Human of the Lord is meant by 'morning' in the supreme sense, is that the Lord is the Sun of the angelic Heaven, and the Sun of that Heaven does not advance from morning to evening, or from rising to setting . . . but remains constant in its place in front above the Heavens ; hence it is that it is always in the morning, and never in the evening. And as all the intelligence and wisdom which the Angels have comes forth with them from the Lord as a Sun, therefore their state of love, and their state of wisdom and intelligence, and in general their state of illustration, are signified by 'morning;' for these proceed from the Lord as a Sun, and that which proceeds from Him is Himself. . .

—<sup>3</sup>. From these things it is evident whence it is that 'morning' is so often mentioned in the Word, when it treats of Jehovah or the Lord, of His Advent, Kingdom, and Church, and of their goods. Ill.

— As the Lord is the Sun in Heaven . . . and as the Sun there is constantly in its morning, it is said, 'He is as the morning light; the sun ariseth, a morning without clouds' (2 Sam.xxiii.4).

—<sup>8</sup>. The reception of the Lord by those who are in the good of love, is signified by 'more than watchmen for the morning, watchmen for the morning' (Ps.cxxx.6). Here, 'morning,' in the supreme sense, = the Lord; and, in the internal sense, His Kingdom and Church; and 'watchmen for the morning' = those who are awaiting the Advent of the Lord, who are those who are in the good of love, because these are they to whom the Lord is 'the morning.'

—<sup>9</sup>. That 'morning' = the Advent of the Lord into the world, and the new Church then, is evident from the following passages. Ill.

—<sup>10</sup>. As 'morning' = the Lord, His Advent, also His Kingdom and Church, and also the good of love which is from Him, it is evident what is meant by 'morning' in the following passages. Ill.

—<sup>e</sup>. Therefore the Lord Himself is also called the Morning-matutina-Star' (Rev.xxii.16).

422<sup>12</sup>. 'A morning without clouds' = that (Divine truth) pure.

573<sup>4</sup>. 'Morning' = the first time of a new Church.

610<sup>3</sup>. 'The morning cometh upon thee, O inhabitant of the land' (Ezek.vii.7) = the instauration of a new Church. 'Morning' = the state of a new or commencing Church . . .

612<sup>2</sup>. The Advent of the Lord is meant by 'morning.' Ill.

677<sup>9</sup>. 'Morning' (Is.xvii.14) = the first time of the Church, when there are no evils and falsities . . .

706<sup>7</sup>. See EVENING, here.

741<sup>6</sup>. By 'morning' (Is.xxvi.9) is signified a state when there is the light of truth; this state is from love . . .

911<sup>12</sup>. The last state of the Church is also here signified by 'morning' (Is.xvii.11); for when the last state of the Church is at hand, it is then morning with those who will be of the new Church; and evening and night with those who are of the old Church . . .

D. Wis. xii. 5<sup>2</sup>. In each Heaven . . . are their palaces and houses, paradisiacal gardens, fallow lands, flower beds, and lawns, which come forth new every morning, each according to the reception of love and wisdom with the Angels . . .

Coro. III. In each Church have followed four changes of state; of which the first was the appearing of the Lord Jehovah and Redemption, and then was its morning or rise; the second was its instruction . . . 5, 6, Ex.

Morning. Matuta.

See EARLY.

A. 8432. 'In the morning bread to satiety' (Ex.xvi.8) = that in the beginning of a new state they will have as much good as they can receive. . . 'Morning,' [or morning-mane = the beginning of a new state. 8448. 8454.

E. 644<sup>22</sup>. That these things are without obscurity, is signified by 'the light of a morning without clouds' (2 Sam.xxiii.4).

Moronus. Moronus. R.914<sup>2</sup>.

Morose. Morosus.

A. 1949<sup>2</sup>. He is a morose man . . .

1964<sup>2</sup>. Like a wild ass, morose . . .

D. 2120. In the other life are so morose . . .

Morrow. Crastinum.

To-morrow. Cras.

To-morrow's. Crastinus.

A. 2465. 'It was on the morrow' (Gen.xix.34) = afterwards.

3998. 'On to-morrow's day' (Gen.xxx.33) = to eternity. In the Word, when 'yesterday,' 'to-day,' or 'to-morrow,' is mentioned, in the supreme sense there is signified what is eternal . . . and 'to-morrow,' to eternity.

7399. 'To the morrow' (Ex.viii.10) = in perpetuity. 7446.

7509. 'To-morrow Jehovah shall do this work in the land' (Ex.ix.5) = that this is theirs in perpetuity . . . 'To-morrow,' or 'morrow,' = in perpetuity. 7510.

8082. 'To-morrow' (Ex.xiii.14) = always when it is done. 'To-morrow,' or 'the morrow day' = what is eternal; thus also what is perpetual or always; here, always when it is done.

8478. That the Lord daily provides things necessary; and therefore they ought not to be solicitous about acquiring them of themselves . . . is also meant by . . . 'Be not ye solicitous therefore for the morrow; for the morrow day shall have care of the things which belong to it' (Matt.vi.34).

—<sup>2</sup>. In (Ex.xvi.19,20) it treats of care for the morrow, and that this care is not only prohibited, but is also condemned . . . He who views the matter no further than from the sense of the letter, may believe that all care for the morrow is to be cast away . . . but he who views the matter more deeply . . . from the internal sense, can know what is meant by care for the morrow. Ex.

— But those have care for the morrow who are not content with their lot; who do not trust in the Divine, but in themselves; and who have regard only to worldly and earthly, and not to heavenly things.

Further des. Such are they with whom there is care for the morrow.

[A.8478]<sup>3</sup>. (But) with those who trust in the Divine, although they have care for the morrow, nevertheless they have it not; for they do not think about the morrow with solicitude, still less with anxiety. Further des.

8480<sup>3</sup>. Good from the Lord is with those who love the Lord above all things, and the neighbour as themselves; whereas good from man is with those who love themselves above all things, and despise the neighbour in comparison with themselves. The latter are they who also have care for the morrow, because they trust in themselves; but the former are they who have not care for the morrow, because they trust in the Lord.

8495. 'A holy Sabbath to Jehovah to-morrow' (Ex. xvi.23)=the conjunction of good and truth to eternity. 'To-morrow'=to eternity.

8684. 'It was on the morrow' (Ex.xviii.13)=what is eternal. 'To-morrow,' or 'the morrow,'=what is eternal.

8788. 'Sanctify them to-day and to-morrow' (Ex. xix.10)=a veiling over of the interiors so that they may appear in the Holy of faith now and afterwards.

10412. 'A feast to Jehovah to-morrow' (Ex.xxxii.5) =that this is (what) is to be adored perpetually. . . 'To-morrow'=what is eternal and perpetual.

H. 278<sup>2</sup>. Solicitude about future things they call care for the morrow; which they call grief for the loss or non-reception of such things as are not necessary for the uses of life.

D. 1580. Those who are solicitous about to-morrow's day.

3628. The Lord has commanded that they should not have care about to-morrow's things; for to care for to-morrow's things=such things.

6088<sup>2</sup>. (In the Spiritual World) food cannot be preserved to the morrow; it breeds worms. . . This is signified in . . . 'Give us our daily bread;' and also by that nothing of the paschal lamb was to be stored up till the morrow; nor anything of the things sacrificed. J. (Post.) 337.

E. 23<sup>2</sup>. 'To-morrow,' in the Word, where it treats of the Lord, =to eternity.

C. 167. (Such a trader) thinks about the morrow, and still does not think about it. He thinks about the morrow in relation to what and how he shall do; but he does not think about the morrow inasmuch as he attributes future things to the Divine Providence, and not to his Own prudence.

Morsel. Bolus.

A. 7553<sup>2</sup>. Morsels of hail are called stones. . .

E. 419<sup>14</sup>. 'He who casteth forth His hail as morsels. . . ' (Ps.cxlvii.17) . . . The scientifics and the Knowledges which are with man before regeneration, are signified by 'hail which is as morsels; who stands before His cold?'

Morsel. Offa, Offula.

T. 629<sup>2</sup>. As if God were to deliver some as morsels to the devil.

D. 4946. She called it a morsel, and gave it him to eat.

E. 740<sup>3</sup>. 'To enter into him with the morsel' (or 'sop') (John xiii.27) is into the belly; and to enter into the belly is into the thought; and falsities from evil are of the thought.

Mortal. Mortalis.

A. 1460<sup>2</sup>. 'Mortals of famine' (Is.v.13)=penury of the Knowledges of celestial things.

1554<sup>2</sup>. No mortal=nemo mortalium=knows.

4518. 'And I mortals of number' (Gen.xxxiv.30)=easily; (for) 'mortals of number'=few. . .

P. 324<sup>3</sup>. In order that every man may live to eternity, that which is mortal with him is taken away. That which is mortal of him is the material body. . . Thus is laid bare that which is immortal of him. . .

M. 2<sup>2</sup>. Into the World of Spirits all mortals are first collected. . .

T. 2. Without this, no mortal=nemo mortalium=could have been saved.

D. 2681. He had esteemed himself greater and wiser than all mortals.

2697. If they could be told, it would appear to no mortal=nulli mortalium.

Mortar. See UNTEMPERED.

Mortar. Mortarium. A.10303<sup>5</sup>.

Mortar. Trituratorium. See under THRESH.

Mortification. Morticinium. P.282<sup>2</sup>. T.119<sup>2</sup>.

Moscholim. Moscholim.

S. 103<sup>2</sup>. 'Moscholim,' in the Hebrew language, means not only Proverbs, but also Things Prophetically Uttered. III. T.265<sup>2</sup>.

D. 5605. The Ancient Churches have a Word, the title of which they call in part 'Moscholim' . . .

Moses. Moses.

A. 66. These things concerning the creation, the garden of Eden, [and] down to the time of Abraham, Moses had from the descendants of the Most Ancient Church. . .

1343<sup>2</sup>. Moses himself had lost (the name Jehovah).

2135, Pref.<sup>2</sup>. By 'Moses and Elijah' (Luke ix.31), who were speaking with the Lord, was represented the Word of the Old Testament, which was called also 'Moses and the Prophets;' by 'Moses,' his books, and also the historical ones. . . 5922<sup>5</sup>.

2534. The Lord was represented by Moses, etc.

2604. Many of the Jews are introduced to Moses, etc.

2606<sup>2</sup>. The historicals of the Word are also called 'Moses' . . .

3869<sup>o</sup>. 'To hear Moses and the Prophets' (Luke xvi. 31)=to know the things in the Word, and to have faith in it; thus also to will them . . .

4299<sup>o</sup>. The Lord appeared to Moses in a human form adapted to his reception, which was external; namely, as a bearded old man sitting with him; as I have been instructed by the Angels.

4444<sup>o</sup>. Moses also married a wife from the gentiles.

4859<sup>o</sup>. The like was represented by Moses, when the skin of his face was radiant, as he descended from Mount Sinai . . . Moses represented the Word, which is called 'the Law' . . . and therefore it is sometimes said 'the Law and the Prophets,' and sometimes 'Moses and the Prophets.' Ill. By the radiation of the skin of his face was represented the internal of the Word . . . His covering his face whenever he spoke with the people, represented that internal truth was covered over with them. 6752<sup>o</sup>.

4926<sup>o</sup>. 'Moses' (Ps.cvi.23)=the Word.

5307<sup>o</sup>. The Lord was represented by . . . many in the Word . . . By Moses was represented the Lord as to the Law or the historical Word.

6302<sup>o</sup>. In like manner when Moses died, the representative succeeded in Joshua, and afterwards in the judges, the kings, and so on.

6714. In the supreme sense (in Ex.ii.) 'Moses' represents the Lord as to the Law Divine, which is the Word; and, in the relative sense, truth Divine with the man of the Church.

6719. 'She bare a son' (ver.2)=the Law Divine in its origin . . . because by 'her son' is meant Moses, who represented the Lord as to the Law Divine, or the Word.

6720<sup>o</sup>. This transflux was the Divine Human before the Advent of the Lord, and was Jehovah Himself or the Lord in the Heavens. The Divine which transflowed through Heaven was the Divine truth, or the Divine Law, which Moses represented; and the Divine which transflows through Heaven is good. Hence it is evident whence it is that by 'she saw him, that he was good,' is signified the apperception that it was through Heaven.

6721. 'She hid him three months'=the fulness of time in which it did not appear.

6722. 'And she could no longer hide him'=the time when it ought to appear.

6723<sup>o</sup>. As it had been provided that Moses should represent the Lord as to the Law Divine or the Word, in special as to the historical Word, it came to pass that when he was an infant he was placed in a coffer or little ark, but in a common one, because it was in its first rise.

6725<sup>o</sup>. Moses=the Law Divine; here, the Law Divine in its origin, because he was an infant.

6735<sup>o</sup>. Moses, who here is 'the child,' represented the Law Divine, or truth Divine; thus truth from the Divine.

6744. Moses, who here is 'the child,'=the Law Divine in its origin; in the supreme sense, with the Lord, when He was making His Human to be the Law

Divine; and, in the relative sense, with a man who is being regenerated, when he is being initiated into truth Divine.

6745. 'Suckle him for me' (ver.9)=that it should insinuate into it good in agreement with the religiosity.

6747. 'And the woman took the child, and suckled him'=that good was insinuated into it by the Church.

6749. 'The child grew'=increase from good.

6750. 'And she brought him to Pharaoh's daughter'=the affection of scientifics.

— As Moses represents the Lord as to the Law Divine, he could not have been brought to Pharaoh's daughter, and have been to her as a son, if the religiosity were signified by her, as before.

6751. 'And he was to her for a son'=that thence it had the first truths. Ex.

6752. 'And she called his name Moses'=the quality of the state then . . . (that is,) the quality of the state of the Law Divine in its beginning with the Lord, and the quality of the state of truth Divine in the beginning with a man who is being regenerated.

— There are two especially who represent the Lord as to the Word, namely, Moses and Elijah; Moses, the Lord as to the historical books . . .

— The Law Divine, in a broad sense, signifies the whole Word; in a sense less broad, it signifies the historical Word; in a confined one, that which was written by Moses; and, in the most confined one, the ten precepts written upon tables of stone upon Mount Sinai. Moses represents the Law in the less wide, also in the confined, and also in the most confined sense. Fully ill.

—<sup>8</sup>. As Moses represented the Law, he was allowed to enter to the Lord upon Mount Sinai; and not only to receive the tables of the Law there, but also to hear the statutes and judgments of the Law, and to command them to the people; and it is also said that therefore they were 'to believe on Moses to eternity' (Ex.xix.9).

—<sup>9</sup>. As by Moses was represented the Lord as to the historical Word . . . when He was transfigured, Moses . . . was seen talking with Him . . .

6753. 'And she said, Because I have drawn him out of the waters'=deliverance from falsities. . . In these words is contained the quality of the state which is signified by the name 'Moses;' which quality, in the supreme sense, involves that in order to become the Law Divine as to the Human, the Lord delivered His Human from all the falsity which adhered to it from the mother, and this even until He became the Divine Law, that is, the Divine truth itself . . .

6755. 'Moses grew' (ver.11)= . . . increase in scientific truths.

6756. 'He went out to his brethren'=conjunction with the truths of the Church. Ex.

6757. He saw their burdens'=the apperception that they were being infested by falsities.

6761. 'He smote the Egyptian' (ver.12)=that it destroyed the alienated Scientific.

6763. 'He went out the second day' (ver.13)=conjunction again with the Church.

[A.] 6766. 'Whoput thee for a man a prince and a judge over us?' (ver. 14)=that it had not yet advanced into the truths of faith so far as to settle the dissidences within the Church. . . It has treated in the supreme sense concerning the beginnings of the Law Divine in the Lord's Human. It now treats concerning the progress of that Law; and in the internal sense it here treats concerning the progress of Divine truth with the man who is being regenerated. The progress is such that at first the man is able to discriminate between falsity and truth; for from the truth in which he is he can see what is false, because this is opposite; but he cannot at that first time settle [the dissidences] between the truths of faith within the Church. In order to be able to do this, he must make further progress; for a man is illustrated successively . . .

6769. 'And Mosea feared, and said, Surely the Word is known' (ver. 14)=that it was among alienated scientifics, and not yet in truths, so as to be safe.

6771. 'And Pharaoh heard this word, and sought to kill Moses' (ver. 15)=that when the false Scientific perceived this it wanted to destroy the truth which is of the Law from the Divine. . . 'Moses'=the Law Divine, and truth Divine, thus the truth which is of the Law Divine. It is said the truth which is of the Law Divine, and not the Law Divine, because as yet it is treating concerning the progress of the Law Divine in the Lord's Human.

6772. 'And Mosea fled from before Pharaoh'=that it was separated from falsities. . . 'Moses'=the truth which is of the Law from the Divine. Here begins the fifth state of the progression of the Law Divine in the Lord's Human; and, in the relative sense, of the progression of truth Divine with the man who is being regenerated; which is that of separation from falsities, and of adjunction with the truths of simple good. Next follows the sixth state, which is that of adjunction with good.

6773. 'And he dwelt in the land of Midian'=life among those who are in simple good.

6774. 'And he dwelt near a well'=study there in the Word.

6780. 'Moses rose up and helped them' (ver. 17)=aid from the truths which are of the Law from the Divine.

6781. 'And he gave their flock to drink'=that those who were in good were instructed thence.

6784. 'An Egyptian man delivered us out of the hand of the shepherds' (ver. 19)=because the scientific truth which is adjoined to the Church prevailed over the power of the doctrine of falsity from evil. . . The reason Mosea is here called 'an Egyptian man,' is that by 'Mosea' is here represented truth such as is with those who are in the truth of simple good.

6789. 'And where is he? Wherefore have ye left this man?' (ver. 20)=how, without this truth, could they be conjoined with the good of the Church.

—<sup>2</sup>. The scientific truth which is here represented by 'Mosea,' is the truth of the External Church. This truth comes forth from the truth which is of the Law from the Divine, which also is 'Mosea;' and the truth which is of the Law from the Divine is the truth of the Internal Church. Unless external truth is from internal truth, it cannot be conjoined with good. Examp.

6790. 'Call him'=that conjunction is to be effected.

6791. 'And let him eat bread'=confirmation in good.

6792. 'And Moses willed to dwell with the man' (ver. 21)=that they agreed together. 'Moses,' here,=scientific truth . . .

6793. 'He gave Zipporah his daughter to Moses'=that he adjoined to it the good of his own Church. . . 'Moses'=scientific truth.

6796. 'For he said, I am a sojourner in a strange land' (ver. 22)=that it had been instructed in truths in a Church not its own.

6827. 'Moses was pasturing the flock of Jethro his father-in-law, the priest of Midian' (Ex. iii. 1)=that the Law from the Divine was instructing those who were in the truth of simple good. . . 'Moses'=the Lord as to the Law Divine; but, in the beginning, as to the truth which is of the Law from the Divine; but here, as to the Law from the Divine. Thus may be named the degrees of progression in the Lord, before He was made, as to the human, the Law Divine itself.

6835. 'Moses said' (ver. 3)=perception from the Law from the Divine.

6842. 'And He said, Moses, Moses, and he said, Behold me' (ver. 4)=internal exhortation and hearing.

6844. 'Put off thy shoes from off thy feet' (ver. 5)=that sensuous things . . . were to be removed.

6845. 'For the place on which thou standest is ground of holiness'=that otherwise the Divine cannot enter.

6848. 'And Moses covered his face' (ver. 6)=that the interiors were protected.

6849. 'Because he feared to look upon God'=lest they should be injured by the presence of the Divine Itself.

6864. 'And now go, I will send thee unto Pharaoh' (ver. 10)=the Holy which proceeds from the Lord's Human, by which the infesting falsities would be dissipated. 'Mosea,' who was to go . . . =the Lord as to the Law Divine; thus as to the Human; for when the Lord was in the world He first made His Human Divine truth, which is the same as the Law Divine.

6866. 'And Moses said unto God' (ver. 11)=perception from the Divine, and humiliation. . . 'Mosea'=the Lord as to the Law Divine.

— As the Lord is represented by Moses, and humiliation is here mentioned, something shall be said about the Lord's state of humiliation when He was in the world. Ex.

6867. 'Who am I that I should go unto Pharaoh?'=that it was not yet in such a state that it seemed to itself to be able to approach and remove the infesting falsities.

6869. 'And He said, Because I will be with thee' (ver. 12)=that the Divine [would be] in the Human. 'Mosea'=the Lord as to the Law Divine; thus as to the Human . . .

6874. 'And Moses said unto God' (ver.13)=perception from the Divine.

6879. 'And God said unto Moses' (ver.14)=the first instruction; (for) God 'says' here to Moses, by whom is represented the Lord as to the Divine truth; and by Moses [it is said] to the people; thus by the Divine truth proceeding from the Divine Human of the Lord to those who are of the Spiritual Church . . .

6882. Moses represents the Lord as to the Divine Law; that is, as to the Divine truth . . .

6901. 'And thou shalt enter . . . to the king of Egypt' (ver.18)=communication with those who are in falsities . . . 'Moses'=the Law from the Divine . . .

6940. (In Ex.iv.) it treats concerning the Law Divine: that truth was adjoined to its good; and that thus the good had power to deliver, and to insinuate hope and faith. Moses represents the Law Divine as to good; and Aaron, as to truth.

6943. 'Moses answered and said' (ver.1)=thought from the Law Divine. . . Moses represents the Lord as to the Law Divine. Thought from the Law Divine is [thought] from truth from the Divine.

6947. The reason (Moses' rod)=the power of the Lord's Divine Human, is that by Moses is represented the Lord as to the Law Divine or the Word, which is the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord's Divine Human.

6950. 'Moses fled from before it' (ver.3)=horror at the separated Sensuous.

6951. 'And Jehovah said unto Moses' (ver.4)=Providence from the Divine. . . Moses represents the Lord as to truth Divine. Thus Providence from the Divine is predicated of the Lord as to the Human, when He was in the world.

6956. 'That they may believe that Jehovah hath appeared to thee' (ver.5)=that they may have faith concerning the Lord's Divine Human.

6974. '(If they) will not hear thy voice' (ver.9)=if they do not show anything of obedience. . . Moses, whose voice they were to hear, represents the Lord as to the Divine Law; that is, as to the Divine truth; thus as to the Word, for Divine truth is there.

6980. 'And Moses said unto Jehovah' (ver.10)=perception from the Divine. . . Moses represents the Lord as to the Divine Law in the Human when He was in the world.

6982. 'I am not a man of words'=that it has not speech . . . In the supreme sense it here treats concerning the Lord; for Moses represents the Lord as to the Law Divine; thus as to truth Divine. The truth which proceeds from the Divine immediately cannot be heard by anyone. (Continued under DIVINE TRUTH.) 6983. 6985.

6993. 'I will be with thy mouth, and will teach thee what thou shalt speak' (ver.12)=the Divine in each and all things which proceed from the Divine Human. . . As these things are said to Moses, by whom is represented the Lord as to the Law Divine in the Divine Human (this is the signification).

VOL. IV.

6996. 'Send I pray by the hand Thou wilt send' (ver.13)=that the Divine truth proceeding from the Divine Human must be uttered mediately. Moses, who says these things, represents the Lord as to the Word; that is, as to Divine truth.

6997. 'And the anger of Jehovah was kindled against Moses' (ver.14)=clemency . . . because it is said to Moses, by whom is represented the Lord, when He was in the world, as to Divine truth.

6998. 'Aaron' . . . here=the doctrine of good and truth; and therefore it is said that he was 'for a mouth' to Moses, and Moses was 'for a god' to him. For by Moses is represented the Lord as to the Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord immediately . . . That truth which Moses here represents, is the truth which cannot be heard or perceived by man . . . 7000. 7009. 7010.

7003. 'Thou shalt speak unto him' (ver.15)=influx.

7004. 'And thou shalt put words in his mouth'=that the things which it utters proceed from the Divine Human. (For) Moses, who was to put words in Aaron's mouth, represents the Lord as to the Divine truth which proceeds from His Divine Human. (Continued under DIVINE TRUTH.)

7005. 'And I will be with thy mouth'=that truth Divine must proceed through the Divine Human from the Divine Itself. Moses represents the Lord as to truth Divine. 7007.

7014. 'And Moses went and returned' (ver.18)=what is continuous of the former life. Moses represents the Lord as to the Law or truth from the Divine.

— When Moses was in Mount Horeb with Jehovah . . . he represented the Lord as to Divine truth; but now, when with Jethro . . . he represents the Lord as to truth from the Divine. Here . . . in the Word, in the internal sense, are described all the states of the Lord's life in the world, in respect to the way in which He then made His Human Divine . . . As the Lord thus put on the Divine successively, hence it is that He first made Himself truth from the Divine; afterwards, Divine truth; and, at last, Divine good. These were the degrees of the Lord's glorification which are here . . . described.

7016. 'And he said, Let me go, I pray, and return to my brethren who are in Egypt' (id.)=elevation to more interior and spiritual life in the Natural. . . For when 'going and returning' are said of the Lord, who is represented by Moses, it means to be elevated to the Divine Esse or Jehovah who was in Him . . . 7020.

7019. 'And Jehovah said unto Moses in Midian' (ver.19)=illustration and confirmation by the Divine in that state. Ex.

7021. 'All the men are dead who sought thy soul'=the removal of the falsities which endeavour to destroy the life of truth and good.

7022. 'And Moses took his wife' (ver.20)=good adjoined. 'Moses' represents the Lord as to the Law or truth from the Divine.

7023. 'And his sons'=the derivative truths.

7025. 'And he returned into the land of Egypt'=in the natural mind.

[A.] 7026. 'And Moses took the rod of God in his hand'=that these things are from Divine power.

7028. 'And Jehovah said unto Moses' (ver.21)=perception from the Divine . . . (here,) new perception.

7041. 'And he was in the way in an inn' (ver.24)=the posterity from Jacob, that they were in externals without an internal. . . In these three verses it treats of the Spiritual Church, that it was to have been instituted with the descendants of Jacob; but that it could not be instituted with them, because they were in externals without an internal. On this account Moses does not here represent the Law or Word; but he represents that nation or posterity from Jacob whose leader he was to be; thus he represents also the worship of that nation . . . Hence it is that Moses is not named here, but still he is understood by 'he was in the way in an inn,' and . . . 'Jehovah then met him, and sought to kill him;' when yet He had before so expressly commanded that he should go and return into Egypt. 7043.

7047. 'She said, For thou art a bridegroom of bloods to me' (ver.25)=that it was full of all violence and hostility against truth and good. . . In these three verses Moses represents that nation, and the representative of a Church with it; and Zipporah represents the representative Church. As Zipporah represents this Church, and Moses its external, she does not call him her husband, or man, but her 'bridegroom;' for a bride can represent what is diverse . . . but not a wife . . .

7048. 'And He desisted from him' (ver.26)=that it was permitted that they should represent.

7054. (Jehovah said unto Aaron) 'Go to meet Moses' (ver.27)=that (the truth of doctrine) should he conjoined with the truth proceeding from the Divine immediately.

7056. 'And he met him in the mount of God'=conjunction in the good of love there. Ex. . . The truth which proceeds from the Divine immediately is called truth, but in itself it is good, because it proceeds from the Divine good; but it is the good to which all Divine truth has been united. It is called truth, because in Heaven it appears as light. . . The truth proceeding from the Divine immediately, enters into the will of man . . .

7057. 'And kissed him'=the affection of conjunction.

7058. 'And Moses told Aaron all the words of Jehovah' (ver.28)=the influx of the truth which proceeds from the Divine of the Lord immediately, into the truth which proceeds mediately, and instruction in each thing of doctrine. Ex.

7061. 'And Moses went, and Aaron' (ver.29)=the life of the conjunction of both; namely, of the truth proceeding immediately from the Divine of the Lord, and of the truth which proceeds mediately.

7089. 'And afterwards came Moses and Aaron' (Ex. v.1)=the Divine Law and the derivative doctrine. . . By the Divine Law which Moses represents, is meant the Word such as it is in its internal sense; thus such as it is in the Heavens. . . Ex.

7104. 'Wherefore do ye, Moses and Aaron, draw away the people from their works?' (ver.4)=that their Divine Law and doctrine will not exempt them from grievous things. Moses represents the Lord as to the Divine Law.

7158. 'They met Moses and Aaron' (ver.20)=thought concerning the Divine Law and the derivative doctrine.

7164. 'And Moses returned unto Jehovah and said' (ver.22)=complaint from the Law Divine . . .

7166. 'Why is this, Thou hast sent me?'=when yet the Law proceeding from the Divine seems to say differently. . . Moses, who says these things concerning himself,=the Law from the Divine. 7167.

7184<sup>e</sup>. 'Moses' (in Ex.vi.) represents the things which are of the Law Divine.

7186. 'And Jehovah said unto Moses' (ver.1)=instruction concerning the Law Divine. Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. That Moses . . . here represents the Law Divine such as it is with those who are of the Spiritual Church when they are in a state of infestations . . . is evident from the things which he said at the end of the preceding chapter . . .

7191. 'And God spake unto Moses' (ver.2)=what is new, but continuous with what goes before.

7194<sup>e</sup>. The reason 'Jehovah' is named in the historicals concerning Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, is that that Word was written by Moses, to whom the name 'Jehovah' had been made known . . .

7201. Moses (here) represents the Law Divine.

7215. 'And Moses spake so unto the sons of Israel' (ver.9)=exhortation from the Law Divine to those who are of the Lord's Spiritual Kingdom.

7216. 'And they did not listen to Moses'=that they did not receive from faith and obedience. 7217, Ex. 7218.

7219. 'And Jehovah spake unto Moses, saying' (ver.10)=continuation.

7222. 'And Moses spake unto Jehovah, saying' (ver.12)=the Law from the Divine, and the derivative thought.

7224, 7225. 'And how shall Pharaoh listen to me, and I am uncircumcised in lips'=that those who are in falsities will not receive, because to them I am impure.

7225<sup>3</sup>. The reason why Moses, because he was a stammerer, calls himself 'uncircumcised in lips,' is on account of the internal sense . . .

7226. 'And Jehovah spake unto Moses and unto Aaron' (ver.13)=instruction anew from the Law Divine, and at the same time from doctrine.

7230<sup>3</sup>. 'She bare him Aaron and Moses' (ver.20)=that thence they have the doctrine of the Church and the Law from the Divine.

7231<sup>e</sup>. Aaron represents the External of the Spiritual Church, and Moses the Internal. The Internal of the Church is called the Law from the Divine . . . The Law from the Divine which is the Internal of the Church, is also the Word in the internal sense . . .

7233. 'This is Aaron and Moses' (ver.26)=that from (charity and faith) were doctrine and the Law Divine with them. . . These, namely the Law Divine and doctrine, with those who are of the Spiritual Church, come forth principally from the Word, but still in application to the faith and charity which had existed with the establishers. Ex. 7239.

7240. 'In that day Jehovah spake to Moses in the land of Egypt' (ver.28)=the state of the Church when command was given through the Law from the Divine to those who were of the Lord's Spiritual Kingdom, while still in propinquity to those in the Hells. 7241.

7244. 'And Moses said before Jehovah' (ver.30)=thought concerning the Law Divine with those who are in falsities.

7245. 'Behold, I am uncircumcised in lips'=that the Law Divine is impure to those who are in falsities. . . But, in the historical sense, in which Moses as their head relates to the posterity from Jacob, and to that which is of the Church with them, 'uncircumcised in lips'=that the Divine worship with that nation was such. Ex.

7267. 'And Jehovah said unto Moses' (Ex.vii.1)=instruction; here, how to proceed with those who are in falsities, and are infesting.

7268. 'See, I have made thee a god to Pharaoh'=the Law Divine, and its power over those who are in falsities.

—e. From these things it may be seen in what sense Moses is called 'a god'. . . namely, because Moses represented the Divine Law, which is Divine truth, and is called the Word.

7270. 'Thou shalt speak all that I command thee' (ver.2)=the reception of the Divine influx. . . Moses, who was to speak,=the Divine truth. . . 'To speak'=the mediate influx of Divine truth into doctrine. . . for the meaning is that Moses, who is the Divine truth, should speak what Jehovah commanded, to Aaron. . . thus to that which should communicate it. Ex. . . (For) Moses represents the truth which proceeds from the Divine immediately, and Aaron the truth which proceeds mediately.

7284. 'And Moses was a son of eighty years' (ver.7)=the state and quality of the Law from the Divine. Ex.

7288. 'And Jehovah said unto Moses and unto Aaron' (ver.8)=instruction. 7304.

7291. 'And thou shalt say unto Aaron' (ver.9)=influx and communication; namely, of the Law Divine which Moses represents, with the doctrine which Aaron represents. . . The reason the Law Divine, which Moses represents, should inflow into doctrine, which Aaron represents, is that the Law Divine is internal truth, and doctrine is external truth. . .

7310. The Law Divine which is represented by Moses. . .

7321. 'And Jehovah said unto Moses' (ver.19)=execution.

7347. 'And Jehovah said unto Moses' (Ex.viii.1)=new instruction. 7415.

7380. 'And Jehovah said unto Moses' (ver.5)=instruction. . . Moses represents the Law Divine, by means of which instruction from Jehovah is effected.

7381. 'Say unto Aaron'=the influx of the internal Law into the external Law. Ex. 7416.

7390. 'And Pharaoh called Moses and Aaron' (ver.8)=the presence of the Law Divine. . . Moses represents the internal Law; and Aaron, the external Law. 7451. 7587.

7394. 'And Moses said unto Pharaoh' (ver.9)=answer. 7453. 7594. 7660. 7725. 7739.

7395. 'Have honour over me'=that truth Divine is to be trusted in. . . Moses represents the Law Divine; consequently, truth Divine.

7404. 'And Moses and Aaron went out from before Pharaoh' (ver.12)=separation from those who have reasoned from mere falsities. . . Moses and Aaron represent the Law Divine; Moses, the internal Law, and Aaron the external Law. 7608.

7405. 'And Moses cried unto Jehovah. . . '=intercession.

7406. 'And Jehovah did according to the word of Moses' (ver.13)=that it was so done, according to the word of the Lord; for that which Moses supplicated was indeed from the mouth of Moses, but still was from the Lord. . . 7470.

7434. 'And Jehovah said unto Moses' (ver.20)=instruction again.

7436. 'Stand thou before Pharaoh'=the appearance of the Divine to those who are in evils. . . because it was Moses who was to stand, who=truth from the Divine, by means of which the Divine appears.

7463. 'And Moses said, Behold I go out from thee' (ver.29)=the removal of the appearance of truth Divine with them. Moses represents the Law Divine; thus also truth Divine. (Continued under DIVINE TRUTH.) 7468.

7497. 'And Jehovah said unto Moses' (Ex.ix.1)=instruction anew. 7517.

7498. 'Come to Pharaoh, and speak to him'=the appearance of truth from the Divine with those who are infesting. . . (For) Moses, who was to (do this) represents truth from the Divine.

7517°. Internal truth is represented by Moses, and external by Aaron.

7519°. The reason Moses was to do this (which follows), and not Aaron, is that the truth which proceeds immediately from the Divine presents this effect with the evil.

7520. 'Let Moses sprinkle them toward heaven' (ver.8)=that these falsities were shown to those in Heaven. 7528.

7537. 'And Jehovah said unto Moses' (ver.13)=instruction again as to what is to be done.

7567. 'And Jehovah said unto Moses' (ver.22)=command.

7572. 'And Moses stretched out his rod unto heaven' (ver.23)=communication with Heaven.

7619. 'By the hand of Moses' (ver.35)=by means of the Law from the Divine.

7630. 'And Jehovah said unto Moses' (Ex.x.1)= command, namely, that which was to be carried to Pharaoh.

[A.] 7637. 'And Moses and Aaron came unto Pharaoh' (ver.3)=the presence of truth Divine . . . Moses and Aaron=truth Divine; Moaea, internal; Aaron, external. 7656.

7650. 'And He looked back, and went out from Pharaoh' (ver.6)=the privation of apperception, and separation. . . Moses, of whom (this) is said, represents truth from the Divine.

7670. Moaea and Aaron, who were 'driven out' (ver. 11) represent truth Divine.

7672. 'And Jehovah said unto Moses' (ver.12)=instruction. Ex. 7709. 7765.

7678. 'And Moses stretched forth his rod over the land of Egypt' (ver.13)=the dominion of the power of truth Divine over the whole Natural of those who are infesting.

—<sup>a</sup>. Hence it is that miracles were done by Moaea; for Moaea represents Divine truth. (Continued under DIVINE TRUTH.)

7695. 'And Pharaoh hastened to call Moaea and Aaron' (ver.16)=fear then of truth from the Divine . . . Moaea, internal; and Aaron, external. 7696.

7713. 'And Moaea stretched out his hand unto heaven' (ver.22)=the domination of truth Divine in Heaven.

7721. 'And Pharaoh called unto Moaea' (ver.24)=the presence of the Law Divine. . . By the presence of the Law Divine with those who are infesting, is meant that they perceived whence the plagues were coming . . .

7735<sup>a</sup>. These are words of anger against truth Divine, which is represented by Moaea.

7772. 'Moreover the man Moses was exceedingly great in the land of Egypt' (Ex.xi.3)=respect now for truth Divine . . . in the mind of those who are infesting. 7788.

7790. 'And after this—ita—I will go forth' (ver.8)=that truth Divine will depart. . . Moaea [who says this] =truth Divine. These things signify that when those who have infested the upright are condemned, all truth Divine departs from them . . .

7791. 'And he went forth from Pharaoh in the wrath of anger'=the divulsion of the presence of truth Divine from those who are to be condemned. . . For when they begin to be averse to truth Divine, to fear it, and at last to feel horror at its presence, they tear themselves away from it . . .

7793. 'And Jehovah said unto Moses' (ver.9)=information.

7796. 'And Moaea and Aaron did all these prodigies before Pharaoh' (ver.10)=that these vastations, and the consequent confirmations that they are in evil, had been effected by means of truth from the Divine; (for) Moaea represents the truth which proceeds from the Divine immediately, and Aaron that which proceeds mediately. . . These prodigies were not done by Moses and Aaron, but by the Divine. But it is so said, because by Moses and Aaron is represented truth Divine; and the prodigies were done by the Divine by means of the truth proceeding from Him. For all things which are done by the Divine Itself are done by means of the truth proceeding from Him. Ex.

7825. 'And Jehovah said unto Moses and unto Aaron' (Ex.xii.1)=information by means of truth Divine . . . Moses=the truth which proceeds immediately . . . 7994.

7912. 'And Moaea called all the elders of Israel' (ver. 21)=the illustration of the understanding of those who are of the Spiritual Church by the influx and presence of truth Divine. . . Moses represents the Law Divine; thus the Word, and truth Divine.

7955. '(Pharaoh) called Moses and Aaron by night' (ver.31)=the afflux of truth from the Divine in that state. . . It is said truth from the Divine, and not truth Divine, because it is predicated of those who are in damnation.

8041. 'And Jehovah spake unto Moses, saying' (Ex. xiii.1)=information from the Divine . . . by means of Divine truth. 8127, Ex.

8048. 'And Moaea said unto the people' (ver.3)=instruction by means of truth Divine.

8099<sup>a</sup>. In this prophetic (Is.lxiii.11) by 'Moses' is meant the Lord.

8127. Moaea represents the Lord as to Divine truth. Refs. 8579.

8170. 'And Moses said unto the people' (Ex.xiv.13) =elevation from a state of despair by means of truth Divine. . . For all elevation in a state of temptations is effected by means of truth Divine, which . . . is meant by 'Moaea.'

8178. 'And Jehovah said unto Moses' (ver.15)=exhortation.

8179. 'Why criest thou unto Me?'=that there is no need of intercession.

8182. Moses represents Divine truth.

8200. 'And Moaea stretched out his hand over the sea' (ver.21)=the dominion of the power of truth Divine over Hell. 8225.

8221. 'And Jehovah said unto Moaea' (ver.26)=influx.

8241. '(They believed) in Jehovah, and in Moses His servant' (ver.31)=the Lord as to Divine good, and as to the Divine truth proceeding from Him and ministering.

8261. 'Then sang Moses and the sons of Israel . . .' (Ex.xv.1)=a glorification by those who are of the Spiritual Church on account of deliverance . . . For Moaea together with the people represents this Church; Moaea, its head, because he also represents Divine truth.

8337. Moaea represents the truth of faith which proceeds from the Lord immediately; thus internal truth . . .

8345. 'And Moaea made Israel journey from the Sea Suph' (ver.22)=what is successive according to the order of truth Divine after they had passed through a region of Hell.

8351. 'And the people murmured against Moaea'

(ver.24)=pain from the bitterness of the temptation. . . It is said 'against Moses,' because it was against the Divine; for by Moses is represented Divine truth. Refs. 8404.

8437. 'And Moses said unto Aaron' (Ex.xvi.9)=the influx of the truth Divine proceeding from the Lord immediately, through the truth Divine which proceeds mediately.

8444. 'And Jehovah spake unto Moses, saying' (ver. 11)=the truth which proceeds from the Divine of the Lord, in which there is the presence of the Lord.

8463. 'And Moses said unto them' (ver.15)=information by means of truth from the Divine. . . Moses represents the truth which is of the Law from the Divine.

8483. 'And Moses was angry upon them' (ver.20)=that they averted truth Divine from themselves.

8512. 'And Jehovah said unto Moses' (ver.28)=the appearance of the Divine obscured.

8529. 'And Moses said unto Aaron' (ver.33)=influx . . . for Divine influx takes place through the truth which proceeds from the Lord immediately into the truth which proceeds mediately.

8573. 'And Moses cried unto Jehovah' (Ex.xvii.4)=interior lamentation, and intercession . . . by the Divine truth which is represented by Moses. Ex.

8575. 'Yet a little, and they will stone me'=that they are not far from offering violence to the truth from the Divine.

8588. In the internal historical sense, in which it treats concerning the religiosity of the Israelitish nation, by Moses and Aaron is not represented truth Divine, but the religiosity of that nation whose leaders and heads they were. . . And therefore it was denounced against them that they should not lead the people into the Land of Canaan. III.

8595. 'And Moses said unto Joshua' (ver.9)=the Divine influx into truth combating . . . because by Moses is represented Divine truth; that is, the truth which proceeds from the Lord immediately. This truth, being purely Divine, inflows into all the truths of faith, and causes them to be truths. 8601.

8603. 'And Moses, Aaron, and Hur' (ver.10)=Divine truths in successive order. Moses represents the Divine truth proceeding immediately . . .

8604. 'When Moses elevated his hand' (ver.11)=when the faith with those who were of the Spiritual Church looked towards the Lord. Moses represents truth Divine. Ex. 8606.

8610. That 'stone' supported Moses, and by Moses is represented truth in the first of order, or the truth Divine which proceeds from the Lord immediately. When the truth in the ultimate of order corresponds to this truth, then this truth is supported, for they then act as a one. Ex.

8641. (In Ex.xviii.) it treats of truths in successive order from the prime to the ultimate, and that they are ordained by Divine good. Truth in the first degree is represented by Moses . . .

8644. 'The father-in-law of Moses' (ver.1)=from which is Good conjoined with truth Divine.

8645. 'All that God had done to Moses and to Israel His people'=the perception of those things which had been done to those who are of the Lord's Spiritual Kingdom. . . For Moses together with the people represents this Kingdom; Moses as the head . . . Thus also Moses represents the Lord as to Divine truth; for the Spiritual Kingdom is from this.

8647. 'And Jethro the father-in-law of Moses took Zipperah the wife of Moses' (ver.2)=good from the Divine conjoined with truth Divine. . . Truth Divine is represented by Moses. Zipperah, the wife of Moses, represents good Divine . . . 8656.

8657. 'To Moses to the wilderness' (ver.5)=conjunction in the state before regeneration when there are temptations; (for) 'to come to Moses'=the conjunction of the Divine good represented by Jethro with the Divine truth represented by Moses. 8660.

8662. 'And Moses went forth to meet his father-in-law' (ver.7)=the application of truth Divine to Divine good.

8668. 'And Moses told his father-in-law . . .' (ver. 8)=perception then from truth Divine.

8685. 'And Moses sat to judge the people' (ver.13)=the disposing of truth Divine with those of the Spiritual Church in the state before it is from good. Moses represents the truth Divine proceeding from the Lord immediately.

—<sup>3</sup>. Immediate influx is represented by Moses alone having judged the people . . .

8686. 'And the people stood over Moses'=obedience then from truth Divine. . . 'To stand over Moses'=to consult truth Divine, and to await an answer from it, and to do according to it . . . By these things is described the first state in which the man who is being regenerated is led by means of truth from the Lord . . .

8689. 'Wherefore sittest thou alone?' (ver.14)=that it was without the influx of truth from good from any other source; (because) it is said of the truth Divine proceeding from the Lord immediately, which is represented by Moses; (and thus)=influx from him alone . . . 8690, Ex.

8691. 'And Moses said to his father-in-law' (ver.15)=what is reciprocal which is in the reply . . . because by Moses is represented Divine truth conjoined with and united to Divine good . . .

8692. 'Because the people come to me to inquire of God'=that they will and act from no other source than the fact that the Word has so said. Moses represents truth Divine; thus the Word.

8694. 'They come to me, and I judge between a man and his companion' (ver.16)=that they are then disposed from revealed truth. Ex.

8698. 'The word which thou doest is not good' (ver. 17)=that a change must be made.

8699. 'In wasting away thou wilt waste away, both thou, and also this people that is with thee' (ver.18)=that thus the truth which has been inseminated will perish. . . By Moses is meant truth from the Divine; and by 'the people,' those who are receiving it. 8700, Ex. 8701, Ex.

[A.] 8703. 'I will consult for thee, and God shall be with thee' (ver.19)=that it is from the Divine . . . [The expression] from the Divine, which is signified by 'God shall be with thee,' regards the Divine truth which is represented by Moses.

8704. 'Be thou for the people with God'=the truth proceeding from the Lord immediately . . .

8705. 'And bring thou the words unto God'=mediation and intercession. . . (These) are of Divine truth, because this is most nearly with Divine good, which is the Lord Himself . . . 8729.

8706. 'And thou shalt teach them statutes and laws' (ver.20)=that from the immediate truth from the Lord are the external and internal goods and truths of the Church . . . 8707. 8708.

8709. 'And look thou out of all the people' (ver.21)=the choice of subservient truths . . . here, truths subservient to the truth immediately from the Divine, which is represented by Moses.

8712. 'Princes' . . . here, =truths from good, because these princes were to be under Moses, by whom is represented the truth Divine proceeding from Divine good ; that is, from the Lord.

8717. 'Every great word they shall bring to thee' (ver.22)=that everything is from the truth immediately from the Divine. Ex.

8719. 'Devolve from upon thee, and let them bear it with thee'=thus functions and offices for them. Ex.

8724. 'And Moses hearkened to the voice of his father-in-law . . .' (ver.24)=the effect. . . By Moses is represented the Divine truth which proceeds from Divine good ; (and which) acts nothing from itself ; but from the Divine good. Ex.

8731. 'And Moses sent away his father-in-law' (ver.27)=the accommodated state of truth Divine. Ex.

8760. 'And Moses ascended unto God' (Ex.xix.3)=the truth from the Divine which is below Heaven conjoining itself with the Divine truth which is in Heaven. Moses, here, represents the truth from the Divine which is below Heaven, for the reason that he now represents the sons of Israel as their head ; thus those who are of the Spiritual Church, who as yet are not in Heaven, because not yet in good formed by truths . . .

8778. 'Moses' (ver.8) represents truth from the Divine conjoined with the truth Divine in Heaven, which mediates.

8780. 'And Jehovah said unto Moses' (ver.9)=the influx of the Divine by means of truth from the Divine concerning the revelation.

8781. 'Behold I come unto thee in the density of a cloud'=that this shall be done in a form-specie-the most natural. . . By Moses is represented the truth from the Divine which is of the Spiritual Church.

8787. The representation of Moses now is the truth from the Divine which is below Heaven . . . The truth from the Divine, which is represented by Moses, is the mediating [agent] of the Divine with those who are of the Church . . . and therefore also by Moses is represented the truth from the Divine below Heaven conjoined with the truth Divine in Heaven ; and this on account of the mediation.

8802. Those who are intermediate between the Celestial Kingdom and the Spiritual Kingdom . . . are represented by Moses, and also by Aaron, to whom it was granted to ascend into the mountain. Ex.

8805. 'And Moses descended from the mountain to the people' (ver.14)=application and preparation by means 'of truth from the Divine for the receiving of truths in good.

—4. By Moses in this and the following chapters is represented the truth from the Divine below Heaven conjoined with the truth Divine in Heaven, and hence mediating between the Divine in Heaven and the good in which truths are to be implanted, which is of the Spiritual Church ; thus mediating between the Lord and the people.

8817. 'And Moses made the people go forth to meet God . . .' (ver.17)=the power of truth from the Divine to prepare them to receive the Divine.

8824. 'Moses spake, and God answered him in a voice' (ver.19)=by means of influx of truth from the Divine, in which was the Divine Itself.

8828. 'And Jehovah called Moses to the head of the mountain, and Moses ascended' (ver.20)=the conjunction of truth from the Divine there.

8834. 'And Moses said unto Jehovah' (ver.23)=the thought of truth from the Divine . . . For it is the truth with a man which thinks. Ex.

8841. 'And ascend, thou and Aaron' (ver.24)=conjunction with truth from the Divine, internal and external.

8844. 'And Moses descended unto the people' (ver.25)=the influx of the Divine through truth from the Divine.

8920. 'Speak thou with us' (Ex.xx.19)=the reception of truth in an accommodated form, which they would then obey. . . Moses, who was to speak, represents the truth from the Divine below Heaven conjoined with the truth Divine in Heaven ; thus mediating between the Lord and the people. Hence it is that Moses, here,=truth in an accommodated form. (Continued under DIVINE TRUTH.) 8921.

8928. 'And Moses came near unto the thick darkness where God was' (ver.21)=the conjunction still of the truth of spiritual good with truth Divine. Moses represents the truth Divine below Heaven conjoined with the truth Divine in Heaven, and consequently mediating ; thus the truth of spiritual good ; for this is truth Divine below Heaven, in which is the Spiritual Church . . . This truth Moses represents as the head of that Church.

—4. The other reason why Moses is said to have entered into the thick darkness, when he came near to God, is that Moses as their leader represented the Israelitish and Jewish people . . .

9372. 'And He said unto Moses' (Ex.xxiv.1)=that which concerns the Word in general. Moses represents the Word.

—2. In the Word there are a number who represent the Lord as to truth Divine, or as to the Word; but among these the chief ones are Moses, Elijah, Elisha, and John the Baptist.

—<sup>11</sup>. Moses (at the transfiguration)=the historical Word.

9374. 'Ascend to Jehovah' thou and Aaron'=(the conjunction with the Lord of the) Word in the internal and the external sense.

9378. 'And Moses, he alone, shall come near unto Jehovah' (ver.2)=the conjunction and presence of the Lord through the Word in general. . . Moses represents the Word in general.

9382. 'And Moses came and announced to the people' (ver.3)=illustration and information by the Lord through the Divine truth which is from Himself. Ex.

9386. 'And Moses wrote all the words of Jehovah' (ver.4)=impression then on the life. Moses represents the Lord as to the Word. (Thus by the above words) are signified truths Divine impressed on the life by the Lord. Ex.

9396<sup>e</sup>. That the books of Moses are called 'the Book of the Covenant.'

9403. 'There ascended Moses and Aaron, Nadab and Abihu,' (ver.9)=the Word in the internal and external sense, and the doctrine from both.

9414. 'And Jehovah said unto Moses' (ver.12)=instruction by the Lord for those who are in the external sense. . . Moses represents that which mediates between the Lord and the people; thus the Word as to its external Holy; for this is what mediates. That this is what Moses now begins to represent, is evident from the series of things which follow; for that people were in the external of the Word . . . They who are such cannot possibly have any communication with the Lord . . . except through an intermediate.

—<sup>2</sup>. On this account that people was no longer called the people of Jehovah, but the people of Moses. III.

—<sup>e</sup>. The reason Moses before represented the Word in general; that is, as to both its internal and its external sense, was that it there treated of the promulgation of the Law . . .

9415. 'Ascend thou unto Me in the mountain'=the Lord's presence with them through the intermediate. . . Because Moses now represents the people as their head, and thus as one who mediates.

9419. 'And Moses rose up, and Joshua his minister' (ver.13)=the Word and the representative. Moses represents that which mediates between the Lord and the people who are in the external sense of the Word separated from the internal; thus also the Word; as shown above in 9414. . . The representative . . . ministers, so that the externals of the Word and of worship may be presented before the Lord through the intermediate, which was 'Moses.' (Ex. under HOLY.)

9420. 'And Moses ascended unto the mountain of God'=towards Heaven.

9421. For when Moses ascended unto the mountain, he represented the external Holy of the Word, which is intermediate . . . between its internal Holy and the representative which is of the external sense.

9435. 'And Moses entered into the midst of the cloud' (ver.18)=the Word in the external sense; (for) Moses represents the Word; here, the Word in the external sense, because it is said that he entered into the midst of the cloud . . . That Moses remained in the extreme (or outermost) of the mountain six days, and on the seventh day was called and entered into the cloud, and ascended unto the mountain, took place for the reason that he might represent the intermediate . . . between the people and the Lord . . . The degrees of ascent from the people to the Lord are thus described. And when at last he came into the mountain, he then for the first time represented the external Holy of the Word, which is what mediates . . . but still he was admitted no further than to the first threshold of Heaven, where the external Holy of the Word ceases. How far he was admitted, has been shown me representatively by means of a Spirit, who as to the upper part of his face as far as the chin was seen in the light of Heaven; but as to the lower part, from the chin, and as to the whole body, was in a cloud. Hence it was evident how much of the external Holy, which mediates, he represented.

—<sup>2</sup>. The six days during which Moses remained in the extreme of the mountain, signified a state of truth; and the seventh, in which he ascended unto the mountain, a state of good. The reason is that there are like degrees of ascent from the world to Heaven with those who are being regenerated by the Lord . . . Such elevation or ascent was also represented by Moses when he put on the representation of the external Holy which mediates; for the external Holy of the Word is the entrance to a state of good; thus to Heaven.

9437. 'And Moses was in the mountain forty days and forty nights'=what is plenary as to information and influx.

— That 'forty' also=what is plenary as to influx, is because from this time Moses begins to represent the external Holy of the Word, which is what mediates between the Lord and the people; and mediation is effected by means of influx through that Holy into the representative in which the people were.

9504. Moses, to whom the Testimony was given, represents the Lord as to Divine truth.

9806. 'Cause thou to approach unto thee Aaron thy brother' (Ex.xxviii.1)=the conjunction of Divine truth with Divine good in the Lord's Divine Human. Moses represents the Lord as to Divine truth.

10215. 'And Jehovah spake unto Moses, saying' (Ex.xxx.11)=illustration through the Word by the Lord. . . By Moses is represented the Word. 10354-10355.

10251<sup>e</sup>. By Moses is represented the Lord as to the Word.

10375. 'And He gave unto Moses in His finishing to speak with him the two tables of the Testimony' (Ex. xxxi.18)=the conjunction of the Lord with man through the Word. Moses represents the Word.

10396. 'And the people saw that Moses delayed to descend from the mountain' (Ex.xxxii.1)=the Israelitish nation when they did not apperceive in the Word anything from Heaven. . . Moses represents the Word.

[A.] 10400. 'Because this Moses, that man who made us ascend from the land of Egypt, we know not what has become of him' (id.)=that it is altogether unknown what Divine truth there is in the Word other than that which elevates man from what is external into what is internal, and makes the Church. Moses represents the Word; thus Divine truth.

10432. 'And I will make thee into a great nation' (ver.10)=the Word elsewhere, that it is good and excellent. Moses represents the Word.

10433. 'And Moses deprecated the faces of Jehovah' (ver.11)=that the Lord from mercy remembered. Moses represents the Word.

10450. 'And Moses looked back, and descended from the mountain' (ver.15)=the Word let down from Heaven.

10451<sup>e</sup>. Moses represented the Word, which is the Divine truth itself from the Lord, and therefore the tables were 'in his hand,' as a badge of this representation. 10690.

10460. 'And the anger of Moses was kindled' (ver. 19)=the turning away of that nation from the internal of the Word, of the Church, and of worship . . . because by Moses is represented the Word or Divine truth which is from the Lord; or, what is the same, the Lord as to Divine truth.

10468. 'And Moses said unto Aaron' (ver.21)=perception from the Internal concerning such an External. . . . Moses represents the Word; here, its internal. . . The reason Moses here=the Internal, is that he is speaking to Aaron . . . 10471. 10479.

10483. 'And Moses stood in the gate of the camp' (ver.26)=where is the opening to Hell. Moses represents the Internal . . . (which) cannot enter into Hell . . .

10505. 'And if not, blot me I pray out of Thy book which Thou hast written' (ver.32)=that the internal of the Word, of the Church, and of worship will not perish. Ex.

10549. 'When Moses went forth to the camp . . . ' (Ex.xxxiii.8); Moses here represents the Word. 10550. 10551. 10554.

10556. When Moses has returned to the camp, he no longer represents the Word, but the head of the Israelitish nation . . .

10559. And Moses said unto Jehovah' (ver.12)=indignation because the Divine was not with them . . .

10563. For Moses had been foreseen by the Lord to be over the Israelitish people, (as) is evident from the fact that he was brought up in the court of king Pharaoh, where there were dominions; and hence he derived a spirit of pre-eminence over others; and therefore he was received to be over his people. His quality also was that he could receive speech from the Divine better than others of that nation; for he was not so much in what is external separated from what is internal as was that nation. Sig.

10567. 'And He said, My faces shall go, and I will cause thee to rest' (ver.14)=that the Divine of the Church, of worship, and of the Word will be there; but with that nation what is external without it. . . 'To make Moses rest'=the external of the Church, of worship, and of the Word, in which Divine interior things cease . . .

10571. 'And Jehovah said unto Moses, This word also which thou hast spoken I will do' (ver.17)=that the Divine will be in the external of the Church, of worship, and of the Word, which is with them. Moses, as the head of that nation, represents (this) external not so separated from what is internal as was the external of them with the nation itself.

—<sup>2</sup>. Hence it is that it is now said 'Moses and the people;' now, 'Moses,' without the people; and now 'the people,' without Moses; and that when Moses is speaking to Jehovah, he says 'I and the people;' and when Jehovah to Moses, He speaks of Moses alone; or of the people separated from him. Ill.

10574. 'And he said, Cause me I pray to see Thy glory' (ver.18)=the apprehension of internal Divine truth in what is external. Moses here represents (that) external not so separated . . . 10576.

10578. 'And He said, Thou canst not see My faces' (ver.20)=that the Divine interior things of the Church, etc., cannot appear to the Israelitish nation . . . Because this is said to Moses, and Moses here represents the head of the Israelitish nation.

10582<sup>e</sup>. (Thus) 'to place Moses in the fissure of the rock' (ver.22)=what is obscure and false of faith, such as is with those who are in externals without an internal; for by 'Moses' is here meant that people . . . 10583. 10584.

10607. By Moses (in Ex.xxxiv.) is represented the external of the Church, of worship, and of the Word which receives Divine truth. . . (This) is evident from the particulars in this chapter; as that Moses ascended into Mount Sinai . . . and that the people were removed thence; and in what follows Jehovah speaks to Moses . . . and not to the people . . . 10614.

—<sup>3</sup>. That Moses represents this external, and not the internal, is also evident from all the particulars . . . as that Jehovah descended in a cloud . . . A like external was represented by Moses in the preceding chapter . . .

10611. 'And Moses arose in the morning early, and ascended unto Mount Sinai' (ver.4)=a new rise of the revelation of Divine truth.

10625. 'And Moses hastened, and bent himself to the earth, and adored' (ver.8)=reception then from influx into the external, and worship from humiliation. . . . Moses represents the external of the Church, etc., which receives the internal. 10626.

10635. Moses represents the Word; hence by 'the people in the midst of whom he is' (ver.9), is signified the Church where the Word is . . . 10636. 10637. 10638.

10689. 'In the descending of Moses from Mount Sinai' (ver.29)=the influx of the internal into the external of the Word, of the Church, and of worship. . . . By Moses is represented the external of the Word in which is the internal. —.

10691. 'And Moses knew not that the skin of his faces did shine . . .' (id.)=the internal of the Word shining forth in its external without the external perceiving it. Moses represents the external of the Word in which is the internal. 10694. 10695.

10701. 'And he put a veil upon his faces' (ver.33)=that the internal of the Church, of worship, and of the Word appeared not to the Israelitish nation; but only the external without the internal.

10702. 'And in the entering of Moses before Jehovah to speak with Him' (ver.34)=the state of the external when the internal from the Lord inflowed, and it received information. Moses represents the external in which is the internal. 10707.

—<sup>2</sup>. This is signified by the veil before the face of Moses. Ex.

10703. 'He removed the veil . . .' (id.)=a state of illustration then. Ex.

—<sup>3</sup>. It is now evident whence came the sparkling of the faces of Moses, and what is the signification of it. 10705.

10705. 'The faces of Moses'=the internal things of the Word. 10706.

S. 48. 'Moses and Elias'=the historical and the prophetical Word. E.64<sup>2</sup>. 594<sup>2</sup>. 1070<sup>3</sup>.

71<sup>2</sup>. (In the Word in Heaven) instead of 'Moses,' there is 'the Historical Word.'

R. 662. 'And they sang the song of Moses the servant of God . . .' (Rev.xv.3)=confession from charity, thus from a life according to the precepts of the Law which is the decalogue. . . By 'Moses' is meant, in a wide sense, all the Law written in his five books; and, in a confined sense, the Law which is called the decalogue; and as these subserve a man for life, it is said 'the song of Moses the servant of God;' for by 'a servant' in the Word is meant what subserves; here, life.

—<sup>2</sup>. The reason why by 'Moses,' in a wide sense is meant the Law, is that his five books are called 'the Law' . . . That everything written in these books is called 'the Law of Moses,' and also 'Moses.' Ill.

—<sup>3</sup>. From these things it is evident that by 'Moses,' in a wide sense, is meant the Word which has been written by him, which is called 'the Law.' That by 'Moses' is meant the Law which is the decalogue, follows thence, and this the more as Moses engraved the tables after he had broken the former ones; and, when he carried them down, his face was radiant; and therefore Moses is portrayed holding the tables in his hands. It is also said in Mark, 'Moses said, Honour thy father and thy mother' (vii.10); and in Joshua, 'Joshua wrote a copy of the law of Moses upon the stones of the altar' (viii.32). This Law was the decalogue.

T. 209<sup>e</sup>. Hence it was evident to me whence it was that the face of Moses shone. Ex.

Ad. 2/1676. Moses seen. 2/1865. See D.281. 464. 3/7612. Many things could be said about Moses . . .

D. 1636<sup>e</sup>. (Moses and Elias at the transfiguration were merely personated.)

1957. Concerning the speech of Spirits with Moses and the prophets.

5131. One of these from the Celestial Kingdom spoke with Moses; and therefore the Jews formed the opinion that Jehovah has a white beard.

5618<sup>e</sup>. Their Word was according to the interior sense . . . and in place of 'Moses,' 'Aaron,' 'David,' there was 'the Lord.'

5619. Moses appears to the Jews when they do anything evil, with a rod in his hand, and terrifies and admonishes them. A certain Angel in Heaven appears in such a form, and they persuade themselves that it is Moses. J.(Post.)252. 293.

5669a. The Mohammedans acknowledge Moses as a great prophet; but less than the Lord; but they no longer think about Moses.

6107. Concerning Moses, who has been seen.—The Jews asked the Lord that Moses might be shown them, who was therefore seen. He was then below in his own place where the Ancients are, in a quiet state. He came to me also, and I spoke with him. He was a serious man. He said that he seemed to himself to be a man of about fifty years of age, although in the world he had been 120 years old; and that he has with him his five books, and also the ancient Word. I asked him about the Book of Jasher. He said that he has seen it, and told me that that Word is still with the Ancients of his time, and is read. Also that he knows about the following Word which exists at this day, but does not read it. I recounted some things from those which he had written concerning some things in the five books, and he recognized all things, as if they were present to him.

E. 412<sup>13</sup>. Moses, here (Ex.xxxiii.) represented that nation, such as it is as to the understanding of the Word . . .

624<sup>21</sup>. Because Moses represented the Law, by which is meant Divine truth.

—<sup>22</sup>. The chief of them represented the Lord as to the Word itself from which is the doctrine of Divine truth; as Moses, Elijah . . .

—<sup>23</sup>. As Moses represented the Lord as to the Law, that is, as to the Word . . . 727<sup>11</sup>.

735<sup>4</sup>. The body of Moses. (See MICHAEL, here.)

936. 'They sang the song of Moses the servant of God' . . . =the acknowledgment and confession of the precepts which are in the Word . . . of the Old Testament.

937. That 'Moses'=the Word of the Old Testament. Ill.

—<sup>3</sup>. As Moses represented the Law . . .

—<sup>4</sup>. As Moses represented the Lord as to the Law or Word . . .

—<sup>5</sup>. As by Moses was represented the Lord as to the historical Word . . .

Most Ancient. Antiquissimus.

See MOST ANCIENT CHURCH.

A. 16. 'The beginning'=the most ancient time.

115. The Most Ancients understood what 'lands' signified.

[A.] 200°. The quality of those who lived in that most ancient time. Ex. 201.

241. The Most Ancients, who were celestial, were such, that whatever they saw . . . they did indeed see ; but they thought about the heavenly and Divine things which they signified. Their sight was merely something instrumental, and therefore so was their speech. Ex. . . But these posterities . . . were not like their fathers. Ex.

243. In the most ancient celestial man, the sensuous things of the body were such that they were in compliance with . . . their internal man ; and beyond this they did not care for them.

286. In what precedes it has treated of the Most Ancients, that they were regenerated ; first concerning those who had lived as wild animals, and at last became spiritual men ; then concerning those who became celestial men, who constituted the Most Ancient Church ; afterwards, concerning these and their descendants who fell away, in order . . . down to the Flood.

358. In the most ancient times they were such that the face was in complete accord with the internals . . .

403°. (The style of writing with the Most Ancients.)

470. In the most ancient time the human race was distinguished into houses, families, and nations. The husband and wife with their children, including also some of their family who served, constituted a house. A number of houses, few or many, dwelling not far apart and yet not together, constituted a family. A larger or smaller number of families constituted a nation. 3665<sup>4</sup>.

471. The reason why they dwelt thus alone by themselves . . . was that the Church might be preserved in its integrity . . . A further reason was that each house was of a peculiar genius . . . (and) in order that there might not be a confusion, but an accurate distinction of native qualities, it pleased the Lord that they should so dwell. Thus the Church represented to the life the Lord's Kingdom . . . This is to live 'alone ;' and this is to dwell 'in tents.'

608. They could no longer be instructed through the internal man, as was the most ancient man . . .

715. As the Most Ancients knew . . . that they were nothing but beasts . . .

795. The Most Ancients worshipped on mountains.

1002. In the most ancient time they never ate the flesh of any beast or bird, but only grain, especially bread made of wheat ; also the fruits of trees, vegetables, milk, and its products . . . To slaughter animals, and eat their flesh, was to them a wickedness . . . They took from them only service and use ; as is evident from Gen.i.29,30.

1102. For the Most Ancients not only journeyed with tents, but also dwelt in tents, and performed their holy worship in them.

1119. How the internal breathing of the Most Ancients inflowed tacitly into a kind of external breathing. (Continued under BREATHE.)

1140. In (Gen.x.xi.) the most ancient style is continued . . .

1756°. The most ancient mode of writing. Ex.

2144°. The perception in which were the Ancients, and especially the Most Ancients. From perception the latter knew whether it was good, and consequently true. There was an influx into their Rational from the Lord through Heaven, from which they at once knew . . . whether it was so, or not.

2145°. I have heard from the Most Ancients that the more they were in scientifics from those things which were objects of hearing and sight, the more inferior were their perceptions . . .

2162°. The representatives with the Most Ancients . . .

2722°. The Most Ancients, who were before the Flood, saw (in all the objects of nature) something representative . . . of the Lord's Kingdom . . . 3394°. 3686°.

3021. These (correspondences) were known to the Most Ancients, and they had many rites thence derived. Examp.

3122. The Most Ancients, who were celestial . . . But the Ancients, who were spiritual . . .

3255. For when the Most Ancients lived on earth, they were at the same time together with the Angels . . .

3527°. The Most Ancients, who were celestial men, and were completely ignorant of what simulation is . . . could see the minds of others in their faces . . . 3573°.

3573°. To show by the countenance what is different from the thought . . . to the Most Ancients was an enormous crime, and they cast out such as devils.

3702°. In such a state were the Most Ancients, who were celestial men . . .

3720. (The house of God) with the Most Ancients was constructed of wood . . .

3727. For in the most ancient times stones were placed where their boundaries were, which discriminated the possession or inheritance of one from that of another . . . The Most Ancients, who in each object and statute thought of something celestial and spiritual, even in these stones . . . thought from them concerning the ultimates in man . . . The Most Ancients, as they spoke with Angels, and were together with them while they were on earth, had it from Heaven that stones = truth ; and wood, good. 4580°.

3892. I have been informed by the Most Ancients, who were celestial men, and above all others were in love to the Lord, that they had no external breathing . . . but internal ; and that they breathed with the Angels, with whom they were in company, for the reason that they were in celestial love. I have also been informed that the state of their respiration was circumstanced exactly according to the state of their love and the derivative faith.

4264°. The Most Ancients, who were celestial men, and had communication with the Angels, knew what is signified by each number . . . 5265°. 6175°.

4326°. With the Most Ancients, whose Age was called Golden, because they lived in a certain state of perfection - integritatis, and in love to the Lord, and in mutual love like the Angels, the whole Involuntary of the cerebellum was open in the face, and they did not at all know how to present in the countenance anything which was not in accordance with the influx of Heaven into the involuntary endeavours, and thence into the will.

4328. The Most Ancients, who constituted the Lord's Celestial Church, had a Voluntary in which was good, and an Intellectual in which was the derivative truth, which two with them made a one.

4535<sup>4</sup>. The Church was in Canaan from the most ancient times. 8317.

4581<sup>3</sup>. Rituals which originated in the most ancient times.

5695. Such a face had the Most Ancients, who were of the Celestial Church.

5725<sup>e</sup>. The last posterity of the Most Ancients, who were of the Lord's Celestial Church, were completely inundated by evils and falsities, and so perished.

6065. In the good which originates in the will, were the Most Ancients who were of the Celestial Church; but in the good which originates in the understanding, were the Ancients who were of the Spiritual Church.

8118. I have been told by the Angels that the Most Ancients dwelt . . . distinguished into nations, families, and houses; and that they were all content with their own goods; and that to become rich from the goods of others, and also to exercise dominion, were then entirely unknown. On this account the ancient times, and especially the most ancient ones, were more acceptable to the Lord . . . Innocence then reigned, and together with it wisdom. Everyone then did good from good, and justice from justice. To do anything good and just for the sake of self-honour, or for the sake of gain, was unknown to them. Nor did they then speak anything except what is true; and this not so much from truth as from good; that is, not from a separated Intellectual. Such were the ancient times; and therefore Angels could then have intercourse with men, and lead their minds almost separated from corporeal things with them into Heaven, and could take them round, and show them the magnificent and happy things there, and could also communicate to them their own happinesses and delights. Those times were also known to ancient writers, and were called by them Golden, and also Saturnian. The reason why those times were such, was that . . . they lived distinguished into nations, and the nations into families, and the families into houses, and each house dwelt by itself; and because it then never came into anyone's mind to invade another's inheritance, and thence to acquire for themselves wealth and dominion. Far removed then were the love of self and the love of the world. Everyone was glad from the heart with what was his own, and not less at the good of another. 10160<sup>2</sup>.

8249<sup>e</sup>. Everyone can know that the Most Ancients could not have the speech of words . . .

9406<sup>e</sup>. In the most ancient times, which are signified by 'the gold' . . .

10355<sup>2</sup>. In the most ancient times, men were informed about heavenly things . . . by immediate intercourse with the Angels; for Heaven then acted as a one with the man of the Church; for it flowed through their internal man into their external, from which they had not only illustration and perception, but also speech with Angels . . .

H. 87<sup>e</sup>. The Most Ancients, who were celestial men, thought from correspondence itself, like the Angels; and therefore also they spoke with the Angels; and therefore the Lord was quite frequently seen by them, and instructed them. 115, Ex. 252<sup>2</sup>.

260<sup>3</sup>. I have been told that with the Most Ancients on this Earth, before letters had been invented, there was such writing. Des.

306. I have been informed from Heaven that there was immediate revelation with the Most Ancients, because their interiors were turned to Heaven . . .

P. 215<sup>2</sup>. In the most ancient times, dignities and riches were quite different. Ex.

M. 75<sup>3</sup>. These Most Ancients, while they were in the world, dwelt in tabernacles, and therefore they dwell in them now.

—<sup>5</sup>. The marriages of the Most Ancients. Des.

77<sup>4</sup>. (Those of the Copper Age said,) From the Most Ancients, who were in love truly conjugal, and were therefore pre-eminently in the virtue and potency of this love in the world . . . we have precepts concerning marriages . . . We are their posterity . . .

205. I have heard from the Angels that those who lived in the most ancient ages, live at this day in the Heavens house by house, family by family, and nation by nation, in like manner as they had lived on earth; and that scarcely anyone of a house is absent. The reason is that there was love truly conjugal with them; and thence their offspring inherited inclinations for the Conjugal of good and truth, and were easily initiated into it more and more interiorly by their parents . . .

T. 9<sup>2</sup>. The Most Ancients in the Golden Age, those with whom there was religion, worshipped one God, whom they named Jehovah. In like manner the Ancients in the following Age . . .

D. 4294. Where are the dwellings of the Most Ancients . . .

4772<sup>2</sup>. Those in the most ancient times . . . worshipped Jehovah under a human form . . .

5595. The speech of the Most Ancients was such . . .

5810. I was afterwards brought to the Most Ancients, who are in the acknowledgment of the Divine and of Divine things just as they have been revealed to me. They examined them, and they coincided.

5999. See LIBRARY, here. —<sup>5</sup>.

E. 808<sup>3</sup>. The Most Ancients, who were wiser than our ones, had no other idea of God than as of a Man encompassed by radiant circles round His head . . .

988<sup>e</sup>. I have been told from Heaven that there was such a correspondence of families on earth with Societies in the Heavens among the Most Ancients . . . for the reason that there reigned love to the Lord, mutual love, innocence, peace, wisdom, and chastity in marriages. And I have also been told from Heaven that they were interiorly horrified at adulteries, as at abominable things of Hell.

De Verbo 11. I have heard from Heaven that with the Most Ancients on this Earth there was immediate revelation, and that therefore they had no written Word.

Inv. 52. See SWEDENBORG, here.

Most Ancient Church. Ecclesia Antiquissima.

See MOST ANCIENT; and under ADAM, ANTEDILUVIAN, ENOS, NEPHILIM, and SETH.

A. 4°. Gen. i. treats of . . . the Most Ancient Church in special.

32°. The Most Ancient Church acknowledged no other faith than love itself.

49. In the Most Ancient Church, with whom the Lord spoke mouth to mouth, the Lord appeared as a Man . . .

50. What the Most Ancient Church understood by 'the image of the Lord,' is more than can be told.

54. What is meant in the internal sense by 'male and female,' was very well known to the Most Ancient Church. . . Their highest happinesses and deliciousnesses were marriages . . . and, as they were internal men, they were delighted solely with internal things. External things they merely looked at with the eyes; but they thought about those things which were represented; so that external things were nothing to them, except in so far as from them they could reflect upon internal things, and from internal upon celestial things, and thus upon the Lord, who to them was everything, and consequently upon the heavenly marriage, from which they perceived the happiness of their marriages to come . . .

55. 'Antiquities' = the Most Ancient Church. 477°.

64°. By Adam in Paradise (the Angels) perceive the Most Ancient Church; yet not the Church, but the faith of the Most Ancient Church in the Lord.

66. The first (style in the Word) is that which was of the Most Ancient Church. Their mode of expression was such that when they mentioned earthly and worldly things, they thought of the spiritual and celestial things which they represented. They therefore not only expressed themselves by representatives, but also reduced these into a certain historical series, that they might be more living, which to them was in the highest degree delightful. . . From the descendants of the Most Ancient Church, Moses had these things concerning the creation, the garden of Eden, and down to the time of Abram.

82°. It does indeed treat (in Gen.ii.1) of the Most Ancient Church; but the interiors of the Word are such, that whatever is said of the Church, is said of each individual of the Church . . . Therefore also the Most Ancient Church is called 'man,' in the singular.

85°. The Most Ancient Church . . . was more the Lord's 'Sabbath' than those which followed.

104. Perception is a certain internal sense, from the Lord alone, whether a thing is true and good, and was very well known to the Most Ancient Church.

125. The men of the Most Ancient Church had the Knowledge of true faith by revelations; for they spoke with the Lord, and with the Angels. They were also instructed by means of visions and dreams, which with them were most delicious and paradisiacal. They had perception from the Lord continually, which was such that when they thought from those things which were in the memory, they at once perceived whether the thing was true and good, insomuch that when any false thing was presented, they felt not only aversion, but also horror. Such also is the state of the Angels.

127. That men have wanted to inquire into the mysteries of faith by means of sensuous and scientific things, not only was the cause of the fall of the Most Ancient Church—that is to say, of its posterity—but also is the cause of the fall of every Church; for thence come not only Falsities, but also evils of life.

131. It treats (in Gen.ii.18 et seq.) concerning the posterity of the Most Ancient Church, which desired proprium.

137. In [the first] three chapters of Genesis, it treats, in general, of the Most Ancient Church, which is called 'man;' from its first to its last time, when it perished. (Gen.ii.1-17) treats of its most flourishing state, when it was a celestial man . . .

139°. This posterity of the Most Ancient Church did not want to dwell 'alone;' that is, to be a celestial man, or to be led by the Lord as a celestial man; but to be among the nations, like the Jewish Church . . .

161. This posterity of the Most Ancient Church was not evil, but still good. And as they wanted to live in the external man, or in proprium, it was granted them by the Lord; but from mercy the Celestial Spiritual was insinuated.

162. This law (of monogamous marriage) was not only revealed to the men of the Most Ancient Church, but was also inscribed on their internal man . . . But when their descendants . . . became external men, they married a number of wives.

—2. As the men of the Most Ancient Church in their marriages represented the heavenly marriage, conjugal love was as it were Heaven and heavenly happiness to them.

190. It treats (in Gen.iii.) of the third state of the Most Ancient Church, which so desired proprium as to love it.

194°. It treats of the third posterity of the Most Ancient Church, who began not to believe in things revealed, unless they saw and perceived with their senses that they were so. Their first state, that it was one of doubt, is described in ver. 1,2.

198. 'The fruit of the tree of the garden' is the good and truth revealed to them from the Most Ancient Church. 'The fruit of the tree which is in the midst of the garden,' of which they were not to eat, is the good and truth of faith, which they were not to learn from themselves. 'Not to touch it' = that they were not to think concerning good and truth from themselves, or from what is sensuous and scientific . . . 199.

200. The inmost of the celestial man, or of the Most Ancient Church, was the tree of lives, which is love and the derivative faith; while the inmost of this . . . posterity—which may be called a celestial spiritual man—was faith. . . Those who lived in that most ancient time were of a native quality entirely different from what ever exists with anyone at this day . . . being such, that from good they knew truth, or from love what was of faith. 201.

202. The Most Ancient Church, which was a celestial man, was such that they not only could not eat of the tree of knowledge; that is, learn from sensuous and scientific things what is of faith; but they were not even permitted to touch that tree; that is, to think from sensuous and scientific things anything which was of faith, lest they should fall down from celestial into spiritual life . . . Such also is the life of the celestial Angels.

205. (The gradual fall of this posterity of the Most Ancient Church, described.)

208. This (ver.6) was the fourth posterity of the Most Ancient Church, who suffered themselves to be seduced by their own proper love; and did not want to believe in things revealed, unless they saw them to be confirmed from sensuous and scientific things.

216. So spake the Most Ancients, and described (by the sewing together of fig-leaves) this posterity of the Church; namely, that there was natural good in them, in place of innocence, and that by it their evil was concealed; and that, being in natural good, they were affected with shame.

219<sup>2</sup>. 'The heavens of heavens of antiquity'=the wisdom of the Most Ancient Church.

221. They had something of perception left, from which they knew that they were fallen. Sig.

224. The state of this man, or of this posterity of the Most Ancient Church, was natural good; and they who are in natural good are such that they hide themselves, through fear and through shame, because they are 'naked.'

230. The dominant evil of this posterity was the love of self, and not so much at the same time the love of the world, as at this day; for they lived within houses and families, and did not desire wealth.

231. The evil of the Most Ancient Church (and also of all the succeeding Churches) has been that they do not believe in the Lord, or in the Word, but in themselves and in their senses. Hence there is no faith; and, when there is no faith, there is no love of the neighbour; and thus all is false and evil.

234. (In these verses) is described the state of the Church down to the Flood; and as then the Church utterly destroyed itself, it is foretold that the Lord would come into the world . . . 260. 279.

249. 'The days of eternity'=the Most Ancient Church. 349<sup>2</sup>. 477<sup>2</sup>.

253<sup>2</sup>. 'A woman forsaken,' and 'a wife of youth,'=in special, the Ancient, and the Most Ancient Church. 255.

276<sup>2</sup>. The last posterity of the Most Ancient Church, which was the next before the Flood, which is here treated of, was so lost, and immersed in sensuous and corporeal things, that they did not want to hear what the Truth of faith was, what the Lord, that He would come and save them; and, when they were mentioned, they felt aversion. This aversion is described by 'eating bread in the sweat of the face.'

280. It here treats (in Gen.iii.20-24), in sum, of the Most Ancient Church, and of those who fell away; thus also of its posterity, down to the Flood, when it expired.

281. Concerning the Most Ancient Church itself, which was celestial, and, from its life of faith in the Lord, was called 'Eve,' and 'the mother of everything living' (ver.20).

282. Concerning its first posterity, in which there was celestial spiritual good; and concerning the second and the third, in which there was natural good, which is signified by 'the coat of skin . . .' (ver.21). 295.

283. Concerning the fourth posterity, in which natural good began to be dissipated; who, if they had been created anew, or had been instructed in the celestial things of faith, would have perished . . . (ver.22).

284. Concerning the fifth posterity, that they were deprived of all good and truth, and were reduced into the state in which they had been before regeneration . . . (ver.23).

285. Concerning the sixth and the seventh posterity, that they were separated from the knowledge of good and truth, and left to their own filthy loves and persuasions; and that it was so provided, lest they should profane the holy things of faith . . . (ver.24).

286. See MOST ANCIENT, here.

289<sup>e</sup>. See MOTHER, here.

307. It here treats of the sixth and seventh posterity, which perished by the Flood, and who were completely cast out of the garden of Eden, or from all intelligence of truth, and became as it were not men, and were left to insane cupidities and persuasions.

310. Their first parents, who constituted the Most Ancient Church, were celestial; and thus celestial seed was inseminated in them. Hence their descendants had with them seed of a celestial origin . . . If (such) decline from truth and good, it is most perilous. Ex.

325. The Most Ancient Church had faith in the Lord through love; but there came forth those who separated faith from love ('Cain').

337. As it is treating of the degeneration of the Most Ancient Church, or of the falsification of its doctrine, and consequently of its heresies and sects, under the names of Cain and his descendants . . . (it is necessary to know) what the nature of the true Church was. The Most Ancient Church . . . was a celestial man; and acknowledged no other faith than that which was of love to the Lord and the neighbour. Through this love they had faith, or a perception of all things of faith, from the Lord; and for this reason they were unwilling to mention faith, lest it should be separated from love. 393. —<sup>2</sup>. 'Mountains and hills'=the Most Ancient Church.

—<sup>3</sup>. Such was the Most Ancient Church, and such was its doctrine. But at this day it is entirely different . . .

[A.] 371. This Perceptive was proper to the Most Ancient Church; but after faith had been separated from love . . . conscience succeeded. 393<sup>a</sup>.

398. With the men—viros—of the Most Ancient Church, the mind, which consists of will and understanding, was one; for the will therein was everything, so that the understanding was of the will . . . because love was everything.

414<sup>a</sup>. As the Most Ancient Church was more beloved by the Lord than the Churches which followed it; and because they then lived among themselves alone, or in their own families, and celebrated a worship so holy in their tents, therefore tents were accounted more holy than the temple . . .

459. The celestial (Spirits and Angels) are those who through love have received faith from the Lord, like those who were of the Most Ancient Church.

460. In (Gen. v.) it treats in special of the propagation of the Most Ancient Church among their descendants, almost down to the Flood.

461. The Most Ancient Church itself, which was celestial, is what is called 'man,' and 'a likeness of God.'

462. The second Church, which was not so celestial as the Most Ancient Church, is called 'Seth.' 484.

463. The third Church was called 'Enos;' the fourth Church, 'Cainan;' the fifth Church, 'Mahalaleel;' the sixth Church, 'Jared;' the seventh Church, 'Enoch;' the eighth Church, 'Methuselah.'

465. The ninth Church was called 'Lamech,' which is described as having nothing left of the perception of the Most Ancient Church; and 'Noah,' as a New Church. 467.

468. In this chapter . . . the names are doctrines, or Churches, which were preserved, however much changed, from the Most Ancient Church, down to Noah.

469. 'The book of the nativities' = an enumeration of those who were of the Most Ancient Church; 'in the day that God created man' = that it was made spiritual; 'in the likeness of God made He him' = that it was made celestial. Thus it is a description of the Most Ancient Church. 470.

474. As it is treating of the nativity or propagation of the Most Ancient Church, it is first described here that from spiritual it was made celestial; for the propagations follow from this.

475. ('He called their name man.') 'Man' = the Most Ancient Church. Ex. and III.

483. By the names which follow . . . are signified so many Churches, of which the first and principal was called 'Man.' The principal thing of these Churches was perception; and therefore the differences of the Churches of that time were especially differences of perceptions.

—<sup>2</sup>. The Most Ancient Church represented the Lord's Celestial Kingdom, and also as to the generic and specific differences of perceptions. . . They were distinguished into houses, families, and nations, and contracted matrimonies within their houses and families, in order that genera and species of perceptions might come forth . . . Therefore they who were of the Most Ancient Church dwell together also in Heaven.

495. The manner in which the Most Ancient Church decreased cannot be evident unless it is known what perception is; for it was a perceptive Church, such as does not exist at this day. Ex.

502. These three Churches, 'Man,' 'Seth,' and 'Enos,' constitute the Most Ancient Church; yet with a difference of perfection as to their perceptions. Ex.

503. The Perceptive of the Most Ancient Church consisted not only in the fact that they perceived what is good and truth, but in the happiness and delight of doing good. . . The life of love and the derivative faith, such as was that of the Most Ancient Church, is life while in use, or in the good and truth of use. . . In this they were likenesses of the Lord; and therefore in percepts they were made images of Him.

505. These three Churches, which constitute the Most Ancient Church, relatively to those which follow, are as the kernels of fruits or seeds; but those which follow relate comparatively to their membranaceous nature.

593. The man from the posterity of the Most Ancient Church. Sig. and Ex.

597. The states of (the Ancient and the Most Ancient Church) were entirely different. The state of the Most Ancient Church was, that they had from the Lord a perception of good and thence of truth. . . Perception is not conscience. The celestial have perception . . . The Most Ancient Church was celestial . . . 607.

—<sup>2</sup>. The Most Ancient Church had immediate revelation from the Lord by consort with Spirits and Angels, and also by visions and dreams; whereby it was given them to know generally what is good and true; and after they knew this generally, these generals were confirmed by things innumerable, by means of perceptions. . . (Continued under GENERAL.)

601. That the man who remained from the Most Ancient Church could not be regenerated, on account of his direful persuasions and filthy cupidities. Tr.

607<sup>2</sup>. The man of the Most Ancient Church had internal respiration, and no external respiration except tacit; and therefore they did not speak so much by words as afterwards . . . but by ideas . . . which they could express by innumerable changes of the looks and face, especially by those of the lips, in which there are countless series of muscular fibres which at this day are not set free; and which, being free with the men of that time, they could so present, signify, and represent ideas by them as to express in a minute's time what at this day would require an hour . . . and this more fully and clearly to the apprehension and understanding of those present than is possible by words . . . As they had similar breathing to that of the Angels . . . they were in profound ideas of thought, and were able to have such a perception as cannot be described . . . But in their descendants this internal breathing vanished little by little. (Continued under BREATHE.)

608<sup>2</sup>. Therefore, in place of the revelations of the Most Ancient Church, doctrinal things succeeded . . .

609. Doctrinal things of faith, with some of the revelations of the Most Ancient Church, were preserved for the use of this posterity.

633. With no man is there any understanding of truth and will of good, not even with those who were of the Most Ancient Church . . .

661. That all the posterity of the Most Ancient Church would destroy itself. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>3</sup>. 'The breath of lives' = . . . here, the last posterity of the Most Ancient Church.

704. Finally, it treats (in Gen.vii.) of the last posterity of the Most Ancient Church, its quality: that it was possessed by persuasions of falsity and cupidities of the love of self to such a degree that it perished.

726. The rest of the descendants of the Most Ancient Church destroyed the celestial and spiritual seed with them by filthy cupidities and direful persuasions.

727°. The destruction of those of the Most Ancient Church who destroyed themselves. Sig.

728. It treats in general . . . of the total vastation of those who were of the Most Ancient Church, and had become such . . . —. 731<sup>2</sup>. 809.

784. The state of the Most Ancient Church was such that they had internal communication with Heaven; thus through Heaven with the Lord. They were in love to the Lord . . . their interiors were open . . . even from the Lord.

—<sup>3</sup>. Since those times, Heaven has never been open as it was to the man of the Most Ancient Church . . .

791°. It follows now concerning those descendants of the Most Ancient Church who were under the waters . . .

796. As the Most Ancient Church held its sacred worship upon mountains . . .

807. The conclusion, that the Most Ancient Church expired. Sig. 811.

813. The last limit of the Most Ancient Church. Sig.

893<sup>2</sup>. By 'the days,' in Gen.i., are signified the periods of the regeneration of the man of the Most Ancient Church.

895. With the man of the Most Ancient Church there was ground in his voluntary part, in which the Lord inseminated goods; hence from goods he could know and perceive truth, or from love have faith . . . (For) the man of the Most Ancient Church had revelations, by which he was initiated from infancy into the perception of goods and truths; but, as they were inseminated into his voluntary part, he perceived without new instruction innumerable things, so that from one general, he knew from the Lord the particulars and the singulars, which men now have to learn . . . and even so can know scarcely the thousandth part. For the man of the Spiritual Church knows nothing but what he learns . . .

920. The man of the Most Ancient Church had no other worship than internal worship, such as there is in Heaven; for with them Heaven communicated with man, so that they made a one. This communication was perception . . . Thus, being angelic, they were internal men: the external things of the body and the world they did indeed sensate, but did not care for. Examps.

—<sup>2</sup>. So it was with the man of the Most Ancient Church: whatever he saw with his eyes was heavenly to him; and thus with him each and all things were as it were alive. From this may be evident the nature of his Divine worship, that it was internal, and not at all external.

927. That man would not any more so turn himself away, as the man from the posterity of the Most Ancient Church. Sig. and Ex. 1034.

933°. The last posterity of the Most Ancient Church could not be regenerated, because with them intellectual and voluntary things constituted one mind . . . 1034.

986°. It was otherwise with the man of the Most Ancient Church, who had perception.

1013. For by 'Adam,' or 'Man,' is meant the Most Ancient Church, which was a celestial man, and had perception, such as had no Church after it, and therefore it was also 'a likeness' of the Lord.

1023<sup>2</sup>. The heavenly marriage with the man of the Most Ancient Church was in his voluntary proprium . . .

1114. Concerning the Most Ancient Church, which was called 'Man,' or 'Adam.' Gen.art.

—<sup>2</sup>. It has been granted me to speak . . . with those who were of the Most Ancient Church . . .

—<sup>e</sup>. The things which it has been given me to know about the Most Ancient Churches are what follow.

1115. Those who were of the Most Ancient Church . . . and were celestial men, are very high above the head, and dwell together there in the greatest happiness. They said that others rarely come to them . . . and that they are so high above the head . . . in order that they may govern those who are there.

1116. There were shown me the dwellings of those who were of the second and third posterity of this Most Ancient Church, which are magnificent, extended to a great length, and variegated with beautiful colours, bright crimson and blue.

1117. They live in the highest light . . .

1118. Their speech when they lived in the world . . . was not articulate, like the speech of words of our time, but tacit; and was produced not by external but by internal respiration. The nature of their internal respiration. (Des. under BREATHE at this ref., and at 1119. 1120.) 7361. D.3322.

1120. In the last posterity of the Most Ancient Church . . . hardly anything of internal breathing remained, and when at last there was none in the breast, they were suffocated of their own accord . . .

1121. I have been instructed by the sons of the Most Ancient Church concerning their state of perception; namely, that they had a perception of all things which are of faith, almost as the Angels have, with whom they had communication; for the reason that their interior man, or spirit, by means also of internal respiration, was joined to Heaven; and that love to the Lord and love towards the neighbour are attended with this . . . They said that they had the Law written upon them, because they were in love to the Lord and in love towards the neighbour . . .

1122. I have been further instructed that the men of the Most Ancient Church had most delicious dreams, and also visions; and that it was at the same time insinuated to them what they signified. Hence their paradisiacal representations, and many other things. The objects of the external senses . . . were therefore nothing to them . . . and therefore when they saw earthly objects, they thought nothing about them ; but only about the things which they signified . . . D.3382.

[A.] 1123. I have spoken with the third generation of the Most Ancient Church, who said that in their time . . . they had expected the Lord who was to save the universal human race . . . They said that from that time the greatest delight of their life was to procreate offspring, so that their highest deliciousnesses were to love their consort for the sake of offspring . . . adding that the perception of these delights . . . was from influx from Heaven, because the Lord was to be born. D.3316.

1143<sup>2</sup>. Such was the man of the Most Ancient Church ; who, if he were living now and read the Word, would not inhere one whit in the sense of the letter ; but would be as if he did not see it ; but only the internal sense abstracted from the letter . . . 1540<sup>e</sup>.

1148<sup>e</sup>. It is to be observed that the Church before the Flood is called the Most Ancient Church . . .

1159<sup>3</sup>. The reason is that the Most Ancient Church was distinguished into houses, into families, and into nations. The consorts with their children, and their men-servants and maid-servants, constituted a house ; a number of houses which were not far distant from one another constituted a family ; and a number of families constituted a nation. 1416<sup>e</sup>.

1343. The Most Ancient Church unanimously acknowledged the Lord, and named Him Jehovah ; as is evident from the first chapters of Genesis, and elsewhere in the Word.

1384. It has been granted me to speak with the sons of the Most Ancient Church concerning their perception. They said that from themselves they neither think nor can think anything, nor from themselves will anything ; but that in each and all things which they think and will, they perceive what comes from the Lord, and what from other sources ; and they perceive not only how much is from the Lord, and how much as from themselves ; but also, when it is as from themselves, they perceive whence it is, from what Angels, and likewise the quality of the Angels, and what their thoughts are, distinguishing every difference ; thus they perceive what the influx is, and numberless other things.

1409. The Most Ancient Church, which was celestial, regarded all things earthly and worldly, and also corporeal . . . no otherwise than as dead . . . When they saw them . . . they did not think about them, but about the celestial and spiritual things . . . Thus, with them, dead things lived.

1463. As the men of the Most Ancient Church had communication with Heaven . . .

1551. The Golden Age was the time of the Most Ancient Church, which was a celestial man . . .

1573<sup>7</sup>. For the Lord could assume the Human Essence without birth, as He also did assume it when He appeared to the Most Ancient Church, and to the prophets.

1587. (Cupidities of evil and persuasions of falsity) were the two things which destroyed the Most Ancient Church before the Flood.

1588. When the Rational is from a celestial origin, as it was with the Most Ancient Church. III.

1607<sup>2</sup>. For He was Jehovah and God to the Most Ancient Church . . . and was seen by them. And so also to the Ancient Church.

1622<sup>e</sup>. From these things the Most Ancient Church had its paradisiacal things.

1676<sup>e</sup>. Otherwise none could have been saved on this Earth from the time of the Most Ancient Church.

1806<sup>e</sup>. Such was the sight of the Most Ancient Church.

1850<sup>2</sup>. The Last Judgment of the Most Ancient Church. (See LAST JUDGMENT, here.) 2118.

1894<sup>2</sup>. The Lord appeared to the fathers of the Most Ancient Church as a Man. 1990<sup>2</sup>.

1914<sup>4</sup>. The fathers of the Most Ancient Church, who had perception, thought from the interior Rational . . .

1976. Hence the men of the Most Ancient Church had their dreams, which were instructive. 1977<sup>e</sup>.

1997<sup>2</sup>. The Most Ancient Church, which was before the Flood, was in the affection of good . . . for it was a Celestial Church . . .

1999. To fall upon the face was a rite of adoration in the Most Ancient Church . . . Such was the humiliation of the men of the Most Ancient Church.

2069<sup>3</sup>. It was celestial truth which was with the men of the Most Ancient Church . . .

—<sup>5</sup>. For the Lord's Divine good cannot inflow except with the celestial man, because it inflows into his voluntary part, as with the Most Ancient Church . . .

2124. In the Antediluvians was destroyed voluntary good, which was with the men of the Most Ancient Church . . .

2179<sup>3</sup>. As the men of the Most Ancient Church communicated with Spirits and Angels, and constantly had visions, and also dreams, such as those of the prophets ; as soon as they saw any beast, the idea occurred to them what it signified.

2180<sup>4</sup>. The Most Ancient Church . . . knew nothing about sacrifices ; nor did it ever come into their minds to worship the Lord by slaughtering animals.

2243<sup>3</sup>. The Most Ancient Church, which was called 'man,' was the most celestial of all. This Church in process of time so degenerated from the good of love, that at last nothing celestial remained ; and then was its consummation, which is described by their state before the Flood.

2417<sup>5</sup>. The Most Ancient Church . . . was in the very perception of love to the Lord and of charity towards the neighbour ; thus it had what is doctrinal of love and charity inscribed on itself . . .

2571<sup>e</sup>. The doctrine of love and charity is the very Divine doctrine itself, and is that which was cultivated in the Most Ancient Churches . . .

2588<sup>15</sup>. There is here described (Ezek.xxxi.3-8) the

Most Ancient Church, which was celestial, as to the quality of its Rational, thus of its wisdom and intelligence; because that Church looked on things below from Divine things, and thus on truths from goods.

2661<sup>1</sup>. If the Most Ancient Church had remained in its integrity, the Lord would have had no need to be born a man; and therefore as soon as that Church began to fail, the Lord foresaw that the Celestial Church would completely perish from the world, and therefore a prediction was at once made concerning the Advent of the Lord into the world.

2669<sup>2</sup>. The men who were of the Most Ancient Church were celestial . . .

2730. Above all men in this Earth the men of the Most Ancient Church lived in genuine conjugal love, because they were celestial, were from good in truth, and were in the Lord's Kingdom together with the Angels; and in that love there was Heaven for them.

2732. All from the Most Ancient Church, and many from the Ancient Church (are together, and dwell together in Heaven as Angels). De Conj. 117.

2739<sup>e</sup>. In the Most Ancient Church there were such derivations of love; and therefore they dwell together in the Heavens, distinguished as it were into nations, families, and houses, which all acknowledge the Lord as their only Parent.

2740. The men of the Most Ancient Church, who were celestial, and were in the perception of good and truth like the Angels, had only one wife. They said that with one wife they had perceived celestial deliciousnesses and happinesses, and that they felt horror at the bare mention of marriage with a number.

2763. Thence came these representatives to the men of the Most Ancient Church who were celestial, and were together with Spirits and Angels while they lived.

2895. There was another Word in the Most Ancient Church . . . And another in the Ancient Church . . . (Des. in 2897.)

2896. The Word in the Most Ancient Church . . . was not a written Word, but was revealed to everyone who was of the Church; for they were celestial men, and so were in the perception of good and truth, like the Angels; with whom, also, they had consort. Thus they had the Word inscribed on their hearts. . . As they were celestial, and had consort with the Angels, all things which they saw and apprehended with any sense, were to them representative and significative of the celestial and spiritual things which are in the Lord's Kingdom; so that they did indeed see worldly and earthly things with their eyes, or apprehend them with some sense; but from them and by means of them they thought about celestial and spiritual things. Thus, and no otherwise, could they speak with the Angels; for the things which are with the Angels are celestial and spiritual, and when they come to a man, they fall into such things as are with the man in the world. 2995.

2906<sup>e</sup>. 'The days of an age' = the Most Ancient Church. Also 'the days from of old.'

2910<sup>e</sup>. The Most Ancient Church thus expired about the time of the Flood . . .

VOL. IV.

2986<sup>2</sup>. When the Most Ancient Church perished, a new one, called 'Noah,' or the Ancient Church after the Flood, was instaurated among the gentiles; that is, with those where there had been no Church before.

3255. As those who were of the Most Ancient Church were in a like good, they dwell together in Heaven.

3686<sup>2</sup>. The Most Ancient Church . . . was in the Land of Canaan. 4431.

—<sup>e</sup>. Thus also the names (of places) in the Most Ancient Church and Ancient Church were retained.

3703<sup>13</sup>. 'Fathers,' here, = the Ancient and the Most Ancient Church, which were so called from the love of good and truth in which they were; in the love of good were the Most Ancients who were celestial men . . . 6075.

4287<sup>4</sup>. Hence also the Most Ancient Church, which was in celestial good, was called 'man.'

4333. The first Last Judgment was when the Lord's Celestial Church, which was the Most Ancient Church, perished in the Antediluvians by an inundation of evils and falsities . . .

4447. By the Church among the Ancients is meant the Church derived from the Most Ancient Church . . . and by the Ancient Church is meant the Church which was after the Flood . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. The remains of the Most Ancient Church, which was celestial, were still in the Land of Canaan, especially among those who were called Hittites and Hivites . . . because the Most Ancient Church, which was called 'man,' or 'Adam,' was in the Land of Canaan; and consequently the Garden of Eden was there, by which was signified the intelligence and wisdom of the men of that Church . . .

—<sup>e</sup>. That the Most Ancient Church was in the Land of Canaan, and that thence originated the representatives of the places, see 567.

—<sup>e</sup>. What the difference is between the Most Ancient Church which was before the Flood, and the Ancient Church which was after the Flood. Refs.

4448. For the Most Ancient Church, being celestial, was in the good of love to the Lord, and thence in the perception of all truth; for the men of that Church were almost as the Angels; they also communicated with them, and thence came their perception; and therefore they never reasoned concerning any truth of faith, but said, because they perceived it from Heaven, that it is so, inasmuch that they were unwilling even to mention faith, but charity in its place. Refs. . . That the remains of that Church were with Hamor the Hivite, and his son Shehem. Ref.

4454. For Hamor together with his nation and family was among the remains of the Most Ancient Church in the Land of Canaan. Above all Churches in the universal world this Church was from the Divine, for it was in the good of love to the Lord. Their Voluntary and Intellectual made a one; thus one mind; and therefore they had a perception of truth from good; for the Lord inflowed by an internal way into the good of their will, and through this into the good of their understanding, or truth. Hence it is that this Church above all the rest has been called 'man,' and also 'a likeness of God.'

[A. 4454]<sup>9</sup>. That the Most Ancient Church . . . was in the Land of Canaan . . . is manifestly evident from their descendants, who were called 'Nephilim' . . . being in the Land of Canaan (Num.xiii.33). But all the land from the river of Egypt to the river Euphrates was then called the Land of Canaan (Gen.xv.18).

4462<sup>2</sup>. The foreskin . . . corresponded in the Most Ancient Church to the obscuration of good and truth . . . for as the man of the Most Ancient Church was an internal man, good and truth could be obscured with him, but not defiled; whereas with the man of the Ancient Church, as he was relatively an external man, good and truth could be defiled . . . Therefore they who were of the Most Ancient Church knew nothing of circumcision; but only those who were of the Ancient Church.

4476. For Hamor and Shechem were of the remains of the Most Ancient Church; and in that Church he was called 'honoured' who in the Ancient Church was called 'a prince.'

4489. The goods and truths of the Most Ancient Church—which still remained partially with Hamor and Shechem and their families—were in accord with the goods and truths which were from the Ancient Church with the descendants of Jacob; for the rituals which were instituted with the descendants of Jacob were nothing else than externals which represented and signified the internals which were of the Most Ancient Church.

—<sup>2</sup>. These were the internals of worship, which, being represented in this external (the altar), they were alike and of one form with the truths and goods of the Most Ancient Church. Ex.

—<sup>3</sup>. But they who were of the Most Ancient Church did not care for these externals, because they were internal men, and the Lord inflowed with them by an internal way, and taught them what is good. The varieties and differences of good were to them truths, and hence they knew what each and all things in the world represented in the Lord's Kingdom.

—<sup>4</sup>. The difference between the Most Ancient Church and the Christian Church, is such as is that between the light of the sun by day, and the lumen of the moon and stars by night; for to see goods by an internal or prior way, is like seeing in the day by the light of the sun; whereas to see them by an external or posterior way, is like seeing in the night by the lumen of the moon or stars. There was almost the same difference between the Most Ancient Church and the Ancient Church, except that those who were of the Christian Church could have been in a fuller lumen if they had acknowledged, believed, and done the internal things, or the truths and goods, which the Lord taught. The good itself is the same in both; but the difference consists in seeing it in clearness or in obscurity . . .

4493<sup>2</sup>. The men—homines—of the Most Ancient Church . . . were of a genius and native quality altogether different from the men—virī—of the Ancient Church; for the men—homines—of the Most Ancient Church had a Voluntary in which there was what was entire (or perfect), but not the men—virī—of the Ancient Church; and therefore with the men—homines—of the Most Ancient Church the Lord could inflow through the Voluntary, consequently by an internal way; but not with the men—virī—of the Ancient Church; for in these the Voluntary was destroyed; but the Lord inflowed into their Intellectual; thus . . . by an external way. Ex. . . In the Intellectual the Lord formed a new will with the men—virī—of the Ancient Church, when He regenerated them. 5113<sup>2</sup>.

—<sup>3</sup>. Hence it was that they who were of the Most Ancient Church were internal men, and had no externals of worship; and that those who were of the Ancient Church were external men, and had externals of worship; for the former by means of internal things saw external ones as from the light of the sun by day; and the latter by means of external things saw internal ones as in the lumen of the moon and stars by night . . . In these explications the former are those who are called celestial, and the latter are those who are called spiritual.

—<sup>4</sup>. In order to illustrate the nature of the difference, take this example. If a man of the Most Ancient Church had read the historical or prophetic Word, he would have seen its internal sense without any previous instruction or explication . . . and scarcely anything which is in the sense of the letter. . . Whereas if a man of the Ancient Church had read the Word, he could not have seen its internal sense without previous instruction or explication . . .

4500<sup>2</sup>. It was the Church among the Ancients, which was from the Most Ancient Church, which was to have been instaurated with the posterity from Jacob, because the Ancient Church had begun to perish.

4502. By 'the house of Shechem' is here signified simply the good of truth, such as it had been with the man of the Most Ancient Church; and thus that this was extinguished with the nation from Jacob.

4687<sup>2</sup>. The Most Ancient Church, which was celestial, . . . adored the Infinite Esse, and the derivative Infinite Existing (or Manifesting). (Continued under BE.)

5121<sup>2</sup>. The men of the Most Ancient Church had revelation from perception; and also some of the Ancient Church; but at this day scarcely anyone.

5136<sup>2</sup>. For the man of the Most Ancient Church . . . was such that in each and all things . . . he saw what was representative of the Lord's Kingdom. The objects of the world and of the Earth were to him means for thinking about heavenly things. Hence originated all the representatives and significatives which were afterwards in the Ancient Church; for they were collected by those who are meant by 'Enoch.' . . . Hence it came to pass that all the places, mountains, and rivers in the Land of Canaan—where the Most Ancients dwelt—became representatives, and also all the surrounding kingdoms.

5663<sup>2</sup>. Whereas the Ancient Church which was after the Flood, and especially the Most Ancient Church which was before the Flood, by Jehovah and God understood no other than the Lord, and indeed Him as to the Divine Human. They also knew about the Divine Itself which is in the Lord, and which He Himself calls His 'Father.' But they could not think about this Divine Itself . . . but about the Divine Human; consequently they could not be conjoined with any other Divine . . . and they knew that unless they were conjoined with the Divine, they could not be saved. Therefore it was the Divine Human which the Ancient Churches adored. Jehovah also manifested Himself with them in the Divine Human; and the Divine Human was the Divine Itself in Heaven . . .

6075<sup>2</sup>. The state of the Most Ancient Church which was before the Flood is signified by 'the days of eternity;' and the state of the Ancient Church which was after the Flood, by 'the years of generation and generation' . . . 6239<sup>3</sup>. —<sup>4</sup>. (See ETERNITY, here.) E.431<sup>10</sup>.

6367. Man is born into those things which are of the voluntary part. Hence those who were of the Most Ancient Church . . . were born into the good of love to the degree in which the good of love was in their Voluntary.

6435<sup>9</sup>. 'The mountains of eternity' = the good of love which was of the Most Ancient Church . . . 'The hills of an age' = the good of mutual love which was of that Church. The former was its Internal; the latter its External. When this Church is understood in the Word, being the Most Ancient one, there is sometimes added 'eternity' . . . and sometimes 'an age.'

6588<sup>8</sup>. 'Rephaim' = the posterity of the Most Ancient Church which was before the Flood, and which was also called 'Nephilim,' and 'Anakim.' 7686<sup>2</sup>.

6786<sup>2</sup>. The Divine which was of the Ancient Church was the Lord as to the Divine Human. The Ancient Church had this from the Most Ancient Church; and also from the fact that Jehovah appeared to them in a human form . . .

7362<sup>9</sup>. (Thus the Spirits of Mars) are of a celestial genius, and not unlike those who belonged to the Most Ancient Church on this Earth. D.1543.

8054<sup>2</sup>. Immediately above the head are those who deceive and seduce by means of innocence; but above them are the celestial from the Most Ancient Church, who so forcibly keep them in bonds that they cannot possibly inflict evil on anyone.

9470<sup>3</sup>. 'The Ancient of Days' = the Lord as to celestial good, such as there was in the Most Ancient Church, which was a Celestial Church, and in the Word is called 'ancient.' Its external truth is signified by 'His garment as the white snow;' and its external good, by 'the hair of His head as the clean wool.'

10248<sup>8</sup>. 'The days of an age' = the time when was the Most Ancient Church, which was celestial. —.

N. 4. In the highest expanses are those who are called celestial Angels, of whom very many are from the Most Ancient Church.

S. 21. I have been instructed that the men of the Most Ancient Church, which was before the Flood, were of so celestial a genius that they spoke with the Angels of Heaven, and that they could speak with them by means of correspondences. Hence the state of their wisdom became such that whatever they saw on the Earth, they thought about not only naturally, but also spiritually at the same time; thus also in conjunction with the Angels.

P. 241. By Adam and his wife are meant . . . the men of the Most Ancient Church, whose new creation or regeneration is thus described . . . in Gen.i.; their wisdom and intelligence, by the garden of Eden; and the end of that Church, by the eating from the tree of knowledge. —<sup>3</sup>.

328<sup>4</sup>. The consummation of the Most Ancient Church, which was effected by the eating from the tree of knowledge—by which is signified the conceit of Own intelligence—is described by the Flood.

R. 585. 'A tabernacle' = the Celestial Church, because the Most Ancient Church . . . had holy worship in tabernacles.

T. 470<sup>5</sup>. That this direful persuasion—that God has transfused and transcribed Himself into men—was held by the men of the Most Ancient Church at its end . . . I have heard from their own mouth; and (therefore) they lie deeply hidden in a cavern, near to which no one can approach without being seized with an interior dizziness . . .

760. The first Church, which is to be called the Most Ancient Church, came forth before the Flood; the consummation or destruction of which is described by the Flood.

762. The Most Ancient Church was as the morning, the spring, and the east; the second or Ancient Church was as the day, the summer, and the south . . .

786. The former Churches have not been in the Truth, because the Most Ancient Church . . . worshipped the invisible God, with whom no conjunction is possible; the Ancient Church, which was after the Flood, in like manner . . . (See Coro. 51<sup>2</sup>.)

D. 3251<sup>9</sup>. Such also would the men and sons of the Most Ancient Church have become, if they had remained in the state of perfection . . .

3311. On the Most Ancient Church. Gen.art.

3313. The most subtle ones . . . were those who were sons of the Most Ancient Church. . . They were interiorly evil . . .

3314. There afterwards spoke with me those who had been of the Most Ancient Church, who were in the highest . . . Others rarely come to them . . .

3314a. They cannot speak about the Lord. (See LORD, here.)

3323. It follows that the idea of the Most Ancient Church was much fuller than can ever be possible in this time . . .

3353. Concerning the offspring of the Most Ancient Church, or Adam after the fall. Ex.

3378. There was seen a beautiful infant clothed in a shining white garment, which signified . . . the Most Ancient Church. Then in a certain open door there was seen a boy in a green garment . . . and presently two maid-servants in white head-dress, who = the affections of such, as the green boy = their scientific and intellectual things; and therefore in the time of the Most Ancient Church there were partly such rational ideas, whereas the affections of such were like those signified by the maid-servants, whose heads were bright white.

Thus it was the reverse of what it is with us. With us there are good scientifics, but evil affections.

[D.] 3488<sup>e</sup>. Our Most Ancient Church was very similar to it.

3925. Concerning a noble offspring of the Most Ancient Church. 4068. 4070.

4096. Such was the life of the Most Ancient Church.

4114. There was shown me a flaming light above the forehead, and they spoke with me from the Most Ancient Church, saying that such is the light, but much more intense, in which they are.

4145. The respiration of the Most Ancient Church was internal, thus from the internal man—which was in consort with Spirits and Angels—to the external man.

4368. In the man of the Most Ancient Church (horror at adulteries) was in the natural (and thus in the voluntary) part. Ex.

4751. See CHARLES XII., here.

5187<sup>e</sup>. It is to be known that wisdom is given (the Angels) mediately through Angels who have been of the Most Ancient Church and the Ancient Church, and who have been in the knowledge and perception of representatives and correspondences . . . For this reason, Angels from the Most Ancient Churches are scattered through the Heavens, in order that the others may have wisdom.

D. Min. 4636. The sons of the Most Ancient Church were born almost (into Divine order itself); namely into affections of good and affections of truth; and therefore in the very affections there was whatever of good and truth which is taught by the doctrine of faith; but still, in course of time, by instruction, experience, inspiration, and revelation, it was given them to know all things which were of faith, to which they at once assented inwardly; so that they had a perception of them, because they accorded with their affections.

4711. The Celestial Heaven, in which are the men of the Most Ancient Church, had a Voluntary in which was something good, and therefore they could be regenerated as to that also. But the . . . Spiritual Heaven, in which are the men of the Ancient and the present Church, have the Voluntary completely destroyed, and they can be regenerated as to the Intellectual only, in which a new will is formed by the Lord, and from which their Own proper will is completely separated. A. 4328.

4712, 4713. How it was with the men of the Most Ancient Church, who are celestial, and from whom the Lord's Celestial Kingdom is made, was shown me by a certain column coming down from Heaven, which was of a dim azure colour, and on the left side a lucidity like that of the solar flame . . . By this was represented their prior state. The azure colour is such as has good in itself. But, after regeneration, the azure of the column successively passed over into a dim flaming lucidity. The two lives, will and understanding, then acted as one, and were such; the flame=love. Thus was it, in general, with the man of the Most Ancient Church; and in like manner in every particular; and thus in the least parts of the organic form of the interiors; for these are images of the General.

— But (with) the man of the Spiritual Church, that column was completely black, and thus it cannot be diluted and tempered; and therefore that part is miraculously separated from the intellectual part. When the intellectual part is being regenerated, it appears completely lucid, but not flaming, and this lucidity does not enter the black column. A smoke often exhales from the column, and that snowiness, and presents some pleasant colour.

E. 294<sup>15</sup>. The reformation of the men of the First Church in this Earth as to their Internal and as to their External, is meant by the creation of heaven and earth in (Gen.i.). That there was no Church before, because men were devoid of good and truth, is signified by 'the earth being void and empty;' and that they were in dense ignorance before, and also in falsities, is signified by 'the darkness upon the faces of the abyss.' Their first illumination is signified by 'the spirit of God moving upon the faces of the waters;' and by God's saying, 'Let there be light, and there was light' . . .

433<sup>12</sup>. The Most Ancient Church, which was before the Flood, and was in love to the Lord, is meant by 'the days of an age,' or 'of eternity;' and the Ancient Church, which was after the Flood, and which was a Spiritual Church, is meant by 'the former years.'

4487. 'The mountains of the east'=the Most Ancient Church which was in love to the Lord . . . 'The hills of an age'=the Ancient Church, which was in charity towards the neighbour . . .

538<sup>e</sup>. 'To the people of an age'=to those in Hell who were there from the Most Ancient Church . . . They are called 'the people of an age' because they were of old, and were in direful falsities above others.

617<sup>15</sup>. By Adam and his wife is meant the Most Ancient Church, which was a Celestial Church. The men of that Church, because they were in love to the Lord, had Divine truths inscribed on themselves; and thence from influx they knew the corresponding things in the natural man, which are called scientifics. In a word, there was spiritual influx with them; thus from the spiritual mind into the natural, and thus into the things which were there, the quality of which things they saw as in a mirror from correspondence. The spiritual things with them were completely distinct from the natural ones; the spiritual things resided in their spiritual mind, and the natural things in their natural mind, and thus they did not immerse anything spiritual in the natural mind, as spiritual natural men are wont to do; and therefore if they had committed spiritual things to the natural memory, and had appropriated them to themselves in that way, that which was implanted with them would have perished, and they would have begun to reason from the natural man concerning spiritual things, and would have inferred them thence, which they never do. This also would have been to want to be wise from their Own intelligence, and not from the Divine intelligence, as before; and thereby they would have extinguished all their celestial life, and would have taken up natural ideas even about spiritual things. This, therefore, is signified by that they were not to eat of the tree of knowledge of good and evil, and that if they did eat, dying they would die.

725<sup>2</sup>. There is described by these things (in Gen.i.) the instauration of the Most Ancient Church, which was the most excellent of all in this Earth ; its instauration, by the creation of heaven and earth ; its intelligence and wisdom, by the garden in Eden ; and its decrease and fall, by the eating from the tree of knowledge. . . Hence by the man who was called Adam and Eve, is meant that Church ; for it is said 'male and female created He them, and called their name Man ;' and, as that Church is meant by both, it follows that by 'the male' is meant its truth, and by 'the female,' its good . . .

728<sup>2</sup>. The men of the Most Ancient Church were in spiritual understanding and perception of all things which they saw with their eyes . . . And, as the Lord foresaw that this spiritual perception would perish with their posterity . . . the Lord provided that certain ones who lived among the Most Ancients should collect the correspondences into one, and bring them together into a codex. This codex . . . was preserved by the Lord for the use of (the succeeding) Churches. De Verbo 7<sup>3</sup>.

739<sup>6</sup>. It treats in (Gen.i.) of the new creation or instauration of the Church, which was the Most Ancient Church on this Earth, and was also the most excellent of all ; for it was a Celestial Church, because in love to the Lord. Hence the men of that Church were most wise, having almost immediate communication with the Angels of Heaven, through whom they had wisdom from the Lord ; and, as they were in love to the Lord, and had revelations from Heaven, and as they at once committed to life the Divine things revealed to them, they were in a like state to that of the Angels in the Third Heaven ; and therefore that Heaven consists primarily of the men of that Church. This Church is meant by Adam and his wife . . .

—7. It was by no means forbidden them to procure . . . the Knowledges of good and truth from Heaven ; for by these their intelligence and wisdom were perfected ; neither were they forbidden to procure Knowledges of good and of evil from the world ; for their natural man thence had knowledge ; but they were forbidden to view these Knowledges by the posterior way, because to them it was given to see by the prior way all the things which appeared in the world before their eyes. Ex. . . (The former) was done by the men of the Most Ancient Church when they began to love worldly things more than heavenly ones, and to be elated and to glory on account of their wisdom. From this their descendants became sensuous, and then their Sensuous, which is meant by 'the serpent,' seduced them . . .

—8. That it was allowable for them to procure Knowledges from the world, and to view them by the prior way, is signified by that 'Jehovah God made to grow out of the ground every tree desirable to the sight, and good to eat.' . . The Knowledges of good and of evil from the Lord . . . and the Knowledges of good and evil from the world . . . were represented by 'the tree of lives, and the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, in the midst of the garden.' That they were allowed to appropriate Knowledges from whatever source . . . provided they did not proceed in an inverted order, by reasoning from them about heavenly things, and not by thinking from heavenly things about worldly ones, is signified by that 'Jehovah God commanded them that they should eat of every tree of the garden ; but not from the tree of the knowledge of good and evil.' (The history further ex.)

799. For they who were of the Church in Most Ancient times dwelt in tabernacles and tents, with which they also journeyed ; for most then were shepherds of sheep ; and the father of the family taught those born from his house the precepts of charity, and the derivative life of love, in tabernacles . . .

948<sup>3</sup>. Inmost Divine truths were revealed to those who were of the Most Ancient Church ; but exterior Divine truths were revealed to those who were of the Ancient Church . . .

De Verbo 14<sup>5</sup>. In (Gen.i.) is described the reformation and regeneration of the men of the Most Ancient Church . . . But in the (celestial sense) is described the glorification of the Lord's Human . . . by Adam himself is meant the Lord as to the Divine Itself and at the same time the Divine Human ; and by his wife, the Church . . . By the names, which are the posterities of Adam, are described the successive state of the reception of the Lord and of conjunction with Him by the men of that Church . . .

Coro. 23. Concerning the Adamic Church, or the Most Ancient Church of this Earth. Gen.art.

25. The first state of this Most Ancient Church, or its rise and morning, is described in (Gen.i.26,27 ; ii.7).

27. The second state of this Most Ancient Church, or its progression into light, and day, is described in (Gen. ii.8-17).

29. The third state of this Church, which is its decline and evening, and is called vastation, is described in (Gen.iii.1-6).

31. The fourth state of this Church, which was its end or night, and is called consummation, is described in (Gen.iii.9-23). (And also by the expulsion of the man from the garden. 32.)

34. The fifth state of this Church was the separation of the good from the evil, which was the Last Judgment upon all who were of that Church. This state is described by the Flood . . . and by Noah and his sons, by whom are meant all the good who were saved. The end of the Most Ancient Church is described in (Gen. vi.5-8). But the Last Judgment upon them is described by the Flood.

36. The sixth state of the men of this Church, which was, after the Last Judgment, the elevation of the faithful to God, of whom was made a new Heaven ; and the removal of the unfaithful from God, of whom was made a new Hell.

37. (The visit of Swedenborg to the Angels of the Golden Age (M.116-131) is here quoted in extenso as a description of the New Heaven of the Most Ancient Church.)

38. The Hell of those who were from the Most Ancient Church is the most frightful of all the Hells. It consists of those who in the world had believed themselves to be as God . . . From this direful persuasion a deadly stench is breathed forth from that Hell . . . so that when anyone approaches he is seized with a mad delirium . . . This Hell is in the middle southern quarter, surrounded by ramparts, on which stand some who shout in a loud stentorian voice, Approach no nearer. . . The evil Genii there appear like adders twisted into inextricable spires, which they derive from their trivial deceits and incantations by which they have allured the simple to assent to their being gods, and that there is no God besides them. The ancients . . . meant these by the giants who attacked the camp of the gods, and were cast down by Jupiter . . . and were called the Cyclops. They also called their Hells, Tartarus, and the Pools of Acheron; and the deeps there, the Styx; and those who are there, Lernean Vipers; and so on.

Mote. Festuca.

See under DUST-grumus.

A. 905<sup>13</sup>. 'To discern a mote in a brother's eye' (Matt.vii.3) = something erroneous as to the understanding of truth . . . (= a small falsity of evil. E. 746<sup>16</sup>.)

Moth. Tinea.

See under GRUB.

A. 933<sup>17</sup>. 'The moth' (Is.li.8)=falsities in the outer-most things of man.

W. 342. Upon and in plants there are lice and grubs which are accordant with them.

D. 2673. As moths in their thick darkness suppose there is the highest light and delight.

Mother. Mater.

Maternal. Maternus.

See under FATHER.

A. 287. 'The mother of all living' (Gen.i.20)=the Church. It is called 'the mother' from the fact that it was the first Church . . . 289.

494<sup>2</sup>. 'Mother' (Jer.xxii.26)=the Church.

1414<sup>3</sup>. See HEREDITARY, here. 1444.

— This Infirm which man derives hereditarily from his mother is a corporeal something which is dispersed when he is being regenerated . . . 1444<sup>2</sup>.

1573<sup>3</sup>. But the hereditary evil from the mother is of the external man . . .

—<sup>6</sup>. Hell could not have approached the Lord if He had been born . . . without evil adhering from the mother.

1661<sup>9</sup>. In the first combats, the goods and truths with the Lord, from which He fought, were imbued with things hereditary from the mother . . .

1745<sup>2</sup>. So far as (the Hereditary from the mother) remained, the Lord was as it were absent from Jehovah . . .

1793. It was Jehovah . . . to whom the Lord's Human became united after by the combats of temptations He had purified the Maternal; that is, that which He derived from the mother.

1815. From his mother a man receives all that is external. In a word, the interior man, or spirit itself, is from the father; but the exterior man, or body itself, is from the mother. (For) the soul is implanted from the father, and this begins to clothe itself in a little bodily form in the ovule. Whatever is afterwards added, whether in the ovule or in the womb, is of the mother; for it has no increase from anywhere else.

—<sup>2</sup>. As the external, which the Lord received from the mother, was to be united to the Divine . . .

1816. 'Ur of the Chaldees'= . . . the Maternal which the Lord received from birth, or the Hereditary from the mother. . . It was from this Maternal, or Hereditary from the mother, that He was led forth, as often as He conquered evils and falsities . . .

2005. Every man's internal is from his father, and his external from his mother; or, what is the same, the soul itself is from the father, and the body with which the soul is clothed, is from the mother.

2159. The human with the Lord was from the mother, and thus infirm, having with it an Hereditary thence, which He overcame through combats of temptations, and utterly expelled, insomuch that it had nothing left of the Infirm and Hereditary from the mother; nay, at last, not anything whatever from the mother. So that He entirely put off the Maternal, so that He was no longer her son. Ill. 'They said unto Him, Behold Thy mother . . . And He answered . . . Who is My mother . . . And looking round about on them that sat about Him, He said, Behold My mother . . . for whosoever shall do the will of God, the same is My . . . mother' (Mark iii.32-35; Matt.xii.46-49; Luke viii.20,21).

2288<sup>2</sup>. The former state; that is, the human from the mother, the Lord entirely put off . . . when He passed out of the world . . .

2557. 'Not the daughter of my mother' (Gen.xx.12) = that the Rational was . . . not conceived of spiritual truth as a mother. Ex.

2559<sup>9</sup>. As the first scientifics and derivative rational things with the Lord were . . . imbued with what was hereditary from the mother . . .

2574<sup>2</sup>. How the Lord by degrees cast out the human which was from the mother . . .

2649<sup>2</sup>. As it treats of the former human, which the Lord had from the mother; and, at last, of its plenary putting off, it is to be known, that the Lord successively and continually, even to the last of His life, when He was glorified, separated from Himself and put off that which was merely human, namely that which He had derived from the mother, until at last He was no longer her son, but the Son of God, as to both conception and birth . . . Ill. —<sup>4</sup>, Ex.

2717. 'His mother took for him' (Gen.xxi.21)=the affection of truth; for 'a mother'=the Church; and the Spiritual Church is in the affection of truth . . .

3025. Things discordant in the maternal human which encompass. Sig. and Ex.

3036. By whom the Lord delivered Himself from maternal things as to evils and as to falsities. Sig. and Ex.

3048<sup>2</sup>. The Lord in the natural man separated those things which were from Himself . . . from those which were from the Maternal. Tr.

3086. The separation of the maternal things which at first were adjoined to (truth Divine). Tr.

3128. 'He told the house of her mother . . .' (Gen. xxiv. 28) = to all the natural good . . . 'The house of a mother' = the good of the external man; that is, natural good . . . (for) man's External or Natural is from the mother . . . Moreover, all good and truth are born by the influx of internal good as a father into external good as a mother.

3167. 'And to her mother' (ver. 53) = also to natural truth . . . (For) 'mother' = the Church, which, from truth, is called 'mother.' 3174.

3299. Whatever is born derives its esse from the father and its existere from the mother. There must be both . . . The Natural . . . as to truth is conceived from rational truth as a mother.

3304<sup>2</sup>. When the lowest Natural is vitiated by what is hereditary from the mother, truth cannot be united to good, but can only adhere to it with some power; nor is truth united to good until this vitiation has been driven away. This is the reason why good is born with man, but not truth.

3405. That the Lord was in appearances of truth when He was in the maternal human. Tr.

3518. Every man receives domestic good from his father and from his mother, which goods are distinct from each other; that which he receives from the father is interior, and that from the mother is exterior. With the Lord . . . the good from the mother was contaminated with hereditary evil . . . The natural good which He derived from the mother, being contaminated with hereditary evil, was in itself evil; and this is what is meant by domestic good. Yet this good . . . subserved for the reformation of the Natural; but, after it had subserved, it was rejected. The like takes place with every man who is being regenerated. Ex.

3570<sup>4</sup>. It is known that the soul of man commences in the ovum of the mother, and is afterwards perfected in her womb . . . The like is the case when a man is born again. Ex.

3583. 'Mother' = the affection of spiritual truth, and thence the Church; because the Church is a mother, and is so called, from truth and its affection.

3599<sup>2</sup>. The natural good of the Lord's infancy was Divine from the Father, but human from the mother; and, in so far as it was from the mother, it was imbued with hereditary evil. Sig. and Ex.

3677. 'Of Rebekah the mother . . .' (Gen. xxviii. 5) = from the mother . . . Ex.

3703<sup>2</sup>. (Thus) truth is as a mother; and therefore . . . by 'mother,' in the internal sense, is signified truth; and in fact . . . the truth from which are the lower or derived goods and truths . . .

—7. In all these passages, by . . . 'mother' . . . in the internal sense, is meant truth; and, in the supreme sense, the Lord as to . . . Divine truth.

—20. 'Mother,' in the opposite sense, = falsity. III.

4065. Other good had subserved Him as a means; which had relationship with what was maternal. Sig. and Ex.

4257. 'To smite the mother upon the sons' (Gen. xxxii. 11) was a formula among the Ancients . . . signifying the destruction of the Church and of all things of it, either in general, or in particular with a man who is a Church; for by 'mother' they meant the Church; and by 'sons,' the truths of the Church . . .

—e. 'Mother,' properly, = the affection of truth, which makes the Church in man.

4317<sup>4</sup>. The hereditary evil from the mother is exterior . . . and can be easily eradicated . . .

4641<sup>2</sup>. This Divine Esse was clothed exteriorly with those things which he assumed from the mother, which, being not good, but in themselves evil, He expelled by His Own power . . . and afterwards conjoined this human, which He made new in Himself, with the Divine good which He had from birth.

4843<sup>3</sup>. 'The daughter rising up against the mother' (Micah vii. 6) = the affection of evil against truth.

—e. 'Mother,' etc., = such things as are with man, proper to him, which he is to 'forsake' (Mark x. 29).

4963<sup>3</sup>. It is known that a man who is born derives what belongs to him from both father and mother; and that his inmost is from the father, and the exteriors or the things which clothe that inmost are from the mother; both . . . being defiled with hereditary evil. But with the Lord (only) that which He derived from the mother had in itself hereditary evil . . .

5041<sup>e</sup>. This human . . . was defiled with hereditary evil from the mother; but, as the inmost was Divine, it could . . . expel that Hereditary from the mother.

5581. 'A mother' (as well as 'a father') = the Church; but 'a mother' = the Church as to truth . . . For the Church is a spiritual marriage, which is from good as a father, and from truth as a mother. 6075<sup>e</sup>.

5686. 'The son of his mother' (Gen. xliii. 29) = the Internal from the Natural, as from a mother . . . (for) the medium . . . comes forth from the . . . Natural as a mother.

—e. But then by 'mother' is meant the Church.

5689<sup>3</sup>. That which gives essence is as a father . . . and that which gives clothing is as a mother; for the clothing is the body of that soul. Hence . . . a medium must derive . . . what is its own from the Internal, as a father, and from the External as a mother.

5806. 'He alone is left to his mother' (Gen. xlii. 20) = that this truth is the only truth of the Church. . . 'Mother' = the Church.

5886<sup>2</sup>. 'Mother' (Is. i. 1) = the Church. 9156<sup>2</sup>.

6138<sup>e</sup>. See FATHER, here. 6690<sup>2</sup>.

6306<sup>3</sup>. 'Mother' = the truth of the Church; but, in the opposite sense, falsity. III.

6432<sup>5</sup>. 'Mother' (Hos. ii. 2) = the Church. 8904<sup>7</sup>. R. 956<sup>3</sup>. E. 240<sup>5</sup>. 730<sup>11</sup>.

6742. 'She called the child's mother' (Ex. ii. 8) = that the truth of good of the Church [adjoined those things which are of the Church]. 6728. . . 'Mother' = the Church; thus also the things which are of the Church.

[A.] 687<sup>2</sup>. But, with the Lord, the prior forms, which were from the Maternal, were completely blotted out and extirpated; and Divine ones were received in their place... Hence, when the Lord was glorified, He was no longer the son of Mary.

859<sup>3</sup>. 'Thy mother shall be bereaved more than other women' (1 Sam. xv. 33)=that evil affection would dominate with them from the Voluntary, and not from the Intellectual.

889<sup>7</sup>. 'Honour thy... mother' (Ex. xx. 12)=love for... truth; in the supreme sense, for... the Lord's Kingdom... 'Mother'=truth; and, in the supreme sense, the Lord as to Divine truth, thus His Kingdom; for the Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord makes Heaven. 8900, Ex.

901<sup>5</sup>. 'He that smiteth... his mother' (Ex. xxi. 15)=to blaspheme... the Lord's Kingdom... and, in the relative sense, to blaspheme the truth of the Church.

902<sup>1</sup>. 'He that curseth... his mother' (ver. 17)=the complete denial of... the Lord's Kingdom by those who are of the Church; and thus the profanation of the... truth of the Church... 'Mother'=the Lord's Kingdom; and, in the relative sense, ... the truth which is from the Lord.

919<sup>9</sup>. By 'father,' in the Word, is signified interior good; and by 'mother,' truth conjoined with that good.

922<sup>6</sup>. 'Seven days it shall be with its mother' (Ex. xxii. 30)=the first state with truths... 'Mother'=the Church as to truth; thus also the truth of the Church. Refs.

930<sup>1</sup>. See KID, here. A mother's milk=the truth of the first innocence.

934<sup>8</sup>. 'Mother' (Ezek. xix. 1)=the Church.

947<sup>0</sup>. 'Mother' (Hos. ii. 5)=the perverted Church.

967<sup>0</sup>. All things of the human from the mother having been rejected. Sig.

1005<sup>7</sup>. But, with the Lord, there was not a removal, but a casting out of those things which He derived from the mother; thus a plenary deliverance from them; inasmuch that He was no longer the son of Mary.

1040<sup>2</sup>. They who are in some illustration... by 'the mother' (Hos. ii. 1-13), concerning whom all these things are said, do not understand a mother, but the Church such as it was with that nation.

1049<sup>0</sup>. 'Mother' (Matt. x. 35)=the affection of evil and of falsity.

1083<sup>0</sup>. When the Lord had fully glorified His Human, He put off the human from the mother... and therefore He was no longer the son of Mary...

H. 332. As these female Angels... had loved all infants from a tenderness as it were maternal, they receive them as their own; and the infants also... love them as their own mothers. There are as many infants with each Angel as she longs for from spiritual storgé.

382a. Hence it is that by... 'mother and father' in the Word is signified truth conjoined with good, which procreates...

L. 35<sup>4</sup>. That the Lord put off the human from the mother... is evident from the fact, that whenever He spoke to His mother from His own mouth, He did not call her mother, but 'woman.' Ill.

S. 67. In the commandment, 'Honour thy... mother'... a spiritual Angel... by 'mother' understands the Church... But a celestial Angel... His Divine wisdom.

W. 269. The soul is clothed with a body in the mother. M. 206, Ex. T. 92.

R. 32<sup>2</sup>. 'Mother' (Luke viii. 21)=the Church.

729. 'The mother of scortations and of the abominations of the earth' (Rev. xvii. 5)=the origin of these things. (=a religiosity from which are adulterations... and profanations. E. 1047.)

M. 119. That the Church is called 'mother.' Ill.

206<sup>e</sup>. In the vegetable kingdom, the earth or ground is a common mother. Ex.

284. The love of the children with the mother is as the heart... because the heart corresponds to love... and love from the will is with the mother...

—<sup>e</sup>. With spiritual men there is conjugal conjunction... from justice, because the mother has gestated them in the womb, with pain has brought them forth, and afterwards with unwearied care suckles, nourishes, washes, dresses, and educates them.

393. That this sphere (of the love of infants) affects principally the female sex, thus mothers, and... fathers from them. Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. It appears as if mothers had the love of infants from nourishing them in the womb from their own blood, and from the consequent appropriation of their own life, and thus from a sympathetic union; but still this is not the origin of that love; for if, unknown to the mother, another infant were to be substituted after birth... she would love it with equal tenderness... and besides, infants are sometimes loved by their nurses more than by their mothers.

396<sup>2</sup>. That the communication and the derivative conjunction of innocences is especially effected through the touch, is clearly seen from the pleasantness of carrying them in the arms, embracing and kissing them, especially with mothers, who are delighted by laying their mouths and faces upon their bosoms, and at the same time with the touch of the palms of their hands there; in general, by their sucking their breasts... and also by softly touching their naked bodies, and by their unwearied pains in washing and dressing them upon their knees.

397. All that which proceeds from the Lord... passes... also beyond... into the earth itself, which is the mother of all plants and minerals. Ex.

—<sup>e</sup>. As the earth is the common mother of plants, so also there is a common mother of bees in every hive.

B. 54. The paradoxes flowing forth from such a faith are many; as that... the Lord as to both soul and body is from the mother.

T. 82<sup>e</sup>. What can be more ridiculous than that the soul of our Lord was from the mother Mary; as both the Roman Catholics and the Reformed at this day dream . . .

92. Or, what is the same, all the Spiritual which a man has is from the father; and all the Material which he has is from the mother.

—<sup>2</sup>. As to the Lord, . . . the Human which He had was from the mother . . .

102. By the acts of redemption the Lord put off the human from the mother . . . as may be seen from the fact that He never called Mary His mother. Ill. 103<sup>e</sup>.

103. I will add this arcanum: . . . The body which is from the mother is not the man in itself, but is from him. Ex. . . Every man, after death, puts off the Natural, which he had from the mother. (Continued under FATHER.)

—<sup>3</sup>. (The likeness of the offspring to the mother also. Ex.)

130<sup>e</sup>. The Lord's burial signified the rejection of the residue from the mother; and His rising again on the third day signified . . . the union of His Human with the Divine of the Father.

305. 'Honour thy father and thy mother . . .' Gen. art. (See PARENT, here.)

306. In the spiritual sense, by 'to honour . . . the mother' is meant to reverence and love . . . the Church. . . Infants and Angels in the Heavens know no other . . . mother; because there they are born anew from the Lord through the Church.

—<sup>2</sup>. That by 'mother,' in the spiritual sense, is meant the Church, is because as a mother on earth feeds her children with natural food, so the Church feeds them with spiritual food; and therefore the Church is called 'mother' in the Word passim. Ill.

307. In the celestial sense . . . by 'mother' is meant the Communion of Saints, by which is meant His Church scattered through the universal world.

—<sup>3</sup>. That by 'mother,' in this sense, is meant the Lord's Church. Ill.

—'. 'The New Jerusalem' means the New Church which is being instaurated by the Lord at this day. . . This Church, and not a former one, is 'wife,' and 'mother,' in this sense.

308. In order that the Lord might operate into these (natural things), even as into spiritual things, He created the sun to be in the natural world as a father, and the earth as a mother; for the sun is as a common father, and the earth is as a common mother, from whose marriage come forth all the vegetative growths which adorn the surface of the Earth.

585. In (plants) there are not two sexes . . . the earth alone, or the ground, is the common mother; thus is as the woman; for it receives the seeds of all plants, opens them, carries them as in the womb, and then nourishes them, and brings them forth . . . and afterwards clothes and supports them. Ex.

—<sup>3</sup>. Lest anyone should wonder . . . that the earth alone, or the ground, is as the common mother . . . this shall be illustrated by the like thing among bees: they . . . have only one common mother . . . As there is but one common mother with these little animals, why not so with all plants?

—<sup>4</sup>. That the earth is the common mother, may also be spiritually illustrated; and it is illustrated by this: that 'the earth,' in the Word, = the Church; and the Church is the common mother, as she is also called in the Word.

Ad. 913. The influx which objects have before the eyes of mothers, while they are conceiving. Ex.

D. 4181. My mothers told me that they have nice abodes . . .

4182. My mothers said that my father . . .

5992. 'That the Lord put off the human from the mother . . . Five confirmations.

E. 9<sup>e</sup>. 'Mother,' and 'woman' (John xix.26,27)=the Church. 250<sup>e</sup>. 785<sup>e</sup>. 821<sup>r</sup>.

257<sup>2</sup>. 'The mother of the youths' (Jer.xv.8)=the Church.

280<sup>14</sup>. 'Thy mother was a lioness' (Ezek.xix.2)=the Church perverted.

304<sup>43</sup>. In Heaven by mother is meant the Church; in general, the Lord's Kingdom.

372<sup>6</sup>. 'Mother'=the Church as to truth. 624<sup>19</sup>.

375<sup>3</sup>. 'Mother'=His Kingdom.

376<sup>13</sup>. 'Mothers' (Lam.ii.12)=all things of the Church. (=the truths of the Church. 750<sup>13</sup>.)

444<sup>9</sup>. The Church is called . . . 'mother,' from truth.

504<sup>27</sup>. 'Thy mother was like a vine' (Ezek.xix.10)=the Ancient Church, which was in the good of life, and thence in truths.

504<sup>31</sup>. 'The mother against the daughter, and the daughter against the mother'=the cupidity of falsity against the affection of truth, and conversely. 724<sup>6</sup>. ('Mother,' in the same passage, = the truth of the Church. 532<sup>14</sup>.)

555<sup>7</sup>. 'Mother' (Ezek.xxiii.2)=the Church.

600<sup>9</sup>. 'The mother (of Zebedee's sons)'=the Church. Ex.

654<sup>67</sup>. The Spiritual Church and the Celestial Church, both from the same mother, which is Divine truth. Sig.

659<sup>21</sup>. 'Mothers,' and 'fathers' (Jer.xvi.3)=interior truths and goods, which are called 'mothers,' and 'fathers,' because they beget and produce exterior ones.

710<sup>6</sup>. 'My mother's breasts' (Ps.xxii.10)=spiritual nourishment in such things as are of the Church; 'mother'=the Church.

710<sup>20</sup>. 'To leave father and mother'=to leave evil and falsity . . .

721<sup>13</sup>. 'A glad mother of sons' (Ps.cxxiii.9)=the Church where truths from good are being born.

—<sup>16</sup>. As 'a mother'=the Church . . . it was a reproach for women to be barren.

724<sup>5</sup>. The love of the world is their 'mother,' which they are to hate.

727<sup>3</sup>. 'Mother' (Ezek.xix.)=the Church in general.

966<sup>2</sup>. 'Mother,' in the celestial sense, or the heavenly mother, = the Church.

1083<sup>3</sup>. (In the commandment) an Angel of the Spiritual Kingdom . . . by 'mother' understands Divine truth; but an Angel of the Celestial Kingdom . . . Heaven and the Church.

De Dom. 21. For the mother (of the Lord) was born into sins, as is every human being.

Ath. 34. They think that the Human with a rational soul and perfect body came forth from the mother alone. 59.

106. By His death the Lord rejected all the human which was from the mother . . .

130. So long as He was in the human from the mother, He was not Life in itself as to the human . . .

161. The Lord put off the Maternal in the sepulchre . . . Ill.

192. How he could expel the maternal human. Ex. The maternal human was the Infirmit which adheres to nature . . . When this is expelled, then succeed those things which are concordant with the Divine. . . The Lord . . . made His body correspondent with the Divine . . . and thus above Heaven . . . He expelled the evil [which was] from the mother; and therefore He rose with the whole body. He retained the Infirmit while He was in the world, because in no other way could He be tempted, and least of all on the cross: there the whole Maternal was expelled.

216. Nothing of man's life is from the mother.

Can. Redeemer ix. That Jehovah God successively put off the human from the mother . . .

3. The body of Christ, in so far as it was of the substance of the mother, was not Life in itself; but was a recipient of life from the Divine in Him . . .

8. As Mary His mother afterwards represented the Church, in this respect she is to be called His mother.

Coro. 35<sup>3</sup>. All good is . . . born from saving faith in the Lord as a mother.

Mother-in-law. Socrus.

A. 484<sup>3</sup>. 'The daughter-in-law against the mother-in-law' (Matt. x. 35) = the affection of falsity against good. ('The mother-in-law' = falsity adjoined to its evil. 10490<sup>3</sup>.)

Motion. See MOVE.

Motive. See MOVE.

Mouldy. Mucidus.

Mouldiness. Mucor.

A. 2468<sup>2</sup>. Like fruits which . . . are mouldy or rotten within.

D. Min. 4739. Like the excrescences on trees, which are like sponges or some other mouldiness.

Moulder. See under FAINT.

Mound. See under WALL—maceria.

Mount of Olives. Mons Olivarum.

A. 9780<sup>2</sup>. The reason the Lord so often ascended the Mount of Olives (Luke xxi. 37; xxii. 39), was that oil and olive signified the good of love, and also a mountain.

The cause was that in the Lord, when He was in the world, all things were representative of Heaven; for by means of these things the universal Heaven was adjoined to Him; and therefore whatever He did . . . was Divine and heavenly; and the ultimates were representative. The Mount of Olives represented Heaven as to the good of love and of charity; as may be evident also from Zechariah: 'Jehovah shall go forth, and shall fight against the nations. His feet shall stand in that day upon the Mount of Olives, which is before the faces of Jerusalem; and the Mount of Olives shall be cleft asunder, so that a part of it shall be towards the east, and towards the sea with a great valley; and a part of the mountain shall recede towards the north, and a part of it towards the south' (xiv. 4). It treats here concerning the Lord and His Advent. By 'the Mount of Olives' is signified the good of love and of charity; thus the Church . . . That the Church would recede from the Jewish nation, and would be instaurated among the gentiles, is signified by that mountain being cleft asunder towards the east, towards the sea, and towards the north and the south. . . In the universal sense by Jehovah's going forth and fighting against the nations, and by His feet standing upon the Mount of Olives which is before the faces of Jerusalem, is meant that the Lord from Divine love would fight against the Hells; for . . . 'the Mount of Olives,' upon which were His feet, is the Divine love. 10261<sup>10</sup>.

10261<sup>11</sup>. That the Mount of Olives signified Divine celestial good, is evident in Zech. xiv. 4. . . 'The Mount of Olives' on which His feet stood, is the Divine good of the Divine love; for from this He fought and conquered. The cleaving asunder of the mountain towards the east and towards the sea, with a great valley = the separation of Heaven and Hell; in like manner its recession towards the north and south . . .

R. 493<sup>3</sup>. Near Jerusalem was the Mount of Olives, and by it was signified the Divine love; and therefore Jesus was teaching in the Temple during the days, and at night He went out and abode in the Mount of Olives (Luke xxi. 37; xxii. 39; John viii. 1). And upon that mountain Jesus spake with the disciples concerning the consummation of the age, and of His Advent at that time (Matt. xxiv. 3, etc.; Mark xiii. 3, etc.) And from that mountain also he went to Jerusalem and suffered (Matt. xxi. 1; xxvi. 30; Mark xi. 1; xiv. 26; Luke xix. 29, 37); and this according to the prediction in Zech. xiv.

E. 405<sup>23</sup>. These things (in Zech. xiv.) are said concerning the Last Judgment which was executed by the Lord when He was in the world . . . By 'His feet shall stand upon the Mount of Olives before the faces of Jerusalem on the east' is signified that it is [executed] from the Divine love by means of the Divine truths proceeding from His Divine good; for 'the Mount of Olives,' when predicated of the Lord, = the Divine love; 'Jerusalem,' the Church as to truths . . . By 'the Mount of Olives shall be cleft asunder . . .' is signified the separation of those who are in good from those who are in evil; for 'the Mount of Olives' = the Divine love. Further ex.

—<sup>24</sup>. As 'the Mount of Olives' . . . signified the Divine love, and 'Jerusalem on the east' the Divine truth proceeding from the Divine good . . . the Lord was wont to tarry upon that Mount. Ill. . . By this was signified that He performed all things from Divine love.

422<sup>14</sup>. 'The mountain on the east of the city' (Ezek. xi.23) was the Mount of Olives; (which)=the Lord's Divine love.

638<sup>16</sup>. 'The Mount of Olives'=the Divine love; for that Mount was on the east of Jerusalem; and Jerusalem signified the Church as to doctrine; and every truth of doctrine is illustrated and receives light from the Lord in the east . . .

— As the Mount of Olives signified the Lord's Divine love, the Lord ordinarily tarried upon that mountain. Ill. . . All these things were done for the reason that the Mount of Olives signified the Divine love . . . Moreover, the Angels of the Third Heaven dwell in the east upon mountains where olive groves flourish more than all other trees.

Mountain. Mons.

Mountainous. Montanus.

See under, HILL, HOREB, SINAI, and ZION.

A. 311. Those who perished by the Flood . . . are in Hell as it were under a certain mountain. It appears as an intervening mountain from their direful phantasies and persuasions.

337<sup>2</sup>. 'Mountains,' and 'hills' (Ps.lxxii.3)=the Most Ancient Church.

793. 'Mountain' is predicated of celestial things.

795. 'All the high mountains were covered . . . ' (Gen.vii.19)=that all the goods of charity were extinguished. . . With the Most Ancients, mountains signified the Lord, because they held their worship of Him upon mountains; for the reason that mountains were the loftiest things of the earth. Hence mountains signified celestial things—which also were called the highest ones—and consequently love and charity; thus the goods of love and of charity . . . In the contrary sense those are called mountains who are uplifted in mind; thus the love of self itself. The Most Ancient Church is also signified in the Word by 'mountains,' from the fact that mountains are elevated above the earth, and nearer as it were to Heaven, to the beginnings of things.

—<sup>2</sup>. That 'mountains'=the Lord, and all derivative celestial things, or the goods of love and of charity. Ill.

— 'Mountains' (Ps.lxxiii.3)=love to the Lord . . .

— 'The mountain of holiness' (Ezek.xx.40)=love to the Lord; 'the mountain of the height of Israel'=charity towards the neighbour.

— 'The mountain of the house of Jehovah established in the head of the mountains . . . ' (Is.ii.2)=the Lord; and hence everything celestial.

— 'This mountain' (Is.xxv.6)=the Lord, and hence everything celestial. (=love to the Lord. 2341<sup>2</sup>.)

—<sup>3</sup>. 'Upon every lofty mountain' (Is.xxx.25); 'mountains'=the goods of love.

— 'The mountain of Jehovah' (ver.29)=the Lord in predication to the goods of love.

—<sup>4</sup>. 'To ascend into the high mountain and evangelize' (Is.xl.9)=to worship the Lord from love and charity, which are things inmost, and therefore are also called highest.

— 'To shout from the head of the mountains' (Is.xlii.11)=to worship the Lord from love.

— 'To evangelize upon the mountains' (Is.lii.7)=to preach the Lord from the doctrine of love and of charity, and from these to worship Him.

— 'The mountains and hills shall break forth before you into singing' (Is.lv.12)=to worship the Lord from love and charity.

—<sup>5</sup>. 'Mountains' (Is.xlix.11)=love and charity.

— 'Mountains' (Is.lxv.9)=the Lord's Kingdom, and celestial goods.

— Hence 'mountains,' from their height above the earth, signified the Lord and His holy things . . .

—<sup>6</sup>. Love and charity are meant by the Lord by 'the mountains,' in . . . 'Let them that are in Judea flee into the mountains' (Matt.xxiv.16).

854. 'The mountains of Ararat' (Gen.viii.4)=lumen; (for) 'a mountain'=the good of love and of charity . . . (from which) comes new lumen. Ex.

859. 'The heads of the mountains appeared' (ver.5)=the truths of faith, which then begin to be seen. 'Mountains'=the goods of love and of charity. These 'heads' begin to be seen when the man is being regenerated, and is being gifted with conscience, and thereby with charity. He who supposes that he sees the heads of the mountains—that is, the truths of faith—from any other source than the goods of love and of charity, is quite mistaken. . . 'The heads of the mountains' are the first things of light which appear.

920. When they saw any high mountain, they did not perceive the idea of a mountain, but that of height; and, from height, Heaven, and the Lord. Hence it came to pass that the Lord was said to dwell 'in the highest' . . . and afterwards that the worship of the Lord was held upon mountains.

1151<sup>2</sup>. Charity, which is signified by 'the mountains of Israel' (Ezek.xxxviii.8).

1250. 'The mountain of the east' (Gen.x.30)=charity; in fact, charity from the Lord; (for) 'a mountain,' in the Word,=love to the Lord and charity towards the neighbour. —<sup>6</sup>.

1292. In the Word, 'mountains'=love or charity, because they are the highest things, or, what is the same, the inmost things, in worship.

—<sup>2</sup>. 'Mountains'=the holy things of love or the holy things of charity in worship, as just said.

1298<sup>o</sup>. 'The mountain of combustion' (Jer.li.25)=the love of self.

1306. The love of self . . . is described by all things which are high . . . as 'mountains,' 'hills,' etc.

1401. 'The mountain which had Bethel towards the sea and Ai on the east' is the fourth state (of the Lord when a child). 1450.

1430<sup>o</sup>. Just as the idea of holy love arises from [the mention of] a mountain. When, from the external sense an internal one is made, there first perishes the idea of a mountain, and there remains the idea of height; and by height is represented holiness.

[A.] 1451. 'To be removed to a mountain on the east of Bethel' (Gen.xii.8)=the progression of the celestial things of love. Ex. 'A mountain'=what is celestial.

1691. 'The mountain' (Gen.xiv.10)=the love of self and the love of the world.

—<sup>2</sup>. That by 'mountains,' in the Word, is signified the love of self and of the world. Ill.

—<sup>3</sup>. 'The high mountains' (Is.ii.14)=the love of self; 'the hills which are lifted up,' the love of the world.

—<sup>4</sup>. 'Every mountain and hill shall be made low' (Is.xl.4)=the love of self and the love of the world.

—<sup>5</sup>. 'I will make waste the mountains and hills' (Is.xlii.15). Here, also, 'mountains'=the love of self, and 'hills,' the love of the world.

—<sup>6</sup>. 'The foundations of the mountains' (Deut.xxxii.22)=the Hells . . . because the love of self and the love of the world reign there . . .

—<sup>7</sup>. As 'mountains' . . . =the love of self and of the world, it may be evident what is signified by the Lord's being led by the devil 'upon a high mountain' . . . namely, that He was led into temptation combats the most extreme of all against the loves of self and of the world; that is, against the Hells.

—<sup>8</sup>. 'Mountains,' in the opposite sense, =celestial and spiritual love.

2419. 'Escape to the mountain' (Gen.xix.17)=to the good of love and of charity.

2425. 'I cannot escape to the mountain' (ver.19)=doubt as to his being able to have the good of charity. . . 'A mountain'=love and charity. 2430.

2454<sup>4</sup>. 'The mountains' into which they should 'flee' (Matt.xxiv.16)=love to the Lord and the derivative charity towards the neighbour.

2460. 'He dwelt in the mountain' (Gen.xix.30)=that they then betook themselves to a kind of good. 'A mountain'=love in every sense; namely, celestial and spiritual love; and also the love of self and of the world. . . And as all good is of some love, by 'the mountain' is here signified good; but what kind of good, is described in what follows; namely, that it was obscure, and became impure; for it is presently said that 'he dwelt in a cave,' and afterwards that profane things were done there. 2935.

2466<sup>10</sup>. 'Mountains,' and 'hills' (Hos.iv.13)=the loves of self and of the world.

2572<sup>3</sup>. Like one who is in a high mountain . . . and can see all round . . .

2702<sup>10</sup>. 'Mountains' (Ps.civ.10)=the love of good and truth.

2708<sup>8</sup>. The Lord often in mountains. Fully ill.

2722. In the Ancient Church holy worship was held upon mountains . . . because 'mountains'=the celestial things of love. Ill.

2777. 'Upon one of the mountains' (Gen.xxii.2)=love Divine. 'A mountain'=love; here, love Divine, because it is predicated of the Lord.

2830<sup>7</sup>. The Celestial Spiritual (of spiritual good) is signified by 'the mountains skipping like rams' (Ps.cxiv.4).

2839. 'In the mountain Jehovah will see' (Gen.xxii.14)=charity, through which it has been provided by the Lord that the spiritual can be saved.

3104<sup>3</sup>. 'Mountains and hills'=the celestial things of love.

3309<sup>3</sup>. 'Hunters . . . upon every mountain and upon every hill' (Jer.xvi.16)=to teach those who are in the affection of good and in the affection of truth. (=those who are in love and charity. 10582<sup>8</sup>.)

3322<sup>9</sup>. Spiritual goods and truths, which are 'the mountains of Israel' (Ezek.xxxv.12).

3527<sup>2</sup>. 'Mount Seir, where Esau dwelt, means what is similar, namely, what is hairy (or shaggy); and because it had this meaning, there was a mountain by which they went up to Seir, which was called 'the smooth mountain' (Jos.xi.17; xii.7); and which was representative of truth ascending to good.

—<sup>6</sup>. 'Mountain and hill'=what is uplifted.

3652<sup>4</sup>. 'Let them flee into the mountains'=let them look nowhere else than to the Lord, and to love to Him, and to charity towards the neighbour . . .

3654<sup>5</sup>. 'Out of Judah an heir of My mountains' (Is.lxv.9)=the Lord; in the representative sense, those who are in love to Him; thus in the good of both loves. That 'mountains'=these goods. Ref.

3708<sup>11</sup>. 'Between two mountains' (Zech.vi.1)=the two loves: celestial, which is to the Lord; and spiritual, which is towards the neighbour.

4117. 'He set his faces to Mount Gilead' (Gen.xxxi.21)=good there; (for) 'a mountain'=what is celestial of love; that is, good, with which there was conjunction.

4128. 'Jacob fixed his tent in the mountain' (ver.25)=the state of love in which the good was. . . 'A mountain'=good.

4210. 'Jacob sacrificed a sacrifice in the mountain' (ver.54)=worship from the good of love. . . 'A mountain'=the good of love.

—<sup>1</sup>. They sacrificed 'in mountains . . . because mountains from their height signified the things which are high, as are the things which are of Heaven, and are called celestial; and thence, in the supreme sense, they signified the Lord, whom they called 'the Highest.' Ex.

4213. 'They passed the night in the mountain' (ver.54)=tranquillity . . . and therefore it is said 'in the mountain,' because by 'a mountain' is signified the good of love and of charity; for the good of love and of charity gives peace.

4288<sup>3</sup>. In the representative Church, there was Divine worship upon mountains, because mountains signified celestial love; and, in the supreme sense, the Lord; and, while they were holding worship upon mountains, they were in their Holy, because they were at the same time in celestial love.

—<sup>4</sup>. But as, in the representative of a Church, they worshipped the mountains themselves . . . they were restricted to . . . the mountain where Jerusalem was, and at last to that where Zion was. 6435<sup>11</sup>. —<sup>13</sup>. 10603<sup>4</sup>.

4299<sup>2</sup>. 'They shall say to the mountains . . . Fall on us' . . . The misty and thick dark sphere which exhales from the evils and falsities of those who are in Hell, appears like a mountain or a rock, beneath which they are hidden.

4402<sup>7</sup>. The truths of the Church are called 'the strengths of the mountains' (Ps.xcv.4) from the power they have from good.

4552<sup>8</sup>. The Ancients had worship upon hills and mountains, because hills and mountains signified celestial love; but, when the worship was performed by idolaters, as here (Ezek.vi.13), they=the love of self and of the world.

4599<sup>9</sup>. In the Word, 'towers' are predicated of truths; but 'mountains,' of goods.

4715<sup>6</sup>. Hills=the things of charity; mountains, the things of love to the Lord.

4728<sup>8</sup>. 'The excisions of the mountains' (Jonah ii.6) =where are those who are condemned the most; for the thick dark mists which appear around them are 'the mountains.'

4843<sup>2</sup>. The worship of evil is signified by 'to sacrifice upon the heads of the mountains' (Hos.iv.13). (= worship from the love of self. E.324<sup>20</sup>.)

5117<sup>7</sup>. The goods of love and charity thence are signified by that 'the mountains shall drop must, and the hills shall melt away' (Amos ix.13).

5694<sup>4</sup>. 'To water the mountains' (Ps.civ.13) = to bless those who are in love to the Lord and in love towards the neighbour. 'A mountain'=what is celestial of love.

6385<sup>4</sup>. 'A great mountain burning with fire' (Rev. viii.9)=the love of self. 9755<sup>12</sup>.

6435<sup>4</sup>. In the prophetic Word, 'mountains and hills' are mentioned in very many places, by which, in the internal sense, are signified the goods of love; by 'mountains,' the good of love to the Lord, which is the Internal of the Celestial Kingdom; and by 'hills,' the good of mutual love, which is the External of the same Kingdom. But, where it is treating of the Spiritual Kingdom, by 'mountains' is signified the good of charity towards the neighbour, which is the Internal of this Kingdom; and by 'hills,' the truth of faith, which is its External. Ill.

—<sup>5</sup>. 'The mountain of Jehovah shall be for the head of the mountains, and shall be uplifted above the hills' (Is.ii.2; Micah iv.1). 'The mountain of Jehovah,' which is Zion,=the Lord's Celestial Kingdom; thus the good of that Kingdom, which is that of love to the Lord; thus, in the supreme sense, it=the Lord Himself; for all the love and all the good in the Celestial Kingdom is of the Lord.

—<sup>7</sup>. 'Mountains, in these passages, =celestial love; and 'hills,' spiritual love.

—<sup>8</sup>. 'Streams of waters' are said to be 'upon every high mountain and uplifted hill' (Is.xxx.25), because these Knowledges flow from the goods of celestial and of spiritual love.

—<sup>9</sup>. 'The mountains of eternity' (Hab.iii.6)=the good of love which was that of the Most Ancient Church; 'the hills of an age'=the good of mutual love, which was of that Church . . .

—<sup>10</sup>. In these passages, the goods of celestial love are signified by 'mountains' . . .

—<sup>12</sup>. As such things were signified, Abraham was commanded to sacrifice his son upon one of the mountains . . . and the Lord was seen by Moses upon . . . Mount Horeb, and the Law was promulgated upon Mount Sinai; and the Temple of Jerusalem was also built upon a mountain.

—<sup>14</sup>. As idolatrous worship was performed upon mountains and hills, by them in the opposite sense are signified the evils which are of the love of self. Ill.

—<sup>15</sup>. The reason 'mountains and hills' signified the goods of celestial and of spiritual love, was that they were exalted above the earth; and by eminences and high things were signified those things which were of Heaven; and, in the supreme sense, which were of the Lord . . . For, when the Most Ancients . . . ascended a mountain, the height came before them, and from the height what is holy, because . . . height, in the spiritual sense, was the good of love.

6762. 'To call the peoples into the mountain' (Deut. xxxiii.19)=to cause truths to become goods . . . 'Mountain'=the good of charity.

6829. 'And came to the mountain of God' (Ex.iii.1) =that the good of Divine love then appeared. Ex.

6872. 'Ye shall worship God near this mountain' (ver.12)=the perception and acknowledgment of the Divine from love. . . 'The mountain'=the good of Divine love. Refs.

7056. 'He met him in the mountain of God' (Ex.iv.27)=conjunction in the good of love there. . . 'The mountain of God'=the good of Divine love.

8265<sup>2</sup>. By 'the mountains and rocks' (Rev.vi.) are signified evils and falsities.

8327. 'In the mountain of Thine inheritance' (Ex. xv.17)=Heaven where is the good of charity. . . 'A mountain'=the good of love. . . For Heaven is Heaven from the good of love.

8658. 'Where he encamped at the mountain of God' (Ex.xviii.5)=near the good of truth . . . 'The mountain of God'=the good of love; here, the good of truth, because it is treating of the Spiritual Church . . .

8758. 'A mountain'=the good of celestial love. 8795. 8797.

8761<sup>2</sup>. 'The mountain' (Sinai)=good Divine in Heaven; here, Heaven . . . because Heaven comes forth from this good.

8797. 'The mountain' . . . here,=the Divine good of the Divine love in the Inmost Heaven. Ex. 8827.

8904<sup>8</sup>. 'Mountains,' and 'hills' (Hos.iv.13) =the loves of self and of the world.

9420. The reason the revelation was made upon a mountain, and that mountain is called 'the mountain of God,' is that 'a mountain'=what is celestial of love, which is good, and thence Heaven; and, in the supreme sense, the Lord; and 'the mountain of God'=Divine truth from the Divine good of the Lord's Divine love.

9422. (The correspondence of the top, sides, and base of the mountain. See SINAI, here.)

9434. 'The head of the mountain'=the inmost of Heaven.

[A.]9643<sup>3</sup>. 'Mountains' (Ps.xviii.7)=the goods of love.

10132<sup>2</sup>. 'The mountain of My holiness' (Is.xi.9)=the Heaven and the Church where is the good of innocence.

10227<sup>7</sup>. 'My mountain in the field' (Jer.xvii.3)=the love of the Celestial Church.

10248<sup>4</sup>. 'Before the mountains were born . . .' (Ps.xc.2) means the instauration of the Church ; for 'mountains,' in the Word, =celestial love ; thus the Church in which is this love.

10412<sup>2</sup>. (In the other life, the Babylonians) place themselves high upon mountains ; and . . . (then) the mountain opens itself into a gulf . . .

10438. 'To kill them in the mountains' (Ex.xxxii.12) =that those who are in good will perish. . . 'The mountains'=Heaven, and hence the good of love. The reason why by 'mountains' is signified Heaven (is that) upon the mountains in the other life are those who are in celestial love ; upon the hills those who are in spiritual love ; upon the rocks those who are in faith ; and in the valleys those who have not as yet been raised up to the good of love and of faith. Hence it is that by mountains are signified those who are in the good of celestial love, thus who are in the Inmost Heaven ; and, in the abstract sense, the goods of celestial love, thus the Heaven which is in this love : and that by the hills are signified those who are in the good of spiritual love, thus who are in the Middle Heaven ; and, in the abstract sense, the good of this love, and the Heaven which is in it . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. That 'the mountains'=the Heaven where is the good of celestial love. III.

10580<sup>e</sup>. Those who are in love, there dwell upon mountains . . . The mountains are not of stone, because they are elevations of earth.

10608<sup>2</sup>. The celestial Angels dwell upon mountains, and the spiritual Angels upon rocks . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. Moreover, the more interior Angels dwell higher up upon the mountains . . .

—<sup>e</sup>. The mountains on earth are not Heaven ; but they represent the mountains upon which dwell the Angels in Heaven.

H. 188. The Angels who compose the Celestial Kingdom for the most part dwell in the more lofty places, which appear like mountains of soil. . . Hence 'mountains'=celestial love . . .

229. I have seen the mountains which had been occupied by the evil cast down and overturned by the Angels . . .

489<sup>2</sup>. They who have loved Divine truths and the Word from interior affection dwell . . . in lofty places, which appear as mountains, and are in continual light there.

J. 58<sup>4</sup>. (The mountains in the east upon which the Papists dwell.) Des.

—<sup>5</sup>. This mountain is meant in Is.xiv.13, by 'the Mount of Assembly in the sides of the north ; and those who are on the mountains there are meant by 'Lucifer.' D.4723. 4880. 4883.

—<sup>6</sup>. In the western quarter were many mountains . . . upon which were the most wicked of that nation . . .

—<sup>7</sup>. The mountains upon which they were, are those which are meant in the Apocalypse by 'the seven mountains' (Rev.xvii.) . . . By 'the seven mountains' is meant the profane love of commanding.

61<sup>8</sup>. (The destruction of the mountains at the Last Judgment. See LAST JUDGMENT, here.) —<sup>9</sup>. See also below.

S. 18<sup>3</sup>. By 'mountains,' 'hills,' and 'valleys' are meant the higher, lower, and lowest things of the Church.

23<sup>2</sup>. A mountain (with the Ancients) signified the highest Heaven ; a hill, the Heaven beneath it.

R. 260. The higher Heavens appear upon mountains and hills . . . The highest expanse is like the head of the mountain . . .

336. 'Every mountain and island were removed out of their places' (Rev.vi.13)=that all the good of love and the truth of faith had receded. . . By 'mountains' are meant those who are in the good of love, because the Angels dwell upon mountains ; upon the more lofty ones those who are in love to the Lord, and upon the less lofty ones those who are in love towards the neighbour ; and therefore by 'every mountain' is signified all the good of love. E.405.

—<sup>2</sup>. That Heaven and the Church, where there are love to the Lord and love towards the neighbour, and thus where the Lord is, are signified by 'mountains,' and 'hills.' III.

—<sup>3</sup>. Therefore Zion was upon a mountain, and also Jerusalem, and the latter and the former are called 'the mountain of Jehovah,' and 'the mountain of holiness,' in many passages.

—<sup>4</sup>. That 'mountains,' and 'hills'=those loves, may be still more manifest from their opposite sense, in which they=infernal loves, which are the love of self and the love of the world. III.

338. 'The rocks of the mountains' (ver.15)=the falsities of evil.

339. 'They said to the mountains and rocks, Fall upon us . . .' (ver.16)=confirmations of evil by falsity and of falsity from evil . . . By 'mountains' are signified evil loves, thus evils ; and by 'rocks,' falsities of faith.

341<sup>2</sup>. The rest of the clergy from England congregated at the foot of the mountain.

403. 'A mountain burning with fire' (Rev.viii.8)=infernal love. (=the love of self and the derivative Own intelligence. E.510.)

737. 'The seven heads are seven mountains, where the woman sitteth . . .' (Rev.xvii.9)=the Divine goods . . . of the Word, upon which the Roman Catholic religiosity has been founded, destroyed in time, and at last profaned. Ex. E.1062.

896. 'He carried me away in the spirit upon a great and high mountain . . .' (Rev.xxi.10)=that John was translated into the Third Heaven . . . where are those who are in love from the Lord, and in the doctrine of genuine truth from Him. Ex. . . The Angels of the Third Heaven dwell upon mountains; the Angels of the Second Heaven upon hills . . .

M. 11. They ascended . . . into a certain hill, and from this into a mountain, upon which was the Heaven of those Angels, which had before appeared at a distance like an expanse in the clouds . . .

75<sup>2</sup>. In advancing I saw a mountain, the height of which rose beyond the region of the clouds. . . No other nation than the primeval one dwells upon this mountain.

—3. The Angel said, We are now on the mountain not far from its summit . . . Behind the grove there was a round plain . . . (beyond which) we saw tabernacles on tabernacles . . .

76. (On the way to the people of the Silver Age) we first came to a hill, and while we were upon its slope, he showed me a far stretch of country, and we saw afar off an eminence as it were mountainous, between which and the hill on which we stood there was a valley, and beyond this a plain, and from this a gently rising acclivity. . . (—3.) We ascended (that) long acclivity, and at last we saw a city . . .

77. From an eminence we saw a mountain elevated to the clouds . . . We ascended, and behold its peak was not a peak, but a plain, upon which was an extensive and spacious city (where dwelt the people of the Copper Age).

T. 209<sup>e</sup>. (The truth of the Word is so powerful there that it overturns mountains, casts them into the sea, etc.)

385<sup>4</sup>. Such Spirits may be compared to mountains of pure ice torn from their places in northern regions, and carried hither and thither in the ocean . . .

D. 384. See MOUSE. 3425.

2054. By the mountains of the Amorites (Deut.i.) was signified the world of evil Spirits, through whom they should pass into Heaven.

2240. In sleep . . . I stood upon a mountain facing the sea.

3586<sup>e</sup>. They told their companions who were under the mountain. 3593<sup>e</sup>.

4894. Concerning the Heavens.—In a great and wide tract there appeared mountains, one beside another; and it was said that in those mountains there are paradises, gardens and cultivated places of various kinds, and elsewhere great cities . . . There also appeared here and there mountains higher and higher, which were still better cultivated, and where there were magnificent palaces. So it was through the whole tract to the right; for such mountains=the goods of love . . .

4907. I was carried to the right, where are the mountains and rocks . . . In the rocks dwell those who are in the good of faith; in the mountains around, those who are in the good of charity, who are meant by 'the mountains of Israel.' Higher up, there are the celestial, who are 'the mountain of Zion,' and 'of Jerusalem' . . .

4918. In the descent they are divested of the holy sphere . . . which they have in the mountain . . .

4923. In regard to the appearance of mountains and hills where Heaven is, it was shown, further, that from the mountains themselves there appear mountains still higher, the heads of which are as it were in clouds of a dull azure colour; and that the celestial are there. Also that when the state of sunset (or of the west) comes to them, those mountains appear to subside, either to the plane of the lower mountains, or even lower, according to the state of sunset; and that they are afterwards elevated as before. From the mountains there appears above as it were a sky (or heaven), with little white clouds interspersed.

4924. He was brought, with many Spirits who were mediators, into a mountain at the right; and, when they arrived there, they were introduced into a cloud, whence some spoke to me, saying that they saw magnificent things there, and Angels in an angelic form . . .

4925. (The mountains upon which were the evil at the time of the Last Judgment, and their destruction. See LAST JUDGMENT, here.) 4930. 4960. 4964. 4973. 4977. 5004. 5052. 5053. 5055. 5056. 5070. 5073. 5077. 5078. 5080. 5082. 5185. 5202. 5203. 5231. 5233. 5234. 5249. 5269. 5270. 5291. 5296. 5337. 5347. 5396a. —c. 5405. 5409. 5411. 5413. 5416. 5417. 5419. 5469. 5477. 5480. 5487. 5489. 5534. 5629. 5631. 5636. 5648. 5650. 5651. 5653. 5663a. 5696. 5697. 5698. 5729. 5731. 5736. 5739. 5762. 5763. 5765. 5766b. 5769. 5786b. 5789. 5791a. 5792. 5814. 5820. 5858. 5937. J.(Post.)105. 138. 140.

4950. (These worst witches of all) were high up upon a mountain.

5056. If the mountain consists of the good, the good are in the middle, and the worse ones are at the sides. But if the mountain consists of the evil, the evil then come into the middle, (who then) subside. It is important that those who are on the higher mountain should be in good, in life and in doctrine; for upon this depends the doctrine and life of the lower ones; and also upon this depend the Hells which are beneath them.

5058. Every such Society . . . consequently every mountain, has a correspondence with some part of the human body.

5060. Two mountains where there were Mohammedans . . .

5064. Round about, there was as it were a mountain wall . . .

5126. I was brought up into a mountain where were those who are of the Celestial Kingdom. (See BEARD, here.)

5161. He had come from certain ones upon a hill, or small mountain, at the left, behind. I was brought . . . into a crypt beneath the mountain; and then all who were upon the mountain flowed down thither, and were congregated there; for they who are in the love of self appear upon a mountain; but still they are not there, but are beneath in some Hell.

5179. Concerning a mountain where is the Conjugal. (See NAKED, here.)

5182. Concerning Heaven. Concerning mountains.—They who are in love to the Lord, consequently who are in celestial love, thus in the good of innocence, and thence in conjugal love, are in mountains, and these mountains are elevated even into a peak; and they who are in the highest of the mountain are the best of that kind. . . . Thus they dwell higher and lower according to the degrees of the goodness of that love. It is so everywhere. Besides this, they are also distinguished, everywhere, as to the situation at the sides, which degrees are such as are lateral degrees; those who are at the right differ from those who are at the left, and so on. The peak is in the middle.

[D.] 5183. There are mountains where are those who are in the opposite loves; as in the love of self, and who are the worst, who want to be eminent above all others, and who do evil to all. But these mountains are not real mountains—they appear indeed like the others—and therefore although these appear upon mountains, they nevertheless dwell in the deep beneath them in Hell, whither they are also cast; and these mountains, if good Spirits do not succeed, subside into Hell, when the wickedness has been consummated.

5210. The Capitoline Mount, mentioned.

5249. (A mountain which contained four cities, one under another.) See 5792.

5270. The Monte Cavallo, mentioned. 5408.

5274. (The mountain land of the Papists, mentioned.)

5282. 5283. 5284. 5285. 5291. 5292. 5315. 5324. 5347. 5353. 5653.

— That southern mountain chasm.

5294. They betook themselves . . . upon the mountain plain.

5329. Carried away the mountain roof.

5629. Concerning . . . the seven mountains. 5648.

5692. Very many of the deceitful dwell . . . in the western quarter, partly upon lofty mountains, and partly in a plain . . .

5765c. What was wonderful, they were on lofty mountain places, where they were not seen, except as a mist . . .

E. 64<sup>2</sup>. The reason the Lord took Peter, James, and John . . . 'into a high mountain,' was that by 'a mountain' is signified Heaven.

141<sup>5</sup>. 'To go away upon every high mountain . . . ' (Jer.iii.6)=to seek after all the Knowledges of good . . . even from the Word.

223<sup>17</sup>. 'The cities of the mountain' (Jer.xxxii.44)=the truths of doctrine which those have who are of the Lord's Celestial Kingdom.

—<sup>18</sup>. 'A city set on a mountain' (Matt.v.14)=the truth of doctrine from the good of love.

304<sup>2</sup>. The Angels in the Third Heaven dwell upon mountains; those in the Second, upon hills . . . 342<sup>4</sup>.

—<sup>9</sup>. 'The mountains,' and 'the hills' (Jer.iv.24)=love to the Lord and charity towards the neighbour . . . because upon the mountains in Heaven dwell those who are in love to the Lord, and upon the hills those who are in charity towards the neighbour.

—<sup>12</sup>. 'The mountains which are shall be hoed with a hoe' (Is.vii.25)=those who do goods from the love of good. 405<sup>16</sup>.

—<sup>17</sup>. 'The mountains' (Ps.xlvi.2)=the goods of love, which are said to be 'commoved in the heart of the seas' when the essential Knowledges of truth are perverted.

—<sup>26</sup>. 'Upon My mountains' (Is.xiv.25)=where there reigns the good of love and of charity; for there, or with them, is dissipated . . . all reasoning from falsities.

—<sup>32</sup>. 'The mountains (which break forth into singing)' (Is.xlix.13)=those who are in the good of love to the Lord. —<sup>48</sup>. 326<sup>11</sup>.

—<sup>37</sup>. 'Say unto the mountains and the hills . . . ' (Ezek.xxxvi.6) . . . 'The mountains'=the goods of love to the Lord; 'the hills,' the goods of charity towards the neighbour . . .

313<sup>9</sup>. 'The mountains (upon which they are to flee)'=the good of love to the Lord . . . (thus) that at the Judgment all those of the Church will be saved who are in the good of love to the Lord.

326<sup>4</sup>. 'The head of the mountains' (Is.xlii.12)=the good of love with them.

355<sup>9</sup>. 'The mountains of brass' (Zech.vi.)=the good of love in the natural man.

—<sup>15</sup>. Jerusalem is called 'the mountain of holiness' (Is.lxvi.20) from the love of truth.

365<sup>16</sup>. 'The mountains which shall bring peace to the people' (Ps.lxxii.3)=love to the Lord.

—<sup>30</sup>. 'The mountains' (upon which are the feet of him who evangelizes) (Is.lii.7)=the good of love to the Lord. 405<sup>8</sup>.

374<sup>7</sup>. 'A mountain'=the higher and interior things where such things are.

376<sup>5</sup>. 'The mountains shall drop must,' or wine (Joel iii.18)=that from the good of love to the Lord is all genuine truth. —<sup>6</sup>. 405<sup>7</sup>. —<sup>19</sup>. 433<sup>13</sup>.

388<sup>14</sup>. 'The mountains of Israel' (Ezek.xxxix.4)=the goods of charity.

391<sup>8</sup>. 'Let them lead me to the mountain of Thy holiness' (Ps.xliii.3)=to the Heaven where is the Lord's Celestial Kingdom, in which reigns the good of love.

—<sup>16</sup>. 'I will introduce them upon the mountain of My holiness' (Is.lvi.7)=the Heaven where is the good of love to the Lord; thus also the good of love such as it is there.

400<sup>6</sup>. 'The foundations of the mountains' (Ps.xviii.7)=the truths upon which the Church is founded.

— Upon the mountains are those Angels who are in the good of love to the Lord; and below them those who are in truths from this good; and, when the state of the latter is changed as to truths, their dwelling-places tremble, thus 'the foundations of the mountains.'

—<sup>7</sup>. 'The mountains (which tremble before Jehovah)' (Nahum i.5)=the Church where is love to the Lord . . . The reason is, that the Angels who are in love to the Lord dwell upon mountains . . . When, in place of love to the Lord, there reigns the love of self . . . the mountains are said to 'tremble'; for so it is done in the Spiritual World . . . with the Spirits who have made themselves a likeness of Heaven upon the mountains and hills before the Last Judgment.

—<sup>9</sup>. 'The mountains (which shall be overturned)' (Ezek.xxxviii.20)=the goods of love.

401<sup>20</sup>. They who are 'upon every high mountain' (Is.xxx.25)=those who are in the good of love to the Lord; for 'a high mountain'=this good.

—<sup>17</sup>. 'The mountains were commoved' (Hab.iii.10)=that those were rejected who are in the love of self and of the world... 'The mountains'=the loves of self and of the world.

403<sup>12</sup>. The Lord's Kingdom is signified by 'the mountain of Jehovah (which shall be constituted in the head of the mountains' (Micah iv.1); for 'the mountain of Jehovah'=the Lord's Kingdom from those who are in love to Him; and, as these dwell above all the rest in the Heavens, it is said concerning this mountain that it is 'constituted in the head of the mountains.'

405. The reason 'a mountain'=the good of love, is that in Heaven those dwell upon mountains who are in the good of love to the Lord; and upon hills, those who are in charity towards the neighbour; or, what is the same, upon the mountains dwell those who are of the Lord's Celestial Kingdom; and upon the hills those who are of His Spiritual Kingdom... Hence it is that by 'a mountain' is signified the good of love to the Lord.

—<sup>2</sup>. The reason the good of love to the Lord abstractedly is meant by 'a mountain,' is that all things in the internal sense of the Word are spiritual, and spiritual things are to be understood abstractedly from persons and places... Hence it is that by 'a mountain,' in the spiritual sense of the Word, is signified the good of love.

—<sup>3</sup>. That 'a mountain'=love to the Lord, and thence all the good which is from this love which is called celestial good; and, that, in the opposite sense, it=the love of self, and thence all the evil which is from this love. Ill.

—<sup>4</sup>. 'The mountains (which God setteth fast with His strength)' (Ps.lxv.6)=the goods of love.

—<sup>5</sup>. 'I lift up mine eyes to the mountains, whence cometh help' (Ps.cxxi.1). By 'the mountains,' here, are meant Heaven; and as in the Heavens those dwell upon mountains and hills who are in the good of love and of charity... and the Lord is in these goods, therefore by 'to lift up the eyes to the mountains,' is also meant to [do so] to the Lord, from whom is all help.

—When 'the mountains' are mentioned in the plural, there are meant both the mountains and the hills; consequently, both the good of love to the Lord, and the good of charity towards the neighbour. —<sup>9</sup>.

—<sup>6</sup>. That (at the Last Judgment) those who are in love to the Lord and in charity towards the neighbour will be elevated into Heaven and imbued with intelligence and wisdom, is meant by that 'there shall be upon every high mountain and uplifted hill streams, courses of waters' (Is.xxx.25). 'A high mountain'=where they are who are in love to the Lord; and 'an uplifted hill'=where they are who are in charity towards the neighbour.

—<sup>9</sup>. 'I will set all My mountains for a way...' (Is.xlix.11)=that those who are in the goods of love and of charity shall be in genuine truths... Confessions from joy originating from the good of love are signified by 'Break forth into singing, ye mountains' (ver.13).
VOL. IV.

—<sup>10</sup>. 'Break forth into singing, ye mountains' (Is.xliv.23)=the like things as just above; but here by 'mountains' are signified the goods of charity...

—<sup>11</sup>. 'The mountains and hills shall break forth into singing' (Is.lv.12); 'Praise Jehovah, ye mountains and hills...' (Ps.cxlvi.9). In these words is described joy of heart from the good of love and of charity...

—<sup>12</sup>. 'They shall shout from the head of the mountains' (Is.xlii.11)... 'The head of the mountains'=the good of love to the Lord. (Thus, these words)=glad worship from the good of love...

—<sup>13</sup>. 'A mountain of God is the mountain of Bashan' (Ps.lxviii.15). By 'the mountain of Bashan' is signified voluntary good such as is with those who are in the externals of the Church. Ex.

—<sup>14</sup>. 'The mountains leaped like rams, the hills like the sons of the flock' (Ps.cxiv.4)=that celestial good, which is the good of love; and spiritual good, which is the truth from that good, from joy do goods...

—<sup>15</sup>. 'The mountains were covered by its shadow' (Ps.lxxx.10)=that the whole Church is from spiritual goods... 'The mountains'=spiritual goods.

—<sup>16</sup>. 'My mountains,' whose 'inheritor shall be from Judah' (Is.lxiv.9)=the good of love to the Lord, and thence those who are in it.

—<sup>17</sup>. 'They shall hunt them upon every mountain, and upon every hill' (Jer.xvi.16)... Those 'upon the mountain'=those in the good of love; those 'upon the hill'=those in the good of charity.

—<sup>18</sup>. 'The mountains of Israel' (Ezek.xxxvi.8)=the goods of charity.

—<sup>20</sup>. 'The mountains of God' (Ps.xxxvi.6)=the good of charity.

—<sup>21</sup>. 'The waters stand above the mountains' (Ps.civ.6)=that falsities are above the delights of natural loves, which delights are in themselves evils; 'the mountains'=the evils of these loves... 'The mountains ascend...' unto the place which Thou hast founded for them' (ver.8)=that in place of natural loves and the evils from them there are inserted celestial loves and the goods from them... 'They go among the mountains' (ver.10)=that they are from the goods of celestial love... 'Who watereth the mountains from His chambers' (ver.13)=that all goods are by truths from Heaven... 'the mountains'=the goods of love...

—<sup>22</sup>. 'The chariots going forth from between the mountains' (Zech.vi.)=the doctrine which is to be formed from good by means of truths... 'mountains'=the goods of love; 'from between the mountains'=truths from goods; for the valleys which are between the mountains=lower truths, which are truths of the natural man, (and) it is therefore said that 'the mountains were mountains of brass'...

—<sup>23</sup>. See MOUNT OF OLIVES, here.

—Then shall ye flee through the valley of My mountains' (Zech.xiv.5)=that then those who are in truths from good shall be rescued...

—<sup>25</sup>. As 'a mountain'=the good of love; and, when concerning the Lord, the Divine good of the Divine love; and as, from this good, proceeds the Divine truth, therefore Jehovah . . . descended upon Mount Sinai, and promulgated the Law . . . And therefore also 'the Lord took Peter, James, and John into a high mountain, when He was transfigured; and (then) appeared in the Divine truth from the Divine good . . .
3 D

[E. 405]<sup>26</sup>. As a 'mountain' = the good of love; and, in the supreme sense, the Divine good, and from the Divine good proceeds the Divine truth, therefore Mount Zion was built above Jerusalem . . . And therefore also Jerusalem is called 'the mountain of holiness,' and also 'the hill;' for by 'the mountain of holiness' is signified spiritual good, which in its essence is truth from good, in like manner as by 'a hill.' Fully ill.

—<sup>27</sup>. From these things it may also be evident whence it is that the New Jerusalem . . . was seen by Ezekiel built upon 'a high mountain' (Ezek. xl. 2).

— Spiritual truth, which is from spiritual good, is signified by 'In the city of our God, the mountain of His holiness' (Ps. xlviii. 1).

—<sup>28</sup>. 'Lucifer' shall sit in the Mount of Assembly' (Is. xiv.) = (a striving after dominion) over the Heavens which constitute the Lord's Celestial Kingdom; for 'the Mount of Assembly,' and 'the sides of the north' = the goods and the truths there. For Mount Zion and Jerusalem were built as much as possible according to the form of Heaven . . .

—<sup>29</sup>. 'To ascend to the height of the mountains, the sides of Lebanon . . . ' (Is. xxxvii. 24) = the endeavour to destroy the goods and truths of the Church . . . 'The mountains' = the goods of the Church; 'the sides of Lebanon' = where these are conjoined with truths . . .

—<sup>30</sup>. 'A mountain,' and 'the mountains,' also = the goods of love and of charity in the following passages, Ill.

— 'The mountains on which He maketh the grass to grow' (Ps. cxlvii. 8) = the goods of love; and thence those who are in the goods of love.

—<sup>31</sup>. 'The first-fruits of the mountains of the east, and the precious things of the hills of an age' (Dent. xxxiii. 15) = genuine goods, both of love to the Lord and of charity towards the neighbour . . .

—<sup>32</sup>. That it is not truth unless it is from good, is signified by, 'a city which is set forth on a mountain cannot be hidden;' 'a city on a mountain' = truth from good.

—<sup>33</sup>. 'The sheep on the mountains' (Matt. xxviii. 12) = those who are in the good of love and of charity. But by 'the one gone astray' is signified one who is not in that good, because in falsities from ignorance . . .

—<sup>34</sup>. 'Let them that are in Judea flee upon the mountains' (Mark xiii. 14) = that those who are of the Lord's Church must remain in the good of love . . .

—<sup>35</sup>. 'Mountains,' in the opposite sense, = the evils of love, or the evils which spring from the loves of self and of the world. Ill.

— 'The day of Jehovah Zebaoth shall come upon . . . all the high mountains, and upon all the hills which are lifted up' (Is. ii. 14) = the Last Judgment, when the evil are cast down from the mountains and hills which they have occupied in the Spiritual World . . . And, as such were upon the mountains and hills . . . therefore by 'the mountains and hills' are meant the loves and the derivative evils in which they were; by 'the mountains,' the evils of the love of self; and by 'the hills,' the evils of the love of the world. It is to be known that all who are in the love of self, especially in the love of commanding, when they come into the Spiritual World, are in the greatest desire to raise themselves into high places . . . 514<sup>9</sup>.

—<sup>36</sup>. 'Every valley shall be exalted, and every mountain and hill shall be made low' (Is. xl. 4) = that all the humble in heart, who are those who are in goods and truths, will be received . . . and that all who are uplifted in mind, who are those in the love of self and of the world, will be depressed.

—<sup>37</sup>. That there is no longer the good of charity and of faith, is signified by, 'the mountains of Israel are desolate' (Ezek. xxxiii. 28).

—<sup>38</sup>. 'Set thy faces to the mountains of Israel, and prophesy against them . . . Ye mountains of Israel, hear the word of the Lord Jehovah: Thus saith the Lord Jehovah to the mountains and to the hills . . . ' (Ezek. vi. 2, 3). Here, also, 'the mountains of Israel' = the evils proceeding from the love of self and of the world which come forth with those who are of the Spiritual Church, when they no longer have any good of life . . . By 'the mountains,' 'hills,' 'valleys,' etc., are signified all things of the Church, both interior or spiritual, and exterior or natural; 'the mountains' and 'hills' = things interior or spiritual . . .

—<sup>39</sup>. 'The mountains of Israel' = the goods of spiritual love; but here (Ezek. xxxviii. 20) the evils of the love which are opposite to these goods.

—<sup>40</sup>. 'Contend thou with the mountains, that the hills may hear thy voice. Hear, O ye mountains, the controversy of Jehovah . . . ' (Micah vi. 2). . . By 'the mountains' are meant the goods of charity; and by 'the hills,' the goods of faith; but here, the evils and falsities opposite to these goods . . .

—<sup>41</sup>. 'I am against thee, O destroying mountain, destroying the universal earth; and I will stretch out My hand against thee, and will roll thee down from the rocks, and I will give thee into a mountain of combustion' (Jer. li. 25). . . It is from the love of self and the derivative falsities and evils that (Babylon) is called 'a destroying mountain' . . . 'The earth' = the Church . . . 'Combustion' is said of the love of self. From these things it is evident that by 'mountains' are signified the evils of the love of self and of the world.

—<sup>42</sup>. The destruction (at the Last Judgment) of those who are upon the mountains and in the valleys, who are those who are in evils from the love of self and of the world and the derivative falsities, is signified by, 'the mountains are melted under Him, and the valleys are cleft . . . ' (Micah i. 4).

—<sup>43</sup>. By 'the commotion of the mountains' (Jer. iv. 24) is signified the destruction of those who are in the evils of the love of self; and by 'the overturning of the hills,' the destruction of those who are in the evils of the love of the world, and in falsities.

—<sup>44</sup>. 'Touch the mountains that they may smoke' (Ps. cxlvi. 5) = by His presence to destroy those who are in the evils of the loves of self and of the world, and thence in falsities.

—<sup>45</sup>. 'A fire . . . shall set on fire the foundations of the mountains' (Deut.xxxii.22). . 'The foundations of the mountains'=the truths upon which the goods of love are founded, which are said to be 'set on fire' by the fire of the love of self and of the world.

—<sup>46</sup>. 'The mountains shall be melted with their blood' (Is.xxxiv.3)=that the evils of loves with them are crammed with falsities.

—<sup>47</sup>. 'I will make waste mountains and hills . . .' (Is.xlii.15)=to destroy all the good of love to the Lord and towards the neighbour.

—<sup>48</sup>. 'Thou shalt thresh the mountains and beat them small, and thou shalt make the hills as chaff' (Is.xli.15)=the destruction of the evils originating from the love of self and of the world, and also of the derivative falsities . . .

—<sup>49</sup>. 'The mountains shall recede, and the hills be removed; but My mercy shall not recede from thee' (Is.liv.10)= . . . that those who are in evil loves and the derivative falsities will (do so). . . By 'the mountains' and 'the hills,' here, in special, are meant those who are of the former Church . . . with whom were mere evils of falsity and falsities of evil, for the reason that they were in the loves of self and of the world.

—<sup>50</sup>. 'On account of the mountains will I take up a weeping and wailing . . .' (Jer.ix.10)=evils of every kind springing from the two loves mentioned above.

—<sup>51</sup>. 'The sheep have gone from mountain upon hill' (Jer.i.6); and 'they wander upon all the mountains, and upon every high hill' (Ezek.xxxiv.6)=that they seek goods and truths, but do not find them; and that in place of them they seize upon evils and falsities. That 'the mountains have turned away'=that instead of goods there are evils.

—<sup>52</sup>. 'Before your feet stumble at the mountains of twilight' (Jer.xiii.16)=lest evils from the Natural take possession; 'the mountains of twilight'=evils of falsity; for 'mountains'=evils, and it is 'twilight' when truth is not seen, but falsity instead of it; and 'the feet'=the natural man . . .

—<sup>53</sup>. As the Lord by this faith . . . removes all the evils which spring from the loves of self and of the world, and casts them into Hell whence they are, He says that if he 'shall say to a mountain, Be thou removed, and cast thyself into the sea, it shall be done' (Mark xi.22; Matt.xvii.20). . . Moreover, the mountains in the Spiritual World upon which the evil dwell, are wont to be overturned and cast forth by the faith which is from the Lord; for when the evils with them are cast forth, the mountains upon which they dwell are also cast forth.

—<sup>54</sup>. As mountains signified the goods of celestial love, and hills the goods of spiritual love, the Ancients . . . held Divine worship upon mountains and hills; and therefore Zion was upon a mountain, and Jerusalem was upon mountainous places below it. . . The Jews and Israelites . . . according to the custom of the nations derived from the Ancients, made worship upon any mountains and hills whatever, and sacrificed and burnt incense there; and as this was idolatrous with them, by their worship on other mountains and hills is signified worship from evils and falsities. III.

— It was also derived from this that the Gentiles in Greece placed Helicon on a high mountain, and Parnassus on a hill below it, and believed that their gods and goddesses dwelt there. This was derived from the Ancients in Asia . . .

—<sup>55</sup>. 'The devil took Jesus upon a high mountain, and showed Him all the kingdoms of the world and their glory . . . '=that the devil tempted the Lord by the love of self . . .

410. 'The rocks of the mountains' (Rev.vi.15) . . here=falsities from evils; for 'the mountains'=the evils which spring from the loves of self and of the world.

—<sup>2</sup>. In the Spiritual World there are mountains, hills, rocks, valleys, lands, as in our world . . . but in the Spiritual World they have a different face; upon the mountains dwell those who are in the highest light; below them in the same mountain dwell those who are in less light; and below these those who are in still less light; and in the lowest parts dwell those who are in darkness and thick darkness relatively to the light possessed by those higher up. Consequently, the Heavens are in the higher part of the mountains, and the Hells are in the lowest ones; so that expanses of the mountains succeed one another stratified—stratim. The reason is that the lower ones may be ruled by the Lord through the higher ones . . . so that all may be held in connection by influx . . . In the Hells which are beneath the mountains and in the rocks, entrances open either in the lowest parts of their sides, or through caverns from the valleys. Des. and III.

—<sup>3</sup>. 'The mountains' and 'hills' (Is.ii.14)=the loves of self and of the world, and the derivative evils and falsities which spring from them.

411. 'And said to the mountains and rocks, Fall upon us' (Rev.vi.16)=a covering over by evils and the derivative falsities; (for) 'the mountains'=the evils which spring from the loves of self and of the world.

— At the time of the Last Judgment, the state of the wicked is such that they cast themselves down from the mountains and rocks . . . into the Hells . . . and, when they are in the caves and beneath the rocks, the anguish and torment . . . cease. III.

—<sup>3</sup>. The mountains and hills there differ from the rocks in this: that the mountains and hills are of soil, but the rocks of stone; for soil corresponds to the good of love . . . and stone to the truth of faith.

—<sup>22</sup>. Damnation by evils is signified by 'I will give thee for a mountain of combustion' (Jer.li.25).

—<sup>30</sup>. A mountain=the love of evil.

—<sup>32</sup>. Those who are in wisdom and intelligence because in love to the Lord and in charity towards the neighbour, and are thence in the spiritual affection of truth, dwell upon mountains and hills of soil, where there are paradises, gardens, rose-beds and greeneries.

433<sup>19</sup>. By 'the mountain of Jehovah which shall be established in the head of the mountains' (Is.ii.) is meant Sion, and is signified the Celestial Church, and the love to the Lord possessed by those who are of this Church. That this is the primary of the Church, and that it shall increase and gain forces, is signified by that it shall be 'for the head of the mountains,' and be 'uplifted above the hills.' That those who are in the good of love will acknowledge the Lord and will accede to the Church, is signified by that 'all nations shall flow together to that mountain' . . .

[E.433]<sup>21</sup>. 'The mountaine' (Is.lxv.9)=the goods of love.

445<sup>5</sup>. 'To call the peoples into the mountain' (Deut. xxxiii.19)=because they are in the Heaven where is the good of love.

448<sup>7</sup>. 'The mountaine of the east' (Deut.xxxiii.15)=the Most Ancient Church, which was in love to the Lord. This Church is described by 'the mountains of the east,' because 'a mountain'=love, and 'the east,' the Lord. 'The hills of an age'=the Ancient Church . . .

449<sup>5</sup>. 'From the mountain' (Jer.xvii.26)=those who are in celestial good.

483<sup>7</sup>. 'They go among the mountains' (Ps.civ.10)=the (truths) which shall be from the good of love.

502<sup>6</sup>. 'The mountain of holiness' (Is.xxvii.13)=the Church as to the good of love; and therefore also the good of love of the Church. (=the Church as to the good of life. 654<sup>23</sup>.)

510<sup>2</sup>. The reason 'a mountain' means love in both senses, is that the Angels of the Third Heaven, who are in celestial love, dwell upon the mountains in the Spiritual World; and therefore when 'a mountain' is mentioned, that Heaven is meant, and (therefore) that which makes the Heaven, thus celestial love. But the reason why, in the opposite sense, 'a mountain'=the love of self, is that those who are in the love of self are constantly desiring to ascend the mountains, by making themselves equal to those who are in the Third Heaven. As they revolve this in their phantasy, when they are outside the Hells they make it their endeavour; and hence it is that by 'a mountain,' in the opposite sense, is signified the love of self. . . . While in their phantasy, they believe themselves to be upon high mountains, when yet, with the body, they are in the Hells. III.

518<sup>20</sup>. 'Let the mountains be jubilant together' (Ps. xcvi.8) . . . 'the mountains'=the goods of love.

—<sup>26</sup>. 'The mountains' (Ps.xlvi.2)=the goods of love.

—<sup>31</sup>. 'I will lay waste mountains and hills' (Is. xlii.15)=that the goods of love and of charity will perish.

538<sup>11</sup>. 'The excisions of the mountains to which he descended' (Jonah ii.6)=the Hells where and whence are evils.

569<sup>13</sup>. The extension of good is signified by 'from mountain to mountain' (Micah vii.12). 654<sup>11</sup>.

573<sup>10</sup>. 'The mountains' (Is.xiii.4)=evils.

594<sup>12</sup>. 'Who maketh the mountaine to grow grass' (Ps.cxlvii.8)=nourishment thus for those who are in the good of love. 650<sup>13</sup>, Ex.

612<sup>3</sup>. 'A high mountain' (Is.xl.9)=celestial love . . .

617<sup>25</sup>. 'The mountains of Israel' upon which they 'shall eat' (Ezek.xxxix.17)=the Spiritual Church, in which the good of charity is the essential thing. (=the goods of spiritual love. 650<sup>47</sup>.)

629<sup>9</sup>. 'The mountains of eternity are scattered' (Hab. iii.6)=that the Celestial Church such as it was with the Most Ancients, who were in love to the Lord, has perished. 'The mountains of eternity'=that Church, and that love. (Continued under HILL.)

—<sup>10</sup>. The ordination of all things in the Heavens from His Own power by the Divine truth, is signified by . . . 'He hath weighed the mountains in scales, and the hills in a balance' (Is.xl.12) . . . (These words)=to subordinate and equilibrate all things . . . By 'the mountains' and 'hills' are signified the higher Heavens; by 'the mountains,' those Heavens which are in love to the Lord; and by 'the hills' those which are in charity towards the neighbour.

644<sup>6</sup>. 'A land of mountains and valleys' (Deut.xi.11) =the higher and the lower, or the internal and the external things of the Church; the internal things of the Church are with the internal man . . . and the external ones are with the external man.

697<sup>4</sup>. Babel is called 'a destroying mountain' (Jer.li. 25) because 'a mountain'=the love of exercising command; here, over Heaven and over earth; to which love the goods and truths of the Church subserve as means; and therefore [it is said] 'to destroy the universal earth.'

706<sup>23</sup>. By 'the mountains which He setteth fast by His strength' (Ps.lxv.6) are meant the higher Heavens, because the Angels of those Heavens dwell upon mountains; and, in the abstract sense, is meant love to the Lord and charity towards the neighbour. These are the things which the Lord . . . causes to subsist to eternity.

714<sup>25</sup>. That the goods of love of the natural man will be destroyed, is signified by 'I have set (Esau's) mountains for a waste' (Mal.i.3).

717<sup>9</sup>. 'Thou hast been in the mountain of holiness of God' (Ezek.xxviii.14). . . 'The mountain of holiness'=the Church as to the doctrine of love and charity.

730<sup>21</sup>. By '(Esau's) mountains' (Mal.i.3) are signified evils from the love of the natural man.

734<sup>3</sup>. By 'the mountain of Jehovah,' and 'the house of Jacob' (Is.ii.3; Micah iv.2) is signified the Church where is love to the Lord, and worship from this love. Convocation to this Church, and thus to the Lord, is signified by, 'many people shall go and say, Come ye and let us go up to the mountain of Jehovah.'

741<sup>11</sup>. By 'the mountains' (Ps.xc.2) are signified those who dwell upon the mountains in the Heavens, who are those who are in celestial good.

799<sup>7</sup>. By 'the mountain of holiness' (Ps.xv.1) by which is meant Jerusalem, is signified the Church as to the truths of doctrine from the good of love.

815<sup>10</sup>. The reason the Lord compared such a faith to the power shown by casting a mountain . . . into the sea, was that . . . by 'a mountain' is signified the love of self and of the world; thus the love of evil. . . . Moreover, this is actually done in the Spiritual World: these evil loves sometimes appear there as mountains

... and by faith from the Lord can be rooted up and cast into Hell by an Angel.

850<sup>2</sup>. The reason the city (of Sion) was built upon a mountain, was that in that time mountains from their height represented the Heavens; and thence also in the Word = the Heavens; (for the reason) that the highest Heavens, where are Angels of the third degree, appear high above the rest, and, before the eyes of others, as mountains; and, as the highest Heavens appear as mountains, and the Angels who are upon them are in love to the Lord, by 'mountains,' in the Word, and primarily by the mountain of Sion, is signified love to the Lord.

—6. The Advent of the Lord and of His Kingdom ... is here described; and therefore His Kingdom, which is Heaven and the Church, is meant by 'the mountain of the house of Jehovah' which shall then be 'constituted for the head of the mountains' (Micah iv.).

1029<sup>13</sup>. 'The Mountain of Assembly at the sides of the north' (Is. xiv.) is where there is an ascent into the Heavens.

1057<sup>5</sup>. 'Who shall ascend into the mountain of Jehovah' (Ps. xxiv. 3). . . By 'the mountain of Jehovah' is meant Zion, by which is signified where the Lord reigns by Divine truth.

1062<sup>2</sup>. As to (these) 'seven mountains,' it is believed that they are the seven mountains at Rome, where is the papal chair; but granting that Rome also is meant, still by 'the seven mountains' are signified the goods of the Word adulterated and profaned.

1100<sup>5</sup>. 'To plant the shoot in the mountain of the height of Israel' (Ezek. xvii. 23) = in spiritual good which is the good of charity: this good is signified by 'the mountain of the height of Israel.'

—9. 'The mountains' (Ps. civ. 10) = the goods of love.

—13. 'The mountains,' and 'the hills' (Jer. iv. 24) = celestial and spiritual loves . . . (which) perish; for, in the Spiritual World, where there no longer exists any celestial or spiritual love with the Spirits, the mountains and hills upon which they have dwelt are actually removed and overturned.

1155<sup>2</sup>. By 'Jerusalem the mountain of holiness' (Is. lxvi. 20) is signified the Church in which charity reigns.

1159<sup>3</sup>. 'In this mountain a feast of fat things' (Is. xxv. 6). . . By that 'mountain' is signified a new Church from those (who will acknowledge and adore the Lord).

De Conj. 70. The Angels of the Third Heaven dwell upon mountains, not of stone, but of soil, upon which are paradises, and wooded gardens. The mountains appear elevated to a peak. On the highest part of the mountain are the best and most chaste; lower down [it is] according to the degrees in spiritual and spiritual natural marriage: there are distinctions of them also according to the quarters . . .

Mountebank, Soothsayer. Hariolus.

Mountebank, To. Hariolari.

Mountebankism. Hariolatio.

P. 121<sup>e</sup>. Like masked mountebanks and mimics on the stage.

222<sup>e</sup>. They play with Divine things like monnte-banks.

224. So comedians and mimics know how to represent kings, etc. . . when yet they are nothing but actors.

R. 655<sup>6</sup>. Like a mountebank, who, with his body upside down, walks upon the palms of his hands. T. 381<sup>e</sup>.

T. 94<sup>e</sup>. Then, concerning the spiritual things of the Church . . . he thinks no otherwise than as a mountebank.

145. A mountebank wishes only to mountebank (or talk silly stuff).

173<sup>2</sup>. Like a mountebank upon a stage, who can personate two characters, by running from one side to the other . . .

D. 269. Concerning sorceries, magical arts, sooth-sayings, and the like.

—e. So sciences and philosophy, by which a man supposes that he can rule spiritual and celestial things, are like soothsayings and sorceries . . .

2742<sup>e</sup>. When they come . . . among such as are called sorcerers, soothsayers, etc.

3889. (I compared) their speech to the speech of mountebanks on this Earth, who speak with their fingers, and . . . with inverted words . . .

4525. Their magical arts are most absurd. They are like mountebanks: they move their loins and feet, bend them, then their bodies, and their arms . . . They are most absurd mountebanks: they prostrate themselves, circumrotate themselves, make themselves invisible . . .

E. 827<sup>2</sup>. Their priests and wise ones were called magi and soothsayers.

—4. 'The priests and diviners' of the Philistines (1 Sam. vi. 1) persuaded them to make images of the hæmorrhoids and mice; for their priests and diviners then knew what all these things represented . . .

D. Wis. i<sup>5</sup>. Behold, it was a theatre of stage-players, where they mountebanked in masks, and became fools.

Coro. 33<sup>2</sup>. To represent the orgies of Bacchus and the mountebankisms of comedians.

Mourn. Lugere.

Mourning. Luctus.

Mournful. Lugubris.

Mourning garments. Lugubria.

A. 2851<sup>8</sup>. 'The ways of Zion do mourn' (Lam. i. 4) = that there are no longer any truths from good.

2910. 'Abraham came to mourn for Sarah and to weep for her' (Gen. xxiii. 2) = the state of the Lord's grief on account of the night as to the truths of faith in the Church. . . 'To mourn' regards grief on account of night as to goods; 'to weep,' as to truths.

3580<sup>3</sup>. 'The must shall mourn' (Is. xxiv. 7) = that truth will cease. E. 376<sup>20</sup>.

3607. 'The days of mourning for my father will approach' (Gen. xxvii. 41) = the inversion of the state.

4215<sup>2</sup>. Sadness and internal mourning produce weeping and wailing—planctum.

[A.] 4763. 'To rend the garments'=mourning on account of truth destroyed. —<sup>1</sup>. —<sup>5</sup>. E. 395<sup>9</sup>.

4779. 'To put sackcloth on the loins'=mourning on account of good destroyed. III.

4780. 'He mourned over his son many days' (Gen. xxxvii. 34)=the state of mourning for good and truth destroyed . . . here, a state of great mourning, because it is said 'many days.'

4783. As this mourning can be appeased only by interpretations from the Word . . . 'to comfort'=the interpretations which are made from the sense of the letter.

4785. 'I will go down into the grave to my son mourning' (ver. 35)=that the Ancient Church would perish.

4786. 'His father wept for him'=interior mourning. Ex.

5773. 'They rent their garments'=mourning . . . here, on account of lost truths from proprium. Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. When this inversion of state takes place, there is mourning; for they are then let into temptation, whereby the things of the proprium are weakened . . .

6540. 'He made a mourning for his father seven days' (Gen. l. 10)=the end of the grief.

6541. 'And the inhabitant of the Land, the Canaanite, saw the grievous mourning in the threshing-floor of Atad' (ver. 11)=the apperception of the grief by the good of the Church. . . 'The mourning'=the grief.

6767<sup>2</sup>. 'The land which shall mourn' (Jer. xii. 4)=the Church.

9960<sup>6</sup>. As the mourning represented spiritual mourning, which is mourning on account of the deprivation of the truth and good of the Church, therefore in their mourning they induced baldness on their heads. III.

10184<sup>2</sup>. By 'the mourning upon all the roofs' (Jer. xlviii. 38) is signified the vastation of all the goods with those who are meant by 'Moab' . . . and by 'the mourning in the streets' is signified the vastation of all the truths.

10535. 'The people . . . mourned' (Ex. xxxiii. 4)=their grief on account of non-eminence over others.

S. 84. 'Mourning' (is an expression) which is predicated of good, (or) evil . . . 'weeping,' of truth, (or) falsity.

R. 492. 'Clothed in sackcloth'=mourning meanwhile on account of the non-reception of truth. —<sup>2</sup>. III.

— The mourning of the Sons of Israel was represented by various things . . . as that they put ashes upon their heads, rolled themselves in the dust, sat long upon the earth in silence, shaved themselves, wailed and howled, rent their garments, and also put on sackcloth, besides other things; and each thing signified some evil of the Church with them, on account of which they were being punished. When they were being punished, they represented their repentance by such things. E. 637<sup>3</sup>.

763. 'So much torment and mourning give her' (Rev. xviii. 7)=(in the same proportion) they have after death internal grief from being cast down and derided, and from want and misery. . . Their mourning after death is thence.

764. 'I shall not see mourning' (id.)=that they can never be bereaved of these things. . . That they do have mourning on this account after death, see just above. E. 1122.

765. Mourning, which is internal grief (at the Last Judgment) from want and misery in place of opulence. Sig.

788. 'They cast dust upon their heads, and cried out weeping and mourning . . .' (ver. 19)=their interior and exterior grief and mourning, which is lamentation . . . 'To weep'=the mourning of the soul; and 'to mourn,' the mourning of the heart.

884. 'Death shall be no more, neither mourning, nor crying out . . .' (Rev. xxi. 4)=that the Lord will take away from them all . . . fear of damnation; of evils and falsities from Hell . . . By 'the mourning which shall be no more' is signified the fear of evils from Hell. For 'mourning'=various things, according to the subject treated of.

Ad. 3/5520. The priests were not permitted to mourn (Lev. x.) because so there would have been represented before the choir of Angels mourning over evil.

D. 4278. Some Sirens . . . are transmitted into sad and mournful Societies, so that they have nothing but mourning garments: thus are they broken . . .

E. 295<sup>1</sup>. Therefore it is said 'to comfort all those who mourn' (Is. lxi. 2).

372<sup>6</sup>. As the mourning in the Churches before the Lord's Advent . . . represented spiritual grief of mind on account of no truth and good—for the mourning was on account of oppression by an enemy, on account of the death of father or mother, and on account of the like things; and by oppression by an enemy was signified oppression by evils which are from Hell; and by father and mother was signified the Church as to good and as to truth—as these things were represented by the mourning among them, therefore they then went in black. III.

401<sup>11</sup>. For the mourning with those who were of the Ancient Churches represented grief on account of truth and good lost or destroyed.

555<sup>6</sup>. 'Mourning,' and 'lamentation' (Jer. ix. 20)=on account of the Church vastated as to truths and as to goods.

637. 'Clothed in sackcloth'=mourning on account of the non-reception of Divine good and Divine truth. Ex.

637<sup>12</sup>. 'To induce baldness'=mourning on account of all things of intelligence being destroyed.

650<sup>43</sup>. 'To mourn,' and 'to wither' (Jer. xii. 4)=to perish and to be dissipated through cupidities.

730<sup>15</sup>. The devastation (of these Knowledge) is signified by 'to mourn,' etc. (Is. xxxiii. 9).

741<sup>20</sup>. The desolation (of the Church) is described by 'to mourn,' etc. (Is. xxiv. 4).

863<sup>2</sup>. 'The ways of Zion do mourn'=that Divine truths are no longer sought for.

1125. 'Mourning' (Rev. xviii. 8)=when there is no longer any truth; thus when the Church has been desolated.

1129<sup>2</sup>. Here, (Jer.vi.26) 'mourning' is said on account of truth destroyed; and 'wailing,' on account of good destroyed.

1138. 'The merchants of the earth shall weep and mourn over her' (Rev.xviii.11)=the mourning and grief of those who procure for themselves the things which pertain to that religiosity that they may gain honours and wealth.

1164. '(They shall stand) weeping and mourning' (ver.15)=grief of soul and of heart; 'weeping'=grief of soul; and 'mourning,' grief of heart, (which) are distinguished as are truth and good . . .

Mouse. Glis.

R. 566<sup>3</sup>. The eyes of cats, from their ardent appetite for mice in cellars . . . appear like candles.

D. 377. See MOUSE-mus, here. 6106<sup>8</sup>.

Mouse. Mus.

A. 938<sup>0</sup>. The sordidly avaricious seem to be . . . infested with mice . . . 954<sup>2</sup>.

940. The presence of (these avaricious Jews) is perceived as the stench of mice. D.469.

1514<sup>2</sup>. A stench of mice is diffused from those who have been sordidly avaricious.

4628<sup>2</sup>. The odours from the perception of evil are . . . like those from mice, bugs, etc.

F. 52<sup>0</sup>. By 'the mice' with which the Philistines were infested (1 Sam.v.6) was signified the devastation of the Church through falsifications of truth. P.326<sup>12</sup>.

P. 326<sup>12</sup>. 'The mice of gold' (id.) signified the vastation of the Church taken away by means of good. T.203<sup>2</sup>.

T. 595<sup>4</sup>. The mice which were made of gold, and placed near the ark, were accepted.

D. 323. The stench of a stinking mouse corresponds to avarice.

377. From avarice break forth phantasies of dormice-girium, of mice . . .

384. They who [have avarice] for the mere sake of money . . . seem to themselves . . . to be infested by mice as it were mountainous and huge . . .

385. Those who read from the mere desire to read, and to retain in the memory the things read . . . are sometimes infested with mice, and the like, which withdraw them from such a desire.

3425. Concerning mice.—Those are mice, who, like mice, wear away those things which belong to Truths; as mice do grain. Mountainous mice are those who [do this] in the highest degree, who are better instructed, and from deceit [do this to] those things which are still more interior. Such are those Spirits who are mice in the highest degree, so that they continually persist, and with deceit pervert all things which are nascent, both truths and goods.

3869<sup>0</sup>. With the dog or mouse in her mouth . . .

4369<sup>2</sup>. (They treated them) as cats do mice . . .

6038. Concerning the greater mice.—Those are greater mice who can simulate good affections, in countenance, tone of voice, and gesture, so that the other knows no otherwise than that they are very pious and chaste . . .

6106<sup>7</sup>. Harlots who excel in cleverness are called Sirens; they appear like mice; the greater ones here, and the lesser ones there . . .

—<sup>8</sup>. These shun the cats, as do mice and dormice . . .

6110<sup>21</sup>. The delight of variety . . . They become like male mice.

D. Min. 4703. Concerning some Hells; mice, cats, etc.—The Hell of the profane is on the left . . . They are such as explore who are with others . . . by means of affections inspired into a Subject, and by variations of these affections, and also by looking into various parts of the head . . . These are said to relate to mice. These long acted upon me.

4705. See CAT, here.

E. 700<sup>21</sup>. 'Mice'=the falsities of the sensuous man which feed on and consume all things of the Church, as mice do the fields and harvests, and also the vegetables under the earth. This plague came upon the Philistines because they were such; for those who are devoid of good . . . devastate all things of the Church.

—In the Spiritual World, when Divine truth inflows with such, the devastation of good then appears in the likeness . . . of mice.

—<sup>23</sup>. Their making images . . . of the mice in gold, and placing them at the side of the ark upon the new cart . . . was because gold=the good of love, which heals and purifies from the . . . evils which are signified by . . . mice . . . 827<sup>4</sup>.

1200<sup>3</sup>. In the Hells are seen . . . mice, etc.

De Conj. 10. Concerning mice.—Lascivious wives, and also unmarried women, who account harlotry as nothing, dwell in two places . . . There are all these women who have known how to insinuate themselves with men by means of simulated affections, by means of which they acquire the lascivious love of some male, caring nothing as to whether they are good affections or evil ones. Those who dwell in front have been deceitful and cunning, and of such cleverness that they look into the sort of nature, animus, inclination, and cupidity possessed by the men whom they want to allure, chiefly to deprive the men of their wealth, while they live luxuriously. They dwell there in caverns, wherein all things are stinking, and the places where they dwell smell as do the places where mice dwell. Moreover, when seen by the Angels, they appear like great mice. I have heard some who have been in those caverns say that there is a stench of mice . . . and I too have often seen them as great mice with long tails: so were their concupiscences seen. . . Wonderful to say, there are some Spirits of both sexes who in the appearance of their passions appear like cats: these mice fear them, as mice on earth fear cats .

Mouth. Os.

A. 174. They induced certain changes round the province of the mouth, and thus communicated their thoughts; for to speak by the province of the mouth is general with the celestial.

[A.] 348. 'Thou art near in their mouth, but far from their reins' (Jer. xii. 2)=those who are in faith separated from charity.

884. 'In her mouth an olive leaf plucked off' (Gen. viii. 11). . . 'In her mouth'=that it was shown.

1843<sup>e</sup>. All that is of faith without charity (the Ancients called) of the mouth only . . .

1857<sup>e</sup>. 'To fall by the mouth of the sword'=by falsities. (See under WORD.)

2343<sup>e</sup>. Those who . . . had confessed with the mouth . . . 2352<sup>e</sup>.

3313. 'Because hunting was in his mouth' (Gen. xxv. 28) . . . =that it was in his natural affection; for in the Word that is said to be 'in the heart' which is interior and proceeds from good; and that 'in the mouth' which is exterior and proceeds from truth; and as the good of truth . . . is exterior, namely in the natural affection which proceeds from truth, the hunting (or venison) is said to have been 'in the mouth of Isaac.'

4221. He had indeed confessed God with the mouth .

4803<sup>2</sup>. Those who correspond to the mouth, continually want to speak; for in speaking they get the height of pleasure. When these are being perfected, they are reduced to this: that they do not speak anything except what is profitable to their companions, to the common good, to Heaven, and to the Lord. The delight of so speaking is increased with them in proportion as there perishes the desire of regarding themselves in their speech, and of seeking wisdom from proprium. D. 669.

5023<sup>2</sup>. This the natural man can indeed acknowledge with the mouth . . .

5497. 'The mouth of the wallet' (Gen. xlii. 27)=the threshold of the exterior Natural. 5657.

5576<sup>4</sup>. 'The utterance of the mouth of Jehovah' (Deut. viii. 3; Matt. iv. 4)=in general, the Divine truth which proceeds from the Lord; thus all the truth of wisdom; in special, the Word . . . (=the good and truth which proceed from Him. 5915<sup>2</sup>.)

5601. 'According to the mouth of His words' (Gen. xliii. 7)=in agreement with.

6107. 'To the mouth of an infant' (Gen. xlvii. 12)=each one according to the quality of the good of innocence; 'to the mouth'=each one, and according to the quality.

6985. 'Because heavy in mouth, and heavy in tongue am I' (Ex. iv. 10)=that the voice and the speech from the Divine would not be heard nor perceived; 'the mouth'=the voice . . . because it is the organ of the voice . . .

6987. 'Who setteth the mouth of man?' (ver. 11)=utterance; because 'the mouth'=the voice.

— . What 'the mouth'=in special, cannot be evident except from correspondence. The mouth together with the lips corresponds to the interior speech, which is of the thought. The thought of man is active and passive; man has active thought when he is speaking . . . By the mouth of man is signified his active or speaking thought; thus utterance. Ex.

6993. 'I will be with thy mouth, and will teach thee what thou shalt say' (ver. 12)=the Divine in each and all things which proceed from the Divine Human. Ex.

7004. 'Thou shalt put words in his mouth' (ver. 15)=that the things which it utters proceed from the Divine Human. . . 'The mouth'=voice and utterance. Thus 'to put in the mouth'=to give to utter; and, when predicated of the Lord, it=to proceed; for the Word which is uttered by a Spirit or Angel proceeds from the Divine Human of the Lord. Ex.

7807. The angelic Spirits kept . . . my mouth open . . . D. 569.

8068. 'That the law of Jehovah may be in thy mouth' (Ex. xiii. 9)=that the Divine truth may be in everything which proceeds thence. . . 'To be in the mouth'=to be in everything which proceeds from the understanding and the will; for 'in the mouth'=in the discourse, in which are both parts of the mind . . .

8467. 'Everyone for the mouth of his eating' (Ex. xvi. 16)=appropriation according to the faculty of each one. Ex. 8486.

8560. 'According to the mouth of Jehovah' (Ex. xvii. 1)=from the Providence of the Lord; (for) 'the mouth of Jehovah'=truth Divine, according to which they were led; for 'the mouth of Jehovah' is here taken for the Divine utterance, and the leading according thereto, which is Providence.

8910<sup>3</sup>. For 'the mouth' corresponds to the thought, as also do all things which belong to the mouth; as the lips, the tongue, the throat . . . Hence 'to enter into the mouth' (Matt. xv. 11)=into the thought . . . P. 80<sup>2</sup>.

9049<sup>e</sup>. The things of the mouth; as the cheek-bones, lips, throat, tongue (signify and correspond to) such things as belong to the utterance of truth.

9283. The reason 'to mention'=to think, is that to mention belongs to the mouth, and by the things of the mouth are signified those of the thought.

9284. 'It shall not be heard upon thy mouth' (Ex. xxiii. 13)=that they should not obey with any affirmation.

9384. For the things of the mouth, and derivatively of the speech or voice, correspond to the intellectual part . . .

9913. 'The mouth of the head of the robe in the midst thereof' (Ex. xxviii. 32)=where there is influx from what is higher. Ex. 9916.

9936. The interiors have their provinces allotted them in the face . . . those interiors which belong to utterance in the province of the mouth.

H. 96<sup>2</sup>. Those who (in the Grand Man) are in the mouth and tongue, are in discourse from understanding and perception.

P. 80<sup>e</sup>. By 'the mouth' is signified the thought which is of the understanding, also in Luke vi. 45.

169°. But with those who were in illustration from themselves, this luminosity was not around the head, but around the mouth and above the chin.

R. 52. 'Out of His mouth a sharp two-edged sword' (Rev.i.16)=the dispersion of falsities by the Lord by means of the Word and the derivative doctrine. . . 'To go out of the mouth of the Lord'=from the Word, for this the Lord has spoken with His mouth; and as the Word is understood by means of the doctrine from it, this also is signified. E.73.

244°. 'To satisfy the mouth with good' (Ps.ciii.5)=by knowledges to give understanding.

363°. Those who constitute the fourth class of the tribes, are those who correspond to the mouth and the tongue.

452. 'Out of their mouths went forth fire and smoke and sulphur' (Rev.ix.17)=that in their thoughts and discourses, regarded interiorly, there is nothing else, and from them comes forth nothing else, than the love of self and of the world . . . the conceit of Own Intelligence . . . and the concupiscence of evil and falsity . . . E.578.

454. 'Their Power was in their mouth' (ver. 19)=that they have strength solely in discourse confirmatory of faith. Ex.

481. 'In thy mouth it shall be sweet as honey' (Rev. x.9)=that the first reception from the acknowledgment that the Lord is the Saviour and the Redeemer, is grateful and pleasant.

563. 'The serpent cast out of his mouth water as a flood . . .' (Rev.xii.15)=reasonings from falsities in abundance. . . 'Out of the mouth of the serpent'=reasonings. E.763.

564. 'The earth opened her mouth, and swallowed up the flood which the dragon cast out of his mouth' (ver. 16)=that the reasonings from falsities in abundance . . . fall to nothing before the spiritual truths rationally understood . . . 'To open her mouth'=to adduce these truths. E.764.

574. 'His mouth as the mouth of a lion' (Rev.xiii.2)=reasoning from falsities as if from truths. By 'the mouth' is signified doctrine, preaching, and discourse; here, reasoning from falsities of doctrine; because by 'the head,' where the mouth is, is signified insanity from mere falsities. E.782.

582. 'There was given to him a mouth speaking great things and blasphemies' (ver.5)=that it teaches evils and falsities. By 'a mouth speaking' is signified doctrine, preaching, and discourse. E.794.

624. 'In their mouth was found no deceit' (Rev.xiv.5)=that they do not from cunning and purpose speak and persuade falsity and evil. By 'the mouth' is signified speech, preaching, and doctrine. E.866.

701. 'Out of the mouth of the dragon, and out of the mouth of the beast, and out of the mouth of the false prophet' (Rev.xvi.13)=from a theology founded upon the doctrine concerning a trinity of Persons . . . and upon the doctrine of justification by faith alone . . . By 'the mouth' is signified doctrine, and the derivative preaching and discourse. E.998.

836. 'The rest were slain with the sword . . . which proceeded out of His mouth' (Rev.xix.21)=that all from the various heresies among the Reformed who have not lived according to the Lord's precepts . . . being judged from the Word, perish.

—<sup>2</sup>. 'The sword out of the Lord's mouth'=combat from the Word against falsities; for the Word has proceeded out of the Lord's mouth.

T. 44. The little mouths=oscula=of young birds.

D. 626. I could observe their presence . . . by the dilatation of the mouth or region of the lips and cheeks . . .

670. The mouth is indeed in the face, but it leads into the body; namely, into the stomach and into the lungs; and it also leads from the same; and therefore those who are in the province of the mouth are less esteemed than those who are in other places of the face.

E. 167°. 'Near in their mouth, but far from their reins'=truth only in the memory and thence in some thought when the man is speaking; but not in the will . . .

235. 'I will vomit thee out of My mouth' (Rev.iii.16)=separation from Knowledges from the Word. . . 'Out of the mouth,' when predicated of the Lord,=out of the Word . . . because the Word is Divine truth, and this proceeds from the Lord; and that which proceeds and inflows with man, is said to be 'out of the mouth,' although it is not out of the mouth; but is like the light from the sun . . .

275<sup>11</sup>. 'All the army of them by the breath of His mouth' (Ps.xxxiii.6)=the Divine truth proceeding from the Lord.

316°. This=truth in abundance . . . and therefore it is said: 'I will give thee the opening of the mouth in the midst of them' (Ezek.xxix.21), by which is meant the preaching of truth.

—<sup>3</sup>. This=that the Divine truth had filled Hannah . . . and, as this is signified, it is said: 'My mouth is dilated against my enemies' (1 Sam.ii.1). 'The dilatation of the mouth'=the preaching of truth with power.

—<sup>15</sup>. As this 'little horn'=the perversion of the Word as to the sense of its letter, and this sense appears . . . as if it is to be contradicted by no one, it is said . . . that in it . . . was 'a mouth speaking great things' (Dan.vii.8). . . 'The mouth'=the derivative thought and speech.

375<sup>26</sup>. 'To descend upon the mouth of his garments' (Ps.cxxxiii.2)=the influx and conjunction of celestial good and of spiritual good. . . That 'the mouth of the garments'=the influx and conjunction of good celestial and spiritual, thus of good and truth. Refs.

391°. 'The mouth,' and 'lips,' of the prophet (Is.vi.7)=the doctrine of good and truth.

403<sup>23</sup>. 'They shall fall upon the mouth of the eater' (Nahum iii.13)=that . . . if goods are received, they are received solely in the memory . . . 'Upon the mouth of the eater'=no reception, not even in the memory; (for) in the Spiritual World those appear to receive with the mouth who commit anything to memory; and therefore 'to fall upon his mouth'=not even to receive in the memory, but only to hear; and also that if they do receive, it is only in the memory and not in the heart.

[E.] 419<sup>9</sup>. 'No wind in their mouth' (Ps.cxxxv.17)=no truth in their thought.

455<sup>2</sup>. In the Word . . . by 'the mouth' is signified the thought . . .

556<sup>5</sup>. 'Three ribs in its mouth between its teeth' (Dan.vii.5)=all things of the Word which they apply, and which they do not understand except according to the letter . . . 'In the mouth'=which they apply by teaching.

—<sup>9</sup>. For all things which belong to the mouth; as the throat, mouth, lips, jaw-bones, teeth,=such things as belong to the perception and understanding of truth, because they correspond to them.

578. 'The mouth'=the thought and the derivative reasoning.

580. 'Their Power was in their mouth'=the sensuous thoughts and derivative reasonings by which they have very great strength. . . 'The mouth'=the sensuous thought and derivative reasoning; for by 'the mouth,' and by the things which belong to the mouth, are signified those things which are of the understanding and the derivative thought and speech; for these things correspond to the mouth; for all the organs which in one word are called the mouth; as the larynx, glottis, throat, tongue, mouth, lips, are organs subservient to the understanding for utterance and expression. Hence it is that by 'the mouth' is signified the thought and derivative reasoning. But, as man's thought is interior and exterior; namely, spiritual, natural, and sensuous; therefore by 'the mouth' is signified the thought which is with the man who is being treated of; here, sensuous thought, because it is treating of a man made sensuous through the falsities of evil.

—<sup>2</sup>. That, from the correspondence, 'the mouth'=the thought; but, in the natural sense, the utterance. III.

—'. 'The mouth of the just meditateth wisdom' (Ps.xxxvii.30); by 'the mouth,' here, is signified thought from affection; for from this a man meditates wisdom; but not from the mouth and its speech.

—'. 'I will give you a mouth and wisdom . . .' (Luke xxi.15); 'the mouth,' here,=speech from the understanding; thus the thought from which the man speaks.

—'. 'Not that which entereth into the mouth renders the man unclean; but that which goeth forth out of the mouth . . .' (Matt.xv.11,17,18). By 'the things which enter into the mouth,' in the sense of the letter, are meant foods of every kind . . . but, in the spiritual sense, . . . all things which from the memory and also from the world enter into the thought . . . and those things which enter into the thought, and not at the same time into the will, do not render the man unclean . . . Man cannot be purified from evils and the derivative falsities unless the unclean things which are in him emerge even into the thought, and are there seen, acknowledged, discriminated, and rejected. (Thus) by 'that which enters into the mouth' is signified that which enters into the thought from the memory and from the world; but by 'that which goes forth from the mouth' is signified thought from the will or from the love; for by the heart from which it comes into the mouth, and from the mouth, is signified the will and the love of man; and, as the love and will make the whole man . . . those things which go forth thence into the mouth and from the mouth make the man unclean; and that these are evils of every kind is evident from the things there enumerated.

—<sup>4</sup>. That one of the seraphim touched with a live coal from the altar the mouth and lips of the prophet=his interior purification, which is that of the understanding and will, and his consequent inauguration into the gift of teaching . . . By 'the mouth,' and 'lips,' are signified the thought and the affection; or, what is the same, the understanding and the will.

587<sup>9</sup>. 'They have mouths, but they speak not . . .' (Ps.cxv.5; cxxxv.16)=that from these things there is not any thought . . . of truth.

619. 'In thy mouth it shall be sweet as honey'=exterior delight; for 'the mouth'=what is exterior. Ex.

—<sup>14</sup>. 'Thy words . . . are sweeter than honey to my mouth' (Ps.cxix.103) . . . 'the mouth'=what is external.

621. 'And it was in my mouth sweet as honey'=that the Word, as to its external or as to the sense of its letter, was as yet perceived as the delight of good; but the delight was only from the fact that it served to confirm principles of falsity and loves of evil . . .

654<sup>59</sup>. 'They have not interrogated My mouth' (Is.xxx.2)=from the proprium of the natural man and not from the Word.

659<sup>11</sup>. 'In the mouth' (Ps.v.9)=exteriorly.

763. 'The mouth'=the thought whence is speech. E.866.

768<sup>23</sup>. 'To dilate the mouth' (Is.lvii.4)=the delight of the derivative thought.

782. 'The mouth'=the thought.

—<sup>2</sup>. By 'the mouth,' in the proper sense, is signified the thought; and, as man's speech is thence, by 'the mouth' are signified many things which flow forth from the thought; as instruction, preaching, reasoning; here, reasoning . . .

794. 'The mouth'=doctrine, from which are instruction, preaching, and reasoning. Ex.

908<sup>2</sup>. 'Jehovah hath set my mouth as a sharp sword' (Is.xlix.2). By 'the mouth' of the prophet is signified the Divine truth; and therefore it is compared to 'a sharp sword' . . .

998. 'The mouth'=thought, reasoning, religion, and doctrine.

De Verbo 13<sup>o</sup>. As regards myself, I have not been allowed to take anything from the mouth of any Spirit, nor from the mouth of any Angel, but from the mouth of the Lord alone.

Move. See under EXCITED—percitus, and TREMOR.

Move. Ciere.

W. 341<sup>o</sup>. They excite vomiting. R.204<sup>o</sup>. T.569<sup>5</sup>. E.986<sup>o</sup>.

Move, Commove. *Commove.Motion, Commotion. Commotio.

A. 1066. 'The foundations of the earth do shake' (Is.xxiv.18).

—<sup>2</sup>. 'The earth hath quaked before Him' (Joel ii. 10).

2776<sup>4</sup>. If they only think from a certain interior commotion . . .

3355<sup>2</sup>. 'I will commove the heaven, and the earth shall be commoved out of its place' (Is.xiii.13) . . . The earth is said to be 'commoved out of its place' when the Church is changed as to state.

—'. 'Is this the man commoving the earth, commoving kingdoms?' (Is.xiv.16) . . . 'The earth' = the Church, which he is said 'to commove,' when he claims for himself all things of it.

4060<sup>4</sup>. 'The powers of the heavens shall be shaken' (Matt.xxiv.29) = the foundations of the Church, which are said to be 'shaken—commoveri et concuti—' when they perish. For the Church on earth is the foundation of Heaven . . . and therefore when the man of the Church is in so perverted a state that he no longer admits the influx of good and truth, the powers of the heavens are said to be 'shaken.'

5691. '(Joseph's) compassions were commoved' (Gen. xliii.30) = mercy from love.

5881. 'To be in consternation' = commotion; consternation is nothing else. By commotion is meant a new disposition and ordination of truths in the Natural. Ex.

8816. The commotion of all things at the presence of the Divine. Sig.

8822. 'The whole mountain trembled exceedingly' = the commotion [of Heaven]. . . That there is commotion at the presence of the Divine. See above.

8917. 'The people saw and were commoved' (Ex.xx. 18) = the tremor which there is when Divine truths are being received.

10083<sup>4</sup>. By 'to move the water,' here, (John v.3) was signified vivification through acknowledgment and faith; thus also purification through truths. 'Motion' = a state of life.

10406<sup>4</sup>. That it 'shall not be moved' (Is.xl.21) = that it cannot be weakened and destroyed.

D. Min. 4697. Concerning a certain Gentile who was commoved from the Word.

—'. He was so commoved thereby that his commotion from the internal was perceived . . .

E. 304<sup>15</sup>. 'The earth' = the Church, which is said to be 'commoved,' and 'to tremble' (Ps.xviii.7) when it is perverted by truths being falsified; and then the foundations of the mountains are said 'to tremble,' and 'to commove themselves' (id.); for the goods of love, which are founded upon the truths of faith, vanish.

400<sup>2</sup>. The change and perversion of the Church is signified by that 'the earth hath quaked, and the heavens have trembled' (Joel ii. 10).

444<sup>14</sup>. 'To be commoved in the viscera' (Luke x.33) = mercy and charity from the interior.

518<sup>26</sup>. By 'to be changed,' 'to be commoved,' 'to be thrown into a tumult,' 'to be disturbed,' and 'to tremble' (Ps.xlvi.2,3,5) is signified the state of truths when they are perishing, and in their place there enter falsities and evils; consequently the state of the Church when it is being vastated as to goods and being desolated as to truths.

677. 'The rest became terrified' = commotion of the lower mind, and the conversion of those who had been a little spiritual.

741<sup>10</sup>. 'To commove the earth,' 'to make kingdoms tremble' (Is.xiv.16) = to destroy all things of the Church.

J.(Post.) 58<sup>2</sup>. At this day the Quakers have not the tremor and total shaking, as before; but an uncertain shaking at the left side of the body and face.

Move. *Movere.Motion. *Motus.Movement. *Motio.Motor. Motorius, Motrix.

See EARTHQUAKE, and MOBILITY.

A. 3355. 'A quake' = a change of state. 3356, Ex. E.1015.

3748<sup>e</sup>. Endeavour produces act and motion, and must be in them for them to come forth and subsist.

3884<sup>e</sup>. The cardiac pulse of Heaven . . . has correspondence with . . . the systolic and diastolic motions of the heart. W.381.

4223<sup>2</sup>. When man wills . . . and thinks, the organs move themselves suitably.

4325. The muscles and the skin, and also the organs of the senses, receive fibres for the most part from the cerebrum: hence man has sense, and hence he has motion according to his will.

—<sup>e</sup>. And every particular is circumstanced according to the quality and according to the state of the general: so also [is it with] motion in man.

5173<sup>2</sup>. On the cessation of endeavour, action or motion ceases.

—<sup>3</sup>. This is circumstanced as is the motion of the muscles, whence is action: unless there is in it endeavour from the thought and will of the man, the motion ceases; for . . . when endeavour ceases, motion ceases . . . and in motion nothing real comes forth except endeavour. (Continued under ACT.)

5605<sup>2</sup>. The motions and progressions in the other life are nothing else, because they are from nothing else, than changes of the state of life . . .

—<sup>e</sup>. As 'to go,' and 'to be moved' = to live, it was said by the Ancients that in God we are moved, live, and are; and by 'to be moved' was understood the external of life . . .

8397<sup>e</sup>. Consequently, by motions are not signified motions, nor by journeyings journeyings; but changes and successions of states.

8911. Motion is nothing but continual endeavour; for, when endeavour ceases, motion ceases; and therefore there is nothing essential in motion except endeavour. The endeavour in man is will, and the motion in him is action : so are they called in man, because in him endeavour and motion are alive.

[A.] 9293. Man's deeds . . . regarded abstractedly from the will, are only motions variously formed, and as it were articulated, not unlike the motions of a machine, thus inanimate; but the deeds regarded together with the will are not such motions, but are forms of the will shown before the eyes . . . From the will they have their soul or life, and therefore the like can be said about deeds as about motions; namely, that nothing lives in deeds except the will, as nothing does in motions except endeavour. H.472.

9394<sup>5</sup>. Each bundle consists of many motor fibres; and each motor fibre of blood-vessels and nervous fibres . . .

9473. No motion can come forth without endeavour, inasmuch that when endeavour ceases, motion ceases; and therefore the internal of motion is endeavour, or moving force. So it is with . . . living motion, which is action . . .

9927. For the things which belong to motion; as to walk. to go, to progress, = a state of life . . .

10083<sup>3</sup>. For all motion corresponds to a state of thought. Hence progressions, journeyings, and like things, which belong to motion, in the Word = a state of life.

H. 228. Man cannot move even a step without the influx of Heaven. This has been shown me by much experience. It has been granted to the Angels to move my steps, my actions, my tongue and speech, as they want, and this by influx into my will and thought; and it was found that I could [move] nothing of myself.

249<sup>2</sup>. For religious things . . . enter the Spiritual World, and move the Spirits who are there.

446<sup>e</sup>. For all the vital motions depend upon (the respiration and the heart).

W. 101<sup>e</sup>. The motions of the Earth [in space] correspond to the change of state of the Angels.

197<sup>e</sup>. There is nothing essential in motion except endeavour.

218. On the endeavours, forces, and motions, in dead subjects and in living subjects. (Quoted in full under ENDEAVOUR.)

219. Let there be an application of these things to . . . living motion. . . Living motion in man is action, which is produced by means of these forces by the will united to the understanding.

—<sup>e</sup>. The general motor organs of the body . . . are the heart and the lungs.

301. Nothing is moved except by life from the Lord . . . so that it is the Truth, that in God we live, are moved, and are.

390. Therefore when the correspondence of these two motions (of the heart and lungs) ceases, separation takes place, which is death.

391<sup>e</sup>. (Thus) the conjunction of the spirit and body with man is by the correspondence of the cardiac motion and the pulmonary motion of both. D. Wis. vii, Ex.

392. The reason these two motions . . . come forth and persist, is that the universal angelic Heaven, both in general and in particular, is in these two motions of life . . . That Sun acts these two motions from the Lord.

401. Therefore the embryo cannot then move anything of the body . . .

P. 279<sup>7</sup>. All these (viscera) are moved to their work intrinsically only; and to be moved intrinsically is to be moved by changes and variations of the state and form.

R. 480. A movement of the lower mind with many in the Church to receive the doctrine. Sig. and Ex.

B. 96. These, together with faith, affect and move the will and thought of man . . .

T. 87. The heart without the respiration . . . does not produce any motion . . .

576<sup>2</sup>. In every motion, and derivatively in every action, there is an active and a passive. Ex. and Examps.

Ad. 989<sup>2</sup>. It is a constant rule, that motion is a certain perpetual endeavour, which is continued; for, as soon as endeavour recedes, motion comes to a stand . . .

D. 1688. So that the motion (of these Spirits) was as it were general and reciprocal; for I have sometimes felt such motions from a multitude of Spirits . . . From it I could think that they were not interior ones, whose motion is effected by means of gyres.

2000. That not even the least little motion—motiuncula—is made by man apart from a stated law. Ex.

3394. When he was praising the Lord with an interior movement . . . it was granted to feel something of his movement . . .

4089. He who is not in the life of love . . . in Heaven cannot move himself . . .

—<sup>c</sup>. Life itself is also represented by mobility.

5116. The celestials did not speak, but were continually acting . . . He who sees the movements of their body and its members in particular . . . perceives innumerable things. Ex.

6030. In the other life (such) learn to act (magically) by correspondences . . . some by . . . various movements of the members . . .

D. Love v<sup>2</sup>. For the heart and lungs are the two fountains of all the general motions in the universal body . . . These also consociate the voluntary motor life, which derives its auspices from the cerebrum, with the natural motor life, which flows from the control of the cerebellum.

xix. It is known that everything is moved from endeavour; and that when endeavour ceases, motion ceases . . .

xx. Love is . . . the living force of all things . . . There is no other origin of all endeavours, forces, activities, and motions, in the universal world, than the Divine love . . .

D. Wis. ii. The will and understanding . . . are forms within forms, ascending to the third degree . . . and they are each of them the originary receptacles of love and wisdom in the brains, where they are the beginnings and heads of the fibres, through which their endeavours and forces flow down to all things of the body . . . and present the senses in the sensories, the motions in the motories . . . —<sup>3</sup>.

iii.5. The motion of the rest of the viscera (in the embryo) is from (the beating of the heart and the leaping of the liver); and it is this motion which, after the middle of the gestation, is felt as pulsative. But this motion is not from any life proper to the foetus. Ex.

vi. The heart and lungs are the two fountains of all the natural motions in the body; and the will and understanding are the two fountains of all the spiritual activities in the same body; and the natural motions of the body correspond to the activities of its spirit . . .

—<sup>8</sup>. (Thus) all the living motions, which are called actions, and which come forth by means of the muscles, take place through the co-operation of the cardiac motion and the pulmonary motion . . . and . . . these two fountains of the motions of the body correspond to the will and understanding.

vii. 3. Hence these two motions of the spirit inflow into these two motions of the body. From experience.

—<sup>2</sup>. Hence with men there is both an external and an internal systolic and animatory motion . . . Thus also the will together with the understanding can produce bodily motions . . .

4. As the life of the whole and the life of the parts depend solely on these two universal motions . . . it follows that when these motions cease in the body, the natural things which are material are separated from the spiritual things which are substantial; for they cannot act together the same work . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. Hence there is (no longer) a reciprocation of the two vital motions . . .

x. 4. That the life of the will co-operates with the life of the understanding in every motion; and, on the other hand, the life of the understanding with the life of the will in every sense. Ex.

Move about. Motitare. D.3238. 3358.

See also BROOD.

Move away. See PUT AWAY—amovere.

Moveable. Versatilis.

T. 373. The external man is moveable in its relation to the internal.

437. With a revolving neck.

D. 1259<sup>2</sup>. This signified that he was versatile . . .

4696. It was shown how versatile they were . . . so that all things were indeterminate. When one turned himself, he changed his mind, like a revolving wheel, into the opposite. . . A plane must be formed from the truths of faith . . . in the world; otherwise their stats is versatile and evil.

Coro. 28. No more moveable than a door without a hinge.

Movement. See under MOMENT.

Much. See under MANY.

Mucus. Mucus.

Mucous. Mucosus.

A. 4627<sup>3</sup>. Those who were cast down related to the mucus of the nostrils, and were dull and stupid, and also devoid of conscience; thus completely devoid of interior perception.

5386. The mucous and salivary glands in the head . . . correspond to tenacities of opinions, and also to scruples of conscience in things not necessary. (Such Spirits des.)

D. 939. The mammillary processes in the brain . . . imbibe the phlegm of the medullary substance, and excrete it into the nostrils, as phlegm, and reject it as excrement entirely useless, as is the mucus of the nostrils; for it is not employed in the gullet; it would then inviscate the food, and destroy the appetite. (The Spirits of this province des. 940. 941. 942. 943.)

1267. Concerning the mucus of the nostrils. Gen. art.

1268. Those who relate to the mucus of the nostrils are those who, when they have once conceived hatred, most tenaciously desire to be revenged, so that they admit no reason . . . which hatred breathes nothing but the death of the other; for they then revolve nothing else in their minds. These are that viscid mucus of the nostrils. 1269, Examp. 1270.

1272. They have an effect upon the stomach not unlike that of the mucus of the nostrils. If much of it is drawn into the stomach, it inviscates the food, and obstructs the pores, so that there is no digestion. 1273.

1275. He was susceptible of no reason . . . His thoughts are interior, such that they cannot be adequately described, he revolves so many hatreds at once, and disperses them around; so that the Spirits around complained that they were also held as it were bound by him; thus he is like the mucus . . .

1276. The mucus, therefore, in the spiritual sense, = tenacious hatreds . . .

3718a. They are carried (away from the brain) through various excrementitious ways; I supposed through the way of the mucus into the nostrils; but it was not through that way; but through the pores of the bone of the skull towards the external skin . . .

4030. I perceived that they are such as relate to the mucus of the nostrils; and that they insinuate themselves thither in order to insidiate; and they are adulteresses and are devoid of conscience . . . They marvelled that there should be anybody who has conscience; and therefore they are the mucus of the nostrils . . . and are spurious and to be rejected. 4032<sup>2</sup>.

4034. Those mucuses also were indignant . . .

4035. When those mucuses were inflowing, it was perceived that they moved the tongue towards a decayed tooth. Also a feeling of gnawing as of lice at the back of the neck, and an itching in the nates, were from them.

[D.] 6069. xxx. They who are in the delight of variety in adultery are those who love congress with beasts ; and they become like the mucns of the nostrils.

Mud. Gyttja.

D. 4788. What a marshy place, or mud, is. Ex. (See MARSH.)

Mufti. Mufti.

D. 4658<sup>e</sup>. He had held the place of mufti at Constantinople, and had thence acquired this conceit.

4723. See POPE.

Mule. Mulus.

She-mule. Mula.

A. 1949. 'Horses,' 'mules,' and 'asses,' in the Word, = intellectual, rational, and scientific things.

2781. There are beasts by which are signified intellectual things, which are of truth ; namely, horses, mules, etc.

—<sup>2</sup>. Rational truth is signified by 'a mule.' Ill.

—<sup>6</sup>. The king rode upon a she-mule ; and his sons upon mules ; for the reason that kings and their sons represented the truths of the Church. Ill.

—<sup>7</sup>. Hence it is evident that to ride upon . . . a she-mule was the ensign of a king . . . and upon a mule, of a king's sons ; for the reason that . . . 'a she-mule' represented and signified the affection of rational truth . . . and 'a mule,' rational truth.

4648<sup>3</sup>. 'Anah who found the mules in the wilderness' (Gen. xxxvi. 24) = truth from scientifics.

W. 346<sup>2</sup>. Perfect animals are mules, etc.

E. 355<sup>12</sup>. By 'horses,' riders,' and 'mules' (Ezek. xxvii. 14) is signified the understanding of truth and good . . . by 'mules' what is rational.

—<sup>15</sup>. By 'mules' (Is. lxxi. 20) is signified the internal Rational, which is spiritual. (=rational things. 1155<sup>2</sup>.)

650<sup>42</sup>. By 'the plague of the mule,' etc. (Zech. xiv. 15) are signified such things as injure and destroy the Church and the spiritual life of the men of the Church . . .

Multiply. Multiplicare.

Multiplication. Multiplicatio.

Multiplicable. Multiplicabilis.

Multiplicability. Multiplicabilitas.

Multiplex. Multiplex.

See under FRUIT, and MANIFOLD.

A. 585. 'The evil of man multiplied in the earth' (Gen. vi. 5) = that there began to be no will of good.

—<sup>v</sup>. 'Multiplied' is said because all were not so depraved as not to will well to others ; but for the sake of self.

813. The multiplication of a few, as the multiplication of a half . . . makes it still less . . .

913. 'That they may multiply' (Gen. viii. 17) = increments of truth . . . 'To fructify' is predicated of goods ; and 'to multiply,' of truths. (Continued under FRUIT.)

984. When a man is regenerated, and his internal man acts, then fructification and multiplication are circumstanced in like manner. The goods of charity put themselves forth in the affections which are of the external man, and the truths of faith in the memory, and in both they grow and are multiplied. The nature of this multiplication may be known by every regenerate man ; for things which confirm accede, both from the Word, and from the rational man, and also from scientifics . . .

1016. 'Bring forth abundantly in the earth, and multiply therein' (Gen. ix. 7) = increments of good and truth in the external man . . . 'To bring forth abundantly' is predicated of goods ; and 'to be multiplied,' of truths.

— . With the regenerate man, nothing is multiplied in his external man ; that is, nothing of good and truth receives increments, except by the effect of charity. Charity is like the heat in the time of spring or summer, which causes (plants) to grow . . . (So) nothing grows and is multiplied with man unless there be some affection ; the delight of the affection causes it not only to take root, but also to grow . . . But such as is the affection, such is the multiplication. With a regenerated person it is the affection of good and truth from charity given by the Lord . . .

1017. That the multiplication is such as is the affection. (Shown by an examp.)

1610. Multiplication beyond measure. Sig. and Ex. (See SEED, here.) 1941.

1940. 'In multiplying I will multiply thy seed' (Gen. xvi. 10) = the fructification of the rational man when he submits himself to the authority of the interior man adjoined to good. (Continued under FRUIT.)

1997. 'I will multiply thee very exceedingly' (Gen. xvii. 2) = the fructification of the affection of truth to infinity. (Continued under FRUIT.)

2006. 'To be multiplied,' is predicated of truth. Refs.

2065. 'I will bless her' = the multiplication of truth. . . For by Sarah . . . is represented the truth of good . . . and this truth and its multiplication are here treated of.

2269. The simple numbers retain their signification even when multiplied. Examp. 9437. 9487. 9488. 9600. 9601. 9641. 9757.

3239<sup>e</sup>. Multiplication and division (are not essentially different).

3378. 'I will make thy seed to be multiplied as the stars of the heavens' (Gen. xxvi. 4) = the truths and Knowledges of faith.

3440. 'I will bless thee, and I will make thy seed to be multiplied' (Gen. xxvi. 24) = an increase : thence of good and truth. . . 'Thy seed to be multiplied' = an increase of truth.

3903. The fructification and multiplication of truth and good. Tr. (in Gen. xxx.)

3969. 'Joseph' . . . in the external sense, = salvation, and fructification and multiplication.

3987. That good is not fructified, nor truth multi- plied, until the conjunction of the external man with the internal has been effected, may be evident from the fact, that it belongs to the interior man to will good to another, and thence to think good; and to the external man to do good, and thence to teach good . . .

4035. 'The man spread himself abroad very exceedingly' = multiplication, namely, of good and truth.

4099<sup>2</sup>. When (heavenly and worldly things) are in concord with a man, then truths are multiplied in the Natural of the man; but when they are in discord they are diminished . . .

4850. 'The days were multiplied' (Gen.xxxviii.12)= a change of state . . . (for) 'to be multiplied,' when predicated of days or times, = to be changed. . . 'To be multiplied' is said, because it involves a change of state as to truths; for 'to be multiplied' is predicated of truths. Refs.

5265. 'The seven good kine, these are seven years' = the states of the multiplication of truth in the interior Natural.

5266. 'The seven good ears, these are seven years' = the states of the multiplication of truth in the exterior Natural.

5268. 'The seven thin and evil kine ascending after them, these are seven years' = the states of the multiplication of falsity infesting the interior Natural.

5269. 'The seven empty ears, parched with the east wind' = the states of the multiplication of falsity infesting the exterior Natural.

5339. 'In the seven years of the abundance of provision, the land made collections' = the first states when truths were multiplied into series. . . 'The land made' = that this multiplication was made in the Natural.

5345. 'Joseph heaped up corn as the sand of the sea, very much' = the multiplication of truth from good . . . For the truth in the interiors is never multiplied from any other source than good. The multiplication of truth which is not from good, is not the multiplication of truth, because it is not truth . . . For in order that truth may be truth with a man, it must live from good . . . and, when it so lives, then multiplication can be predicated of it in the spiritual sense. That the multiplication of truth is solely from good, may be evident from the fact, that nothing can be multiplied except from something similar to a marriage; and truth cannot enter into marriage with anything except good. If with anything else, it is not marriage, but adultery. That, therefore, which is multiplied from marriage is legitimate, thus true; but that which is multiplied from adultery is . . . spurious, thus not true.

5355. 'God hath made me to be fruitful' = the consequent multiplication of truth from good. . . The quality (signified by Ephraim) is that truth from good has been multiplied in the Natural after the temptations which he suffered therein. 5356.

—, What the multiplication of truth from good is. Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. In the Church at this day there is rarely any multiplication of truth; the reason is that there is no good of genuine charity. Ex.

5365<sup>2</sup>. In the first times when a man is being regenerated, truth is multiplied, but not so good . . . But when the man has been regenerated, good grows . . .

5912<sup>2</sup>. When good is in the first place . . . it multiplies truths around itself, and also around each truth . . .

6172. 'To be multiplied' is said from a multitude; which, in the internal sense, is predicated of the truths of faith; for 'much,' in the Word, is said of truths . . .

6231. 'To be multiplied' is predicated of the truths of faith.

6610. So long as a man lives, the ideas of his thought are varied; that is, are multiplied and divided . . .

6634. In (Ex.i.) it treats of the state of the instaurated (or established) Church, when good acts as first, and is fructified by the multiplication of the truths of faith.

6648. '(The sons of Israel) were multiplied and became numerous very exceedingly' (Ex.i.7) = that they increased for the most part as to truths from good. Ex. 6656.

6663. 'And as they afflicted it, so was it multiplied' (ver.12) = that according to the infestings, so did truths increase. . . 'To be multiplied' = to increase as to truths. Ex.

7795. 'That My prodigies may be multiplied in the land of Egypt' (Ex.xi.9) = that (this) may be confirmed.

9335. 'And the wild beast of the field be multiplied upon thee' (Ex.xxiii.29) = the afflux of falsities . . . 'To be multiplied,' when said of the hasty removal of evils and falsities, = afflux.

10675. The multiplication and extension of truth from good. Sig. and Ex.

P. 56<sup>3</sup>. The image of the Infinite and Eternal in the fructification and multiplication of all things. Ex.

R. 287. Truths are multiplex; but goods, simple.

M. 185<sup>e</sup>. Everything is in like manner multiplicable to infinity.

329<sup>2</sup>. Every divided thing is more and more multiplex, and not more and more simple. Ex.

T. 350. That the Truths of faith are multiplicable to infinity. Ex.

—, The multiplicability of Divine truth to infinity . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. The multiplication of the Truths of faith to infinity may be compared to . . .

365<sup>3</sup>. The love and wisdom of the Angels . . . are multiplicable to eternity.

E. 391<sup>27</sup>. 'Ephraim hath multiplied altars to sin' (Hos.viii.11) = . . . to pervert worship by falsities . . . for in the Word 'to multiply' is said of truths; and, in the opposite sense, of falsities.

506<sup>2</sup>. Numbers multiplied into themselves, and divided by themselves, = like things with the integers from which they are.

[E.] 700<sup>35</sup>. The multiplication of truth . . . is signified by . . . 'When ye shall be multipled' (Jer.iii.16).

1004<sup>e</sup>. Everything in which there is force, wants . . . to multiply its species to infinity and to eternity.

Multitude. Multitudo.

A. 1941. 'It shall not be numbered for multitude' (Gen.xvi.10)=multiplication beyond measure.

2004. 'Thou shalt be the father of a multitude of nations' (Gen.vii.4)=the union of the Human Essence with the Divine Essence . . . 'Multitude'=truth. 2006.

2006. The reason 'multitude'=truth, is that 'to be multiplied' is predicated of truth.

3048<sup>5</sup>. 'The multitude of the sea' (Is.lx.5)=the immense (or unmeasured) abundance of natural truth.

3934. 'A troop,' here, is a multitude; and, when a multitude is predicated of the Divine of the Lord, it is an infinite multitude, which is nothing else than omnipotence and omniscience; but omnipotence is predicated from the quantity which is of magnitude; and omniscience, from the quantity which is of multitude . . .

3985. 'It hath broken forth to a multitude' (Gen.xxx.30)=fecundity afterwards . . . namely, after it was conjoined.

4574<sup>e</sup>. 'A congregation,' and 'a multitude,' in the Word, are predicated of truths.

4800. For in a unanimous multitude there is strength.

6172. See MULTIPLY, here.

6285. 'Let them grow to a multitude in the midst of the earth' (Gen.xlviii.16)=extension from the inmost . . . For the truths, which are signified by 'a multitude,' extend themselves from the inmost . . . round about.

8116. In that region (of Jupiter) there is as great a multitude of men as the Earth can nourish.

8283. 'In the multitude of Thine excellence' (Ex.xv.7)=the Divine as to power over those things which oppose themselves to Him.

J. 27<sup>2</sup>. How immense already is the multitude of men (in the Spiritual World), it has sometimes been granted me to see . . .

R. 860. The multitude of such. Sig.

M. 380. I was once in amazement at the vast multitude of men who ascribe creation to nature . . . T.35.

D.1252. Concerning the multitude of Spirits who concur to a single action of man.

E. 304<sup>50</sup>. By 'the multitude of waters in the heavens' (Jer.x.13) are signified truths in abundance. 644<sup>19</sup>.

336<sup>3</sup>. Hence it is that 'much,' and 'multitude,' in the Word, are said of truths; and 'great,' and 'magnitude,' of good . . .

386<sup>12</sup>. That there is no truth, is signified by, 'Its multitude is dry with thirst' (Is.v.13). . . 'multitude,' in the Word, is predicated of truths.

410<sup>7</sup>. 'The multitude of the city' (Is.xxxii.14)=all the truths of doctrine. . . 'Multitude' is said of truths.

532<sup>2</sup>. 'The great multitude (of Moab)' (Is. xvi.14)=falsities from evil.

573<sup>10</sup>. 'The voice of a multitude in the mountains' (Is.xiii.4)=falsities from evils; 'multitude'=falsities; and 'mountains,' evils.

624<sup>12</sup>. The falsities of evil are signified by 'the multitude of iniquity' (Hos.ix.7).

654<sup>37</sup>. 'The multitude (of Pharaoh)' (Ezek.xxxi.18)=all the Scientific there.

750<sup>10</sup>. The falsities of evil fighting against the goods of the Church, are signified by, 'the multitude of all the nations fighting against Mount Zion' (Is.xxix.8). 'Multitude' is predicated of truths.

Mummy. Mumia.

A. 876<sup>e</sup>. Like a mummy of the Egyptians wrapped in a white garment.

W. 424<sup>3</sup>. Those who have been in the highest love of dominating from the love of self, and at the same time in elevation of the understanding over others, appear as to the body like an Egyptian mummy.

R. 153<sup>e</sup>. Some satans appear black, like mummies.

463<sup>5</sup>. (Such) become corporeal Spirits, and appear like mummies. T.462<sup>5</sup>.

M. 182<sup>e</sup>. Whether mummies eaten by men . . . T.770.

T. 160<sup>6</sup>. How can any Egyptian, who has been made a mummy, and has been mixed by the apothecary with his extracts and emulsions to be drunk or eaten, return and relate anything?

595. Like a mummy, gilded or placed in a silver coffin; and, when this is examined within, a hideously black body comes to view.

D. 1262. He thus became a black Spirit, like the Egyptian mummies . . . 1284.

3806. This Holy Spirit (of the Quakers) became black, and indurated, like a mummy; so that he scarcely differed from a mummy.

5669<sup>e</sup>. The Hell (of these violators) is very deep down . . . There they sit like dried Egyptian mummies.

E. 1059<sup>e</sup>. (Those in the third degree of profanation) appear encompassed with a lucid cloud, in the midst of which is a blackness, like an Egyptian mummy . . .

Munificence. Munificentia.

M. 164. The virtues which pertain to the moral wisdom of the men are . . . munificence, etc.

T. 425<sup>2</sup>. It is found that their works had proceeded from . . . bare munificence, etc.

Murder. See under KILL-occidere.

Murder. Homicidium.

Murderer. Homicida.

See under HATRED.

A. 828. These (seducers) are such interior murderers. De Conj. 126.

5135<sup>11</sup>. 'They did not repent of their murders' (Rev. ix.21); 'murders'=the evils which destroy goods. R.461, Ex.

Life 62. That murders, etc., of every kind, together with the concupiscence to them, are the evils which are to be shunned as sins. Gen.art.

67. That in proportion as anyone shuns murders of every kind as sins, in the same proportion he has love towards the neighbour. Gen.art.

— By murders of every kind are meant also enmities, hatreds, and revenges of every kind, which breathe murder-necem; for in these murder lies hidden, like fire in wood beneath the ashes. Infernal fire is nothing else. It is from this that it is said [that men] blaze with hatred and revenge. These are murders in the natural sense. But by murders, in the spiritual sense, are meant all modes of killing and destroying the souls of men, which are various and manifold. But by murder, in the supreme sense, is meant to hate the Lord. These three kinds of murders make a one, and cohere; for he who in the world wills the murder-necem-of a man's body, after death wills the murder-necem-of his soul; and wills the murder-necem-of the Lord; for he blazes with anger against Him, and wants to extinguish His name.

68. These kinds of murders lie hidden within man from his birth; but even from infancy he learns to cover them over with civility and morality . . . 69.

70. As evil and good are two opposites . . . it follows that if a man shuns an evil as a sin, he comes into the good opposite to the evil. The good opposite to the evil which is meant by murder, is the good of love towards the neighbour. 71.

72. When a man is no longer in the evil of murder, but in the good of love towards the neighbour, then, whatever he does, is the good of this love. Examps.

—*. The contrary takes place with him who does not regard as sins the kinds of murder; which are enmities, hatreds, revenges, and many other things . . . Whatever he does, is not a good work, because his every work partakes of the evil which is within him . . .

R. 892. 'Murderers,' etc. (Rev.xxi.8)=all those who make nothing of the precepts of the decalogue, and do not shun as sins any evils there named, and therefore live in them.

952. 'Without are . . . murderers,' etc. (Rev.xxii.15) =that no one is received into the New Jerusalem who makes nothing of the precepts of the decalogue, and does not shun as sins any evils there named, and therefore lives in them.

T. 309. In a wider natural sense, by murders are meant enmities, hatreds, and revenges, which breathe murder-necem; for in these murder lies hidden, like fire in wood beneath the ashes . . . These are murders in intention, but not in act; and, if the fear of the law, and of retaliation and revenge, were taken away from them, they would burst forth into act; especially if in the intention there is deceit or ferocity. That hatred is murder, is evident from these words of the Lord (in Matt.v.21,22). The reason is, that everything which is of the intention is also of the will; and thus, in itself, is of the deed. (See KILL, here.)

310. In the spiritual sense, by murders are meant all modes of killing and destroying the souls of men . . . as, to turn them away from God, religion, and Divine worship, by injecting stumbling-blocks against them, and by persuading such things as cause aversion . . . Such are all the devils and satans in Hell, with whom the violators and prostitutes of the sanctities of the Church in this world are conjoined. Those who destroy souls by means of falsities, are meant by 'the king of the abyss, called Abaddon, or Apollyon,' that is, 'the destroyer,' in Rev.ix.11; and, in the prophetic Word [those whom they destroy] are meant by 'the slain,' Ill.
VOL. IV.

—e. Hence it is that the devil is called 'a murderer from the beginning' (John viii.44).

311. (For the celestial sense of murders, see KILL, here.)

380e. Those who honour the Lord solely with the mouth and lips, but in heart and spirit look upon Him as a mere man, if they open their thoughts and persuade others, are spiritual murderers; and the worst of them are spiritual cannibals; for man has life from love to the Lord, and faith in Him . . .

D. 1296. Concerning the black murderer Spirit, further.

3214. Concerning the deceitful murderer who was treated of before. 3219.

3559. Concerning the poison murderer: that he was cast into a lake.

3710. They suppose that they then have a right over him, because he is a murderer . . .

3729e. When thinking of Prague (the first thing which recurs is) that between the streets there are passages through their houses for murderers by night.

5496. On the Hells of poisoners, assassins, and murderers. Gen.art.

5500. These are they who have been murderers from will and purpose, and have exercised themselves long in it, and have afterwards taken delight in it; and at the same time have been cunning and malicious, appearing exteriorly as if sincere; because such are extremely dangerous in the other life; they can infest the simple good . . .

E. 122e. That from the beginning they have been against truths, and in falsities from evil, is signified by that 'their father was a murderer from the beginning; and no Truth, but a lie was in him' (John viii.44); 'a murderer'=a destroyer of the truth of the Church . . . (=the extinction of all truth. 433<sup>32</sup>.) 589<sup>2</sup>.

589. 'They did not repent of their murders' (Rev.ix.21)=those who have not actually averted themselves from extinguishing the things which are of the understanding of truth, of the will of good, and of the derivative spiritual life. . . For by 'a man-hominem'-is signified the intelligence of truth, and wisdom; and by 'to kill-occidere'-is signified to extinguish spiritual life by means of the falsities of evil. That homicide, or the killing of a man, =the extinction of spiritual life. Ill.

740e. That the Jews had destroyed all the truth of the understanding, is signified by that 'he had been a murderer from the beginning, and had not stood in the Truth, because the Truth was not in him.' 'A man—homo'=the truth of intelligence; hence 'a homicide'=the destruction thereof.

[E.] 887<sup>3</sup>. 'But now murderers' (Is. i. 21)=that falsification has extinguished the understanding of truth and the perception of good.

949<sup>3</sup>. Fifth: In proportion as a man shuns murders, thus also deadly hatreds and revenges which breathe murder—necem, in the same proportion the Lord enters with mercy and love.

1012<sup>3</sup>. This, when done from enmity, from hatred, or from revenge, is murder. (See KILL, here.)

—4. The celestial spiritual sense is, Thou shalt not take away from a man the faith and love of God, and thereby his spiritual life. This is murder itself; for from this life man is man . . . From this spiritual murder is derived also moral murder; and therefore he who is in the one, is also in the other; for he who wants to take away from a man his spiritual life, is in hatred against him if he cannot take it away; for he hates the faith and love with him; thus the man himself. These three; namely, spiritual murder, which is that of the faith and love; moral murder, which is that of the reputation and honour; and natural murder, which is that of the body, follow together in a series, the one from the other, as the cause and the effect.

1013<sup>3</sup>. As all who are in Hell are in hatred against the Lord, and thence in hatred against Heaven—for they are against goods and truths—therefore Hell is the very murderer himself, or the source of murder itself. The reason why, from this, it is murder itself, is that man is man from the Lord through the reception of good and truth; and therefore to destroy good and truth, is to destroy the human itself, thus to kill the man.

1014<sup>2</sup>. (Thus) all who are in evils as to life, and thence in falsities, are murderers; for they are enemies and haters of good and truth; for evil hates good, and falsity hates truth. An evil man does not know that he is in such hatred until he becomes a Spirit. Then hatred is the delight itself of his life: and therefore from Hell . . . there continually breathes forth the delight of doing evil from hatred . . .

—e. Hence it is that the devil, by whom is meant Hell in the whole complex, is called by the Lord 'a murderer from the beginning.'

Murder. Nex.

Murder, To. Necare.

See under KILL, and MURDER—homicidium.

A. 831<sup>2</sup>. They inspire into others, whom they hate, to murder them—because they know that they cannot die—and afterwards accuse them as murderers—homicidis.

1820<sup>2</sup>. Evil Spirits who are malignant and deceitful, insinuate themselves into the loves themselves . . . and presently . . . destroy the loves, and thus try to murder the man; and this by a thousand modes . . .

2027<sup>2</sup>. For when everyone wants . . . to be served, he murders the other in his heart.

4227<sup>2</sup>. Murders of the upright they esteemed as nothing.

4793<sup>2</sup>. More than the obsessed, they would rush into murders and rapines.

5717<sup>2</sup>. They rushed into the chambers of the brain, and injected terror, together with such insanity that the one killed the other.

9331<sup>2</sup>. There are some falsities which kill.

H. 562<sup>e</sup>. When he heard the Lord mentioned . . . he blazed with the murder of Him.

D. 2899. They consulted how they should murder me, and take life completely away from me. 2922. 3584.

4493. It was disclosed that he had murdered him.

4494. He had murdered the woman by magical art.

4501. Another man who had appeared honest before all had murdered—enecavit—two men by magical art.

4530. (Sarah Hesselia) had thought to murder me if she could; (and after her death) I wanted to kill myself with a knife . . . It is now disclosed that that woman was the Spirit who was excited whenever I saw the knife, and that she had held this so fixedly in my mind, from the hatred which she had taken against me.

4740. Concerning those who enter into all the affections of man, and murder the affections. Ex.

4857. Those who want to slay all, and who breathe bloodshed, and are never touched with any mercy, and who are proud in the highest degree, lie with swine.

5457. Have afterwards contrived the murders of (these girls) in secret.

E. 650<sup>2</sup>. The Hells where the love of self reigns . . . continually breathe the murder of those who confess the Divine of the Lord; consequently, the murder of those who are in the good of love and the good of faith to the Lord from the Lord.

1012<sup>3</sup>. For enmity, hatred, and revenge, breathe murder, and will it; but they are held back . . . by the fear of the law, of resistance, and for reputation. Still, these three are endeavours after murder; and every endeavour is like an act; for it goes into act when the fear is removed. Sig.

Murmur. Murmur.

Murmur, To. Murmurare.

Murmuring, A. Murmuratio.

A. 5061. There was heard from them a sound of murmurs pretty tumultuous . . .

8125. The first temptation is described by the murmuring of the sons of Israel when they saw the army of Pharaoh.

8259. It treats of the second temptation of those of the Spiritual Church, which is described by the murmuring of the people at Marah.

8351. 'The people murmured against Moses' (Ex. xv. 24)=a feeling of grief (or pain) from the bitterness of the temptation. 'To murmur'=complaint, such as there is in temptations.

—The temptations which those of the Lord's Spiritual Church underwent after they had been delivered from infestations; and also the temptations which those who are of that Church will undergo, are described by the murmurings of the sons of Israel in the wilderness; and, as spiritual temptations are commonly carried on to despair, by 'to murmur' is signified complaint from the feeling of grief in the temptations. III.

8403. 'All the company of the sons of Israel murmured' (Ex. xvi. 2) = a feeling of grief, and complaint on account of the weight of the temptation.

8428. 'In His hearing your murmurings' (ver. 7) = that their complaints would cease. . . 'Murmurings' = a feeling of grief from the bitterness of the temptation, and the consequent complaints. 8433.

8429. 'And what are we, that ye murmur against us?' (id.) = that the complaints were against the Divine. . . 'To murmur' = complaint. 8434.

8440. 'Because He hath heard your murmurings' (ver. 9) = that He will bring aid on account of the feeling of grief in the temptation.

8445. 'I have heard the murmurings of the sons of Israel' (ver. 12) = that the complaints which are from the temptation will cease.

8554. This (fourth) temptation is signified by the murmuring of the sons of Israel because they had no water.

8569. 'The people murmured against Moses' (Ex. xvii. 3) = a greater degree of the feeling of grief.

M. 535. I heard a hostile murmur from the Lower Regions. . .

T. 72. I once heard an unwonted murmur from afar. and followed the direction of the sound. . .

D. 1317. The tumult of such murmurs, or the sound of confused murmurs, was of a threefold kind. Des.

4601. When Sirens arrive, they continually murmur something. . .

D. Min. 4675. They drove them away by concentrating their murmurs, and thus their forces, into them.

E. 324<sup>6</sup>. The murmuring (of Korah, etc.) against Moses and Aaron, signified the profanation of the good of celestial love. . . For to murmur, that is, to rebel against the Lord, and to perform holy things, is profanation.

Murrhine. Murrhinus.

A. 5056. In the light of Heaven he was of a black colour; but he himself said that he was not of a black, but of a murrhine colour. 8847. (Compare D. 874<sup>6</sup>).

Muscle. Musculus.

Muscular. Muscularis.

See under FIBRE.

A. 444<sup>6</sup>. From the operation of the soul into the muscles. . . it might have been evident to him that the spirit is organic. . .

2988<sup>6</sup>. All the actions which are produced by the muscles (are in correspondence with) the things which the man thinks and wills.

4325. The things which surround the body, as the muscles and the skin, and also the organs of the senses, for the most part receive fibres from the cerebrum. . . Hence man has motion according to his will.

4799. That speech in general can be expressed by the lips, is evident to me from the manifold series of muscular fibres folded together among each other which are in the lips. If these were unfolded, and were thus to act. . . freely, many variations could be presented there which are unknown to those with whom these muscular fibres lie pressed together.

5173<sup>3</sup>. (So with) the motion of the muscles, whence is action: unless there was in it an endeavour from the man's thought and will, it would cease in a moment. . .

7850. The corresponding Spiritual or Significant is conjoined with that to which it corresponds. . . as is the will. . . with the muscular fibres, through which is action.

9394<sup>5</sup>. An idea of such series can be formed from the muscular series and bundles in the human body. Each bundle there consists of a number of motor fibres; and each motor fibre, of blood-vessels and nervous fibres; and also each muscular bundle, which in a general word is called a muscle, is encompassed with its tunic, by which it is distinguished from other muscles; in like manner the interior fascicles which are called motor fibres. But still all the muscles and the motor fibres in them which are in the universal body are so ordained that they concur to every action according to the good-pleasure of the will; and this in an incomprehensible manner. The like is the case with the scientifics of the memory. . .

9634<sup>6</sup>. The boards of the habitation correspond to the muscular or fleshy part in man, which supports the surrounding membranes and skins. By 'flesh' also is signified good.

W. 190. Every muscle in the human body consists of least fibres; and these compounded fascicularly present the greater fibres, which are called motor; and, from bundles of these, comes forth the composite which is called a muscle. . . From this is evident the nature of discrete degrees. . .

192. That these degrees are homogeneous. . . is evident; (for) the motor fibres of the muscles, least, greater, and greatest, are homogeneous. . .

197. An application (of this principle) can be made to. . . the muscles, nerves, etc. . . In all these the first thing is singly and alone regnant in the subsequent things. . .

207. In every ultimate there are discrete degrees in simultaneous order. The motor fibres in every muscle. . . are in such order. Inmost in them are the most simple things which are the most perfect; the outermost is the composite of these.

260. As if the membrane investing the motor fibres of a muscle were not to react against the forces of these fibres in actions: not only would action cease, but all the interior tissues would also be resolved.

T. 60<sup>2</sup>. For example: the sheath of every muscle enters into its several motor fibres, and clothes them from itself.

147. That there is a doubleness and triplicity in every created thing, is evident from these things in the human body . . . Every muscle consists of fascicles of fibres, and these of motor fibres.

[T.] 353<sup>e</sup>. The power of faith from the plurality of Truths . . . may be compared to the muscles with which the whole body is covered round, and which, although numerous and far apart, still make one power in actions.

478<sup>2</sup>. In like manner all the muscles—without such an equilibrium of these, all action and reaction would cease . . .

D. 1060. The muscular textures are to be referred to the class of spiritual things.

1362. That there are Spirits who answer to all and each of the muscles in man ; as well as Angels. Gen.art.

2667. A Spirit who . . . adhered to the hinder part of the ear, where are the elevator muscles of the ear-lap . . .

2807. All the organic membranes of the viscera, muscles, etc., are generals, in which and with which particulars come forth distinctly.

2949<sup>e</sup>. This was still further confirmed by the muscles, while the man is acting from the will. If he knows which muscles are acting, and which fibres, and directs his mind into the muscle and fibre, so as to command it . . . then the muscle can do nothing . . .

3035. An idea of the Societies in the World of Spirits can be procured from the consociations of the muscles in man, and their communications through the fibres and other indefinitely numerous connections, in that they inflow according to the affinities into every simplest action ; and in that the respiration of the lungs is therefore changed into such, because it is the lungs which operate in general into the system of the muscles.

3399<sup>e</sup>. For ideas are movements and varieties of respirations ; as is evident from the operation of the will into the muscles through the pulmonic applications.

3565. Nor is it known that the Cogitative and Voluntary corresponds to the muscles.

3891. He was asked how he understands this : that the thought which is spiritual moves the muscles of the whole face . . . and that the will moves the muscles of the whole body.

4010. When I wanted to know how the actions of the muscles are circumstanced representatively to the ideas of the thoughts . . . I laboured for many years to know the applications of the lungs to each thing, then those of the muscles, of the motor fibres, and of the nervous fibres . . . and still the action does not come forth according to these things . . . Therefore it is better merely to know that the will inflows.

4226. See MUSIC, here.

D. Wis. ii<sup>3</sup>. The motory organs of the whole body, which are called the muscles . . .

— In like manner the muscles : these do not move of themselves ; but the will together with the understanding moves them . . .

vi<sup>7</sup>. For the lungs through their respiration act into the ribs and the diaphragm ; and, through these, by means of the ligaments and the peritoneum . . . into all the muscles of the body ; and not only involve them, but also penetrate within . . . so that there is not the smallest thing . . . in a muscle, from its surface to its inmost, which does not derive something from the ligaments, and consequently from the respiration.

x.4. The will is the prime agent in producing motions ; and the understanding . . . in presenting the senses . . . This appears from the co-operation of the heart and the lungs. That [in motions] the heart is the prime agent, and the lungs the secondary one, is evident from the muscles, in that the arteries act there, and the little tunics from the ligaments react. (Continued under LUNGS, here.)

Museum. Musaeum. M.207<sup>6</sup>.

Music. Musica, Musice.

Musical. Musicus, Musicalis.

Musician: Musicus.

See INSTRUMENT ; and under DRUM, FLUTE, HARMONY, HARP, ORGAN, SINGING, TRUMPET, etc.

A. 418. The like instruments represented nothing else in the worship of the representative Church, and in like manner the singing : hence there were so many singers and musicians . . .

8337<sup>2</sup>. In Divine worship of yore many kinds of musical instruments were employed, but with much distinction. In general, by the wind instruments affections of good were expressed, and by the stringed ones affections of truth ; and this from the correspondence of each sound with the affections. It is known that by some kinds of musical instruments are expressed these natural affections, and by some, those ; and that when an accordant Harmonic sounds with them, they actually move those affections. Those who are skilled musicians —musices—know these things, and also make use of these [instruments] consistently [therewith]. The cause of this thing comes forth from the nature of sound itself, and its accordance with the affections. Man first learned this not from science and art, but from hearing and its exquisite sense ; from which it follows that it does not come from an origin in the natural world, but from an origin in the Spiritual World ; and thus from the correspondence of the things which flow from order in the natural world with things in the Spiritual World. The Harmonic of sounds and its varieties corresponds to states of joy and gladness in the Spiritual World, and the states of joy and gladness there come forth from the affections, which in that World are affections of good and truth. Hence it may now be evident that musical instruments correspond to the delights and pleasantnesses of spiritual and celestial affections ; and that some instruments correspond to the latter, and some to the former affections. (Continued under DRUM.)

H. 241<sup>e</sup>. As the affections put themselves forth especially by means of sounds, therefore in the discourse of man, when great things are treated of, as Heaven, and God, those words are loved in which are U and O. Musical sounds also uplift themselves thither when like things are being expressed. It is otherwise when things not great are being treated of. Hence it is that the musical art is skilled to express various kinds of affections.

R. 792. 'The voice,' or sound 'of harpers and musicians' (Rev. xviii. 22) has relation to spiritual affections . . . Hence it is that (these words)=the affection of spiritual truth and good. (The statement completed under INSTRUMENT.)

M. 6<sup>3</sup>. There are (in Heaven) music and singing-musicalia et cantica—in the greatest perfection. Such things are for joys to them, but not for happiness; the latter must be in the joys . . . and this happiness is possessed by everyone from use in his own function. Ex.

17. There are (in this Heaven) days of festivity appointed by the Prince, in order that the lower minds may be relaxed . . . On these days there are musical harmonies and singing in the public places . . . (where) there are raised orchestras surrounded with railings garlanded with vines, from which hang clusters of grapes, within which, in three rows, one above another, sit the musicians, with instruments of string, and with instruments of sound, of high pitch and of low pitch, of vigorous tone and of soft tone; and at the sides there are male and female singers, and they delight the citizens with most pleasant jubulations and songs, both mingled and alone, the particular kind of which is varied at intervals. These things continue there on those days of festivity from morning to noon, and after this to the evening. T. 745.

256. That from commonness . . . even joys become matters of indifference . . . is evident from . . . musical harmonies . . . which in themselves are sweetnesses, because they are vivifications.

T. 353<sup>2</sup>. See MELODY, here.

D. 904. Therefore the music of the old (or ancient) Church—veteris Ecclesiac . . . is so delightful. (See HARMONY, here.)

1996. (The effect of music heard in this world upon Spirits. See INSTRUMENT, here.) 2090.

2003. In the derivative natural things there exists nothing without a general sphere, which rules the singulars . . . thus neither the musical things, unless there is a co-sounding body . . . See INSTRUMENT at 2806, 2807.

2112. In the life of the body, by the hearing of instrumental music, the evil also, in a certain state, can be as it were carried outside of themselves, and can feel a sweetness as it were heavenly.

4226. So with those who practise things musical-musicalia. All things of the external body are thus imbued, and the muscles are taught, marvellously . . .

5113. The reason why (when a man is speaking with the celestial Angels he is bent from words in which there are E and I to those in which there are A, O, and U) is from no other source than the affection of love, which is grandisonant, as may also be evident from things harmonic and musical. When these are expressing the higher things of love, as love to God, then also will there be what is grandisonant; and also when in relation to God they mark anything devout, there is as it were the bass. But when other things are treated of,

they sound differently; so that they are in accordance, relatively, with the discantus.

6027. 12. Music was also heard (at the marriage of the Empress of Russia) accompanying the affections of the children who had been there.

E. 326. Hence it is evident that the reason the Harmonic of singing, and also the musical art, can express various kinds of affections, and can be applied to things—rebus, is from the Spiritual World; and not from the natural as is believed. 700<sup>28</sup>.

855<sup>e</sup>. All who are in the Spiritual Kingdom speak from thought which is of the understanding . . . and such speech, when it falls down from Heaven . . . is heard either as a voice, or as harmonious music—harmonicum musicum.

1185. For musical sounds express affections, and produce them with joy.

De Verbo 3<sup>11</sup>. The modulations of singing and music are heard (there) as in the world.

D. Wis. x. 5. The sounds which derive little from the understanding are those of singing and of music . . . The correspondence of the variations of sound, such as are those of singing and music—musices, is with the variations of the affections, which are from the love of the will in the understanding.

C. 189. Such (diversions of charity are) various musical harmonies and singing, which affect the lower mind according to the correspondences with the affections.

Muslin. Sindon.

E. 951. Angels wise from Divine truth appear in white garments of muslin, byssus, or flax; because muslin, byssus, and flax correspond to the truths in which they are.

Must. Mustum.

A. 1071<sup>3</sup>. 'As the must is found in the cluster . . . ' (Is. lxxv. 8); 'the cluster'=charity; 'the must'=the goods and derivative truths of charity.

—<sup>4</sup>. Occurs. —<sup>6</sup>. 1072<sup>4</sup>. 2702<sup>7</sup>.

2466<sup>10</sup>. 'Scortation, and wine, and must hath possessed the heart' (Hos. iv. 11). . . 'Wine'=falsity; 'must'=the derivative evil.

3580. 'Multitude of corn and must' (Gen. xxvii. 28)=the derivative natural good, and the derivative natural truth. . . 'Must'=truth; which, when predicated of the Natural,=natural truth; and then . . . 'wine' is predicated of the Rational.

—<sup>2</sup>. That 'corn and must'=these things. 111.

—<sup>3</sup>. 'A drought upon the must' (Hag. i. 11)=a defect of truth.

—<sup>4</sup>. 'A land of corn and of must' (Deut. xxxiii. 28)=the good and truth of the Church.

—<sup>5</sup>. 'The must shall mourn' (Is. xxiv. 7)=that truth will cease.

—<sup>6</sup>. 'Corn and must' (Jer. xxxi. 12)=good and the derivative truth.

3597. 'With corn and must have I sustained him' (Gen. xxvii. 37)=the good and truth thereof.

3941<sup>4</sup>. 'The must' (Joel i. 10)=the truth of the Church.

[A.] 5117<sup>2</sup>. 'The must in the cluster' (Is.lxv.8)=truth from good in the Natural.

—<sup>7</sup>. The derivative goods of love and of charity are signified by that 'the mountains shall drop must, and the hills shall flow away' (Amos ix.13).

6377<sup>4</sup>. The good of faith is 'the wine-press,' 'the must,' and 'the libation of wine' (Hos.ix.2,4).

8409. 'They shall be inebriated with their blood as with must' (Is.xlix.26).

9223<sup>2</sup>. The first-fruits of the vintage were those of wine, must, and oil. —<sup>e</sup>, Ex.

9272<sup>2</sup>. 'To tread the must, but not to drink the wine' (Micah vi.15)=to be instructed concerning the truths which are from good, but still not to appropriate them to one's self. 9277<sup>2</sup>.

9277<sup>4</sup>. 'The vine said unto them, Shall I make to cease my must, gladdening God and men' (Judg.ix.13).

9331<sup>2</sup>. 'Howl, all ye drinkers of wine, on account of the must which is cut off from your mouth' (Joel i.5). R.316<sup>2</sup>.

9960<sup>4</sup>. It is said that He would take his corn, his must, his wool, and his flax, with which he had covered his nakedness (Hos.ii.9), because by 'corn' is signified the interior good of the Spiritual Church; by 'the must,' its interior truth; by 'the wool,' its exterior good; and by 'the flax,' its exterior truth.

10137<sup>4</sup>. By 'must' is signified all the truth of the Church. Ref.

10402<sup>7</sup>. That 'must'=the derivative truth. Ref.

P. 25<sup>e</sup>. Like ferments put into meals and musts, by means of which the heterogeneous things are separated, and the homogeneous ones are conjoined . . .

R. 316<sup>4</sup>. Holy truth is signified by 'must,' and 'wine,' in other places also in the Word. III.

—<sup>5</sup>. 'Scortation'=the falsification of truth; in like manner, here (Hos.iv.11) 'wine,' and 'must.'

651. 'A wine-press'=exploration, because in wine-presses the must is expressed from the clusters, and the oil from the olives; and from the expressed must and oil is perceived of what quality the clusters and olives had been.

653. For by 'the blood out of the wine-press' is meant the must and wine from the trodden clusters; and by the must and wine like things are signified.

M. 8. Being gladdened with the most delicate musts of grapes.

—<sup>2</sup>. Others were expressing the must from grapes, cherries, and berries into cups, and drinking jovially.

14<sup>2</sup>. Musta vinorum concreta.

272. As the dregs precipitate themselves to the bottom when the must of wine is clarified.

I. 12<sup>3</sup>. The union of spiritual things with natural ones, and the derivative appearance of life in material ones, may be compared to noble wine in a clean sponge, and to the saccharine must in the grape . . .

T. 151<sup>e</sup>. After he has poured libations of must to demons.

324<sup>2</sup>. Like those who mix poison with musts . . .

404<sup>2</sup>. (The love of the world) is like the must of unfermented wine, which tastes sweet, but infests the belly.

502<sup>2</sup>. Where all the hills would flow with generous musts.

D. 2475. (Butterflies) eat the must of flowers.

E. 141<sup>12</sup>. 'Wine'=interior falsity; 'must' (Hos.iv.11)=exterior falsity.

304<sup>28</sup>. Occurs. 340<sup>14</sup>. 638<sup>20</sup>.

323<sup>2</sup>. That spiritual good would cease, is signified by that 'the must shall mourn' . . . For by 'must' is signified spiritual good.

365<sup>13</sup>. The multiplication of good and truth is meant by 'Their corn and must are multiplied' (Ps.iv.7). 'Corn'=good; and 'must,' truth. . .

374<sup>3</sup>. 'Wheat'=the good of the natural man; 'must' (Jer.xxxi.12), its truth.

—<sup>4</sup>. By 'corn' is meant the good of every kind in the external man; by 'must' (Joel i.10), the truth also there.

375<sup>28</sup>. By 'must and oil' (Jer.xxxi.12) are signified truth and good.

—<sup>29</sup>. By 'must and oil' (Joel ii.24) are signified the truth and good of the Church. 543<sup>9</sup>.

—<sup>30</sup>. 'Must' (Joel i.10)=truth; and 'oil,' good.

—<sup>32</sup>. 'Must' (Hos.ii.22)=truth; and 'oil,' good.

376<sup>5</sup>. By 'the mountains shall drop must,' or wine (Joel iii.18) is meant that from the good of love to the Lord is all genuine truth. 405<sup>7</sup>. —<sup>19</sup>. 433<sup>13</sup>. 483<sup>5</sup>.

—<sup>8</sup>. 'Corn and must' (Gen.xvii.28,37)=all the good and truth of the Church.

—<sup>9</sup>. By 'the corn, must, and oil' which they should gather (Deut.xi.14) are signified all the good and truth of the external and internal man.

—<sup>10</sup>. By 'to live in a land of corn and must' (Deut. xxxiii.28) is signified [to live] in all the good and truth of the Church.

—<sup>12</sup>. By 'wheat, must, and oil' (Jer.xxxi.12) are signified goods and truths of every kind.

— By 'the must which the sons of the stranger shall not drink' (Is.lxii.8) is signified in general the truth of the Church, which shall no longer be consumed by . . . falsities.

—<sup>17</sup>. That they will not profit by the hearing of these things, is signified by . . . 'the must shall lie to them' (Hos.ix.2).

—<sup>18</sup>. By 'wine,' and 'must' (Joel i.5) is meant the truth of the Church. 543<sup>9</sup>.

—<sup>20</sup>. By 'the must which shall mourn' and by 'the vine which shall languish' (Is.xxiv.7) is signified all the truth of the Church, (and) its deprivation. 618<sup>4</sup>.

—<sup>28</sup>. The derivative falsity is signified by 'must' (Hos.iv.11).

618<sup>4</sup>. 'Must' (Is.xxiv.7)=the truth of the Word; and 'the vine,' the truth of doctrine of the Church.

630<sup>13</sup>. By 'they shall gather corn and must' (Is.lxii.9) is signified instruction in the goods and truths of doctrine and of the Church.

644<sup>6</sup>. The spiritual and celestial good and truth which the man of the Church has thence, are meant by 'the corn, must, and oil' which they will gather (Deut.xi.14).

—<sup>15</sup>. That thence they have the truth and good of love to the Lord, is signified by that 'the wine-presses shall overflow with must and oil' (Joel ii. 24). (= that from the good of charity they have truth and its delight. 922<sup>6</sup>.)

695<sup>23</sup>. 'The must shall lie to her' = that neither shall there be any truth of good; for 'must,' like 'wine' = truth from the good of charity and of love.

710<sup>23</sup>. By 'corn and must' (Dent. vii. 13) are signified all the good and truth in the natural man.

863<sup>15</sup>. 'Corn makes the youths grow up, and must the virgins' (Zech. ix. 17) = that the understanding of truth, and the affection of truth, are formed through good and through truth from the Lord.

Mustard. Sinapis.

A. 55<sup>3</sup>. 'A grain of mustard' (Matt. xiii. 31) = the good of man before he is spiritual; which is 'the least of all seeds,' because he supposes that he does what is good of himself. That which is from self is nothing but evil; but, as he is in a state of regeneration, there is something of good, but it is the least of all. At last, as faith is being conjoined with love, it becomes greater, and a vegetable. Finally, when it has been conjoined, it becomes a tree; and then 'the birds of the heavens'—which, here, are truths, or intellectual things—'make their nests in its branches,' which are scientifics.

1941<sup>e</sup>. For all knowledge, intelligence, and wisdom, and their delights . . . grow thus to eternity, from the smallest seed; as the Lord teaches concerning the grain of mustard.

E. 1100<sup>8</sup>. By 'the tree' from the grain of mustard, is signified the man of the Church, and also the Church, commencing from a very little spiritual good through truth; for if only a very little spiritual good takes root with a man, it grows like a seed in good ground . . . 'The birds of heaven, which build their nests in its branches' = the Knowledges of truth, and the derivative thoughts.

D. Love xviii<sup>e</sup>. If a man by combat against evils as sins has procured for himself in the world anything spiritual, although it be a very little, he is saved; and his uses afterwards grow like 'the grain of mustard, into a tree.

Mutilate. Mutilare.

Mutilated. Mutilus.

A. 7337. That the mutilated were healed, signified that such as are signified by . . . the mutilated would receive the Gospel, and be spiritually healed; and this by the Advent of the Lord into the world.

T. 309. 'Thou shalt not kill,' in the natural sense, means . . . also not to mutilate a man's body.

D. 3976. (Spirits who speak otherwise than they think) are at once cast out, and mutilated.

E. 1085<sup>3</sup>. Hence . . . from its first revelation, the Word as to the sense of the letter has not been mutilated . . .

Mutilated. Decurtatus. Ad. 3/5938. 6003.

Mutter. See under GAPE—hiscere, and WHISPER—susurrare.

Mutter. Mussitare.

Muttering. Mussitatio.

A. 4657. Spirits have spoken with me, by muttering . . . (which) is not becoming in the other life, because it manifests that they have been whisperers. (Continued under WHISPER.) D. 1149.

R. 449<sup>3</sup>. They muttered more things, which I did not hear.

462<sup>3</sup>. See ENCHANT, here. —<sup>5</sup>. 655<sup>5</sup>. E. 590<sup>2</sup>.

—<sup>5</sup>. 'Muttering.' Ill.

655<sup>4</sup>. Let us send some one skilled in muttering, who can make black white . . .

T. 72<sup>2</sup>. (These simple and upright Spirits) stood amazed, muttering together . . .

D. 6110<sup>25</sup>. So that he dare not mutter against her will.

Mutter. Mutare. P. 231<sup>4</sup>.

Mutual. Mutuos.

Mutually. Mutuo.

See BORROW, LEND, and under CONJOIN.

A. 2731. Mutuo et vicissim. 3945, etc.

2732<sup>e</sup>. Mutually averse to each other.

4725. Their mutual thoughts. Sig. and Ex.

8665. A mutual Divine celestial state. Sig. and Ex.

10555. Mutual perception. Sig. and Ex.

J. 9<sup>e</sup>. Mutual and reciprocal conjunction.

Life 103. As this Reciprocal . . . and derivative Mutual is with man from the Lord . . . 105.

T. 371<sup>4</sup>. There are two reciprocations through which conjunction is effected; the one is alternate, and the other is mutual. Ex.

Mutual Love. Amor mutuus.

A. 537. Not knowing that Heaven is mutual love; and that heavenly joy is the joy thence derived. 547<sup>e</sup>. 2130<sup>4</sup>.

553. They who are in mutual love in Heaven are continually advancing to the spring-time of their adolescence . . . with continual increments to eternity, according to the progresses and degrees of mutual love, charity, and faith. (Continued under CHARITY.)

684. The Societies are distinct from one another according to the differences of mutual love and of faith in the Lord. Ex.

996<sup>2</sup>. In which Heaven (the Third), as . . . there is nothing but mutual love, the happiness is ineffable.

1013<sup>4</sup>. In Heaven, where from mutual love all the Angels are as it were a one.

— Heaven consists of as many likenesses of the Lord as there are Angels, and this solely through mutual love, in that the one loves the other more than himself.

1055<sup>e</sup>. But when he can . . . receive mutual love, there is 'the covenant' . . .

1159<sup>2</sup>. For all things which are of mutual love are circumstanced in the Heavens as are relationships . . .

[A.] 1285<sup>2</sup>. Although (in Heaven) the influx is only one, still all things obey and follow as a one; and this through the mutual love in which they are . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. The doctrine is one when all have mutual love or charity. (Continued under CHARITY.)

1316<sup>e</sup>. Hence the heavenly Societies are as a one, and this solely through mutual love from the Lord.

1388<sup>e</sup>. This communicative perception has its beginning in this: that the Lord wills . . . that all be affected from mutual love, and thus be happy.

1398. They cannot endure the sphere of mutual love. 2049<sup>f</sup>. 2132.

1506<sup>e</sup>. The love of self . . . is contrary to mutual love, which is the life of Heaven.

1521. The Angels (are) in the highest happiness from mutual love.

1594<sup>f</sup>. Mutual love . . . consists in this: that the man not only says of himself, but acknowledges and believes, that he is most unworthy; and that he is something vile and filthy, which the Lord from infinite mercy continually withdraws . . . from Hell . . . In proportion as he (does this) he recedes from the love of self . . . and in the same proportion he receives heavenly love, that is, mutual love; which is, that he wants to serve all. These are they who are meant by 'the least' . . .

—<sup>5</sup>. (Thus) that which principally unites the external man to the internal is mutual love, which [love] is never possible until the love of self recedes, for they are quite contrary. The internal man is nothing else than mutual love. Ex.

—<sup>6</sup>. But he who is in mutual love acknowledges and believes that everything good and true . . . is the Lord's; and his ability to love another as himself, and, if he is like the Angels, more than himself, he believes to be the Lord's gift; from which gift and its happiness he recedes, in proportion as he recedes from the acknowledgment that it is the Lord's.

1645. In everything of angelic speech there is interior delight . . . from the good of mutual love . . . 1876<sup>e</sup>.

1776. For infant boys and girls are in a state of mutual love . . . thus their most tender vessels are almost heavenly, and are simply faculties for receiving . . .

1799. All in the Lord's Kingdom are heirs; for they live from the Lord's life, which is the life of mutual love . . .

1802<sup>f</sup>. They are heirs for the first time . . . when they are in the affection of good; that is, in mutual love; into which they are introduced through Knowledges of good and truth, and their affections . . . For mutual love is the veriest Vital which they receive from the Lord's Essence as from their Father.

1803<sup>e</sup>. That the Lord's Kingdom is mutual love. Refs.

2009<sup>e</sup>. There is no salvation . . . in any other doctrine . . . than mutual love, which is the true doctrine of faith . . .

2027. Thus they destroy that which is heavenly, namely, mutual love, which is the support-firmamen- tum-of Heaven; for Heaven is in it; and in it all its consociation and unanimity subsist and consist.

2039. There are three kinds of loves which constitute the celestial things of the Lord's Kingdom: conjugal love, love towards infants, and the love of society or mutual love.

2057. The love of self is diametrically opposite to mutual love, in which Heaven consists. Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. Mutual love in Heaven consists in this: that they love the neighbour more than themselves. Hence the whole Heaven represents as it were one man; for all are thus consociated through mutual love from the Lord. Des.

2131. Until they come to that Society with which they are in accordance according to the life of mutual love which they have . . .

2273. All of which things are contrary to mutual love . . .

2289<sup>e</sup>. For all (the infants there) are instructed in . . . the goods of mutual love.

2309<sup>e</sup>. They thus extinguish in (their children) all the mutual love . . . which infants have from the Lord . . . and thus . . . exclude them from Heaven, where there is nothing but mutual love.

2733<sup>2</sup>. From conjugal love, as from a parent, is derived mutual love, which is the support-firmamentum-of Heaven.

2737. Those who live in conjugal love . . . are in mutual love more than others; for this love comes thence as a stream from its fountain.

2738. Mutual love, such as there is in Heaven, is not like conjugal love. The latter consists in wanting to be in the life of the other as a one; but the former in willing better for another than for one's self; such as is the love of parents towards their children; and such as is the love of those who are affected with doing good [to others], not for their own sake, but because this is a joy to them. Such angelic love is derived from conjugal love; and is born from it as an infant from its parent; and therefore also it exists with parents towards their children. This love is preserved by the Lord with parents, even if they are not in conjugal love, in order that the human race may not perish.

3183. When man is first born, he is introduced into a state of innocence . . . then into a state of the affection of celestial good, that is, of love towards his parents . . . and afterwards into a state of the affection of spiritual good, or of mutual love, that is, of charity towards his mates-consimiles . . . Sig.

3539<sup>5</sup>. (Thus) love to the Lord is the life of Heaven; and mutual love is the soul from this life . . .

3832. The feasts which were made in old times . . . signified initiation into mutual love, which is of charity . . . 5161<sup>2</sup>.

3875<sup>5</sup>. As 'to adhere,' from which Levi was named, = spiritual love, which is the same as mutual love, the same word means to lend-mutuo dare-and to receive, (by which) was represented mutual love. . . Mutual love differs from friendship in this: that mutual love regards the good which is with a man; and, as it is towards good, it is towards him who is in good ; whereas friendship regards the man ; and it also becomes mutual love when it regards the man from good, or for the sake of good. (Otherwise) friendship is not mutual love, but approaches the love of self ; and, in proportion as it does this, it is opposite to mutual love. In itself, mutual love is nothing else than charity towards the neighbour ; for by 'the neighbour' is signified good . . . It is this mutual love, or charity towards the neighbour, which is meant by spiritual love, and is what is signified by 'Levi.'

3956. ('Issachar') in the external sense, = mutual love ; as may be evident from the signification of 'reward.' Ex. 4606<sup>2</sup>.

— For the affection of charity, and mutual love, are the same thing. Refs.

—<sup>o</sup>. (Before this) there cannot come forth any conjunction of good and truth ; thus neither mutual love. Sig.

3957. As by 'Issachar' is signified 'reward,' and 'reward,' in the external sense, is mutual love . . . we may state that very few at this day . . . know that 'reward' is this, because they do not know what mutual love is . . .

—<sup>7</sup>. This plane is acquired by charity towards the neighbour, that is, by mutual love. This plane is what is called conscience.

4286<sup>2</sup>. The Angels (of the Second Heaven) are called spiritual, because they are in charity towards the neighbour, that is, in mutual love, which is such that the one loves the other more than himself . . . (The Angels of the First Heaven) are also in mutual love ; but they do not love others more than themselves, but as themselves . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. The spiritual Angels are called the celestial spiritual, being styled celestial from mutual love, and spiritual from the derivative intelligence. Rep.

4468<sup>e</sup>. For he says in his heart, If they live in innocence and mutual love . . .

4599<sup>4</sup>. The derivative (of the Celestial Kingdom), which is mutual love ; and which, in the spiritual sense, is called charity towards the neighbour, is described by 'the hill of the daughter of Zion.'

5002. As Heaven makes . . . a reciprocal towards the Lord by reception, and by mutual love, it is called 'a marriage.'

5161<sup>2</sup>. For it is mutual love which conjoins, and causes it not to be apperceived as servitude . . .

5365<sup>4</sup>. Scarcely anyone (of the learned) has said that (the highest good) is the delight . . . and happiness which is perceived from mutual love without an end for the sake of self and the world ; and that it makes Heaven itself . . .

5405. (Thus) the breaking of bread was significative of mutual love.

6377<sup>6</sup>. That 'wine' = the good of mutual love and of faith, is evident from Rev. vi. 6.

6388. By 'Issachar,' here, are meant those who are in a certain form and appearance of mutual love ; that is, of charity towards the neighbour, and who want to be recompensed on account of the goods which they do ; and thus not only defile genuine mutual love or charity, but also pervert it ; for they who are in this genuine love are in their delight and blessedness when they are doing good to the neighbour ; for they long for nothing in preference. It is this delight and blessedness which are meant by 'reward' in the Word . . .

6435. 'To the desire of the hills of an age' = to celestial mutual love. . . That the Spiritual Church will come to this love, is signified by (these words).

— What is meant by the mutual love which the man of the Spiritual Church, who is represented by 'Joseph,' has enough to do to arrive at. Ex. . . The external of the Celestial Kingdom is the good of mutual love . . . and, instead of the truth of faith, they have the good of mutual love. But the internal of the Spiritual Kingdom is the good of charity towards the neighbour . . . (Thus) the external of the Celestial Kingdom coincides with the internal of the Spiritual Kingdom by the medium which is called the Celestial of the Spiritual . . . But the good of mutual love is more interior than the good of charity towards the neighbour, because the former is from the Rational, but the latter from the Natural. But, although the good of mutual love, which is the external of the Celestial Church, is more interior ; and the good of charity towards the neighbour is more exterior, nevertheless the Lord conjoins these goods by a medium . . . and thus He conjoins those two Kingdoms.

—<sup>3</sup>. In order that a distinction may be made between the external good of the Celestial Church, and the internal good of the Spiritual Church, we may in what follows call the former good the good of mutual love ; and the latter, the good of charity towards the neighbour ; which difference has not been observed in what precedes.

—<sup>6</sup>. 'A hill' = the good of mutual love. Ill.

8734<sup>2</sup>. What is spiritual conjunction, which is charity or mutual love . . .

9468. 'Scarlet double dyed' = mutual love . . . (for) celestial truth is the same as the good of mutual love . . . The external in the Celestial Kingdom is the good of mutual love ; and this is the good which is signified by 'scarlet double-dyed.' Ex. and Ill. —<sup>2</sup>.

—<sup>5</sup>. 'To be educated upon scarlet' = to be instructed from infancy in the good of mutual love from the Word.

9470. Good from the good of mutual love. Sig. and Ex.

9473. 'Oil for the luminary' = the internal good which is in mutual love and in charity. . . 'The luminary' = mutual love and charity. The reason 'the luminary' = mutual love, is from the flame, by which is signified this love ; and that it = charity, is from the heat and derivative light.

—<sup>2</sup>. What the internal good which is in mutual love, and in charity, is. Ex.

—<sup>3</sup>. The internal good in the good of charity is the good of mutual love, which is external celestial good ; but the internal good in the good of mutual love is the good of love to the Lord, which is also the good of innocence, and which is internal celestial good . . .

[A.] 9594<sup>2</sup>. The third degree (of life with man) is opened according to the good of mutual love, and the good of love to the Lord.

9613. The reason (the Angels are led by the Lord as one Angel) is that among them all, is mutual love from the love of the Lord. Ex.

—<sup>c</sup>. The singular bonds (in the Heavens) are . . . those of mutual love, or of charity towards the neighbour.

9741<sup>4</sup>. In that Ultimate Heaven which is represented by the interior court, is the good of mutual love. They who are in the good of mutual love are in the affection of good for the sake of good . . .

—<sup>s</sup>. 'The court within the temple' = the good of mutual love.

9828<sup>2</sup>. As the Lord is in the good of mutual love, and in the good of charity towards the neighbour . . . by regarding their companions from this love, they are turned to the Lord.

9912. 'Hyacinthine' = the celestial love of truth, which is the good of mutual love; and the good of mutual love is the external good of the Celestial Kingdom . . . It is this good which inflows into the internal good of the Spiritual Kingdom . . . from it comes forth its good, which is the good of charity towards the neighbour. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>c</sup>. The good of mutual love is the external good of innocence; and, unless the good of charity has in it the good of innocence, it is not the good of charity; consequently, unless it has in it the good of mutual love. Hence it is that the robe was all of hyacinthine; for 'hyacinthine' = the good of mutual love; or, what is the same, the external good of innocence; and 'the robe' = Divine truth in an internal form in the Spiritual Kingdom, which is the same as the good of charity.

9933<sup>2</sup>. The external in the Inmost Heaven is the good of mutual love, which is that of the love of good for the sake of good; this good it is which is meant by the truth of celestial love, and which is signified by 'the fillet—filum—of hyacinthine.'

9993<sup>2</sup>. Each Kingdom is tripartite . . . The middle (of the Celestial Kingdom) is the good of mutual love, which is the good proceeding from (the good of love to the Lord); and the external is the delight proceeding from the good of mutual love. The two former (parts of the Celestial Kingdom) are in their internal man . . . and the third is in their external man. These three are represented by 'the bread of unleavened things,' 'the cakes of unleavened things mixed with oil,' and 'the wafers of unleavened things anointed with oil' . . .

H. 213<sup>o</sup>. But in the Heavens there is no government except that of mutual love; (which) is celestial government.

R. 353. 'From the tribe of Asher were sealed twelve thousand' = mutual love, which is the love of doing the good of use to the community . . . with those who will be of the Lord's New Heaven and New Church. . . By 'Asher' is here signified the love of doing uses, which is with those who are in the Lord's Celestial Kingdom, and is there called mutual love. This love descends proximately from love to the Lord; because the Lord's love is to do uses to the community . . . and He does them through men who are in love to Him.

M. 270<sup>5</sup>. Love truly conjugal dwells in the highest region (of the mind) in the midst of mutual love, in the chamber of the will . . .

D. 2520. That mutual love is that in which is all happiness, and that Heaven consists in mutual love . . . may be evident from the things in nature. Ex.

3137<sup>o</sup>. They suppose they love each other mutually, but . . .

3530. That there is mutual love in Heaven, so that they love the neighbour more than themselves. Ex.

4206<sup>e</sup>. (This) is a universal law; as also that mutual love recompenses itself . . .

4229. Conjugal love is the fundamental of all mutual love. Mutual love is to will to the other better than to self; but the conjunction of conjugal love is closer . . .

4350<sup>e</sup>. (Conjugal love) also receives mutual love towards the neighbour; for it follows from genuine conjugal love, as from a kind of fountain.

4406. When mutual love . . . or angelic ideas about mutual love, fall down into the World of Spirits . . . they are turned into a filthy adulterine sphere . . . The reason is that the mutual love of Heaven is founded upon conjugal love; that is, is derived from it.

4435. Concerning mutual love, that it is the source of all happiness; and that mutual love is from conjugal. Ex. 4436.

D. Min. 4607. Mutual love consists in willing better to the other than to self; so that it wills to give its goods to the other.

E. 638<sup>2</sup>. The good in the Celestial Kingdom is the good of love to the Lord; and the truth of this good is called the good of love towards a brother and companion.

Myriad. Myrias.

A. 2367. There are myriads of myriads [of things] in each little affection, and in each idea . . .

2575<sup>3</sup>. 'A myriad' (Ps. xci. 7) = things innumerable; (here) all who are the Lord's enemies.

— Here, also (Ps. cxliv. 13) . . . 'ten thousand,' or a myriad, = things innumerable.

3186<sup>e</sup>. By 'a thousand' is signified much, also what is infinite; and still more by 'a myriad;' and still more yet by 'a thousand myriads.' III.

3405<sup>2</sup>. For myriads, nay myriads of myriads of things which are perceived distinctly by those who are in a higher degree, appear only as a one with those who are in a lower one.

3438<sup>3</sup>. Myriads of which (singulars) together make one particular which is presented in the literal sense . . .

3855. For external things are images and forms compounded of myriads of internal ones . . .

5398. Can be known by the Angels scarcely as to one part of a myriad.

6057<sup>2</sup>. The tongue can never utter one part of a myriad of myriads of them.

6699. Some myriads of men go there every day.

7236<sup>2</sup>. If myriads of myriads were multiplied to eternity, the good of one would not be like that of another.

—e. What not from thousands and myriads of various things, such as truths?

H. 415. Within a year some myriads, or millions (die).

544<sup>e</sup>. (In Hell) there are myriads of myriads from the beginning of creation to this time.

W. 316<sup>4</sup>. Because thousands and myriads of forces operating in act appear as a one.

P. 63<sup>e</sup>. There are myriads of myriads which compose the form (of Heaven); and there are myriads which enter it every year, and who will do so to eternity.

279<sup>5</sup>. There are myriads of concupiscences which enter into and compose every evil; and there are myriads of affections which enter into and compose every good; and these myriads are in such order and connection . . . that one cannot be changed unless all are.

R. 287. 'The number of them was myriads of myriads, and thousands of thousands' (Rev.v.11)=all in truths and in goods . . . Their quality is here described by their being 'myriads of myriads, and thousands of thousands;' for 'a myriad' is predicated of truths; and 'a thousand,' of goods. The reason (is) that a myriad is the greater number . . . and truths are manifold . . . Ill.

—e. In all these passages, 'myriads' are said of truths; and 'thousands,' of goods.

447. 'The number of the armies of the horsemen was two myriads of myriads' (Rev.ix.16)=reasonings concerning faith alone . . . from mere falsities of evil in abundance. . . By 'two myriads of myriads' are meant . . . great abundance. 'Two' is predicated of . . . evil; and 'myriads,' of truths; and, in the opposite sense, of falsities.

E. 204<sup>7</sup>. 'Myriads of holiness' (Deut. xxxiii. 2)=Divine truths.

316<sup>23</sup>. 'The myriads of Ephraim, and the thousands of Manasseh' (ver.17)=the abundance of truth and the derivative wisdom, and the abundance of good and the derivative love. 336<sup>4</sup>.

336. 'The number of them was myriads of myriads, and thousands of thousands'=innumerable those who are in truths, and innumerable those who are in goods. . . 'Myriads'=things innumerable; in like manner 'thousands;' but 'myriads' are said of truths, and 'thousands' of goods.

—2. The innumerability of those in the Celestial Kingdom is signified by 'thousands of thousands;' and the innumerability of those in the Spiritual Kingdom, by 'myriads of myriads.' But, in the abstract sense . . . there are signified innumerable truths, and innumerable goods.

—3. The reason 'myriads,' and 'thousands' = things innumerable, is that 'ten'=many, and thence also 'a hundred,' 'a thousand,' and 'ten thousand' . . . But, when things innumerable, which are infinitely many, are to be expressed, they are called 'myriads of myriads and thousands of thousands.' Moreover, when two multiplied numbers, the one greater and the other less, which signify what is similar, are mentioned together . . . then the lesser one is said of goods, and the greater one of truths. The reason is that each good consists of many truths. Ex.

—4. That 'myriads' are said of truths; and 'thousands,' of goods. Ill.

—6. The destruction of these evils is signified by, 'a thousand shall fall at thy side;' and the destruction of the falsities by, 'a myriad at thy right hand' (Ps.xci.7).

—9. As both (the Divine good and the Divine truth) are signified, it is said 'a thousand of thousands shall minister to Him, and a myriad of myriads shall stand before Him' (Dan.vii.10); 'a thousand' is said of Divine good; 'a myriad,' of Divine truth.

—10. Therefore it is said 'the myriads of the thousands of Israel' (Num.x.36), by which [numbers] are signified the truths from good which are in the Church.

401<sup>36</sup>. Occurs.

573. 'Two myriads of myriads'=innumerable things conspiring against the truths of good.

700<sup>8</sup>. The truths from good which are implanted in man after temptations, are signified by . . . 'Return, Jehovah, the myriads of the thousands of Israel' . . . By 'the myriads of the thousands of Israel' are signified truths from good implanted, from which is the Church. 'Myriads' are said of truths.

Myrrh. Myrrha.

Myrrhated. Myrrhatus.

See under SPICE.

A. 113<sup>e</sup>. See FRANKINCENSE, herc. 1171<sup>5</sup>. 4262<sup>3</sup>. 9293<sup>3</sup>. S.23<sup>3</sup>.

10252. 'The best myrrh' (Ex.xxx.23)=the perception of sensuous truth; (for) odoriferous myrrh=the perception of sensuous truth; for its odour=what is perceptive; and 'myrrh'=sensuous truth. . . The quality of the oil of anointing is described by the fragrant things of which it was compounded, which were the best myrrh, aromatic cinnamon, aromatic calamns, cassia, and oil of olive; by which are signified celestial truths and goods in their order, from ultimates to primes, or from outermosts to inmosts. The ultimates or outermosts are signified by 'the myrrh.' The reason why celestial good, or the good of the Inmost Heaven, is thus described, is that 'this good comes forth by means of these truths, which are signified; and also subsists by means of them. Ex.

—4. That odoriferous myrrh'=sensuous truth. Ill.

—By the Lord's garments, which are said to be 'anointed with myrrh, aloe, and cassia' (Ps.xlv.8) are signified Divine truths from His Divine good, in the Natural. Thus, by 'myrrh' is signified Divine truth in the Sensuous, because it is mentioned in the first place.

—5. 'Gold' (Matt.ii.11) = good; 'frankincense,' internal truth; and 'myrrh,' external truth; both from good. . . 'Myrrh' is mentioned in the third or last place, because it=external truth from good . . .

[A. 10252]<sup>7</sup>. As 'myrrh' signified truth in the highest degree external, which is sensuous truth, and its perception, therefore the bodies of the dead were formerly anointed with myrrh and aloes; by which anointing was signified the preservation of all the truths and goods with a man, and also resurrection; and therefore such a thing was employed as signified the ultimate of life with man, which ultimate is called sensuous life. III.

10256<sup>2</sup>. By 'the noble myrrh' (in the oil of anointing) is signified the perception of exterior truth in the external man, which is sensuous truth.

10258<sup>4</sup>. Hence, by 'the myrrh, aloes, and cassia' (Ps.xlv.) are signified Divine truths in their order proceeding from the Divine good which is in the Lord.

10264<sup>2</sup>. Ultimate truth, which is sensuous, with its perception, is signified by 'the myrrh' (in the anointing oil).

R. 277<sup>o</sup>. 'Gold' = celestial good; 'frankincense,' spiritual good; and 'myrrh,' natural good; and all worship is effected from these three goods. T.205<sup>2</sup>. E. 324<sup>10</sup>.

E. 491<sup>5</sup>. 'Gold' = celestial good; 'frankincense,' spiritual good; and 'myrrh,' the derivative natural good; thus the three goods of the three Heavens.

519<sup>2</sup>. Truths falsified are signified by 'the gall,' and 'myrrhated wine' (given to the Lord) . . . Their giving to the Lord vinegar mingled with gall, which was called also myrrhated wine, signified the quality of the Divine truth from the Word with the Jewish nation; namely, that it was commingled with the falsity of evil, and thus was altogether falsified and adulterated; and therefore He would not drink it. 627<sup>15</sup>.

618<sup>o</sup>. See BITTER, here.

684<sup>17</sup>. 'Myrrh' (Ps.xlv.) = good of the ultimate degree; 'aloes,' good of the second; and 'cassia,' good of the third. In like manner as do these three aromatics commingled with olive oil, whence the oil of holiness.

Myrtle. Myrtus.

A. 2708<sup>4</sup>. 'The cedar, the myrtle, and the tree of oil' (Is.xli.19)=the truths and goods of the interior man. 10261<sup>5</sup>.

E. 294<sup>2</sup>. 'The myrtle and the wood of oil' (Is.xli.)=spiritual good and celestial good. 375<sup>32</sup>.

730<sup>24</sup>. 'To set in the desert the cedar of shittah, the myrtle, and the tree of oil' (Is.xli.)=to give rational truths and the perception of them. . . 'The myrtle'=lower rational truth.

Mystery. Mysterium.

A. 42<sup>2</sup>. Those who, through scientifics, want to enter into the mysteries of faith. Sig.

80. (The celestial man) is not allowed to inquire into the mysteries of faith by sensuous and scientific things . . . Tr. 126.

127. See MOST ANCIENT CHURCH, here.

206<sup>o</sup>. Thus do (the learned) reason about the mysteries of faith.

233. To explore the mysteries of faith by means of scientifics, is as impossible as . . . Ex.

298. That he should not 'put forth his hand and take of the tree of lives'=that he is not to be instructed in the mysteries of faith . . .

302. This is why the mysteries of faith were never revealed to the Jews . . .

303<sup>2</sup>. That the mysteries of faith are not opened until men are such . . . that they no longer believe. Sig.

1072. Those are called 'drunkards' who believe nothing but what they apprehend, and therefore search into the mysteries of faith. Ex.

1162<sup>2</sup>. Those who have a knowledge of . . . the mysteries of the Word.

1462. After they wanted to enter by means of knowledges into the mysteries of faith . . . Egypt became addicted to magic.

1676<sup>2</sup>. It would give occasion for reasonings about Divine mysteries, which human minds would not apprehend . . .

1888<sup>3</sup>. By these things is described the state of those who endeavour by means of reasonings from scientifics to enter into the mysteries of faith.

2761<sup>4</sup>. The Divine Providence to prevent man entering from himself into the mysteries of faith which are in the Word. Sig. 3901<sup>5</sup>. 4162<sup>2</sup>.

2799<sup>19</sup>. Those who, by means of reasonings from sensuous and scientific things, enter into the mysteries of faith. Tr. 2831<sup>7</sup>.

3624<sup>o</sup>. This is a great mystery, which is now to be revealed . . .

6854<sup>2</sup>. In these things . . . there is a still greater mystery. Ex.

6858<sup>o</sup>. This . . . is a great mystery, which cannot be known without revelation.

9391<sup>16</sup>. The arrogance of those who want to enter into the mysteries of faith from scientifics. Tr.

R. 64. 'The mystery of the seven stars . . .' (Rev.i.20)=arcana in visions concerning the New Heaven . . .

224<sup>13</sup>. They said, This is a mystery; and the Angels replied, It is a mystery; but still such a one as can be understood.

478. 'The mystery of God shall be consummated . . .' (Rev.x.7)=that that will appear which has been foretold in the Word, and has heretofore been hidden. Ex.

729. 'Upon her forehead a name written, Mystery . . .' (Rev.xvii.5)=the Roman Catholic religiosity such as it is interiorly, that it is concealed. . . By 'mystery' is signified that which is interiorly concealed.

943<sup>3</sup>. I will tell this mystery . . .

T. 77<sup>5</sup>. (The Angels said,) We will tell thee a mystery . . .

170. This, because it does not fall into any reason, is called a mystery . . .

172<sup>3</sup>. Then this mystery would be explicable . . .

185<sup>2</sup>. The priest . . . exclaimed, O how great a mystery . . . —<sup>4</sup>. —<sup>5</sup>.

—<sup>6</sup>. He went on to say, From the heap of mysteries I take out one more . . .

508<sup>e</sup>. Enter henceforth into the mysteries of the Word hitherto closed up . . .

D. 1595. They want to penetrate Divine mysteries . . .

2725. Concerning Spirits who wanted to enter in thought into the mysteries of faith . . . 3572.

E. 88. 'The mystery of the seven stars . . . '= revelation concerning goods and truths . . . 'The mystery'=that which lies concealed in the vision . . . here, that revealed . . .

612. 'The mystery of God shall be consummated . . . '=prediction in the Word concerning the Advent of the Lord to be fulfilled when the end of the Church is at hand.

806<sup>e</sup>. This, then, is the mystery of the Lord's incarnation.

1046. 'Mystery, Babylon the great'=in heart the love of dominion . . . 'Mystery'=that which lies hidden in the heart, and does not appear before the common people.

Coro. 21. Concerning the mystery of Redemption.

Mystical. Mysticus.

A. 2004<sup>t</sup>. This is the mystical union . . . 1003<sup>3</sup>.

2762<sup>e</sup>. A horse, in the mystical sense . . .

2763<sup>e</sup>. They call it a mystical thing of no use. 3482<sup>e</sup>.

3942<sup>2</sup>. It appears as if (Solomon's Song) contains something mystical.

4923<sup>2</sup>. The Jews and some Christians believe that . . . there is something concealed in the Word which they call mystical . . . But they do not know what this mystical is. If told that this mystical sense in the Word . . . must be such as to be with the Angels . . . and that there can be no other mystical sense in the Word . . . and that this mystical sense . . . is nothing else than the spiritual and celestial sense . . . and that if they knew what good and truth are . . . they might know this mystical sense . . . scarcely anyone believes it.

—<sup>e</sup>. I cannot do otherwise than open those things which are called the mystical things of the Word; that is, its interior things . . .

5022<sup>e</sup>. They call (what is internal or spiritual) mystical.

5223. Those skilled in mystical scientifics were called 'magi'; those skilled in non-mystical ones were called 'the wise.' Ex.

7296. Those who investigated these things . . . were called 'the wise;' for they were mystical.

9280<sup>e</sup>. The mystical arcana . . . in the Word, lie hidden solely (in the correspondences).

9688<sup>3</sup>. Calls the interiors of the Word mystical, for which he cares not.

R. 565<sup>2</sup>. By the mystical union . . . are meant their figments . . .

T. 169. In this mystical thing (concerning the three Divine Persons).

351. On account of the mystical and enigmatical faith which makes every point of the present theology.

803. The doctors . . . study the mystical things of the present faith . . .

D. 2522<sup>e</sup>. Like the mystical things of the ancient poets.

E. 1079<sup>e</sup>. The arcana of wisdom of the three Heavens which are in the Word are the mystical things of which many speak.

De Verbo 7<sup>e</sup>. The mystical things which some search for in the Word are nothing else than its spiritual and celestial sense.

Mythology. See FABLE, JUPITER, PEGASUS, etc.

N. The Letter N.

D. 6063. (In spiritual writing) N signifies the evil. So with the evil. When it signifies the good, there is a pointing above it.

Naamah. Naamah.

A. 421. 'Naamah,' the sister of Tubal-Cain (Gen. iv. 22)=a like Church, or the doctrine of natural good and truth outside of that Church.

Naaman. Naaman.

A. 4255<sup>5</sup>. See BAPTISM, here.

E. 475<sup>18</sup>. By Namaan the leper, from Syria (2 Kings v.) were represented and signified those who falsify the Knowledges of truth and good from the Word. (The passage fully ex.) 724<sup>8</sup>.

Nabal. Nabal. D. 2618.

Nadab. Nadab.

A. 9375. 'Nadah and Abihu' (Ex. xxiv. 1)=the doctrine from both senses; (for) they were sons of Aaron; and when by 'Aaron' is signified the Word, by his sons is signified doctrine; by the elder son, doctrine from the internal sense; and by the younger, doctrine from its external sense. (These two doctrines) are one doctrine. Ex. 9379. 9403.

—<sup>2</sup>. As 'Nadab and Abihu' . . . represented doctrine from the Word, therefore when they instituted worship from some other doctrine than that which is from the Word, they were slain (Lev. x. 1-3). Fire in the censor from some other source=doctrine from some other source than the Word. Ex.

9811. 'Nadah and Abihu' (Ex. xxviii. 1)=as to the derivative Divine Spiritual; (for) the sons of Aaron represent Divine truth proceeding from Divine good. The Divine Spiritual is Divine truth proceeding from the Divine Celestial; thus the Divine of the Lord received in the Second Heaven. This is represented by the two first-born sons of Aaron, because this proceeds, and is as it were born, from celestial good, which is in the Inmost Heaven.

10244. Hence the death of . . . Nadab and Abihu; for they put incense upon strange fire, by which was represented worship from some other love than that of the Lord . . . E. 324<sup>8</sup>.

Nahor. Nachor.

A. 1351. 'Serug . . . begat Nahor' (Gen.xi.22)= a derivation thence. Nahor was a nation so named from him as its father, by which is signified worship verging to what is idolatrous. 1353.

Nahor. Nachor.

A. 1355. 'Terah . . . begat Abram, Nahor, and Haran' (Gen.xi.26)=the derivations thence. Abram, Nahor, and Haran were persons, from whom also nations were named, which were idolaters. 1359. 1363.

—<sup>2</sup>. That Nahor was a nation in which there was idolatrous worship. Ill. 1358. 1992<sup>2</sup>.

1357. There are three universal kinds of idolatry . . . The second is of the love of the world . . . and is signified by ('Nahor').

1360<sup>e</sup>. There were other (idolatrous nations) in Syria, from Nahor.

1369. See MILCAH, here. 2861<sup>2</sup>. 2863.

3052. 'To the city of Nahor' (Gen.xxiv.10)=related doctrinal things. . . 'Nahor' represents what is related ; for Nahor was a brother of Abram ; and from him was Bethuel, from whom was Rebekah.

3778. 'Know ye Laban the son of Nahor' (Gen.xxix.5)=had they the good of his stock . . . 'Nahor' represents that common stock from which was the good which is 'Laban' . . . Terah, who was the father of Nahor, etc. represents the common stock from which came the Churches . . . Abram put on the representation of the genuine Church . . . Nahor, that of the Church such as it is with the nations who have not the Word . . . Hence it is that by Nahor, his son Bethuel, and Laban the son of the latter, was represented collateral good of a common stock ; that is, the good in which are they who are of the Lord's Church with the gentiles. Ex.

4206. 'The God of Abram and the God of Nahor judge between us' (Gen.xxxi.53)=the Divine [influx] into the good of those within the Church, and into the good of those outside the Church. . . The reason 'the God of Nahor'=the Divine of the Lord regarding those who are outside the Church, is that Nahor represents the Church of the gentiles ; and his sons, those there who are in brotherhood . . . 4207.

Nail. Clavus.

A. 8990<sup>e</sup>. 'Pegs,' or 'nails'=affixion or adjunction. Ill.

9777. The reason 'pegs,' or 'nails'=things which conjoin and strengthen, is that they conjoin and make fast. Ill.

—<sup>2</sup>. 'Long cords,' and 'nails' (Is.liv.2)=an ample connection and a confirmation of Truths.

—<sup>3</sup>. 'Nails,' and 'cords' (Is.xxxiii.20)=things which confirm and conjoin.

—'. 'A nail'=firmation and conjunction also in Is.xli.7 ; Jer.x.4.

—<sup>e</sup>. But by 'a nail' upon which anything is suspended, is signified affixion and adjunction in Is.xxii.23,24 ; Ezek.xv.3.

9854<sup>2</sup>. 'Nails,' and 'cords' (Is.xxxiii.20)=the things which conjoin the truths and goods of Heaven.

M. 431<sup>2</sup>. On account of the correspondence of filthy loves with ordure, the sons of Israel were commanded 'to carry with them a paddle with which to cover their excrement . . . ' (Deut.xxiii.13). Ex.

E. 355<sup>28</sup>. By 'the nail' which is from Judah (Zech. x.4) is signified truth, strengthening.

458<sup>8</sup>. The coherence which is effected by means of confirmations from proprium, is described by: 'he maketh it firm with nails, and with hammers, that it move not' (Jer.x.4).

600<sup>12</sup>. By 'to make firm the nails' (Is.liv.2) is signified confirmation from the Word.

799<sup>5</sup>. By 'nails' (id.) is signified the formation (of good and truth).

Nail. Unguis.

A. 3703<sup>16</sup>. 'She shall make her nails' (Deut.xxi.12). . . In this law each and all things are representative of natural truth, in that, after it has been purified from falsities, it is adopted by good. . . Purification from falsities is signified by 'to make the nails,' etc.

D. 3453. The nature of their filthy loves . . . was shown me . . . by a fiery feeling . . . especially in the nail of the left toe . . .

5560. Concerning those who relate to the nails : Hell. —Those who relate to the nails of the feet and fingers are the most wicked of all ; being those who care the least for the things of Heaven and the Church. Their wickedness exceeds the wickedness of all others ; but they finally become the most stupid of all.

5982<sup>e</sup>. (Obsessors) who are upright correspond to the nails.

6109. It has been granted to see those who make the nails, who are those who praise and vituperate without understanding ; but still are not evil.

E. 555<sup>16</sup>. 'The nails' which she is to make=the falsities and evils of the sensuous man.

1029<sup>6</sup>. 'To have nails like those of birds' (Dan.iv.33) =to become sensuous.

Naked. *Nudus.Nakedness. *Nuditās.Naked, To make. *Nudare.Naked, A making. *Nudatio.Nakedly. Nude.

See under GARMENT.

A. 163. That they were 'naked, and did not blush' (Gen.ii.25)=that they were innocent ; that is to say, that the Lord had insinuated innocence into their proprium . . .

165. That the nakedness at which they did not blush =innocence, is manifestly evident from (the fact) that when integrity and innocence had receded, they blushed at their nakedness . . . and also from the things which are represented in the World of Spirits ; for when Spirits want to exculpate themselves, and prove that they are blameless, they present themselves naked . . . 821<sup>2</sup>. D.1206. Especially [is it evident] from the innocent in Heaven, who appear as naked infants . . . 2306<sup>2</sup>.

213. 'They Knew that they were naked' (Gen.iii.7)=that they Knew and acknowledged that they were not, as before, in innocence, but in evil. Ex. . . For, when men are in no innocence, nakedness is a shame and a reproach; because they are conscious that they think evilly. Hence 'nakedness' is taken in the Word for reproach and evil, and is predicated of a perverted Church. III.

214. They are called 'naked,' because left to pro-prium; for (such) no longer have anything of intelligence and wisdom, or of faith. Being thus made naked of truth and good, they are therefore in evil.

295. The Most Ancients, on account of their innocence, were called 'naked;' and afterwards, when innocence perished, they observed that they were in evil, which also is called 'nakedness' . . . Here, therefore, they are said to be 'clothed,' lest they should be naked, or in evil.

1073. '(Noah) was uncovered in the midst of his tent' (Gen.ix.21)=things perverted, as is evident from the signification of 'uncovered,' or naked. For he is called 'uncovered' and 'naked,' from the drunkenness of wine, in whom there are no truths of faith; and still more he with whom they are perverted. Ex.

1079. 'He saw the nakedness of his father' (ver.22)
=that he observed the errors and perverted things;
(for) 'nakedness'=what is evil and perverted. Ex.

1087. 'They covered the nakedness of their father'
(ver.23)=that they excused the perverted things.

1748<sup>3</sup>. Not in naked Truths.

2306. Gennine innocence represented by a naked
infant.

2417<sup>8</sup>. The naked (a class of the good).

4956<sup>e</sup>. By 'the naked' (Matt.xxv.36) they perceive those who acknowledge that there is nothing of good and truth in themselves. 5433<sup>4</sup>.

5433. 'To see the nakedness of the land are ye come'
(Gen.xlii.9)=that nothing seemed better to them than for themselves to know that they are not truths. . .
'Nakedness'=to be devoid of truth; thus, that they are not truths. . . Ex. Here, therefore, 'the naked- ness of the land'=no truths in the Church.

— The reason 'nakedness'=what is deprived of truths, or devoid of truths, is that garments in general =truths.

—<sup>3</sup>. That 'nakedness'=being devoid of truths.
III.

— 'Naked' (Rev.iii.17)=to be in pennry of truth.

— 'The shame of nakedness' (ver.18)=to be devoid of goods and truths.

—<sup>4</sup>. 'Lest he walk naked' (Rev.xvi.15)=lest he be devoid of truths.

—<sup>6</sup>. 'To cover the naked with a garment' (Ezek. xviii.7)=to instruct in truths those who long for truths.

—<sup>9</sup>. 'To strip her naked' (Hos.ii.3)=that she may be devoid of truths. 6432<sup>9</sup>. 10402<sup>6</sup>.

— 'I will show thy nakedness to the nations'
(Nahum iii.5)=ugliness: all ugliness is from the absence of truths. (=the infernal loves which defile the interiors.

9960<sup>11</sup>.)

6943. For man does not apprehend naked spiritual things.

7260. In general, they called those . . . the naked, whom they were to clothe.

8375. Those who live in the hot zones (of Jupiter) go naked, but with a covering round the loins; nor do they blush at nakedness; for their minds are chaste.

—<sup>e</sup>. (The Spirits of our Earth) were told that nakedness is not a matter of shame nor reproach to those who live in chastity and a state of innocence; but that it is so to those who live in lasciviousness and immodesty.
8545<sup>e</sup>.

8783. If spiritual and celestial things were set forth nakedly, they would be rejected . . .

8946. 'That thy nakedness be not revealed upon it'
(Ex.xx.26)=the idea of thought concerning these things thus full of falsities . . . 'Nakedness'=what is destitute of truths; thus the idea of thought full of falsities.

9477. For the celestial things which are of the good of love in Heaven are represented naked; and therefore those who are of the Celestial Kingdom appear naked
. . . 9212<sup>8</sup>. 9262. 9515. 9814.

9960. 'To cover the flesh of nakedness' (Ex.xxviii.
42)=lest the interiors of the love, which are filthy and infernal, should appear. . . The genitals and loins, which are here signified by 'the flesh of nakedness'=the interior things of conjugal love . . . and, in the opposite sense, they=the evil, filthy, and infernal things of this love.

—<sup>2</sup>. As to nakedness, it derives a signification from the parts of the body which appear naked . . . therefore it has one signification when the nakedness regards the head, which is baldness; another when it regards the whole body; and another when it regards the loins and genitals. When the nakedness regards the head . . .
it=deprivation of intelligence of truth and wisdom of good; when it regards the whole body, it=deprivation of the truths of faith; but when it regards the loins and genitals, it=deprivation of the good of love. (These three significations of 'nakedness' ill. in order.)

—<sup>9</sup>. 'I was naked, and ye clothed Me' . . . 'Naked,' here,=those who are not in truths, and still long for truths; and also those who acknowledge that there is nothing of good and truth in them.

—<sup>10</sup>. 'To reveal the nakedness' (Is.xlvii.3)=to cause that the filthy and infernal things, which are the ends, should appear.

—<sup>11</sup>. 'To see the nakedness' (Lam.i.8)=to see the filthy and infernal loves.

—<sup>16</sup>. 'To be made naked' (Lam.iv.21)=to be made completely destitute of truths.

— 'To reveal nakednesses'=to reveal the evils of the loves of self and of the world, which are infernal;
'to reveal their father's nakednesses' (Ezek.xxii.10)= to reveal those evils which are hereditary and from the Voluntary.

—<sup>16</sup>. 'The garment' with which Shem and Japheth covered Noah's nakedness=the truth of faith by means of which these evils were covered and amended. . . The 'nakedness' itself=his evil Voluntary, which is covered by means of the truths of faith; and, when it is being covered, the truths look backwards.

[A. 9960]<sup>18</sup>. See JEW, here.

—<sup>19</sup>. But, when the interiors are chaste, then 'nakedness'=innocence, because it=conjugal love.

9961<sup>5</sup>. From these things it may again be evident why by 'nakednesses' are signified (these) filthy and infernal things . . .

—<sup>6</sup>. For 'the nakednesses' (of Aaron and his sons) signified all loves contrary to heavenly loves . . .

10037<sup>6</sup>. Therefore it is said that 'Jehovah walks in the midst of the camp . . . lest He see the nakedness of anything . . .' (Deut.xxiii.14). 'Nakedness'=what is unclean from evils and falsities.

10479. By this word 'dissolute' in the Original Language is also signified . . . 'to be made naked;' and by 'made naked' is signified deprived of the good of love and truths of faith.

10753. (Naked men seen in the Fifth Earth.) 10755, Des.

10756. They have a perception as to whether the Conjugal is with those of their own nation who are naked . . . Ex.

10757. The preacher then came to those who were naked, but had an inflamed body; and lastly to those who were black, some of whom were naked . . .

10836. (In the Sixth Earth) they walk quite naked, and nakedness is no shame to them. 10837.

H. 178<sup>o</sup>. For the Angels of the Inmost Heaven are naked.

280<sup>e</sup>. These Angels are naked, because nakedness corresponds to innocence.

341<sup>3</sup>. What genuine innocence is, was represented by a most beautiful infant . . . naked; for the innocent themselves, who are in the Inmost Heaven . . . appear as infants, and some of them naked; for innocence is represented by nakedness at which they do not blush; as is read of the first man and his wife . . . and therefore, when their state of innocence had perished, they blushed at their nakedness . . .

S. 40. The truths of the sense of the letter of the Word, as to a part of them, are not naked truths, but are appearances of truth. . . Naked truths themselves, which are included, contained, invested, and comprehended, are in the spiritual sense of the Word; and naked goods are in its celestial sense. Ill.

51. In the sense of the letter, in some places, there are not naked truths, but clothed ones . . .

52<sup>e</sup>. I saw them stripped of their garments; a sign that they were devoid of truths.

55. The Word in the literal sense is like a man clothed, whose face is naked, and also his hands. All the things which pertain to the life, and thus to the salvation, of man, are naked there; but all the rest are clothed . . .

F. 44. I will present (faith alone) in its nakedness . . .

W. 204. For, prior or simpler things are more naked . . .

P. 275. The nakedness (of Adam and Eve) at which they did not blush, signified that state (of innocence).

R. 210. 'And blind and naked' (Rev.iii.17)=that they are devoid of the understanding of truth and the will of good. . . By 'the naked,' in the Word, are meant those who are thence devoid of goods; for all spiritual good is procured by means of truths. E.239.

213. 'That the shame of thy nakedness do not appear' (ver.18)=lest the good of celestial love be profaned and adulterated. No one can know what 'the shame of nakedness' signifies, except him who knows that the members of generation in both sexes . . . correspond to celestial love. . . As man is born into loves opposite to this love, it is evident that if he does not procure for himself from the Lord the good of love and the truth of wisdom . . . he must appear in the opposite love, which, in itself, is profane. This is signified by 'to uncover the nakedness,' and 'to manifest the shame of it.' Ill.

—<sup>3</sup>. By 'nakedness,' in these passages, is signified the evils into which man is born; which, being opposite to the good of celestial love, in themselves are profane; and which are not removed except by means of truths and a life according to them.

—<sup>4</sup>. By 'nakedness' is also signified innocence; and likewise ignorance of good and truth. Ill.

706. 'That he walk not naked, and they see his shame' (Rev.xvi.15)=lest they be with those who are in no truths, and their infernal loves appear. 'To walk naked'=to live without truths. By 'the shame of nakedness,' or the pudenda, are signified filthy loves, which are infernal loves. . . That by 'nakedness' is signified ignorance of truth; and by 'the shame of nakedness,' infernal love. Ref. These things are said to those who will be of the Lord's New Church, in order that they may learn truths, and remain in them; because without truths the evils connate with them, which are infernal loves, are not removed. A man can indeed live like a Christian without truths; but only before men, and not before the Angels. The truths which they are to learn are concerning the Lord, and concerning the precepts according to which they are to live. E.1009.

747. 'And shall make her desolate and naked' (Rev. xvii.16)=that they will put off from themselves her falsities and evils. Ex.

— 'Nakedness,' in the Word, is predicated of goods and evils.

M. 137. There appeared two naked infants afar . . . But, when they approached more nearly still, they did not appear as infants, nor naked . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. The state of innocence (of their conjugal love) was represented by their being seen as naked infants.

413<sup>2</sup>. For innocence corresponds to infancy, and also to nakedness . . .

B. 58. Lest the nakedness (of these dogmas) should appear.

T. 365<sup>2</sup>. He may opine that this heat is bare heat, and that this light is bare light, such as are the heat and light which proceed from the sun of our world . . .

D. 566. The inhabitants (of Jupiter) under the equator, like the inhabitants of this Earth . . . go naked. . . The shame of nakedness comes forth from sin; and, in fact, from the blotting out of celestial love. Loves then succeed which cause nakedness to be a matter of shame . . . (Continued under JUPITER.) 573.

1228. (These women) appear naked about the middle part of the body, which signifies that they had loved (such natural things), and had supposed them to be beautiful.

1229. Spirits can at once judge . . . from the body, its nakedness, where it is open, and especially which parts are exposed, and which they want to conceal, of what quality they had been in the life. Hence also Souls can Know themselves . . .

1347. Those who have lived continually in quarrels . . . after death become like furies. They appear naked, both male and female . . . some only to the navel . . . 1348.

2114. For, in the state of integrity, nakednesses were innocences . . . But, in the perverted state, nakednesses cannot even be named . . . because the loves are filthy.

2445<sup>e</sup>. The naked man (I saw in the vision) is the interior sense (of the Word); his garments are only the words, or the letter.

3203. Concerning the nakedness of the head. Ex.

3294. Concerning certain naked ones. Ex.

3447. He had acquired many confirming things from the Word by means of . . . dishonourable nakednesses.

3717<sup>2</sup>. They lay backwards naked over my head.

3854. If at this day Spirits and men were devoid of clothing, and were to appear naked, they would appear very deformed and ugly; and therefore it is better that they should be clothed.

3895. (Very lascivious girls who exhibited themselves naked in order to testify their innocence.)

4719. Conjugal love with the spiritual begins from externals . . . they love nudity, and it excites . . . Otherwise the celestial . . . they care not for nudities, as in the hot zones, where they see each other naked, but still love none except their own consorts. In the other life, also, the celestial appear naked, and the spiritual clothed; the latter are lascivious from their nature in the world; but not the former . . .

4863. (In the Hell of the Genii) they are naked, because they have no spiritual light . . .

4931<sup>2</sup>. In some (of the imaginary Heavens) they present themselves naked, and thus appear above, as innocent . . .

5170. Some (infernals) had the custom of sending forth Spirits . . . and presenting them naked from head to heel; by which they signified that they were innocent . . .

5179. I arrived at a certain mountain, where all were naked, wives and husbands . . . They said they were all naked, both male and female; nor was anyone . . . excited with any lasciviousness . . . and also that when they come to their fanes—aedes—all are naked, both male and female . . . and also that they cannot tolerate those who are clothed, because they are of a different genius. The reason they are such, is that they are in a sincere Conjugal . . . They explore (those whom they admit) by putting off their garments and presenting them naked, both male and females. They then at once perceive whether the Conjugal is in them . . . De Conj. 68.

5180. A certain person who had faith in the sense of the letter of the Word . . . was able, without emotion, to see (those) naked females; (but) on coming, naked, to those who were higher up, he was deprived of his senses . . . Such are they who believe the Word as to the sense of its letter, and do not know and have not imbed interior truths thence. Compare De Conj. 69.

6020. A Society of Catholics . . . appeared naked. All complained of this; but it was replied to them that this happens because above and at the sides neighbours arrive who are in truths; and then, from the influx from them, they appear naked, for the reason that they are void of truths . . .

6110<sup>65</sup>. (Christian Spirits) cannot endure the sphere of nakedness between consorts; but flee away from it.

D. Min. 4604. In conjugal love . . . there is nothing of lascivious love, although they appear naked to each other.

4771. There, all are naked, because there is no lasciviousness there which hurts modesty. . . (This Spirit) could not stay there.

4779. There then appeared a naked man, whose back I saw. It was a certain Heaven which appeared thus . . .

E. 187<sup>6</sup>. 'To walk naked'=life without the Knowledges of truth and good, as means; thus life not spiritual, but merely natural.

235<sup>6</sup>. 'The nakednesses which they look on' (Hab. ii. 15)=the deprivation of truth, and of the derivative intelligence. Refs.

240. That 'naked'=those who are devoid of the understanding of truth because they are devoid of the will of good, is evident from the passages in the Word, adduced below, where 'naked,' and 'nakedness' are mentioned. The reason 'naked,' and 'nakedness,'=these things, is that garments=the truths which are of the understanding; and he who is devoid of truths is also devoid of good. Ex. 'Naked,' and 'nakedness'= . . . deprivation of intelligence and of love—thus of the understanding of good and of the will of it—for the additional reason that garments cover the body and flesh, (which)=good . . .

240<sup>2</sup>. The reason the celestial Angels appear naked, is that they have no need of the memory to retain truths, nor of the derivative understanding to comprehend them . . .

— From these things it may be evident what 'naked' signifies, in both senses; namely, that in one sense it=those who are in celestial good; and, in the other, those who are not in good because not in truths. Ill.

[E. 240]<sup>8</sup>. 'Naked and barefoot (Is.xx.2)=that they are deprived of all truth and of all good. . .

—<sup>4</sup>. 'The nakedness of Egypt' (id.)=the derivative falsities.

—<sup>4</sup>. 'To cover nakedness' (Ezek.xvi.8)=to remove the evils of the will, and the falsities of the understanding.

—<sup>5</sup>. 'Thy nakedness was revealed through thy scortations' (ver.36)=that the Church through falsities and falsifications has been deprived of all the understanding of truth.

—<sup>7</sup>. 'The anus which shall be made naked' (Is. iii.17)=the love of evil and falsity.

—<sup>9</sup>. 'To look on nakednesses' (Hab.ii.15)=so that the falsities which are of the understanding, and the evils which are of the will appear.

—<sup>11</sup>. As 'nakedness' signified the deprivation of the understanding of truth and of the will of good, it was ordered that 'Aaron and his sons should not ascend by steps upon the altar, lest their nakedness be revealed upon it' (Ex.xx.26). Also, that they 'should make them breeches of linen to cover the flesh of their nakedness . . .' (Ex.xxviii.42).

—<sup>12</sup>. Moreover, by 'naked,' in the Word, are meant also those who are not in truths—and consequently are not in good—because they are ignorant of them, and yet long for them. III.

—<sup>c</sup>. That 'naked' also=the good of innocence. Refs.

244. 'That the shame of thy nakedness do not appear'=lest filthy loves [do so]. 'Nakedness'=deprivation of the understanding of truth and good, because of the will of them; or, the deprivation of the truth of faith because there is no good of love; and, as this deprivation is signified by 'nakedness,' therefore by 'the shame of nakedness' are signified filthy loves; for these appear when they are not removed through the love of good and the derivative faith of truth. Ex.

283<sup>7</sup>. 'I have covered thy nakedness' (Ezek.xvi.8)=the hiding of evil through (spiritual truth).

295<sup>11</sup>. 'To cover the naked' (Is.lviii.7)=to instruct in truths him who longs to be instructed. 386<sup>26</sup>.

355<sup>26</sup>. 'Naked' (Amos ii.16)=him who is devoid of all understanding of truth. 357<sup>22</sup>.

654<sup>68</sup>. 'These have revealed her nakedness' (Ezek. xxiii.10)=the deprivation of all truth and good . . . 'Nakedness'=deprivation.

700<sup>15</sup>. The falling down of the wall (of Jericho)=a making naked for everything evil and false.

714<sup>20</sup>. Devastation as to truth and good is signified by 'to go spoiled and naked' (Micah i.8).

730<sup>11</sup>. The deprivation of all truth as before reformation took place, is signified by 'to strip her naked, and to present her according to the day of her birth' (Hos.ii.3).

739<sup>11</sup>. That they then saw themselves to be devoid of truths and goods, is signified by that 'the eyes of both were then opened, and they Knew that they were naked' (Gen.ii.). The nakedness which is ashamed=the deprivation of celestial love, and of the derivative good and truth.

778<sup>6</sup>. The Word in ultimates is like a man clothed with a garment, who nevertheless is naked as to the face and hands; and, where the Word is thus naked, there appear its goods and truths naked as in Heaven; thus such as they are in the spiritual sense . . .

828<sup>3</sup>. The reason why (the Angels of the Third Heaven) go naked, is that nakedness, in the spiritual sense, is innocence; and because garments=truths investing good; and truths investing good are in the memory, and thence in the thought; whereas with them truths are in the life; thus hidden; and they do not manifest themselves except before the perception while others are speaking them . . .

1008. 'That he walk not naked' (Rev.xvi.15)=lest he be without truths, and consequently without goods. Ex.

1081. 'They shall make her devastated and naked' (Rev.xvii.16)=the rejection of her falsities, which are falsified truths; and the manifestation then that they were devoid of all truth. . . By 'devastated and naked' is signified to be devoid of all truth. Ex.

De Verbo 10<sup>7</sup>. But still many things in the sense of the letter of the Word are naked, as it were devoid of garments; and these correspond to the face of a man, and also to his hands, which parts are naked. These things of the Word subserve for the doctrine of the Church, because in themselves they are spiritual natural truths; whence it may be evident . . . that man is able to find and see naked Truths even there.

De Conj. 66. That love truly conjugal is naked. (See MARRIAGE LOVE, here.)

67. In the rest of the Heavens . . . all appear clothed, and they also blush at nakedness before the eyes of others, because it excites what is lascivious.

Name. Denominatio.

A. 3667. By all these names they understood one God.

10296<sup>2</sup>. For the denomination is made from the essential . . . in like manner as the oil of anointing is named from the oil of olive, and not from the spices.

W. 100. Through this Spiritual all things of that World derive their origin, and thence also their denomination.

185. Their situation relatively to the sight . . . does not change the denomination.

T. 345. The denominations (of merely natural faith) are . . .

Name. Nomen.

Name, To. Nominare.

A. 64<sup>2</sup>. The Angels do not know the names of lands, cities, etc. . . but have an idea only of the things signified by the . . . names. Examps.

142. 'To bring them to the man to see that he should call them by name' (Gen.ii.19)=to give him to know of what quality they are; and that 'he called them names'=that he Knew of what quality they were.

144.

144. For by a name the Ancients understood nothing also than the essence of a thing; and by to see and call by name, to know of what quality they are. The reason was, that they gave names to their sons and daughters according to those things which were signified; for there was something peculiar—singulare—in each name, from which, and through which, they knew whence and of what quality they were . . .

145. In the Word also by the name is signified the essence of the thing; and by 'to see and call by name,' is signified to know of what quality they are. Ill.

—'. 'To call by name,' and 'to surname—cognominare' (Is. xlv. 3, 4)=to foreknow the quality.

—'. 'There shall be called to thee a new name' (Is. lxii. 2)=that he shall become different. 2009<sup>5</sup>.

—<sup>e</sup>. By 'names,' in these passages, are never meant names, but of what quality they are; nor is the name of anyone ever known in Heaven, but of what quality he is.

202. They do not admit that faith should be named . . .

339. It was a familiar thing with the Most Ancients to bestow names, and by the names to signify Things, and thus institute a genealogy.

340. Everything new in ancient times they called by a name, and thus set forth what the names involved. Examps.

404. All these names ('Enoch,' 'Irad,' etc.)=heresies. . . . Something may be gathered from the derivations of the names . . .

468. It is evident that by names were signified heresies and doctrines. Hence it may be evident that by the names in this chapter also (Gen. v.) are not signified persons, but Things; and here, doctrines, or Churches, which were preserved . . . from the Most Ancient Church down to Noah.

470. For the names here, down to Gen. xi., or to Eber, never=persons, but Things.

479. By 'to call a name,' or 'to call by name,' in the Word, is signified to know the quality; here, the quality of the Most Ancient Church . . . for 'Adam' is 'the ground.' See 478.

483. By the names which follow, 'Seth,' 'Enos,' etc., are signified so many Churches, of which the first and principal was the one called 'Man.' Ex.

485. That Churches of diverse doctrine were called by a like name. Examps.

981<sup>3</sup>. The spiritual can scarcely name mercy . . .

1114<sup>2</sup>. That I might know that by the names in the first chapter of Genesis only Churches are meant.

1140<sup>2</sup>. Such persons (as Noah, Shem, etc.) never existed; but the worshipers were so named.

—<sup>e</sup>. But by the names in this chapter (Gen. x.), except those of 'Heber' and his posterity, so many nations are meant . . . which constituted the Ancient Church . . .

1141. Those who are here named sons of Japheth were . . . Those who are named sons of Ham were . . . those who are called—vocantur—sons of Canaan were . . . Those who are called—appellantur—sons of Shem were . . .

1142. In this chapter they are only recounted as to their names. But (their quality in special) is evident from the . . . Prophets, where the names of these nations occur . . .

1143. Although these were the names of the nations which constituted the Ancient Church, still, in the internal sense, there are meant Things; namely, the worshipers themselves. What names are . . . those in Heaven know not a whit. There is no idea of such things there; but of the Things signified by them. Ex.

—<sup>e</sup>. Thus, in this chapter, by the names are here signified, in the sense of the letter . . . the peoples who constituted the Ancient Church; but, in the internal sense, their doctrinals.

1179. As, anciently, they bestowed names on Things, they bestowed this name ('Nimrod') on this worship . . .

1238. These names ('Noah,' 'Shem,' etc.,) [were given] in order that all the differences (in the Church) in general might be referred to them and their sons, as to their heads. Moreover, the nations here named, at first had such worship . . . and therefore also such worshipers themselves are signified by the names of these nations in the Word.

1308. 'Let us make us a name' (Gen. xi. 4)=that they might thence have the reputation of power. Ex.

1419. 'I will make thy name great' (Gen. xii. 2)=glory . . . In the external sense, by 'to make a name' . . . is signified something worldly; but, in the internal sense, what is heavenly. Ex.

1455. 'He called on the name of Jehovah' (Gen. xii. 8)=the internal worship of His Father from that state.

1705. 'Mamre, Eshcol, and Aner' . . . signified the Angels who were with the Lord when He fought in His first childhood . . . They are named from goods and truths. Never does any Angel in Heaven have any name; but it is goods and truths from which the names are predicated; as 'Michael,' and the other Angels in the Word . . . they are so named from the office . . . 1754.

1736<sup>5</sup>. 'My name is in the midst of Him' (Ex. xxiii. 21). 'Name'=essence.

—<sup>e</sup>. 'His name one' (Zech. xiv. 9) . . . 'Name'=essence.

1754. The Angels never have any name; but they are distinguished from one another by goods and truths; and therefore by 'name,' in the Word, nothing else is signified than essence; and the quality of it. Refs. and Ill.

1770. (Being in the Second Heaven, they saw) that the names=Things. 3474<sup>o</sup>.

1876. The names of men, kingdoms, and cities, which are in the Word . . . perish at the first threshold, when they ascend; for they are earthly, corporeal, and material things, which the Souls who come into the other life successively put off, and those who come into Heaven [do so] altogether. The Angels retain not the least idea of any person, nor, consequently, of his name. . . . They form an idea for themselves from those things which are signified by them in the Word. Names, and words, are to them like dust, or like scales, which fall down when they enter into Heaven. Hence it may be evident that by names, in the Word, nothing else than Things are signified. Ex.

[A.] 1888<sup>2</sup>. That the names of the kingdoms, regions, cities, and men, = Things, may be clearly evident in the Prophets. Ill. . . Here, there is almost nothing except names, from which no sense would come forth unless the several names = Things. Ex.

1896<sup>2</sup>. When it is told in the Word what a person's name is—as here that 'her name was Hagar'—it signifies that the name involves something which is to be observed; for 'to call by name' = to know the quality.

1946. 'Thou shalt call his name Ishmael' (Gen. xvi. 11) = the state of life. Anciently, names were bestowed on sons and daughters which signified the state in which the parents had been, especially the mothers when they conceived, or while they were with child, or when they brought forth; or the state in which the infants were when they were born. Thus the names were significative. 2643<sup>2</sup>, Ill.

1953. 'She called the name of Jehovah who was speaking unto her' (ver. 13) = the state of the Lord's interior man when it was thinking these things. 'A name' = to know the quality. Ex.

1961. 'Abram called the name of his son . . . Ishmael' (ver. 15) = the quality of (rational truth).

1989. When 'Abram' is named in the Word. —<sup>u</sup>.

2009. 'Thy name shall no more be called 'Abram' (Gen. xvii. 5) = that He will put off the human. 'Thy name shall be Abraham' = that He will put on the Divine.

— In the Word, when it is said, 'Thy name shall be,' it = the quality, or that he will be such . . . And, as the name = the quality, the name comprehends in one complex whatever is in him. For to the name of anyone no attention is paid in Heaven; but, when anyone is named, or when 'name' is said, there comes up the idea of the quality, or of all things which are his, are with him, and are in him. Hence 'name,' in the Word, = quality. Ill.

—<sup>2</sup>. 'To take the name of God in vain' does not = the name, but each and all things which are from Him; thus each and all things which belong to the worship of Him, which are not to be contemned, still less blasphemed, and contaminated with filthy things.

— 'Hallowed be Thy name' . . . By 'name,' here, is not meant the name, but all things of love and faith; for these are the Lord's, and these are from Him.

—<sup>3</sup>. 'To call upon the name of Jehovah,' and 'to make mention that His name is exalted' (Is. xli. 4) does not at all mean to place any worship in the name, or to believe that Jehovah is called upon by means of His name, but by knowing His quality, thus by means of each and all things which are from Him.

—<sup>4</sup>. 'To make mention of,' and 'to call upon the name of Jehovah' (Is. xxvi. 13; xli. 25) = to worship from the goods of love and the truths of faith.

—<sup>5</sup>. 'To walk in the name of his god' (Micah iv. 5) = profane worship; and 'to walk in the name of Jehovah' = true worship.

—<sup>6</sup>. 'To put His name,' and 'to make His name dwell there' (Deut. xii. 5, 11; xvi. 2, 6, 11) does not = the name, but the worship; thus the quality of the Lord from which He is to be worshipped. His quality is the good of love and the truth of faith; and with those who are in these dwells the name of Jehovah.

— That Jehovah does not dwell with him who merely knows and names His name, may be evident to everyone; for the name alone, without the idea of the quality, the Knowledge of the quality, and the faith in the quality, is a mere word. Hence it is evident that 'the name' = the quality; and to know the quality.

—<sup>7</sup>. 'To bless in the name of Jehovah' (Deut. x. 8) = not by the name, but by the things which belong to the name of Jehovah . . .

— 'This is His name whereby He shall be called, Jehovah our Justice' (Is. xxiii. 6). Here, 'the name' stands for 'the justice,' which is the quality of the Lord . . .

— 'To make mention of His name' (Is. xlix. 1) = to instruct as to His quality.

—<sup>9</sup>. In Heaven it is solely by the quality that one is Known from another, and this is expressed by 'name' in the sense of the letter; as may also be evident to everyone from the fact that anyone named on earth is presented in the idea of another as to his quality, by which [idea] he is known and distinguished from others. In the other life the ideas remain, but the names perish; and still more so with the Angels. Hence it is that, in the internal sense, 'the name' = the quality, or to know the quality.

— 'His name is called the Word of God' (Rev. xix. 12, 13). That 'the name,' here, is the Word of God, thus the quality of Him who sat upon the white horse, is said in plain words.

—<sup>10</sup>. That 'the name of Jehovah' = to know His quality; namely, that He is all the good of love and all the truth of faith, is clearly evident from the Lord's words: 'I have made known to them Thy name, and I will make it known, that the love wherewith Thou hast loved Me may be in them, and I in them' (John xvii. 25, 26).

—<sup>11</sup>. And that 'the name of God,' or of the Lord, is all the doctrine of faith concerning love and charity, which is signified by 'to believe in His name.' Ill.

— Here, those 'gathered together in the Lord's name' (Matt. xviii. 20) = those who are in the doctrine of faith concerning love and charity; thus who are in love and charity.

— 'For My name's sake,' manifestly = on account of the doctrine. Ill.

—<sup>12</sup>. That the name itself does nothing, but that which the name involves, namely, everything of charity and faith, is clearly evident from these words, 'Have we not prophesied by Thy name, and by Thy name have cast out demons; and in Thy name done many mighty things? But then will I confess unto them, I have not known you, depart from Me, ye that work iniquity' (Matt. vii. 22, 23). Hence it is evident that those who place worship in a name—as the Jews in the name of Jehovah, and Christians in the name of the Lord—are not on that account more worthy, because the name effects nothing; but that they be such as He has commanded, which is 'to believe in His name.' And that they say that there is no salvation in any other name than the Lord's, means that there is none in any other doctrine; that is, in no other than mutual love, which is the true doctrine of faith; and thus in no other than the Lord, because all love and derivative faith are from Him alone. 3006.

2010. (Why the names 'Abram' and 'Sarai' were altered.)

2311. All the names (in the Word)=Things. Refs. 2503<sup>o</sup>. 2607, Examps. 3302.

2439. 'To call the name' (Gen.xix.22)=to know the quality.

2628. 'To call the name' (Gen.xxi.3)=the quality.

2724. 'To call on the name of God' (Gen.xxxi.33)=worship. Those of the Ancient Church, by 'name' did not understand the name, but all the quality; thus, by 'the name of God,' everything in one complex by which God is worshipped, consequently everything of love and faith. But, when internal worship had perished, and only external worship remained, then, by 'the name of God' they began to understand nothing else than the name, insomuch that they worshipped the name itself, caring nothing from what love, and from what faith. Therefore the nations began to distinguish themselves by the names of the gods; and the Jews and Israelites set themselves above the rest by their worshipping Jehovah, placing the essential of worship in naming and calling on the name; when yet the worship of a name alone is no worship, being possible with the worst, who thereby profane the more. 3006<sup>2</sup>.

—<sup>2</sup>. But, as by 'the name of God' is signified everything of worship, that is, everything of love and faith from which He is worshipped, it is evident what is meant by, 'Hallowed be Thy name.' Further ill.

—<sup>3</sup>. But those who worship the name only, without love and faith, are spoken of in Matt.vii.22,23.

— See God, here.

2759. (These simple Spirits) said that they know the Lord, to whose name they commend themselves.

2760<sup>2</sup>. 'Having a name written which no one knew but He Himself' (Rev.xix.)=that the quality of the Word in the internal sense no one sees except Himself, and him to whom He reveals it.

—<sup>e</sup>. 'Upon His vestment and upon His thigh a name written' (id.)=truth and good.

2836. 'To call the name' (Gen.xxii.14)=to know the quality; or, the quality.

2921. (Names of the Lord ennm. and ex.)

3021<sup>3</sup>. 'Name'=quality. Refs.

3130. 'Name'=the quality of anyone. Refs.

3237. As quality is not predicated of the Divine, but esse, by 'name' (Gen.xxv.1) is signified essence.

3267. 'In their names, according to their nativities' (ver.13)=the interior qualities—qualities—according to the derivations of faith. 'Name'=quality—quale; and 'names'=qualities—qualitates; here, interior qualities, because it is said: 'These are the names of the sons of Ishmael in their names,' where 'names' in the former place=general qualities; but here, the qualities which are in them . . . 3266. 3269.

3302. 'To call the name,' or 'to call by name' (ver. 25)=to know the quality; thus the quality. Refs. 3305. 3322.

3353<sup>3</sup>. 'Many shall come in My name, saying, I am Christ' (Matt.xxiv.5). Here, 'name' does not signify name . . . but that by which the Lord is worshipped.

3421. 'And called names to them' (Gen.xxvi.18)=their quality. 3422. 3429. 3433.

3427. (Names were given to record circumstances.)

3443. 'He called on the name of Jehovah' (Gen.xxvi. 25)=the derivative worship . . . 'The name of Jehovah' =everything in one complex by which the Lord is worshipped.

3465. 'Names'=the Thing, or state. Refs.

3466. 'Name'=the quality.

3488<sup>3</sup>. 'Ye shall be hated . . . for My name's sake'=contempt and aversion for all things which are of good and truth. . . 'For My name's sake'=on account of the Lord; thus, on account of all things which are from Him. That 'the Lord's name'=everything in one complex by which He is worshipped; thus everything which is of His Church. Refs.

3667. In ancient times they distinguished . . . the Lord by various names. (See God, here.)

3729. 'He called the name of the place Bethel' (Gen.xxviii.19)=the quality of the state. Ex. 3730.

3767<sup>2</sup>. Names=Things, and also those with whom these Things are; as 'Tyre,' and 'Zidon' . . .

3819. 'The names' ('Leah' and 'Rachel')=the quality.

3861. 'The names' ('Reuben,' 'Simeon,' etc.)=the quality. 3872. 3877. 3881. 3923. 3928. 3935. 3939. 3957. 3961. 3964.

— The Ancients bestowed names significative of states. Examps.

4162<sup>2</sup>. Because those of the Ancient Church distinguished the Divine by various names; and this according to the diverse things which had appeared in effects. Examp.

—<sup>3</sup>. The rest of the Divine attributes they also called by singular names; but those who were wise . . . by all these names understood the one only Lord . . .

4195. 'To call a name'=quality. 4197. 4237.

4197. For the names, anciently, contained the quality.

4285. 'What is thy name? And he said, Jacob' (Gen.xxxii.27)=the quality of good from truth. See 4291. 4292.

4286. (The change of name from 'Jacob' to 'Israel,' ex.)

4295. 'Jacob . . . said, Tell . . . thy name' (ver.29)=the angelic Heaven and its quality. Ex. 4296.

4298. 'Jacob called the name of the place Peniel' (ver.30)=a state of temptations . . . For, in olden times, names were bestowed upon places where anything peculiar was happening, which names were significative of that Thing which happened there, and of its state. . . 'Peniel' means 'the faces of God' (and) 'to see the faces of God'=to endure the most grievous temptations. 4310.

[A.] 4310. The names of places, like the names of persons, and also the Things themselves, have not the like signification in one sense (of the Word) as in another; as [for instance] 'Jacob.' In the sense of the letter it=Jacob himself; in the internal historical sense, his posterity; in the internal spiritual sense, the natural man with one who has been regenerated; and, in the supreme sense, the Lord as to the Divine Natural. So also, all the other names.

4392. 'He called the name of the place Succoth' (Gen. xxxiii. 17)=the quality of his state. Ex.

4565. 'He called the name thereof Allon-bachuth' (Gen. xxxv. 8)=the quality of the Natural, that it was expelled. Ex.

4568. 'God said . . . Thy name is Jacob' (ver. 10)=the quality of the Lord's external Divine Natural.

4569. 'Thy name shall no longer be called Jacob' (id.) =that it would no longer be external only.

4570. 'But Israel shall be thy name' (id.)=the quality of the internal Natural, or the quality of His Spiritual. Ex.

4583. 'Jacob called the name of the place . . . Bethel' (ver. 15)=the Divine Natural and its state. 'To call a name'=quality.

4591. 'She called his name Benoni' (ver. 18)=the quality of that state.

—<sup>e</sup>. Anciently, names significative of the states were bestowed upon infants. Refs.

4592<sup>a</sup>. There are six names which frequently occur in the propheticals where it treats of the Church. . . Enum.

—<sup>u</sup>. That names=Things, is manifestly evident here . . .

4641. This good is described by mere names (Gen. xxxvi.).

4642<sup>a</sup>. Still, when this chapter (of mere names) is read, the derivations (of the Lord's Divine natural good) which are contained in the names are represented to the Angels in a general way by means of the influx of Divine love . . .

4644. Besides, these are mere names . . . and to explicate mere names, without any historical sense which precedes and follows, from which [there might be] confirming light, would be to place the Thing in doubt; for few can believe that Things are signified by the names in the Word, however it be shown them.

4817. 'His name was Hirah' (Gen. xxxviii. 1)=the quality (of the falsity).

4819. 'Her name was Shuah' (ver. 2)=the quality (of the evil from the falsity of evil).

4822. 'He called his name Er' (ver. 3)=the quality (of the falsity of the Church).

4823. Er was called by name by his father, (and therefore) falsity was signified by him; but as Onan (was called by name) from the mother, evil is signified by him. Ex.

4824. 'She called his name Onan' (ver. 4)=the quality (of the evil).

4826. 'She called his name Shelah' (ver. 5)=the quality (of the Idolatrous).

4831. 'Her name was Tamar' (ver. 6)=the quality of (that representative) Church.

4855<sup>e</sup>. That the names of places in the Word all=Things and states. Refs.

4927. 'She called his name Pharez' (ver. 29)=the quality . . . of the separation of truth from good apparently.

4930. 'She called his name Zarah' (ver. 30)=the quality (that good is the firstborn actually, and truth apparently). Ex.

4973. 'A name written' (Rev. xix.)=His quality.

5095. When a number of persons are mentioned . . . in the internal sense they do indeed signify various things, but only in one person. The reason is, that names=Things. Examps.

—<sup>e</sup>. So in the Prophets, where the utterance is sometimes made by mere names, whether of persons, kingdoms, cities, they still together present and describe one Thing . . .

5331. 'Pharaoh called the name of Joseph Zaphnath Paaneah' (Gen. xli. 45)=the quality of the Celestial of the Spiritual then. Ex.

5351. 'Joseph called the name of the first-born Manasseh' (ver. 51)=the new Voluntary in the Natural and its quality. Ex.

5354. 'The name of the second he called Ephraim' (ver. 52)=the new Intellectual in the Natural and its quality. Ex.

5628. The Ancients distinguished the one God by various names, according to the various things which are from Him. . . By the name 'Shaddai' they did not understand another God; but the one only one as to temptations. But, when the Ancient Church had declined, they began to worship as many gods as there were names of the one God . . .

6280<sup>a</sup>. 'My name is in the midst of him' (Ex. xxiii. 21), that is, Jehovah Himself. By 'My name' is signified the quality of Jehovah, which is in the Divine Human. That the Lord as to the Divine Human is 'the name of Jehovah.' Ref. And that 'the name of God'=the quality, and also everything in one complex by means of which God is worshipped. Refs.

6283. 'In them let my name be called' (Gen. xlviii. 16)=that in them [should be] the quality of the good of spiritual truth from the Natural. Ex.

6516<sup>a</sup>. From the most ancient times all the places, etc. in Canaan were representative of such things as belong to the Lord's Kingdom; and the very names which were bestowed on them involved such things; for each name which is given to any place, or person, from Heaven, involves what is celestial and spiritual; and, when it has been given from Heaven, it is perceived there; and the Most Ancient Church, which . . . had communication with Heaven, had bestowed the names.

—<sup>o</sup>. (For) as the names in the Word have been inscribed in Heaven, what they signify is at once perceived there.

6543. 'They called the name thereof Abel Mizraim' (Gen.i.11)=the quality of the grief.

6637. 'These are the names of the sons of Israel' (Ex.i.1)=the quality of the Church. Ex.

6662. Names, in the Word,=the quality and state of the Thing which is being treated of.

6674. 'The name of the one was Shiprah, and the name of the other Puah' (ver.15)=the quality and state of the Natural where scientifics are. . . For all the names in the Word=Things; and, in sum, comprehend those things which belong to the Thing which is being treated of; thus its quality and state. Ex. and Ill.

—<sup>2</sup>. 'Where two or three are gathered together in My name' (Matt.xviii.20). The name is not meant here; but the worship from faith and charity.

—<sup>3</sup>. Here, also (John i.12) by 'His name' is meant the faith and charity with which the Lord is worshipped.

—<sup>3</sup>. Here (Jobn xiv.13,14; xv.16,17; xvi.23,24) it is not meant that they should ask the Father in the Lord's name; but that they should ask the Lord Himself. . . as He Himself says: 'If ye shall ask anything in My name, I will do it' (John xiv.14). This may be still further evident from the fact that the Lord is 'the name' of Jehovah. Ill.

—<sup>4</sup>. From these passages it is evident that the Lord as to the Divine Human is 'the name' of Jehovah, or the whole of His quality. Hence all Divine worship is from the Divine Human, and this is what is to be worshipped. . .

—<sup>5</sup>. That 'the name' of the Lord is everything of faith and love by means of which the Lord is to be worshipped. Ill.

—<sup>6</sup>. 'The names written in Heaven' (Luke x.20) are not names, but the quality of their faith and charity. In like manner 'the names written in the Book of Life' (Rev.iii.4,5).

—<sup>8</sup>. That 'the name of Jehovah'=everything with which He is worshipped; thus, in the supreme sense, everything which proceeds from the Lord, is evident from the Benediction (Num.vi.23-27).

6752. 'She called his name Moses' (Ex.ii.10)=the quality of the state then. Ex.

—<sup>9</sup>. When anyone is named, the name itself then=the state. Refs.

6795. 'He called his name Gershom' (ver.22)=the quality (of the truths).

6804. Where 'Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob' are named in the Word, these [men] are not meant, as may be evident from the fact that names never penetrate into Heaven; but only that which is signified by those who are named; thus the Things themselves, the quality of the Things, and the state of the Things, which, to wit are of the Church, and which are of the Lord's Kingdom, and which are of the Lord Himself. Further ex.

6877. 'Should they say to me, what is His name?' (Ex.iii.13)=His quality. Ex.

6887. 'This is My name to eternity' (Ex.iii.15)=that the Divine Human is the quality of the Divine Itself; (for) 'the name of God'=everything in one complex by means of which God is worshipped; thus [His] quality. And, as the Divine Itself cannot be worshipped. . . it is therefore the Divine Human—because the quality of the Divine Itself—which can be approached and worshipped.

—<sup>2</sup>. That the Divine Human is 'the name of Jehovah.' Ill.

—<sup>2</sup>. Here (John xii.28) the Lord as to the Divine Human calls Himself 'the name of the Father.

—<sup>3</sup>. By 'Our Father in the Heavens, hallowed be Thy name' is meant the Lord as to the Divine Human; and also everything in one complex by means of which He is to be worshipped.

6888. 'Name' is predicated of the quality of the Divine in worship as to both truth and good; but, in special, as to good.

7167. 'The name' of Jehovah' (Ex.v.23)=everything of faith and charity with which the Lord is worshipped; thus everything which is of the Law Divine; for the Law Divine is nothing else than that which is of charity and faith. Ex.

7456. 'To blaspheme the name of Jehovah' (Lev. xxiv.16)=by means of malevolent falsities to inflict violence on the truths and goods which are of worship. Ex.

7550. 'That My name may be told in the whole earth' (Ex.ix.16)=that thus the Lord may be acknowledged as the only God where the Church is; (for) 'the name'=everything in one complex with which the Lord is worshipped; and, as the most essential thing of worship is the acknowledgment that the Lord is the only God, and that His Human is Divine, and that from it proceeds everything of faith and love, therefore, by 'to tell the name of Jehovah,' is signified that the Lord is to be acknowledged as the only God. Ex.

8274. 'Jehovah is His name' (Ex.xv.3)=that He alone is that from which all things are. 'The name of Jehovah'=all things of faith and love, or all things of good and truth in the complex, by means of which the Lord is worshipped; and, in the supreme sense, the Divine Human of the Lord, from which are all these things. Refs.

8398. For the names include all the quality of the state of the Thing which is being treated of.

8478. 'They scarcely want Providence to be named.

8520. 'They called the name thereof manna' (Ex. xvi.31)=its quality with them.

8587. 'He called the name of the place Massah' (Ex. xvii.7)=the quality of the state of temptation.

8624. 'He called the name of it Jehovah Nissi' (ver. 15)=the continual war and protection of the Lord against those who are in the falsity of interior evil; (for) the names bestowed by the Ancients in the Church signified the quality and state of the Thing then being treated of; and they also involved the same things in the names themselves. Refs.

8650. 'Of whom the name of the one was Gershom, because he said, I have been a sojourner in a strange land' (Ex.xviii.3)=the quality of the good of truth of those who are outside the Church. Ex.

[A.] 8651. 'And the name of the other was Eliezer' (id.)=the quality of the good of truth of those within the Church. Ex.

8882. 'Thou shalt not take the name of thy God into what is vain' (Ex.xx.7)=profanations and blasphemings of the truth and good of faith; (for) 'the name' of God=everything in the complex with which the Lord is worshipped; thus everything true and good of faith. . . By 'to take the name of God into what is vain' is properly signified to turn truth into evil; that is, to believe that it is truth, and still to live in evil; and it is also to turn good into falsity; that is, to live holily, and still not to believe. Both are profanation. Ex.

—4. By 'to take the name of God into what is vain' is also signified blaspheming, which is done when those things which are of the Word or of the doctrine of faith are held in derision, and are brought down to unclean earthly things, and are thus defiled.

—By 'to take the name of God into what is vain,' relatively to the Israelitish nation, which did not acknowledge anything good and true of faith—which are signified by 'the name of God'—is meant the application of the name of Jehovah, and also of the precepts and statutes which had been commanded them, to the worship of idols. Ill.

8938. 'In every place in which I shall put the memory of My name' (ver.24)=the state of faith with anyone . . . because 'the name of Jehovah'=everything in one complex by means of which the Lord is worshipped; thus all things of faith and charity. Ex.

9283. 'The name of other gods ye shall not mention' (Ex.xxiii.13)=that we are not to think from the doctrine of falsity; (for) 'a name'=everything of faith, and everything of worship, in the complex; here, everything of the doctrine of falsity, because by 'other gods' are signified falsities.

9310. 'Because My name is in the midst of him' (Ex.xxiii.21)=that from Him are all the good of love and all the truth of faith. Ex.

—2. In these passages, and in very many others, by 'the name' of the Lord are signified all the good of love and truth of faith in the complex by means of which He is worshipped.

—3. 'To ask the Father in My name' is to ask the Lord. Ill.

—6. 'To call (His own sheep) by name, and lead them forth' (John x.3)=to give Heaven according to the good of love and of faith; for 'name,' when said of men,=their quality as to love and faith. Refs.

9429. 'The name of Jehovah' (Is.liv.19)=all the truth of faith and good of love from which is worship. Refs.

9842. 'Thou shalt engrave upon them the names of the sons of Israel' (Ex.xxviii.9)=on which have been impressed the goods and truths of the Spiritual Kingdom as to all their quality. . . 'Names'=the quality. 9875.

10216. The names (in the Word) do not pass into the Heavens; for these names are among material things, which are solely for the corporeal sensuous man; but in their place are perceived the Things spiritually which are of Heaven and the Church. . .

—2. In the inmost Heaven, where the Lord is more present than in the Heavens below, by the names in the Word, in a good sense, is understood the Lord Himself. Enum. And, as the Lord is there understood by them, the Divine things which are of Heaven and the Church, which are from the Lord, are perceived by means of the same names, according to the series of Things in the Word.

10282. Therefore neither does the name of any person, of whom mention is made in the Word, enter Heaven; but the Thing which is there signified by the person.

10329. 'I have' called by name Bezaleel. . . (Ex. xxxi.2)=those in the good of love, with whom the Church is to be instaurated. 'To call by name'=to choose such; namely, those who are suitable.

—2. In the names themselves of persons and places which are in the Word there is nothing spiritual, unless they=the Things of the Church and of Heaven; for these are spiritual. Hence it follows, that by these names also Things are signified.

—3. The reason 'to call by name,' in the 'spiritual sense, =to choose such as are suitable, is that by 'name,' without the person, is signified the quality. Refs. And by 'to call,' without the name, in like manner. Refs.

—4. There are two who are here named . . .

10562. 'Thou hast said, I know thee by name' (Ex. xxxiii.12)=his quality.

10615. 'He called on the name of Jehovah' (Ex. xxxiv.5)=the worship of the Lord from the truths and goods of faith and love; and thus preparation for reception. Ex.

10683. 'To receive' in the name of anyone (Matt. x.40-42)=on account of his quality.

H. 562. When he merely heard the Divine named, and especially when he heard the Lord named, he was excited with hatred . . .

W. H. 12. 'Having a name written which no one knew except Himself'=that no one but Himself sees the quality of the Word in the internal sense, and he to whom He reveals it.

—'Upon His vestment and upon His thigh His name written'=truth and good, and their quality.

L. 2. By the names of persons and places (in the Word) is signified something belonging to the Lord, and thence something belonging to Heaven and the Church from Him; or something opposite.

22. In the Word of the Old Testament, the Lord is distinguished by various names, everywhere according to the Thing which is treated of. Enum. In like manner in the Word of the New Testament. Enum.

25. By 'the name' of Jehovah, of the Lord, of the Son of God, is meant the Divine truth; thus also the Word, which is from Him, concerning Him, and thus is Himself.

S. 15. Here (Is.x.24-34) mere names occur, from which nothing can be drawn except with the aid of the spiritual sense, in which all the names in the Word=the Things of Heaven and the Church. . . —3.

71. As their writing is such, therefore there are not any names of persons and places in their Word, which are in ours; but instead of the names are the Things which they signify; as for 'Moses,' there is 'the historical Word,' etc. etc. (Compare T.241<sup>2</sup>.)

80°. For, some words and names (in the Word) are predicated of good; and some of truth; and some include both.

102°. In (our) Word many names of places have been retained, which are in the Land of Canaan, and in Asia round about it, and signify like things to those which they signified in the Ancient Word.

Life 17°. 'To believe in the name of the Son of God' = to believe the Word, and live according to it.

F. 49. In the Word, by all the names of nations and peoples, and also of persons and places, are signified the Things of the Church. Examps.

P. 230. The profanation of what is holy is meant . . . by 'Thou shalt not profane the name of thy God;' and, that profanation is not to be committed . . . by 'Hallowed be Thy name.' What is meant by 'the name of God,' is known by scarcely anyone in the Christian World. The reason is that it is not known that in the Spiritual World there are not names as in the natural world; but that everyone is named according to the quality of his love and wisdom; for, as soon as anyone comes into society or consort with others, he is at once named according to his quality there. The naming-nominatio -is done by the spiritual language, which is such that a name can be given to every Thing, because there each letter in the alphabet signifies one Thing; and a number of letters joined together into one word, which constitute the name of a person, involve the entire state of the Thing.

—<sup>2</sup>. From these things it is evident that by 'the name of God,' in the Word, is signified God with everything Divine which is in Him, and which proceeds from Him; and as the Word is the proceeding Divine, it is 'the name of God;' and, as all the Divine things which are called the spiritual things of the Church are from the Word, these also are 'the name of God.'

—<sup>3</sup>. By 'the name,' and by 'the reward,' of a prophet' (Matt.x.) is meant the state and happiness of those who are in Divine truths: by the 'name,' and 'the reward, of a just one,' the state and happiness of those who are in Divine goods.

262°. In the Spiritual World, where everyone is held in speaking what he thinks, no one can even name 'Jesus,' except him who has lived in the world as a Christian; and this from His Divine Providence, lest His name should be profaned.

R. 8°. In Heaven a person is regarded from that which belongs to his office and function. From it also every man, Spirit, and Angel there is named . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. 'To receive a prophet in the name of a prophet' = to receive the doctrine of truth because it is truth: 'to receive a just one in the name of a just one' = to receive good for the sake of good. E.102°. 624°. 695°.

44°. 'The name of Jehovah' = everything Divine.

81. 'For My name's sake hast laboured . . .' (Rev.ii.3) = study . . . to procure and teach those things which are of religion and its doctrine. By 'the name' of Jehovah or of the Lord, in the Word, is not meant His name, but everything by means of which He is worshipped; and, as He is worshipped according to the doctrine in the Church, by His 'name' is meant everything of doctrine; and, in the universal sense, everything of religion. The reason these things are meant by 'the name' of Jehovah, is that in Heaven no other names are given than those which involve the quality of some one; and the quality of God is everything by means of which He is worshipped. III.

—<sup>3</sup>. In like manner in the New Testament, by 'the name' of the Lord. III.

—<sup>4</sup>. That the Lord as to the Divine Human is 'the name' of the Father. III.

111. 'Thou holdest My name' (ver.13) = when yet they have religion, and worship according to it. Ex.

122. 'In the stone a new name written' (ver.17) = that they will have a quality of good which they had not before. 'A name' = the quality of a Thing; here, therefore, the quality of the good. All the quality of good is from the truths united to it . . .

157. 'Thou hast a name that thou livest' (Rev.iii.1) = that it seems to themselves and others . . . that they are spiritually alive. . . By 'to have a name,' is signified to seem and to be believed to be such.

165. 'Thou hast a few names even in Sardis' (ver.4) = that among them are also those who have life in their worship. By 'a few names' are signified some who are such . . . for 'a name' = the quality of anyone. The reason is, that in the Spiritual World everyone is named according to his quality.

170. 'I will confess his name before My Father, and before His Angels' (ver.5) = that those will be received who are in Divine good and in Divine truths from the Lord; thus who have the life of Heaven in themselves. 'To confess the name' = to acknowledge the quality of anyone, or that he is such.

180. 'Thou hast not denied My name' (ver.8) = that they are in the worship of the Lord. Ex.

193. 'I will write upon him the name of my God' (ver.12) = that the Divine truth will be inscribed on their hearts. . . 'The name of My God' = the Divine truth. Ex.

196. 'And My new name' (ver.12) = the worship of the Lord alone with new things which had not been in the former Church. Ex.

410. By 'the name (of the star)' (Rev.viii.11) is signified its quality.

440. By 'the name' (Rev.ix.11) is signified the quality of the state.

516. By 'the names of men seven thousand' (Rev.xi.13) are signified all who had confessed faith alone . . . By 'the names' are signified those who are such; for 'the name' = the quality of the man.

527. 'To them that fear Thy name' (ver.18) = those who love the things which are the Lord's . . . By the Lord's 'name' are signified all the things by means of which He is worshipped.

584. 'He opened his mouth in blasphemies against God and His name' (Rev.xiii.6) = their utterances . . .

against the Divine Itself and the Divine Human of the Lord, and at the same time against everything of the Church from the Word by means of which the Lord is worshipped. . . By 'His name' is signified everything by means of which the Lord is worshipped, and also the Word, because worship is according to it. That by 'the name' of Jehovah, or of God, is signified the Divine Human of the Lord, and at the same time the Word, and also everything by means of which He is worshipped. III.

[R.] 613. 'Having His Father's name written in their foreheads' (Rev. xiv. 1) = the acknowledgment of the Divine and of the Divine Human of the Lord from the love and faith with them. By 'the name of the Father' is meant the Lord as to the Divine a quo . . . and at the same time as to the Divine Human . . . because they are one . . .

618<sup>4</sup>. By 'to ask the Father in His name' is not meant to approach God the Father immediately, nor to ask for His sake; but to approach the Lord, and the Father through Him, because the Father is in the Son, and they are one . . . 'In His name' = this. III.

660. By 'the number of His name' (Rev. xv. 2) is signified the falsification of the Word.

692. 'They blasphemed the name of God . . .' (Rev. xvi. 9) . . . 'The name of God' = the Divine Human of the Lord and at the same time the Word.

756. They cannot endure to hear the Lord named.

824. 'Having a name written which no man knows except Himself' (Rev. xix. 12) = that the quality of the Word in its spiritual and celestial sense is seen by no one except the Lord, and him to whom He reveals it. Ex.

830. 'And He has upon His vestment and upon His thigh a name written, King of kings, and Lord of lords' (ver. 16) = that the Lord teaches in the Word what His quality is, that it is the Divine truth of the Divine wisdom, and the Divine good of the Divine love; thus that He is the God of the universe. Ex.

839<sup>8</sup>. 'Hallowed be Thy name' = to go to the Lord and worship Him. III.

900<sup>2</sup>. By 'the names written over (the gates)' (Rev. xxi. 12) is signified all their quality; thus the quality in them; for all the quality is from the internals in the externals.

903. In them the names of the twelve apostles of the Lamb' (ver. 13) = all things of doctrine from the Word concerning the Lord, and concerning a life according to His precepts. . . By 'twelve names' is signified all its quality; and all its quality has reference to (these two things).

938. 'His name shall be in their foreheads' (Rev. xxi. 4) = . . . that the Lord will turn Himself to them. . . By 'the Lord's name in their foreheads' is signified that the Lord loves them, and turns them to Himself. By 'the Lord's name' is signified the Lord Himself; because there is signified all His quality, by which He is Known, and according to which He is worshipped.

M. 459<sup>5</sup>. Criminal things which are not to be named.

T. 297. 'Thou shalt not take the name of Jehovah thy God into what is vain; because Jehovah will not hold him guiltless who shall take His name into what is vain.' By 'to take the name of Jehovah God into what is vain,' in the natural sense . . . is meant the name itself, and its abuse in various kinds of conversation, especially in uttering falsehoods or lies, and in oaths without a cause, and for the purpose of exculpation in evil intentions . . . and in sorceries and enchantments. But to swear by God and His holiness, the Word, and the Gospel, in coronations, in inaugurations into the priesthood, and in initiations of fidelity, is not to take the name of God into what is vain, unless he who takes the oath afterwards rejects his promises as vain. The name of God, being holiness itself, must be constantly made use of in the holy things which belong to the Church . . . The reason is that God is in all things of religion; and, when He is rightly invoked, He is present by His name, and hears. In these things the name of God is hallowed.

—<sup>2</sup>. That the name of Jehovah God is holy in itself, is evident from that name, in that the Jews since their first time have not dared . . . to say Jehovah . . . That the name Jesus is in like manner holy, is known from the apostle's saying that at that name the knee is bent . . . and moreover that it can be named by no devil in Hell.

—<sup>6</sup>. There are many names of God which are not to be taken into what is vain. Enum.

298. In the spiritual sense, by 'the name' of God is meant all that which the Church teaches from the Word, and by means of which the Lord is invoked and worshipped. All these things in the complex are 'the name' of God. And therefore by 'to take the name of God into what is vain, is meant to take anything therefrom in frivolous conversation, in speaking falsely, in lies, imprecations, sorceries, and enchantments; for this also is to revile and blaspheme God; thus His name. That the Word, and whatever the Church has therefrom, and thus all worship, is 'the name of God.' III.

299. In the celestial sense, by 'to take the name of God into what is vain' is meant that which the Lord said to the Pharisees (concerning 'the blasphemy of the Spirit,' by which) is meant blasphemy against the Divinity of the Lord's Human, and against the holiness of the Word. That the Divine Human of the Lord is meant by 'the name' of Jehovah God, in the celestial or supreme sense. III.

300. That by the name of anyone is meant not only his name, but also all his quality, is evident from the names in the Spiritual World. No one there retains the name which he received in baptism, and that which he had from his father . . . but everyone there is named according to his quality; and the Angels are called according to their moral and spiritual life. III.

—<sup>2</sup>. In the natural world, by the name is not meant the name only, but at the same time his quality, because this adheres to his name; for in common discourse it is said, He does this for the sake of his name . . . This man has a great name; by which is signified that he is celebrated for such things as are in him . . . Who does not know that he who disparages and calunnimates anyone as to his name, also disparages and calumniates the acts of his life? They are conjoined in idea. Further ex.

309. See KILL, here.

330. In proportion as anyone does not take the name of God into what is vain, in the same proportion he loves the things which are from God.

682. By 'the name' of the Lord Jesus Christ nothing else is meant in the Word than the acknowledgment of Him, and a life according to His precepts. Ill.

—<sup>2</sup>. Therefore the name that one is a Christian means his quality, that he has faith in Christ, and charity towards the neighbour from Christ. Ill. 683.

D. 2631<sup>2</sup>. Therefore also the words of names (in Hebrew) are not distinguished by capital initials.

3568. That those who are not in faith cannot even name the Lord. Ex.

—<sup>3</sup>. Nor could [such] a Spirit name faith . . .

4056. Concerning a certain (Spirit) who was in the habit of naming the devil. Ex.

4345. A certain Jew (who could not remember what his name had been.) 4385.

5604. In their Word (in Heaven) there are no names . . . but Things in their place.

5952. They are only the names of the one God.

6035<sup>11</sup>. All the quality of a Thing, person, or place can be named there; and, from the hearing of the name the quality is at once known, together with many things which are therein. This cannot be done in the natural world.

E. 8<sup>2</sup>. The names in the Word do not signify persons, but Things. Examp. 9, Ill.

102. 'For My name's sake hast laboured'=the acknowledgment of the Lord, and of the Knowledges of truth which regard Him; (for) 'the name' of Jehovah or of the Lord, in the supreme sense,=His Divine Human; and, in the relative sense, all the things of love and of faith by means of which the Lord is worshipped; because these are the Divine things which proceed from His Divine Human. Ill.

—<sup>2</sup>. In the Spiritual World, the names which are on earth are not uttered; but the names of the persons who are spoken about are formed from the idea of all things which are known about them, which are combined into a single word . . . whence it is that the names also there . . . are spiritual. The name 'Lord,' and the name 'Jesus Christ,' are not uttered there as on earth; but, instead of these names, a name is formed from the idea of all things which are known and believed concerning Him, which idea is from all things of love and faith in Him. The reason is that these things in the complex are the Lord with them; for the Lord is with everyone in the goods of love and of faith which are from Him. As this is so, the quality of everyone there as to love and faith in the Lord is at once Known if he only utters in a spiritual word or name 'Lord,' or 'Jesus Christ,' and hence also it is that those who are not in any love, or in any faith in Him, are unable to name Him; that is, to form any spiritual name concerning Him . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. Lest, therefore, the opinion . . . should prevail, that the mere name 'Jesus Christ,' without love and faith in Him, thus without Knowledges . . . contributes something to salvation, I will adduce some passages from the Word where the expressions 'for His name's sake,' and 'in His name,' occur; from which those who think more deeply can see that the name alone is not meant. Ill.

—<sup>4</sup>. 'To ask in My name,' is to ask from love and faith.

—<sup>4</sup>. The like to that which is meant by 'the name of the Lord,' is meant by 'the name of Jehovah,' in the Old Testament. Ill.

—<sup>5</sup>. 'Where He shall place His name' (Deut. xii., xvi.) is where there shall be worship from the good of love and the truths of faith.

—<sup>6</sup>. As by 'the name' of Jehovah, or of the Lord, is signified all worship from the good of love and the truths of faith; therefore, in the supreme sense, by 'the name' of Jehovah is meant the Lord as to the Divine Human; for the reason that from His Divine Human proceeds everything of love and faith. That, in the supreme sense, the Lord is meant by 'the name' of Jehovah. Ill.

—<sup>7</sup>. 'Hallowed be Thy name' (therefore) means that the Divine Human of the Lord is to be held holily, and worshipped.

135. 'Thou holdest My name'=the acknowledgment of the Divine in the Human of the Lord . . .

148. 'In the stone a new name written which no one knoweth but he who receiveth it'=a state of interior life unknown to all besides those who are in it. 'A name'=the quality of the state; here, the quality of the state of the interior life . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. That 'name,' in the Word,=the quality of the state. Ill.

—<sup>3</sup>. 'He calls all by name'=that he knows the quality of all; and gives to them according to the state of love and faith with them.

—<sup>4</sup>. 'I have called thee by thy name' (Is. xlv. 3, 4)=that He has known the quality of the state of the Church.

—<sup>5</sup>. 'The name being cut off and destroyed before Jehovah' (Is. xlviii. 19)=the quality of the state by which conjunction is effected . . .

—<sup>6</sup>. 'To call by a new name,' and 'by another name,'=to give another state of life; namely, a state of spiritual life.

—<sup>7</sup>. 'Polluted in name' (Ezek. xxii. 5)=abounding with falsities and the derivative evils, which make its quality.

—<sup>8</sup>. 'Names written in the Book of Life'=all things of man's love and faith, thus all things of his spiritual life, as to their quality.

—<sup>9</sup>. 'His name in their foreheads'=a state of love.

—<sup>10</sup>. The reason 'name,' in the Word,=the quality of the man's state, is that in the Spiritual World each one is named according to the state of life in which he is; thus variously. For spiritual speech is not like human speech. All things there are expressed according to ideas concerning Things and concerning persons; and these ideas fall into words.

151<sup>5</sup>. To believe in 'the name' of the Lord = to acknowledge His Divine Human, and to receive love and faith from Him.

[E.] 186. 'Thou hast a name that thou livest, and art dead'=the quality of their thought... because they are leading a moral life... Ex.

195. 'Thou hast a few names even in Sardis...' = those who lead a moral life from a spiritual origin... 'Name'=the quality of the state of man's life; here, therefore, 'names'=men who are such.

199. 'I will not blot his name out of the Book of Life'=that they will be in Heaven because they are accommodated thereto. 'Name'=the quality of the state of man's life. Ex.

209. 'Thou hast not denied My name'=that they... acknowledge the Divine of the Lord in His Human.

222. 'I will write upon him the name of My God'=their quality according to Divine truth implanted in the life... 'Name'=the quality of the state.

224. 'And My new name'=that they will also acknowledge the Divine Human of the Lord... The reason the Lord's 'new name'=His Divine Human, is that in this Prophetic Book... it treats of those who will be in the New Jerusalem, and of those who will not be. Further ex.

294<sup>8</sup>. 'To call by name'=reception according to the quality of each one.

295<sup>13</sup>. 'To believe in the name' of the Lord=to live according to the precepts of His doctrine.

313<sup>8</sup>. 'My name is in the midst of him'=that all Divine good and Divine truth are in Him.

324<sup>11</sup>. 'My name shall be great among the nations' (Mal.i.11)=the acknowledgment and worship of the Lord among those who are in good.

329<sup>30</sup>. By 'the name' of the Lord (John i.12) are meant all the truths and goods by means of which He is to be worshipped.

340<sup>5</sup>. 'Name' (Ps.xvii.2) is said of truths; and 'salvation,' of good.

—<sup>8</sup>. 'Blessed is He who cometh in the name of the Lord' (Luke xix.38)=that He was glorified because from Him is all Divine truth and Divine good. 'The name of the Lord'=everything by means of which He is worshipped; and, as everything of this relates to the good of love and to the truth of faith, therefore these are signified by 'the name of the Lord.'

—<sup>11</sup>. Communication and conjunction with those who receive, are meant by, 'Thus shall they put My name upon the sons of Israel' (Num.vi.27). By 'the name of Jehovah' is signified the proceeding Divine, which, in general, is called Divine truth and Divine good.

383. 'His name was Death' (Rev.vi.8)... 'Name'=the quality of a Thing; here, the quality of the Word with those who are in evils and the derivative falsities.

410<sup>8</sup>. 'This house upon which My name is named' (Jer.vii.11)=the Church where there is worship from the goods of life through the truths of doctrine... 'The name' of Jehovah=all that through which He is worshipped; thus good and truth; the latter of doctrine, and the former of life.

411<sup>16</sup>. 'If two of you shall consent together upon the earth in My name concerning any thing that ye shall ask, it shall be done for them by My Father who is in the Heavens' (Matt.xviii.19). By 'the name' of the Lord is meant everything by means of which He is worshipped; and, as He is worshipped by means of the truth from good which is from Him, therefore this is meant by His 'name.' 696<sup>3</sup>.

453<sup>7</sup>. 'He calls them all by name' (Is.xl.26)=that He knows the quality of all, and that according thereto He disposes; for by 'name,' in the Word, is signified the quality of the Thing and state. Ill. 519. 563.

555<sup>8</sup>. That it is only truth which can be applied, and, through application, conjoined, is signified by, 'Only let thy name be named upon us' (Is.iv.1).

624<sup>4</sup>. To teach the Word and doctrinal things from the Word, is meant by, 'Have we not prophesied through Thy name?' (Matt.vii.22). By 'name' is signified according to doctrine from the Word.

638<sup>17</sup>. 'To call the name'=the quality of it.

650<sup>19</sup>. 'To call the name'=to know the quality of the Thing, or of what quality it is. 710<sup>19</sup>.

—<sup>63</sup>. 'The name of Jehovah'=all the truth of doctrine and of the Church.

659<sup>20</sup>. 'The seed of the malicious shall not be named to eternity' (Is.xiv.20)=eternal dissociation and separation.

676. 'There were killed in the earthquake the names of men seven thousand'=that in that change of state all the truths of good perished with them... 'The names of men'=the truths of good, and the derivative understanding of truth... For 'a name'=the quality of a Thing and state with a man... because names of persons are not given in the Spiritual World as in the natural world. In the Spiritual World all are named according to the quality of their life; thus with a difference within the Societies and outside of them. Within the Societies the quality of the state of everyone's life is constant... and therefore according to this quality is his name. Hence it is that when the name of anyone is heard in a Society, his quality is also known. It is from this that by 'name,' in the spiritual sense, is signified the quality of the Thing and of the state of life. But outside the Societies the denomination according to the state of life of anyone is not constant; for, before a Spirit man comes into any Society, he passes through many states... but still everyone is named according to the state in which he is; and also according to the idea and the perception of the quality of his state. Refs.

696. 'To them that fear Thy name, small and great'=and to all who worship the Lord, from whatever religion. Ex. —<sup>3</sup>, Ex.

—<sup>3</sup>. 'The name' of Jehovah, etc. (in both Testaments)=all things by means of which He is worshipped; thus all things of love and faith; and, in the supreme sense, the Lord Himself is meant; because where He is, there are all things of love and faith. Ill.

706<sup>14</sup>. That they 'cast out demons in the name of the Lord' (Mark xvi.17) derived its effect from the fact that, spiritually understood, 'the name of the Lord' is everything of doctrine from the Word from the Lord; and that 'demons' are falsities of every kind, which are . . . removed by means of doctrine from the Word from the Lord.

714<sup>24</sup>. 'To know My name' (Ps.xci.14)=to be in doctrine from the Word.

735<sup>8</sup>. The Angels in the Heavens have not names as men on earth have; but they have names according to their functions; and, in general to each one is given a name from his quality. (See MICHAEL, here.)

745<sup>4</sup>. 'To believe in His name' (John i.12)=to receive the Lord in faith and life; for by 'the name' of the Lord is signified everything by means of which He is worshipped.

768<sup>10</sup>. 'Name'=the quality of it. —.

798. 'To blaspheme His name' (Rev.xiii.6)=by falsifying all the quality of Divine truth or of the Word. Ex.

806. 'Whose names are not written in the Lamb's Book of Life'=by all who have not been made spiritual through regeneration by the Lord; (for) 'names'=their quality. Ex.

815<sup>12</sup>. The like which is signified by 'to believe in Him,' is signified by 'to believe in His name;' for 'the name' of the Lord=all the quality of faith and of love by means of which He is to be worshipped, and by means of which man is saved by Him. The reason why this is signified by 'His name,' is that in the Spiritual World no other names are given to persons than according to the quality of their affection and life; whence everyone is Known, as to his quality, from his name alone. Hence, when his name is uttered, and that quality is loved which is meant by the name, he is presented present, and they are conjoined as companions or brothers. But the quality of the Lord is everything of faith and love by means of which man is saved by Him; for this quality is the essence which proceeds from Him; and therefore, when this quality is thought of, the Lord is presented present with him; and, when this quality is loved, the Lord is conjoined with him. Hence it is, that those who believe in His name have eternal life. Hence it is evident how necessary it is to man to know the quality of the faith and of the love which is 'the name' of the Lord; and also to love this quality, which is effected by the doing of those things which the Lord has commanded. Moreover, the names 'Jesus,' and 'Christ,' involve this quality; for 'Jesus'=salvation, and 'Christ' . . . =Divine truth, which is the all of faith and of love as to the thoughts, the doctrine, and the life. Hence, when these names are named, their quality is to be thought, and we are to live according to it. This is meant by the Lord's words in Matt. xviii.19,20. —<sup>13</sup>.

817<sup>9</sup>. It is to be known that by all the names of persons and places in the Word are signified the Things and the states of the Church; and chiefly so by the names in the first chapters of Genesis, because the historicals therein are made historicals . . .

841. 'Or the name of the beast, or the number of his name' (Rev.xiii.17)=or the like thereof as to life, or the like thereof as to faith; (for) 'the name'=the quality of the good of love and of the derivative life. 892. 933.

852<sup>2</sup>. By all these names (of the Divine) is . . . meant one; for the Lord is thus variously named according to His Divine attributes. Enum.

892. In the Spiritual World everyone receives a name according to his quality; and the quality of everyone is there expressed by a word of the spiritual language, which word can indeed be uttered in natural language, but still cannot be understood; for it includes many things which cannot be comprehended by means of the ideas of natural thought, and which consequently cannot be expressed by the words of speech in the world.

935<sup>2</sup>. The second precept, 'Thou shalt not profane the name of God,' contains also [that we are] not to hold cheap and reject from the heart the Word, doctrine from the Word, and thus the Church; for these are 'the name of God.'

943. 'And shall glorify Thy name' (Rev.xv.4)=the worship of the Lord from the truths which are from this good. Ex.

949<sup>3</sup>. In proportion as he does not profane the name of God, thus also in proportion as he shuns the cupidities which originate from the loves of self and of the world, in the same proportion he loves the holy things of the Word and of the Church; for these are 'the name of God;' and (these) cupidities profane them.

959<sup>2</sup>. We shall here treat concerning the second Precept: 'Thou shalt not profane the name of God.' . . By 'the name of God' is meant all the quality by means of which God is worshipped; for God is in His own quality, and is His own quality. His Essence is Divine love; and His Quality is the derivative Divine truth united to Divine good; thus with us on earth, it is the Word . . . and thence also it is the doctrine of genuine truth and good from the Word; for worship is according to this doctrine. Now, as His quality is manifold, for it contains all things which are from Him, therefore He has many names, and each name involves and expresses His quality in general and in special. Enum. All these are the names of the one God, who is the Lord; but still, where they are said in the Word, they signify some universal Divine attribute or quality distinct from other Divine attributes or qualities. . . Since each name=some distinct attribute or quality, therefore by 'to profane the name of God,' is not meant to profane the name itself; but His quality. The reason why by 'the name' is signified the quality, is also because in Heaven everyone is named according to his quality; and the quality of God or of the Lord is everything which is from Him by means of which He is worshipped. Hence it is, that in Hell, as there is no Divine quality of the Lord acknowledged there, the Lord cannot be named. And hence it is that, in the Spiritual World, His names cannot be uttered by anyone otherwise than as His Divine is acknowledged; for all there speak from the heart, thus from the love and the derivative acknowledgment.

962<sup>11</sup>. As by 'the name of God' is meant Divine truth, or the Word; and as by 'the profanation' of it is meant the denial of its holiness, and the consequent contempt, rejection, and blaspheming, it follows that the name of God is interiorly profaned by a life contrary to the precepts of the decalogue; for there is a profanation which is interior and not exterior . . .

[E.] 984. 'They blasphemed the name of God' = the falsification of the Word of the Lord even to the destruction of the Divine truth in the Heavens. Ex.

1025<sup>4</sup>. In the Precept, 'Thou shalt not profane the name of God,' there are contained and included in its three senses all things which concern the Divine as to quality; for, by 'the name of God' is signified His quality; which, in the first sense, is the Word, doctrine from the Word, and the worship of the mouth and life from the doctrine; in the second sense, is the Lord's Kingdom on earth, and the Lord's Kingdom in the Heavens; and, in the third sense, is the Divine Human of the Lord, for this is the quality of the Divine Itself.

1039. 'Full of names of blasphemy' = (the holy things of the Word) adulterated and falsified; (for) 'a name' = the quality of the Thing, and the quality of the state; hence by 'full of names' is signified the quality of these holy things of the Word.

1046. 'Upon her forehead a name written' (Rev. xvii. 5) = her quality as to love; for by 'a name' is signified the quality of the Thing or state; and by 'the forehead' is signified the love.

1098<sup>2</sup>. The man who only thinks that God is, and thinks nothing concerning His quality, is like one who thinks that the Word is, and that it is holy, and knows nothing about what is in it . . . when yet the thought of what God is, is so ample that it infills Heaven, and makes all the wisdom in which are the Angels . . . The thought that God is, from His quality, is what is meant in the Word by 'the name of God.'

De Verbo 5<sup>2</sup>. Passages were taken from the natural sense which could never be comprehended without the spiritual sense; as in the Prophets, where mere names are heaped together . . .

14<sup>2</sup>. By the names which are the posterities of Adam are there described the states of the successive reception of the Lord, and of conjunction with Him, by the men of that Church . . .

Inv. 41. In the Spiritual World, no one knows another from his name alone; but from the idea of his quality. . . A Spirit himself is nothing else than his own quality; on which account everyone in that World keeps his baptismal name and the name of his family silent; but is named according to his quality. Hence it is that 'name,' in the Word, does not signify the name, but the quality. . . From these things it is evident that no one has the Lord present with him unless he knows His quality. Ex.

Naphtali. Naphtali.

A. 3928. 'And she called his name Naphtali' (Gen. xxx.8) = the quality of the temptation in which man overcomes, and also the quality of the resistance by the natural man. . . The quality itself is what is signified by 'Naphtali,' for Naphtali was named from 'strugglings.' Thence also by 'Naphtali' is represented this second general truth of the Church; for temptation is the medium of the conjunction of the internal man with the external. Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. After this delight (of the love of self and of the world) has prevailed, it cannot be dulled and dissipated by any other medium than the affirmation and acknowledgment of the Holy of faith and of the good of life, which is the first medium ('Dan'); and then through temptation, which is the second medium, and is signified by 'Naphtali;' for this medium follows the other. Ex.

—<sup>3</sup>. In the Word elsewhere, where 'Naphtali' is named, the state of man after temptations is signified by him. Ill.

4608. 'The sons of Bilhah . . . Dan and Naphtali' (Gen. xxxv.25) = the things which follow and are of service to interior things. Ex. . . The essentials of these things are represented by 'Dan and Naphtali' . . . 'Naphtali,' in the supreme sense, = Own power; in the internal sense, the temptation in which [the man] conquers; and, in the external sense, the resistance by the natural man . . .

6024<sup>6</sup>. 'The sons of Naphtali,' Jahzeel, and Guni, and Jezer, and Shilem' (Gen. xlvii.24) = the temptations in which is victory, and the doctrinal things concerning them.

6411. 'Naphtali is a hind let loose, giving discourses of elegance' (Gen. xlix.21). 'Naphtali' = the state after temptations; 'a hind let loose' = the freedom of natural affection; 'giving discourses of elegance' = gladness of mind. 6412.

R. 354. 'Of the tribe of Naphtali were sealed twelve thousand' (Rev. vii.6) = the perception of use and of what use is, with those who will be in the Lord's New Heaven and New Church. By 'Naphtali,' in the supreme sense, is signified Own power of the Lord's Divine Human; in the spiritual sense, temptation and victory; and, in the natural sense, the struggling by the natural man; for he was named from 'strugglings.' But the reason why here by 'Naphtali' is signified the perception of use and of what use is, is that he follows in the series after 'Asher,' by whom is signified the love of uses. Moreover, those have an interior perception of uses who have conquered in temptations; for the interiors of the mind are opened by means of temptations. . . That 'the tribe of Naphtali' = Angels and men as to this perception. Ill.

E. 295<sup>10</sup>. 'Naphtali,' so called from 'strugglings,' = temptations, and consolation and blessing from the Divine love after them; which is meant by, 'satisfied with the good pleasure and the blessing of Jehovah' (Deut. xxxiii.23).

435<sup>2</sup>. The three tribes of 'Asher,' 'Naphtali,' and 'Manasseh' (Rev. vii.6) = those who fully constitute spiritual good. Ex.

438. Charity towards the neighbour is signified by these three tribes, namely, 'Asher,' 'Naphtali,' and 'Manasseh.'

—<sup>2</sup>. By 'Naphtali' (in special) is signified the regeneration of those (who are in charity towards the neighbour).

439. 'Of the tribe of Naphtali were sealed twelve thousand' = regeneration and temptation; (for) Naphtali and his tribe = temptation, and the state after it; and, as temptations take place for the sake of regeneration, regeneration also is signified by 'Naphtali.' Ill and Ex.

—<sup>5</sup>. In the supreme sense, by 'Zebulon' and 'Naphtali' is signified the union of the Divine and of the Human in the Lord. Ill.

—<sup>6</sup>. Hence, also, by 'Naphtali' is signified reformation and regeneration, because these are the effects of temptations.

441. But temptation, which is signified by 'the tribe of Naphtali,' is the uniting medium; for the internal and external are united by means of temptations.

443. They who are in the Second or Middle Heaven, and they who come into it, are signified by 'Asher,' 'Naphtali,' and 'Manasseh;' who therefore constitute the second class of the sealed.

447<sup>4</sup>. As the tribes of Naphtali and Zebulon signified combat from the truth which is from good; the tribe of Naphtali, combat; and the tribe of Zebulon, the conjunction of good and truth; therefore these two tribes only were taken to fight (Judges v.).

—<sup>5</sup>. By 'Zebulon and Naphtali' is also signified the conjunction of truth and good, by combat against falsities and evils, and the consequent reformation, in Matt. iv. 13-17; Is. ix. 1, 2.

—<sup>6</sup>. By 'Zebulon' and 'Naphtali,' in the supreme sense, is signified the union of the Divine Itself and of the Divine Human of the Lord by means of temptations admitted into Himself, and victories from His Own power, in Ps. lxxviii. 27. (Compare 449<sup>9</sup>.)

Naphtuhim. Naphtuchim.

A. 1193. 'Mizraim begat . . . Naphtuhim,' etc. (Gen. x. 13)=so many nations, by whom are signified so many kinds of rituals . . . which are merely scientifics. 1194. 1195.

Napkin. Sudarium.

E. 193<sup>10</sup>. 'To hide them in the earth,' and 'in a napkin' (Luke xix. 20)=that they are solely in the memory of the natural man.

Naples. Neapolis.

Neapolitan. Neapolitanus.

M. 451. Naples, mentioned.

D. 5652. (On the Neapolitans at the time of the Last Judgment. See LAST JUDGMENT, here.)

Narrow. Strictus.

Stricture. Strictura.

Strictly. Stricte.

See STRAITNESS.

A. 1103. They observe the externals of the Church very strictly.

9216<sup>e</sup>. In a bond so close . . .

9295<sup>3</sup>. In a narrower sense . . . —.

9416. In a narrow sense . . . In a sense less narrow.

H. 534<sup>3</sup>. That 'the way which leads to life is narrow' (Matt. vii. 14) is not because it is difficult, but because there are 'few who find it.'

584. Some (of the gates to the Hells) are strait-arctae—and narrow.

T. 421<sup>e</sup>. In a narrow or in a broad sense.

D. 4214. A representation with Spirits; and concerning the broad and the narrow way. Ex.

E. 313<sup>12</sup>. 'The stricture of an olive-tree' (Is. xxiv. 13) = vastation. 638<sup>18</sup>. 919<sup>2</sup>.

537<sup>10</sup>. 'Drawn swords' (Ps. lv. 21)=falsities destroying.

De Verbo 4<sup>2</sup>. I and E give a close sound.

Nathan. Nathan.

E. 555<sup>10</sup>. 'Nathan' (Zech. xii. 12)=the doctrine of truth.

Nation. Gens.

See AFRICA, and GENTILE.

A. 139<sup>2</sup>. 'Nations' (Num. xxiii. 9)=evils.

249. 'Nations' (Micah vii. 16)=those who trust in primum.

409<sup>9</sup>. As the posterity of Jacob were . . . of no faith, the Church . . . was transferred to gentiles who had lived not in infidelity, but in ignorance. Rarely, if ever, does the Church remain with those who have Truths among them, when they have been devastated; but it is transferred to those who know nothing at all about Truths; for these embrace faith much more easily than the former.

410. Such have been the gentiles, and such also are the gentiles at this day. When it is the last time of vastation with those who know and do not want to know . . . the Church arises anew; not with them, but with those whom they call gentiles. It was so done with the Most Ancient Church . . . with the Ancient Church . . . with the Jewish Church.

470. In the most ancient time the human race was distinguished into houses, families, and nations . . . Fewer or more families constituted a nation. (The reason of this ex. 471. 483<sup>e</sup>.)

471<sup>e</sup>. (This was why) the Jewish Church also was distinguished into houses, families, and nations.

488<sup>e</sup>. 'The day of the nations' (Ezek. xxx. 3)=the gentiles, or wickedness.

570<sup>2</sup>. This race was such.

593<sup>9</sup>. Their lot . . . is much worse than that of those who are called gentiles.

622. 'Nations'=evils which are of the will, or of cupidities; 'people'=falsities.

671<sup>2</sup>. Quasi voluntary goods . . . the like as with the gentiles . . .

932<sup>2</sup>. All the good of charity, even with the gentiles, is seed from the Lord; and although with them it is not the good of faith . . . yet it can become the good of faith. For the gentiles who have lived in charity, as they are wont to do in the world, in the other life, when they are instructed by Angels, embrace and receive the doctrine of true faith and the faith of charity much more easily than Christians.

1025. Wherever there is charity even among nations most remote from the Church, there is seed . . . The good which the gentiles do is also from the Lord.

[A.] 1032. That the Lord enters into a covenant, or conjoins Himself by charity, with those who are outside the Church, and are called gentiles. Ex. The man of the Church supposes that all who are outside the Church, who are called gentiles, cannot be saved, for the reason that they have no Knowledges of faith, and are therefore wholly ignorant of the Lord . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. (But) the mercy of the Lord is infinite . . . and extends itself to all in the universal world. That they have been born outside the Church . . . is not their fault; and no one is ever condemned for not having faith in the Lord when he is ignorant of Him. Who that thinks well will ever say that the greatest part of the human race will perish in eternal death because they have not been born within Europe, where there are relatively few people? (or) that the Lord would suffer so great a multitude of men to be born in order to perish in eternal death? This would be contrary to the Divine, and contrary to mercy. And besides, those who are outside the Church, who are called gentiles, live a much more moral life than those who are within the Church; and they embrace much more easily the doctrine of true faith, which may be still more manifestly evident from the Souls in the other life . . . Very many of those who have worshipped idols are of such an animus as to be horrified at hatreds and adulteries; and they fear Christians . . . Nay, the gentiles are such that when they are informed by the Angels concerning the truths of faith . . . they listen readily, and are readily imbued with faith, and thus reject their idols; and therefore the gentiles who have lived a moral life, and have lived in mutual charity, and in innocence, are regenerated in the other life. While they live in the world, the Lord is present with them in the charity and innocence; for there is nothing of charity and innocence except from the Lord. The Lord also gives them a conscience of what is right and good according to their religiosity, and into this conscience insinuates innocence and charity; and, when there are innocence and charity in the conscience, they easily suffer themselves to be imbued with the truth of faith from good. III.

1059. The Lord is even more present (with the gentiles than with Christians). The reason is that there is not so great a cloud in their intellectual part . . . For the gentiles are ignorant of the Word, nor do they know what the Lord is . . . and therefore they cannot be against the Lord, and against the truth of faith. Hence their cloud is not against (these); and such a cloud can be easily dispelled when they are enlightened.

—<sup>e</sup>. The gentiles cannot (profane the truths of faith); because they live in ignorance of the truth of faith . . . This is the reason why more of the gentiles are saved than of Christians; besides that their infants are all of the Lord's Kingdom. III.

1097. Those who placed worship solely in externals were represented by the gentiles, whom they called 'strangers,' and who were their servants . . . III.

1136. Concerning internal worship and its derivations, which, being from charity, are those of wisdom, intelligence, knowledge and Knowledges; and which are signified by the nations (mentioned in Gen.x.22-24).

1140<sup>e</sup>. By the names in (Gen.x.), except Heber and his posterity, are meant so many nations; and so many nations there were which constituted the Ancient Church . . . 1149. 1151. 1152. 1153. 1154. 1156. 1157. 1163. 1170. 1171. 1194. 1205. 1227. 1238. 1246.

1150<sup>e</sup>. The nations and peoples who were called 'the sons of Japheth,' lived in mutual charity together, in friendship, in civility, and in simplicity; and therefore the Lord was present in their worship . . . There were formerly very many such nations.

1158. 'From these were dispersed the isles of the nations in their lands' (Gen.x.5)=that the worships of many nations came forth from these.

1159. 'As to their nations' (ver.5)=as to both (the opinion and the probity) in general.

—<sup>3</sup>. 'That nations'=both in general, is evident from the signification of 'a nation,' or of 'nations,' in the Word. In a good sense 'nations'=new voluntary and intellectual things; consequently, the goods of love and the truths of faith; but, in the opposite sense, they =evils and falsities. . . The cause is that the Most Ancient Church was distinguished into houses, into families, and into nations. . . A number of families constituted the nations. Hence the nations signified all the families together, in one complex. 1215.

—<sup>4</sup>. From this, then, is the signification of 'nations,' in the internal sense; which is a general embracing both voluntary and intellectual things; or, what is the same, both the things which are of love and the things which are of faith, relatively to the families and houses of which [they are composed].

1238<sup>e</sup>. All were (then) distinguished into houses, families, and nations. . . One nation acknowledged one father, from whom also it was named. Examp. 1246.

1251<sup>e</sup>. 'In their nations' (ver.31)=in general relatively to the things which are of charity. 1252, Ex.

1254. The nations named in the preceding [verses] of this chapter have signified nothing else than the various worships of the Ancient Church . . .

1256. 'In their nations' (ver.32)=the worships of the Church in general.

1258. 'From these were the nations dispersed in the earth' (id.)=that thence [came] all the worships of the Church as to goods or evils . . . By 'a nation' are meant a number of families together. In the Most Ancient and in the Ancient Church, the number of families which acknowledged one father made one nation. But that, in the internal sense, 'nations'=the worships of the Church, and, in fact, as to the goods or evils in the worship, the case is this. When families and nations are regarded by the Angels, they never have the idea of a nation, but only the idea of the worship with that nation. Ex. . . Hence it is that, in the internal sense, by 'nations' nothing else is signified than the worship of the Church, and, in fact, as to its quality, which is the good of charity and the derivative truth of faith. When the word 'nations' occurs in the Word, the Angels never remain in the idea of a nation . . . but in the idea of the good and truth with the nation which is named.

1259. That 'nations'=the goods and the evils in worship, the case, further, is this. In the most ancient times [men] dwelt distinguished into nations, families, and houses, for the reason that the Church on earth might represent the Lord's Kingdom, where all are distinguished into Societies, and the Societies into greater ones, and these again into greater ones, and this according to the differences of love and faith in general and in special; thus in like manner as it were into houses, families, and nations. From this, 'houses,' 'families,' and 'nations,' in the Word, = the goods of love and of the derivative faith; and a distinction is there accurately made between 'nations' and 'people.' By 'a nation' is signified good, or evil; but by 'a people,' truth or falsity, and this so constantly that it is never otherwise. Ill.

—<sup>4</sup>. The Church called the Church of the nations. Sig. —. —<sup>6</sup>. Ex.

—'. The 'nations' = the goods of charity; or, what is the same, those with whom are the goods of charity.

—'. In the Church, those endowed with the good of charity are 'the nations'; those endowed with the truths of faith are 'the peoples' . . .

—<sup>6</sup>. The Most Ancient Church was the true Church of the nations; then the Ancient Church.

—<sup>7</sup>. As those who are in charity are called 'nations,' and those who are in faith, 'peoples,' the priesthood of the Lord is predicated of nations . . . and His royalty of peoples . . . which also was represented in the Jewish Church, where, before they had kings they were a nation; but after they had received kings they became a people. 1672.

1260. As 'nations,' in the Most Ancient Church, and in the Ancient Church, signified goods, or the good, therefore in the opposite sense they = evils, or the evil; in like manner 'peoples,' (which) in the opposite sense, = falsities; for, in a depraved Church, good is turned into evil, and truth into falsity. Hence the signification of 'nations' and 'peoples,' in this sense, in many places in the Word. Ill.

1285<sup>2</sup>. By each nation (in Gen. x.) is signified a diverse Doctrinal and Ritual.

—<sup>3</sup>. Although there were as many worships . . . as there were nations . . . yet they were all 'of one lip and of one words'; that is, they all had one doctrine in general and in particular. Ex.

1327<sup>4</sup>. The nations outside the Church . . . can least of all profane.

1329. 'Arphaxad' was a nation so named, by which is signified knowledge.

1339. 'Shelah' was a nation so named, by which is signified that which belongs to knowledge.

1343. 'Eber' was a nation which was named the Hebrew nation, from its father; and by it is signified the worship in general of the Second Ancient Church . . .

—'. But, when internal worship became external . . . and each nation began to have its own god . . . the Hebrew nation retained the name Jehovah . . . and in this were distinguished from the rest of the nations.

1345. 'Peleg' was a nation so named from him as its father, by which is signified external worship.

1347. 'Reu' was a nation so named from him as its father, by which is signified worship still more external.

VOL. IV.

1349. 'Serug' was a nation so named from him as its father, by which is signified worship in externals.

1351. 'Nahor' was a nation so named from him as its father, by which is signified worship verging to what is idolatrous.

1353. 'Terah' was a nation so named from him as its father, by which is signified idolatrous worship.

1355. 'Abram,' 'Nahor,' and 'Haran' were persons, from whom nations also were named, which were idolaters. 1358.

1358. A number of nations were born from Abraham. Ill.

1362. That 'Terah' was a nation may be evident from this: that the nations originating from his sons acknowledged him as their own father; as also the sons of Jacob—or the Jews and Israelites—and also the Ishmaelites, Midianites, and others, did Abraham; and the Moabites and Ammonites, Lot; for although these nations were not named from them, but from their sons, nevertheless, when all acknowledge a common father, and call themselves his sons—as the sons of Terah, the sons of Abraham, or the sons of Lot—by each of them is signified a nation in the general sense . . . for they are the stocks or roots of the nations . . . 1363.

1366. But, with the gentiles, who do not know what the truth of faith is, and still live in charity, the case is different. This was the reason the Lord's Church could not be restored among the Jews, but among the nations which had had no Knowledges of faith. Ex.

1416. 'I will make thee into a great nation' (Gen. xii. 2) = the Kingdom in the Heavens and on earth; (for) 'a nation' = the Celestial of love and the derivative good; thus all in the universe with whom is the Celestial of love and of charity; and, as the Lord is here treated of, there is meant all the Celestial and all the derivative good; thus His Kingdom, which is with those who are in love and charity. In the supreme sense, the Lord Himself is 'the great nation,' because He is the Celestial itself, and good itself . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. That 'a nation,' in the internal sense, where it treats of the Lord and of the celestial things of love, = Him and all celestial things. Ex. and Ill.

—<sup>5</sup>. [This] treats of the Church of the nations in special; in general, of all who are in ignorance and live in charity, who are 'a nation,' because they are of the Lord's Kingdom.

—'. Here (Ps. cvi. 5) 'nation' manifestly stands for the Lord's Kingdom.

—<sup>e</sup>. The signification of 'nation'—which is the Celestial of love and the derivative good—originated from that Perceptive [which consisted in] the men of the Most Ancient Church having been distinguished into houses, families, and nations, and their thus perceiving the Lord's Kingdom; and, as they perceived the Lord's Kingdom, they perceived the Celestial itself. From this perception originated the significative, and from this the representative.

1424. 'Nations' = goods; and 'peoples,' truths. 1672.

1444<sup>e</sup>. All kinds of evils are signified by the idolatrous nations in Canaan . . .

[A.] 1463<sup>2</sup>. 'Sojourners' = those who suffer themselves to be instructed, consequently the gentiles.

1662. For each nation, and each land, = some fixed thing in general; and this in the proper and the opposite sense; but the general signification applies itself to the Thing which is being treated of.

1679. By all the nations which were in the Land of Canaan, were represented kinds of falsities and evils.

1685<sup>e</sup>. 'Tidal king of Goiim,' or 'of nations' (Gen. xiv.9) = good.

1782<sup>e</sup>. The falsities and evils to be expelled from (the Lord's Kingdom, and the New Church) are the nations named (in Gen. xv. 19-21). 1867.

1832<sup>3</sup>. In like manner also with the worship, the doctrinal things, and the morals, and even with the idols, of the upright gentiles: these the Lord leaves entire, and yet adapts them by means of charity so that they may serve as vessels.

1839<sup>e</sup>. How great is this darkness above that . . . of the gentiles . . . Sig.

1846<sup>e</sup>. No charity is signified by 'nation against nation . . .' (Matt. xxiv.7).

1849. 'Also that nation whom they shall serve' (Gen. xv.14) = the evil who oppress. 'A nation,' in the genuine sense, = goods; or, what is the same, the good . . . But, in the opposite sense, 'a nation' = evils; or, what is the same, the evil. Refs.

1857. See AMORITE, here.

1992<sup>8</sup>. (A certain nation who heard rebuking Spirits.)

2004. 'Thou shalt be for the father of a multitude of nations' (Gen. xvii.4) = the union of the Human essence with the Divine essence. Ex. 2007.

2009<sup>4</sup>. That the Lord is present with the gentiles also. Refs.

2014. 'I will give thee for nations' (ver.6) = that all good is from Him; (for) 'nations,' in the genuine and primitive sense, = good. Refs.

2015. The idea of nations, and of kings, altogether perishes when it is received by the Angels; and good and truth succeed in their place. Ex.

—<sup>3</sup>. 'To suck the milk of the nations, and the breast of kings' (Is. lx. 16) = to be gifted with goods, and instructed in truths.

2023<sup>2</sup>. But those who are in love towards the neighbour are not all therefore in love to the Lord; as for example the upright gentiles, who are in ignorance concerning the Lord, with whom the Lord is however present in charity . . . for love to the Lord is in a higher degree. Ex.

2049. The gentiles, who are outside the Church, can be in truths, but not in the truths of faith. Their truths, like the precepts of the decalogue, are that parents are to be honoured, that we are not to kill, steal, commit adultery, covet the things which belong to others, and also that the Deity is to be worshipped. But the truths of faith are all the doctrinals concerning eternal life, the Lord's Kingdom, and the Lord. These cannot be known to them, because they have not the Word. Sig. That these can be purified equally with those who are within the Church. Rep. They are purified when they reject filthy loves, and live together in charity; for they then live in truths, for all truths are of charity; but in the truths already mentioned. When they live in these truths, they easily imbibe the truths of faith; if not in the life of the body, still in the other life; because the truths of faith are the interior truths of charity; for they then love nothing more than to be admitted into the interior truths of charity.

2068. 'She shall be for nations' (Gen. xvii.16) = the derivative goods.

2069. For 'kings' are predicated of peoples; and not so of nations, except when 'nations' = evils. Refs.

2090. 'I will give him for a great nation' (ver.20) = the fruition of goods and their increments.

2115. That the gentiles, who have not the Word, and therefore know nothing about the Lord, are equally saved when they are rational; that is, when they live together in charity or mutual love, and have received something of conscience according to their religiosity. Sig. and Refs.

2120<sup>e</sup>. 'Nation against nation' = evils against evils. 2547<sup>3</sup>.

2227. 'Abraham in being shall be for a nation great and numerous' (Gen. xviii.18) = that all good and all the derivative truth will be from the Lord. . . 'A nation' = good. 'A nation great and numerous' = good and the derivative truth. Ex.

2228. 'In him shall all the nations of the earth be blessed' (id.) = that all who are in charity will be saved by Him. . . By 'all the nations of the earth' are meant, in the internal sense, those who are in the goods of love and of charity; (for) 'nation' = good. 2853.

2284<sup>e</sup>. (For) more from the gentiles are saved than from Christians; for those of them who have thought well concerning the neighbour, and have willed well to him, receive the truths of faith in the other life better than those who are called Christians, and they acknowledge the Lord more than Christians do.

2336<sup>4</sup>. The gentiles who were not yet instructed. Sig.

2466<sup>13</sup>. 'The nations which she makes to drink' (Rev. xviii.3) = the goods which are profaned.

2468<sup>13</sup>. 'They are given for a spoil to the nations' (Ezek. xxv.7) = that they are taken possession of by evils; and are cut off from the peoples' = by falsities.

2520. 'Lord, wilt Thou slay also a just nation?' (Gen. xx.4) = whether good and truth should be extinguished. Ex.

2547. 'Nations,' and 'kingdoms' (Jer. li.20) = the evils and the falsities which are of doctrine.

—<sup>2</sup>. 'Nation' (Ezek. xxxvii.21) = the good of the Spiritual Church, or of doctrine. Ex.

2567<sup>2</sup>. For the Israelites, dispersed among the gentiles, have become gentiles.

2588<sup>16</sup>. (Possessing the goods, etc., of the gentiles. Ex.)

2589. Concerning the state and lot in the other life of the nations and peoples who have been born outside the Church. Gen.art. (Quoted under GENTILE, from A.2589 to 2604.)

2669. 'Also the son of the handmaid I will make him a nation' (Gen.xxi.13)=the Spiritual Church which should receive the good of faith. . . 'A nation'=good ; here, the good of faith, because it is predicated of the Spiritual Church.

2699. 'Because I will make him (Ishmael) a great nation' (ver.18)=the Spiritual Church ; (for) 'a great nation'=the Spiritual Church, which will receive the good of faith. It is said 'a great nation' because the Spiritual Kingdom is the Lord's second Kingdom.

2708<sup>4</sup>. The regeneration of those who are in ignorance of truth, or of the gentiles. Tr.

2739<sup>6</sup>. In the Most Ancient Church the derivations of love were such ; and therefore they dwell together in the Heavens distinguished as it were into nations, families, and houses, all of which acknowledge the Lord as their only Parent.

2799<sup>18</sup>. By 'all nations' (Luke xxi.24) are signified evils of every kind, among which they will be captive.

2851<sup>5</sup>. This (driving away of evils and falsities—or, what is the same, of evil Genii and Spirits—from the gate, or from the mind ; and goods and truths then taking their place) was represented by the sons of Israel expelling the nations from the Land of Canaan.

—<sup>3</sup>. 'Her king and princes among the nations' (Lam.ii.9)=that truths are immersed in evils.

—<sup>10</sup>. 'A nation from afar from the extremity of the earth' (Deut.xxviii.29)=evils and falsities, or those who are in evil and falsity.

2861. But the nations outside the Church, because they have not the Word, and thus not the truths of faith, so long as they live in the world, although in the good of charity, are still not truly spiritual until they have been instructed in the truths of faith. And, as most nations cannot be instructed in the world, those who have lived in mutual charity and in obedience, are by the Lord's Providence and mercy instructed in the other life, and then receive the truths of faith easily, and become spiritual.

—<sup>2</sup>. In the things which follow, to the end of Gen. xxii., it treats concerning those who are saved outside the Church, and are signified by those who were born to Nahor, Abraham's brother, from Milcah his wife and Reumah his concubine. . . Hence it may be evident that these things . . . relate in a series to the Lord's Spiritual Church, but to that which is among the gentiles.

2863. 'Milcah'=the truth of these gentiles ; and 'Nahor,' their good.

—<sup>2</sup>. That there are truths among the gentiles may be evident from many things ; for it is known that there were wisdom and intelligence among the gentiles formerly ; as that they acknowledged one God, and wrote concerning Him holily ; also that they acknowledged the immortality of the soul, and the life after death, and also the happiness of the good and the unhappiness of the evil ; besides that they had for their law the precepts of the decalogue. Ennm. Nor were they content to be of this character in externals, but they were so in internals.

—<sup>3</sup>. It is similar at this day : the better behaved gentiles from all parts of the Earth sometimes speak better about such things than Christians do ; nor do they only speak, but they live according to them. These, and many truths, are among the gentiles, and conjoin themselves with the good which they have from the Lord, from which (truths and good thus) conjoined they are in a state to receive still more truths, because one truth recognizes another, and they easily consociate themselves together ; [as] there is a connection of Truths, and there are affinities [between them]. . . The falsities which are with them do not conjoin themselves with their good, but only apply themselves to it, but so that they can be separated from it . . . and they are separated at the time when they learn the truths of faith . . .

2910<sup>8</sup>. Afterwards a new Church was raised up by the Lord, which was called the Church of the gentiles, and which was internal, for interior truths were revealed by the Lord ; but this Church is now at its end . . .

—<sup>6</sup>. But, when a Church is consummated and perishes, the Lord always raises up a new Church somewhere ; but rarely, if ever, from the man of the former Church ; but from the gentiles, who have been in ignorance. Tr.

2916<sup>4</sup>. That the Lord raised up Lazarus from the dead, also involves the resuscitation of a new Church from the gentiles.

2928. When Judah and Zion are being treated of, 'nation' is named ; and by 'nation' is signified the Celestial Church . . .

2943<sup>2</sup>. As they had it from the Most Ancients that nations and families represented the heavenly Societies ; thus the things which are of love and charity ; therefore when 'a city' is named instead of 'a family,' and 'a people' instead of 'a nation,' there is signified truth, which is of faith.

2967<sup>4</sup>. 'The violent ones of the nations' (Ezek. xxviii.7)=evils.

2986. 'The sons of Heth'=a new Church of the gentiles, or from the gentiles. Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. It is to be known that when any Church becomes null . . . and a new one is being instaurated by the Lord, this is effected rarely, if ever, with those with whom the old church has been ; but with those with whom there was no Church before, that is, with the gentiles. . . When the Most Ancient Church perished, the new one . . . was instaurated with the gentiles, that is, with those where there was no Church before. In like manner when this Church perished, the resemblance of a Church was instituted with the descendants of Abraham from Jacob, thus also with the gentiles ; for Abraham, when called, was a Gentile, (and) the descendants of Jacob in Egypt became still more Gentile . . . After this Church had been consummated, the Primitive Church was instaurated from the gentiles, the Jews being rejected. In like manner will it be with this Church which is called Christian. The reason why the new Church will be instaurated with the gentiles, is that they have no principles of falsity contrary to the truths of faith ; for they are ignorant of the truths of faith. Ex. . . The Gentiles, being in ignorance, and free from impediments, are thus in a state for receiving truths more than those who are of the Church; and all those among them who are in the good of life receive truths easily. Refs.

[A.] 3111. 'Father,' here, namely Bethuel, = the good of charity such as there is with the more upright gentiles.

3142<sup>3</sup>. 'To drive out the nations' (Ps. lxxx. 8) = to purge from evils.

3263<sup>2</sup>. The Lord's Spiritual Church . . . is not limited to those who have the Word . . . but it is also with . . . the gentiles remote from the Church; for there are many among them who know from rational lumen that there is one God, that He has created all things, and that He preserves all things; also, that from Him is all good, consequently all truth; and that likeness to Him makes a man blessed; who, moreover, live according to their religiosity, in love to that God, and in love towards the neighbour; from the affection of good they do works of charity, and from the affection of truth they worship the Supreme. Those who are such among the gentiles, are those who are in the Lord's Spiritual Church; and, although they are ignorant of the Lord while in the world, still they have in themselves the worship and tacit acknowledgment of Him when they are in good; for in all good the Lord is present; and therefore these in the other life easily acknowledge Him . . . The natural lumen which they have, has in it what is spiritual; for without the Spiritual, which is from the Lord, such things can never be acknowledged. From this it may now be evident what 'Ishmael' is . . .

3268<sup>8</sup>. 'The isles of Kittim' = those who are more remote from worship; that is, the gentiles who are in simple good, and thence in natural truth.

3271. 'Castles' (here) are especially predicated of the gentiles, who have not the truth of faith, but rational and natural truth. These truths are called 'castles,' when the truths of faith are called 'cities' . . .

3293. 'Two nations are in thy womb' (Gen. xxv. 23) = the Natural as to interior and exterior good. Ex.

3310. Without doctrinal things, it is indeed the good of life, but not yet the good of the Church, thus not yet truly spiritual, except only in the potency of becoming so; as is the good of life with the gentiles, who have not the Word, and therefore are ignorant of the Lord.

3324<sup>1</sup>. 'The nations upon whom His name is called' (Amos ix. 12) = those who are in good outside the Church. 'The nations' = those who are in good. Refs.

3353. (Thus) the Last Judgment is nothing else than the end of the Church with one nation, and its beginning with another . . .

—<sup>e</sup>. 'Nation shall be stirred up against nation, and kingdom against kingdom' = that evil will fight with evil, and falsity with falsity.

3380. 'In thy (Isaac's) seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed' (Gen. xvi. 4) = all who are in good, both within and without the Church. Ex.

—<sup>e</sup>. That the gentiles, who are outside the Church, who are in good, are equally saved. Refs.

3448<sup>6</sup>. 'Kingdoms of nations' (Is. xiii. 4) = falsities from evils.

3470. By the Hittites . . . is there represented the Spiritual Church among the gentiles; and, as this Church is not in truth from the Word, by the same is signified truth not from what is genuine itself; for the nation which represents a Church, signifies also the truth and good such as is of the Church . . .

3483<sup>3</sup>. '(Hated) by all nations' (Matt. xxiv. 9) = by those who are in evil.

—<sup>8</sup>. 'For a testimony to all nations' (ver. 14) = to the evil.

3519<sup>8</sup>. The ultimate of the innocence which is in ignorance, such as is with the gentiles. Sig.

3614<sup>3</sup>. 'The heat-fervor-of Jehovah against the nations' (Is. xxxiv. 2) = repugnance against evil.

3686. For the Hittites were in the Land of Canaan of the Church of the gentiles . . . hence (they) represented the Lord's Spiritual Church among the gentiles.

3778. Nahor, the brother of Abraham, put on the representation of the Church such as it is with the gentiles who have not the Word; (for) the Lord's Church is scattered through the universal world, and is among the gentiles who live in charity.

—<sup>2</sup>. Hence Nahor, his son Bethuel, and Bethuel's son Laban, represented collateral good of a common stock, that is, the good in which are those who are of the Lord's Church among the gentiles. This good differs from the good of a common stock in the direct line, in that there are no genuine truths which are conjoined with their good; but most are external appearances, called the fallacies of the senses; for they have not the Word from which to be illustrated. In its essence, indeed, good is only one, but it receives its quality from the truths which are implanted in it. . . The truths which appear as truths to the gentiles, are, in general, that they worship some God, from whom they seek their good, and to whom they attribute it; and, so long as they live in the world, they are ignorant that this God is the Lord; and also that they should adore their God under images, which they account holy. . . But still these things do not hinder their being saved equally with Christians, provided they live in love to their God, and in love towards the neighbour; for thus they are in the faculty of receiving interior truths in the other life. Refs.

3812<sup>6</sup>. It treats (in Ezek. xxxvii.) in general concerning the instauration of the Church among the gentiles . . .

3898<sup>e</sup>. It was the gentiles among whom new Churches have been instaured before.

3986<sup>e</sup>. Such good is wont to be . . . also with upright gentiles, who are in the holy worship of their own gods.

3993<sup>13</sup>. (For) among the gentiles also, who are outside the Church, is the Lord's Church; and, although they are in falsities, still those who live the life of charity are saved. Ex.

4169<sup>2</sup>. 'Go not into the way of the gentiles' (Matt. x. 5). 'The gentiles' (here) = those who are in evils.

4189. The conjunction of the Divine Natural with the goods of works, in which are they who are at the side, or the gentiles. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>3</sup>. The gentiles are said to be at the side, or in collateral good, because they are outside the Church.

—<sup>e</sup>. But the gentiles (have not the Word, and through the Word direct communication with Heaven, and through Heaven with the Lord) . . . Hence it is that they are said to be at the side; but those gentiles are meant who are in the goods of works; that is, who are in externals within which is the good of charity . . .

4190. (The stone set up by Jacob)=such truth . . . as there is with the gentiles; for the gentiles, although they do not know about the Word, and consequently not about the Lord, still have external truths such as Christians have; as that the Deity is to be worshipped holily, that festivals are to be observed, that parents are to be honoured, that we are not to steal, commit adultery, commit murder, or covet what is another's . . . They who are wise among them, observe the same not only in external form, but also in internal; for they think that such things are not only contrary to their religion, but also contrary to the common good, thus contrary to what is internally due to man, and consequently contrary to charity . . . In the obscurity with them there is something of conscience, against which they are not willing to act; and indeed some cannot do so. Hence it may be evident that the Lord rules their interiors, which are in obscurity, and thus that He imparts to them the faculty of receiving interior truths, which, moreover, they receive in the other life.

—<sup>2</sup>. (Conversation with Christians in the other life on the state and lot of the gentiles;) and a comparison made between them and Christians.)

4191. 'Brethren,' here,=those who are in the goods of works, who are the gentiles.

4195<sup>e</sup>. (This)=the quality of the good from truths on the side of Laban; that is, on the side of those who are in the goods of works; that is, on the side of the gentiles.

4197. A testification of the conjunction here signified by 'Laban' with the good Divine of the Lord's Natural; consequently the conjunction of the Lord through good with the gentiles. Sig. . . The truths of this good are what testify concerning the conjunction; but their good, so long as they live in the world, is at the side, because they have not truths Divine. But still those who live in this good, that is, in mutual charity, although they have not truths Divine directly from the Divine fountain . . . still have not a closed good, but such as can be opened, and which also is opened in the other life, when they are instructed there in the truths of faith . . .

4198<sup>e</sup>. The quality of (the Lord's) presence is signified by 'Mizpah;' here, the quality of it with those who are in the goods of works, or with the gentiles, who are here represented by Laban.

4205<sup>e</sup>. The truths with the gentiles who have lived in mutual charity, are such that the good inflowing from the Lord can lodge=hospitari—in them; but, so long as they live in the world, not so much as with Christians, who have truths from the Word, and live thence in spiritual charity.

4211<sup>3</sup>. The appropriation of good from the Lord's Divine Natural (to the gentiles). Sig. and Ex. —<sup>3</sup>.

4214. The illustration of (good such as the gentiles have) by the Lord's Divine Natural. Sig. and Ex.

4240<sup>3</sup>. By 'the land of Seir,' in the relative sense, is properly signified the Lord's Kingdom with those who are outside the Church; that is, with the gentiles with whom the Church is being instaurated, when the former or old Church falls away from charity and faith.

4279<sup>3</sup>. In the internal historical sense, the internal sense is determined to that nation which is there named.

4431<sup>2</sup>. For by all the nations in the Land of Canaan there was signified some good or truth of the Church in Ancient time; but, after these nations . . . had turned aside to things idolatrous, by the same ones are signified idolatries . . .

4444<sup>4</sup>. But this law (that they were not to enter into marriages with the nations) was enacted concerning the idolatrous nations . . . for, when they became idolaters, they could no longer represent the celestial and spiritual things of the Lord's Kingdom; but the opposites . . . for they then called forth from Hell some devil whom they worshipped, and to whom they applied the Divine representatives . . . and also for the reason that by 'the nations' were signified evils and falsities, with which goods and truths . . . were not to be commingled.

—<sup>3</sup>. But they were never forbidden to contract matrimonies with the nations who accepted their worship . . .

4574. 'A nation and a company of nations shall be from thee' (Gen.xxxv.11)=good, and the Divine forms of good. Ex.

4735<sup>e</sup>. It treats (in Ezek.xxxix.17-21) . . . in special, concerning the instauration of the Church among the gentiles.

4747. 'A company of Ishmaelites came from Gilead'=those who are in simple good such as the gentiles are in.

—<sup>2</sup>. For those who are outside the Church, who are called the gentiles, have not confirmed themselves against (Divine truths), because they have not known them; and therefore those of them who have lived in mutual charity, easily receive Divine truths . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. Hence it is that when any new Church is being instaurated by the Lord, it is not instaurated among those who are within the Church; but among those who are outside of it; that is, with the gentiles. Concerning these things it often treats in the Word.

4809<sup>4</sup>. 'Before Him shall be gathered together all nations' (Matt.xxv.32)=that the goods and the evils of all will be manifest.

4864. For, where a nation is mentioned in the Word, in the internal sense there is understood that which belongs to the Church of that nation . . .

4901<sup>4</sup>. The last of the Church with one nation is always the first of the Church with another.

4973<sup>6</sup>. Therefore the Lord is called 'the Lord' of nations, and 'the King' of peoples; for by 'nations' are signified those who are in good; and by 'peoples,' those who are in truth.

5577. For those who are in the Spiritual World . . .

do not stay in the idea of 'a land;' but in the idea of the nation which is there; nor in the idea of the nation, but in the idea of the quality of that nation, consequently, in the idea of the Church when . . . by 'the Land' is meant the Land of Canaan.

[A.] 589<sup>7</sup>. Evils and falsities are what are signified by 'the nations' (Ezek.vi.8).

—<sup>10</sup>. By 'the nations' which were so devoted that none at all were left, was represented that iniquity had been so consummated among them that there was nothing of good and truth left; thus no remains. III.

6005. 'I will set thee for a great nation' (Gen.xlvi.4) = that truths will become good. Ex.

6306. The Amorites, and also the Canaanites, = evil; and by the rest of the nations in that Land, which are named in the Word, are signified various kinds of evil, and also of falsity. Such things did the nations represent when the sons of Israel came into possession of the Land of Canaan. The reason was, that when the sons of Israel represented heavenly things, these nations represented infernal ones, and thus the Land of Canaan represented every state of the other life; and, as the nations represented infernal things, they were on that account given to the curse, and it was forbidden to enter into a covenant with those who remained.

6740. 'Sons who shall come from afar' = the truths among the gentiles.

6745<sup>3</sup>. 'To suck the milk of the gentiles' = the insinuation of celestial good.

— That 'the gentiles' = goods in worship. Refs.

6851<sup>8</sup>. Those who are of the Celestial Church, in the Word are called 'a nation.'

6858. By the nations in the Land of Canaan, which are enumerated here and also elsewhere (ill.) are signified all kinds of evil and of falsity.

—<sup>e</sup>. This is meant, in special, by the region occupied by evils and falsities, which is signified by 'the place' where were the nations who were to be driven out.

6971<sup>3</sup>. The like is the case (profanation) with the gentiles who recede from their religiosity; but the lot of these is better than that of those who are within the Church; for they have not truths from the Word, consequently not genuine truths; but truths conjoined with many fallacies, which cannot be so much profaned.

6988<sup>2</sup>. By 'the dumb' healed by the Lord, are signified also the gentiles, who, by His Advent into the world, were delivered from falsities and the derivative evils. III.

6989. In the Word, by 'the deaf' are signified also the gentiles, who do not know the truths of faith, because they have not the Word, and therefore cannot live according to them; but still, when they have been instructed, they receive them, and live according to them. III.

6990<sup>2</sup>. By 'the blind,' in the Word, are signified also the gentiles, who live in ignorance of the truth which is of faith, because they are outside the Church; but who, when instructed, receive faith. III.

7278. For by 'the land' is signified the nation itself; and by 'the nation,' in the internal sense, that which is of the nation . . .

7579. 'From which it was for a nation' (Ex.ix.24) = from the day when the natural mind could admit good and the derivative truth. 'Nation' = good; and, as this is said concerning the land of Egypt, by which is signified scientific truth which is of the natural mind, therefore also 'nation' = the truth which is from good.

8054. Evils and falsities are signified by the nations (of Canaan) here named; evil from the falsity of evil, by 'the Canaanite;' the falsity from which is evil, by 'the Hittite;' evil and the derivative falsity, by 'the Amorite;' the Idolatrous in which there is something of good, by 'the Hivite;' and the Idolatrous in which there is something of truth, by 'the Jebusite.' That the region of Heaven into which those of the Spiritual Church were to come was occupied by evils and falsities. Ref. and Ex. —<sup>e</sup>.

8117. (In Jupiter) they are distinguished into nations, families, and houses . . .

8118. I have been told by the Angels that the Most Ancients on this Earth in like manner dwelt distinguished into nations, families, and houses; and that all were content with their own goods . . .

8226<sup>e</sup>. 'Nations' = evils; and 'kingdoms,' falsities.

8294<sup>e</sup>. By the nations who then possessed the Land of Canaan, are signified those who before the Advent of the Lord occupied the region of Heaven which was afterwards given to those who were of the Lord's Spiritual Kingdom.

8313<sup>3</sup>. 'A great nation from the sides of the earth' (Jer.vi.22) = those who are in evils completely opposite to good.

8317<sup>e</sup>. For the nations there, whom the sons of Israel were to drive out, represented evils and also falsities of faith; the latter, because they had previously been of the Church.

8595<sup>e</sup>. By the nations in the Land of Canaan, are signified the evils and falsities against which [they] were to fight.

8650<sup>2</sup>. For the Lord's Church is scattered through the universal world; thus also among the gentiles. Refs.

8771. 'And a holy nation' (Ex.xix.6) = thus the Spiritual Kingdom; (for) 'nation' = those who are in good; and 'holy' is predicated of the truth which is of good; hence 'a holy nation' = the good from which is truth. Both 'a kingdom of priests,' and 'a holy nation,' = the Spiritual Kingdom, but with a difference. 'A kingdom of priests' = those who are in good from truth; 'a holy nation' those who are in good and thence in truth. They who are in good from truth look upwards to the Lord by means of truths; whereas they who are in good and thence in truth are in the Lord, and look at truths from Him. [These two states] succeed each other with those who are being regenerated, and in whom the Spiritual Kingdom—that is, the life of Heaven—is being implanted by the Lord. Ex.

8944<sup>2</sup>. (Doubt is excited by two things); first, that the Ancients, who were Gentiles, nevertheless knew that there is a Divine; that this is to be worshipped; and that man as to the soul is immortal; secondly, that at this day also many nations with whom there is no revelation know these things. Ex.

9024<sup>a</sup>. 'The suit of Jehovah against the nations' (Jer.xxv.31)=the contention of the Lord for truths against falsities, and for goods against evils; thus also defence. 'The nations'=falsities and evils.

9164<sup>e</sup>. 'The nations' among whom they shall be 'captive,' and by whom the Church shall be 'trodden down' (Luke xxi.24)=the evils from which are falsities.

9193<sup>3</sup>. Therefore, also, it was commanded that the nations in the Land of Canaan should be devoted (Dent.vii.2,24-26); for these nations had previously constituted the Church in that Land... but when they changed the representative worship... into idolatrous worship, and thus falsified truths and adulterated goods, it was ordered that not only the men-homines, but also the cities, and what was in the cities, should be given to devotion (or to the curse). The reason was that all things there represented falsities from evil; the cities, the doctrines of falsity themselves; the beasts, the evil affections; the gold and silver, their evils and falsities; and all other things in like manner.

9198<sup>2</sup>. (The Lord is received) otherwise by the converted gentiles outside the Church; these worship and adore Him as their Only God; and they say with the mouth, and think in the heart, that they acknowledge Him as God, because He has appeared in a human form. It is the contrary within the Church...

9209<sup>4</sup>. That the Church is being instaurated among such as, in the spiritual sense, are 'the blind,' 'the lame,' 'lepers,' 'the deaf,' and 'the poor;' thus among the gentiles who are in ignorance of good and truth, and still long for them. Ex. seriatim.

9256<sup>2</sup>. As to what further concerns those who are outside the Church, and are called gentiles, they indeed are in falsities of doctrine, but from ignorance, because they have not the Word. But still, when instructed, they are in clearer perception, and thence in a more interior perception concerning the heavenly life with man, than Christians. The reason is that they have not confirmed themselves against the truths of faith, as very many Christians have; on which account their internal man has not been closed; but, as with infants, is openable and receptive of truth. Ex. —<sup>4</sup>.

—<sup>5</sup>. From these things it may also be evident why a new Church is always instaurated among the gentiles, who are outside the Church; which is done when the old Church has closed Heaven against itself. Hence it is that the Church was transferred from the Jewish people to the gentiles; and also that the present Church is now being transferred to the gentiles.

— That the Church is being transferred to the gentiles, who acknowledge the Lord. Ill.

—<sup>7</sup>. In all these passages it treats of the Lord: that the gentiles will come to Him; and they come to Him when they acknowledge Him as their God; and, wonderful to say, the gentiles adore the Only God under a human form; and therefore when they hear about the Lord, they receive and acknowledge Him; nor can a new Church be instaurated among others. That the Church is instaurated among such. Ill.

— That those who are of the Church will be 'the last,' and the gentiles 'the first,' see Luke xiii.29,30.

9259<sup>2</sup>. (These two laws) contain [the command] that the gentiles also were to be loved, and instructed in the truths of faith, and amended as to the life.

9293<sup>4</sup>. 'Nations'=the goods of the Church. Refs.

9316<sup>2</sup>. When the sons of Israel had been introduced into the Land of Canaan, there was instituted... among the nations a representative of the evils and falsities which infest the Church. Refs.

9320. 'For destroying thou shalt destroy (the nations)' (Ex.xxiii.24)=that evils are to be completely removed. Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. The reason the Israelites and Jews destroyed the nations of the Land of Canaan, was that the former represented spiritual and celestial things, and the nations, infernal and diabolical ones, which can never be together with the former things, for they are opposites. That it was permitted them to destroy the nations, was for the reason that there was no Church among them, but only the representative of a Church... To such it is permitted to destroy, kill, and give to the curse...

9325<sup>7</sup>. See BARREN, here.

9327. The nations of the Land of Canaan, who had terror at the sons of Israel,=the evils of falsity and the falsities of evil. Refs.

9332<sup>e</sup>. The nations in Canaan=all falsities and evils in the complex.

9335<sup>5</sup>. As 'a wild beast'=falsity, and falsity is from a twofold origin, namely, from evil, and from uprightness, therefore 'wild beast,' in the Word=the upright gentiles, who, although they are in falsity, are yet in uprightness of life. Ill.

9340<sup>4</sup>. The Philistines were circumstanced like all the nations in Canaan, in that they represented the goods and truths of the Church, and also evils and falsities; for when the Ancient representative Church was among them, they represented the celestial things which are of good, and the spiritual things which are of truth; but, when they had turned aside from genuine representative worship, they then began to represent the diabolical things which are of evil and the infernal things which are of falsity.

9348<sup>4</sup>. 'Nations'=evils. Refs. R.52<sup>5</sup>.

—<sup>e</sup>. 'Nations' (Dent.xii.30)=evils and the derivative falsities.

9406<sup>2</sup>. 'The army of the nations' (Is.lx.11)=those who are in the goods of faith.

9407. By the holy Jerusalem (Rev.xxi.)=is meant a New Church among the gentiles, after the present Church which is in our European world has been devastated.

9594<sup>4</sup>. 'The fields of the forest'=the goods of the Church among the gentiles.

9595<sup>2</sup>. The Church to be instaurated among the gentiles. Tr. 10574<sup>5</sup>. S.15<sup>3</sup>.

9642<sup>2</sup>. 'To say to the north'=to those who are in darkness or ignorance concerning the truths of faith, who are the gentiles outside the Church.

9741<sup>8</sup>. 'The nations to whom it was given to trample on the holy City' (Rev.xi.2)=the evils of the love of self and of the world which destroy the Church.

9780<sup>13</sup>. That the Church would recede from the Jewish nation, and would be instaurated among the gentiles. Sig.

[A.9780]<sup>o</sup>. 'Jehovah shall go forth and shall fight against the nations' (Zech.xiv.3)=that the Lord would fight against the Hells; for 'the nations'=the evils which are from the Hells. 10261<sup>11</sup>.

9809<sup>5</sup>. 'He hath judged among the nations' (Ps.cx.6)=the dissipation of evils.

10112<sup>o</sup>. As to the gentiles outside the Church, those who from their religiosity have lived in any species of charity towards their neighbour, and in any species of love to God the Creator of the universe under a human form, are in the other life accepted by the Lord and saved; for these, when instructed by the Angels, acknowledge the Lord, and believe in Him, and love Him.

10132<sup>2</sup>. 'The nations' (Is.xi.10)=those who are in the good of innocence.

10137<sup>5</sup>. The Church among the gentiles. Tr.

10160. (In the Second Earth) they live distinguished into nations, families, and houses, (and) they are secure.

10288<sup>o</sup>. Those who are of the Church are called in the Word now 'a people,' now 'a nation;' as 'the Israelitish people,' and 'the Jewish nation.' By 'people' are there signified those who are of the Spiritual Church, and by 'nation,' those who are of the Celestial Church. Hence it is that 'peoples'=the truths and goods of faith; and 'nations,' the goods of love.

10432. 'I will make thee into a great nation' (Ex.xxxii.10)=the Word elsewhere, which is good and excellent. . . 'Nation'=those who are in good; thus, abstractedly from person, good. Refs. and Ex.

10529. The nations in Canaan enum. They=the evils and falsities of the Church and of worship. (Refs. to the signification of each nation.) 10638.

10566. 'See that this nation is Thy people' (Ex.xxxiii.13). . . 'The nation of Jehovah'=where the Divine itself dwells; and, in the spiritual sense, where the Lord's Church is; for all who acknowledge the Lord in faith and love, are, taken together, 'the nation of Jehovah.'

10634. 'In all nations' (Ex.xxxiv.10)=where there is no Church; for by 'nations,' in the Word, are signified those who are outside the Church, because they are not in the light of truth from the Word.

10813. These Spirits (of the Sixth Earth) when they lived on their Earth, had dwelt separate, house by house, family by family, and thus nations by nations. . .

10814. The dominion of love towards the neighbour exists among those who dwell separated into houses, families, and nations. . . Among these, he dominates who is the father of the nation; and, under him, the fathers of families; and, under these, the fathers of each house. He is called the father of the nation from whom are the families; and, from the families, the houses. . . and as this love increases in descending, the father of the nation acts from a more interior love. . .

—<sup>e</sup>. In the Heavens also, these dwell distinguished into nations, families, and houses, although in Societies together; but according to spiritual affinities. . .

10833. (In the Sixth Earth) the nations with their families assemble every thirtieth day at one place, and hear preachings. . .

H. 3<sup>o</sup>. It is otherwise with those who are born outside the Church, who are called gentiles.

318. Concerning the gentiles or peoples outside the Church, in Heaven. Chapter.

321 (o). Refs. to passages on the subject of the gentiles.

365<sup>2</sup>. By 'the poor man' (Lazarus) are meant the gentiles, who had not the Knowledges of good and truth, and yet longed for them.

— By the rich who were called to the great supper, and who excused themselves, is meant the Jewish nation; and by the poor introduced in their place are meant the gentiles, who are outside the Church (Luke xii.).

391. There are Societies of Angels which teach various gentiles.

514<sup>2</sup>. Behind these, more to the north, are the places of instruction of the various gentiles, who in the world have lived a good life in conformity with their religion, and have thence derived a species of conscience, and have done what is just and right, not so much on account of the laws of their government, but on account of the laws of religion which they had believed ought to be sacredly observed. . . All these, when they have been instructed, are easily brought to acknowledge the Lord, because they entertain at heart [the idea] that God is not invisible, but is visible under a human form. In number, these exceed all the rest; and the best of them are from Africa.

515<sup>o</sup>. The gentiles are instructed by their own Angels.

516. All instruction is effected there from doctrine which is from the Word. . . The rest, as the Mohammedans, and the gentiles, are instructed from doctrines adapted to their apprehension, which differ from the Heavenly Doctrine only in this: that spiritual life is taught by means of moral life which is in agreement with the good dogmas of their religion, and from which they had drawn their life in the world.

N. 3. (The New Heaven) is composed both of Christians and of gentiles. . .

J. 47. Afterwards (the Last Judgment was executed) upon the gentiles, and lastly upon the Reformed.

48. The ordination of all the nations and peoples upon whom [came] the Judgment. Des.

— Beyond (the Mohammedans) were congregated the gentiles in a vast number, who thus constituted the compass itself. Beyond these appeared as it were a sea, which was the boundary.

51. The Judgment upon the gentiles des. (See LAST JUDGMENT, and also GENTILE, herc.)

617. The monks, together with the common people. . . were cast. . . partly into the Hells of the gentiles; for those who were from the Dark Ages were in part idolaters like the gentiles.

74<sup>2</sup>. The Angels have. . . much hope concerning some nation remote from the Christian world, and removed from the infesters therefrom, which is such that it can receive spiritual light, and become a celestial spiritual man; and they have said that at this day interior Divine truths are being revealed among that nation, and that they are being received in spiritual faith, that is, in life and heart; and that they are adoring the Lord.

C. J. 73. Concerning the Africans, and concerning the gentiles, in the Spiritual World. Gen.art. T.835.

— The gentiles who know nothing concerning the Lord, appear around those who know [concerning Him]; until at last the ultimate circumferences are made by those who are complete idolaters, and have adored the sun and moon. But those who acknowledge one God, and make of religion and life precepts such as are in the decalogue, are seen in a higher region, and thus communicate more immediately with the Christians in the Middle; for so the communication is not intercepted by the Mohammedans and the papists. The gentiles, moreover, are distinct according to their geniuses and faculties of receiving light through the Heavens from the Lord; for there are more interior and more exterior ones of them, which they do not derive from their birth place, but from their religion. The Africans are more interior than all the rest.

74<sup>2</sup>. I heard a certain presbyter from the Christians saying that no one can have an idea of a Divine Human; and I saw him translated to various gentiles, to more and more interior ones in succession; and, from them, to their Heavens, and at last to the Christian Heaven, and everywhere there was given a communication of their interior perception concerning God; and he observed that they had no other idea of God than the idea of a Man, which is the same as the idea of the Divine Human.

75. There are many Societies of gentiles, especially from the Africans, who when they have been instructed by the Angels concerning the Lord, say that it cannot be otherwise than that God the Creator of the universe has appeared in the world, because He has created them, and loves them; and that the appearing could not be effected except even to the ocular sight in a Human Form. When they are told that He did not appear as the Angels are wont to do; but that He was born a Man, and was thus seen, they hesitate somewhat, and inquire whether He was born from a human father; and, when they hear that He was conceived from the God of the universe, and was born from a virgin, they say that thus He has the Divine Essence, which, being infinite and life itself, He was not such a man as others are. Further ex.

S. 40<sup>4</sup>. The reason the gentiles are meant by 'Lazarus,' was that the gentiles were loved by the Lord, as was the Lazarus who was resuscitated from the dead . . .

84. 'Nations,' and 'people,' (are two expressions which appear like repetitions of the same Thing; whereas 'nations' is predicated of good; and, in the opposite sense, of evil; and 'peoples' is predicated of truth; and, in the opposite sense, of falsity). 86, III.

86<sup>e</sup>. The reason 'nations' and 'peoples,' are mentioned together, is that by 'nations' are meant those who are in good; and, in the opposite sense, those who are in evil: and by 'peoples,' those who are in truths; and, in the opposite sense, who are in falsities; and therefore those who are of the Lord's Spiritual Kingdom are called 'peoples'; and those of His Celestial Kingdom 'nations.'

105<sup>3</sup>. (Hence) Christians, with whom the Word is read . . . are in the middle; and around them are the Papists; around these are the Mohammedans . . . behind these are the Africans; and the last circumference is constituted by the nations and peoples in Asia and in the Indies.

Life 65. With all nations in the universal world, with whom there is religion, there are like precepts as in the decalogue; and all those who live them from religion are saved; but all who do not live them from religion are damned. (The former) when instructed by the Angels after death, receive truths, and acknowledge the Lord. The reason is, that they shun evils as sins, and are thence in good, and good loves truth. III.

W. 13. Hence it is that each nation in the Spiritual World is allotted a place according to the idea of God as a Man . . .

P. 215<sup>4</sup>. In the most ancient times, when nations and families dwelt together distinctly, there was no other love of riches than that they should possess the necessities of life . . .

251<sup>3</sup>. For each nation with which the sons of Israel waged war, signified some kind of evil; and then they were punished by that nation. Enum. and Examps.

R. 10<sup>3</sup>. 'The barren (woman)' = the Church from the gentiles, who have not the Word.

110<sup>2</sup>. By those who are 'in darkness,' 'in the shadow of death,' etc. . . are meant the gentiles, who have been in good works, but not in any truths . . . Quite similar to them are those in the Christian world who are in works alone, and in no truths of doctrine, on which account they cannot be called anything else than gentiles. They do indeed know the Lord, but do not go to Him; and they have the Word, but do not search for any truths therein.

147. 'To him will I give Power over the nations' (Rev. ii. 26) = that they shall conquer with themselves the evils which are from Hell. E. 175.

282. 'From every tribe, and tongue, and people, and nation' (Rev. v. 9) = that those have been redeemed by the Lord, who, in the Church, or in any religion, are in truths as to doctrine, and in goods as to life. Ex. 365.

483. 'Thou must prophecy again over peoples and nations' (Rev. x. 11) = that the quality of those in faith alone is to be further taught.

—<sup>2</sup>. That 'nations' = those in goods, or in evils, of life. III.

488. 'For it is given to the gentiles' (Rev. xi. 2) = because the state of that Church has been destroyed and desolated by evils of life.

505. By 'peoples, and tribes, and tongues, and nations' (ver. 9) are meant all from the Reformed who have been and will be in falsities of doctrine and thence in evils of life from faith alone. . . By 'nations' are signified those who are in evils of life.

[R.] 524. 'And the nations have been angry' (ver. 18) = those who are in faith alone, and thence in evils of life: that they were wrathful and infested those who are against their faith.

544. 'Who shall pasture all nations with an iron rod' (Rev. xii. 5) = which, by truths from the sense of the letter . . . and by rational things from natural lumen, will convince all who are in dead worship from faith separated from charity, who are willing to be convinced. . . . By 'the nations' are signified those who are in evils of life . . . 828.

587. 'And Power was given (the beast) over every tribe, and tongue, and nation' (Rev. xiii. 7) = thus dominion over all things of the Church, both those of its doctrine, and those of its life. . . . By 'nation' is signified life according to (the doctrine of the Church).

627. 'And to every nation, and tribe, and tongue, and people' (Rev. xiv. 6) = to all who from religion are in goods, and from doctrine in truths. By 'nation' are signified those who are in goods; and, abstractedly, goods.

667. 'Therefore all nations shall come and adore before Thee' (Rev. xv. 4) = that all who are in the good of love and of charity will acknowledge the Lord as the Only God.

745<sup>2</sup>. By 'nations' are signified those who are in religion.

800. 'By thy sorcery have all the nations been seduced' (Rev. xviii. 23) = their nefarious arts, by which they have led away the lower minds of all . . .

843<sup>2</sup>. By 'the nations which he should not seduce' (Rev. xx. 2), are meant the good. By 'the nations' are meant those who are good as to life; and, in the opposite sense, those who are evil. 858.

920. 'The nations which are saved shall walk in the light of it' (Rev. xxi. 19) = that all who are in the good of life and believe in the Lord, will there live according to Divine truths, and will see them within themselves . . .

923. 'And they shall bring the glory and honour of the nations into it' (ver. 26) = that those who enter will bring with them the confession, acknowledgment, and faith, that the Lord is the God of Heaven and earth, and that every truth of the Church, and every good of religion, are from Him. Ex.

936. 'The leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations' (Rev. xxii. 2) = rational truths therefrom by means of which those who are in evils and the derivative falsities are brought to think soundly, and to live becomingly . . . By 'the nations,' here, are signified those who are in evils and the derivative falsities.

M. 205. Those who lived in the most ancient eras, live at this day in the Heavens, houses by houses, families by families, and nations by nations . . . and scarcely any one from a house is wanting; and the reason is that with them there was love truly conjugal . . .

T. 9. Hence it is that in the universal world there is not a nation, possessed of religion and sound reason, which does not acknowledge God, and that God is one. Gen.art.

814<sup>2</sup>. That noble (or notable) nation . . .

835. Something concerning the gentiles (in the Spiritual World). Gen.art.

D. 204. Concerning the gentiles, or those not instructed: that they come into the heavenly Kingdom more easily than the instructed. Ex. 214.

402. That from distant nations many species of Spirits are formed by means of their idols. Ex.

4330. Concerning the heathen nations. (Their great spiritual intelligence.)

4401. Concerning the gentiles. (Their prejudice against the truths of faith on account of the character of Christians.)

4415. Concerning the gentiles; concerning Cicero. Ex.

4770. Concerning the initiament of the New Church . . . among the gentiles. Ex.

4864. Concerning the spiritual generation as of nations and families. Ex.

5546. (Nations, families, and houses in Heaven. Ex.)

5807. Concerning the separation of Christians and gentiles: that the Lord has betaken Himself to the gentiles. Gen.art.

5809. I was then separated from those who are in the Christian world, who were at the left, and was brought by the Lord to the gentiles, who were shown in respect to the quality of the faith they had concerning God. Fully ex.

5822. See INDIA.

5880. (Concerning those gentiles who have had no Knowledge of God, or of religion.) See also 5822.

D. Min. 4724<sup>e</sup>. The inrooting of truth and good with the gentiles is from externals . . .

E. 48<sup>2</sup>. 'Nation against nation' = evil against evil. 400<sup>13</sup>.

49<sup>e</sup>. Therefore the New Church is being instaurated by the Lord with the gentiles, where (the Divine Human) is not only known, but is also acknowledged.

50. 'I was in the isle called Patmos' = a revelation to the gentiles. Ex.

52. These things are said concerning the Church of the gentiles, which will receive Divine truth, and will acknowledge the Divine Human of the Lord. Ex. —<sup>2</sup>.

107<sup>3</sup>. The reason the gentiles are saved is solely because in their life they look to religion . . .

131<sup>6</sup>. 'The nations' = evils. 355<sup>22</sup>. 357<sup>5</sup>. 405<sup>15</sup>. —<sup>23</sup>. —<sup>46</sup>. 406<sup>15</sup>. —<sup>e</sup>. 418<sup>7</sup>. 453<sup>6</sup>. 455<sup>11</sup>. 518<sup>24</sup>. 556<sup>4</sup>. 573<sup>9</sup>. —<sup>10</sup>. 659<sup>22</sup>. 750<sup>10</sup>. 960<sup>2</sup>.

175. 'Peoples' = those in truths, or falsities; 'nations,' those in goods, or evils. Ex. and Ill.

—<sup>7</sup>. In these passages, by 'nations' are meant all who are in love to the Lord; whether within the Church . . . or without it.

—<sup>8</sup>. That by 'nations,' in the opposite sense, are meant those who are in evils; and, abstractedly, the evils themselves. Ill.

—<sup>10</sup>. 'The worst of the nations' (Ezek.vii.24)=direful falsities from evil.

193<sup>9</sup>. The like is signified by the nations being given to the curse . . .

208<sup>6</sup>. 'The army of the nations'=those who are in good.

—<sup>6</sup>. 'Nations'=those who are in goods. 323<sup>6</sup>. 324<sup>11</sup>. 400<sup>12</sup>. 401<sup>9</sup>. 406<sup>8</sup>. 422<sup>13</sup>. 427<sup>3</sup>. 454. 1077. 1191.

223<sup>3</sup>. 'A just nation keeping fidelities'=those who are in good and thence in truths.

—<sup>16</sup>. 'Thy seed shall inherit the nations' (Is.liv.3)=goods.

—<sup>30</sup>. 'Go ye not into the way of the gentiles' (Matt.x.5)=falsity from evil.

239<sup>8</sup>. Concerning the instauration of the Church among the gentiles. Tr. —<sup>10</sup>. 294<sup>3</sup>. —<sup>2</sup>. 304<sup>21</sup>. 357. 375<sup>33</sup>. 654<sup>11</sup>.

242<sup>18</sup>. 'All nations shall serve Him' (Ps.lxxii.11)=all who are in truths from good.

—<sup>19</sup>. 'I will stir up all nations, in order that the choice of all nations shall come' (Hag.ii.7)=concerning the Advent of the Lord. By 'the nations' are meant those who are in good and thence in truths.

275<sup>15</sup>. 'A great nation' (Jer.l.41)=evils.

. 288<sup>12</sup>. 'The nations' (Rev.xxi.26)=all who are in good.

294<sup>6</sup>. 'The nations shall fear the name of Jehovah' (Ps.cii.15)=those who are in good.

298<sup>11</sup>. 'The nations which shall be subdued before him' (Is.xlv.1)=the Hells as to evils.

304<sup>17</sup>. 'Nations'=the goods of the Church; and, in the opposite sense, its evils.

—<sup>30</sup>. 'Thou hast added to the nation, Jehovah' (Is.xxvi.15)=those who are in the good of love, whom He has devoted to Himself.

331. '(From every) people and nation' (Rev.v.9)=those who are of the Lord's Spiritual Church, and of His Celestial Church. By 'people,' in the Word, are signified those who are in spiritual good; and by 'nation,' those who are in celestial good. Ill. 625.

—<sup>7</sup>. In these passages also, 'peoples,' and 'nations' are named, by whom are meant all who are in truths and goods . . . —<sup>9</sup>.

—<sup>11</sup>. In the opposite sense, 'peoples'=those who are in falsities; and 'nations,' those who are in evils. Ill.

— . In these passages, 'peoples'=those who are against the truths of the Spiritual Church, thus who are in falsities; and 'nations,' those who are against the goods of the Celestial Church, thus who are in evils.

340<sup>21</sup>. 'A great nation' (Gen.xii.2) is said of the Divine good.

355<sup>5</sup>. 'Nations'=all who are in the good of love to the Lord. 431<sup>10</sup>. 433<sup>19</sup>.

—<sup>19</sup>. 'Nation'=those in evils. 657. 684<sup>11</sup>. 734<sup>2</sup>.

—<sup>24</sup>. 741<sup>16</sup>. 923<sup>8</sup>.

—<sup>23</sup>. 'To sell the nations' (Nahum iii.4)=to alienate goods.

375<sup>12</sup>. 'The Samaritan'=the gentiles who were in the good of charity towards the neighbour.

388<sup>6</sup>. 'The nations' (driven out little by little) (Ex.xxiii.29; Deut.vii.22)=the evils which man has, also from what is hereditary; and that these are removed with a man little by little. Ex.

—<sup>15</sup>. 'Nations' (Ps.lxxx.1)=evils of life and falsities of doctrine.

—<sup>28</sup>. 'Great nations'=goods.

400<sup>8</sup>. 'Nations'=the evils of falsity.

403<sup>13</sup>. 'A nation from afar'=the evil opposite to celestial good.

417<sup>10</sup>. The destruction of all the goods of the Church is signified by, 'I will cut off the nations.'

447<sup>5</sup>. 'Galilee of the gentiles'=the instauration of the Church among the gentiles who are in . . . combat against evils and falsities. Ex.

455<sup>4</sup>. 'Nations'=those who are in life.

555<sup>9</sup>. 'All nations'=evils and falsities of every kind.

585<sup>4</sup>. 'Many nations'=evils from which are falsities.

600<sup>12</sup>. 'Thy seed shall inherit the nations'=the truth through which are goods . . .

617<sup>27</sup>. 'Nations'=evils and falsities.

629<sup>8</sup>. 'Nations'=those who are in evils and the derivative falsities.

632<sup>3</sup>. 'Jerusalem shall be trodden down by the gentiles' (Luke xxi.24)=the total destruction of the Church as to doctrine, by evils of life and by falsities of doctrine; 'until the times of the gentiles shall be fulfilled'=when evil has been consummated.

637<sup>8</sup>. 'The destroyer of the nations' (Jer.iv.7)=the evil of falsity destroying the good of the Church.

650<sup>28</sup>. 'In its shadow dwelt all great nations' (Ezek.xxi.6)=the goods of affections in the natural man.

—<sup>46</sup>. The convocation of the gentiles to the Church; and the reception of the truth of doctrine in the good of love by them; and their intelligence in the derivative spiritual things. Tr.

—<sup>52</sup>. 'Nations'=the cupidities of evil.

—<sup>60</sup>. 'The nations' (of Canaan)=evils and falsities of every kind.

652<sup>11</sup>. 'The nations which shall be cut off'=the goods of the Church.

654<sup>7</sup>. See EGYPT, here.

—<sup>17</sup>. 'To drive out the nations' (Ps.lxxx.)=the evils of the natural man which are driven out by means of truths.

—<sup>25</sup>. 'The nations' first mentioned (Ezek.xxix.15)=the truths of the Church; and 'the nations' last mentioned,=its goods.

654<sup>38</sup>. 'The time of the nations'=the state of the Church from evils.

655<sup>10</sup>. 'To condemn Him and deliver Him to the gentiles' (Matt.xx.19)=to adjudge the Divine truth and Divine good to Hell, and deliver them to the evils and falsities which are thence. 'The gentiles'=the evils which are from Hell, and destroy the goods of the Church.

[E.] 684<sup>32</sup>. To be in His protection against the falsities of evil, which are 'the nations.' Sig.

696<sup>20</sup>. 'Nations'=those who are in good, and, from it, in truths.

710<sup>12</sup>. 'Nations'=those in good, and who, from good, receive truths.

724<sup>26</sup>. 'Nations'=those who were in the good of love. —<sup>27</sup>. 'A nation from afar'=the falsity of evil, which is the falsity of the sensuous man, destroying truths.

730<sup>23</sup>. 'Wilderness'=the state of the Church among the gentiles. Ill.

803. 'Nation'=the good of love; also the doctrine of love and of the derivative Church. Refs.

811. 'All nations'=evils of every kind.

817. All the nations of Canaan represented heretical things confirmatory either of falsities of faith or of evils of love.

881. 'Nations'=those who are in the good of love and of life; and, abstractedly from persons, goods. 1020.

Coro. 41<sup>3</sup>. The third and fourth state of the Ancient Church... is described (by) the consummation of the nations around Canaan, and by the consummation of the nations within the Jordan. Ill.

Nation. Natio.

J. 48<sup>2</sup>. That the nations were thus ordained according to the quarters, was according to the general faculty of each for receiving Divine truths. D.5314.

T. 815. Free nations, and nations not free. (Des. by comparisons.)

D. 2260. The Jews are a nation quite diverse from other nations. Des.

3508. Occurs. 3523. 5040. J.(Post.)16. 19. 85. 104. 241.

5037. The Swedes think more within themselves than other nations at this day...

5577. (He must be) of their own nation. J.(Post.)3.

5589. From every nation of the earth. 5590.

5629. Differs from the life of all other nations. 5825.

5838. According to nations. 5839<sup>2</sup>.

6049<sup>9</sup>. From what nation they are.

6077<sup>e</sup>. Because they are of their nation.

E. 1176<sup>2</sup>. Pours itself forth into congregations and nations.

J.(Post.) 176. After the Judgment, all Societies have been disposed into admirable order, according to nations...

D.Love vi<sup>2</sup>. Each nation (appears before the Lord as one man) according to uses. Enum.

Native. Indigena.

A. 1463<sup>2</sup>. Occurs.

7908. 'A native of the Land' (Ex.xii.19)=him who has been born within the Church. 8011.

9296<sup>6</sup>. 'A native of Israel' (Lev.xxiii.42)=those who are in the good of charity; thus, abstractedly, this good.

T. 14. Man has been created a native of both worlds... 369. —<sup>3</sup>.

607<sup>3</sup>. As man continually lives in communion with the natives of the Spiritual World...

D. 2939. Some Spirits are strangers, some natives...

Native Country. Patria.

See also COUNTRY.

A. 3816<sup>3</sup>. He who has the love of his native country, and is in such affection towards his native country that it is a pleasure to him to do good to it from good will, if this were denied him, would grieve and would make supplication that an opportunity of doing good to it might be given... Such a man is honoured and advanced to dignities; for these, with him, are means for serving his native country, although they are called rewards. But those who are in no affection for their native country, but only for self and the world, act for the sake of the honours and wealth, which they also regard as the ends. Such prefer themselves to their native country... They who are such in the life of the body, relatively to their native country, or to the public there, are such also relatively to the Lord's Kingdom, there...

3951<sup>2</sup>. In proportion as riches... have as an end... the good of our native country... they are good.

4793<sup>4</sup>. The shame of injuring our native country (an internal bond).

5025. Spiritual truth and good will that a man should... have pleasure... in offices [done] towards his native country...

6023<sup>2</sup>. Our native country (is the neighbour) more than other kingdoms.

—<sup>e</sup>. (The idea) that our native country is not the neighbour, except in so far as there is gain from it. 6391<sup>e</sup>.

6391<sup>3</sup>. Evil Spirits, when they lived, had done nothing of good to others, or to their native country, except for the sake of self...

6481<sup>2</sup>. The Lord drives the evil to do good to... their native country... through their own loves...

6819. The native country is in a prior degree of the neighbour than a society; in a degree still prior is the Church... 6821, Ex.

7392<sup>3</sup>. In the other life all those perceive delight in doing harm, who in the world do not do good to... their native country for the sake of their native country... but for the sake of self.

Nativity. See under BORN.

Natural. Naturalis.

See CELESTIAL NATURAL, DIVINE NATURAL, EXTERNAL MAN and SPIRITUAL NATURAL.

See also under BRASS, EGYPT, ESAU, FOOT, HEEL, JACOB, INTERNAL MAN, MIND—mens, RATIONAL, SERVANT, SHOE, SOLE, SPIRITUAL, and WORLD.

A. 12. (In the sixth state of regeneration) the man's natural life is delighted and sustained by the things of the body and senses; from which comes a combat . . . 56. 58. 59.

40<sup>2</sup>. Those who shall teach the natural man concerning the truths of faith. Sig.

193<sup>o</sup>. That natural goodness remained with them. Sig. 216.

224. The state of this posterity of the Most Ancient Church was natural good; and they who are in natural good are such that they hide themselves from fear, and from shame that they are naked. But those who are in no natural good do not hide themselves, because they are not ashamed. Ill.

250<sup>o</sup>. 'The heel' = the lowest Natural, as the Corporeal, which the serpent will injure. 259<sup>2</sup>.

282. The second and third posterities, in which there was natural good. Sig.

425. 'Brass' = natural good. Ill.

880<sup>2</sup>. There are three things with man which concur and unite together; namely, the Natural, the Spiritual, and the Celestial. His Natural never receives any life except from the Spiritual . . . The Natural is the receptacle which receives the Spiritual, or is the vessel into which it is poured . . . The Natural of man is what does the work of charity . . . but this work in itself is dead except from the Spiritual which is in it . . .

1055<sup>2</sup>. For the Natural comes forth from the Spiritual; and the Spiritual from the Celestial.

1388<sup>2</sup>. This knowledge is natural to man.

1404. 'Jacob' represents, in special, the natural man. 1409<sup>2</sup>.

1577<sup>3</sup>. With the external man all is natural; for the external man himself is the same as the natural man. The internal man is said to be united to the external when the Celestial Spiritual of the internal man inflows into the Natural of the external, and causes them to act as one. Thence the Natural also becomes celestial and spiritual, but a lower celestial and spiritual . . .

1639<sup>2</sup>. The natural speech of Spirits among themselves. Des. 1641<sup>2</sup>. 1649.

1748. 'The sole,' and 'the heel,' = the ultimate Natural. . . 'A shoe,' therefore, = the Natural still more ultimate.

—<sup>4</sup>. Devoid of all natural charity. Sig.

1896. The life of the exterior or natural man. Sig. 1909.

1909. The very life of the internal man inflows into all the affections of the natural man . . .

2162. That (the Divine) should put on something natural. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>8</sup>. All these, being natural things, are called 'the earth,' and the Lord's 'footstool.'

2171. There are natural perception, rational perception, etc.

2181. Every man has also a Natural, which is distinct . . . 2183<sup>2</sup>.

2183<sup>2</sup>. The Rational can see the evil which is in the natural man, and chastise it. Before these two are conjoined, the man cannot be an entire (or perfect) man, nor be in the tranquillity of peace; for the one fights with the other. The Angels . . . rule his Rational, but the evil Spirits . . . his Natural . . . If the Rational conquers, the Natural is subjugated, and the man is thus gifted with conscience; but, if the Natural conquers, he can receive nothing of conscience. If the Rational conquers, his Natural then becomes as if it also was rational; but, if the Natural conquers, the Rational becomes as if it also was natural. If the Rational conquers, the Angels draw nearer into the man, and insinuate into him charity . . . but, if the Natural conquers, the Angels remove themselves further away, that is, more towards his interiors; and the evil spirits draw nearer towards the Rational, and continually attack it, and fill his lower things with hatred, revenge, deceit, and the like. If the Rational conquers, the man comes into the tranquillity of peace . . . but, if the Natural conquers, then, while he lives, he appears as if he were in tranquillity, but in the other life he comes into the unrest and torment of Hell. . . There is nothing, therefore, which can make a man blessed and happy, than that the Natural be conformable to the Rational, and both be conjoined; which is effected solely through charity, and charity is solely from the Lord.

2184. 'The son of an ox' = the corresponding Natural.

—<sup>6</sup>. The Celestial Spiritual of His Natural. Sig.

—<sup>7</sup>. The Natural of man (also) has its own good and its own truth . . . The good of the Natural is the delight which is perceived from charity . . . the truth of the Natural is the Scientific which favours this delight.

2332. Application to His Natural. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>8</sup>. The Lord applies (the Holy proceeding from Himself) to their Natural.

2572<sup>3</sup>. The Angels . . . are in all wisdom . . . in regard to rational and natural things also.

2576<sup>17</sup>. The Lord's Rational and Natural, which He should make Divine. Sig.

2758. For the natural kingdom derives all its origin from the Spiritual Kingdom.

2781. The natural man, which He prepared. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. There are two things which constitute the Natural with man, or, what is the same, the natural man; namely, natural good and natural truth. Ex.

—<sup>8</sup>. That the Natural had been subordinated. Rep.

—<sup>9</sup>. The natural man ought to serve the Rational, this the Spiritual, this the Celestial, and this the Lord. Such is the order of subordination.

2782. 'Servants' = the natural things of man, which are to serve the Rational.

2786. The Lord prepared the natural man in Himself, and also the rational, so that they should serve the Divine Rational. Tr.

2850<sup>o</sup>. To this correspondence the Lord reduces the rational and natural things of man . . .

2851<sup>4</sup>. 'The gate of the enemies' is with man in his natural mind. When man is completely natural . . . evils and falsities occupy it . . . —<sup>9</sup>.

—<sup>14</sup>. The seat of the infernals with man is in his natural mind.

[A.] 2991. That natural things represent spiritual ones, and that they correspond, may also be known from this: that the Natural cannot come forth at all, except from a cause prior to itself. Its cause is from the Spiritual; and there is nothing natural which does not derive its cause thence. Natural forms are effects; nor can they appear as causes . . . but they receive their forms according to use in the place in which they are; but still the forms of the effects represent the things which are of the causes . . . Thus all natural things represent those things which are of the spiritual things to which they correspond . . .

2993. (For) the causes of all natural things are from spiritual ones . . . Or, what is the same, all things in the natural world derive their cause from truth which is spiritual, and their beginning from good which is celestial; and natural things proceed thence according to all the differences of truth and good which are in the Lord's Kingdom; thus from the Lord Himself . . .

3012. 'Laban' = the affection of good in the natural man. 3129.

3013. Divine truth conjoined with the Divine good of His Rational . . . by the common way from the natural man; namely, from the scientifics, Knowledges, and doctrinal things which are there . . . Tr. 3024. 3030<sup>5</sup>.

3019. The Lord's influx into His Natural. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>o</sup>. All things which are of the natural man, as scientifics, . . . are nothing else than things for service . . .

3020. The offices of the natural man. Sig. and Ex.

— The natural man, relatively to the rational man . . . is like the administrator in a house. Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. As the natural mind is distinct from the rational mind, and is in a degree below it, and as it also acts from a kind of proprium, it is called relatively 'a servant, the elder of the house,' and it is said to administer all the things in itself which belong to that mind. That the natural mind is a distinct mind from the rational, and in a lower degree, and in a kind of proprium, may be evident from the things which are there, and from its offices. The things which are there are all scientifics, thus also all Knowledges of every kind; in a word, they are each and all things which belong to the exterior memory. To this mind also belongs all the Imaginative . . . and also all natural affections which man has in common with brute animals. Hence it is evident what its offices are.

—<sup>o</sup>. With many, the natural mind dominates over the rational mind . . . It does not dominate, but serves, solely with those who are in the good of charity; that is, who suffer themselves to be led by the Lord.

3029. The Lord's perception concerning the natural man. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. Whatever is done in the natural man, and the quality of the natural man, this is perceived in the Rational . . .

3030. The doubt of the natural man concerning that affection . . . Sig. and Ex.

3040<sup>2</sup>. All the affection of truth in the natural man comes forth through influx from the affection of good from the rational . . .

3043. The freedom belonging to the natural man. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. Freedom is predicated of the natural man, but not so much of the rational; for there flows in good in heavenly freedom from the Lord through the Rational into the Natural; the natural man is what receives it; and in order that he may receive it, and thus be conjoined with the heavenly freedom which flows in through the Rational, the Natural is left in freedom. For freedom is of love; and the natural man, if it does not receive the affection of truth from the inflowing affection of good, is never conjoined with the rational.

—<sup>3</sup>. As to the Lord, He also left the Natural in freedom, when He made His Rational Divine as to truth . . .

3048. General scientifics in the natural man. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. It is described here that the Lord separated in the natural man the things which were from Himself . . . from those which were from the Maternal.

—<sup>5</sup>. The Divine celestial and spiritual things in the Lord's Natural. Sig.

—<sup>o</sup>. General scientifics . . . form in general the natural man as to its intellectual part.

3057<sup>3</sup>. When a man is being reformed, the generals which are in his natural man are disposed by the Lord to correspondence with those which are in Heaven. The generals are first disposed, in order that particulars may be successively insinuated into them by the Lord; and, into these, singulars. Ex. and Sig.

3071. The derivative illustration of all the scientifics in the natural man. Sig.

3174. How truth is elevated out of the natural man into the rational. Tr. 3084<sup>2</sup>, Ex.

3080<sup>2</sup>. Thus it is the Spiritual in the Natural which affects; and not the Natural without the Spiritual.

3086. This whole chapter treats of the truth Divine which was to be conjoined with Divine good; namely, that Divine good inflowed into the natural man, that is, into the scientifics, Knowledges, and doctrinals there . . . and that by this influx it illustrated, vivified, and disposed into order, all things which were there; for all the light, life, and order in the natural man are from influx from the Divine. 3094.

3095<sup>o</sup>. All the genuine good in the natural man is . . . from the marriage of good and truth in the Rational. This good is what is called the good of truth. Sig.

3098. Good itself inflows into the Natural through the Rational . . . and illustrates the things which are there; whereas truth itself inflows into the Natural through the Sensuous . . . but the conjunction of good and truth is not there, but in the Rational; and therefore truth is called forth thence; thus out of the natural sphere into the spiritual one . . . 3101, Ex. 3102<sup>2</sup>, Ex.

3114. For the natural man has no other food, which is that of its life (than scientific truths) . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. In the natural man, as in the rational, there are two things in general which constitute its essence; namely, intellectual and voluntary things . . . The truths of the natural man are scientific truths. (Sig. by 'the straw' for the camels.) But the goods of the natural man are delights, especially those which are of the affection of these truths.

3128. The external or Natural of man is from the mother . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. Truths are called forth thence, and are divested of their natural form . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. If the life of the natural man is such that it does not receive the Divine good (which inflows through the Rational) . . . the Natural can no longer be illustrated; for the illustration in the natural man is effected by good through truths; and, when there is no longer illustration, there cannot be reformation. This is why the natural man also is much treated of, as to its quality . . .

3134. The inclination — propensio — of truth in the natural man. Sig. and Ex.

3138. In these three verses it treats of the preparation and illustration of the natural man, in order that the truth might be called forth thence which was to be conjoined with the good in the Rational. Ex.

3141<sup>2</sup>. The process itself (of the inflowing of Divine good into the natural man) is here described . . .

3143. For all things which belong to the natural man are for no other use than to serve the spiritual. (These things sig.)

3145. Without freedom there is never any production of truth in the natural man, nor any calling forth thence into the rational . . . Sig.

3147. Purification (in the natural man). Sig. and Ex. 3148.

— . The dirty things of the natural man are all things which are of the love of self and of the love of the world, and when these have been washed away, goods and truths inflow. Ex.

—<sup>6</sup>. Only natural things are to be purified. Sig.

3153. These three verses contain . . . that the things of the natural man were being prepared to receive Divine things . . .

—<sup>e</sup>. All things . . . in the Natural also were made Divine by the Lord. Tr.

3160<sup>2</sup>. When good from the rational man inflows into the natural man, it does not inflow immediately into the truth there, but into the good there, and through the good into the truth. Sig.

3161<sup>3</sup>. From the Divine Itself, the Lord not only begot the Rational as to good; but also, through this, the Natural as to truth . . .

3163. The perception of joy in the natural man. Sig.

3166<sup>e</sup>. For all the illustration of the good and truth in the natural man is from (the initiation of truth into good in the rational).

3167. Man has been so created that the spiritual and the natural things in him . . . should make a one; but, then, the spiritual man ought to dispose all things in the natural man, and the natural man ought to obey, as a servant his lord. But, by the Fall, the natural man began to exalt himself above the spiritual, and thus inverted Divine order itself. Hence the natural man separated itself from the spiritual, nor had it any longer spiritual things, except those which could enter as through chinks, and give the faculty of thinking and speaking. In order, then, that spiritual things may again inflow into the natural man, it must be regenerated by the Lord; that is, the truth from the natural man must be initiated and conjoined to the good in the Rational. When this is effected, spiritual things accede to the natural man; for then the light of Heaven inflows, and illustrates those things which are in the natural man . . . The goods there receive the heat of the light . . . and the truth, the rays of the light . . . Natural good is then all the delight and pleasure from the end of serving the spiritual man . . . and natural truth is every doctrinal and scientific for the sake of the end of being wise; that is, of doing these things. 3168<sup>e</sup>. 3169. 3170.

3171. The Natural is said to be elevated, when spiritual things are being appropriated to it . . .

3174. A doubting of the natural man. Sig.

— . For the natural man is constituted of good and truth.

3175<sup>3</sup>. But truth can with difficulty be separated from the natural man, and be elevated thence into the rational man; for in the natural man there are fallacies, cupidities of evil, and persuasions of falsity; and, so long as these are there, and adjoin themselves to truth, the natural man detains truth with himself, and does not suffer it to be elevated thence. Sig. The reason is, that the natural man places truth in doubt . . . But, as soon as (those cupidities, persuasions, and fallacies) are separated by the Lord, and the man begins, from good, to be averse to reasonings against truth . . . then truth is in a state to depart from the Natural, and to be elevated into the Rational, and to put on a state of good. Examps. 3182. 3190.

3184. (Separation) from the Divine things in the natural man. Sig.

3185. For illustration inflows into the natural man through the affection of truth. Sig.

3188. The elevation of the affection of truth, and its separation from the Natural. Sig.

3192. Truth could not be elevated from the Natural to the good in the Rational, except by Divine truth and Divine good, both of which were natural. Sig. and Ex.

3195<sup>3</sup>. (By putting on the Human) the Lord was able to illumine . . . also the natural things of man; for He made both the Rational and the Natural in Himself Divine . . .

3197. The things of the natural mind are relatively obscure. Sig.

—<sup>e</sup>. Before the Natural also was made Divine.

3203. The separation (of truth) from the scientifics in the natural man. Sig. and Ex. 3207<sup>2</sup>.

3209<sup>e</sup>. In order, therefore, that the good of the Rational might inflow into the Natural, there must be a medium; this medium could be nothing else than a Natural which should partake of the Divine. This is represented by 'the elder servant of Abraham's house administering all things which he had ;' and, that he= the Divine Natural. Refs.

[A.] 3223. The light of the world is for the natural or external man ; thus for those Things which are in him, (all of which) are of this light ; for nothing can be apprehended by the natural man, except by such things as . . . appear in the solar world. . .

—<sup>e</sup>. Between . . . the light of Heaven and that of the world there is a correspondence when the external or natural man makes a one with the internal or spiritual man ; that is, when the former is subservient to the latter.

3226<sup>c</sup>. The reason is, that there is a continual influx . . . of spiritual and celestial things, which fall into man's natural things, and are there presented representatively . . . and therefore they remain implanted . . .

3245<sup>c</sup>. There are two things which properly constitute the Human : the Rational and the Natural . . . The Natural is represented by 'Jacob' . . . How the Lord made the Natural Divine, is contained in the things said concerning Jacob below ; but the Lord could not make this, that is, the Natural, Divine, until He had made the Rational Divine ; for, through the latter, the former was made Divine.

3283<sup>c</sup>. The Natural could not be made Divine until truth had been adjoined to His Rational, and this had been made Divine ; for the influx into the Natural must needs be from the Divine good of the Rational through the Divine truth there ; for all the natural life of man, in respect to knowing and acting intelligently, is thence ; for the Rational is what ordines all things in the Natural. Ex.

3286<sup>c</sup>. When man is being regenerated, good is insinuated into his Rational . . . and to this is adjoined truth from the natural man ; (but) the Natural is not as yet regenerated ; (for) the rational man often fights with the natural man ; and, so long as there is combat, the Natural is not regenerated ; and, while this has not been regenerated, the Rational as to truth is barren . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. The work of regeneration is chiefly about this : that the natural man may correspond to the rational man ; not only in general, but also in particular ; and the natural man is reduced into correspondence by the Lord through the Rational ; namely, that good is insinuated into the Rational, and in this good as ground truths are implanted ; and then through rational truths the Natural is reduced to obedience ; and, when it obeys, it corresponds ; and, in proportion as it corresponds, the man has been regenerated.

3293. 'Two nations are in thy womb'=the Natural as to interior and exterior good, which is conception. . . The Natural, like the Rational, consists of good and truth. The good in the Natural is all that which is of natural affection, and is called delight ; and the truth is everything which is of knowledge, and is called scientific. These two must be in the Natural for it to be the Natural. What is scientific, by itself . . . is not anything ; the Natural has its life from the delight there ; for it is from this that it can know anything. Delight, however, which is the good of the Natural, is something without what is scientific, but is only what is vital such as is with infants. In order, therefore, that the Natural may be human, it must consist of both ; the one is perfected by the other ; but it has life itself from the good. (This) good is . . . interior and exterior ; the interior communicates with the rational, the external with the external man, that is, with the things which are of the body, and makes the life in the external senses, and also in the actions. Without a communication both ways, man cannot live in reason or in body. It is the interior communication which remains with man after death, and there makes his natural life ; for a Spirit also has natural life ; for his spiritual life is terminated in natural life as in an ultimate plane ; for after death man cannot at once think spiritually, except from those things which belong to his Natural. But it is the exterior communication which man has while he lives in the body ; but this ceases through the death of the body. 3305. 3519.

3301. 'Hair' (when mentioned in the Word)=the Natural. The reason is, that hairs are excrescences (or outgrowths) in the ultimates of man, as also is the Natural relatively to his Rational . . . When man lives in the body, it appears to him that the Natural is everything in him ; but this is so far from the truth, that the Natural is rather an excrescence (or outgrowth) from his internals, as the hairs are from the things which are of the body . . . and therefore men who in the life of the body have been merely natural, in the other life . . . appear hairy as to almost the whole face. (Continued under HAIR-crinis.)

—<sup>3</sup>. Celestial men are such, that . . . they are in so strong a Natural as to truth, that they can fight with the Hells.

—<sup>4</sup>. The Lord . . . from the natural man as to truth fought with the Hells . . . and this before He put on the Divine good and truth as to the natural man.

3304<sup>c</sup>. The Natural, or the natural man, when it is being regenerated, has its conception as to good and truth from the Rational, or through the Rational from the Spiritual, through this from the Celestial, and through this from the Divine . . . When the lowest Natural is vitiated with what is hereditary from the mother, truth cannot be united to good, but can only adhere to it with some power . . . Sig.

3310<sup>e</sup>. (No thought without a natural idea.)

3313<sup>c</sup>. 'In his mouth'=in his natural affection. Ex.

3318<sup>d</sup>. Hence good, first in the rational man, and afterwards in the natural man, begins to be conjoined with the truths there.

3321. The Rational receives truths before the Natural, in order that the Lord's life . . . can inflow through the Rational into the Natural, and dispose this . . . For the Rational is purer, and the Natural is grosser. Ex.

3368<sup>c</sup>. The things then done in the Rational appear in the Natural, as does the image of many things together in a mirror . . .

3374<sup>e</sup>. The Spiritual is predicated of both the Rational and the Natural . . .

3394<sup>c</sup>. The celestial perceive Divine good and truth . . . even in the Natural . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. (A natural idea necessary to all faith.)

3431. Truths adapted to the apprehension of the natural man. Tr.

3469<sup>2</sup>. Those who are in the good of truth . . . are regenerate as to . . . their rational things, but not yet as to . . . their natural things; for man is regenerated as to the Rational before he is regenerated as to the Natural; for the Natural is completely in the world; and in the Natural as in a plane are founded the thought and will of man. This is why, when he is being regenerated, man perceives a combat between the rational . . . and the natural man; and is also why (the latter) is regenerated much later, and with much more difficulty than (the former); for that which is nearer to the world and the body cannot be easily driven to compliance with the internal man. Ex.

3483. From the Divine are celestial things . . . from celestial things are spiritual things . . . from the former and the latter are natural things.

3490. It now treats (in Gen.xxvii.) concerning the Natural, how the Lord made it Divine in Himself; 'Esau'=its good; and 'Jacob,' its truth . . . 3508.

—<sup>2</sup>. In the representative sense, it treats concerning the regeneration of man as to his Natural . . .

3492<sup>e</sup>. That the state was at hand when the Divine Rational . . . should long for a Natural corresponding to itself; that is, which also should be Divine. Sig.

3493. When the Natural wanted to illustrate the Natural with the Divine. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. Therefore, when the Rational has been regenerated, and not the Natural, the former appears to itself to be in thick darkness, because there is no correspondence; for the Rational has its sight from the light of Heaven, and the Natural from the light of the world; and, unless there is correspondence, the Rational can see nothing which is in the Natural . . . but when there is correspondence the things which are in the Natural appear to the Rational in light, because, then, the things of the light of the world are illustrated by those which are of the light of Heaven . . .

3494. All that which is imbued in the infantile age appears as if it were natural.

—<sup>2</sup>. Both the good and the truth which are in the natural man are each of them a son . . . of the rational man; for whatever comes forth in the natural or external man inflows from the rational or internal man, and also comes forth and is born from it. What does not (do this) is not living human; it would be what you might call a sensuous corporeal something devoid of a soul. . . But still it is not the Rational which produces and begets the Natural; but it is the influx through the Rational into the Natural, which influx is from the Lord.

3498. Life (corresponding) in the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

— . The life of the rational or internal man is distinct from the life of the natural or external man, and in fact so distinct, that the life of the (former) is possible without the life of the (latter); but the life of the (latter) is not possible without the life of the (former). Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. But, when man lives in the body, his Rational does not appear distinct from his Natural, for the reason that he is in . . . nature; and therefore the life of the Rational appears in the Natural, inasmuch that there does not appear any life in the Rational if it does not appear in the Natural at the same time.

3502<sup>2</sup>. The Natural is not made new, and does not receive life corresponding to the Rational . . . except through doctrinal things . . . the celestial man through the Knowledges of good first; and the spiritual man through the Knowledges of truth first. Doctrinal things, or Knowledges of good and truth, cannot be communicated to the natural man . . . except through delights . . . accommodated to him; for they are insinuated by an external . . . way. Tr. 3508<sup>2</sup>, Ex.

3508. For the good which is in the Natural, is not of the Natural, but is of the Rational in the Natural.

3513. Appropriation takes place when truths, or the Knowledges of good and truth, are, by means of (delights), insinuated into the Natural; and, when these truths are adjoined to the good there, there is then effected a communication with the truth and good of the Rational, thus with the Rational. This communication is what is called appropriation; for they are of the Rational in the Natural; for the things which are in the Rational, relatively to those which are in the Natural, are as particulars to generals . . . The General of the particulars of the Rational is what is presented in the Natural; and, as it is a General, it appears under another form, and this according to the order of the constituent particulars. Ex.

3525<sup>e</sup>. For all the apperception which the Natural has, is from the Rational.

3527. The Natural appears in the face in a more obscure fire of life, and in a more obscure light of life (than the Rational) . . .

3533<sup>e</sup>. For the Natural sees from the effect; but the Rational from the cause.

3540<sup>4</sup>. To be encompassed with skin (Job xix. 26) = the Natural such as man has with him after death. 3813<sup>5</sup>.

3554. The perception of the Rational ('Isaac') concerning the Natural ('Jacob'). Sig. 3560.

3563<sup>2</sup>. The good of the Natural comes forth with man from no other source than . . . the good of the Rational . . . but the influx causes that the good there is such as is [the Natural]. (For the same reason) the truth of the Natural is thence . . . but the influx causes that the truth there is such as is [the Natural]. The influx is in this way: the good of the Rational inflows into the Natural in two ways; namely (directly) into the good itself of the Natural . . . and through the good of the Natural into the truth there . . . (and also) through the truth of the Rational. (Continued at full length under INFLUX.) 3573.

3570. The good of the Rational ('Isaac') first conjoins good with itself, and truth afterwards, and this through the Natural, which is 'Jacob.' The case is this. When the Natural is in such a state that it is good without, and truth within . . . it admits many things which are not good, but which are nevertheless useful, such as are the media to good in their order. But the good of the Rational conjoins and appropriates to itself (only) those things which agree with its own good . . . The rest of the things in the Natural it leaves . . .

[A. 3570<sup>f</sup>. The Rational is in the internal man, and the Natural does not know what is going on there; for it is above its sphere of apperception. Hence it is that the man who lives only a natural life cannot know anything about the things which are going on with him in his internal man . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. Ends of good with man are in his Rational, and are what are called the Rational as to good, or rational good. By (these) the Lord disposes all things which are in the Natural; for the end is like the soul, and the Natural is like the body (thereof). Such as is the soul, such is the body . . . Thus, such as is the Rational as to good, such is the Natural with which it is invested. —<sup>4</sup>. Ex.

3573. For the Natural has not been regenerated until it has been conjoined with the Rational. This conjunction is effected by means of the influx, immediate and mediate, of the Rational, into the good and truth of the Natural. Ex.

—<sup>3</sup>. When there is conjunction . . . then whatever the man wills and thinks interiorly in his Rational, presents itself conspicuously in his Natural; and this presents itself conspicuously in the face. . . When the state is such, then the Rational as to good conjoins itself immediately with the good of the Natural, and, through this, with its truths; and also mediately through the truth conjoined with itself in the Rational, with the truth of the Natural; and, through this, with the good there. Hence the conjunction becomes indissoluble.

3579. When the Rational inflows into the Natural, it presents its good there in a general form; and, through this good, it produces truths there . . . This good, through these truths disposed into heavenly order, produces good again; and, through this good, truths again, which are derivations . . .

3596. (These things) transcend the apprehension of the natural man . . .

3617<sup>e</sup>. For, without the conjunction of truth with good, and the union of good with truth, in the Natural, there is not any regeneration, which is the subject treated of, in the relative sense, in this chapter.

3637. As the human race . . . became altogether perverted, and as . . . their natural things began to dominate over their spiritual ones, so that the Lord could no longer inflow through the Grand Man . . . the Advent of the Lord into the world became a necessity . . .

3656. It treats (in Gen.xxviii.) in the supreme sense, concerning the Lord, how He began to make Divine His Natural as to truth and as to good . . . But, in the representative sense, how the Lord regenerates or makes new the Natural of man as to truth and as to good. The process is described. 3657.

3660<sup>c</sup>. For, in order that the Lord might make His Natural Divine, He was to implant in it such good and truth as should correspond with the good and truth of the Divine Rational: without corresponding goods and truths no conjunction is possible. There are innumerable goods and truths of the Natural, or which are proper to the natural man; so innumerable, that the most general kinds of them can scarcely be known by man . . . for the whole Natural, and everything therein, is nothing else. This being so, it may be evident that there are goods and truths of the Natural in which (those) of the Rational can be, and that there are (those) in which (they) cannot be; consequently, that there are goods and truths of the Natural which can be adjoined to (those) of the Rational by correspondence. These are what are treated of in this and the following chapters.

3671. As the Natural is like the ground, good and truth can be fructified and multiplied in the Rational . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. To understand good and truth, and to will them, are of the Rational . . . but to know and do them are of the Natural . . .

3677. As all the goods and truths which are in the natural man are conceived and born . . . from the good of the Rational as a father, and from the truth of the Rational as a mother . . .

3679<sup>c</sup>. See INTERNAL MAN, here.

—<sup>4</sup>. So long as man lives in the body, he thinks from the Rational in the Natural; but with a difference accordingly as the Natural corresponds to the Rational, or does not correspond. When the Natural corresponds, the man is rational, and thinks spiritually; but when the Natural does not correspond, he is not rational, and cannot think spiritually. For, with him with whom the Natural corresponds to the Rational, communication is opened, so that the light of Heaven . . . can inflow through the Rational into the Natural . . . Hence it is evident, that every man thinks according to the state of the correspondence of the Natural with the Rational as to good and truth.

—<sup>5</sup>. But Spirits and Angels do not think as man does. Their thought is indeed also terminated in the Natural; for they have with them all the natural memory and its affections; but they are not allowed to use this memory. Ex. . . Hence it is evident that their thought also is such as is the correspondence of their Natural with their Rational . . .

—<sup>6</sup>. All the regeneration of the Natural begins from (such things as are external, and thus such as are the ultimates in order).

3693<sup>f</sup>. Good and angelic Spirits (are) then remitted a little into their natural or lower state . . .

3709<sup>e</sup>. The doctrinals of love and charity are said to be conjoined with good in the natural man, when it is a pleasure . . . to know them for the sake of doing them.

3711<sup>e</sup>. By the Divine, and the Divine Providence, is here meant, that the Lord would make Divine His Natural also. 3712.

3721. For it is the natural mind with man, through which the things of Heaven . . . inflow and descend into nature; and through the same mind the things of nature ascend; but this (latter) only apparently. Refs. and Ex.

3739<sup>c</sup>. From such an influx and concurrence into the things which are below, and finally into the things which are ultimate, consists the Natural and the Corporeal.

3747<sup>3</sup>. The ultimate degree of life is that which is called the external or natural man, by means of which man is like animals as to concupiscences and phantasies.

3761. The elevation of the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

3762<sup>2</sup>. In proportion as (these truths) are acknowledged, believed, and imbued in the life . . . they are implanted in the Natural of man, in which they are as in their ground. Ex.

3768. In the things which follow, concerning Jacob, it treats, in the supreme sense, concerning the Lord, how He made His Natural Divine; and, in this chapter, (Gen.xxix.), concerning the initiation; and, in the internal representative sense, concerning those who are being regenerated, how the Lord renovates their natural man; and, in this chapter, concerning the initiation.

3768<sup>2</sup>. The natural man can indeed know, and also perceive, what good and truth are, but only natural and civil good and truth, and not spiritual good and truth. This must be from revelation . . . Examps.

3793. The Natural which is represented by Jacob consists of good and truth; and in it . . . there ought to be a marriage of good and truth . . . In the Natural with man, when he is born, there is not the marriage of good and truth, because man alone is not born into Divine order. There is indeed the good of innocence and of charity, which in his first infancy inflows from the Lord, but there is not any truth . . . When this good of infancy is indrawn, then evil succeeds and enters into the Natural of man, to which falsity couples itself . . . In order, therefore, that the man may be saved, he must be regenerated, and the evil must be removed, and good must be insinuated by the Lord; and, according to the good which he receives, truth is insinuated into him . . . These are the things which are represented by Jacob and his two wives . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. Moreover, in the Natural, as in the Rational, there is an interior and an exterior; Rachel represents the affection of interior truth, and Leah the affection of exterior truth . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. With regard to the regeneration of man as to his Natural, the case is exactly the same as with Jacob and the two daughters of Laban . . .

3824<sup>2</sup>. Internal truths are said to be conjoined with the Natural when they are learned, acknowledged, and believed. In the Natural of man, or in its memory, are truths both internal and external . . . but they are not conjoined, until the man is affected with them for the sake of use of life . . .

3829. For the things of the Natural are relatively general; for there are innumerable things which inflow from the internal man into the natural man which appear in this latter as one General; and still more so before the particulars of the generals have been received; as here.

3855<sup>2</sup>. The Natural is regenerated both later and with more difficulty (than the Rational), because there are many inordinate things there, and because it is exposed to injuries from the body and the world . . .

3863<sup>3</sup>. As it treats in this chapter . . . concerning the regeneration of the Natural; and here, concerning its first state, which is that of introduction through truth to good, therefore the first son of Jacob . . . was named from Jehovah's 'seeing' . . .

3913<sup>3</sup>. From himself the natural man does not at all agree with the spiritual man; but . . . is completely opposite to it; for the natural man regards and loves self and the world . . . the natural man seems to himself to have life when he is exalted to dignities . . . the natural man is in his bliss when he is richer than others . . . The things of the external man must therefore be reduced to compliance, (in order to which) media are necessary, (and these) are signified by the four sons born of the handmaids. Ex.

3915<sup>2</sup>. The man is then in natural life, and not in spiritual.

3927. Resistance from the natural man. Sig. and Ex. 3928.

3928<sup>2</sup>. Before regeneration, the delight of the natural man is infernal. Ex.

3952. The heavenly marriage is . . . between the good of the natural man and the truth of the spiritual man. —<sup>4</sup>. Ex.

3969. (Necessity of the correspondence of the natural man.) Ex.

3973. A longing, then, of the Natural . . . for a state of conjunction with the Divine of the Rational. Sig. and Ex.

4009. The truths here signified by Laban's 'sons' are called sensuous . . . and they are the outermost things of the natural mind; for the Natural of man communicates on one side with the sensuous things of the body, and on the other with the rational things of the rational mind . . .

4015. Therefore, all the disposing in the natural man is effected by the interior man. Ex.

4027<sup>3</sup>. It treats, here (in Gen.xxx.) concerning the influx of the Lord into the good of the internal man . . . and also concerning the influx thence into the natural man.

4038<sup>2</sup>. With man there are three things in general; namely, the Corporeal, the Natural, and the Rational. The Corporeal is outermost, the Natural is middle, the Rational is interior. In proportion as the one reigns with a man above another, he is said to be corporeal, natural, or rational. These three parts of man communicate wonderfully; namely, the Corporeal with the Natural, and the Natural with the Rational. When man is first born, he is merely corporeal . . . afterwards he becomes natural, and at last rational . . . The Corporeal communicates with the Natural by means of sensuous things; and this, distinctly, by those which pertain to the understanding, and by those which pertain to the will . . . for the things which enter through sensuous things store themselves up in the Natural as in a kind of receptacle, (which) is the memory. The delight, pleasure, and desire, there, pertain to the will, and are called natural goods; and the scientifics there pertain to the understanding, and are called natural truths. Through these . . . the Natural of man communicates with his Rational . . . The things which elevate themselves thence towards the Rational, store themselves up in the Rational as in a kind of receptacle, (which) is the interior memory . . . What is blessed and happy, there, pertain to the will, and belong to rational good ; and the interior views of Things, and perceptions, pertain to the understanding, and the things belonging thereto are called rational truths. These are the three things which constitute man. There are communications between them. It is external sensuous things through which the Corporeal of man communicates with his Natural ; and it is interior sensuous things through which the Natural of man communicates with his Rational. Therefore, the things in the natural man which partake of the external sensuous things which are proper to the body, are what are called the exterior and external truths of good ; but those which partake of the internal sensuous things which are proper to his spirit . . . are what are called interior goods and truths. Those which are between these, and partake of both, are what are called middle goods and truths. These three, in the order from the interiors, are signified by 'flocks,' 'maidservants and men-servants,' and 'camels and asses.'

[A.] 4053°. The Natural is nothing else than a representation of spiritual things ; from which it comes forth and subsists.

4089. The Divine in the Natural. Sig.

4099°. Then truths are multiplied in the Natural of man.

4108°. The conjunction (of the Rational and the Natural with man) makes the human ; and a human such as is the conjunction ; and there is conjunction when they act as one ; and they act as one when the Natural ministers to and serves the Rational. This is impossible with man except from the Lord ; but with the Lord it was done by Himself.

4154°. A natural man. Des.

4167. For, in the Natural, that is properly called just and fair which in the Spiritual is called good and true.

4168°. The proprium in the Natural which the Lord acquired by His own power . . . Tr.

4232. It treats (in Gen.xxxii.) concerning the inversion of state in the Natural, so that good is in the first place, and truth in the second. 4235.

4237. The quality of the Lord's state when His Natural was illustrated by spiritual and celestial good. Sig.

4240. Ultimates, which are boundaries, are those things which are called natural ; for spiritual and celestial things are terminated in natural things . . .

4249. Then the Natural begins to be illustrated by good.

4250. The preparation and disposition of truths and goods in the Natural to receive the good represented by Esau. Sig. and Ex.

4251. Lest order should perish in the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

— For so long as truth dominates in the Natural, it cannot see what is truth genuine and not genuine, nor what is good ; but when good dominates there . . . it then sees it. 4252a.

4269°. When the order is inverted, the Lord so disposes and ordinates in the natural man that truth is there received by good . . .

4279. With man, the Word . . . is natural ; that is, worldly and earthly.

4286. 'Israel' = the celestial spiritual man which is in the Natural ; thus the Natural. Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. What is natural adheres to (the Angels of the First Heaven) ; and therefore they are called celestial and spiritual natural.

—<sup>3</sup>. The external (Angels of the Second Heaven), who are called 'Israel,' partake of the Natural ; for they are middle ones between the Rational and the Natural.

4322. Man believed to come forth from seed and egg, naturally.

4327. What is involuntary, or natural, as it is called.

4341. The state of the conjunction of Divine good with truth in the Natural. Sig. and Ex. 4353.

—<sup>2</sup>. For when good inflows . . . the ideas of the natural man formed from the fallacies of the senses . . . cannot endure its approach . . . Hence anxiety in the Natural, and temptation. Tr.

—<sup>3</sup>. That the Natural is regenerated through the Rational. Refs.

— That the Rational receives truths before the Natural. Refs.

—<sup>4</sup>. These truths, which inflow with good from the Rational into the Natural, are here signified.

4342°. Interior truths . . . which are interiorly in the Natural. Sig.

4345°. The natural mind, and the things of this mind, are less general (than the body) . . . and are called, relatively, particular.

4353°. Without the conjunction (of the Spiritual through the Rational with the Natural) there is no regeneration ; nor can this conjunction be effected until good has been conjoined with the truths in the Natural ; for the Natural must be the plane, and the things which are in the Natural must correspond. This is why, when the Natural is being regenerated, the conjunction of good with truths becomes successively more interior ; for the Spiritual conjoins itself first with those things which are inmost in the Natural ; and then, through these, with those which are more exterior. Neither can the Internal of man conjoin itself with his External (or Natural), unless the truth in the latter becomes the good of truth. Ex.

4360°. For spiritual Things are founded upon natural ones, and are represented in them.

4384. 'Seir' = the conjunction of spiritual things with celestial ones in the Natural. Ex.

4402. The regeneration of man as to his Natural is also treated of here.

—<sup>2</sup>. The spiritual man is not the interior rational man, but the interior natural man. Ex.

4424°. 'The teeth' = the lowest natural things.

4536. It treats in (Gen. xxxv.) concerning the residuum in the Lord's Natural; that it was made Divine. The interior things of the Natural, which were made Divine, are, here, 'Israel.' 4538°.

4539. The elevation of the Natural to the Divine. Sig. and Ex.

4543°. For, when spiritual good . . . begins to act as first in the natural mind, it then disposes the truths which are there into order. Sig.

4552. 'An oak,' in special, = the lowest of the Natural . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. For the truths with a regenerate man are in the inmost of his Natural, near good . . .

4556. 'Luz' = the Natural in the former state, or that Natural itself which was human; and, that this was made Divine, is signified by 'This is Bethel' . . .

4558°. That the Natural was sanctified. Sig.

4570. See ISRAEL, here.

—<sup>2</sup>. There are two things with man most distinct from each other, namely, the Rational, and the Natural. The Rational constitutes the internal man, and the Natural the external man; but the Natural, like the Rational, also has its external and internal. The external of the Natural is from the sensuous things of the body . . . Those who are solely in this Natural are called sensuous men . . . But the internal of the Natural is constituted of those things which are thence analytically and analogically concluded . . . Thus the Natural communicates through sensuous things with worldly and corporeal ones, and through analogical and analytical things with the Rational; thus with those things which are of the Spiritual World. Such is the Natural. There is also an intermediate, [in the Natural] which communicates with both . . . the external and the internal [there] . . . This Natural is what Jacob in special represents; and the internal Natural is what Israel [in special represents].

—<sup>3</sup>. It is to be known, further, that both the Rational and the Natural are called celestial and spiritual; celestial when they receive good, and spiritual when they receive truth, from the Lord . . .

4585°. The Natural is the only existing term by which exterior things can be expressed . . .

— . For the spiritual man is from the Natural; but the celestial man is from the Rational.

—<sup>5</sup>. The intermediate between the internal of the Natural and the external of the Rational is . . . the Spiritual of the Celestial ('Benjamin'). This intermediate derives something from the internal of the Natural ('Israel'), and the external of the Rational ('Joseph') . . . The quality of the progress made through this intermediate is here described in the internal sense. Sig. —<sup>6</sup>.

4588. Perception from the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

— . 'A midwife' = the Natural . . . because, when interior temptations are being undergone . . . the Natural is then like a midwife; for, unless the Natural assists, no birth of interior truth can ever come forth; for it is the Natural which receives into its bosom interior truths when they are born . . . In regard to the things of spiritual birth, reception must be in the Natural; which is the reason why, when man is being regenerated, the Natural is first prepared to receive; and, in proportion as it is made receptive, in the same proportion interior truths can be brought forth and multiplied. This, also, is the reason why, if the natural man has not been prepared, in the life of the body, to receive the truths and goods of faith, he cannot receive them in the other life . . . Ex. 4921.

4592°. All men . . . are born natural, with the power to become either celestial or spiritual: the Lord alone was born spiritual celestial. 4594°.

4603°. For all things of truth and good must be in the Natural before it could be fully conjoined with the Rational; because the Natural serves the Rational for a receptacle.

—<sup>6</sup>. The order in which are the truths and goods in the Natural, when this was made Divine. Tr.

4612. It (here) treats of the conjunction of the Natural with the Rational; and (therefore) in what precedes the quality of the Natural has been described; namely, that in it were all things of good and truth . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. As to what concerns the conjunction of the Natural and the Rational . . . it is to be known that the Rational receives truths and goods sooner and more easily than the Natural . . . for the Natural is grosser and more imperfect, because exterior or lower; and, regarded in itself, is in the light of the world . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. With the Natural the case is this: from first infancy and childhood it receives its quality from those things which inflow from the world through the external sensuous things . . . Hence the order of the goods and truths in the Natural is inverted . . . and (then) the light of Heaven does indeed inflow through the Rational . . . but still the things of (it) are not in the Natural; for the delights which dominate there resist them . . .

—<sup>4</sup>. (Thus) the order in the Natural is completely inverted . . . and therefore when the light of Heaven inflows . . . into the Natural, it cannot but be either reflected, suffocated, or perverted; and hence it is that the Natural must be regenerated before it can be conjoined with the Rational. For, when the Natural has been regenerated, the things which inflow from the Lord . . . into the Natural, are received, because they agree; for the Natural is nothing else than a receptacle of the good and truth from the Rational . . . By the Natural is meant the external man, which is also called the natural man.

4613. 'Mamre Kirjath-arba' = the state of the Natural as to truth; and 'Hebron' = its state as to good.

4630°. They who are so natural that they think nothing about spiritual things . . . and still are subtle . . . are called invisible natural ones.

4667°. The Natural is lower or exterior, consequently posterior (to the Rational) . . . nay, when they are in accord, the Natural is nothing but the General of the Rational; for whatever the Natural has, is then not it, but is the Rational's: the difference is solely such as there is between particulars and their General, or between singulars and their form, in which the singulars appear as a one.

[A.] 4675. See ISRAEL, here.

—<sup>e</sup>. The Spiritual is predicated of both the Rational and the Natural. Ex.

4930<sup>a</sup>. Good . . . gives light, 'by which the things in the natural man are illustrated . . .

4938. Those in the Grand Man who correspond to the feet, soles, and heels, are those who are natural; and therefore 'the feet' = natural things; 'the soles,' the lower natural things; and 'the heels,' the lowest natural things. For the celestial things in the Grand Man constitute the head, the spiritual things the body, and the natural things the feet; (for) celestial things are terminated in spiritual ones, and spiritual ones in natural ones, which are ultimates.

4939<sup>a</sup>. (Thus) natural things are like the feet, on which the higher things rest. Moreover, nature is that in which are terminated the things of the Spiritual World . . .

4940. (Those in the Lower Earth) are such as have been in natural delight, and not in spiritual.

4943. Those (who have placed merit in good works) are natural. . .

4946. There are some who have imbued [the idea] that man . . . ought to care solely for natural things . . .

4966<sup>a</sup>. The hoof (of Pegasus) meant what is natural.

4967. All the Scientific with man is natural, because in his natural man . . . (for) man sees these things in the Natural, and from the Natural. The things which he does not see from the Natural, he does not apprehend . . .

4973. The natural mind is in the external man . . . Scientifics are the truths of the natural mind . . .

4980. 'The house of the Egyptian' = the good of the natural mind.

—<sup>2</sup>. The Celestial, like the Spiritual, is predicated of both the Rational and the Natural. Ex.

— . Divine truth . . . when received by the Natural, is called the Spiritual in the Natural; and Divine good . . . when received by the Natural, is called the Celestial in the Natural.

4992. The third state of the Celestial of the Spiritual when in the Natural. Tr. and Ex. 4993. 5004.

5008<sup>e</sup>. From natural light to see the things of spiritual light is impossible . . .

5013<sup>a</sup>. Natural men consider spiritual things as things of service. Sig.

5025<sup>a</sup>. In a word, the natural man holds cheap and rejects whatever he regards as separate from himself, and esteems and accepts whatever he regards as conjoined with himself . . .

5028. The natural man is as it were conjoined with the spiritual through ultimate truth. Sig. and Ex.

5036<sup>a</sup>. Evil Spirits . . . are all merely natural.

5077. 'The king of Egypt' = the natural man.

5078. How the Lord glorified the interiors of His Natural, is treated of in the preceding chapter; here, how He glorified the exteriors of His Natural. (The latter) are what are properly called corporeals, or the sensuous things of both kinds together with their recipients; for the latter with the former constitute that which is called the body . . .

5079. That the external sensuous things were contrary to the new state of the natural man. Sig. and Ex.

— . Those interiors of the Natural which were new, or, what is the same, the new state of that natural man, is signified by 'their lord the king of Egypt;' and the exteriors, which were not reduced into order . . . by 'the butler and the baker.'

—<sup>2</sup>. There are interiors and exteriors of the Natural. The interiors of the Natural are scientifics and their affections; the exteriors are the sensuous things of both kinds. These exteriors of the Natural are left behind when man dies; but the interiors of the Natural are carried with him into the other life, where they serve as a plane for spiritual and celestial things. . . Man has with him there the memory of all he has done, spoken, or thought, and all the natural affections and cupidities; thus all the interiors of the Natural. The exteriors he has no need of. Ex.

5080. That the new natural man averted itself . . . from the exterior Natural or Corporeal Sensuous, because the latter did not correspond to the former. Sig. 5081.

5081<sup>a</sup>. Those of the external Church are natural . . .

5084. (Hence) the natural man is against the spiritual man . . . and therefore, if the natural man begins to dominate over the spiritual man, the things of faith are no longer believed . . .

5094. Into the natural memory enter objects . . . through these sensuous things on the one side, and . . . through rational things on the other side. These objects separate themselves in this memory. Those which have entered through rational things place themselves interiorly, and those which have entered through sensuous things place themselves exteriorly. Hence the Natural becomes duplex, namely, interior and exterior.

—<sup>2</sup>. The interior Natural is represented by 'Pharaoh;' and the exterior Natural, by 'the butler and the baker.' (The difference between them shown from their thoughts and conclusions.) 5095.

— . When man dies, he has with him all the Natural; and such as it has been formed with him in the world, such it remains. . . The difference is, that in proportion as the Natural has imbibed . . . from the Rational, in the same proportion it regards the sensuous things of the exterior Natural as below itself, and dominates over them . . . rejecting the fallacies thence; whereas in proportion as the Natural has imbibed . . . from the sensuous things of the body, in the same proportion it regards rational things as below itself, (and) rejects them. Examps.

5118. The influx of the interior Natural into the exterior. Sig. and Ex.

— . The interior Natural is that which communicates with the Rational, and into which the Rational inflows; and the exterior Natural is that which communicates with sensuous things, or through sensuous things with the world, thus into which the world inflows.

—<sup>2</sup>. Influx is continual from the Lord through the Rational into the interior Natural, and, through this, into the exterior; but the things which inflow are changed... according to the reception... For the Natural is nothing else than as a face representative of the spiritual things of the interior man; (that is), when the exteriors correspond to the interiors.

5119. See INFLUX, here.

5120. Appropriation by the interior Natural. Sig. and Ex.

— It here treats concerning... the influx of truth and good, and its reception in the exterior Natural.

5126. That (the things of the Sensuous subject to the intellectual part) may serve the interior Natural. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. What the exterior and the interior Natural are. Ex.

—<sup>3</sup>. From childhood to adolescence a communication is opened to the interior Natural, by his learning what is decorous, civil, and honourable... but from adolescence to early manhood a communication is opened between the Natural and the Rational by his then learning the truths and goods of civil and moral life, and especially the truths and goods of spiritual life...

—<sup>4</sup>. But in proportion as he weakens, denies, and acts contrary to these things... the Rational, and also the interior Natural, are closed; but still... so much communication remains as to enable him... to apprehend these things...

—<sup>5</sup>. But with those who suffer themselves to be regenerated... the Rational is successively opened, and to it is subordinated the interior Natural, and to this the exterior Natural...

5133. Communication with the interior Natural. Sig. and Ex.

— By communication with the interior Natural, is meant conjunction by correspondence. The interior Natural is that which receives the ideas of truth and good from the Rational, and stores them up for use, consequently is that which communicates immediately with the Rational. But the exterior Natural is that which receives the images and the derivative ideas of Things from the world through sensuous things. These ideas, unless illustrated by the things in the interior Natural, present fallacies...

5134. When faith is received in the exterior Natural... correspondence is effected, and charity is received, and thus communication with the interior Natural is effected; and then the former is delivered from the evils by which the Celestial ('Joseph') is alienated. Ex.

—<sup>e</sup>. But with the Lord, who made the Natural in Himself Divine, evils and falsities were completely cast out...

5135<sup>4</sup>. These goods and truths stored up in the interior Natural are signified by 'remains.'

5141. There is apperception from the Sensuous, or exterior Natural; from the interior Natural; and from the Rational. For when man is in interior thought from affection... he is in rational apperception... But when he is in exterior thought from causes which come forth in the world, his apperception is from the interior Natural... But when he is in pleasures, and in the delights of the love of the world and of the love of self, his apperception is from the Sensuous... (and) the more exterior the apperception is, the more obscure it is.

5145<sup>2</sup>. The interiors with man are distinguished into degrees, and in each degree they are terminated, and, by the termination, are separated from the lower degree... The interior Natural makes the third degree, in which are good Spirits, or the Ultimate or First Heaven. The exterior Natural, or Sensuous, makes the fourth degree, in which is man.

—<sup>4</sup>. With those who have no conscience, good transflows even to the exterior Natural, or sensuous Natural, and is there turned into filthy delights.

5147. (The inmost of the Voluntary) full of celestial good for nourishing the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

— 'Pharaoh' = the interior Natural, and also the Natural in general; for the interior and the exterior Natural make a one when they correspond.

5150. The Celestial and the Spiritual from the Lord's Divine inflow... also into the Natural, and this both mediately and immediately. Ex... Hence may be evident what the Celestial in the Natural is.

—<sup>2</sup>. By the Rational and the Natural is meant man himself; by the Rational, his Internal, and by the Natural, his External.

5157<sup>2</sup>. By sensuous things are meant those scientifics and those delights which are insinuated through the five senses... into man's memory and into his concupiscences, and which together constitute the exterior Natural, from which (latter) man is called a sensuous man...

5160. 'Pharaoh's birthday' = when the Natural was being regenerated.

— For, with the regenerate, the interior Natural and the exterior act as a one by correspondence.

5161. Initiation and conjunction with the exterior Natural. Sig. and Ex.

5165<sup>2</sup>. For, in sensuous things, which are of the exterior Natural, man sees interior things... Without such a plane, man in the body cannot possibly think of the things above sensuous things... Unless the exterior Natural served interior things as a plane, in which, as in a mirror, interior things see themselves, man could not think at all; and therefore this plane is formed first...

—<sup>3</sup>. The quality of the exterior Natural is manifestly evident in the other life; for the face of Spirits and Angels is formed from it, and according to it. Ex.

—<sup>e</sup>. Hence it may be evident what and of what use is the exterior Natural; and what its quality is when it is subject to interior things, and what when interior things are subject to it.

5168<sup>2</sup>. It treats in this chapter concerning the subordination of the exterior Natural: that it is to be subordinated for the reason that it may serve the interior Natural as a plane. For, unless it is subordinated, interior truths and goods have no place where they can be represented; and consequently the interior thoughts (have not)... and therefore, when there is no subordination, the man can have no interior thought; nor any faith ; for there is no eminent remote or eminent comprehension, and thus no apperception of such things. That which subordinates the Natural and reduces it to correspondence, is solely the good in which is innocence, which good, in the Word, is called 'charity.' Sensuous and scientific things are the sole media into which this good may inflow, and present itself in a form, and unfold itself for every use . . .

[A.] 5185<sup>3</sup>. Not so much from evil of life as from natural depravity.

5191. In (Gen.xli.) it treats concerning . . . the exaltation of the Celestial of the Spiritual over the things of the natural man . . .

5192. 'Pharaoh' = the Natural in general, which now rests, and leaves all things to the Celestial of the Spiritual, which is 'Joseph.'

5194. After the state of the conjunction of the sensuous things of the exterior Natural with those things which are of the interior Natural. Sig.

5195. What is foreseen concerning the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>c</sup>. The conjunction of the Natural with the Celestial of the Spiritual . . . is treated of in this chapter.

5198. It treats (here) concerning the further rebirth of the Natural through its conjunction with the Celestial of the Spiritual.

5202<sup>2</sup>. In the preceding chapter it treated concerning the exterior Natural ; and concerning the things there which pertained to the intellectual class and to the voluntary class : that the former were received, and the latter rejected . . . and, as the former were received, they were also subordinated to the interior Natural . . . and this was the first of the rebirth of the Natural.

—<sup>3</sup>. But in this chapter it treats concerning the influx of the Celestial of the Spiritual into those things of the Natural which had been retained . . . and which are signified by 'the kine beautiful in aspect and fat in flesh.' But, as the Natural cannot be reborn as to intellectual things alone, there were also voluntary things . . . and, as the former Voluntary had been rejected, a new one was to inflow in its place. This new one is from the Celestial of the Spiritual, concerning which and its influx into the Natural it treats in this chapter. How the case is with the Natural in this state, is described in the internal sense ; namely, that the truths there were exterminated through falsities ; and thus the Natural was left to the Celestial of the Spiritual . . . 5207, Ex.

5208. Truths are exterminated from the Natural to the end that the Natural may be illustrated, generally, by the Interior ; and that afterwards, in the general illustration . . . the truths may be replaced there in their order ; whence the Natural is illustrated particularly. The correspondence between the Spiritual and the Natural with man . . . is effected in this manner. Ex.

5212. The truths of the exterior Natural are called scientifics, because they are in the natural memory . . . but those in the interior memory are called truths . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. The reason there were two dreams . . . is that it treats of both Naturals, the interior and the exterior ; and, in what follows, concerning the rebirth of each. By 'the seven kine' are signified the things of the interior Natural which are called the truths of the Natural ; and by 'the seven ears,' the truths of the exterior Natural, which are called scientifics.

5219<sup>e</sup>. The state of the Natural when good scientifics have been exterminated by scientifics of no use. Sig.

5224. It treats in this verse concerning a new state of the Natural, when it is in obscurity on account of truths having been exterminated from it. Des.

5244. The inclination of the new Natural . . . to receive the Celestial of the Spiritual. Sig. and Ex.

5247. Rejection and change as to those things which are of the exterior Natural. Sig. and Ex.

5248. (Change) as to those things which are of the interior Natural. Sig. and Ex.

— See GARMENT, here.

5249. The communication (of the Celestial of the Spiritual) with the new Natural. Sig. and Ex.

5251. The perception of the Celestial of the Spiritual from the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

5259. The thought of the Celestial of the Spiritual from the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

5262. The perception of the Natural from the Celestial of the Spiritual. Sig. and Ex. 5308. 5315.

5263. What was foreseen . . . alike in both the interior and the exterior Natural. Sig. and Ex.

5264. That it was granted to the Natural to apperceive what was provided. Sig. and Ex.

5265. The states of the multiplication of truth in the interior Natural. Sig. and Ex.

5266. The states of the multiplication of truth in the exterior Natural. Sig. and Ex.

5268. The states of the multiplication of the falsity infesting the interior Natural. Sig. and Ex.

5269. The states of the multiplication of the falsity infesting the exterior Natural. Sig. and Ex.

5270<sup>2</sup>. When (these truths are indrawn so as not to appear) the Natural is then illuminated from the interior ; and then the evils of the loves of self and of the world give place ; and, in the same degree, truths are stored up, and are conjoined with good.

5272. That which the Natural had thought from the Celestial of the Spiritual. Sig. and Ex.

5274. The apperception of the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

5276. The multiplication of truth in each Natural. Sig. and Ex. 5339.

5278. The removal of truth, and the apparent privation thereof, in each Natural. Sig. and Ex.

5282. Because it was foreseen concerning each Natural. Sig. and Ex.

5286. The looking forward of the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

5288. (The inflowing truth and good) which will ordinate all things in the natural mind. Sig. and Ex.

5290. The ordination of Generals in the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

5301. The Natural is here mentioned, and there is meant the natural mind . . . The natural mind is of the external man. This mind, or this man, is what is meant by the Natural simply so called.

5304. The complacency of the Natural. Sig. and Ex. 5305.

5306. The perception of the Natural with all things there. Sig. and Ex.

5311. That the natural mind shall be subordinate and submissive to (the Celestial of the Spiritual). Sig. and Ex.

5313. That it will still appear as if it were from the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

— For the Natural is like 'a throne' to the Spiritual.

5316. Dominion over each Natural (ceded to the Celestial of the Spiritual). Sig. and Ex. 5317-5329.

5326. That the Natural is from the Celestial of the Spiritual. Sig. (For) the Natural with a man who is being created anew, or regenerated, is quite different from what it is with a man who is not being regenerated. The Natural with (the latter) is everything . . . But with (the former) the Spiritual is everything. It not only disposes the Natural to think and to desire, but also constitutes the Natural, exactly as the cause constitutes the effect . . . Thus does the Natural become as the Spiritual; for the natural things which are there . . . act nothing from themselves; but only stipulate that the Spiritual shall act in the Natural, and through it, thus naturally. In like manner as in the effect: in the effect there are more things than in the cause; but such things as merely enable the cause to act the effect itself in the effect, and to produce itself actually in that degree.

5328. All power in the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

— By the Spiritual is meant that in the Natural which is of the light of Heaven; and by the Natural that in the Natural which is of the light of the world; for all the former is called the Spiritual, and all the latter the Natural.

5333. When the Celestial of the Spiritual, by influx, made each Natural its own. Sig. and Ex. 5337.

5336. The presence of the Celestial of the Spiritual in the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

5338. When (the Celestial of the Spiritual) made each single thing in the Natural subordinate and submissive. Sig. and Ex.

5342. That truths adjoined to good are stored up in the natural mind, and are there preserved for use in after life, is an arcanum. Fully ex. See also 5295. 5296. 5297. 5299. 5365<sup>2</sup>.

5344. That the things which before were in the exterior Natural, (the Celestial of the Spiritual) stored up in the interiors of the interior Natural. Sig. and Ex.

— The interiors of the interior Natural are those things there which are called spiritual . . . which are from the light of Heaven; and from which are illuminated those things there which are from the light of the world, which are properly called natural . . .

5346. The glorification of the Lord's Natural is treated of (in this chapter).

5348. 'Unto Joseph were born two sons'=the good and truth [derived] from the influx of the Celestial of the Spiritual into the Natural. . . 'Manasseh'=the Voluntary of the new Natural; and 'Ephraim'=the Intellectual of it . . .

5356. In the Natural where he suffered temptations, consequently, that truth from good was multiplied there. Sig. and Ex.

5362. Desolation everywhere in the Natural. Sig. and Ex. 5364.

5365. The need of good for truth in the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

5366. Apperception in each Natural, in general, and in particular. Sig. and Ex.

5368. That good is adjoined to truth in the Natural, provided the Natural applies itself and obeys. Sig. and Ex.

— The Natural is the same as the external man.

5373<sup>3</sup>. The case is this. When a man is being regenerated as to the Natural, each and all goods and truths are gathered into scientifics. Those which are not in the scientifics there, are not in the Natural; for the natural mind, as to that part which is subject to the Intellectual, consists solely of scientifics. Scientifics, which are of the Natural, are the ultimates of order; and prior things must be in ultimates in order that they may come forth and appear in that sphere . . . Hence it is that the Spiritual World is terminated in the Natural of man . . . Unless spiritual things were presented representatively in the Natural . . . they would not be at all apprehended.

5378<sup>e</sup>. The wooden shoes (worn by that Spirit) represented the lowest natural things, such as are those which the kidneys, ureters, and bladder absorb and carry off.

5387<sup>4</sup>. These (Spirits) had not anything bearded for a face, but a direful grating of teeth; for the beard and the teeth=the lowest natural things.

5398. In this chapter (Gen.xlii.), and in the things which follow concerning the sons of Jacob and Joseph, it treats . . . concerning the regeneration of the Natural as to the truths and goods of the Church; to wit, that it is not effected through scientifics, but through influx from the Divine.

— It treats in the supreme internal sense concerning the glorification of the Lord's Natural; and in the representative sense concerning the regeneration of the Natural with man by the Lord; here, as to the truths of the Church there.

5420<sup>e</sup>. When the Natural is in this state, it can indeed humble itself, and that to the highest degree, but solely from what is assumed through use . . .

5430. That the Celestial of the Spiritual foresaw what would happen concerning the general truths of the Church in the Natural. Sig.

5432. It treats concerning the truths of the Church, that they are to be appropriated to the Natural; and that they cannot be appropriated thereto, except by influx from the Celestial of the Spiritual by a medium. . . . The medium is 'Benjamin.'

[A.] 5435. That these truths are to be appropriated to the Natural by good. Sig. and Ex.

5444<sup>2</sup>. As all the conjunction of truth in the Natural proceeds from the Divine Spiritual . . .

5477. See LIGHT, here. —<sup>2</sup>.

5489. Wherever there was a receptacle in the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

5495. When they reflected upon the scientifics in the exterior Natural. Sig. and Ex.

5497. That they were given and stored up in the threshold of the exterior Natural. Sig. and Ex.

— What the exterior Natural and the interior Natural are. Ex.

5505. It treats concerning the truths of the Church . . . in what way they are implanted in the Natural . . .

5510. The Celestial of the Spiritual reigning in the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. There are two things in the Natural, namely, scientifics, and the truths of the Church. . . Scientifics must be disposed into order there before the truths of the Church. Ex.

5529. Use from truths in the Natural. Sig.

5531. The Natural of man is distinguished into receptacles. In each receptacle there is a certain General, in which . . . are particulars, and, in these, singulars. Every such General, together with its particular and singulars, has its own receptacle, within which it can actuate itself, or vary its forms and change its states. These receptacles, with a man who has been regenerated, are as many in number as are the general truths with him, and each receptacle corresponds to some Society in Heaven. Such is the ordination with the man who is in the good of love and thence in the truth of faith.

5569. See HAIR-coma, here. 5570.

5571. They who have believed that nature is everything . . . being purely natural, when they appear in the light of Heaven, appear to have no face, but in place of it what is bearded, hairy, and untrimmed. Ex. 5573<sup>3</sup>.

5573. Where there is a spiritual sphere, (such) are invisible, but where there is a natural sphere they are visible; and they are called invisible natural ones. Des. D. 3498.

5574. (In Gen. xliii.) the subject is continued concerning the conjunction of the truths of the Church in the Natural . . . with the Celestial of the Spiritual or truth from the Divine . . . through the medium . . . but in this chapter it treats only concerning the general influx, which precedes conjunction.

5597. That (the Spiritual from the Internal) clearly perceived the things which were in the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

5620. The truths of good of the exterior Natural, and its delight. Sig. and Ex.

5621. The truths of good of the interior Natural. Sig. and Ex.

5637<sup>2</sup>. The interiors of scientifics are those things which are spiritual in the Natural. Ex.

5638. That the Celestial of the Spiritual was present in both Naturals. Rep.

5641. That the truths in the Natural should be introduced (into the good which is from the Celestial of the Spiritual). Sig. and Ex. 5645.

5642. Through the goods of the exterior Natural. Sig.

5647<sup>2</sup>. How it is with the conjunction of the external or natural man with the internal or spiritual. From the first age of life (the former) reigns, and does not know that (the latter) is; and therefore when the man is being reformed, and begins to become spiritual or internal . . . the Natural at first rebels; for he is taught that the natural man is to be subjugated; that is, that all his concupiscences, together with those things which confirm them, are to be extirpated. Hence, when the natural man is left to himself, he thinks that thus he will completely perish, for he does not know otherwise than that what is natural is everything, and is quite ignorant that there are unmeasured and ineffable things in what is spiritual; and, when the natural man is thus thinking, he draws himself back, and is not willing to be subjected to what is spiritual. Sig.

5649. Because the truth in the exterior Natural appears to be given gratis, they were being subjected. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>3</sup>. For there are angelic Societies which are in the exterior Natural, and there are those which are in the interior Natural; but they have not a Natural such as is that with man; but it is a Spiritual Natural, which is made spiritual by this, that it has been conjoined and subjected to what is spiritual.

5650. Before the natural man is being conjoined with the spiritual . . . it is left to him to think whether he is willing that the concupiscences . . . and such things as he had defended them by should be abolished, and that he should cede the command to the spiritual . . . It is left to him to think thus, in order that he may from freedom choose what he pleases. When the natural man without the spiritual thinks concerning this, he rejects it, for he loves his concupiscences, because he loves himself and the world. Hence he becomes anxious, and supposes that if these concupiscences were abolished no more life would remain in him; for he places everything in the natural or external man. Or else he supposes that afterwards he can do nothing from himself, and that all things he thinks, or wills, or acts, will flow in through Heaven . . . When the natural man left to himself is in this state, he draws himself back, and resists. But when anything of light through Heaven . . . inflows into his Natural, he begins to think . . . that it is better that the spiritual man should have the dominion, for thus he can think good and will good, and thus can come into Heaven . . . And when he thinks that all the Angels . . . are such, and that thence they are in ineffable joy, he fights with the natural man, and at last is willing to be subordinated to the spiritual. Tr.

5651. That whatever is in each Natural is of no account. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. In order that man may become spiritual, it is necessary for his Natural to become nothing, that is, so that it can do nothing whatever from itself; for in proportion as the Natural can do [anything] from itself, in the same proportion the Spiritual cannot do [anything]. For from infancy the Natural has imbued nothing else than the things which are of the cupidities of self and of the world, thus things contrary to charity. These evils cause that good cannot inflow through the internal man from the Lord; for whatever inflows is turned in the Natural into evil. The Natural is the plane in which the influx is terminated. Therefore, unless the Natural, that is, the evil and falsity which have formed the Natural, become nothing, good can never inflow through Heaven from the Lord. . . . Hence it is that the Internal is closed in proportion as the Natural does not become nothing.

—<sup>3</sup>. Regeneration is nothing else than that the Natural be subjugated, and the Spiritual obtain the dominion; and the Natural is subjugated when it is reduced to correspondence. When the Natural has been reduced to correspondence, it reacts no more, but acts as it is commanded, and follows at the beck of the Spiritual, scarcely otherwise than the acts of the body follow at the beck of the will. . . . Hence it is evident that the Natural ought to become altogether nothing as to will, in order for the man to become spiritual.

—<sup>4</sup>. But it is to be known that the old Natural must become nothing, for this is formed from evils and falsities; and, when this has become nothing, the man is then gifted with a new Natural, which is called the Spiritual Natural, spiritual from the fact that the Spiritual is what acts through it, and manifests itself through it, as the cause through the effect. It is known that the cause is everything of the effect. Hence the new Natural, as to thinking, willing, and acting the effect, is nothing else than a representative of the Spiritual. When this takes place, the man receives good from the Lord, and when he receives good he is gifted with truths, and when he is gifted with truths he is perfected in intelligence and wisdom, and when he is perfected in intelligence and wisdom he is blessed with happiness to eternity.

5656. Introspection into the exterior Natural. Sig.

5661. No faith [arising] from ignorance of the source of the truth in the exterior Natural. Sig.

5669. The derivative purification of the Natural. Sig.

5680. The derivative apperception of the Natural that it is well with the good a quo. Sig. and Ex.

— For from spiritual good as a father are the truths and goods in the Natural which are represented by Israel's ten sons. And as the truths and goods in the Natural are represented by them, by them the Natural is also signified; for the Natural is the containant, and the truths and goods there are the contents, which make a one.

—<sup>2</sup>. It is said derivative, namely, from the Internal, which is represented by Joseph, because all the perception of the Natural comes from the Spiritual; and, as it comes from the Spiritual, it comes from the Internal, that is, through the Internal from the Lord. The Natural never has any perception, and not even any life of thought and affection, except what comes from the Spiritual; for, from themselves, all things in the Natural are dead, but they are vivified through influx from the Spiritual World . . .

5686. The Internal from the Natural, as from a mother. Ex.

5688. See MEDIUM, here.

5698. Conjunction through the medium with the truths in the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

5728<sup>e</sup>. (In Gen.xliv.) the ten sons of Jacob=the external natural man.

5729. It then treats concerning the temptation of the external natural man, and this until they had submitted themselves to the Internal Celestial of their own accord.

5733. (Influx from the Celestial of the Spiritual) into the Natural with the good of truth. Sig. and Ex.

5735. And with truth anew besides, in the exterior Natural. Sig. and Ex.

5741. That the external natural man was somewhat removed with his truths and scientifics (from the Celestial Internal). Sig. and Ex.

5768. To open that which is in the Natural. Sig.

5782. Perception given to the good of the Church in the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

5799. That (the Internal) has dominion over the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

5804<sup>e</sup>. Through this (new) truth good fructifies itself in the Natural, and produces innumerable truths, in which is good. Thus is the Natural regenerated, and, through fructification, becomes first like a tree with good fruits, and, successively, like a garden.

5817. Elevation . . . from the truths in the Natural . . . to spiritual good from the Natural. Tr. For the Natural is exterior and interior, [and] in the interior Natural is spiritual good, which is 'Israel'; and in the exterior Natural are the truths of the Church, which are 'the sons of Jacob.'

5822. For the new truth which Benjamin represents is in the Natural, because it is from spiritual good from the Natural . . .

5842. By these words is signified the submission of the natural or external man under the Internal; for when the good there submits itself, the truths themselves there submit themselves; for truths are of good.

5867. In (Gen.xliv.) it has treated concerning the internal man . . . that he initiated the external natural one . . . through the medium . . . to conjunction with himself. In (Gen.xlv.) it now treats concerning the internal man, that he has conjoined himself with the external natural one; but, as conjunction with this is not possible, except through spiritual good from the Natural . . . he therefore first prepares to adjoin it to himself. 5879.

5875. (The perception of mercy and joy) through the universal Natural. Sig.

5882. The perception of the new Natural. Sig. and Ex.

5883. That communication with the natural or external man is interior and exterior, is unknown to man. (Continued under INTERNAL MAN.)

[A.] 5893. The state of the defect of good in the natural mind. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. The case is this. In the natural mind there must be truths in order that good can operate; and the truths must be introduced through the affection which is of genuine love. Ex.

5902. That now the Natural is from (the Celestial Internal). Sig. and Ex. 5903.

5904. That (the Celestial Internal) disposes the scientifics in the natural mind. Sig. and Ex.

— . Scientifics are what constitute the Intellectual of the natural mind; and the good which inflows from the Internal, and disposes the scientifics there, is what makes the quasi Voluntary there.

5910. See GOSHEN, here. 6028.

5914. For the goods and truths in the Natural are from spiritual good as a father. Hence, being from it, they are of it.

5933. That this infilled the universal Natural. Sig.

5934. The perception that the truths of the Church were present in the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

5935. Joy everywhere in the Natural. Sig. 5936.

5937. The perception of the Natural from the Celestial Internal. Sig. and Ex.

5938. That there is perception concerning the truths of the Church in the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. The reason why Pharaoh invited the sons of Jacob, and Joseph the father . . . is that the Natural in general, which is represented by Pharaoh, has immediate communication with the truths of the Church in the Natural . . . whereas the Celestial Internal, which is represented by Joseph, has not immediate communication with the truths of the Church in the Natural . . . but through spiritual good . . .

5945<sup>2</sup>. For the Spiritual World has its feet and soles in the Natural . . .

5949. That they have what is primary in the natural mind. Sig. and Ex.

5951. The effect from spiritual truths in the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

5965<sup>2</sup>. But that is called natural which is in the light of the world . . .

5969. A failing of the life of the Natural, and of the derivative understanding. Sig. and Ex.

6040. The perception of truths in the Natural from the Celestial Internal. Sig. and Ex. . . For the Natural perceives nothing whatever from itself, but its perceiving is from what is prior to itself . . .

6042. Communication with the Natural where are the scientifics of the Church. Sig.

6047. If the Natural in which are the scientifics of the Church is willing to be conjoined. Sig. and Ex.

6051. So shall your station be in the middle of the Natural where are the scientifics of the Church. Sig. 6103.

6059. In (Gen. xlvii.) it treats concerning the insinuation of the truths of the Church, which are in the Natural, into the Scientific.

6060. At last, all the Natural as to scientifics (reduced into order by the Celestial Internal) under their General. Tr.

6063. The presence of the Celestial Internal in the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. It has been shown before that the Natural subsists and lives from influx from the Internal, that is, through the Internal from the Lord; for the Natural, without influx thence, has not any life, because it is in the nature of the world, and thence draws all it has, and the nature of the world is altogether devoid of life; and therefore in order that the Natural with man may live, there must be influx from the Lord, not only immediate influx from Himself, but also mediate through the Spiritual World, consequently, with man, into his Internal, for this is in the Spiritual World . . . The Natural of man has been formed to receive life thence. This, then, is meant by the influx of the Celestial Internal into the Natural, where scientifics are.

6068. When the goods and truths which are of the Church have been acknowledged and received in faith in the Natural, they then hold the middle there. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. For the internal eye . . . looks at those things which are in the Natural as outside of itself . . .

6072. Perception in the Natural concerning the truths of the Church. Sig.

6092. Perception in the Natural where scientifics are concerning the general truth of the Church. Sig.

6093. (And) concerning the state of the life of the Natural from the Spiritual. Sig.

6097. That the state of the life of the Natural is full of temptations. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>6</sup>. The Natural is especially let into temptations when it is to receive the Spiritual.

6104. The inmost of the Spiritual in the natural mind. Sig. and Ex.

6105. With the consent of the Natural where scientifics are. Sig.

— . For the Natural, which is represented by Pharaoh, has all that belongs to it through influx from the Internal; and therefore that which the Natural commands does indeed appear as if commanded by it, but it is by the Internal; thus is consent. The Natural of man is circumstanced in relation to the Internal almost as is the speech of man to his thought . . .

6111. That this (desolation) was in the Natural where scientifics are. Sig.

6115. That it was all referred to the General in the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

6132. For everything which comes forth and is done in the Natural is known to the Internal, because the Natural has thence all that belongs to it.

6142. That (the Internal) appropriated to itself the whole natural mind where scientifics are. Sig.

6145. That all things were subjected to the Natural which was under the auspices of the Internal. Sig.

6147. Extension through the whole Natural where scientifics are. Sig. and Ex.

6148. That the Internal from the Natural procured for itself the faculties of receiving good. Sig. and Ex.

6156<sup>e</sup>. As it treats here concerning the regeneration of the Natural . . .

6163. That they . . . submit to the Natural which is under the auspices of the Internal. Sig.

6183. The regeneration of the Natural is effected through the insinuation of spiritual life from the Lord through the internal man into the scientifics there. This insinuation has been treated of in this chapter. But when the man has been thus regenerated, if he is such that he can be regenerated further, he is elevated thence to the interior Natural, which is under the immediate auspices of the Internal. But if the man is not such, his spiritual life is then in the exterior Natural. The elevation is effected through a withdrawal from sensuous and scientific things . . . (Continued under INTERNAL CHURCH.)

6188. That spiritual good turned itself to those things which are of the interior Natural. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. See BED, here.

6226. That spiritual good was turned to the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

— . Very few know that the Natural is interior and exterior, and that thought is now in the former and now in the latter . . .

6229. The Divine appearing in the Natural (in a former state). Sig. and Ex.

6234. Good and truth in the Natural from the Internal. Sig. and Ex.

6236. For 'Jacob'=the truth of the Natural, thus also the Natural as to truth; and in the Natural are the Intellectual and the Voluntary, which are represented by Ephraim and Manasseh . . . By Pharaoh also is represented the Natural, but not as to truths, but as to scientifics, which are lower, and into which truths can be initiated and insinuated, which was represented by the coming of Jacob and his sons into Egypt.

6240<sup>2</sup>. The reason those of the Lord's Spiritual Church are interiorly natural, is that they acknowledge only that for truth which they have imbibed from parents and masters, and have afterwards confirmed . . .

6266<sup>2</sup>. The good of the Voluntary, and the truth of the Intellectual, in the Natural, cannot from themselves humble themselves before the Lord; but from the Internal through influx; for without influx through the Internal into the Natural, there is nothing there of will and understanding, and not even anything of life . . .

6299<sup>2</sup>. For the External is in the place of a foundation on which the Internal may stand, and it is a receptacle into which the Internal may inflow. Hence it is that the Natural, which is external, must necessarily be regenerated . . .

6377. That His Natural is Divine truth from His Divine good. Sig.

6380. The hard things with man, as the teeth, bones, cartilages, correspond to the truths and goods which are of the lowest Natural.

└ 6394<sup>e</sup>. See FISH, here.

6406. They who do works from truth, and not yet from good, cannot do otherwise than induce inordination on their Natural, for the works affect the Natural; and consequently they cannot but in the same proportion close to themselves the interiors; for the plane in which the interiors are terminated is the Natural; and if this is inordinated, the things which inflow from the interiors also become inordinated; and the things which are inordinated are dark and opaque, and therefore they cannot see what truth is . . .

6413. The freedom of natural affection. Sig. and Ex.

— . For the Natural loves to be in the delight of its affections, consequently in freedom. Ill.

6431. The Natural is called 'the abyss lying beneath,' relatively to the interiors . . . and (therefore) scientifics also are signified; for scientifics with their delights are in the Natural, and make its life, especially with the spiritual man; for he is introduced through scientifics into truths, and through truths into good . . .

6434. That (the Spiritual Church) has spiritual good from the Natural. Sig.

—<sup>e</sup>. For the good of the man of the Spiritual Church is in the Natural; it does not go further . . .

6435<sup>2</sup>. The good of charity is from the Natural.

6437. 'The sons of Israel'=spiritual truths in the Natural, which (truths) are relatively exterior; for the man of the Spiritual Church is in the good of truth; and this good is more interior, because it is in the interior Natural.

6452. That (in the Natural) also are things interior, and what is inmost. Sig. and Ex.

6453. That in the exterior Natural, where are the truths and goods which are represented by the sons and the tribes of Israel, there is what is obscure, because there is what is general there. Sig.

6454. The case is this. Whatever is in the Natural, and still more what is in the exterior Natural, is obscure relatively to those things which are in the interior Natural, and still more relatively to those things which are in the Rational; but this obscurity becomes clear in two ways; first, if exterior things are reduced to compliance with interior ones, and thus to correspondence; secondly, if the man can be elevated from exterior to interior things, and thus see exterior from interior things. The latter takes place with those who are in the internal of the Church, and the former with those who are in its external; but neither the one nor the other is obtained except through regeneration by the Lord.

6463. That (he betook himself) to the good and truth of the lower Natural. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. As by Israel is represented spiritual good from the Natural, and by Jacob spiritual truth in the Natural, and by his sons goods and truths in the Natural distinguished into genera, therefore 'a bed' is mentioned, because by it is signified the Natural.

6464. New life in the goods and truths of the lower Natural. Sig.

6500. The good of the Spiritual Church cannot be elevated above the Natural.

[A.] 6511. The influx of the Internal into the natural mind. Sig.

6518. The presenece of the Internal in the natural mind. Sig.

6567. It treats in (Gen. i.) concerning the instauration of the Spiritual Church, and here now concerning the submission of those things which are in the Natural under the Internal, concerning which submission it is to be known that the Spiritual Church cannot possibly be instituted with anyone unless those things which are of the natural or external man have been submitted to the spiritual or internal man. So long as only the truth which is of faith predominates with man, and not the good which is of charity, so long the natural or external man has not been submitted to the spiritual or internal man . . . 6580.

—<sup>2</sup>. Affection itself and the derivative reason (then) dominate, and subdue in the Natural the delights of the love of self and of the world, as also the fallacies which had infilled the scientifics there; and at last so, that this subjugation is amongst its pleasant things; and then the Natural is at rest, and afterwards concords, and when it concords it participates in the pleasantness of the Internal.

6576. Spiritual truths in the Natural, and the innocence which is in them. Sig.

6635. (Ex. i.) afterwards treats concerning the infestation of these truths by the falsities and evils in the Natural.

6643. 'Joseph was in Egypt' = that the Celestial Internal was in the Natural. . . 'And Joseph died' = that the case was now otherwise . . . 6645, Ex.

6649<sup>o</sup>. For the Spiritual Church is in the inmosts of the Natural.

6661. Doctrines from falsified truths in the Natural where were alienated scientifics. Sig. and Ex.

6673. Influx from the separated scientifics in the Natural where were the scientifics which are of the Church. Sig. and Ex. (See MIDWIFE, here.)

6675. 'The stools' = those things in the Natural which receive the inflowing goods and truths from the Internal; thus they = scientific truths.

6686. That the Natural does not know before the scientific truths of the Church have life. Sig. and Ex.

— The case is this. All the life possessed by the scientific truths in the Natural is from the good which inflows through the Internal. When the good inflows, the Natural is quite unaware of it, because the Natural is relatively in obscurity. That it is in obscurity [is from the fact that it is] in the light of the world and thence at the same time in worldly things . . . and also from the fact that in the Natural are Generals which cannot perceive singulars . . . and besides, in the Natural there are not goods and truths themselves, but the representatives of them. Hence, then, it is, that the Natural does not know when scientific truths have life, consequently, when it is being regenerated, nor how. Sig.

—<sup>e</sup>. By the Natural is meant the external man, which is called also the natural man.

6687. That the Natural was blessed by the Divine. Sig.

6690. That the scientific truths in the Natural were disposed into a heavenly form. Sig.

6834. Divine truth united to Divine good in the Natural. Sig.

— The Natural is signified, because truth is there scientifically.

6844<sup>o</sup>. The internal Natural is signified by 'feet;' the middle Natural by 'soles;' and the external Natural, by 'shoes.'

6915. The life no longer in want as to those things which are of the natural mind. Sig. and Ex.

6976. The letting in (of false scientifics) into the Natural. Sig.

6977. The falsification of all truth, and its privation in the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

— There is a total inversion of state in the Natural when nothing but falsities occupy it. This rarely takes place with man while he lives in the world, but in the other life with all who are being cast into Hell. Ex.

7011. As there is nothing of power in the Natural except from the Spiritual . . .

7016. Elevation to interior and more spiritual life in the Natural. Sig.

—<sup>e</sup>. The good and truth of the Spiritual Church are in the Natural. Refs.

7091. For those of the Spiritual Church have natural ideas concerning everything spiritual and celestial, and also concerning the Divine, and therefore unless they thought of the Divine as of a natural man they could not be conjoined with the Divine by anything of affection . . .

7112<sup>2</sup>. The Angels with man understand all things spiritually which man understands naturally . . .

7130. There are with man two minds, one is the natural mind . . . The natural mind is the mind of the external man . . . The things of the natural mind are called scientifics . . . They are distinguished also by this, that the things which are of the natural mind are for the most part in the light of the world . . .

7217<sup>2</sup>. Thus think, and thus speak among themselves, merely natural men.

—<sup>e</sup>. Before merely natural ones (spiritual men) appear weak and sick in spirit . . . But those who are merely natural appear to themselves strong and mighty, and are so as to the body; but they are quite feeble as to the spirit, because they are spiritually dead . . .

7355. All things which are in the Natural (filled with reasonings from falsities). Sig. 7387.

7356. Exterior goods are those which are in the Natural, and are commonly called delights.

7384. For the Natural comes forth through the Spiritual.

7398. For the things which become familiar are as it were natural . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. For falsities, after they are removed, are allotted their places elsewhere in the natural . . .

7407. That, with these, reasoning from mere falsities ceased everywhere in the Natural. Sig.

— The interior and the exterior Natural. Sig.

7408. That these reasoning falsities were disposed fascicularly in the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

7418. That he should remove those things which are damned in the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

7442<sup>2</sup>. How it is that the interiors also of the natural mind shall be occupied by the falsities of evil which are in the extremes of this mind. Ex.

—<sup>3</sup>. (Hence) it is necessary that while man is being regenerated, his Natural be regenerated even to the Sensuous. Ex.

7449. That the natural mind was being corrupted as to all truth. Sig.

7554. That with others there is no such destruction in the natural mind. Sig. and Ex.

7560. 'A house' = the interior natural mind, where is good with truth.

7562. Those things in the natural mind which were of the Lord. Sig. and Ex.

7601. 'The flax' = the truth . . . of the exterior Natural. The Natural is exterior and interior, consequently the truth and good there are interior and exterior. Refs. and Sig.

—<sup>2</sup>. The evil . . . are devastated as to those truths and goods which are in the exterior Natural . . . Whereas the truths and goods of the interior Natural are not devastated, but are brought more inwards, and are there reserved for use; and then the communication between the interior and the exterior Natural is so far closed, that not anything of good and truth can inflow thence into the exterior Natural, except only such a General as they can reason by . . . to confirm falsities and evils.

7604<sup>3</sup>. The reason the goods and truths in the exterior Natural with the evil look downwards. Ex.

7643<sup>6</sup>. As falsity and evil are especially multiplied in the extremes of the Natural; for there are fallacies of the senses . . . and pleasures from various kinds of appetites . . .

7645. The darkening of the whole natural mind thence. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. Hence also it is that infernal Spirits, when they have been devastated, are in the extremes of the Natural . . .

7648. That falsity will reign in each and all things of the Natural from its interior to its extreme. Sig. and Ex.

7678. The dominion of power of truth Divine over the whole Natural of those who are infesting. Sig. and Ex.

7729. For when the Natural is mentioned there is meant truth and good, or, in the opposite sense, falsity and evil . . .

7847. For the natural man is instructed before the rational; and the things which the man then learns are natural, in which spiritual things are successively insinuated . . . Hence it is evident how the Natural as to truths and goods serves to introduce.

— Angelic ideas are such that natural things relate to such things as are of man. Ex.

— As in the ideas of the Angels natural things become spiritual.

7920. The Natural is the general receptacle.

7997. From mere natural disposition—indole. 7997. 8002.

7998. Man as yet natural. Sig.

— 'A servant' = the Natural, thus the natural man. Ex.

7999. How the Spiritual 'buys,' that is, acquires and appropriates, the Natural. Ex.

8078. Faith merely natural. Sig. and Ex.

8106<sup>e</sup>. 'A pillar' . . . is predicated of the Natural, because the Natural is like a support or base to the Spiritual; for the Spiritual ceases in the Natural, and there quiesces.

8298<sup>2</sup>. See LEAD-plumbum, here.

8426<sup>2</sup>. When it is evening . . . they are in the delight of natural love. 8452. 8687<sup>e</sup>.

8452. Natural delight through which is good. Sig. and Ex.

— (Thus) the Natural must be wholly accommodated, in order that it may be a receptacle. This is done through delights; for the goods which are of the natural man are called delights . . .

8453. That (this delight) infilled man's Natural. Sig.

— 'The camp' = goods and truths; here, the Natural, which is the containant; for the Natural contains goods and truths; and without these the Natural is not alive; nor are the good and truth of the external or natural man anything without the Natural.

8522. 'Honey' = natural delight.

— This good cannot come forth except through the delights which are of the natural man . . .

8742. The external man is that which is called the natural man.

8764. The Natural is relatively like the earth; for . . . the Natural constitutes the external man.

8781. That (revelation) shall be made in the most natural form. Sig. and Ex.

8783. Truth Divine is not received by anyone . . . unless it appears in a natural form. Sig. and Ex.

8812<sup>2</sup>. The things which are from the sun of the world are called natural, and have not life in themselves.

—<sup>e</sup>. For natural things come forth from spiritual ones as effects from their causes . . .

8878. They who are in evil are . . . in natural light, and at last in sensuous light . . .

8890. 'A man-servant' = the natural as to truth; 'a maid-servant' = the Natural as to good . . .

8944. Many who have written natural theology . . .

8961<sup>e</sup>. If evil conquers, then the natural man dominates over the spiritual.

8987. To be reformed is said of those who . . . can be led by the truths of faith only to the delight of natural life.

8995. If the affection of truth from natural delight does not concord with spiritual truth. Sig. and Ex.

[A. 8995]<sup>2</sup>. The affection of truth from natural delight is in the external man.

— . When the natural man dominates, the man looks downwards . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. If these things are held as the end, the natural man dominates . . . But if as means to the end . . . the natural man serves.

— . Hence may be seen what the quality of the natural man must be in order that he can be conjoined with the spiritual. Des.

—<sup>4</sup>. He may suppose that the delight of natural loves, which are the love of self and of the world, cannot concord with spiritual truth and good. Ex.

9001<sup>2</sup>. For then the Natural is subordinate to spiritual truth, and, when it is subordinate, it is no longer at its own disposal, but at that of the spiritual truth under which it is subordinate. Hence the Natural becomes as the Spiritual because it acts as a one with it. Moreover, the spiritual life of truth is then transferred into the Natural, and vivifies it.

9003<sup>2</sup>. The case is this. Natural affection conjoined with spiritual truth . . . constantly requires the sustentation of its life by the spiritual truth with which it is conjoined. Sig.

9027. What is separated in the Natural. Sig.

9031<sup>2</sup>. For the literal sense is Natural . . .

—<sup>5</sup>. (These things) are not said concerning the natural life . . .

—<sup>e</sup>. Those of them who live solely to the body . . . thus who are solely natural men, apprehend nothing . . . concerning the life of faith and charity, and the internal man ; for they have thought solely from natural light.

9043. If it be still confirmed in the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

— . That the whole man is regenerated when his Natural is. Refs.

—<sup>e</sup>. When good is in the Natural, then he is a new man . . .

9046<sup>e</sup>. Restitution takes place when they afterwards agree together ; and they agree together when the external or natural man acts not from himself but from the internal, or the Spiritual in the Natural, as the soul in its body. When this takes place, then the External or Natural lives from the life of the Internal, which is the new life . . .

9061. Therefore man cannot be regenerated, unless the natural man also is regenerated. Hence it follows, that if the truth of faith in the natural or external man be extinguished, it can no longer serve the internal. —<sup>2</sup>, Ex.

9065. If the affection of evil in the Natural should injure the truth or good of faith. Sig. and Ex.

9081. If the affection of evil have destroyed truth or good in the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

9086. (If falsity) has perverted good or truth in the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

9103<sup>2</sup>. Unless spiritual life is restored to the full, exterior good, which makes natural life, cannot be restored ; for the latter life is restored through the former. . . But good in the External or Natural cannot be restored to the full, because the blow remains there like a scar which grows callous. Sig. —<sup>3</sup>, Ex. —<sup>e</sup>.

9109. The bystanders hence perceived the quality of the external or natural man separated from the internal, when he comes into the spiritual sphere, which is the sphere of life of the internal man ; namely, that he is insane. Ex.

9110. From this experience it was also evident, that the natural man cannot bring himself, that is, ascend, into the spiritual. But when man is in faith, and thence in spiritual life, and thinks, then the spiritual man descends, that is, thinks, in the natural. . . And therefore when a natural man, who is separated from the internal, comes into the sphere of spiritual life, he is seized first with blindness, then with insanity, and at last with anguish.

9212. 'A garment,' here, = the ultimate of the Natural, which is the Sensuous.

—<sup>2</sup>. Hence the external or natural man is called 'a garment' relatively to the internal or spiritual man.

9215. The Natural of man is interior, exterior or middle, and extreme (or outermost). The interior Natural communicates with Heaven ; the middle or interior Natural communicates on the one side with the interior, and through this with Heaven, and on the other side with the extreme, and through this with the world. Refs. The extreme Natural is the Sensuous, which is here signified by 'the garment' . . . The exterior or middle Natural is what is signified by 'the skin.'

9256<sup>3</sup>. For falsities dispose themselves by series, and make a continual connection among themselves, and form the natural mind itself, and its intuition (or view) as to those things which are of the Church and Heaven.

9262<sup>4</sup>. 'A barren valley' = the natural mind not cultivated with the truths and goods of faith, from ignorance. —<sup>6</sup>.

9325<sup>9</sup>. 'The going forth of waters' = the Natural of man which receives the Knowledges of truth and good, and which is amended by the longing of truth for good.

—<sup>10</sup>. 'The Jordan' = that with the man of the Church which first receives truths ; thus the Natural.

— . That the Natural of man is the first thing which receives truths from the Word from the Lord, and that it is regenerated last ; and, that when it is regenerated, the whole man is regenerated. Sig. and Refs.

9383. With every man in general there are two states : . . . a second which is peculiar and proper to the external man, which state is called natural. . . The reason the state of the external man is called natural, is that it is affected with the truths which are of the light of the world, and with the good which is of the heat of this light . . .

9391. 'Bullocks' = the good of innocence and of charity in the external or natural man. Ex. and Ill.

9394<sup>4</sup>. When by continual use or habit they become as it were spontaneous and natural . . . —<sup>5</sup>.

9538. Firmness in the natural sphere. Sig.

— . The reason firmness is in the natural sphere, is that all the Spiritual ceases in that which is called natural truth, and all the Celestial in that which is called natural good, and there they subsist. Hence it is that the Natural is the foundation, consequently the support to them.

9551. Spiritual things in the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

— For the Natural is produced and derived from the Spiritual, as the Spiritual is from the Celestial.

9568<sup>2</sup>. In like manner succeed each other the Celestial, the Spiritual, and the Natural . . . From the Spiritual is all the Natural ; that is, from the Celestial through the Spiritual. . . All that with man is called natural which is of the Scientific. The reason the Scientific is natural, is that the Scientific is truth appearing in the light of the world . . .

9572. Things purificatory and evacuator in the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

— That this is done in the Natural may be evident from the fact that the internal or spiritual man, while it is in the body, thinks in the Natural, and sets forth its thoughts, or speaks them forth, in the Corporeal ; and that it also wills in the Natural ; and the things it wills it acts in the Corporeal.

9730<sup>2</sup>. With natural and sensuous men there is a determination of the intellectual and voluntary things, thus of the thoughts and affections, towards the world . . .

9755. 'The sea'—where there is a collection of scientifics, from which there is ratiocination concerning truths ; thus also the Natural and Sensuous ; for these are the containants. III.

—<sup>2</sup>. By 'the west' is signified good in obscurity, and in it is the external or natural man, who . . . is in the light of the world. . . But the truth of the natural man is signified by the water of the sea . . . for the truth in the external or natural man is truth in knowledge . . .

9825. The Natural of man is distinguished into three degrees. Ref.

9905<sup>4</sup>. The breastplate revealed Divine truths in the natural sphere ; thus in ultimates. . . There is such a shining forth, through which Divine truth from Heaven is revealed in the natural man.

9917. In the extremes where the Natural is. Sig. and Ex.

9992. There are three things in man which follow in successive order . . . the Celestial, the Spiritual, and the Natural. . . The Natural thence is the good of faith, which, being from the Spiritual, is called the Spiritual Natural . . .

10021. The state of the application of the natural or external man such as it is in its infancy. Sig. and Ex. 10022.

10023. A representative of the reception of good and truth in the natural or external man. Sig. and Ex.

10024. Preparation for the purification of good and truth from the Lord in the external or natural man. Sig. and Ex.

10026. Divine truth accommodated to the natural or external man. Sig. and Ex.

VOL. IV.

10029. Good accommodated to the natural or external man. Sig. and Ex.

10031. The interior good of the external or natural man. Sig. and Ex.

10032. The interior truth of the external or natural man, and its good. Sig. and Ex.

10042<sup>8</sup>. By the sacrifices and burnt-offerings of the bullock, the ox, and the he-goat, were represented the purification and regeneration of the external or natural man . . .

10050. The purification of the exteriors which are of the natural man. Sig. and Ex.

10099. The Divine Spiritual in the Natural successively. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>4</sup>. (The Spiritual not a purer Natural. See SPIRITUAL, here.)

10122. The continual removal of the evils and derivative falsities in the natural man through the good of innocence from the Lord. Sig. and Ex.

10124. With those who are in the Spiritual Kingdom, truth is implanted in the external or natural man . . .

10156. For man is born natural . . . and if he does not become spiritual he is in Hell ; for the knowledge of the natural man—that is, of a man not regenerated—is in the light of the world . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. Those who are solely in natural knowledge . . . cannot possibly believe those things which are of Heaven . . . Hence it is that the merely natural man, however much he believes himself to be in lumen above others, at heart denies Divine and heavenly things . . . (But) those who suffer themselves to be elevated by the Lord into the light of Heaven, are first elevated above the scientifics which are of the natural man ; and then from the light of Heaven they see those things which are in their natural man, which are called scientifics, and well discriminate them . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. In a word . . . so long as man is merely natural, so long his interiors, which see from the light of Heaven, are closed ; and the exteriors, which see from the light of the world, are open ; and then the man looks downwards . . .

—<sup>5</sup>. These things have been said that it may be known what is the spiritual and what the natural man ; and that the merely natural man, unless he has been made spiritual by the Lord, is Hell.

10200. For everything natural comes forth from what is spiritual . . .

10208<sup>4</sup>. Therefore if the natural man is perverted, the spiritual has no opportunity of acting into him except pervertedly. Hence it is that then the spiritual or internal man is closed. Ex. and Refs.

10235<sup>3</sup>. See LAVER, here. —<sup>4</sup>. —<sup>6</sup>. 10236.

— By the Natural is meant the External of man, that is, that which is called the external man.

10236. The Natural of man is external, middle, and internal. The external of the Natural communicates with the world, and is called the external Sensuous ; the internal Natural is that which communicates with the internal man, which is in Heaven ; the middle Natural is that which conjoins both . . .

[A.10236]<sup>2</sup>. By the Sensuous which is the ultimate of the Natural, is properly meant that which is called 'the flesh,' and it perishes when the man dies. (Continued under SENSUOUS.)

10237. For all spiritual purification is effected in the Natural. Man has an External and an Internal; the External is called the Natural, and also the natural man . . . for the reason that . . . man's External is in the natural world. Both the Internal and the External are purified; the Internal in Heaven, and the External while the man lives in the World, thus in the Natural which is in the world. The reason why purification is then carried on in the Natural, is that the truths of faith come to manifest perception in the Natural. Ex.

—<sup>3</sup>. It has been said that man knows his evils and falsities . . . in the Natural, that is, in the external man, and not in the internal. The reason is that the ideas of thought in the internal man are spiritual, and spiritual ideas cannot be comprehended in the Natural, for they are intellectual ideas which are devoid of objects such as are in the material world. But still these ideas . . . inflow into the natural ideas which are of the external man, and produce and make them, which is done through correspondences.

10243<sup>2</sup>. 'The water in the basin' = the truth of faith in the Natural . . . Thus by 'to wash the feet' is meant the purification of the Natural of man; for unless this is purified and cleansed with a man when he is living in the world, it cannot afterwards be purified to eternity; for such as is the Natural of a man when he dies, such it remains; for it is not amended afterwards; for it is the plane into which the interiors, which are spiritual, inflow; it is their receptacle; and therefore when it is perverted, the interiors, when they inflow, are perverted into its likeness. Ex. and Sig.

—<sup>3</sup>. That he who is regenerated is not to be purified except as to the Natural. Sig.

10254. For with man there is sensuous life, and natural life, both of the external man; but the sensuous life is exterior, deriving its truths from the objects which are in the Earth and in the body; and the natural life is interior, deriving its truths from the causes of these objects.

10284<sup>3</sup>. Inwardly with such there is what is merely natural, and nothing spiritual; they see solely from natural light . . .

10379<sup>o</sup>. (Such) correspond to the conjunction of natural and celestial things.

10547<sup>o</sup>. And all celestial and spiritual things inflow into natural and worldly ones, and cease in them, and form and constitute them.

10604<sup>2</sup>. The ideas of thought of the Angels are not natural, such as are the ideas of the thought of men . . . The ideas of thought which man comprehends, and which fall into words, are natural, and by the learned are called material . . . By correspondence spiritual (ideas) are turned into natural ones when the man is speaking . . . 168.

—<sup>3</sup>. As there is a correspondence between spiritual thought and natural, and as the Angels are in spiritual thought, the Angels perceive spiritually that which man perceives naturally . . .

H. 31. The Divine which inflows from the Lord and is received in the Ultimate Heaven, is called natural; but as the Natural of that Heaven is not like the Natural of the world, but has in it the Spiritual and the Celestial, therefore that Heaven is called spiritual and celestial natural, and thence the Angels who are there are called spiritual and celestial natural ones. (Continued under NATURAL ANGEL.)

110. Oxen and bullocks correspond to the affections of the natural mind.

—<sup>e</sup>. Man is like (animals) as to his natural man . . .

116. In Heaven the sun of the world does not appear, nor anything which is from that sun, because all that is natural; for nature begins from that sun, and whatever is produced through it is called natural. (Continued under SPIRITUAL.)

168. The Angels who speak with men never speak by means of the natural ideas proper to man, all of which are from time, from space, from what is material, and from things analogous to them . . . but still the angelic ideas, which are spiritual, when they inflow with men, are turned in a moment and from themselves into natural ideas proper to the man which correspond exactly to the spiritual ones. . . There were Angels who were admitted . . . even into my natural thoughts, in which were many things from time and space; but as they then understood nothing, they suddenly receded, and . . . I heard them saying that they had been in darkness.

—<sup>2</sup>. There was a certain one from Heaven, who was such that he could be admitted also into natural ideas, such as man has . . .

172<sup>o</sup>. The things which come forth from the sun of the world are called natural.

249. Evil Spirits . . . desire nothing more than to destroy man . . . which also is done with those who have indulged much in phantasies even so that they have removed from themselves the delights suitable to the natural man.

262. The writings in the Heavens flow naturally from their thoughts themselves . . .

— . All correspondence is natural and spontaneous.

284. For the perception of man is in the Natural.

300. With man's natural or external man there is a conjunction (of Heaven) by correspondences . . .

464. Although the external or natural memory is in man after death, still the merely natural things which are therein are not reproduced in the other life, but the spiritual things which are adjoined to the natural things by correspondences; which things . . . when presented to the sight, appear in a form altogether like that in the natural world . . . although in their essence they are not natural . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. For man in the world, when he had thought from the external Sensuous, and not at the same time from the internal Sensuous, or Intellectual, had thought naturally and not spiritually. But in the other life . . . he does not think naturally, but spiritually . . .

531. The merely natural man lives according to the same Precepts in the external form just as does the spiritual man . . .

567. Natural heat. Ex.

—<sup>3</sup>. He who believes that anything comes forth in the natural world without the influx of the Spiritual World is mistaken; for the Natural does not come forth and subsist except from the Spiritual . . .

N. 38. The external man is what is called the natural man, because it is in the light of the world, which light is natural. . . The man whose Internal is not in the light of Heaven, but solely in the light of the world, in which the External also is, is a natural man as to both. . . The natural man is that which is called 'dead.'

40. An internal man [who is] merely natural, regarded in himself, is a Spirit, and not an Angel . . .

41. The interiors of the mind with those who are merely natural are actually turned to the world, because they regard it primarily . . .

61. The two loves (of self and of the world), when they dominate . . . cause the man to be natural and sensuous according to the quantity and quality of their dominion.

J. 27<sup>3</sup>. For spiritual things are there effigied . . . in an appearance as it were natural . . .

30. No one is judged from the natural man; thus not so long as he lives in the natural world; for man is then in a natural body . . . It is the Spiritual with man which is judged, and not the Natural, for this is not guilty of any fault or crime, because it does not live from itself, but is only an instrument . . .

36<sup>3</sup>. What is natural . . . is to will truth not for the sake of truth, but for the sake of self-glory, reputation, and gain.

38. So long as (truths) are outside the life they are only natural; for they are known and thought only as other Things are . . .

—<sup>c</sup>. Natural light shines in the Intellectual when worldly, corporeal, and earthly things are loved more than spiritual, celestial, and Divine ones . . .

65. Spiritual things are set forth in the sense of the letter by means of natural things, because natural things serve spiritual ones for a basis; and without such a basis the Word would not be a Divine work, because not complete. The Natural, which is the ultimate in Divine order, completes, and makes, the interior things . . .

S. 4<sup>e</sup>. The internal sense of the Word can . . . convince even the natural man, if he is willing to be convinced.

6. From the Lord proceed the Celestial, the Spiritual, and the Natural, one after the other. . . The Natural is from both (the Celestial and the Spiritual): it is their complex in the ultimate.

—<sup>2</sup>. The Word, in its ultimate sense, is natural . . .

Life 16. In what follows, those who do good from themselves will be called natural men, because the Moral and Civil with them, as to essence, is natural . . .

86. Man has a natural mind and a spiritual mind; the natural mind is below . . . (Continued under MIND-mens.) —<sup>4</sup>. So long as man does not shun evils as sins, the concupiscences of evils block up the interiors of the natural mind on the side of the will . . .

—<sup>5</sup>. So long as the concupiscences of evils block up the interiors of the natural mind . . . the man is in Hell . . . (and) so long is a natural man . . . and animal . . .

108<sup>e</sup>. But if they do these goods, and shun these evils, solely because they are evils. . . they are still merely natural; and with the merely natural the root of evil remains implanted . . .

109. See MORAL, here.

F. 32. Spiritual heat from Heaven then inflows into the natural mind. (See MIND-mens, here.)

W. 69. In the same proportion the lumen of his understanding becomes merely natural.

159. As all that comes forth and subsists from this sun is called natural . . .

163<sup>2</sup>. But the men in the natural world are natural, and therefore think naturally and speak naturally; and spiritual thought and speech have nothing in common with natural thought and speech.

164. All natural things from their origin are dead.

185<sup>2</sup>. Without a Knowledge of (discrete) degrees . . . nothing whatever can be known concerning the difference between the Spiritual and the Natural . . .

238. Man is then in the natural degree, which is the ultimate . . .; and the spiritual degree . . . does not communicate with the natural degree by continuity, but by correspondences . . . But when man puts off the natural degree . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. He no longer thinks, wills, speaks, and acts naturally . . .

248. That man, if the higher degree . . . is not opened with him, becomes natural and sensuous. Gen.art.

249. There are three kinds of natural men. Fully ex.

251. What the natural man is, and what the spiritual. Ex.

252. The quality of the natural man with whom the spiritual degree is opened. Ex.

253. The quality of the natural man with whom the spiritual degree is not opened, but still is not closed. Ex.

254. The quality of the natural man with whom the spiritual degree is completely closed. Ex.

—<sup>3</sup>. With these . . . the higher region of the natural degree, which is called the Rational (is also closed).

255. The quality of the difference between the life of a natural man and the life of a beast. Ex.

256. That the natural degree of the human mind, regarded in itself, is continuous . . . (See DEGREE, here.)

257. The natural mind can be elevated even to the light of Heaven, and can perceive naturally the things which the Angels perceive spiritually, thus not so fully; but still the natural mind of man cannot be elevated into angelic light itself. —<sup>2</sup>.

—<sup>4</sup>. The elevation of the natural mind is effected by continuity . . .

[W.257]<sup>5</sup>. The natural mind of man consists of spiritual substances, and at the same time of natural substances. Thought is effected from its spiritual substances, and not from its natural substances. The latter substances recede when the man dies, but not the spiritual substances; and therefore this same mind after death . . . remains in a like form to that in which it was in the world.

—<sup>6</sup>. The natural substances of this mind, which . . . recede by death, make the cutaneous covering of the spiritual body in which are Spirits and Angels. 270.

260. That the natural mind, because it is the covering and containant of the higher degrees of the human mind, is a reagent; and that if the higher degrees are not being opened, it acts against them; but if they are being opened, it acts with them. Gen. art.

—<sup>c</sup>. (The natural man is the same thing as the natural mind.)

261. The natural mind is in form a world.

—<sup>c</sup>. Hence a merely natural man can speak and preach heavenly things . . .

263<sup>c</sup>. The state of the natural mind before reformation may be compared to a spire twisting . . . downwards; but after reformation . . . to a spire twisting . . . upwards . . .

267. For the natural man can elevate his understanding to higher light . . . Ex.

—<sup>c</sup>. Such elevate it no higher than the higher region of their natural mind . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. The natural man can confirm whatever he will . . .

269<sup>c</sup>. Thus is the natural mind closed above; and in the descendants this is not restored except by, from the Lord, shunning evils as sins . . .

270. That all evils and the derivative falsities . . . reside in the natural mind. Ex.

—<sup>c</sup>. The natural mind derives its form in part from the substances of the natural world.

—<sup>2</sup>. The natural mind with all things of it is circumflexed into gyres from right to left . . . and (thus) from itself acts against the spiritual mind. The circumgyration from right to left is turned downwards . . .

273. That the natural mind which is in evils and the derivative falsities is a form and image of Hell. Ex.

274. That the natural mind which is a form or image of Hell descends by three degrees. Ex.

—<sup>c</sup>. The natural mind from its two faculties which are called rationality and freedom is in this state: that it can ascend through three degrees, and descend through three degrees . . .

275. That the three degrees of the natural mind, which is a form and image of Hell, are opposite to the three degrees of the spiritual mind . . . Ex. (See DEGREE, here.)

276. That the natural mind which is a Hell is in all oppositeness against the spiritual mind which is a Heaven. Ex.

277. That all things which are of the three degrees of the natural mind are enclosed (or included) in the works which are done by the acts of the body. Gen. art.

295. There was no word of the spiritual speech which was like a word of natural speech; nor anything of the spiritual writing like natural writing, except the letters . . . Yet (the Angels) said that they seem to themselves to think, speak, and write, in the spiritual state, in like manner as man does in the natural one, when yet nothing is like: from which it was evident that the Natural and the Spiritual differ according to degrees of height, and that they communicate (solely) by correspondences. M. 326<sup>3</sup>, shown by experiments.

345. If the natural degree only . . . is opened, the man becomes natural; and . . . if he becomes solely natural, he loves solely those things which are of the body and the world; and . . . in proportion as he loves these things . . . he becomes evil. From these things it is evident, that the spiritual ultimate, which is called the Spiritual Natural, can be separated from its higher [degrees]; and that this is separated with the men from whom is Hell. (Continued under LAST.)

404<sup>c</sup>. Thought does indeed come forth first, because it is of the natural mind . . .

416. There is natural love, and there is spiritual love. (Continued under LOVE.)

417. How the understanding is dragged back from this elevation by the love, if this is merely natural. Ex.

—<sup>c</sup>. With merely natural men (these two respirations) are separated . . . and therefore a merely natural man . . . with whom the understanding is elevated . . . can speak wisely in company . . . but when he is not in company, he thinks . . . from his love. He respire in like manner . . .

424. That love defiled in the understanding, and by it, becomes natural, sensuous, and corporeal. Gen. art.

429<sup>2</sup>. The rest remain spiritual natural.

P. 33<sup>2</sup>. As these (concupiscences) reside in the natural man, and whatever man acts from the natural man he feels that he acts as from himself . . .

41. This happiness rarely manifests itself in the world, because man is then in a natural state; and the Natural does not communicate with the Spiritual by continuity, but by correspondences . . .

71. From this it is evident that the Spiritual and the Natural with man are discriminated; and therefore man cannot pass from the one into the other except by determination . . .

83<sup>3</sup>. Those who confirm with themselves these loves . . . remain natural, and become corporeal sensuous . . .

—<sup>6</sup>. With him who is being regenerated, the order of life is turned; from natural he becomes spiritual; for the Natural separated from the Spiritual is against order . . .

131. When a miracle alone leads the man . . . he acts from the natural man . . .

147. Man is in the natural mind alone so long as he is in the concupiscences of evil and their delights . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. The Lord then . . . enters into the natural mind by the affections of good and truth; and he enters into the Rational, and from it he disposes into order those things which, lower in the Natural, are contrary to order.

175. (Arguments of the natural man respecting the Divine Providence.) 254, et seq.

187. That it is given to man to see the Divine Providence on the back . . . (but) not in his natural state. Ex.

189<sup>2</sup>. But the merely natural man sees nothing of these things.

220<sup>2</sup>. That it is of the Divine Providence that man by death puts off natural and temporary things . . . Ex.

—<sup>3</sup>. Man . . . retains only interior natural things, which agree and concord with spiritual and celestial ones, and serve them as containants . . .

—<sup>4</sup>. That the Lord by His Divine Providence conjoins Himself with natural things by spiritual ones . . . according to uses. Ex.

—<sup>5</sup>. Natural and temporary things are not only those which are proper to nature, but also those which are proper to men in the natural world. Ex. —<sup>8</sup>.

321<sup>2</sup>. That he who believes that all things . . . are from himself, is not unlike a beast, is evident; for he thinks solely from the natural mind, which is common to man with beasts . . .

322<sup>3</sup>. Therefore the natural man, however civilly and morally he acts, is called dead.

324<sup>10</sup>. The reason the like does not take place with many in the world, is that they love the first degree of their life, which is called natural, and do not want to recede from it . . . and the natural degree of life, regarded in itself, loves nothing except self and the world . . .

R. 158. Natural life, regarded in itself . . . is nothing else than sleep.

198<sup>3</sup>. They believe these things when they are in their sensuous Natural, but not when in their rational Natural . . .

334. By the ratiocinations of the natural man separated from the spiritual. Sig. and Ex.

444<sup>2</sup>. There are three things which make the man of the Church: the Spiritual, the Rational or Intellectual, and the Natural . . .

869. The external and natural men of the Church called together to Judgment. Sig. and Ex.

M. 38. The love of the sex is with the natural man . . . The natural man loves . . . only external conjunctions, and the pleasures of the body from them . . .

48. The love of the sex . . . is a natural love; for it is common with beasts . . . and these are natural . . .

52. For with those who are in the Spiritual World the third thing is wanting, which is the Natural; and this is the containant of spiritual things . . .

53<sup>2</sup>. But those who come into Hell are all natural; and merely natural marriages are not marriages, but conjunctions which partake of unchaste lust.

54. All those consorts who are merely natural are separated after death. Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. Consorts of whom one is spiritual and the other natural are separated after death . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. Celibates . . . if natural, (there) become scortators.

59. It is known that every man when born is merely corporeal, and that from corporeal he becomes more and more interior Natural, and thus rational . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. (In marriage also) he begins from the corporeal, and proceeds into the Natural . . . Those who then love corporeal natural things, and rational things only from them, cannot be conjoined with a consort as into a one, except as to those externals . . .

—<sup>9</sup>. (But with the spiritual) perpetual happinesses advance as the Spiritual Rational of the mind, and, from this, the Sensuous Natural of the body, of the one, conjoin and unite themselves with those of the other.

67. See LOVE, here.

78<sup>2</sup>. Because the inhabitants (that is, those of the Iron Age) are natural.

94<sup>2</sup>. If therefore he halts at the threshold in the progression to wisdom, the form of his mind remains natural; and this receives the influx of the universal sphere, which is that of the marriage of good and truth, no otherwise than it is received by the lower subjects of the animal kingdom . . . and as these are merely natural, this man becomes like them. Thus is understood this: that the love of the sex is of the external or natural man, and that thence it is common to every animal.

130<sup>2</sup>. The things which are of knowledge, experience, and art, and are called natural things, make the seat of (spiritual and civil things).

—<sup>3</sup>. Now, as the . . . ultimate things, which are called natural things, make the feet, it is evident that when (spiritual, civil, and natural things) follow in their order, the man is a perfect man . . . Thus spiritual things inflow into civil things; and, through civil things, into natural things . . .

146<sup>2</sup>. For the Natural of man from birth is contaminated and crammed with evils.

149. Without religion man . . . remains natural; and if a natural man renounces scortations, still his spirit does not renounce them.

230<sup>2</sup>. Therefore a merely natural man, although as to concupiscences, appetites, and their delights, he is like a beast, still lives after death . . .

235<sup>9</sup>. Spirits merely natural are chilled with intense cold when they apply themselves to the side of any Angel who is in a state of love.

281. With natural men these conjugal simulations savour of prudence. Ex.

— By a natural (consort) is meant one who loves only natural things, and thus is wise from himself . . . (and) conjugal love with the natural consort is cold . . . Hence it is that intestine love is not possible between consorts, one spiritual and one natural; but a love emulative of intestine love is possible on the part of the spiritual consort . . . But truly between two natural consorts intestine love is not possible, because both are cold. If they are warm, it is from what is unchaste. Yet these . . . can dwell together in the house, and also assume looks as of love and friendship. Ex. 282<sup>2</sup>, Ex.

305. There are in human minds three regions, of which . . . the lowest is called natural. Into this lowest, man is born . . . In the lowest region, which has been called natural, reside all the concupiscences of evil, and lasciviousnesses . . .

[M.] 320. The reason is, that the Natural derives its origin from the Spiritual, and, in its coming forth—existentia—is nothing else than a congeries of spiritual things congregated; and therefore if the Natural is separated from its Spiritual, which produced and as it were begot it, it is no longer held together interiorly, but only exteriorly, by the Spiritual, which encompasses and binds it in general, and does not tie it together and keep it tied together in singular. Hence it is, that the Natural separated from the Spiritual with two consorts, does not effect any conjunction of minds, and thus of wills, but only a conjunction of some of the external affections, which cohere with the senses of the body.

—<sup>3</sup>. For after death merely natural conjunctions are dissolved of themselves . . .

326<sup>3</sup>. (The difference between the Spiritual and the Natural shown by experiments.) —<sup>4</sup>. —<sup>5</sup>. T.280.

327<sup>2</sup>. The Angels had not previously known the differences between the Spiritual and the Natural . . .

345<sup>2</sup>. The reason why polygamous love is a love of the external or natural man, is that it is inscribed on that man; and whatever the natural man acts from himself is evil . . .

—<sup>6</sup>. All the evil into which man is born from his parents is implanted in his natural man, and not any in his spiritual man . . .

347. Yet a natural man not elevated (out of the Natural) perceives no otherwise than that he is elevated. The reason is, that, equally with the spiritual man, he can elevate his understanding into the light of Heaven, and think and speak spiritually. But if the will does not at the same time follow the understanding into that height, he is still not elevated; for he does not stand in that elevation, but after [some] moments lets himself down to his will, and there makes firm his station. . . (Thus) a natural man, so long as he remains natural, cannot become spiritual.

380<sup>1</sup>. The things which proceed from the sun of the world are containants of life, and are called natural things . . .

405<sup>2</sup>. The love of infants with natural fathers and mothers. Ex.

426. That scortatory love is opposite to conjugal love, as the natural man regarded in himself is opposite to the spiritual man. Ex.

— . The natural man is that into which everyone, when he grows up, is first introduced, which is effected through knowledges and Knowledges, and the rational things of the understanding . . .

— . Therefore in proportion as anyone . . . is not in charity, he is natural, even if he be clear in his mode of thinking, and wise in judgment.

—<sup>2</sup>. (How the natural man destroys the camp of conjugal love in himself. Ex.)

432<sup>2</sup>. Adulterers are not spiritual, but most highly natural; and the natural man separated from the spiritual is a man solely as to the understanding, and not as to the will: this he immerses in the body and the concupiscences of the flesh, and at those times the understanding also keeps it company. That this is nothing but half a man, he himself . . . can see.

442. The reason the delights of scortatory love are pleasures of insanity, is that no others than natural men are in that love; and the natural man is insane in spiritual things, for he is against them; and therefore he embraces only natural, sensuous, and corporeal delights. It is said natural, sensuous, and corporeal . . . because the Natural is distinguished into three degrees: in the highest degree are those natural ones who, from rational sight, see insanities, and still are carried away by their delights, like boats by the current of a river; in a lower degree are the natural ones who see and judge solely from the senses of the body, and spurn and reject as of no account rational things which are contrary to appearances and fallacies; in the lowest degree are the natural ones who, without judgment, are carried away by the alluring heats of their body. These are they who are called corporeal natural ones; those former sensuous natural; and the first natural.

448. (Fornication is lust) because it comes forth—prodit—from the natural man, and in everything which comes forth from the natural man there are concupiscence and lust; for the natural man is nothing else than an abode and receptacle of concupiscences and lusts; for all the guilts inherited from the parents reside there.

495. That adulteries from the purpose of the will, and adulteries from the confirmation of the understanding, render men natural, sensuous, and corporeal. Ex.

496. There are three degrees of the natural man. In the first are those who solely love the world, placing the heart on wealth: these are properly meant by the natural. In the second degree are those who solely love the delights of the senses, placing the heart in luxuries and pleasures of every kind: these are properly meant by the sensuous. In the third degree are those who solely love themselves, placing the heart in the quest of honour: these are properly meant by the corporeal: the reason is that they immerse all things of the will and thence of the understanding in the body, and look at themselves backwards from others, and love merely their Own things. But the sensuous immerse all things of the will and thence of the understanding in the allurements and fallacies of the senses, solely indulging in these. But the natural pour forth into the world all things of the will and understanding, in avariciously and fraudulently acquiring wealth, and in regarding no other use in it and from it than that of possession. The above-mentioned adulteries turn men into these degenerate degrees, one into this, another into that . . .

I. 11. That the Spiritual clothes itself with the Natural, as man does with a garment. Gen.art.

— . The Natural, being a dead force, is passive. (Continued under SPIRITUAL.)

12. Thus (man lives) spiritually natural. Ex. —<sup>4</sup>.

—<sup>3</sup>. The union of spiritual things with natural things and the derivative appearance of life in material things may be compared to noble wine in a clean sponge . . .

T. 22<sup>2</sup>. It is from this revelation that the natural man can elevate himself above nature, thus above himself. . .

34<sup>2</sup>. If man opens the door solely to the ultimate or natural degree, the man, if he acknowledges God, and worships Him with actual piety, becomes an image of God in the lowest degree, and after death becomes an Angel of the Ultimate Heaven.

—<sup>3</sup>. But . . . if man closes up the highest natural degree, which corresponds to the highest celestial one, he becomes as to love like a beast of the earth ; if he closes up the middle natural degree, which corresponds to the middle spiritual one, he becomes as to love like a fox, and as to the sight of the understanding like a bird of evening ; and if he closes up also the lowest natural degree as to its spiritual part, he becomes as to love like a wild beast, and as to the understanding of truth like a fish. E. 1145<sup>40</sup>.

78<sup>4</sup>. (The Angel said,) The atmospheres and earths of your world are natural ; and natural things have been created in order to clothe spiritual things, as the skin clothes the bodies of men and animals . . .

103. Every man, after death, lays down the Natural, which he took from the mother, and retains the Spiritual from the father, together with a certain limbus from the purest things of nature, around it . . .

276. They do not know that the natural man, regarded in himself, is against the spiritual man, and that he therefore wants to extirpate, or involve in fallacies, the spiritual things which enter.

280<sup>2</sup>. The Natural can never by subtilization approach the Spiritual so as to become it ; for there is a difference such as is between what is prior and posterior . . .

296<sup>3</sup>. A merely natural man does not think about Divine truths except from worldly things, thus from the fallacies of the senses ; for he cannot elevate his mind above them . . .

339. For everything spiritual is received in what is natural, in order to become anything with man . . .

360. Faith in its beginning with man is natural . . . in like manner charity. Ex.

—<sup>3</sup>. (Thus) as spiritual light is within natural light . . . and as spiritual heat is within natural heat, so is spiritual faith within natural faith, and spiritual charity within natural charity ; and this is effected in the degree in which man advances from the natural world into the Spiritual World . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. Thus does the natural of man become as it were diaphanous ; and, according to the quality of its conjunction with charity, beautifully coloured. . . The contrary happens if the Spiritual is not within the Natural, but the Natural within the Spiritual . . . 361.

361. So far as this is the case, the man is wise in spiritual things, and also derivatively so far in natural things ; for inwardly in himself while he is thinking, or reading and hearing anything, he sees whether it is Truth or not . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. But when he is inverted, to wit, when the Natural is within the Spiritual . . . he may be compared to . . .

402. Concerning the merely natural and sensuous man. Gen.art.

428. They who are compassionate from birth and do not make their natural mercies spiritual . . .

503<sup>5</sup>. (They said,) In our whole system of theology . . . we have adopted none but purely natural ideas . . .

564. A merely natural man can see evils and goods with others . . .

566. Man as to the natural man is like a beast . . . for the Natural of man, regarded in itself, is merely animal . . .

574. For man is born into evils of every kind . . . and these are seated in his natural man, which from itself is diametrically against the spiritual man . . . Hence it necessarily follows, that the natural man with his concupiscences must be mastered, subjugated, and conquered . . . The natural man, regarded in himself, as to his nature does not differ one whit from the nature of beasts . . . but he is such as to the will ; but he differs from beasts as to the understanding . . .

592. Before regeneration, both (the internal man and the external man of the New Church) make the natural man, which is thus divided into Internal and External. (See INTERNAL MAN, here.)

593. As concerns the divisions of the natural man into two forms, it is an actual division both of the will and of the thought there . . . and therefore another will has been formed by the man beneath the former, in like manner another thought ; but still both of these constitute the natural man. Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. The quality of the internal natural man from birth. Des.

603. Man by regeneration is elevated from the lowest region of the mind, which is called the natural one . . . Hence it is that an unregenerate man is called natural. . . . From which it is evident that the mind of a regenerated man has been elevated into the spiritual region, and there from above it sees those things which are taking place in the lower or natural mind. —<sup>2</sup>, Examp.

673<sup>2</sup>. For the natural man separated from the spiritual man is merely animal ; nay . . . is more a wild beast than the wild beast of the forest . . .

754<sup>2</sup>. For truth itself which in itself is truth cannot be Known and acknowledged by a merely natural man ; nor can it be given him by God, because it falls into what is inverted, and becomes falsity.

Ad. 61. See MIND-animus, here. 88. 916. 933<sup>3</sup>. 949. 950<sup>3</sup>.

923. See MIND-mens, here.

D. 1226. Concerning those who in the life of the body have studied only natural things. Gen.art.

1796. How the natural things of the Angels are represented before Spirits. Ex.

1827. There is a certain natural mind, which is almost like the animus of brutes. (Continued under MIND-mens.)

2157. Only those things which are of the natural mind (are vitiated with evil).

[D. 2157]<sup>r</sup>. The Angels cannot possibly be in the interior, more interior, or inmost Heaven, without being also at the same time in the natural mind which belongs to the Angels of the interior Heaven. The natural mind cannot be put off; for thus would be absent that which should complete order, and they would no longer be Angels; and therefore the vitiation received by heredity and acquired by actuality, which is of the natural mind, must harmoniously correspond with those things which are more interior.

2158. When correspondence has been given, the Natural is as it were nothing, and is as it were absent, like that which is transparent. . . In a word, correspondence is what causes that Angels seem to themselves not to be natural Spirits; when yet they are natural; but, by correspondence, the Natural in certain states as it were disappears.

2349. See RAINBOW. here.

2688. That he who lives in faith in the Lord . . . cannot possibly suffer violence from the evil, because [he lives] in the order of natural, spiritual, and celestial things. Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. Natural things are as it were vessels, instruments, and organics . . .

2751. Ultimates are in the natural mind of man, which is formed by the senses of the body.

2841. That natural and corporeal things, separated from spiritual and celestial ones, putrefy.

3118. That natural things come forth from spiritual ones. Ex.

3224<sup>o</sup>. Thence are called forth in order those things which are not compliant . . . and are adjoined to the natural things of the Angels. Hence a fermentation . . .

3511. That they are invisible comes from a natural cause with them . . . (See A. 5573, above.)

—<sup>v</sup>. Their quality was represented by thin water between [the spectator and] something visible closely on the other side, by which was represented what is natural.

3852. Concerning natural things.—There are Spirits who care nothing for natural things . . . (I told them) that they serve to confirm spiritual things, especially with such as are in corporeal things . . . and that abstractedly from them they perceive nothing, because natural and corporeal things are the planes of their thought; and also that order is terminated in material things, which when some lose they seem to themselves to have nothing to stand on . . . Examp. 3853. 3854.

3865. At this day the influxes into the face are not natural, but simulated as if natural . . .

3899. They loathe natural modes of conjunction.

4226. There are many such things with man which are at the same time acquired and made natural . . .

4368. Horror for such things as are contrary to nature is not natural to man, as it is to brutes; consequently it is not in his voluntary part, or in the Natural. Examp. . . In the man of the Most Ancient Church it was in the natural part.

4627<sup>3</sup>. The interiors of man which do not die thus succeed [each other]. There is the Sensuous, the

Natural, the Spiritual Natural; these are of the external man . . . —<sup>7</sup>.

4629<sup>8</sup>. The lumen of the interior Natural. —.

4755<sup>o</sup>. This naturally, without previous knowledge.

4758. Natural theology. Des. 4759. 4760.

4865. Spiritual speech is a language quite natural. Ex. 4866. 5585. 5589. —<sup>e</sup>. 5770.

5013. In their natural manner.

5110<sup>e</sup>. With these the Natural is closed up, and is kept open only where it can serve the Internal.

5549<sup>e</sup>. Hence it is that the spiritual Angels are in the internal Natural.

5623<sup>o</sup>. With those who come thither the Natural is lulled.

5625. All natural ideas perish there . . .

5629. What is snowy appears above their Natural.

E. 93. All things which reside solely (in the memory and thought) reside in the natural man.

138<sup>e</sup>. The rest are natural men, who cannot be tempted.

150. The External is what is called the natural man. When man is born, the external or natural man is opened first. Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. The man (then) remains solely natural.

163. That (such) are left to their natural man. Sig. and Ex.

176<sup>4</sup>. All evils and the derivative falsities reside in the natural man . . . 405<sup>52</sup>.

190<sup>2</sup>. Hence these remain natural.

195<sup>2</sup>. Only the internal natural man is opened . . .

355<sup>36</sup>. The natural man with the Scientific in it has not any understanding, but only thought from the memory, which is a species of imagination from the objects of sight and hearing. Sig.

386<sup>8</sup>. That if they became merely natural they would be deprived of all truth, good, and spiritual life. Sig.

401<sup>13</sup>. The natural man separated from the spiritual. Tr.

—<sup>21</sup>. The external of the Church, which in one word is called the natural man.

403. See FIC, here.

409. 'A servant'=the natural man, because the natural man obeys and serves . . .

— . With the regenerate, the natural man is equally as free as the spiritual. Ex.

— . But with those with whom the spiritual man is closed, and only the natural man open, the whole man is a servant in the common sense . . .

—<sup>8</sup>. When the external or natural man serves the internal or spiritual, then it is 'as its master, and as its lord.'

419<sup>14</sup>. Reformation as to the natural man. Tr.

433<sup>5</sup>. Those who are below these Kingdoms, because they are not celestial or spiritual, but natural, and yet are in the good of life according to their religiosity. Sig.

434<sup>11</sup>. Truth from good in the natural man makes the External Church. Rep.

439<sup>6</sup>. By the subjugation of the Hells is meant the subjugation of the natural man ; for evils from Hell are there. Ex.

440<sup>7</sup>. As all the good which is in the natural man inflows from the Lord through the spiritual ; and as without this influx there is not any good in the Natural ; and as by Manasseh was represented . . . good in the natural man from a spiritual origin, an inheritance was given to that tribe on (both sides) of the Jordan. Ex.

449<sup>8</sup>. That all power in the Spiritual World is in the truth which is from good in the natural man. Sig. and Ex. (See also 440<sup>5</sup>.)

—<sup>3</sup>. With the Lord alone (when born) there was a Natural with an appetite for good and a longing for truth. Ex.

483<sup>9</sup>. In the sensuous and natural man resides the proprium of man . . .

—<sup>6</sup>. For the Divine inflows through the spiritual man into the natural man ; but not into the natural man when the spiritual man has been closed above it . . .

511. See SEA, here.

—<sup>2</sup>. The state of the natural man is entirely according to the affection which is of the man's love. When the spiritual affection dominates . . . and inflows through the spiritual man into the natural, then the natural man is a spiritual natural man . . . But when merely natural affection dominates, there is not any truth in the natural man, but all which is there is scientific not true. Ex.

513<sup>18</sup>. At that time . . . all were natural men . . . The reformation of these was represented by that 'fishing.'

—<sup>17</sup>. For there are good natural [men], and evil natural [men]. The separation of these (at the Judgment) appears like a net let out into the sea . . .

514<sup>23</sup>. For the tempestuous movements of the natural man are appeased by the Lord when the spiritual mind is opened, and the Lord inflows through it into the natural mind. Sig.

527<sup>4</sup>. The lower or exterior mind is the natural mind, which is called the natural man . . .

543<sup>4</sup>. All hereditary evils are seated in the natural and sensuous man . . . Hence it is that the natural man . . . is opposite to the spiritual man . . .

—<sup>7</sup>. By the irruption or influx of the sensuous man into the natural, is meant the blocking up of the natural man even so that he is like the sensuous, whence the extension of evil and falsity is greater, and both . . . become corporeal and earthly. Otherwise man learns from infancy to separate the sensuous man from the natural . . . and this until they are completely separated, which is done when the man is being reformed and regenerated . . .

569<sup>10</sup>. Both the Scientific and the Rational are in the natural man, one end of which is scientific or cognitive, and the other is intuitive and cogitative. Into these ends inflows the spiritual man when it inflows into the natural man. Sig.

650<sup>66</sup>. The natural man is interior and exterior ; and the interior Natural is where the filthy things of man reside ; and the exterior does not publish them, but counterfeits things good, just, and sincere. Sig.

654<sup>2</sup>. By 'Egypt' is signified the natural man in both senses ; namely, both conjoined with the spiritual man, and separated from it. Fully ill.

—<sup>1</sup>. Thought with a merely natural man after death is still spiritual, but gross . . .

—<sup>12</sup>. That the Church is terminated in the natural man. Sig.

—<sup>31</sup>. As every man of the Church has a Spiritual, a Rational, and a Natural, Solomon built three houses. Enum.

—<sup>48</sup>. Man becomes merely natural, when in his life he does not look to the Lord, but to self and the world . . .

—<sup>57</sup>. The man of the Church from spiritual becomes natural when he separates faith from charity . . . and also when he arrogates intelligence to himself . . .

666<sup>4</sup>. For the ultimate of man's life is in his Natural . . .

708. In the feet of the Grand Man are those who are obscurely in the faith of charity ; and these are called natural.

—<sup>2</sup>. As those who are in the Heavens under the Lord as a Moon are all natural and sensuous . . .

—<sup>4</sup>. For the Natural is distinguished into three degrees, in like manner as the Spiritual : the exterior Natural communicates with the world ; the interior with Heaven ; and the middle conjoins.

711. Non-reception by those in the Church who are natural and sensuous, and their resistance. Sig. and Ex. 714.

714<sup>2</sup>. Every man is born sensuous from his parents, and by life in the world becomes natural more and more interiorly, that is, rational, according to moral and civil life . . .

—<sup>1</sup>. The Celestial and Divine cannot inflow immediately into the natural mind . . . because in this mind reside the hereditary evils of the man . . . Hence the natural man, regarded in himself, loves only self and the world . . .

724<sup>4</sup>. Goods and truths procreated are in the natural man . . . Thus the spiritual man is continually enriched by the elevation of truths and goods out of the natural man . . .

726<sup>9</sup>. That power resides in the truths of the natural man, in proportion as he receives influx from the Lord through the spiritual man. Ex. —<sup>10</sup>.

—<sup>1</sup>. To the natural mind of man there are two ways, one from Heaven, the other from the world . . . (Thus) the Lord does not inflow with Divine truth into the natural man except through the spiritual . . .

730<sup>31</sup>. Every man is born natural, and also lives natural, until he becomes rational.

—<sup>36</sup>. That the natural man is to be mastered, and is as it were to die with its concupiscences, and is to be subjected to the spiritual man, was represented by (the death in the wilderness of all who came out of Egypt).

—<sup>1</sup>. That the natural man is not injured by these afflictions. Sig.

—<sup>42</sup>. Besides, the natural man with everyone, so long as it is separated from the spiritual man . . . is Hell ; because all the hereditary evil into which man is born is seated in his natural man, and is not removed thence except by the influx of Divine truth through Heaven ; and this influx does not exist in the natural man except through the spiritual man ; for the natural man is in the world, and the spiritual in Heaven ; and therefore the spiritual man must first be opened before the Hell which is in the natural man can be removed . . .

[E.] 739<sup>2</sup>. In the same proportion the man becomes interiorly natural . . .

739<sup>3</sup>. If he advances no further, he remains natural . . .

— . For the spiritual man is in Heaven, and the natural in the world . . .

752. Lamentation over those who become merely natural and sensuous. Sig. and Ex.

— . Upon the earths, far beneath (the spiritual) dwell the natural ; and, in the seas, the sensuous.

—<sup>2</sup>. For man is born sensuous and natural ; thus as it were in Hell . . .

790<sup>3</sup>. Natural faith defined.

—<sup>5</sup>. But all these things . . . although from the Word, before the spiritual mind has been opened, are natural ; for they are only knowledge.

—<sup>9</sup>. When the spiritual mind has been opened and formed, then the Lord forms the natural mind ; for the natural mind is formed by the Lord through the spiritual mind. Ex.

798<sup>4</sup>. Before faith becomes charity in form, it is natural ; and what is natural can produce only what is natural . . . With these the natural mind only has been opened ; but more deeply and interiorly according to the quality of the faith and the derivative quality of the life . . . —<sup>5</sup>, Ex.

—<sup>6</sup>. To do good from obedience, being from the love of reward, is natural.

819<sup>4</sup>. It is said reasonings from the natural man, because the natural man is in the delights of the love of self and the world . . .

846<sup>6</sup>. For the Natural cannot enter into the Spiritual . . .

859<sup>2</sup>. The life of truth separated from good is life merely natural . . .

911<sup>3</sup>. That when men lead a natural life, or a life of the world, evils from Hell secretly . . . insinuate . . . falsities into them. Sig.

929<sup>6</sup>. When the Church is in faith separated from charity, it is natural ; and a Church merely natural is no Church ; for the merely natural man looks solely to self and the world . . .

931. All the Natural is the general receptacle of spiritual things . . . For the Natural has been formed from the Spiritual as an effect from its effecting cause ; and as, thus, a thousand things, which are spiritual, effect and form one natural thing, therefore this one thing . . . is the General.

940<sup>2</sup>. There are two Internals with man . . . the Internal which is below . . . (and) from which he thinks while he lives in the world, is natural . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. The spiritual Internal is opened . . . in proportion as the natural Internal is purified from the Hell which is there . . .

941<sup>2</sup>. Transfers (the light from Heaven) into the Natural purified from evils . . .

—<sup>5</sup>. He who believes that man has a Rational and an understanding before his Natural has been purified from evils, is mistaken . . .

948<sup>4</sup>. As a civil man, as a moral man, and as a natural man . . . To live according to them as a natural man, is for the sake of what is human, and in order to shun the ill-repute that he is not of sound mind . . .

969<sup>2</sup>. Man is an image of the world as to his natural mind . . . The natural mind is full of evils of every kind. Enum.

1004<sup>5</sup>. For with those who are merely natural there is not marriage from a spiritual origin . . . but from a natural origin . . .

1017<sup>6</sup>. So long as hatred has not been removed, the man is merely natural ; and a merely natural man remains hereditarily in all evil . . .

1056<sup>2</sup>. Man has a spiritual mind, a rational mind, a natural mind, and a sensuous mind. . . By his natural mind he is in the world, and is a world, in the least form . . . The sensuous mind is first opened ; afterwards the natural mind . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. Finally, the natural mind is closed, even to the sensuous mind . . .

1080<sup>3</sup>. Thus the Spiritual and the Natural act as a one by correspondences . . .

1145. All good conjoined with truth in the natural man. Sig. and Ex.

1147. The Natural of man is a trine : rational, natural, and sensuous . . . The Natural is middle (and) is either rational or sensuous . . .

1197<sup>2</sup>. The Spiritual and the Natural are united in each and all things of the world, as is the soul in each and all things of the body . . . Ex.

1202<sup>4</sup>. Knowledge—scientia—is of wisdom, and affection is of love, in the degree which is called natural.

1208<sup>2</sup>. That there are two general forms, spiritual and natural . . . natural such as is that of plants. Ex.

1220<sup>3</sup>. After death he calls all the things which he sees in the Spiritual World natural, because they are similar ; nevertheless . . . they are not natural, but are appearances of natural things . . .

J. (Post.) 267<sup>2</sup>. The heat and light in the world are not material, but natural, and inflow into matters . . .

327. When seen in a natural state they do not appear so beautiful.

De Verbo 3. Concerning the difference in general between the Natural, the Spiritual, and the Celestial. Gen.art.

—<sup>2</sup>. When I returned into the natural state . . .

—<sup>4</sup>. I was then in an interior natural state . . .

—<sup>7</sup>. Hence a natural [man] comprehends nothing from spiritual writing ; nor a spiritual [man] from natural . . .

—<sup>10</sup>. That there is such a difference between the

Natural, the Spiritual, and the Celestial, no Angel knows; because he cannot pass from a spiritual state into a natural one . . .

6<sup>4</sup>. The Natural is gross and impure, (and therefore cannot enter the Spiritual).

19<sup>3</sup>. Regarded in itself, the Natural is nothing but an external form, which is called the effect of spiritual things . . . and therefore all the Natural is from the Spiritual.

D. Wis. ii<sup>4</sup>. Natural things are all things which are of man's body. As these have come forth from (spiritual things) they perpetually come forth [from them] . . . They are correspondences . . .

vii. 5. That then man from natural becomes spiritual. Ex.

—. The natural man differs from the spiritual . . . so greatly that they cannot exist together. Ex.

viii<sup>5</sup>. The first of an animal and a vegetable is natural . . .

xii. These are interior natural; the former . . . are exterior natural.

1. The essence of the light and heat from our sun is natural . . . The Natural can derive its essence from no other source than pure fire and pure light.

4. There is not any ratio between the Natural and the Spiritual; but there is conjunction by correspondences.

5 M. 1. On the merely natural man; the quality of his mind. Gen.art. I heard an utterly natural man saying that he could rationally see many things equally as well as the Angels. . . The successive states of the minds of the merely natural represented in the changes of a satan's face. Des. and Ex.

Can. God iv. 10. As the Natural originates from the Spiritual . . . they are everywhere together; and thus the Spiritual exercises its activities and operates its functions through the Natural.

Coro. 30. The natural man separated from the spiritual. Des.

Inv. 20. So that spiritual and natural things inflow conjoinedly . . .

56<sup>e</sup>. The Lord could not have done this unless the natural man himself with Him also had been made Divine.

Natural Angel. Angelus Naturalis.

H. 31. The Divine which inflows . . . into the First Heaven is called natural; but as the Natural of that Heaven is not like that of the world, but has what is spiritual and celestial in it, therefore that Heaven is called spiritual and celestial natural, and thence the Angels who are there, Spiritual and Celestial Natural Angels. Those are called Spiritual Natural Angels who receive influx from the middle or second Heaven . . . and those are called Celestial Natural Angels who receive influx from the Third or inmost Heaven . . . The Spiritual Natural Angels and the Celestial Natural Angels are distinct from each other, yet constitute one Heaven, because they are in one degree.

270. See ANGEL, here.

E. 834. The Angels [of the Ultimate Heaven], being almost like men in the world as to understanding, and being natural, have their understanding but little elevated above their understanding in the world; wherefore they do not see truths in the light, like the Angels of the Second Heaven; but receive, acknowledge, and believe them from the doctrine in which they are instructed before they are intronized into Heaven. Hence it is that only the more intelligent of them know what charity towards the neighbour is . . .

Natural good. Bonum naturale.

See DIVINE NATURAL GOOD, and under BRASS, BULLOCK, EDOM, ESAU, FIG, HERD, and OX.

A. 216. 'A fig-tree'=natural good.

—. The posterity of the Most Ancient Church had natural good in place of innocence; by which their evil was hidden; and, as they were in natural good, they were affected with shame. Sig. 224.

218<sup>2</sup>. 'The midst of the tree of the garden,' in which they hid themselves,=natural good.

425. 'Brass'=natural good. Ex. 1748.

628<sup>e</sup>. A certain rational truth, and natural good, remained with those called 'Noah,' and therefore they could be regenerated. 635.

1577<sup>5</sup>. The Celestial of the external man is called natural good . . .

2162<sup>7</sup>. 'The earth' (on which the Angel set his left foot)=natural goods.

2179. 'Abraham ran to the herd'=natural good.

2181. The conjunction of natural good with rational good. Sig. and Ex.

2184<sup>7</sup>. The Celestial Natural is the same as natural good, or good in the Natural. The Natural of man . . . has its own good, and its own truth; for everywhere there is the marriage of good and truth. The good of the Natural is the delight which is perceived from charity, or from the friendship which is of charity; from which delight comes forth pleasure, which is properly of the body.

2276<sup>5</sup>. That relatively to spiritual good, natural good is little. Rep.

2468<sup>2</sup>. Such worship, and such religiosity, falls into those who are in natural good, but who despise others in comparison with themselves. Des.

2566. That it was enriched with rational goods and natural goods. Sig.

2712<sup>2</sup>. 'No beast'=no natural good.

2781<sup>2</sup>. See NATURAL, here.

—. Natural good is the delight flowing forth from charity and faith.

2854<sup>e</sup>. (At the Lord's Advent there was not even any natural good left.) 2905<sup>e</sup>. 3398<sup>4</sup>. Ath. 49.

2967<sup>3</sup>. 'Vessels of brass'=the natural goods which receive life from the Lord.

3021<sup>8</sup>. Natural good is of love or charity towards the neighbour in a degree below spiritual good.

3033<sup>3</sup>. If there is anything of natural good with them, they are devastated . . .

[A.] 3048<sup>5</sup>. 'The wealth of the gentiles' = the immense abundance of natural good.

3128. To natural good of every sort to which illustration could reach. Sig. and Ex.

3166. Spiritual things thence for natural good. Sig. and Ex.

3167<sup>e</sup>. Natural good is then all the delight and pleasure from the end of serving the Spiritual; thus the neighbour . . .

3192. That Divine natural good initiated. Sig. and Ex.

3242<sup>3</sup>. 'Moab,' in a good sense, = those who are in natural good and suffer themselves to be easily seduced.

3293. Good in the Natural is all that which is of natural affection, and is called delight. (See NATURAL, here.)

3299. That both the good and the truth of the Natural are conceived together. Ex.

— . The Natural as to good is conceived from the good of the Rational as a father . . .

3301<sup>5</sup>. 'The breasts made solid' = natural good.

3304. The lowest of natural good to which truth adhered with some power. Sig. and Ex.

3314. The good of the Rational inflows into the good of the Natural both mediately and immediately. Ex.

— . Hence it is that there is a closer conjunction of the good of the Rational with the good of the Natural . . .

3322<sup>2</sup>. 'Red' = the good of the Natural.

3408. (This) natural good is not that which is born with man, but is that which is acquired by means of Knowledge of truth joined to the affection of good. For the natural good which is born with man, is in itself nothing but an animal something; for it exists with animals also; whereas the natural good which is acquired, or which is gifted to man by the Lord, has in it what is spiritual, so that there is spiritual good in the natural good. This good is human natural good itself; whereas the other . . . although it appears as good, still may not be good, but may indeed be evil; for it can receive falsities also, and believe that to be good which is evil. Such natural good exists with nations of the worst life and faith.

3469<sup>3</sup>. Everyone knows what natural good is, namely, that it is the good into which man is born; but very few, if any, know what the natural good of truth is. There is natural good, or that which is connate to man, of four kinds; namely, natural good from the love of good, natural good from the love of truth, also natural good from the love of evil, and natural good from the love of falsity. Ex.

—<sup>4</sup>. Those who are in the natural good of the love of evil are flexible, and have a proclivity to evils of every kind . . . And those who are in the natural good of falsity have a proclivity to falsities of every kind . . . Into these so-called goods . . . are born very many at this day who in the Christian world are in natural good, for the reason that their parents had contracted the delight of evil and the delight of falsity by actual life . . .

3470<sup>2</sup>. The natural good of truth is not spiritual good — that is, the good of faith, and the good of charity — until it has been reformed. Natural good is from the parents . . . but spiritual good is from the Lord . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. For natural good is such that from itself it is not willing to obey and serve the Rational; but wants to command. But in order that it may be reduced to compliance, it is harassed by states of vastation and temptation, until its concupiscences become inactive, and then it is tempered by the influx of the good of faith and of charity through the internal man from the Lord, until the good received hereditarily is by degrees extirpated, and new [good] is implanted in its place; and then in this are insinuated the truths of faith, which are circumstanced like new fibres in the heart of a man, through which new juice is introduced, until a new heart has by alternations succeeded . . .

3494<sup>2</sup>. Both the good and the truth which are in the Natural or external man are each of them a son of the rational or internal man. (Continued under NATURAL.)

3504. For the good of infancy and thence of life, which is the same as natural good, and which is represented by Esau, is not spiritual good; for (it) is devoid of knowledge, intelligence, and wisdom. The good of infancy becomes spiritual good by the implantation of truth; thus by regeneration. Refs.

3518. 'Go to the flock' = domestic natural good not conjoined with the Divine Rational.

— . Domestic natural good is that good which man derives from his parents, or in which he is born, very distinct from the good of the Natural which inflows from the Lord. . . Therefore, for the sake of distinction, one good is called the good of the Natural, but the other natural good. Besides, every man receives domestic good from his father, and from his mother, which goods are, moreover, distinct in themselves: that which he receives from the father is interior; that from the mother is exterior. With the Lord, these goods were most distinct. . . That good in the Natural which the Lord had from the Father, was His Own, because it was His life itself. . . Whereas the natural good which the Lord derived from the mother, being contaminated with hereditary evil, was in itself evil, and this it is which is meant by domestic good. This good, although of such a character, served for the reformation of the Natural; but after it had served for this, it was rejected. The like is the case with every man who is being regenerated. Ex.

—<sup>e</sup>. Hence it is evident how Natural or domestic good, although it is mere external delight, and in fact worldly delight, may serve as a means for producing the good of the Natural which conjoins itself with the good of the Rational, and thus become regenerate or spiritual good; that is, the good which is from the Lord. These are the things represented by Esau and Jacob in Gen. xxvii.

3563<sup>2</sup>. The good of the Natural comes forth with man from no other source than interior good, that is, from the good of the Rational. (The influx ex. See ESAU, here.)

—<sup>3</sup>. (But before they are regenerate) the good of the Rational does not inflow immediately into the good of the Natural, but mediately through the truth of the Rational, and it thus presents something like good in the Natural; but it is not genuine good, and consequently not genuine truth; but it is such that it has good inmostly . . . —<sup>4</sup>, Ex.

3573. This conjunction (of the Natural with the Rational) is effected by the immediate and mediate influx of the Rational into the good and truth of the Natural; namely, from the good of the Rational immediately into the good of the Natural, and through this into the truth of the Natural; and mediately through the truth of the Rational into the truth of the Natural, and thence into the good of the Natural. Tr. —<sup>3</sup>. 3616.

3580. 'A multitude of corn'=the derivative natural good.

3587. Concerning the good of the Natural, how this comes forth—prodit—from the inmost. Tr.

3660<sup>2</sup>. There are innumerable goods and truths of the Natural, or proper to the natural man . . . Ex. (Thus) there are goods and truths of the Natural in which the goods and truths of the Rational can be; and there are goods and truths of the Natural in which they cannot be . . . This is the subject treated of in Gen.xxviii., and the following chapters.

3665. That the good of the Natural (Jacob) was to be conjoined with the truths which are from collateral external good. Sig.

—<sup>4</sup>. Some (Knowledges) inflow immediately through the good of the Rational, and thence into the good of the Natural . . .

3670. The conjunction of the Divine Itself with the good and truth of the Natural. Sig.

3679. The thought of the good of the Natural. Sig. and Ex. —<sup>6</sup>.

3726<sup>2</sup>. Before he knows these things, he can indeed love the neighbour, but as the natural man . . . that is, from natural good, and not from spiritual good.

3768<sup>2</sup>. The natural man can indeed know and also perceive what good and truth are, but only natural good and truth . . .

3798. That the Lord from natural good has uncovered the Word as to its interiors. Sig.

3825. A medium of conjunction by interior truth with the good of the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. With every man who is being regenerated, the good of his Natural, such as is here represented by Jacob, is conjoined first with good such as is here represented by Laban by the affection of interior truth, which is here represented by Rachel; and afterwards with the good of the Rational and its truth, which are 'Isaac and Rebekah.' By that first conjunction the man is in a state to receive internal or spiritual truths, which are the means of the conjunction of the Natural with the Rational. 3848, Ex.

3909. Indignation on the part of natural good. Sig. and Ex.

3923<sup>3</sup>. 'From Bashan'=from the good of the Natural.

3947. That thus would be withdrawn the Conjugal of natural good with external truth. Sig. and Ex.

3963<sup>e</sup>. Those who are in the affection of good from which is not truth are not of the Church . . . for they are in natural good and not in spiritual good, and suffer themselves to be led into every evil and also falsity, provided there is induced on the evil an appearance of good, and on the falsity an appearance of truth. Refs.

3969<sup>2</sup>. Until the good of the natural man has been conjoined with the truths there, which conjunction is signified by the last son of Jacob by Leah . . .

3974<sup>2</sup>. The woman of a Hebrew servant=the affection of natural good.

3981. That it was from the Divine for the sake of the good of the Natural which was to be served. Sig. and Ex.

3986. To be gifted with the good of the Natural which is represented by Jacob. Sig. and Ex.

4013. The proper power of natural good. Sig. and Ex.

—. 'Poplar'=the good of the Natural. Compare —<sup>e</sup>.

4020. That natural good had such things from the middle good signified by 'Laban.' Sig.

4021. It (here) treats concerning the disposing of the good and truth of the Natural to receive and inapt innocence.

4037. Middle goods and truths, that is, natural goods and truths themselves. Sig.

4038<sup>2</sup>. The delight, pleasure, and desire (in the Natural) pertain to the will, and are called natural goods . . . (Continued under NATURAL.)

4073. See JACOB, here. 4103. 4273. 4275. 4277. 4280. 4283. 4538. 4543.

4083. The perception of natural good in obscurity. Sig.

4231. 'The fig-tree'=the good of the Natural.

—. That when a new Church is being created by the Lord, there then appears first of all the good of the Natural, that is, good in the external form with its affection and truths. Sig. By the good of the Natural is not meant the good into which man is born . . . but good which is spiritual as to its origin. Into this no one is born, but is led into it by the Lord through the Knowledges of good and truth; and therefore before a man is in this good—namely in spiritual good—he is not a man of the Church, however much he appears to be so from connate good.

—<sup>2</sup>. It is said 'at the doors,' because the good of the Natural and its truths are the first things which are insinuated into man when he is being regenerated and made a Church.

4302<sup>8</sup>. See LAME, here.

4303<sup>2</sup>. 'The hollow of the thigh'=where is the conjunction of conjugal love with natural good, consequently where is the influx of spiritual truth into natural good.

4605<sup>2</sup>. 'Gad'=the good of the Natural such as is in the First Heaven.

4696. 'Behold the sun and the moon,'=natural good and natural truth.

[A.] 4973. That (the Celestial of the Spiritual) might be initiated in natural good. Sig. and Ex.

4974. That it was perceived in natural good that the Divine was in it. Sig.

4976. It treats concerning natural good to which the Scientific was to be appropriated.

4988. Truth natural not spiritual adjoined to natural good. Sig.

—<sup>2</sup>. By the husband (Potiphar) is signified natural good, but not spiritual natural good. Ex. The good with man is from a twofold origin : from what is hereditary . . . and from the doctrine of faith and charity . . . The good and truth from the former origin is natural good not spiritual ; but the good from the latter origin is spiritual natural good. From the like origin is truth . . . The natural good from the former origin . . . has many things in affinity with the natural good from the other origin . . . but solely in the external form . . . The natural good from the former origin may be compared to the good which exists with gentle animals ; but the natural good from the other origin is proper to the man who acts from reason. Fully ex.

4989. That the conjunction was desired of spiritual natural good (Joseph) with natural truth not spiritual (Potiphar's wife). Sig. and Ex.

4992. That the natural good did not desire even appropriation. Sig. and Ex.

— . It here treats concerning a third state, in which . . . natural good and truth which are spiritual are separated from natural good and truth which are not spiritual. Examps.

4994. That natural good not spiritual is prior in time, and that spiritual natural good is prior in state. Sig.

4997. That there is disjunction and no conjunction . . . when spiritual natural good is conjoined with natural truth not spiritual. Sig. and Ex.

5023. That it might communicate with natural good (not spiritual). Sig. and Ex. 5032.

5031. The state of spiritual natural good after the ultimate of truth had been withdrawn from it. Sig.

5032<sup>2</sup>. It treats here concerning natural good not spiritual, that it is easily persuaded, inasmuch that falsity appears to it exactly as truth. . . Those who are in this good are those who from what is hereditary and thence adscititious are mild and well-disposed, thus who do what is good from nature, and not from religion. To do what is good from nature is quite different from doing it from religion. They cannot be distinguished in the world by man . . . but in the other life they are manifestly discriminated . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. (In the other life) those who are in natural good not spiritual suffer themselves to be persuaded by everybody, and easily by the evil . . . The reason is . . . that when they lived in the world they did not receive any precepts from doctrine . . . and therefore with them there is no plane into which Heaven can operate ; but whatever inflows with them from Heaven, flows through ; and, when it comes into the natural man, it is not received there, because the evil or diabolical crew at once take it away, by suffocating, reflecting, or perverting it.

—<sup>4</sup>. Therefore those who are in natural good alone, in the other life suffer hard things, and sometimes complain much that they are among the infernals, when yet, as they believe, they had done what is good equally with others. But they are told that they had done no otherwise than like gentle animals devoid of reason ; and that they had not been solicitous concerning any good and truth of the Church, and as in consequence they have not in their internal man any receptacle of good and truth, they cannot be protected by the Angels ; and also that they had done many evils under the appearance of good.

5212. 'Corn' = the good of the Natural.

5913. Natural good interior and exterior (perpetually conjoined with the Celestial Internal). Sig.

5965. Dwelling where is natural good not spiritual. Sig. and Ex.

— . Whether you say natural good, or the external of the Church . . . it is the same ; for natural good constitutes the external of the Church.

5972. New life to natural good. Sig.

6185. Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob represent three things which make a one . . . in the relative sense, with man, the inmost, which is celestial good ; the interior, which is spiritual good ; and the exterior, which is natural good. These are signified by those three in one sepulchre.

6208. There are many who enjoy natural good from what is hereditary, from which they have delight in benefiting others, but not from the Word, or the doctrine of the Church, or their own religiosity . . . thus they cannot be gifted with any conscience, for this does not come from natural good . . . When such come into the other life, they wonder that they are not received into Heaven, saying that they have led a good life. But it is said to them that a good life from what is natural or hereditary is not a good life . . . In order that they may know that the case is so, they are sent into various Societies, and they then suffer themselves to be led away into every kind of evils merely by ratiocinations and the derivative persuasions that evils are goods, and goods evils, and so they are persuaded everywhere, and are carried away like chaff in the wind. For they are devoid of principles, and of the plane into which the Angels operate, and withdraw from evils.

6413<sup>5</sup>. 'A hind' = the affection of natural good. Further ex.

7197<sup>6</sup>. In a word, it is the life of Christian good which makes Heaven, not the life of natural good.

7378<sup>6</sup>. The fourth degree of vastation is that they were in evils, which destroyed with them . . . also whatever they had from natural good.

7602. 'The harley' = the good of the exterior Natural.

7605. 'The wheat' = the good of the interior Natural.

7761. We must well distinguish between spiritual good and natural good. Spiritual good has its quality from the truths of faith . . . but natural good is born with the man, and also comes forth . . . through misfortunes, diseases, and the like. Natural good saves no one, but spiritual good saves all. The reason is that the good which is formed through the truths of faith is the plane into which Heaven can inflow—that is, the Lord through Heaven—and lead man, and withhold him from evil, and afterwards elevate him into Heaven; but natural good, not so; and therefore those who are in natural good can as easily be carried away by falsity as by truth, provided the falsity appears in the form of truth; and can as easily be led by evil as by good, provided the evil be presented as good. They are like feathers in the wind.

7847. 'The lintel' = the goods of the Natural. Ex.

7920. 'Which is in the basin' = which is in the good of the Natural. Ex.

— It is to be known that one thing is meant by natural good, and another by the good of the Natural. Natural good is that which man has from what is hereditary; and the good of the Natural is that which he has from the Lord through regeneration.

8002. 'Sojourners' = those who do what is good from natural disposition . . . and as they were from peoples outside the Church, the good which is signified is not the good of the Church, but is good not of the Church. This good is called natural good, because it is from birth hereditary. There is such good also with some from ill-health and weakness. This good is meant by the good which is done by those who are signified by 'sojourners.'

—<sup>2</sup>. This good is quite different from the good of the Church; for through the good of the Church conscience is formed with man, which is the plane into which the Angels inflow, and through which is given consort with them. Whereas through natural good not any plane can be formed for the Angels. They who are in this good do what is good from blind instinct, and not in the light of truth from influx from Heaven; and therefore in the other life they are led away like chaff by the wind . . . by both an evil and a good person, and more by an evil one who knows how to adjoin to reasonings something of affection and persuasion; nor can they then be led away by the Angels; for the Angels operate through the goods and truths of faith . . . From these things it is evident that those who do what is good from mere natural disposition cannot be consociated with the Angels. Refs.

8298<sup>2</sup>. 'Lead' = the good of the exterior Natural.

8315. See MOAB, here. 10184<sup>2</sup>.

—<sup>3</sup>. That those who are in natural good and not in spiritual good cannot possibly be led by any influx from Heaven. Refs.

8431. 'The flesh' (of the quails) here = the good of the natural man, or delight. Ex. 8452, Ex.

8772. The good which has not its quality from the truths of faith is not Christian good, but is natural good, which does not give eternal life. The reason is that natural good in itself has only natural life, which life is not unlike the life of beasts, which also are in good when they are gentle . . .

8977<sup>2</sup>. As (this) is natural good, that is, as it derives its origin from the world and not from Heaven, it is called delight. Sig.

9103<sup>2</sup>. But the good in the External or Natural cannot be restored to the full. Sig. and Ex.

9391<sup>2</sup>. External or natural good was represented by 'the right foot.'

—<sup>7</sup>. See CALF, here.

9406<sup>2</sup>. 'The fir, pine, and box' = the corresponding natural goods and truth.

9538. All the Celestial ceases in that which is called natural good, and there subsists.

9812<sup>2</sup>. Divine natural good, which makes the First Heaven, is the good of faith and of obedience. To Divine natural good pertains also civil good . . . and also moral good . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. As the end is the soul of the cause, and the cause is all that which effects in the effect, so is celestial good the soul of spiritual good, and spiritual good is the all in natural good. . . (Thus) inmost in natural good there must be celestial good . . .

9891<sup>2</sup>. The conjunction of the breastplate . . . at the shoulders below, against the joining above the girdle, represents the conservation of the natural goods and truths which proceed from (celestial and spiritual goods and truths).

10005<sup>4</sup>. The feet (with man) correspond to the First Heaven, where there is natural good.

10017<sup>2</sup>. The work of the salvation of those who are thence in natural good, is represented by the priesthood of the Levites.

10029<sup>2</sup>. Truth in the Natural is scientific, and the good there is its delight. Both are perceptible to man while he is in the world . . .

10030<sup>6</sup>. In general, the feet = natural good, which is the good and truth of faith.

10031. 'The caul upon the liver' = the interior good of the external or natural man. 10032.

10235. 'Thou shalt make a laver of brass' = the good of the natural man, in which is purification. Ex.

—<sup>7</sup>. The reason the oxen looked to all the quarters of the world, was that the good of the natural man is the receptacle of all things which inflow from the world; both those which relate to goods, and those which relate to truths.

H. 96<sup>2</sup>. They who are in the feet (in the Grand Man) are in the ultimate good of Heaven which is called spiritual natural good.

N. 83<sup>4</sup>. That natural good is born with some, but that still it is not good, because it is compliant to all evils and falsities; and that this good is not accepted in Heaven unless it becomes spiritual good. Refs.

J. 38. It has been said from Heaven that with some (at this day) there is still good, but that it cannot be called spiritual good, but natural good, for the reason that Divine truths themselves are in obscurity . . .

— Hence it is that at this day there is no spiritual good; but, with some, only natural good.

P. 14. There exists good separated from truth, and truth separated from good. This exists with . . . those who are in natural good and in no spiritual good . . .

—<sup>e</sup>. With those who are in natural good from what is hereditary, and in no spiritual good, the case is almost similar; for the internal of all good and of all truth is spiritual, and this dispels falsities and evils; whereas what is merely natural favours them; and to favour evils and falsities, and to do what is good, is not in accordance.

[P.] 74<sup>2</sup>. In beasts there is a marriage of affection and knowledge; the affection there is of natural good, and the knowledge is of natural truth.

312. An argument by the analogy between natural good and truth, and spiritual good and truth. . . Is not that truth (in the sight of the eye) which is called beautiful, and that good which is called delight. . . In like manner in the other senses. Hence it is evident what natural truth and good are.

R. 49. Divine natural good. Sig. and Ex.

97<sup>2</sup>. If therefore there are falsities with a man instead of truths, he does the good of falsity, which is not good; for it is either pharisaic, meritorious, or connate natural good.

M. 77<sup>2</sup>. Wood=natural good; and in this good were the men of the third age of the Earth; and as copper also=natural good, the age in which they lived was called from copper.

T. 537. It is to be known that those who do what is good from mere natural goodness, and not at the same time from religion, are not accepted after death; because there is only natural good in their charity, and not at the same time spiritual good; and it is the Spiritual which conjoins the Lord with man, and not the Natural without this. Natural goodness is of the flesh alone, born of the parents. . . Those who do the goods of charity from religion, and thence do not do evils, before they have accepted the doctrine of the New Church concerning the Lord, may be likened to trees which bear good fruits, although few. (Other comparisons made.) In Heaven they are clothed in garments of a red colour; and, after they have been initiated into the goods of the New Church, they are clothed in garments of a bright crimson colour. . .

580. That everyone can be regenerated according to his state, is because. . . those who are in natural good from their parents [are regenerated] differently from those who are in evil. . .

754. When falsity appears to be truth. . . the good which is then believed to be good is only natural good, which moral life produces.

D. 2678. Concerning those who. . . fear and adore him who does them natural good.

3202. These are they who are natural good Spirits, and correspond to celestial Spirits. . .

4311<sup>e</sup>. (Thus) unless man be instructed as to the intellectual part, when he enjoys natural goodness (he is carried to the side of the deceitful, of Sirens, and of hypocrites, and thus favours them. These sometimes add power to the deceitful).

4561. Concerning those who are in natural good, and in no spiritual good.—There was a certain person whom I supposed to be a good Christian, because he was in natural good. He did his work with avidity. . . but I observed that if he could he would not be such; from which I was driven into the thought that he was good from no internal duty, but solely from nature and external pleasure. . . In the other life such are in the greatest filthiness, and are carefully warded off from the good. . . They are seduced by the evil, and adhere to them; for the evil persuade, and through them obtain the simple good, and acquire for themselves a sphere so that they can dominate. . . As they have no internal bond, the good which inflows, flows through, and in the ultimate is taken possession of by evil; whence take place filthinesses. . .

D. Min. 4700. Concerning natural good.

—<sup>c</sup>. Such do those become who have natural good, and infill it with things malignant.

4735. Concerning those who are in natural good, but not in the perception of what is good and fair.

E. 405<sup>17</sup>. To gather together those who are in natural good, is meant by 'to send fishers who shall fish them'. . .

406<sup>9</sup>. By the goods of the Natural man are meant the Knowledges of good.

408. Natural goods and truths are from the light of the world. . .

440<sup>6</sup>. 'Before. . . Manasseh stir up thy strength'= those who are in natural good, which is the delight of doing good and learning truth. Ex.

458<sup>8</sup>. By these words is described natural good separated from spiritual, which is good from proprium; but, regarded in itself it is not good, but is the delight of desire especially from the love of self and of the world, which is felt as good. How man forms it with himself so that it appears as good and persuades that it is good, is described by (these words).

489a<sup>2</sup>. Not any external or natural good conjoins which does not draw its essence and derivative coming forth from spiritual good.

491<sup>3</sup>. 'Myrrh'= the derivative natural good (which is one of the goods of the three Heavens).

619<sup>8</sup>. The reason Jonathan's eyes were opened by eating honey, was that honey corresponds to natural good and its delight, and this good gives intelligence and illustrates. Ill.

—<sup>10</sup>. It is to be known that natural good is not good unless it is also spiritual good; for all good inflows through the spiritual man into the natural. . . and therefore natural good separated from spiritual good is in itself evil, which is still perceived by the man as good. That there must be both. Sig.

637<sup>10</sup>. By 'the sons of Ammon' are signified those who are in natural good, and falsify the truths of the Church.

—<sup>16</sup>. By 'Moab' are signified those who are in natural good, and adulterate the goods of the Church.

700<sup>23</sup>. 'A ewe giving milk upon which a yoke had not yet been'= natural good not yet defiled by falsities. Ex.

710<sup>33</sup>. The good of the lowest degree, which also is the good of the Ultimate Heaven, is called natural good. . . The good of natural love is born from the good of spiritual love. . .

754. For, merely natural goods and truths are in their essence evils and falsities, although before those who are merely natural and sensuous they appear as goods and truths, because their goods are pleasures and delights springing from the loves of self and of the world, and their truths are those things which favour these goods . . .

817<sup>12</sup>. 'He-goats,' in a good sense, = those who are in natural good, and thence in truths. III.

— Natural goods and truths are with those who live well according to truths from natural affection.

Natural Heaven. Caelum Naturale.

H. 31. See CELESTIAL NATURAL, here.

T. 195<sup>2</sup>. See NATURAL KINGDOM, here.

E. 798<sup>4</sup>. As those who confirm with themselves in doctrine and life that faith produces good works as a tree does fruits, look from faith to good, they have conjunction with Heaven . . . but with the Natural Heaven, which is in ultimates, and is called the entrance. The reason they cannot be admitted more interiorly, is that before it becomes charity in form faith is natural; and what is natural cannot produce anything but what is natural. (Continued under NATURAL.)

Natural History. Naturalis historia.

D.Min.4730.

Natural Kingdom. Regnum Naturale.

A. 2758. For the natural kingdom derives all its origin from the spiritual kingdom.

4104<sup>9</sup>. Every man . . . may know that he is in two kingdoms: a spiritual kingdom, and a natural kingdom; also that the spiritual kingdom is interior, and the natural kingdom exterior, and consequently that he can prefer the one to the other . . . But when he has the natural kingdom as the end . . . he then extinguishes those things which are of love to the Lord and charity towards the neighbour, and which are of faith . . . and makes the love of the world and of self . . . everything.

5406<sup>e</sup>. 'Egypt,' in the representative sense, is the natural kingdom . . .

T. 195<sup>2</sup>. The Angels of the Lord's natural kingdom, from whom is the First or lowest Heaven, are in the Divine which proceeds from the Lord which is called the Divine Natural, and are in the faith of charity from the Lord.

212. The lowest Heaven makes the Lord's natural kingdom.

De Verbo 24. The intelligence of the Angels of the Spiritual Kingdom is ineffable and incomprehensible to those who are in the natural kingdom . . .

Natural Philosophy. Philosophia naturalis. D.2299. 2301.

Natural Sense. Sensus naturalis.

See SENSE OF LETTER.

R. 466. The Word in the natural sense, which also is from Him, thus His and Himself, is signified by 'a cloud.'

468. As the natural sense of the Word supports its spiritual and celestial sense.

T. 297. (The natural sense of the Commandments given.) 301. 305. 309. 321.

VOL. IV.

— The natural sense which is the sense of the letter. 301. 305.

321. In a wider natural sense . . .

— In the widest natural sense . . .

E. 700<sup>9</sup>. 'The foot-stool to which they shall bow themselves' = the natural sense of the Word; and thence also the Church on earth, because this is in this sense.

778<sup>3</sup>. By 'the Son of Man' is meant Divine truth such as it is on earth; thus the Word such as it is in the natural sense; for this is Divine truth on earth. . . 'A word against the Son of Man' = to interpret the natural sense of the Word, which is the sense of its letter, according to appearances.

790<sup>8</sup>. But truths in a natural form are such as are in the Word in the natural sense.

955. For in the natural sense of the Word there are glory and virtue from its spiritual sense; that is, light and power; but not without that sense. Ex.

1061. The reason the Angel did not explain the vision in the natural sense from the spiritual, is that the explication also makes the Word in the letter, and the Word in the letter must be natural . . . otherwise the Word would not serve the Heavens as a basis.

— This is the natural sense from the spiritual, which is called the internal sense, and also the spiritual natural sense.

De Verbo 2. When the Word is being read by a man who holds it holy, its natural sense becomes spiritual in the Second Heaven, and celestial in the Third; thus what is natural is successively put off . . . The natural sense of the Word is such as is in the sense of the letter, the whole of which becomes spiritual, and then celestial, in the Heavens . . .

5. Concerning the spiritual sense of the Word, and concerning its natural sense. Gen.art.

18<sup>3</sup>. The spiritual sense without its attendant natural sense is not communicated with Heaven. The reason is that the Lord inflows from primes through ultimates, therefore from Himself into the natural sense of the Word, and calls forth or evolves thence its spiritual and celestial sense, and thus illustrating teaches and leads the Angels. . . From these things it is evident that unless the doctrine of the Church has been collected and confirmed from the sense of the letter of the Word, it does not avail, because it does not communicate; but doctrine from the sense of the letter, and together with it.

19. The quality of the natural sense without the spiritual and celestial senses, and conversely. Gen.art.

— The Word in the sense of the letter may be compared to a tree . . . If there were the sense of the letter alone, and not at the same time the spiritual and celestial senses, it would be like a tree without sap, nay, like the bark alone without the wood; whereas with these senses it is a tree in its perfect state. In it also all the sap passes through the bark or cortex, and therefore when it is taken away the tree dries up. So would the spiritual sense of the Word without its natural sense.

Natural Theology. Theologia naturalis.

D. 4757. Concerning revealed theology, or the Word, and concerning natural theology. Gen.art. De Verbo 6.

4758. It was shown further that natural theology can manifest nothing whatever concerning the Divine, Heaven and Hell, the life after death, faith, unless they had previously known them from revelation . . . Ex. De Verbo 6<sup>3</sup>.

—<sup>e</sup>. 'Egypt'=knowledge, thus natural theology.

4760. 'The dragon'=. . . those who want to be wise concerning Divine things from natural theology . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. He had believed that natural theology illustrates minds . . .

De Verbo 6<sup>4</sup>. No one can enter from natural theology into spiritual theology ; but everyone can from spiritual theology enter into natural theology . . .

14. There is not any natural theology without revelation . . .

Natural Truth. Verum naturale.

A. 1234. The derivative Knowledges are natural Truths.

1462<sup>2</sup>. 'Egypt'=those who are in scientifics, or in natural Truths, which are the vessels of spiritual Truths.

1551<sup>2</sup>. For natural truth, spiritual truth. Sig.

— . For sensuous truth, natural truth. Sig.

1577<sup>5</sup>. The Spiritual of the external man is called natural truth.

1927. Natural truth which had not yet acquired life. Sig. and Ex. 1928<sup>2</sup>.

1981<sup>2</sup>. A person concerning whom I had the idea that he was in natural truth . . .

2162<sup>7</sup>. 'The sea'=natural truths.

2184<sup>e</sup>. The truth of the Natural is the Scientific which favours that delight.

2567. Rational truths and natural truths. Sig. and Ex.

— . By natural truths are meant scientifics of every kind . . .

2686<sup>3</sup>. 'The hoofs of His horses'=natural truths.

2781<sup>2</sup>. Natural truth is their Scientific.

— . That natural truth is what is signified by 'an ass.' Ill.

2799<sup>10</sup>. The vastation of natural truth. Tr.

3021<sup>8</sup>. The fourth state, which was one of natural truth. Sig.

3030<sup>5</sup>. Truth called forth from the natural man was to be conjoined with the good of the Rational. Tr.

3048<sup>5</sup>. 'The multitude of the sea'=the immense abundance of natural truth.

3096<sup>e</sup>. Natural truth is lower truth ; and the affection of natural truth is the affection of lower truth. From this, general scientifics are proximately illustrated, which illustration penetrates further and affects more inwardly.

3167. Spiritual things communicated to natural truth. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>e</sup>. Natural truth is then every doctrinal and scientific for the sake of the end of being wise ; that is, of doing these things.

3175. Man is not born even into any natural truth ; as that we are not to steal, etc.

3191. From the auspices of Divine natural truth. Sig. and Ex. 3192, Ex.

3211. Between rational good and truth called forth from the Natural and made Divine, there is not effected a marriage, but a covenant like a conjugal covenant. Sig.

3263<sup>3</sup>. 'Ishmaelites'=those of the Spiritual Church who as to life are in simple good, and therefore as to doctrine are in natural truth. 3268<sup>8</sup>. 4747.

3271. The gentiles have not the truth of faith, but rational and natural truth. Sig.

3293. Truth in the Natural is all that which is of knowledge, and is called scientific. (Continued under NATURAL.)

3294<sup>e</sup>. The interior truth (in the Natural) is called natural truth ; and the exterior is called sensuous. Both these are represented by Jacob.

3299<sup>2</sup>. The Natural as to truth is conceived from the truth of the Rational as a mother.

3301. 'A hairy tunic'=the truth of the Natural.

—<sup>3</sup>. 'Hair'=the Natural as to truth. Ill.

3305. 'She called his name Jacob'=the doctrine of natural truth.

— . 'Esau'=the good of life of natural truth.

3309. 'Hunting'=the truths which are of the natural man from which are goods. 3313.

3314. The good of the Rational inflows through the truth of the Rational into the truth of the Natural . . . and also through the good of the Natural into the Truth there . . . Sig. 3563<sup>2</sup>. —<sup>3</sup>. 3573. 3576.

3322<sup>2</sup>. 'Garments' there=the truths of the natural man . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. Dominion over the truths in the Natural. Sig.

—<sup>6</sup>. 'An Egyptian'=the truths of the Natural, which are scientifics.

3470. The adjunction of natural truth from another source than the genuine one. Sig. and Ex.

3508<sup>e</sup>. The vessels which receive good and truth from the Rational are the very truths of the Natural, which are nothing else than scientifics, Knowledges, and doctrinals.

3509. The Lord's perception from Divine truth concerning natural truth. Sig. and Ex. 3525.

3517. Yearning and delight perceived by the Divine truth in the Divine Rational towards natural truth. Sig.

3549. The apperception of natural truth. Sig.

3563<sup>4</sup>. The quality of natural good and natural truth in the state before regeneration. Ex.

3567. The state of natural truth in that it then believed itself to be natural good from the external form. Sig.

3568. A yearning to conjoin with himself natural truth through good. Sig.

3580. 'Must' = the natural truth thence. Ill. 3597.
3596. Such things ought to be built upon the ideas of natural Truths, by which they ought to be apprehended, which also are at this day lacking.
3620. No adjunction of natural truth from another source to the truth of the Rational. Sig. and Ex.
- 3665<sup>4</sup>. See KNOWLEDGE = cognitio, here.
3694. 'Stones' = lower truths, such as are of the natural man.
- 3703<sup>16</sup>. That natural truth, after it has been purified from falsities, is adopted by good. Rep.
3707. That Divine natural truth would be as natural good. Sig. and Ex.
3902. The conjunction of natural truth through media with spiritual good. Tr.
3913. The affirming medium between natural truth and interior truth. Sig. and Ex.
- 3928<sup>3</sup>. 'A hind let loose' = the affection of natural truth in a free state.
3974. By 'a servant' was represented the truth of the Natural such as it is in the beginning, before genuine truths are insinuated. Ex.
4014. The derivative power of natural Truths. Sig.
4017. 'Waters' = Knowledges and scientifics, which are the truths of the Natural.
- 4038<sup>3</sup>. The scientifics there pertain to the understanding, and are called natural truths.
4155. Interior natural truths which are from the Divine. Sig.
4234. See JACOB, here.
4650. When interior natural truth spiritual was not yet risen. Sig.
4696. 'The moon' (as predicated of Leah) = natural truth.
4748. Interior natural truths. Sig. and Ex.
4769. 'A he-goat of the she-goats' = natural truths, that is, the truths of the external man from which are the delights of life . . . (and which are) truths Divine such as are those of the literal sense . . .
4967. 'An Egyptian man' = natural truth. Ex.
4977. Good applying itself to the Scientific, or to natural truth. Sig. and Ex.
4988. See NATURAL GOOD, here.
4995. That (spiritual natural good) was forbidden to be conjoined with natural truth not spiritual. Sig. 4997, Ex.
- 5006<sup>2</sup>. That natural truth not spiritual wanted to be conjoined with spiritual natural truth. Sig. and Ex. (What these two truths are, shown by examps. 5008<sup>2</sup>.)
5011. Natural truth (Potiphar's wife) cannot do otherwise than speak falsities . . . after ultimate spiritual truth . . . has been plucked away. Sig.
- 5044<sup>1</sup>. 'Egypt' = the Scientific of the Church; thus natural truth which is the ultimate of order . . .
5198. 'Seven cows ascending' = the truths of the Natural. Ex.
- 5319<sup>2</sup>. 'Fine linen' = natural truths.
5397. Therefore they are sent back, and some good of natural truth is given gratis. Tr.
5477. That from spiritual light the truths in the Natural appear. Sig. and Ex.
5882. Truths in the Natural, and the Natural itself . . . act as a one; for the truths are the contents, and the Natural is the containant . . .
5956. That (the medium) had (also) much of truth from the Natural. Sig. and Ex.
6001. For natural truth with all things of it must be initiated into the scientifics of the Church. Sig.
6010. The elucidation of natural truth. Sig.
6012. That the truths which were spiritual promoted natural truth. Sig. and Ex.
- 6024<sup>2</sup>. The truth of the Natural in general, and the truths of the Natural in particular. Sig.
6040. The perception of the truths in the Natural. Sig. and Ex.
6089. 'Joseph' = the Internal, from which is truth in the Natural.
6173. That the truth of the Natural was in scientifics. Sig.
6188. That the natural truth, which is 'Jacob,' was being elevated to the spiritual good, which is 'Israel.' Sig.
6223. Apperception from the truth of the Natural. Sig.
6228. Communication of the truth of the Natural with the Internal. Sig.
6235. Before the truth of the Natural was in scientifics. Sig.
6375. Truth in the Natural for the External Church. Sig.
- 6423<sup>2</sup>. A certain one who was in natural truth, because when he lived in the world he had been in what is just, passed through many Hells . . . He was in such power . . . that the infernal Spirits could not infest him a whit . . .
7601. 'Flax' = the truth of the exterior Natural.
7605. 'Spelt' = the truth of the interior Natural.
7847. 'Door-posts' = the truths of the Natural.
- 7852<sup>2</sup>. 'Fish' = the truth of the Natural.
8369. 'Willows of the torrent' = the lowest truths of the Natural.
- 8861<sup>2</sup>. In the Natural (the internal sight) has for its objects the truths of the civil state which are of what is just, and also the truths of the moral state which are of what is honest, and lastly the natural truths which are conclusions from the objects of the external senses, especially of the sight.
8912. 'An ass' = the affection of natural truth.
9052. 'A tooth' = the exterior Intellectual, and the derivative natural truth; for this makes the life of that understanding. Ill.
9054. 'A foot for a foot' = if anything of the power of natural truth (was injured).

[A.] 9166<sup>7</sup>. See HAIR=pilus, here.

9300<sup>3</sup>. For correspondences are natural Truths, in which as in mirrors are represented spiritual Truths.

† 9469. Both 'flax' and 'fine linen' = truth in the natural man.

9538. For everything spiritual ceases in that which is called natural truth; and everything celestial in that which is called natural good; and there they subsist...

9755<sup>2</sup>. The truth of the natural man is signified by the water of the sea. This truth is scientific; for truth in the natural or external man is truth in knowledge... Hence it is that the truths with man in childhood are truths in knowledge...

9959. 'Linen' = external truth, or natural truth.

10032. 'The two kidneys, and the fat upon them' = the interior truth of the external or natural man, and its good.

10254. 'Aromatic cinnamon' = the perception and affection of natural truth... which truth is the interior truth of the external man.

10293. 'Onycha' = the affection of interior natural truth.

J. 38. So long as truths are outside the life they are only natural; for they are known and thought only as other Things are.

P. 74<sup>2</sup>. Knowledge=scientia is of natural truth.

332<sup>3</sup>. The natural truths with which every man is first imbued are like the leaves with which the branches are covered. 'Leaves,' in the Word, = nothing else.

R. 50. Divine natural truth. Sig. and Ex.

—, 'Waters,' in special, = natural truths, which are Knowledges from the Word. III.

414. That there was no longer any spiritual truth nor natural truth serving for doctrine and life from the Word with them. Sig. and Ex. E. 527.

¶ M. 193. 'A rib of the breast,' in the Word, = natural truth.

—<sup>2</sup>. The woman was created from the man by the transcription of his Own wisdom, which is from natural truth...

D. 1531<sup>2</sup>. That order may be perfect, celestial Truths and spiritual Truths ought to be rooted in natural Truths... The Knowledges and ideas of the Angels... are rooted in natural Truths.

1967. Natural Truths, or Truths taken out from corporeal, worldly, and natural things, are the earthen vessels of spiritual Truths. Ex.

1970. It is a natural Truth that...

2301. Natural Truths serve to confirm it. 2604<sup>2</sup>.

2688. Natural Truths... are such vessels...

2701. Concerning philosophical and natural Truths which are of service to them in confirming spiritual things. 2702.

4739<sup>2</sup>. Those there are those who have been in natural truth, and have lived a good life in and according to it.

5616. Natural Truths are in place of a foundation...

5710. (To such) the Word is to be unfolded by natural Truths. (Continued under FOUNDATION.)

E. 176. That he shall chastise evils by the truths which are in the natural man. Sig. and Ex.

—, Natural truth is truth in the memory and not in the life...

—<sup>4</sup>. Truths in the natural man are the scientifics and Knowledges from which a man can think, reason, and conclude naturally concerning the truths and goods of the Church, and concerning the falsities and evils which are opposite to them; and thence be in a certain natural illustration when he is reading the Word. Ex.

204<sup>3</sup>. The truth which is of the love of self or of the world is merely natural, because it comes from man and from the world. Ex.

406<sup>2</sup>. By the truths of the natural man are meant the Knowledges of truth...

440<sup>6</sup>. 'Ephraim' = those who are in natural truth. Natural truth is such as is the truth of the Word in the sense of the letter.

538<sup>8</sup>. For the truths of the natural man are the Knowledges of truth and good.

726. That the power of natural truth from spiritual will convince... those who are in falsities and evils. Sig. and Ex.

754. See NATURAL GOOD, here.

790<sup>2</sup>. Those things which are in the natural mind from the spiritual are called natural truths, etc.

1088<sup>4</sup>. Natural truths, which are the truths of the sense of the letter... are not the truths themselves of Heaven, but are appearances of them, and appearances of truth encompass, enclose and contain the truths of Heaven... and cause that they are in connection and order, and that they cohere like the cardiac and pulmonary things with their coverings and ribs... and when they are in connection and order, then first are they holy...

J.(Post.) 263<sup>2</sup>. Angelic wisdom... is founded upon natural Truths.

Natural World. Mundus naturalis.

See under SPIRITUAL WORLD, and WORLD.

A. 927<sup>2</sup>. Thence subsist all things which are in the natural world. Refs.

9440. See SPACE, here.

10185. For the natural world comes forth and subsists from the Spiritual World. Ex. H. 89.

H. 89. All that extense is called the natural world which is beneath the sun, and receives heat and light from it; and of that world are all things which subsist thence.

90. The exteriors of man's body, which relate to its senses and actions, make his natural world...

112<sup>2</sup>. It is man through whom the natural world is conjoined with the Spiritual World.

304<sup>2</sup>. Man's exteriors which are in the natural world are all things which are of his natural or external memory, and which are of the derivative thought and imagination; in general, Knowledges and knowledges with their delights... in so far as they have savour from the world, and also many pleasures which are of the sensuous things of the body; and, in addition, the senses themselves, the speech, and the actions . . .

582. An Angel or Spirit cannot see anything in the natural world, if they are not with a man to whom it has been given to speak with them.

J. 9. The ultimate of creation is the natural world, and in it the terraqueous globe with all things upon it. When these had been completed, man was created . . .

73. That great change which has been effected in the Spiritual World, does not induce any change in the natural world as to the external form . . .

L. 62°. By the natural world is meant the world where men dwell.

W. 66. There are three degrees of ascent in the natural world. (Continued under DEGREE.)

134°. For all things which come forth in the natural world are effects . . . 154°.

251. The natural man as to his understanding and will is like the natural world . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. The spiritual man does indeed love the natural world also, but no otherwise than as a master his servant . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. For whatever appears and is done in the natural world derives its cause from the Spiritual World.

257°. By such an envelope, which has been taken from the natural world, subsist their spiritual bodies . . . 270.

260°. The substances of the natural world from their nature react against the substances of the Spiritual World; for in themselves the substances of the natural world are dead, and they are acted from the outside by the substances of the Spiritual World . . . and thus, from their own nature, they react.

M. 31. He knows no otherwise than that he is still in the natural world. D. 319. 346. 729. 735, Ex. 2031. 4090. 5 M. 10.

133°. In the natural world. So they called our world . . .

380<sup>11</sup>. The expanse of nature is called the natural world, which subsists from its own sun.

533. When (the paper) had fallen into the natural world, its light disappeared . . .

I. 4. That the natural world has come forth and subsists from its own sun . . . Gen. art. 9.

16. That there are . . . three degrees in the natural world hitherto unknown, according to which all influx is effected. Gen. art.

T. 78°. Hence all things in the natural world are constant.

E. 726°. As He has created the natural worlds, so He has created the Spiritual Worlds above them . . .

D. Wis. xii. 5°. To the correspondence of these things have been created all things which appear in the natural world, where therefore the like things come forth, with the difference that these are in like manner from a spiritual origin, but at the same time from a natural origin . . .

Can. God iv. 7. Jehovah God . . . through the Spiritual World, mediately, created the natural world.

Naturalism. Naturalismus.

See under NATURE.

W. 69. Hence is naturalism. I. 167.

T. 4°. The naturalism reigning at this day is from no other source. 173°. 339°. Inv. 9.

75°. If the mind examines more interiorly concerning this Thing, it falls headlong into naturalism which denies God.

94. Thereby enters Judaism, etc. . . and, at last, naturalism . . .

121°. The Hells have grown . . . from Christians who have imbibed naturalism . . .

137°. A faith from which naturalism springs . . .

—<sup>8</sup>. He thoughtlessly inseminated naturalism . . .

—<sup>12</sup>. The two charges of naturalism and Moham-medanism . . .

342°. They do not distinguish between . . . the worship of the Lord and naturalism.

771°. Ignorance . . . from which naturalism and at the same time atheism . . .

E. 981°. The lasciviousness of adultery makes a one with naturalism.

1220°. As at this day naturalism has almost invaded the Church, and as it can be dispelled only by rational things . . .

—<sup>1</sup>. All naturalism is from thought concerning Divine things from things proper to nature . . .

Can. God iv. 12. Concerning the creation of the universe, hypotheses founded upon naturalism . . .

Coro. Then invade naturalism and atheism . . .

Naturalist. Naturalista.

See under NATURE.

A. 8783°. They who are atheists and naturalists, as they are called, are those who are learned.

H. 3°. They are relegated among those who are called naturalists.

W. 349°. They ascribe all things to nature . . . and become naturalists, and at last atheists.

P. 310. In proportion as they confirm themselves from fallacies they become naturalists . . .

M. 380°. He feared being called a naturalist . . .

I. 10°. Such are all naturalist atheists in the world, and all satans in Hell.

T. 333°. At this day . . . there are many naturalists . . .

382. They deny the creation . . . by God, and thus God, for they are naturalist atheists. The reason all these are evil, is . . .

639°. Say to a confirmed naturalist, who believes either that nature has created herself, or that God came forth after nature, or that nature and God are one . . .

759°. Who speaks more persuasively about the certitude of his own phantasy than a naturalist atheist . . .

D. 4727. At first Wolff was a naturalist . . .

4748. A natural religion adapted to the apprehension of all naturalists.

4760<sup>e</sup>. (The dragonists) are chiefly naturalists, and in their hearts deny the Divine . . .

5573<sup>e</sup>. Most (of these Spirits) were naturalists . . .

5659. Concerning naturalists in the other life.—Very many of them think . . . If there is a God, etc., I can easily believe these things if I see them in the other life . . . But this is impossible. Ex.

5971<sup>2</sup>. They who have lived evilly . . . reject religion, and become naturalists.

D. Min. 4722. Concerning naturalists.

E. 242<sup>e</sup>. There is a like light after confirmations with those who are called naturalists, who deny God and the Divine of the Word, and, besides, all things of the Church.

1220<sup>3</sup>. Every man who has become a naturalist by thoughts from nature remains such after death, and calls all the things natural which he sees in the Spiritual World . . .

Inv. 27. A naturalist atheist can swear that there is no God . . .

Nature. Indoles.

A. 200<sup>2</sup>. The Most Ancients were of a nature entirely different . . . which nature was such that from good they knew truth . . .

209. Suited to the nature of those who lived (then).

379<sup>e</sup>. A man derives his nature-naturam-and disposition from willing . . .

471. Children derive a genius from their parents . . . Lest, therefore, there should be a confusion of native qualities . . .

482<sup>e</sup>. Each Church was in a different state of perception . . . according to the differences of the nature from what was hereditary and actual.

483<sup>e</sup>. According to the propagations of the natures.

494<sup>2</sup>. As everyone may know from the evil nature of children being just like those of their parents . . .

542<sup>e</sup>. According to their lives and the derivative natures.

640<sup>e</sup>. This Church . . . was of an entirely diverse nature . . . 736. 765.

1048<sup>2</sup>. A certain sphere which exhales from his nature . . .

1113. They are otherwise well-disposed in nature.

1277. They have a situation (there) according to the nature of their life . . .

1388<sup>2</sup>. Deriving its origin . . . from the nature of Spirits.

1487<sup>e</sup>. From the nature thence acquired.

1640<sup>2</sup>. From their speech . . . it is evident of what genius and nature they are . . .

1906<sup>2</sup>. Remains . . . implanted in his nature.

2256<sup>2</sup>. Are inscribed . . . on his nature-naturae; that is, on his disposition and genius.

2269<sup>3</sup>. For (goods and evils) are of a contrary native quality and nature-natura-to (falsities and truths). 2343<sup>3</sup>.

2292. The least things of their nature are there most exquisitely perceived. H. 336.

2301<sup>e</sup>. Every infant has a natural disposition diverse from that of every other; and each is educated according to his natural disposition.

2488<sup>2</sup>. The things he has immersed in his delights, and thus as it were in his nature and disposition.

2878<sup>2</sup>. Everyone according to his nature, connate and acquired.

2888. The life which inflows is received by everyone according to his nature.

3318<sup>4</sup>. He is afterwards gifted with another nature.

3843<sup>2</sup>. Truth . . . is then sent into act . . . as it were from his disposition or nature-natura; for everyone acquires a disposition by . . . habit. . . He then no longer acts from memory, but from disposition . . .

4493<sup>2</sup>. They were of an entirely different genius and nature from the men of the Ancient Church.

6716<sup>2</sup>. Sons are born into the nature of their father . . .

7246. In Venus there are two kinds of men, of a nature contrary to each other . . .

7250. They are of an entirely different genius and nature (from the infernals of our Earth).

7800. Those who are of a diverse nature appear remote . . .

7997. By them were represented those who from natural disposition alone . . . would do and vaunt good and truth . . . 8002.

8382. Hence it was given to know of what nature (the Spirits of Jupiter) were . . .

8630. From their life they are of a different nature.

H. 332. The infants also from an implanted nature love them . . .

333. The infants are of diverse natures . . . The infants of a celestial nature appear . . . to the right; those of a spiritual nature to the left. —.

368. This is evident from the inclination or connate nature (of the man and the woman) . . . From their nature, in that the man acts from reason, but the woman from affection.

391. Boys and girls who are of a good disposition from their education in the world.

508<sup>e</sup>. The will is the very nature or native quality of the man . . .

513. Each and all are instructed there according to their nature . . .

517<sup>2</sup>. The Lord provides that everyone should love the uses which agree with his nature.

W. 60<sup>2</sup>. Besides the stupendous things in the nature (of animals) . . .

192. These degrees are homogeneous, that is, of the same native quality and nature . . .

—<sup>e</sup>. The things which are not of the same native quality and nature are heterogeneous . . . (and can form discrete degrees) only with their own, which are of the same native quality and nature.

M. 90<sup>2</sup>. (The male's) nature or disposition inclines to form the understanding . . .

193<sup>2</sup>. The wife from her innate nature cannot do otherwise than . . .

218<sup>2</sup>. How greatly from their very birth the genius of the men differs from the genius of women, has been evident to me from (this): the boys [acted] according to the nature connate to them . . .

525. From his parents everyone draws his nature, which is his inclination . . .

T. 103<sup>2</sup>. As the soul of a man is the man himself . . . it is evident whence it is that the mind, the animus, the nature, the inclination, and the affection of the father's love dwell in offspring after offspring . . .

521. If you could feel the sphere of life gushing forth from the native disposition of everyone . . .

D. 191. Concerning the nature of men in the other life. Ex.

308. Where are those of almost a like nature.

396. A comparison of the nature with trees and fruits. Ex.

799. Such is the nature endured.

804. Ends . . . induce a nature and an instinct which he bears with him into the other life. Ex.

2154. The more interior memory, which is rather to be called a nature . . .

2251<sup>e</sup>. It is not memory which operates . . . but the natural disposition.

2474<sup>2</sup>. Love is what forms the nature of a man . . .

2486<sup>e</sup>. Thus do they form their natural disposition . . .

2493<sup>e</sup>. The speech of the Angels falls in the World of Spirits into representative forms; but according to the natural dispositions, or forms, of the Spirits . . .

2620. Their natural disposition is completely perverted.

2803. Concerning the change of human disposition in the life of the body.—That man . . . retains all his nature, or natural disposition, which he has acquired in the life of the body . . .

3031. The communication of natures, and of each and all things which are in the nature, is wonderful in the other life.

3694<sup>e</sup>. This is why the disposition or nature . . . is first to be destroyed . . .

4469. Concerning the nature of Spirits. Ex.

D. Min. 4548. This he had derived from a familiar natural disposition . . .

Nature. Natura.

Create. Naturare. T.695<sup>2</sup>.

See under NATURE—indoles.

A. 233. He who would investigate the hidden things of nature . . . can scarcely detect one . . . In spiritual and celestial life there are myriads for one which is invisible in nature.

257. Evident from the nature of the love of self.

313. Thence induces a nature on himself, and the evil thence is implanted in his children . . .

367. The nature or essence of faith.

494<sup>2</sup>. All actual evil with the parents puts on a species of nature . . .

568<sup>2</sup>. Such is all the disposition of their fibres, and such their nature. —.

581<sup>e</sup>. They were of such a nature and genius that . . .

640. That if man were to remain in such a nature . . .

803. Every affection . . . derives its coming forth—existentium—and nature from . . .

810. The nature of their evil. Sig.

814. Such is their direful nature . . . 818.

830<sup>e</sup>. Others who are deceitful in nature; thus not from what is premeditated.

831<sup>2</sup>. Their nature is so persuasive . . .

959<sup>2</sup>. They wanted to withdraw into their interior nature.

969. All have their own genius and their own nature . . .

1050<sup>2</sup>. What man learns, by exercise derives habit, and as it were nature . . .

1055. Universal nature is founded on love. Ex.

—<sup>e</sup>. Man has destroyed in himself the order of nature.

1505. He is at last imbued with such a habit, and as it were nature, that . . .

1630<sup>e</sup>. (Then) nothing would be believed about those things which are of interior nature.

1632. When the celestial and spiritual things of the Lord inflow into nature, such things are presented actually . . .

1666. The nature (of such Spirits) carries such things with it.

1683<sup>e</sup>. It is the nature of evil that . . .

—<sup>e</sup>. It is the nature of good that . . .

1854<sup>2</sup>. Death the putting off of those things which are of grossest nature . . .

1881<sup>e</sup>. Thence are all things which are in nature and the world.

1925<sup>2</sup>. Thus the Divine of Jehovah . . . falls down into the lowest of nature, in which is man as to the sight and hearing.

2026<sup>e</sup>. On the Heavens depend all things which are in the world and in nature; for without influx from the Lord through the Heavens, nothing which is in nature and its three kingdoms would ever come forth and subsist.

2173<sup>2</sup>. Thence there is such a marriage in universal nature . . . otherwise nothing would ever subsist there.

2256<sup>2</sup>. All the good . . . and all the evil a man has thought and done . . . are inscribed on . . . his nature, that is, on his disposition and genius.

[A.] 2300. What is actual with parents, and confirmed by habit, puts on nature . . .

2343<sup>8</sup>. They had thought that all things are of nature.

2625. Two things appear essential, because they are proper to nature; space and time. Hence to live in space and time, is to live in the world of nature.

2722<sup>5</sup>. Each and all things in nature represent.

2747<sup>e</sup>. Instead of the Creator of the universe, they think of nature.

2758. That conjugal love is Heaven, is represented in the kingdoms of nature; for there is nothing in universal nature which does not in some way represent the Lord's Kingdom in general . . .

2832. Nothing seems to them more wise than to attribute each and all things to nature.

2993<sup>e</sup>. Those who in thought, will not or cannot ascend beyond nature.

3175. There are very many who ascribe . . . each and all things to nature.

3483. For each and all things in nature are ultimate images . . .

— . How gross . . . is human intelligence which attributes everything to nature separate . . . from an influx prior to itself . . . Angelic wisdom is to attribute nothing to nature.

—<sup>2</sup>. It is contrary to the affection of falsity . . . to say that nature continually subsists, as it had [originally] come forth, from the Divine of the Lord.

3518<sup>8</sup>. There are such comparatives in nature, which are also representatives; for universal nature is a theatre representative of the Lord's Kingdom . . . 3648<sup>e</sup>.

3626. Hence the Angels know . . . the most secret things in the world, and in its universal nature.

3701<sup>2</sup>. Man is born into the nature of his parents . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. The nature itself which he has contracted in the world by actual life, remains.

— . This nature is that which is to be extirpated while he lives in the world, which can never be done except by regeneration . . .

3702. Man has been so created that the Divine things of the Lord might descend through him even to the ultimates of nature, and from the ultimates of nature ascend to Him; so that man might be a medium uniting the Divine with the world of nature; and thus through man . . . the ultimate itself of nature might live from the Divine . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. When they thus contemplated the lower and ultimate things of nature, these appear before their eyes as if they were alive . . .

3703<sup>2</sup>. In universal nature, each and all things relate to good and truth; for in nature are represented the celestial and spiritual goods and truths which are of Heaven . . .

3721. Through which ultimate there is apparently as it were an entrance from nature. Sig. and Ex.

— . For it is the natural mind with man through which the things of Heaven . . . inflow and descend into nature; and through the same mind the things which are of nature ascend. But that it is apparently an entrance from nature through the natural mind into interior things . . .

3747<sup>2</sup>. The learned more than the simple . . . ascribe all things to nature . . .

3855<sup>2</sup>. The inmosts of seeds . . . are in an interior and more perfect nature.

3942. They knew that universal nature is a theatre representative of the Lord's Kingdom . . . 4318<sup>e</sup>.

4190<sup>e</sup>. Which they call His human nature.

4211<sup>2</sup>. All who believe in a Supreme Being (merely), worship nature.

4214<sup>4</sup>. Those who attribute all things to nature are among those (who are in fatuous lumen).

4235. This Divine Itself is what is commonly called the Divine nature . . .

4321. If all things were to be denied the causes of which are not known, innumerable things which come forth in nature would be denied, the causes of which are known scarcely as to the ten-thousandth part . . . How much more must this be the case with the arcana which come forth in the sphere which is above nature . . .

4523. The ear is altogether formed to the nature of their modifications . . . 6057.

— . Whatever secret is hidden in the nature of air and sound . . . and in the nature of ether and light . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. Not only the sensory organs, but also the motory ones, and all the viscera, as to their corporeal and material things, correspond to those things which are in the nature of the world, so that the whole body is an organ composed of the most secret things of all which are in the nature of the world . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. (Thus) whatever is in the world and its nature does not come forth from itself, but from what is prior to itself . . .

—<sup>e</sup>. Hence . . . each and all things, even to the ultimates of nature, have not only come forth from the First, but also subsist from the First . . .

4524. As each and all things which are in the world and its nature come forth, and perpetually come forth . . . from things prior to themselves, it follows that they come forth and subsist from a World which is above nature . . . And as there must be a continual connection with that World . . . it follows that the purer or interior things which are in nature, consequently which are in man, are from thence; and also, that (they) are such forms as can receive the influx.

—<sup>2</sup>. As in nature there is one only fountain of light and heat . . .

4663<sup>2</sup>. Every nature which man has put on in the life of the body he retains in the other life; and it is known that the nature cannot be expelled; and that if it is expelled, nothing of life remains.

4692<sup>1</sup>. For they distinguish between the Divine nature and the human nature . . . 4731<sup>e</sup>.

4724<sup>e</sup>. Thinking nothing from doctrine then concerning the distinction between the Divine nature and the human nature.

4733<sup>2</sup>. Most of those (who say that they acknowledge a Supreme Being) acknowledge no God, but in His place nature; they acknowledge nature because they apprehend it . . .

473<sup>8</sup>. They were some of those who had been at the Council when it was decreed concerning the Lord's two natures, the Divine and the human. . . They said that . . . they had concluded to attribute to the Lord both the Divine and the Human principally because otherwise the papal chair would not subsist. Ex.

4760<sup>3</sup>. For they see that the several things in nature are below man . . .

— . In all other things which are of nature he sees confirmations; and at last in universal nature he sees a representative of the heavenly Kingdom.

4939<sup>2</sup>. For nature is that in which are terminated those things which are of the Spiritual World, and which are of Heaven. Hence it is that universal nature is a theatre representative of the Lord's Kingdom, and that each thing there represents; and that nature subsists from influx according to this order; and that without this influx it could not subsist for a moment.

4941. In these places are those who have ascribed all things to nature, and little to the Divine. . . When I discoursed with them concerning the Divine Providence, they attributed all things to nature; but still those who have led a good moral life there . . . successively put off these principles . . .

4950. Beneath the left foot, a little to the left, are such as have attributed all things to nature, and still have confessed a Being of the universe from Whom are all things of nature . . . From which it was evident that they had not acknowledged a Creator . . . but nature.

5032<sup>2</sup>. Those who do what is good from nature, and not from religion. Ex.

5033<sup>2</sup>. They (believe) that nature is all in all.

5084<sup>4</sup>. It is a fallacy of merely natural sense that all things are of nature, and from nature; and that in purer or interior nature there is indeed something which is not apprehended; but if it is said that within or above nature there is what is spiritual and celestial, this is rejected . . .

5094<sup>4</sup>. When he regards nature from the order of Things, he sees that nature is a complex of means . . . Whereas a sensuous man does not comprehend that there can be anything distinct from nature, thus neither that there is any Being which is above nature.

5114<sup>4</sup>. The derivations in the lower degrees are only compositions . . . with such things added from purer nature, and afterwards from grosser, as can serve for containing vessels . . .

5116<sup>2</sup>. This cannot possibly be believed by those who attribute all things to nature, and nothing to the Divine; whereas those who attribute all things to the Divine, and nothing to nature, are given to see that every single thing is from (the influx of the Spiritual World) . . . and also that (it) corresponds . . . and finally it is given them to see that universal nature is a theatre representative of the Lord's Kingdom; thus that the Divine is in every single thing. Ex.

5131<sup>2</sup>. Each and all things in nature succeed each other as end, cause, and effect . . .

5173<sup>2</sup>. Yet the case is that in each and all things in nature and its three kingdoms there is inwardly an agent from the Spiritual World . . .

5179<sup>2</sup>. Thence come forth very many things which the man who attributes all things to nature either denies or attributes to more occult nature. Examp.

5194<sup>2</sup>. Such an image of marriage is in each and all things of nature, and of its three kingdoms. For in order that anything may come forth in nature, there must be heat and light . . .

5213<sup>6</sup>. (The things of faith and charity can be applied to) all the truths of interior and exterior nature, both visible and invisible, because these correspond to spiritual truths.

5232<sup>2</sup>. As each and all things in nature . . . relate to good and truth . . .

5253<sup>2</sup>. Time and space are proper to nature.

5497<sup>2</sup>. He then from sensuous things forms some truths which . . . still remain within those things which are in nature.

5568. They were from the Hells where are those who . . . have deduced all things to nature. Des.

5570. They thence derive a nature which remains after death.

5571. Those who have believed that nature is everything, and have confirmed themselves in this, and have thence lived a secure life . . . when they appear in the light of Heaven, do not appear to have any face, but in place of it something bearded . . .

5572. There are at this day very many in the Christian world who ascribe all things to nature . . . but more in one nation than in another. 5573.

5711. The things in nature are nothing but effects . . .

5849<sup>2</sup>. The eye does not see even the more prominent things which are in ultimate nature . . . How then could it see the things which are within even the purer nature? H.76.

5990. Attributing all things to nature . . . thus have they closed the interiors . . . 5991.

6057. All the secrets of interior nature are inscribed and applied to (the body) . . . (so) that universal nature conduces to form the external of man . . .

6318. There are men who . . . are corporeal, being those who . . . have ascribed all things to nature. Des.

6337<sup>6</sup>. Can be illustrated by very many things in nature.

6400<sup>2</sup>. Those in truth and not yet in good, reason . . . from fallacies from lowest nature. Sig. and Ex.

6832<sup>10</sup>. The worshippers of nature especially can never be induced to believe that . . .

6876<sup>6</sup>. Then in place of (the idea of a universal Being) there comes the idea of nature, to which each and all things are attributed. Thence is the worship of nature so common at this day, especially in the Christian world.

[A.] 7090. Deep beneath them are those who . . . have worshipped nature . . .

7270<sup>3</sup>. (Thus) there are continual successions from the First . . . even to the ultimates which are in nature . . .

7290<sup>4</sup>. Everything which is not attributed to nature is (now) denied.

— If the man of the Church were to see the veriest Divine miracles, he would first deduce them into nature . . .

7352. He reasons from mere falsities who attributes all things to nature . . . when yet all things are from the Divine, and nature is only the instrumental.

8550. All evil which by habit has contracted as it were nature is derived into the offspring.

8603<sup>2</sup>. Each and all things in universal nature come forth from interior things in order: they are derivations and successions . . .

8628<sup>2</sup>. To these the sciences are means of . . . confirming for nature against the Divine . . .

8705<sup>4</sup>. Or he takes up an idea of the Divine . . . which conjoins itself with the idea of the worshippers of nature: it also falls into nature; and thus becomes null.

8812<sup>2</sup>. Except those who . . . ascribe all things to nature.

8870<sup>3</sup>. In this way they act from their nature itself acquired in the world . . .

8941<sup>3</sup>. The second religiosity is that in which the lumen of nature is everything. Ex. . . Some of these . . . place the Divine in nature; for their lumen, being of nature, falls into nature . . .

8944. It is believed . . . that man from the lumen of nature . . . can know many things which are of religion . . .

— The learned . . . who have raised the lumen of their nature above that of others . . . more than others . . . for the Divine acknowledge nature . . . Hence it is evident what is the quality of the lumen of nature without revelation. — W.H.6, Refs.

9009. Evils confirmed imbue nature, so that afterwards they can scarcely be extirpated. Ex.

9272<sup>2</sup>. For universal nature—that is, the heavens with the sun, moon, stars, and the Earth with the subjects of its three kingdoms—corresponds to such things as are in the Spiritual World . . .

9303<sup>3</sup>. Those who do not believe in one God under a human form . . . their thought effuses itself into the universe without determination, and thus falls into nature, which they thus acknowledge in place of God.

9555. For each and all things in nature relate to the human form . . .

10005<sup>6</sup>. For all the representatives in nature relate to the human form . . .

10185<sup>4</sup>. Hence he observes that all things in nature relate to such things as are in the Spiritual World; and he who can conclude further, perceives that nature does not subsist from itself, but through influx from Heaven . . .

10634<sup>2</sup>. For the ultimate of Divine order is in the nature of the world.

10728<sup>3</sup>. The things which appear in nature, in its three kingdoms, are the ultimates of Divine order; for all things of Heaven are terminated in them . . .

10736<sup>2</sup>. His idea of the invisible God was no other than as of nature in its primes; from which it resulted that the inmost of nature was to him His Divine. H. 3<sup>2</sup>.

H. 85. For he who thinks from nature and its lumen alone . . .

86. Do not such see nature for God; some that nature which is before the eyes; some that nature which is not before the eyes?

102. The Angels are astounded when they hear that there are men who attribute all things to nature . . .

— Nature has been created only to invest what is spiritual, and present it correspondent in the ultimate of order.

107<sup>6</sup>. Hence all things . . . in the nature of the world which are in Divine order relate to good and truth.

112. In the nature of the world, in its three kingdoms, all things which come forth there according to order are forms of uses, or effects formed by use for use; and therefore (they) are correspondences.

116. For nature begins from this sun . . . But the Spiritual . . . is above nature . . . and they communicate solely by correspondences.

313. The learned . . . who had ascribed all things to nature were found to have their interiors completely closed . . . 464<sup>6</sup>.

353. For they who acknowledge nature for the Divine all think from the corporeal Sensuous . . .

483<sup>3</sup>. Those who have ascribed all things to nature . . . in the other life study magical arts . . .

489<sup>5</sup>. Those who have . . . regarded nature as relatively dead, and merely subservient to spiritual things, and have confirmed themselves in this, are in heavenly light. Des.

508<sup>7</sup>. The will is the very nature or native quality of man . . .

509<sup>6</sup>. The evils (of good Spirits) have been of a different kind or nature . . .

575. In these Hells are all those who have acknowledged nature, and denied the Divine . . .

J. 25<sup>4</sup>. The reason (many of the intelligent do not believe in immortality) is that at heart they . . . for the Divine acknowledge nature. Ex.

L. 35. Hence the Lord had . . . a Divine essence from the Father, and a human nature from the mother . . . This human nature from the mother He did not transmute into the Divine Essence . . .

W. 9. To think about God from space is to think about the extense of nature.

46. How sensuously . . . those think who say that nature is from itself.

—<sup>2</sup>. Nor can it be seen that all things of nature are from (love and wisdom), unless nature is regarded from uses in their series and in their order . . .

—<sup>c</sup>. Therefore if forms alone are regarded, not anything of life can be seen in nature, still less anything of love and wisdom ; thus not anything of God.

66. Hence it is that man can be elevated above nature, differently from any animal ; can think analytically and rationally concerning the civil and moral things which are within nature, and also concerning the spiritual and celestial things which are above nature. 69<sup>e</sup>.

69. There are two things proper to nature : space and time . . .

—<sup>c</sup>. But if he denies the Divine omnipresence, and ascribes all things to nature, he does not want to be elevated . . .

73. For not anything proper to nature can be predicated of the Divine . . .

— . Nature derives this measurement from the apparent gyration . . . of the sun.

76. His delirium is caused by [the idea] that God has come forth from Himself, from which he falls downwards into the origin of nature from itself ; from which idea he cannot be set loose except by the spiritual . . . idea concerning eternity . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. The Angels say that . . . in no way can they perceive nature from eternity ; still less nature from itself ; and not at all nature as nature in itself . . .

90<sup>2</sup>. When man dies, he steps entirely out of the world of nature, and leaves behind all things of it, and enters into a World in which there is nothing of nature ; and in that World he lives so separated from nature that there is not any communication by continuity . . .

92. For man . . . has not penetrated deeper than into the interior or purer things of nature ; and therefore many have feigned the habitations of the Angels . . . in the ether, and some in the stars ; thus within nature, and not above or outside of it ; when yet Angels and Spirits are entirely above or outside of nature . . .

157. That . . . nature, because it derives its origin from this sun, is dead. Gen.art.

159. That nature appears in man and animal as alive, is from the life which accompanies and actuates.

162. From these things can be seen the fatuity of those who ascribe all things to nature. Those who have confirmed themselves from nature have induced on themselves the state that they no longer want to elevate the mind above nature ; and therefore their minds are closed above, and open below. Des.

166. No one but a person bereaved of reason can think that all things are from nature, and that even life is from it . . . Nature cannot dispose life to anything, for nature in itself is altogether inert. Ex.

234. The Lord could not enter into (the third degree) except by a nature like human nature . . . For thus He could put off nature, which in itself is dead, and yet is a receptacle of the Divine . . .

262. He then acknowledges nature as the creatress of the universe.

283<sup>2</sup>. Fearing that thus they should (think) that . . . nature is from itself, and thus that the inmost of it is what is called God.

285<sup>e</sup>. As the Divine is not in space, it is not continuous, as is the inmost of nature.

340. This is why those who have written on the origin of plants and animals could not do otherwise than deduce it from nature ; and if from God, that God from the beginning implanted in nature the force of producing such things ; thus not knowing that no force has been implanted in nature ; for in itself it is dead, and no more contributes to produce these things than as an instrument does in the work of a workman, which in order to act must be perpetually moved. It is the Spiritual which . . . proceeds to the ultimates of nature, that produces the forms of plants and animals . . .

344. Sir Hans Sloane . . . ascribed these things to nature, [saying] that the power and force for producing such things has been implanted in it from creation . . . Martin Folkes said that that force is continuous from God the Creator in nature . . . Sir Hans Sloane was convinced by this experience that nature contributes nothing whatever to the productions of plants and animals . . . He added . . . that if he had known the things he now knows of the Spiritual World, he would have ascribed to nature no more than that it subserves the Spiritual which is from God for fixing those things which continually inflow into nature.

349. That the visible things . . . testify that nature has produced nothing, and does produce nothing . . . Gen.art.

—<sup>2</sup>. Those who confirm . . . that the sun . . . produces the things . . . upon the Earth, at last ascribe all things to nature . . . These can afterwards say that God has created nature, and has implanted in it the power of producing such things ; but . . . by God the Creator they mean nature ; some its inmost . . .

350. Some are to be excused in that they have ascribed some visible things to nature. Ex. M.422.

—<sup>2</sup>. These are two reasons for excusing those who have believed that nature produces the visible things from what was implanted from creation.

—<sup>3</sup>. But those who by confirmations in favour of nature have made atheists of themselves, are not to be excused, because they could have confirmed themselves in favour of the Divine . . .

—<sup>c</sup>. Therefore the same who have confirmed themselves in favour of nature even to the separation of the Divine from it, do not account anything as sin . . .

351. Those who believe in the Divine operation in each thing of nature can confirm themselves in favour of the Divine by very many things which they see in nature, more than those who confirm themselves in favour of nature. Ex. 353. 354. 355. M.416. T.12.

—<sup>3</sup>. Those who ascribe all things to nature do indeed see such things, but only think that they exist—sint ; and they say that nature produces them ; and this they say because they have averted their minds from thinking about the Divine ; and those who have (done this), when they see the wonderful things in nature, cannot think rationally, still less spiritually

... and then they think in nature from nature, and not above nature, in like manner as do those who are in Hell ...

[W.] 357. Those who have confirmed themselves in favour of nature ... have been seen by me in the Spiritual World. Des.

—<sup>e</sup>. Therefore let everyone beware of confirmations in favour of nature ...

P. 4<sup>3</sup>. Such a one is in everything not seen with the eye, whether it is in interior nature, or in the Spiritual World.

51<sup>2</sup>. (Thus) there can be no thought about nature from eternity; (nor) about creation from nature; for space and time are proper to nature.

98<sup>1</sup>. Nor are freedom itself and rationality itself possible with those who attribute all things to nature ...

182<sup>3</sup>. It must be thought, either that God rules all things, or that nature does. ... He who thinks that nature rules all things, thinks that natural heat and light do so, which, however, are in themselves dead ...

183<sup>2</sup>. This desire lies inmost hidden ... in the nature of man's life.

187<sup>2</sup>. They attribute (the Divine Providence) either to man or to nature ... Ex.

—<sup>3</sup>. If they should see as in clear day that nature in itself is dead ... still those who have confirmed themselves in favour of nature would not (acknowledge the Divine Providence).

190<sup>e</sup>. From constant and stated things ... some find arguments for their delirium in favour of nature ...

201. Those who ascribe all things to nature also ascribe all things to human prudence; for those who ascribe all things to nature, at heart deny God ...

—<sup>3</sup>. It is the like with the name of a universal Providence ... when it is said concerning nature, and it is meant that God created the universe, and implanted in nature that it should produce all things from itself ...

—<sup>e</sup>. But the Thing in itself is ... that the Divine Providence is in the most singular things of nature ... and, from these, is universal.

205. That those who have acknowledged nature alone ... make Hell. Ex.

—<sup>e</sup>. All who lead an evil life, interiorly acknowledge nature alone ... Ex.

206. (This) is from man's proprium, which is his nature, and is called his soul from his parent.

—<sup>3</sup>. The acknowledgment of nature alone is hidden in every evil. Ex.

—<sup>e</sup>. They reason in favour of nature, and against God ...

208. Those who acknowledge nature ... are as the Spirits of Hell. Des.

213. Who does not speak ... in favour of nature, when he speaks from the external man?

—<sup>e</sup>. Write books ... one in favour of nature ...

220<sup>3</sup>. Man first puts on the grosser things of nature ... but by death he puts these off, and retains the purier things of nature, which are nearest to spiritual things; and these are then his containants.

—<sup>e</sup>. As the extremes and ultimates of nature cannot receive the spiritual and eternal things for which the human mind has been formed, as these are in themselves ... man puts them off ...

233<sup>11</sup>. (The love of self) can confirm by a thousand arguments that nature has created itself; and that it afterwards created men, beasts, and plants of every kind; and also that by influx from its interior self it causes men to live, to think analytically, and to understand wisely.

—<sup>12</sup>. The insanities which nature itself, which in itself is dead, inspires into his phantasy.

235. He who does not at all acknowledge the Divine Providence, at heart ... for God acknowledges nature ... That it is so does not appear. Ex.

249. (Arguments of the worshippers of self and of nature against the Divine Providence.) Gen.art. 250. 251. 252.

314<sup>2</sup>. Concerning life they know nothing else than that it is a certain activity of nature ... If it is said that thus nature is alive this they deny; but [affirm] that nature gives to live.

R. 53<sup>e</sup>. 'To adore the sun and moon'=also to acknowledge nature as creatress of all things ...

M. 328<sup>3</sup>. From that time I ... could not think at all of nature from eternity ... for nature in all time is in time, and in all space is in space; and nature with its time and space must begin and have an origin ... and therefore nature is from God, not from eternity, but in time, that is, together with its own time and space.

380. I was once in amazement at the vast multitude of men who ascribe creation to nature ... and who when they are asked why they say it is of nature, and why not of God, when yet they sometimes say with the community that God has created nature, and therefore they can just as well say that the things which they see are of God, as of nature ... reply in an internal tone ... What is God but nature? ... All Hell is from such ... —<sup>2</sup>. T.35.

—<sup>3</sup>. He was writing about ... I. Whether nature is of life, or life of nature. ... III. Concerning the centre and the expanse of nature and of life. —<sup>6</sup>. —<sup>10</sup>.

—<sup>11</sup>. The expanse of nature is called the natural world.

415. Some who were reasoning sharply about God and nature. ... The satans maintained that God is nothing but nature ... Their arguments. T.77.

—<sup>3</sup>. They believed nature to be a god or god-dess ...

—<sup>e</sup>. The sun of the world, which is pure fire, is what nature has come forth from ... and thus nature is utterly dead.

—<sup>4</sup>. In Heaven there are magnificent and splendid things, and in Hell squalid and unclean ones ... because all in the Heavens worship God, and all in the Hells worship nature.

—<sup>e</sup>. The satans said ... When the delight of evil occupies our minds, we see nothing but nature.

—<sup>5</sup>. The Angels said, We have looked down into the earth at those celebrated for erudition, and who have thought concerning God and nature . . . and we have found six hundred out of a thousand in favour of nature. (Continued under God.)

—<sup>6</sup>. The satans (then) acknowledged . . . that nature has been created to subserve the life which is in God and from God; and that nature in itself is dead . . .

500<sup>6</sup>. (They then openly said that all things are of nature.)

521<sup>2</sup>. Concerning nature, the satyrs said . . .

I. 9. Nature and its world, by which are meant the atmospheres, and the Earths called the planets . . .

10<sup>3</sup>. There are two things which effect all the effects in the universe: life and nature; and they effect them according to order when life from within actuates nature. It is otherwise when nature from within leads life to act. Ex.

T. 12. I inquired what erudition they had brought with them from the world concerning God and nature. They said, that nature operates all things which take place in the created universe; and that God, after creation, induced and impressed on nature that faculty and power . . . I replied that nature from itself does not operate anything, but God through nature. Shown.

13<sup>4</sup>. Those who contemplate the universe . . . as the work of nature . . . close up the higher things of their minds for God, and open the lower things for the devil; and hence put off what is human, and put on what is ferine. Des.

30<sup>3</sup>. Hence it follows that nature is separate from God, and yet he is omnipresent in it. Ex.

37<sup>3</sup>. (Such) kiss nature as the creatress of the universe . . .

75<sup>7</sup>. (Otherwise) the mind . . . easily falls into the idea of the creation of the universe by nature . . .

79. One (of the philosophers from the Christian world) said, My mind is that creation is from nature, and thus that nature has created itself, and that it has been from eternity . . . What else do we see, etc., than nature; and this, being without us, is also within us.

—<sup>2</sup>. Another said, I will tell you how nature operated in producing the universe. Des.

—<sup>4</sup>. But one among them said . . . In my simplicity I have believed that the universe was created by God; and, as nature is of the universe, that universal nature was created at the same time. If nature created itself, would it not have been from eternity?

— . Then one of those so-called wise ones . . . said, I also confess that all nature is from God . . . but whispered to his companions, I said so because there is a priest present; but you and I know that nature is from nature; and because thus nature is God, I said that all nature is from God.

—<sup>5</sup>. The priest (asked them), Whence are your souls . . . were they from nature . . . And they concluded that the human soul is nothing but ether . . . and ether is of nature. (Their arguments.)

—<sup>7</sup>. (The priest said), All who have become corporeal sensuous by confirmations in favour of nature, know no otherwise than that they are in the same world . . . Therefore you suppose that the same nature is here; when yet the nature of this World is as different and distinct from the nature of that world as the substantial is from the material . . . or the prior from the posterior; and as the nature of the world in which you before lived is relatively dead, therefore you, by confirmations in favour of it, are become as it were dead . . .

—<sup>e</sup>. (The infernals said,) We . . . are to remain here for ages of ages, because the nature which we contracted in the world cannot be changed . . .

80<sup>c</sup>. The satan replied, Our God is the universe, which we also call nature . . .

103. Every man, after death . . . retains the Spiritual which is from the father, together with a certain limbus (or border) from the purest things of nature, around it. (Continued under BORDER.)

110<sup>f</sup>. What else is then concluded by the mind concerning God, than that nature is God?

111<sup>10</sup>. Luther, etc. taught . . . that Christ even as to the Human nature is omnipotent and omnipresent . . .

131<sup>o</sup>. According to a law inscribed on nature.

159<sup>6</sup>. The Angels closed the lower regions of their thoughts . . . and opened the higher . . . and then they said . . . What then is God but nature in its primes and ultimates? . . .

178. For example, Let the faith be, that nature is the creatress of the universe. From this it follows that the universe is what is called God; that nature is its essence . . . and as the divinity of nature reaches to the centre of the earth, there is a god there too . . .

351<sup>4</sup>. In universal nature there is not anything which is not confasciculated into series . . . Ex.

373. By the animus is meant man's affection of love and the derivative thought: these form his nature . . .

508<sup>3</sup>. In all these things (the man then) kisses naturé, and loves it from the allurements of its pleasures, as an idolater loves the golden image in his bosom.

563. It is known that habit makes a second nature . . .

588. Man . . . from the ferine nature implanted in him, would . . .

613<sup>2</sup>. Man as to the first nature which he derives from birth is a hell in the least effigy; and as to the second nature which he derives from the second birth, is a Heaven in the least effigy.

672<sup>e</sup>. The latter is contrary to nature, because it is contrary to order; but the former is according to nature, because it is according to order.

695<sup>e</sup>. They are ignorant that . . . the Spiritual World from within actuates each and all things which come forth and are formed in the world of nature, and upon its Earth . . . and that the several things of nature are as tunics, sheaths, and clothing which envelop spiritual things, and proximately produce effects . . .

D. 152<sup>e</sup>. It is within nature.

167. Extends itself into more subtle nature . . .

[D.] 169. Such are the gods adored by those who . . . acknowledge nature as the creator of all things . . .

251. That universal nature in general and in its parts represents . . . Ex.

1770<sup>a</sup>. Concerning the right-jure-of nature. Ex.

2475. That all things in universal nature are representations of the Lord's Kingdom. Ex.

2626. Because it is according to nature.

2760. Concerning the internal nature of man, that it begins to be worse . . . Ex.

—<sup>1</sup>. In the interior sphere of nature there are thousands of such as are evil . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. It is not easy for man to discriminate between the things which are interior of nature, and those which are exterior.

—<sup>e</sup>. In the other life they manifest themselves, and their intentions, which are in the interior sphere of nature . . .

2764. Thus have acquired this nature in actuality . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. The interior nature (there) effects such a sphere . . .

2766. That brute animals live in the order of nature. Ex.

2793<sup>e</sup>. But still (the punishments) do not change the nature, which remains to eternity as contracted in the life of the body . . . 2803.

2855. The Hell of those who . . . had put on such a nature.

3047. Concerning the nature of evil Spirits. Ex.

3145. That the Angels can know the whole nature of a man or Spirit from one of his ideas. Ex.

3267<sup>e</sup>. They have a different nature, which does not agree with the nature of the Spirits of this Earth. 3271.

3457. At once they acted from their nature . . .

3477<sup>e</sup>. Hence they deduce . . . that God came forth together with the world, and thus that nature is God, or that God came forth from nature. 3478<sup>e</sup>.

3484<sup>2</sup>. Therefore all such forms are still within nature . . .

3849. That natures are induced through externals. Ex.

4009. As these things which are of lowest nature cannot be explored, how can those which are of interior nature . . . and how those which are of a still more interior one . . .

4080. It puts on habit, and finally nature . . .

4167. Concerning the nature of Spirits. Gen.art.

4204<sup>2</sup>. Whence was the origin of nature: whether nature was before the world was created, and thus whether nature was eternal . . .

4270<sup>e</sup>. Everyone appropriates to himself the delight of another according to his own nature. Those who do not do so according to their own nature, but want to put on the nature of him who has the delight . . . are rejected . . .

4351. Hence the representation (of serpents casting their skin) which comes forth in actual nature.

—<sup>2</sup>. If he were to pass into interior nature he would be a devil . . .

4359<sup>e</sup>. They then act from nature.

4368. Horror for such things as are against nature is not natural to man . . .

4457<sup>2</sup>. They put on the nature that . . .

4462. They can let themselves into interior nature . . .

4469. Spirits [act] from their natural disposition-indole-or nature which they have acquired, or as it were from instinct.

4479<sup>2</sup>. Actualities . . . put on a species of nature . . .

4604. This is contrary to nature . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. To receive it according to its nature.

4711. Concerning the one God and nature. Gen.art.

4722. Polhem . . . had confirmed himself . . . that everything is from nature . . .

4727. Wolff . . . then confessed that he had believed . . . that nature is everything.

4753. Until their acquired nature becomes full.

4789. That marshy pool was his nature which he had acquired in the world.

—<sup>e</sup>. Such was his animus and nature.

5611. These things are circumstanced as are all things in nature. In nature everything is fixed and ultimate.

5709. There are two foundations of truth; one from the Word, the other from nature or from the Truths of nature . . . The foundation from nature is for those who are natural and are in natural lumen . . . But still the one is in accord with the other . . . Moreover, all things of Heaven have their foundation in the laws of order of nature in the world and in man, which foundation remains constantly fixed . . .

5787. The speech of Spirits is according to the nature of the Thing . . . for the nature of every Thing has been inscribed on man; as the nature of the ether on the eye . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. The reason why in the world they do not speak according to the nature of the Thing . . . is that man is not born into the nature of the Thing . . . and he learns to speak, which cannot be done according to the nature of the Thing . . .

—<sup>a</sup>. The Angels speak according to the nature of the Thing in Heaven; but those who are in externals according to the nature of the Thing in the world . . .

6033. That the nature of a man cannot be taken away after death, but can be broken and mastered. Gen.art.

—<sup>1</sup>. The nature of a man is the delight of his reigning love . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. It was observed that the nature still remains . . . —<sup>4</sup>.

D. Min. 4718<sup>2</sup>. If the life was to become better, he must put on another nature.

4792. They are left to the delights of their nature . . . and when they act according to the nature which they have acquired, they have almost no judgment, but they act from nature . . . They do not receive exhortations . . . their nature acts against them. It often lasts for many years, before their nature suffers itself to be mastered.

E. 151. Man cannot think concerning the Divine Itself devoid of a human form, except as of nature in its leasts. . . Those who have thought of the Father only . . . make for themselves God [from] nature in its leasts . . .

183<sup>11</sup>. The reason they have distinguished the Divine and the Human of the Lord into two natures; and have said that the Lord is God from the nature of the Father, and Man from the nature of the mother, was that . . . Ath. 15.

575<sup>5</sup>. Those who reason . . . from the fallacies of the senses, attribute all things to nature . . . and if they attribute creation to the Divine, they still suppose that all things have been transferred into nature . . . They suppose (all these wonderful) works to be of nature alone . . . yet the reality is . . . that nature has been created in order to subserve for clothing those things which proceed and inflow from the Spiritual World.

778<sup>4</sup>. Still at heart they ascribe creation to nature.

807<sup>2</sup>. They distinguish the Lord into two quasi persons, which they call natures . . . Ath. 89.

954<sup>2</sup>. When the interior thought is from Hell, the man sees nothing else than that nature is God, and that the inmost of nature is what is called the Divine . . .

1097<sup>3</sup>. The thought of God . . . as of nature in its leasts, closes Heaven.

1130<sup>e</sup>. (Thus) it is impossible to think that nature is from eternity, or that it is from itself in time; but it is possible to think that . . . nature together with time is from God.

1206<sup>2</sup>. That nothing in nature comes forth except from the Spiritual, and by it. Gen.art.

1207<sup>2</sup>. That nature in itself is dead, being created in order that the Spiritual may be clothed by it in forms which may subserve for use, and in order that it may be terminated. Gen.art.

1210<sup>3</sup>. There are also as many degrees of spiritual things beneath the Heavens, or in nature, which are lower degrees of spiritual things; as may be evident from the natural mind of man . . .

1215<sup>3</sup>. Everyone who is wise can see at heart, that nature does not produce anything from itself; but that it only subserves the Spiritual for producing that which proceeds from the Sun of Heaven, as an instrumental cause subserves its principal cause, or as a dead force subserves its living force.

De Dom. 27. Those who acknowledge the Father separate and alone, worship nature. 66.

Ath. 33. They remain in the mere idea of (the Lord's) two natures; which, contrary to the words of the Athanasian Creed, they separate.

68. Thus for God the purest of nature is thought of . . .

82. Many who think of God the Father have an indeterminate idea, and these easily acknowledge nature for God . . .

191. Hence the Divine truth is the inmost of the Spiritual World; and it is this from which nature took its origin . . .

192. The maternal human was the Infirm which adheres to nature . . .

De Verbo 6<sup>5</sup>. Those who do not believe the Word from the Word cannot possibly believe anything Divine from nature. Sig.

D. Love v<sup>3</sup>. There is nothing (of these things) which the Spiritual from nature . . . does not collect into a one . . .

D. Wis. iii. 2. Nothing in nature comes forth except from seed . . .

viii<sup>7</sup>. The reason Spirits and Angels derive from this that they can subsist . . . to eternity, is from the fact that they have first been born men in the world; for they draw with them from the inmosts of nature a medium between the Spiritual and the Natural, by which they are finited (or bounded), so that they are subsistent and permanent: through this they have what is relative to those things which are in nature . . . by this also they can be adjoined and conjoined with the human race; for there is conjunction, and where there is conjunction there must be a medium. That there is such a medium, the Angels know; but as it is from the inmosts of nature, and the words of languages are from its ultimates, it cannot be described except by abstract things.

xii. Those who think in simplicity concerning nature as the creatress, are the exterior natural ones.

2<sup>e</sup>. Therefore to acknowledge nature . . . is to adore the fire which is in the sun of the world. Those who do this are dead . . .

Docu. 302. A<sup>e</sup>. All things of nature are like sheaths around spiritual things . . . This is the cause of all the wonders and miracles in nature.

Nausea. Nausea.

Nauseate. Nauseare.

Nauseous. Nauseabundus.

A. 454<sup>e</sup>. They nauseate (such an idle life). H. 403<sup>e</sup>.

2749. By adulteries have taken a loathing and nausea for marriages.

2763<sup>e</sup>. Feels loathing, nay, nausea, (when the Spiritual is named).

3427<sup>2</sup>. Then from them . . . aversion, nay, nausea, was perceived.

3769<sup>4</sup>. At the mere hearing they, from aversion, nauseate it.

3881. When the spiritual life . . . is mentioned . . . he is nauseated . . .

5006<sup>2</sup>. Then he nauseates at the things of Heaven.

5702. When compelled to hear the interior things of the Word, they were seized with such nausea that . . .

6202. They relate to such things . . . as are nauseous.

W. 254<sup>2</sup>. The Truth (then) becomes nausea.

M. 266<sup>3</sup>. It remains undigested, from which comes nausea.

[M.] 433<sup>2</sup>. Nausea (towards the sex). 453. D.4092.
441. At last feels (fleshly delights) as . . . nauseous . . .

D. 2623<sup>e</sup>. The human race . . . would have felt . . .
nausea thence.

3922. They then nanseate (their wives).

3946. Conjugal love is nausea to them . . . it excited nausea.

3985. After a little time he would loathe and nauseate (such an idle life).

4117. He had (previously) nanseated (that food).

D. Min. 4733. Spirits who produced a grievous nausea of the belly . . .

Navel. Umbilicus.

A. 1118. The respiration proceeded from the navel towards the heart. 1120. 7361. D.3322. 3324.

7077<sup>2</sup>. That cohort appeared . . . in the plane of the region below the navel.

7362. Their respiration . . . proceeds from the region of the chest towards the navel . . .

D. 1348. Naked only to the navel . . .

3490. Their respiration . . . was within the region of the navel . . . 3490a<sup>2</sup>.

Navigate. Navigare.

Navigation. Navigatio.

A. 1378<sup>2</sup>. As in navigation around the globe . . .

9354. By navigations to all the places of the world.

B. 98<sup>e</sup>. To navigate to the Pleiades.

D. 2545. That they can navigate around the globe . . .

Nay. See under NOT.

Nazarite. Naziraeus.

Nazariteship. Nazireatus.

See under SAMSON.

A. 2187<sup>2</sup>. The law for the Nazarite—that in the days of his Nazariteship he should not eat of anything of the grape, whence is wine . . . (Num. vi.4)—was because the Nazarite represented the celestial man, and the celestial man is such that he is not willing even to mention spiritual things . . . and as wine and the grape, and also whatever is from the grape, signified what is spiritual, it was prohibited to the Nazarite to eat of them; that is, to have communication with them, to conjoin himself with them, and to appropriate them to himself.
2342<sup>2</sup>. 2830<sup>3</sup>.

3300<sup>3</sup>. By the Nazarites was represented the Lord as to the Divine Human, especially as to the Divine Natural . . .

3301<sup>3</sup>. That 'the hair' signified the Natural as to truth, may be evident from the Nazarites, to whom it was commanded that during all the days of their Nazariteship, 'no razor should pass upon their head . . .'
(Num. vi.5, 18, 19). They represented the Lord as to the Divine Human, and thence they represented the man of the Celestial Church, who is 'a likeness' of the Lord; and they represented the Natural of that man by their hair; and therefore when they were being sanctified they were to put off their natural . . . man . . . and put on the new one; which was signified by . . . that when the days were fulfilled . . . they should let down the hair of their heads, and should put it on the fire beneath the sacrifice. (Continued under CELESTIAL.)

—4. The Nazarite had relation to the celestial man; and, so long as he had hair, he had relation to the Natural of that man, who . . . is in truth so powerful and strong. . . Hence Samson had his strength; but he was not a sanctified Nazarite . . . who had put on a state of good in place of truth . . .

3812<sup>4</sup>. 'The Nazarite' = the celestial man. 5144<sup>6</sup>.

5113<sup>17</sup>. As 'the Nazarite' represented the celestial man, and this man is regenerated through the good of love, and not through the truth of faith, as is the spiritual man; and as consequently the celestial man is not regenerated as to the Intellectual, but as to the Voluntary . . . therefore the Nazarite was forbidden to eat anything which goes forth from the vine, and also to drink wine.

5247<sup>4</sup>. The Lord as to the Divine Natural was represented by the Nazarite . . .

6437. 'For the vertex (or crown of the head) of the Nazarite of his brethren' (Gen. xlix. 26) = as to exteriors.
. . . 'A Nazarite' = exteriors, because the Nazarites represented the Lord as to the Divine Natural, which is the external Divine Human. That the Nazarites represented this is evident from the fact that the Nazarite-ship is the hair, and that its holiness consisted in the hair . . . for the hair corresponds to the Natural. This is evident also from those who made a vow of Nazarite-ship . . . and it is evident also from Samson, who was a Nazarite, in that his strength consisted in his hair.
Further ill.

9407<sup>9</sup>. The Nazarites signified the Lord as to the Divine Natural; hence also the Divine truth proceeding from Him in ultimates, which is the Word in the sense of the letter . . .

9836<sup>2</sup>. That power and strength consist in ultimates, was represented in the Ancient Church by the hair with the Nazarites, in which consisted their strength, as is evident from Samson . . . and also their holiness. . .
The hair, which with them was the Nazariteship, corresponds to the ultimates of good and truth, or to good and truth in ultimates.

9873<sup>6</sup>. The Nazarites represented the celestial man . . .

10132<sup>10</sup>. That these things were sacrificed by the Nazarite after the fulfilling of the days of his Nazarite-ship, was because the Nazarite represented the celestial man, or the Lord as to the Divine Celestial. The Divine Celestial is the Divine of the Lord in the Inmost
Heaven; and this Divine is innocence.

S. 35<sup>3</sup>. The Nazarites represented the Lord as to the Word in its ultimates . . . therefore it was a statute for them that they should make the hair of the head grow
. . . Moreover in the Hebrew 'Nazarite' means 'the hair.' 49<sup>2</sup>.

49<sup>2</sup>. The power of the Lord from the ultimates of truth was represented by the Nazarites in the Jewish Church . . .

R. 47<sup>2</sup>. The Nazarites in the Israelitish Church represented the Lord as to the Word in ultimates, which is the sense of its letter; for 'Nazarite' in the Hebrew is 'the hair—capillus seu coma.' Hence Samson, who was a Nazarite from the womb, had power in his hair. In like manner is the Divine truth in the sense of the letter . . . in power . . . —<sup>3</sup>, III. —<sup>4</sup>.

T. 223. That the power of the Word in ultimates was represented by the Nazarites. Gen.art.

Ad. 3/6879. After he was sanctified, wine could not inebriate the Nazarite. (See WINE, here.)

E. 66<sup>3</sup>. For the Nazarite represented the Lord in primes and in ultimates; and His Divine in ultimates was His Human . . .

196<sup>4</sup>. As the Nazarites represented the Lord as to Divine truth in ultimates . . .

295<sup>10</sup>. 'The vertex of the Nazarite of his brethren' = the intelligence and knowledge which are of the external man.

364<sup>5</sup>. By the Nazarites was represented the Lord as to the Divine Human; wherefore also by them in the relative sense was signified the good of celestial love, because this good proceeds immediately from the Divine Human of the Lord. Its representative in the Church is thus described (Lam.iv.7).

372<sup>5</sup>. The Nazarites represented the Lord as to the Divine Celestial . . . and as the principal representative of the Lord was the Nazariteship, by these words is signified that all the representative of the Lord has perished. A genuine representative of the Lord is described by 'the Nazarites were whiter than milk . . .'

577<sup>6</sup>. That (these blessings) shall come upon the vertex of the Nazarite of his brethren' = that they shall take place also in the exteriors which are of his natural mind; for the Nazariteship = the exteriors which are of the natural mind; for it means the hair—crines seu capillitium.

652<sup>10</sup>. By (these words in Lam.iv.) is signified that the Divine truth is in such obscurity that it does not appear to anyone; [for] by 'the Nazarites' was represented the Lord as to the Divine truth; hence by them is signified the Divine truth from the Lord.

918<sup>11</sup>. This law (Num.vi.3,4) was for the Nazarite before he had fulfilled the days of his Nazariteship, because he then represented the Lord as to His first state. The first state the Lord had . . . was that He was sensuous . . . The Sensuous . . . is signified by the hair of the head; and, as the Sensuous is the extreme of the life of man, and all power resides in the extreme, therefore the Nazarites had such strength . . . Such power had the Lord when He was a child, by which He overcame and subjugated the most direful Hells, where all are sensuous. This state of the Lord was represented by the days of fulfilling with the Nazarites; and, when these had been fulfilled, the Lord entered from what was sensuous and natural into the Divine Spiritual and Celestial. Now, as this state and its good and truth is signified by 'grapes,' and by 'wine,' therefore the

VOL. IV.

Nazarite was not allowed to eat grapes and drink wine until he had fulfilled those days.

—<sup>12</sup>. That in the end of the days of the fulfilling he was to shave the head, and put the hair of his head upon the fire which was under the sacrifice of the peace-offerings, represented the Sensuous then new from the Divine Celestial; for new hair afterwards grew on the Nazarite; and also represented that the Lord, from the ultimate Divine truth, which is the sense of the letter, had entered into the interior Divine truth which is the Word in its internal sense, even to the highest there; for the Lord, when in the world, was the Word . . . and this more interiorly by degrees as He grew up . . .

1086<sup>5</sup>. This power in ultimates was represented by the hair with the Nazarites; as with Samson; for the hair corresponds to the ultimates of Divine truth.

De Verbo 10<sup>4</sup>. The Nazariteship is the hair; for by the Nazariteship was represented the Lord as to His ultimates; thus also Heaven in the ultimates . . .

Neapolitans. Neapolitani.

D. 5847. Those in the last (or ultimate) mountains, who were Neapolitans and the worst ones of Italy . . .

5858. See LAST JUDGMENT, here.

Near. See under APPROACH and NEIGHBOUR.

Near. Juxta.

A. 4376. 'To go near thee' (Gen.xxxiii.12) = adjunction . . .

5216. 'After them' = near, or in the boundary. Ex.

5601. 'According to the mouth' (Gen.xliii.7) = congruously.

5754. 'According to these words' (Gen.xliv.7) = that Thing, or such a thing.

5952. 'According to the mouth of Pharaoh' (Gen.xlv.21) = as it pleased.

6739. The truth of the Church near the religiosity there. Sig.

H. 255<sup>2</sup>. Even if it be close to his ear.

T. 77<sup>5</sup>. The erudite ones stood now near the Angels, now near the satans . . .

Near. Prope, Propinquus.

Proximately. Proxime.

See APPROACH—appropinquare.

A. 1799<sup>2</sup>. Those who are external (in Heaven) are not so near-propinquus aut prope the Lord . . . The Lord from Divine love . . . wants to have all near Him.

1802<sup>2</sup>. Therefore the nearer they are to the Lord, the more they are heirs.

2145<sup>9</sup>. The more they were elevated to the celestial things of charity and love, the more interior they were, because they were then nearer the Lord.

2303<sup>9</sup>. In the same proportion the Angels inflow more nearly or remotely.

2428. 'This city is near to flee thither' (Gen.xix.20) = that it was allowable from the truth of faith. . . It is called 'near' because truth has affinity with good.

3339<sup>9</sup>. In proportion as Spirits and Angels are in the intelligence of truth and in the affection of good, in the same proportion they are nearer the Lord.

[A.] 3344°. The Angels of the Third Heaven are proximately in the Lord's life.

4151°. For the things which there happen near a man appear to the man as if they were in him. (Compare 4249°.)

4527°. They wanted me to tell their relatives . . .

5146. For interior things are nearer the Divine, and exterior ones are more remote thence.

5689°. The proximate clothing of the Divine Itself.

5911. 'Thou shalt be near to me' (Gen.xlv.10)=perpetual conjunction. . . To be near=propinquus-him, thus to be continually near=prope-him, is perpetual conjunction.

6524°. Those are called wise who are in the Third Heaven, thus who are nearest the Lord; but those intelligent who are in the Second Heaven, thus who are not so near the Lord.

6806°. Those who are similar as to the states of life appear to be near each other . . .

7177. Their Earth is nearer the sun.

7835. 'He and his neighbour near his house' (Ex.xii.4)=conjunction with the nearest good of truth.

8094. 'Because it was near' (Ex.xiii.17)=that it first presents itself.

8918°. Heaven and Hell are near man . . .

9375°. 'To be sanctified in them that are nigh' (Lev.x.3)=in those who are conjoined with the Lord through the good of love and truth of faith from the Word.

9378°. Hence it is that the Heavens are near the Lord according to goods, and that the Hells are remote . . . according to evils. Hence it is evident whence it is that 'to be near,' and 'to approach,' in the spiritual sense, is to be conjoined. III.

10490. 'Slay ye a man his brother, and a man his companion, and a man his neighbour' (Ex.xxxii.27)=a closing up as to the influx of good and truth, and of things in affinity with them. Ex.

— For those who are in affinity are neighbours.

H. 25. Thus they are nearer to Him. Ex.

34. Interior things are nearer the Divine . . . and exterior things are more remote . . .

46. Just as men know their kindred . . . In the other life there are no kindreds . . .

120. The higher Heavens, being in the good of love, are nearest the Lord as a Sun . . .

193. Hence it is that those are near=in propinquo-each other who are in a like state . . .

199. All things are near and afar according to His presence . . .

280°. As these Angels are such, they are nearest the Lord.

391°. The Angels dwell near to the man in proportion as he is in good from truths . . .

P. 32. That man can be more and more nearly conjoined with the Lord. Ex. 33, Ex. —°, Ex.

R. 947. 'The time is at hand' (Rev.xxii.10)=that this is necessary in order that some may be saved. 'Near'=necessary. Ex.

M. 42°. I said, Come nearer . . .

I. 5. That Sun . . . is the proximate sphere around Him.

E. 16. 'The time is at hand' (Rev.i.3)=such an interior state. . . 'Near'=what is internal. Compare R. 9.

—°. The reason 'near'=more interiorly. Ex.

— The Lord is nearer to Angel, Spirit, and man in proportion as they love Him more interiorly . . .

25. What anyone longs to see is there near . . .

316°. 'A people near to Him' (Ps.cxlvi.14) . . . He is called 'near' who by these things is conjoined with the Lord.

406°. 'Near' is said of the goods which are in the spiritual man.

1133. The internal things of man . . . in the Word are meant by 'things near' . . .

—°. 'Those who are near'=those who are of the Church, and from the Word are in truths.

Nebaioth. Nebaioth.

A. 2830°. 'The rams of Nebaioth' (Is.lx.7)=Divine spiritual things.

3268. 'The first-born of Ishmael, Nebaioth, etc.' (Gen.xxv.14)=all things which are of the Spiritual Church, especially with the gentiles. III.

3688. 'The sister of Nebaioth . . .' (Gen.xxviii.9)=the affection of celestial truth . . . 'Nebaioth'=the good which is of the Spiritual Church.

10042°. 'The rams of Nebaioth'=the goods of innocence and of charity there. . . 'Nebaioth'=those there who are in it.

E. 282°. 'The rams of Nebaioth which shall minister'=the truths which from spiritual affection lead the life.

Nebo. Nebo.

A. 2468°. The falsities with which they are imbued are signified by 'Nebo,' etc. (Jer.xlviii.). E. 811°. 15.

Nebuchadnezzar. Nebuchadnezzar.

A. 1361°. The worst of all kings could represent; as . . . Nebuchadnezzar . . .

1975. The dreams . . . of Nebuchadnezzar, etc. . .

3727°. 'Nebuchadnezzar king of Babel' (Ezek.xxvi.7)=that which is profane which vastates. 10227°. 12.

7519°. 'Nebuchadnezzar king of Babel' (Jer.xliii.10)=the vastator of truth and good.

R. 47°. As Nebuchadnezzar . . . represented the Babylonish falsification of the Word, and the destruction of all truth there, it came to pass that 'his hair grew like that of eagles.'

E. 409°. Hence even Nebuchadnezzar is called 'the servant of Jehovah.'

622°. 'Nebuchadnezzar king of Babel'=the profanation of Divine truth . . .

650<sup>33</sup>. By Nebuchadnezzar as king of Babel, in the beginning, is signified the Celestial Church and its increase even to the summit of wisdom . . .

652<sup>18</sup>. 'Nebuchadnezzar king of Babel' = the profanation of truth and its consequent destruction.

654<sup>39</sup>. That the cupidities of the love of self and the derivative falsities will devastate, is signified by 'the hand of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babel, he and his people' (Ezek. xxx. 10, 11).

—<sup>43</sup>. 'Whom Nebuchadnezzar king of Babel hath smitten' (Jer. xlv. 2) = its destruction by the pride of Own intelligence.

714<sup>21</sup>. 'Babel,' and 'Nebuchadnezzar,' here (Jer. li.) = the adulteration and profanation of good and truth.

799<sup>12</sup>. 'Nebuchadnezzar king of Babel' = the evils and falsities which devastate.

811<sup>8</sup>. By 'Nebuchadnezzar,' or by 'the king of Babel,' in the Word, are meant those who destroy all things of the Church by evils . . . and, in the abstract sense, the evils which destroy. That 'Nebuchadnezzar' shall come and shall smite the land of Egypt' = the destruction of the natural man as to all the goods and derivative truths from the Word.

1029<sup>6</sup>. By this state of Nebuchadnezzar is described the state of those after death who exalt themselves as gods over all things of the Church . . .

Necessary. Oportet.

E. 105<sup>e</sup>. It is necessary for those within the Church to believe in the Lord . . .

Necessity. Necessitas.

Necessary. Necessarius.

A. 978<sup>e</sup>. These things . . . are not necessary to salvation.

1886<sup>e</sup>. Nothing (else) is necessary for souls, that they may enter into Heaven.

2051. By (its repetition) is expressed the necessity . . . 9463.

2225. The essential things of faith, being necessary to salvation, are stated in the letter . . .

3637. Hence the necessity of the Advent of the Lord into the world . . .

5297<sup>e</sup>. From which man is spiritually nourished in all necessity . . .

5300. According to the necessity in the lackings. Sig. and Ex.

6487. They had impressed on themselves something concerning fate or necessity . . . But they were shown that man is free, and (therefore) it is not from necessity. Examp.

6810<sup>e</sup>. Worldly things are no care to them, except in so far as the necessities of life require. 8116<sup>e</sup>.

6934. Everyone must provide for himself the necessities of life. Enum. . . Unless each one procures for himself the necessities of life, he cannot be in a state to exercise charity towards the neighbour . . .

7038. The frequenting of a place of worship, the hearing of preachings, and prayers, are also necessary things . . .

8418. Constantly for necessity. Sig. and Ex.

8478. By which (words) is signified that the Lord daily provides necessities, and that thus they ought not to be solicitous concerning the acquiring of them from themselves. Ex.

—<sup>3</sup>. He who views the matter no further than from the sense of the letter, may believe . . . that necessities are to be expected daily from Heaven . . . Ex.

H. 29<sup>e</sup>. From the necessity of order, Heaven is tripartite.

79. They are carried into this necessity of thinking, from the Divine Itself which inflows . . .

361<sup>2</sup>. Good uses are to provide for one's self and one's own the necessities of life; and to want an abundance for the sake of our Country and the neighbour . . .

393<sup>e</sup>. All the necessities of life are given them gratis . . .

P. 125<sup>e</sup>. Therefore it is not necessary for man to know more than that he must shun evils as sins, and look to the Lord.

215<sup>4</sup>. In the most ancient times . . . there was no other love of riches than that they should possess the necessities of life . . . Among the necessities of their life were also becoming houses, furnished with useful things of every kind, and also garments . . .

220<sup>5</sup>. Temporary things . . . in special relate to the necessities of every man, which are food, clothing, and habitation. These also are put off and left behind by death . . .

249<sup>4</sup>. All the laws of the Divine Providence are necessities . . .

R. 153<sup>7</sup>. Therefore necessity compels (them to work).

947. That this is necessary—necessum—at the end of the Church, in order that some may be saved. Sig.

M. 452<sup>2</sup>. In this case, fornication . . . is for him a necessity.

T. 308<sup>2</sup>. They all bear witness that, through the sun and the earth . . . the Lord provides all necessities for animate and inanimate things.

406. Everyone must provide for himself the necessities of life . . . and many things more which are necessarily required in the civil life in which he is; and this not only for himself, but also for his family; and not for the present time only, but also for the future; (otherwise) he is not in a state to exercise charity . . .

414. Men ought to do good to their country from love, according to its necessities, some of which are natural, and some spiritual. Natural necessities regard civil life and order; and spiritual necessities regard spiritual life and order.

D. 2563. He who has faith in the Lord . . . unconsciously—nescius—obtains all things which are necessary, and all things which are useful for necessary things.

2628. That there are mere necessities by means of which man is led. Ex.

2630. But they do not appear to man as necessities . . .

2998. They were informed that they must by no means say other than they think, except from the last necessity.

[D.] 3114. I perceived . . . that (men) cannot possibly be led better than they are; so that there are necessities every moment of their lives . . .

4022. Heaven consists of love, and thence has from the Lord all the Knowledges of faith which are necessary to it . . .

4237. The punishers are so suddenly present (because) it is necessary for man to sleep in safety . . . Hence so great a penalty follows from necessity; and (the action of the punishers) is on account of the atrociousness of the wickedness relatively to the necessity.

D. Min. 4652<sup>e</sup>. (Thus) man is led by the Lord by continual necessities to foreseen ends, and still [he is led] by his freedom.

4692. Spirits supposed that all things are accomplished from absolute necessity, and thus that the whole life is a necessity, consequently that the Lord is bound by necessity . . . But they were shown that they have all freedom, and that if there is freedom there is not necessity, because there are so many contingent things which carry man to the opposite things in freedom. Examp.

E. 1193<sup>3</sup>. Yet everyone ought to provide for himself and his the necessities and requisites of life from love; but not from the love of self.

D. Love xii<sup>2</sup>. All the necessary, useful, and delightful things of life there inflow according to the quality of the use. Def. and Ex.

C. 196. Those who do the works of their employments solely for the sake of food and the necessities of life, etc. Des.

Neck. Cervix.

Cervical. Cervicalis.

A. 3695. Things of the neck (or 'pillows')=communication with external things; for the neck=cervix seu collum=the communication of the interiors with the exteriors; or what is the same, of higher things with lower ones, and the derivative conjunction. Hence the things which are under the neck, that is, pillows, here (Gen.xxviii.11)=the communication of inmost or Divine things with outermost ones, which communication is most general . . . 3725.

6365. 'Thy hand shall be in the neck of thine enemies' (Gen.xlix.8)=that the infernal and diabolical crew shall flee away at his presence. . . For when an enemy flees, the hand of the conqueror is in his neck. E.433<sup>4</sup>.

9330. 'I will put all thine enemies the neck to thee' (Ex.xxiii.27)=the flight and damnation of falsities. . . 'To give (or put) the neck'=flight.

10429. 'The people it is hard in neck' (Ex.xxxii.9)=that it does not receive influx from the Lord. 'Hard in neck'=not to receive influx; for by 'the neck,' and by 'the neck-collum' is signified the conjunction and communication of higher and lower things, thus influx. Refs. 10532. 10628.

— For the face corresponds to those things which are of the internal man, and the body to those things which are of the external, and the neck to their conjunction.

P. 95<sup>e</sup>. Love and wisdom enter man by the face, and not by the nape.

310<sup>4</sup>. The Genii at once applied themselves to my nape, beneath the occiput, and thence entered into my affections . . .

D. 4235. (Solifidians) act into part of the nape or occiput . . .

6066. Those who are industrious constitute the province of the neck. . . By industry there is effected the communication of the head with the body.

E. 412<sup>20</sup>. From this appearance it is said that . . . 'He beholds them with the nape, and not with the faces.' Ill.

1056<sup>2</sup>. As man becomes wise, the spiritual mind becomes to him as the head, and the natural mind as the body, to which the rational mind serves for conjunction as the neck does to the head . . .

1145<sup>8</sup>. 'They have turned to Me the nape and not the face' (Jer.ii.27)=that they have averted themselves from all good and truth.

De Conj. 106. (Such) are in the province of the neck of the womb . . .

Neck. Collum.

Decollate. Decollare.

Decollation. Decollatio.

A. 1327<sup>6</sup>. 'To serve the king of Babel, and put the neck in his yoke' (Jer.xxvii.8)=to be completely deprived of the Knowledge and acknowledgment of the good and truth of faith; thus of internal worship. (Compare 3542<sup>4</sup>.)

3542. 'Upon the smooth of his necks' (Gen.xxvii.16)=that disjoining truth should not appear. . . 'The necks'=that which conjoins.

—<sup>2</sup>. That 'the neck'=that which conjoins, is from this: that the higher things with man, which are of the head, communicate with his lower things, which are of the body, by the interceding neck. Hence it is that both influx and communication, and consequently conjunction, are signified by this intermediate. Ill.

—<sup>4</sup>. As by 'the neck' was signified this communication and conjunction, therefore by 'the bonds of the neck' was signified interception, and consequently the desolation of truth, which comes forth when the spiritual things which continually inflow from the Lord are no longer admitted into the Rational of man, and consequently neither into his Natural. Ill.

—<sup>5</sup>. 'To open the bonds of the neck' (Is.lii.2)=to admit and receive good and truth.

3603. 'Thou shalt break his yoke from off thy neck' (Gen.xxvii.40)=that then the conjunction would be by good, and that truth would be of good. 'To break the yoke from off the neck'=deliverance (or liberation). By 'the neck' is signified influx and communication, and the derivative conjunction; and by 'a yoke upon the neck,' interclusion and interception . . . and when there is no longer any interclusion and interception, good inflows and conjoins itself with truth. Ex.

4352. 'He fell upon his neck' (Gen.xxxiii.4)=the second conjunction of all things in that universal. 'To fall upon the neck'=a closer conjunction, for it is a closer embracing. By 'the neck' also, in the internal sense, is signified the influx and communication between the interiors and the exteriors, and the consequent conjunction. 5320.

5320. 'He put a necklace of gold upon his neck' (Gen.xli.42)=a significative of the conjunction of the interiors with the exteriors effected by good.

5328<sup>2</sup>. The Third Heaven relates to the head . . . the Second to the body . . . and therefore by the neck, because it is intermediate, is signified influx, and the communication of celestial things with spiritual ones.

5926. 'He fell upon the necks of Benjamin' (Gen.xlv.14)=inmost conjunction with the medium; (for) 'the neck'=influx, communication, and conjunction; and, properly, the conjunction of celestial and spiritual things; thus the conjunction of the Celestial Internal, which is 'Joseph,' with the Spiritual of the Celestial, which is 'Benjamin.' Hence 'to fall upon the necks'=to conjoin one's self closely; and, consequently, it=inmost conjunction.

6033. 'He fell upon his necks' (Gen.xlvi.29)=conjunction; (for) 'to fall upon the necks'=close and inmost conjunction. That 'to fall upon the necks'=conjunction, is derived from this: that the neck conjoins the head and the body; and by the head are signified the interiors, and by the body the exteriors; hence the neck=the conjunction of interiors with exteriors; and thence the communication of interiors with exteriors; and also of celestial things with spiritual ones.

6436. Hence the neck=what is intermediate.

8079. 'Thou shalt decollate it' (Ex.xiii.13)=that it is to be separated and cast out. . . The reason 'to decollate' has this signification, is that 'the neck'=the conjunction of interior things with exterior ones; thus 'decollation'=separation and casting out.

9755<sup>15</sup>. 'The neck'=the conjunction of the interiors and the exteriors; 'to be hung' there (Matt.xviii.6)=the interclusion and interception of good and truth.

9913. By the neck, where was the mouth of the head of the robe, is signified the influx, the communication, and [the conjunction] of celestial with spiritual things; for the head corresponds to the Celestial Kingdom, and the body to the Spiritual Kingdom; hence the intervening neck . . . corresponds to the intermediation, that is, to the influx, of the Celestial Kingdom into the Spiritual Kingdom. 9914<sup>2</sup>.

9916<sup>2</sup>. There corresponds to this influx the texture of the neck, which is of strong nerves, and, lower down, is a kind of circle of bones woven together, by means of both of which the influx is rendered safe from every injury . . .

10005<sup>4</sup>. The neck, from correspondence, is the medium which unites the Inmost and the Middle Heaven; in like manner as did the veil in the Tent.

D. 5043<sup>0</sup>. (The Swedish Spirits) held my neck, and head; and by this the thoughts and will were so bound, that interior thought from the Lord could scarcely inflow.

6073. The Angels therefore gave him a cincture for the neck . . . which had such an effect that he could scarcely see . . . the reason of which was that he had burst asunder the bond between heavenly and moral things; (for) the things of Heaven and the Church make the head, and moral and natural things the body, and the neck makes the conjunction. Hence it was evident what is signified by the neck, and what by its covering.

E. 304<sup>28</sup>. 'He shall reach even to the neck' (Is.viii.8)=that thus [there shall be] no longer a communication of good and truth.

687<sup>16</sup>. 'The bonds of the neck'=falsities inhibiting the entrance of truths.

811<sup>26</sup>. 'Open the bonds of thy neck, O captive daughter of Zion' (Is.lii.2)=deliverance from detention from truths by falsities which impede the reception of influx from Heaven . . .

923<sup>5</sup>. 'He shall halve even to the neck' (Is.xxx.28)=the devastation thereof by falsities even so that it is not understood; for by 'the neck' is signified conjunction, which perishes when that which is beneath is taken away.

1182<sup>2</sup>. 'To be hung at the neck' (Matt.xviii.6)=interception lest he should know good and truth.

Neckcloth. See NECK-collum, at D.6073.

Necklace. See CHAIN-torques.

Nectar. Nectar. A.4966<sup>2</sup>.

Nectareous. Nectareus. A.4459<sup>6</sup>. T.742<sup>2</sup>.

Need. See under WORK-opus.

Need. Ejestas.

Needy. Egenus.

See under POOR.

A. 2220<sup>2</sup>. See MISERY, here.

4459<sup>4</sup>. To be poor and needy (in Heaven) is to be rich and abounding. Ex.

— He is called poor and needy, who believes from the heart and affection that he possesses nothing from himself, knows nothing and is not wise from himself, and has no power from himself. In Heaven he is rich and abounds; for the Lord gives him all opulence, for he is wiser than all others . . . and he is in the treasures of all the riches of Heaven.

6915. No more a life in need as to those things which are of the natural mind. Sig.

— 'Empty'=where there is no truth; thus where there is spiritual need.

6934<sup>0</sup>. For he is in need of all things. (Compare T.406.)

9209. 'If thou shalt lend silver to My people, to the needy one with thee' (Ex.xxii.25)=the instruction of those who are in ignorance of truth, and still long to learn . . . for these are in spiritual need, and are to be instructed.

—<sup>2</sup>. See DO GOOD, here,

[A. 9209]<sup>3</sup>. See POOR, here. —<sup>5</sup>.

—<sup>5</sup>. 'The needy,' here, (Ps.lxxii.4) are those who are in spiritual need, and thus are in hunger, that is, in the longing and will to be instructed in truths.

—<sup>6</sup>. 'The needy' (Ps.xxxv.10)=those who are in little truth; and 'the poor,' those who are in a little good, [both of whom] are being infested by evils and falsities. From these infestations 'the needy' are, in the Original Language, 'the afflicted.'

—<sup>6</sup>. In these passages, 'the needy'=those who are in ignorance of truth and long to be instructed.

9260. 'Thou shalt not turn aside the judgment of thy needy in his cause' (Ex.xxiii.6)=the non-destruction of a little truth with those who are in ignorance. . . 'The needy'=those who, from ignorance, are in little truth, and still long to be instructed.

9275. 'The needy of thy people shall eat' (Ex.xxiii.11)=conjunction through the good of charity with those who are in few truths, and still long to be instructed.

9960<sup>7</sup>. 'Miserable, needy, blind, and naked' (Rev.iii.17)=that they are devoid of truths implanted in the life; thus devoid of good.

S. 84. 'Needy' is an expression which is predicated of truth; and, in the opposite sense, of falsity.

P. 220<sup>10</sup>. After death, instead of riches they have needs.

R. 95. '(I know thine) affliction and need' (Rev.ii.9)=that they are in falsities, and thence not in goods.

— . By 'the poor,' in the Word, is meant one who is not in truths; and by 'the needy,' one who is not in goods.

E. 118<sup>3</sup>. 'The poor and needy'=those who believe that they know nothing from themselves; and also those who do not know because they have not the Word.

329<sup>18</sup>. By 'the needy' are signified those who, from spiritual affection, long for truths.

386<sup>19</sup>. 'Those who seek Jehovah shall not need any good' (Ps.xxxiv.10)=those who on this account are loved by the Lord and receive truths and goods from Him. 'The young lions who shall have need and hunger'=those who know and are wise from themselves.

481<sup>3</sup>. 'The poor and needy' (Is.xxv.4)=those who are in lack of good from ignorance of truth, and yet long for them.

483<sup>2</sup>. The gentiles are called poor and needy' (Is.xli.17) from the defect and ignorance of truth . . .

721<sup>13</sup>. 'Jehovah . . . exalteth the needy out of the dung-hill' (Ps.cxiii.7)=those who are in falsities from ignorance and thence not in goods.

817<sup>9</sup>. 'The poor'=those who are not in truths, and still long for them; and 'the needy'=those who are not in goods, but still at heart will them.

Need. Indigentia.

Need, To have. Indigere.

Needy person. Indigens.

A. 5365. The need of good for truth. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. Truth has need of good, and good has need of truth; and when truth has need of good, truth is conjoined with good; and when good has need of truth, good is conjoined with truth.

— . As good increases, he is in need of truth.

5579. In the Spiritual World . . . they (then) come again into need (of food).

—<sup>e</sup>. What is meant by the need of spiritual things when truths were deficient.

6389. They pass by those who need aid the most.

6704. (The idea) that good is to be done to everyone who needs aid.

9174<sup>e</sup>. Not to have need of others, because all things are given him by the Lord. Sig.

H. 215. They have governors, fewer or more according to the need of the Society.

T. 425. That the beneficial things of charity are, to give to the poor, and aid the needy, but with prudence. Gen.art.

Needle. Acus.

A. 9144<sup>2</sup>. If touched with the point of a needle, it contracts. T.258<sup>2</sup>.

H. 365<sup>3</sup>. By 'the eye of a needle' is signified spiritual truth.

—(k). What 'needlework' is, and hence what 'a needle,' see A.9688.

T. 29<sup>2</sup>. The whole Spiritual World might (in that case) be drawn through the eye of a needle.

Needless. Supervacaneus. T.327<sup>e</sup>. E.805<sup>6</sup>. D.Wis.ix.

Needlework. See EMBROIDERY.

Nefarious. See WICKED=nefas.

Negative. Negativus.

See also under DENY=negare, negativus.

A. 1886, Pref.<sup>2</sup>. Thousands of objections would inflow, which would strengthen his mind in the negative.

2338. Evil Spirits strongly inspire what is negative.

— . He who succumbs in temptation . . . falls into what is negative.

2354. In the feeling of anger in which these things are said, there is what is negative.

2588<sup>2</sup>. Those think from the negative who believe nothing unless they are convinced by rational and scientific things, nay, by sensuous things. . . Those who are in the negative in regard to a thing being true because it is in the Word, say at heart that they will believe when they are persuaded by rational and scientific things. But the fact is that they never believe; and indeed they would not believe if they were to be convinced by the very sensuous things of the body . . . for they would always form new reasonings against those things, and thus end by completely extinguishing all faith, and at the same time turning the light of the Rational into darkness, because into falsities.

—<sup>3</sup>. Those who incline to a life of evil, fall (from doubt) into the negative . . . Examps.

—<sup>9</sup>. If it is shown them a thousand . . . times that it is so, they still propose negative doubts . . .

— . The more anyone is endowed with talent and knowledge, and is in the negative, the more insane he is . . .

2689<sup>3</sup>. When they come to adult age, they admit negatives, even to an affection for falsity.

3221. Negatives of truth are represented by dark and descending clouds.

3224<sup>2</sup>. In regard to falsities, they do not reason whether it is so or not, but they affirm instantly; whereas in regard to goods and truths they have continual reasoning, which terminates in a negative.

N. 51<sup>6</sup>. He who is in a dubitative negative, which in itself is a negative, and says that he does not believe until he is persuaded by scientifics, never believes. Refs.

D. 4759. They who have not faith from revelation cannot be confirmed from nature . . . nor from miracles. The reason is that they are in the negative; and, when this reigns, everything is brought there, or is so explained that it agrees with it, chiefly because they are in the lumen of nature not illustrated by the light of Heaven; for exteriors can be seen from interiors, or posterior things from prior ones, and effects from causes; but not the reverse.

4760. Those meant by 'the dragon' . . . deduce all things to a negative.

D. Min. 4580<sup>e</sup>. For evil is recipient of what is negative.

Neglect. Neglectus.

Neglect, To. Neglegare.

Negligently. Negligenter.

See under OMIT.

R. 59. That (the Lord) has been neglected. Sig. 93. 866. 'Death' = neglect, non-acknowledgment, and rejection by the world.

M. 305<sup>e</sup>. Thus arises . . . neglect for one's consort.

D. 5956. In the Spiritual World . . . they at once see where there has been neglect (in business).

E. 659<sup>7</sup>. 'Among the dead, neglected' (Ps. lxxxviii. 5) = among those with whom there is nothing of truth and good, and who are therefore rejected.

J. (Post.) 230<sup>2</sup>. If they do their works negligently, they are severely punished.

Negro. Nigrita.

D. 432. The Negroes there desire to be white. D. 453<sup>e</sup>.

Neigh. Hinnire.

Neighing. Hinnitus.

A. 6978<sup>2</sup>. 'The horse neighing, and the chariot leaping' (Nahum iii. 2) = from a perverted Intellectual, and a like doctrinal.

E. 141<sup>7</sup>. 'Thy neighings' (Jer. xiii. 27) = profanations of truth; because 'a horse' = the Intellectual, where truth is.

355<sup>23</sup>. 'The horse neighing, and the chariot leaping' = the desire to destroy truths. . . 'To neigh,' and 'to leap' = to be carried to it with desire and delight.

—<sup>31</sup>. The falsifications of truth are meant by 'the voice of the neighings of his robust ones' (Jer. viii. 16).

Neighbour. Accola. D. 6020.

Neighbour. Proximus.

See CHARITY, and LOVE TOWARDS THE NEIGHBOUR; and also under LOVE TO THE LORD, NEAR-prope, and POOR.

A. 33<sup>2</sup>. For the more anyone loves himself and the world, the more he hates the neighbour, and thus the Lord.

454. Thus do (the Angels) love the neighbour more than themselves; and therefore it is Heaven. 548. 549. 1392.

1102<sup>2</sup>. When a man feels or perceives in himself . . . that he thinks well concerning the neighbour, and wants to perform offices for him, not for the sake of any gain, or any honour, for himself; and when he feels that he pities him who is in calamity, and still more him who is in error as to the doctrine of faith, he may then know that he 'dwells in the tents of Shem,' that is, that he has internal things with him, through which the Lord is operating.

1103<sup>2</sup>. For man is born for no other end than that he may perform use . . . to the neighbour, while he lives in the world . . .

1608<sup>3</sup>. The heavenly kingdom cannot be given to those who . . . say that they have faith, and yet hold the neighbour in hatred . . .

1680<sup>2</sup>. If a man intends evil to the neighbour, thinks nothing but evil concerning him, and actually does it when he can, and feels delight in it, he is among the infernals, and becomes infernal in the other life. But he who intends good to the neighbour, and thinks nothing but good concerning him, and actually does it when he can, is among the angelic ones, and becomes an Angel in the other life. This is the distinctive characteristic. Let everyone examine himself by this . . .

1803. Those who have not the Lord's love, that is, who do not love the neighbour as themselves, never have the Lord's life . . .

1909<sup>e</sup>. If he has as an end the good of the neighbour . . . let him know that his life is heavenly.

1919<sup>2</sup>. Hence it is that those who have conscience are held by the Lord so as to think well concerning the neighbour . . . and therefore conscience is never possible except with those who love the neighbour as themselves . . .

2360. 'Brother,' in the Word, = the same as 'neighbour,' for the reason that everyone ought to love the neighbour as himself . . .

—<sup>7</sup>. As the Lord . . . is Himself the neighbour in the supreme sense, He calls them 'brethren.'

2380<sup>2</sup>. All those are in the good of charity who have conscience . . . and who therefrom think well concerning the neighbour, and will well to him, even though he is an enemy, and this without any recompense.

—<sup>3</sup>. Those who are in evil have no conscience . . . They think evilly concerning the neighbour, and will evilly to him, and also do evilly, even although he is a friend, if he does not favour them, and they perceive delight in it. If they do anything of good, it is from the end of recompense.

[A.] 2388<sup>3</sup>. They do not even know what the neighbour is towards whom charity [is to be exercised], supposing that it is all in general almost without distinction; and yet the same live in charity towards the neighbour, because in the life of good. It does these no harm that they profess faith with the rest, for in their faith there is charity . . .

2417<sup>6</sup>. They call everyone the neighbour without distinction; when yet . . . the neighbour is all the good in others with which we are affected, consequently those who are in good; and this with every distinction. Examp.

2425<sup>2</sup>. For example: because they are ignorant what the neighbour is, they do good to everyone whom they suppose to be the neighbour; especially to the poor . . . to orphans and widows . . . to strangers . . . Yet because in their affection for apparent truth . . . there lies in obscurity an affection for good, by which the Lord leads them so to do, they are at the same time in good as to their interiors . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. But those who are in the good of charity, and thence in the affection of truth, do all things with distinction . . . They know that those who are good, whether rich or poor, are neighbours above others; for by the good good is done to others . . . They also know how to make distinctions among . . . the good. They call the common good itself still more their neighbour; for in this is regarded the good of greater numbers. As still more their neighbour . . . they acknowledge the Lord's Kingdom on earth, which is the Church; and still more the Lord's Kingdom itself in the Heavens. But those who set the Lord before all these . . . deduce from Him the derivations of the neighbour; for in the supreme sense the Lord alone is the neighbour; thus all good, in proportion as it is from Him.

—<sup>4</sup>. But those who are in contrary things, deduce the derivations of the neighbour from themselves, and acknowledge as the neighbour only those who favour and serve them . . . and this with a difference, in proportion as they make one with them. Hence may be evident what the neighbour is; namely, to everyone according to the love in which he is; and that he is truly the neighbour, who is in love to the Lord and in charity towards the neighbour, and this with every difference. Thus it is the good itself with everyone which determines it.

2718<sup>3</sup>. Take, for example, that the neighbour is to be loved from the good which is in him. Those who are in the affection of truth . . . discuss whether . . . it is so; what the neighbour is, and what good, and go no further, and therefore they close the door to wisdom against themselves. But those who are in the affection of good say that it is so, and therefore do not close that door against themselves; but enter in, and know, and perceive from good, who is more the neighbour than another, and also in what degree, and that all are in unlike degrees.

—<sup>6</sup>. Take, further, this example: that he who loves the neighbour from good, loves the Lord. Those in the affection of truth investigate whether it is so; and if it is said to them that he who loves the neighbour from good, loves good; and, as all good is from the Lord, and as the Lord is in good, when anyone loves good he loves also Him from whom it is, they investigate also whether it is so . . . and so long as they stick in such things, they cannot see wisdom . . . But those who are in the affection of good know from perception that it is so, and at once see the field of wisdom which leads even to the Lord.

2910<sup>2</sup>. At the beginning of a Church . . . everyone . . . is affected from good . . . for the sake of the neighbour . . . Afterwards comes hatred of one another . . . inwardly . . . Under these loves hatred against the neighbour conceals itself, which is of such a nature that they want to have command over all, and to possess all things which are another's; and when these [desires] are opposed, they store up in their minds contempt against the neighbour, they breathe revenge, they feel delight in his ruin, and even exercise cruelties in so far as they dare.

2935<sup>2</sup>. Those who are being . . . made spiritual . . . scarcely know what charity is, and what the neighbour; when yet these are essentials.

3167<sup>e</sup>. Natural good is then all the delight from the end of serving the Spiritual, thus the neighbour . . .

3286<sup>2</sup>. When man is being regenerated, good is insinuated by the Lord into his Rational, that is, to will well to the neighbour . . .

3419<sup>3</sup>. From these doctrinals (the Ancients) knew . . . that the neighbour towards whom charity is to be exercised is all in the universe, but still each one with a difference. . . But at this day who knows . . . what the neighbour is? that it is every single person with a difference according to the quality and quantity of the good which is with them; thus good itself; and consequently in the supreme sense the Lord Himself, because He is in good . . .

— As it is not known what . . . the neighbour is, it is not known who they are who are signified by 'the poor,' 'the miserable,' 'the needy,' 'the sick,' 'the hungry and thirsty,' 'the oppressed,' 'widows,' 'orphans,' 'captives,' 'the naked,' 'sojourners,' 'the blind,' 'the deaf,' 'the lame,' 'the maimed,' etc.; when yet the doctrinals of the Ancients taught . . . to what class of the neighbour, and thus of charity, they belonged. Ill.

3570<sup>2</sup>. If a man studies the neighbour and the Lord more than himself, he is in a state of regeneration. But if . . . he studies himself more than the neighbour and the Lord, let him know that he is in no state of regeneration.

3688<sup>3</sup>. For example: a man who is such that he can be regenerated . . . at first . . . does not know . . . what the neighbour is (and therefore does good to beggars) . . . These goods are the goods of external truth from which he begins.

—<sup>4</sup>. Afterwards he wants to benefit all whom he believes to be needy and miserable . . . believing everyone to be the neighbour in a like respect and degree. But when he is more enlightened . . . he makes a dis-tion . . . and at last, when he is being regenerated, he does good only to the good and pious, because he is then not affected with the man he benefits, but with the good itself with him; and, as the Lord is present in what is good and pious, he thus . . . testifies love to the Lord. When he is in this charity from the heart, he is regenerate.

3768<sup>2</sup>. For example: a man can know from the Rational which everyone has that the neighbour is to be loved . . . but how the neighbour is to be loved . . . cannot be known except from the Word . . . as that good itself is the neighbour, consequently those who are in good, and this according to the good in which they are; and that good is the neighbour for the reason that the Lord is in good, and that thus in the love of good the Lord is loved.

3803<sup>2</sup>. When truth succeeded in the place of good . . . they could no longer call each other brethren from good, but the neighbour.

3820<sup>3</sup>. For example: those who are in external truths know only this general: That the neighbour is to be loved; and they believe that everyone is the neighbour in a like degree, and thus that everyone is to be embraced with a like love, and thus they suffer themselves to be seduced. But those who are in internal truths know in what degree everyone is the neighbour, and that everyone is in a different one. Hence they know innumerable more things than the former ones, and consequently do not suffer themselves to be led away by the mere name neighbour, nor to do evil from the persuasion of good which the name induces.

3875<sup>5</sup>. See MUTUAL LOVE, here.

3906<sup>6</sup>. Until self-regard begins to cease, and the regard of the neighbour begins to be felt.

3913<sup>3</sup>. The spiritual man . . . does not spurn dignities, provided that by them as means he can serve the neighbour . . .

—4. In order that man may become spiritual, it is necessary that . . . ends for the neighbour and the Lord's Kingdom be put on.

3915<sup>6</sup>. Without affection . . . the man still does not love the neighbour, but himself more than he; and he is in natural life, and not in spiritual.

3951<sup>2</sup>. In proportion as riches have spiritual good in them, that is, the good of the neighbour as the end . . . in the same proportion they are goods.

3957<sup>7</sup>. Such a plane (in the interior man for the reception of good and truth) cannot be procured except by thinking what is good towards the neighbour, and by willing what is good for him, and thence doing what is good to him, and thus acquiring for one's self the delight of life in such things. This plane is acquired by charity towards the neighbour, that is, by mutual love; and this plane it is which is called conscience. Into this, good and truth from the Lord can inflow, and be received therein; but not where there is no charity, and consequently no conscience. There, the influent good and truth is transfluent, and is turned into evil and into falsity.

3993<sup>2</sup>. For example: if anyone loves himself above others . . . and yet . . . performs offices for the neigh- bour from the heart . . . the evil of this love of self is that with which good and truth can be mixed. Ex.

4215<sup>6</sup>. He wants thereby to persuade the neighbour that he loves him for the sake of the good in him, when yet it is for the sake of himself . . .

4221. When he lived, whatever good he did to the neighbour, he did for the sake of himself . . .

4302<sup>5</sup>. The Ancient Church distinguished the neighbour or neighbours, towards whom they were to exercise the works of charity, into classes. Enum. 4844<sup>3</sup>. 4955<sup>2</sup>. 6004.

4327<sup>2</sup>. Those who at this day relate to (the general involuntary) sense, are those who . . . excogitate evils against the neighbour, and put on a friendly countenance, nay, most friendly, and also the like gestures, and speak with sweetness as if endowed with more charity than others; and yet they are the most hostile enemies, not only of him with whom they hold commerce, but also of the human race.

4730<sup>6</sup>. Thus does he love societies and his country, which are the neighbour to him in general.

4955<sup>2</sup>. Doctrinal things with the Ancients taught . . . who the neighbour is towards whom charity is to be exercised, and how the one is the neighbour in a different degree, and in a different respect, from another . . .

4956. The essence of charity towards the neighbour is the affection of good and truth, and the acknowledgment of self as being evil and falsity; nay, the neighbour is good and truth itself . . . The opposite to the neighbour is evil and falsity . . .

5008<sup>3</sup>. For example: those who are in spiritual natural truth hold everyone as the neighbour, but still all in a dissimilar respect and degree; and say at heart that those who are in good are, more than others, the neighbour to whom good is to be done; but that those who are in evil are also the neighbour, but that we do good to them if they are punished according to the laws . . . Those who are in natural truth not spiritual . . . also say that everyone is the neighbour, but they do not admit degrees and respects; and therefore, if they are in natural good, they do good to everyone who excites compassion, without distinction, and more frequently to the evil than to the good, because the former, from their wickedness, know how to excite compassion.

5028<sup>3</sup>. For example: the Spiritual man equally with the natural man says good is to be done to the neighbour, and he also says that every man is the neighbour; but he thinks that one is the neighbour in a different respect and degree from another; and that to do good to an evil person, because he calls himself the neighbour, is to do evil to the neighbour. The natural man conjoins himself with the spiritual in this ultimate truth, namely, that good is to be done to the neighbour; and also in this, that every man is the neighbour; but he thinks that he is the neighbour who favours him, caring not whether he is good or evil. 5036<sup>4</sup>.

5067. Those who are called 'brethren' are those who are in the good of charity and of life . . . and it is these who are properly meant by the neighbour.

[A.] 5130<sup>2</sup>. Hence it may be evident what is meant by this: that we are to be continually thinking about the Lord, about salvation, and about the life after death. All who are in faith from charity do this. Hence it is that these do not think evilly concerning the neighbour . . .

5132<sup>2</sup>. Charity in its essence is to will well to the neighbour, and to be affected with good, and to acknowledge good as the neighbour, consequently those who are in good, with a difference in proportion as they are in good. (Continued under CHARITY.)

5214<sup>6</sup>. These ends are of no use, because they do not conduce to [the good of] the neighbour.

5368<sup>2</sup>. The external man obeys when . . . he has as the end the neighbour and not self, consequently when he regards corporeal and worldly things as means . . . and he (does this) when he loves the neighbour in preference to himself . . .

5555. Those who in the life of the body had known nothing except the generals of faith, as that the neighbour is to be loved, and, from this general principle, had done good equally to the evil and the upright, without discrimination, for they had said that everyone is the neighbour—such, when they lived in the world, suffered themselves to be greatly seduced by the deceitful, by hypocrites, and by simulators. It is similar with them in the other life; nor do they care for what is said to them, because they are sensuous, and do not enter into reasons. These constitute the . . . exterior and less sensitive skin.

5660<sup>3</sup>. The celestial proprium comes forth from the new will . . . and differs from the man's proprium in this: that they no longer regard themselves in each and all things which they do . . . but they regard the neighbour, the public, the Church, the Lord's Kingdom, and thus the Lord Himself . . .

5695<sup>2</sup>. All the Angels have such a face . . . for they think only well towards the neighbour, nor have they any latent thought of willing well to the neighbour for the sake of themselves. But the infernals . . . have a face different from that which corresponds to their interiors; the reason of which is that in the life of the body they had testified by the face charity towards the neighbour solely for the sake of their own honour and gain; and yet had never willed well to the neighbour, except in so far as he favoured themselves.

5758<sup>6</sup>. To claim for one's self the truth and good which are from the Lord . . . is the spring of many evils: he then regards himself in each thing he does to the neighbour; and, when he does this, he loves himself above all others . . .

6023<sup>2</sup>. For example, this scientific of the Church: that the neighbour is every man. Into this scientific, truths in immense abundance may be initiated and brought together; as, that every man is indeed the neighbour, but each one with a difference; and that he is most the neighbour who is in good, and this also with a difference according to the quality of the good; and that the origin of the neighbour is drawn from the Lord Himself, thus that the nearer men are to Him—that is, the more they are in good—the more they are the neighbour; and that the more remote they are from Him, the less; and, further, that a society is more the neighbour than an individual man, and a kingdom in general more than a society, but one's country more than other kingdoms; that the Church is still more the neighbour than our country, and the Lord's Kingdom still more; and also, that the neighbour is loved when everyone discharges his duty aright for the good of others . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. That the same scientific may be infilled with falsities in immense abundance, may also be evident by inverting these truths, and by saying that everyone is neighbour to himself, and that the origin of the neighbour is to be drawn from self with each person, and thus that he is most the neighbour who most favours the man himself, and makes one with him, and thereby presents himself in him as his likeness; nay, that neither is his country the neighbour to him except in so far as he has gain from it; besides innumerable other things. But the scientific remains the same, namely, that every man is the neighbour; but by one person it is infilled with truths, and by another with falsities.

6388. For those who are in genuine mutual love are in their delight and blessedness when they are doing good to the neighbour; for they long for nothing in preference.

6405<sup>2</sup>. For example: he who holds everyone equally as the neighbour, and thus does good equally to the evil and the good, and thereby, in doing good to the evil, doing evil to others. When he has put this into practice a few times, he afterwards defends it, saying, that everyone is the neighbour, and that it is no care of his what his quality may be, provided he does good to him . . .

6481<sup>2</sup>. The Lord drives the evil to do good to the neighbour, their country, and the Church, by means of their own loves themselves . . .

6655<sup>2</sup>. True men of the Church . . . want their minds to be open . . . for they intend nothing but good towards the neighbour, and if they see evil with anyone, they excuse it. Otherwise those who are in evil; they fear lest anything which they think and will should shine forth; for they intend nothing but evil to the neighbour; or if good, it is for the sake of themselves; and if they do good, it is only in the external form, in order to appear, for the sake of gain and honour . . .

6703. We must first say what the neighbour is, for he it is towards whom charity is to be exercised. For unless it is known who are the neighbour, charity may be exercised without distinction, equally towards the evil as towards the good; whence charity is made not charity; for the evil, from the benefits they receive, do evil to the neighbour; but the good do good.

6704. The common opinion at this day is that every man is equally the neighbour . . . but it is the part of Christian prudence well to examine the quality of a man's life, and to exercise charity according thereto. The man of the Internal Church does this with discrimination, thus with intelligence; but the man of the External Church . . . does it indiscriminately.

6705. The Ancients reduced the neighbour into classes, and named each class according to the names of those who appear in the world to need help above others; and taught how charity was to be exercised towards those who were in one class, and how towards those in another; and thus they reduced the doctrine into order, and they reduced the life according thereto . . .

6706. The distinguishing differences of the neighbour, which the man of the Church must by all means know, in order to know the quality of charity, are circumstanced according to the good which is with everyone; and as all good proceeds from the Lord, the Lord is, in the highest sense, and in a supereminent degree, the neighbour from whom is the origin [thereof]. Hence it follows, that in proportion as anyone has of the Lord with him, in the same proportion he is the neighbour; and, as no two persons receive the Lord in a like way—that is, the good which proceeds from Him—therefore neither is one the neighbour in like manner as is another. But all these varieties, thus all the distinguishing distinguishing differences of the neighbour . . . can never be known to any man, or Angel; but only in general . . . Nor does the Lord require more from the man of the Church, than to live according to what he knows.

6707. From these things it is clear, that the quality of Christian good determines in what degree each one is the neighbour. For the Lord is present in good . . . and He is present according to the quality of it; and, as the origin of the neighbour is to be drawn from the Lord, the distinguishing differences of the neighbour are circumstanced according to the presence of the Lord in the good, thus according to the quality of the good.

6708. That the neighbour is according to the quality of the good, is evident from the Lord's parable concerning him who fell among thieves, and whom, when half dead, the priest passed by, and also the Levite, but whom the Samaritan . . . took care of. He, because he had exercised the good of charity, is called 'neighbour' (Luke x. 29-37). Hence it may be known that the neighbour is those who are in good. But those who are in evil, are indeed the neighbour, but in quite a different respect; and because it is so, they are to be benefited in a different way.

6709. As it is the quality of the good which determines in what way each one is the neighbour, it is the love which does this . . .

6710. That it is the love which makes a man to be the neighbour, and that each one is the neighbour according to the quality thereof, is manifestly evident from those who are in the love of self. These acknowledge for the neighbour those who love them the most, that is, in proportion as they are their own, thus are in themselves. These they embrace, these they kiss, these they benefit, and these they call brethren; nay, because they are evil, they say that these are the neighbour above others. The rest, in proportion as they love them, they hold as the neighbour; thus according to the quality and the quantity of the love. Such draw the origin of the neighbour from themselves, for the reason that the love determines it.

6711. But those who do not love themselves above others . . . must draw the origin of the neighbour from Him whom they must needs love above all things . . .

and they must hold each one as the neighbour according to the quality of their love to Him. They, therefore, who love others as themselves . . . all draw the origin of the neighbour from the Lord; for in good is the Lord Himself; for it proceeds from Him. Hence also it may be evident that the quality of the love determines who is the neighbour. III.

6712. From these things it is now evident whence the origin of the neighbour is to be drawn by the man of the Church; and that everyone is the neighbour in the degree in which he is near the Lord; and, as the Lord is in the good of charity, that the neighbour is according to the quality of the good, thus according to the quality of the charity.

6818. More is to be said concerning the neighbour; for without Knowledge of the neighbour, it cannot be known how charity is to be exercised. . . It has (already) been said that every man is the neighbour, but one not in like manner as another; and that he is the neighbour above others who is in good; thus that the good which is with a man is to be loved; for, when good is loved, the Lord is loved. . .

6819. But man is the neighbour not only in the singular, but also in the plural; for a society, less or greater, is; our country is; the Church is; the Lord's Kingdom is; and, above all, the Lord is. These are the neighbour, who are to be benefited from charity. These, also, are the ascending degrees of the neighbour, for a society of many is in a prior degree to one individual man; our country is in a prior degree to a society; in a degree still prior is the Church; and in a degree still prior is the Lord's Kingdom; but in the highest is the Lord. These ascending degrees are like the steps of a ladder, at whose top is the Lord.

6820. A society is the neighbour above an individual man, because it consists of many. Towards it charity is to be exercised in a similar way as towards an individual man, namely, according to the quality of the good which is with it; thus quite differently towards a Society of the upright from [what it should be] towards a society of the non-upright.

6821. Our country is the neighbour more than a society, because it is like a parent; for there a man is born, it nourishes him, and protects him from injuries. (Continued under COUNTRY.)

6822. The Church is the neighbour more than our country; for he who consults for the Church consults for the souls . . . of the men who are in our country. (Continued under CHURCH.)

6823. The Lord's Kingdom is the neighbour in a higher degree than the Church where any one is born; for the Lord's Kingdom consists of all who are in good . . . thus it is good with all its quality in the complex. When this good is loved, so is each person who is in good. Thus the whole, which is good in the complex, is the neighbour in the first degree, and it is the Grand Man . . . This Man . . . is loved, when, from inmost affection, we benefit those who are man through that Man from the Lord . . .

6824. These are the degrees of the neighbour, and according to these degrees does charity ascend; but these degrees are degrees in successive order, in which the prior or higher degree is always preferred to the posterior or lower one ; and, as the Lord is in the highest, and as He is to be regarded in each degree as the End to Whom, so is He above all, and is to be loved above all things.

[A.] 6933. It is commonly said that each one is neighbour to himself, that is, that each one must consult for himself the first. The doctrine of charity teaches in what way this is circumstanced. Everyone is neighbour to himself, not in the first, but in the last place. In a prior place are others who are in good ; in a still prior one is a society of many ; in a still prior one is our country ; in a still prior one is the Church ; and in a still prior one is the Lord's Kingdom ; and above all and above all things is the Lord.

6934. This saying, that everyone is neighbour to himself, and must consult for himself the first, is to be understood thus. Everyone must look out for himself so as to have the necessities of life . . . for himself and his ; and not only for the present, but also for the future ; (otherwise) he cannot be in a state to exercise charity towards the neighbour . . . T.406.

6935. The end declares in what way each one must be neighbour to himself, and must consult for himself the first. If the end is that he may be richer than others solely for the sake of riches, pleasure, eminence, or the like, it is an evil end ; and therefore he who from such an end believes that he is neighbour to himself, injures himself to eternity. But if the end is that he may acquire wealth for the sake of the necessities of life, so as to be in a state to do good according to the precepts of the doctrine of charity, he consults for himself to eternity. 6936, Further ex. 6937. 6938.

6938. For he who turns the ends to himself, turns himself towards Hell ; but he who turns the ends from himself to the neighbour, turns himself towards Heaven.

7258°. (No two are alike the neighbour.)

7367. See LOVE OF SELF, here. 7370.

7392°. In the other life all those perceive delight in doing evil [to others] who in the world do not do well to the neighbour for the sake of the neighbour . . .

8037. They do not at all comprehend that to will good to the neighbour without recompense is Heaven in man ; and that in this affection there is happiness as great as is that of the Angels . . .

8123. In the universal sense, the good which proceeds from the Lord is the neighbour ; consequently also what is just and right. Therefore he who does any good for the sake of good, or any justice for the sake of justice, loves the neighbour . . . Whereas he who does what is unjust for the sake of any gain, hates the neighbour.

8254. A life of piety without a life of charity is to want to consult solely for self, and not for the neighbour ; but a life of piety with a life of charity is to want to consult for self for the sake of the neighbour . . .

8318. Those who are in evil from the love of the world hold the neighbour as naught, and esteem him solely from opulence . . . They desire to possess all things which belong to the neighbour . . . for to deprive the neighbour of his goods is the delight of their life . . .

8622°. Men become such Genii after death who have continually meditated evil against the neighbour, and have delighted their thought with such things . . .

8745. When the external man has been regenerated, the internal man places all good in thinking well concerning the neighbour and in willing well to him, and the external man places it in speaking well concerning him and in acting well towards him ; and at last both have as an end to love the neighbour and to love the Lord.

8902. 'Thou shalt not kill' = . . . also not to hold the neighbour in hatred.

8908. 'Thy neighbour' (Ex. xx. 16) = every man ; and, in special, everyone who is in good ; and, in the abstract sense, good itself. Hence 'not to answer unto thy neighbour the witness of a lie' =, in the internal sense, not to say what is false to anyone ; that is, to say that good is evil, and truth falsity ; nor the reverse.

8977°. For spiritual good is good . . . for the sake of the Church, and for the sake of the salvation of the neighbour . . .

9013. The consequent wickedness to deprive the neighbour of eternal life. Sig. and Ex.

—2. Those who in the world have ensnared the neighbour with deceit as to worldly and earthly things, in the other life ensnare the neighbour with deceit as to spiritual and celestial things.

9048. Thou shalt so do to the neighbour as thou wishest that the other should do to thee. Sig.

9210°. Those who do what is good for the sake of the neighbour and the Lord are in Heaven ; but those who do it for the sake of self and the world are in Hell . . . (for such) love themselves above all things . . . and their neighbour they not only despise, but even hate, if he does not make one with themselves . . . Sig.

9211. Hence it is that he who is led by the Lord thinks nothing whatever concerning reward, and yet does what is good to the neighbour from the heart.

9296°. If the use of life is for the neighbour, that is, for the good of our fellow-citizen, our country, of the Church, of Heaven, and for the Lord, then that good is the good of charity.

9449. The signs that sins have been remitted are (that) they perceive delight . . . in serving the neighbour for the sake of the neighbour ; thus in doing what is good for the sake of what is good, and in believing what is true for the sake of what is true . . .

9509. Those, therefore, who are in the good of love to the Lord are introduced to Him in Heaven, because they are conjoined with Him : in like manner those who are in the good of love towards the neighbour ; for the neighbour is the good of our fellow-citizen, the good of our country, the good of the Church, the good of the whole of the Lord's kingdom ; and, in the supreme sense, is the Lord Himself, because this good is with man from Him.

10284°. For the neighbour in a general sense is good and truth, and in a lower one is what is just and right . . .

10336<sup>4</sup>. Therefore when (men) love good and truth, that is, when they will and do them from love, they love the Lord ; as also do those who love the neighbour as themselves, because, in the universal sense, the neighbour is good and truth ; for the neighbour is our fellow-citizen, a society, our country, the Church, and the Lord's Kingdom, and to love the neighbour is to will well to these, or to will their good ; and therefore it is their good which is to be loved ; and, when this is loved, the Lord is loved, because this good is from Him. Hence it is evident, that love towards the neighbour, which is called charity, has in it love to the Lord. If this love is not in it, then our fellow-citizen, a society, our country, the Church, and the Lord's Kingdom, are loved for the sake of self, and thus are not loved from good, but from evil . . . To love the neighbour for the sake of self, is to love him for the sake of gain and honour as ends . . .

10555. 'As speaketh a man to a neighbour' (Ex. xxxiii. 11) = the conjunction of truth and good. . . 'A neighbour' = the good with which truth is conjoined . . .

H. 64<sup>3</sup>. Those who in the world love the good of their country more than their own, and the good of their neighbour as their own, are those who in the other life love and seek the Lord's Kingdom . . . and those who love to do what is good to others, not for the sake of self, but for the sake of good, love the neighbour ; for there good is the neighbour.

390<sup>e</sup>. Wisdom is to love use . . . In this also consists . . . also love towards the neighbour ; because the neighbour is the good which is to be loved in a fellow-citizen, a society, our country, and the Church ; and which is to be performed for them.

— (u). (Refs. to passages on the subject of the neighbour.) N. 106<sup>3</sup>. J. 39<sup>10</sup>.

557. Heavenly love is to love uses for the sake of uses . . . for this is to love God and to love the neighbour ; because all uses and all goods are from God, and are also the neighbour who is to be loved. (Continued under LOVE OF SELF.)

558a. The love of the neighbour with him who is in the love of self begins from self ; for he says that everyone is neighbour to himself ; and it proceeds from him as the centre to all who make one with him, with a diminution according to the degrees of the conjunction with him by love ; and those who are outside that conjunction are accounted as nothing ; and those who are against them and their evils, as enemies. (Continued under LOVE TOWARDS THE NEIGHBOUR.)

N. 88. (Thus) it is now evident that in the universal sense good is the neighbour ; because a man is the neighbour according to the quality of the good which is from the Lord with him ; and, as good is the neighbour, love is, for all good is of love ; thus every man is the neighbour according to the quality of the love which he has from the Lord. T. 410.

90. In these six goods (Matt. xxv. 34-40), understood in the spiritual sense, are comprehended all the kinds of the neighbour.

F. 20. The neighbour, in the natural sense, is man in the composite and in the individual. Ex. But the neighbour, in the spiritual sense, is good ; and, as use is good, the neighbour, in the spiritual sense, is use. That use is the spiritual neighbour, is acknowledged by everyone. Ex.

P. 94. The conjunction of the Lord with man, and the reciprocal conjunction of man with the Lord, is effected by loving the neighbour as one's self, and by loving the Lord above all things. To love the neighbour as one's self is nothing else than not to act insincerely and unjustly towards him, not to hold him in hatred and to burn with revenge against him, not to revile and defame him, not to commit adultery with his wife, and not to do other like things against him . . . Those who do not do such things because they are evils against the neighbour, and at the same time sins against the Lord, act sincerely, justly, kindly, and faithfully with the neighbour ; and, as the Lord does in like manner, reciprocal conjunction is effected ; and, when there is reciprocal conjunction, then whatever a man does to the neighbour, he does from the Lord ; and whatever a man does from the Lord is good. Then to him the neighbour is not the person, but the good in the person.

—<sup>e</sup>. Those who shun these evils as enormous sins, love the Lord above all things ; but this can be done by no others than those who love the neighbour as themselves . . .

R. 32<sup>e</sup>. Everyone is the neighbour according to the quality of the good (Luke x. 36, 37).

110<sup>e</sup>. If a satanic Spirit says to them, I am thy neighbour . . . they assist him, and do not inquire who and what he is, because they have not truths ; and by truths alone is one Known from another. This also is signified by, 'Thou dwellest where Satan's throne is.'

611<sup>e</sup>. He also who thinks of his neighbour from his form only, and not from his quality, thinks materially . . .

T. 321. 'Thou shalt not answer a false witness against thy neighbour.' Fully ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. By this Precept, in a wider natural sense, is meant . . . also to traduce and defame the neighbour . . .

325. 'Thou shalt not covet the house of thy neighbour ; thou shalt not covet the wife of thy neighbour, nor his man-servant and his maid-servant, and his ox and his ass, and everything which is thy neighbour's.' Fully ex.

406. That every man in the singular is the neighbour who is to be loved, but according to the quality of his good. Gen.art.

— . Man is not born for the sake of himself (alone), but for the sake of others . . . (In what sense it is true that everyone is neighbour to himself. Fully ex.)

412. That man in the plural, which is a society greater or less ; and that man in the composite from these, which is our country, is the neighbour who is to be loved. Gen.art.

415. That the Church is the neighbour, which is to be loved in a higher degree, and the Lord's Kingdom in the highest. Gen.art.

[T.] 418. The reason good is the neighbour, is that good is of the will . . . The truth of the understanding is also the neighbour, but in proportion as it proceeds from the good of the will . . . That good is the neighbour is evident from all experience. Ex.

422. Good, in a sense abstracted from persons, is the neighbour.

D. 4861. Those who become Genii are those who in the world . . . have loved to think evilly concerning the neighbour . . .

5696. Such care nothing how the case is with the neighbour : they see, but render no aid . . .

5778. Genii are present at the occiput with those who think much against the neighbour, from deceit and from cunning; who also pervert in an instant all their thoughts concerning benefiting the neighbour . . .

D. Min. 4633. Concerning the neighbour.—What the neighbour is, may be known from the opposite. He who loves himself, says that he is neighbour to himself, and so acts : next his friends, for the sake of honour and gain, delights, and social intercourse. He says that the rest are not the neighbour, except in so far as they favour him.

4634. From this it is evident what is the neighbour in the internal sense . . .

E. 204<sup>2</sup>. The neighbour in the spiritual sense is not every man, but is that which is with man. (Continued under LOVE TOWARDS THE NEIGHBOUR.)

248<sup>2</sup>. (The source of man's faculty of thinking well concerning the Lord and the neighbour.)

828. By the neighbour (the celestial Angels) understand uses . . .

831<sup>5</sup>. For the neighbour (the spiritual Angels) acknowledge truth in act . . .

834<sup>2</sup>. They are instructed that by 'the neighbour,' in the Word, is not meant a man solely as to his person, but as to his quality therein . . . Hence it is known that as every man is the neighbour, every man becomes the neighbour from his quality; and hence that the quality of a man . . . is meant by the neighbour in the spiritual sense; otherwise an evil man would be the neighbour equally with a good one . . .

—<sup>e</sup>. It is similar with the neighbour, in that it is the quality of a man which is to be loved. Hence it follows that the neighbour, in the spiritual sense, is that with a man from which he is such or such a man.

1193<sup>2</sup>. It follows that the neighbour is that from which everyone is man, and this is his Spiritual. . . He who is nearest in use to thee is thy neighbour above others. . . And (that virgin) who is most in agreement with thy love . . . is thy neighbour above the rest. If thou shouldst say to thyself, Every man is neighbour to me, and is therefore to be loved without distinction, a man-devil might be loved equally with a man-angel, and a harlot equally with a virgin. The reason use is the neighbour, is that every man is estimated and loved, not from the will and understanding alone, but from the uses which he performs, or is able to perform, from the will and understanding. . . C.46-49.

D. Wis. xi. 2. That the Lord is a quo ; and that the neighbour is ad quem. Ex.

— . The neighbour in a wide sense is the community or public; in a less wide sense it is the Church, our country, a society greater or less; and, in a narrow sense, it is a fellow-citizen, a companion, and a brother. To perform uses from love to the latter and the former is to do charity towards the neighbour, for he loves them. The reason he loves them, is that the love of uses and the love of the neighbour cannot be separated . . .

C. 14. That not to will to do evil to the neighbour is of charity. Ex.

17. That to will to do good to the neighbour is of charity. Ex.

23. That in proportion as a man does not will to do evil to the neighbour, he wills to do good to him; and not conversely. Ex.

42. That, in the spiritual idea, the neighbour who is to be loved is good and truth. Ex. 46.

50. That the quality of the neighbour is according to the quality of the good with a man; or, such as is the man, such is the neighbour. Ex.

55. That the degree of the neighbour is according to the degree of the good and truth with a man; consequently one man is not the neighbour in the same degree as another. Ex.

56. The neighbour who must be loved from charity must be spiritual good . . .

57. Moral good . . . is the neighbour in so far as it partakes of spiritual good . . .

61. In a word, the will makes the neighbour, and the understanding in proportion as it is of the will.

62. That the good of the internal will is the neighbour which is to be loved, and not the good of the external will, unless the latter makes one with the former. Ex.

66. But when these two wills make a one, then both goods make one good, which is the neighbour.

67. That truth is the neighbour in so far as it makes a one with good . . . Ex.

72. That the object of charity is man, is a society, is our country, and is the human race; and that all are the neighbour in a narrow and a wide sense. Gen.art.

73. That every man is the neighbour according to the quality of his good. Ex.

— . As in the spiritual idea good is the neighbour, and as man is the subject of good, and also the object of him who does good, it follows that in the natural idea man is the neighbour.

74. One man is not the neighbour more than another as to his person merely, but as to the good from which he is such or such a man; since there are as many differences of the neighbour as there are differences of good; and the differences of good are infinite.

75. It is believed that a brother, kinsman, or relation, is more the neighbour than one not related; and that he who is born in one's country is more the neighbour than one born out of the country. But everyone is the neighbour according to his good, be he Greek or Gentile.

76. For everyone is the neighbour according to spiritual affinity and propinquity. Ex.

78. That a society, smaller or larger, is the neighbour according to the good of its use. Ex. (These societies enum.)

79. If a society performs distinguished uses, it is more the neighbour; if unimportant uses, it is less the neighbour; if evil uses, it is no otherwise the neighbour than as is an evil man, whose good I desire—that he may become a good man, and, so far as possible, to provide means for his improvement, even though it be by threats, chastisement, penalties, and privations.

83. That our country is the neighbour according to its spiritual, moral, and civil good. Ex.

85. Birth does not make one more the neighbour than another, not even father and mother; neither does education. These are from natural good. Nor does propinquity, nor relationship by marriage make one man more the neighbour than another; nor, therefore, our native country . . .

87. That the human race is the neighbour in the widest sense; but, as it is distinguished into empires, kingdoms, and republics, each one of them is the neighbour according to the good of its religion and morals, and according to the good which it performs to our country . . . Ex.

— When any man from any kingdom is with me, and I dwell with him in the same house or city, he is the neighbour to me according to his good. It is the same with all the individuals in that kingdom . . . Suppose that he is the ambassador of the kingdom . . . it cannot be denied that he is the neighbour to me according to the good of his religion and morals . . . 88. 89.

122. That the neighbour can be loved from non-charity; but this, regarded in itself, is not to love the neighbour. Ex.

126. That man . . . cannot become charity unless he perpetually does the good of use to the neighbour from affection and delight. Gen.art. 154, Ex.

210. That not to will to do evil to the neighbour is to love him. Ex.

— (Thus) the first of charity is not to do evil to the neighbour; for not to do evil to the neighbour is to fight against the evils in ourselves . . . And the second of charity is to do good to the neighbour. Ex.

Neighbour. Vicinus.

A. 5135. 'Neighbours' (Jer.xlix.10)=his adjoined and related truths and goods.

6916. 'Neighbour-vicina' (Ex.iii.22)=the affection of truth which is with those who are in scientifics.

7835. See NEAR-prope, here.

J. (Post.) 236. They fill all the vicinity-vicinum—with the idea and image of self . . .

Nemesis. Nemesis.

M. 504<sup>e</sup>. It is evident that the Divine Nemesis pursues them.

Nephilim. Nephilim.

See under ANTEDILUVIAN, and FLOOD.

A. 557. Those who immersed the doctrinal things of faith in cupidities, and thence, and also from the love of self, conceived direful persuasions concerning their own greatness above others are 'the Nephilim' (Gen.vi.4).

567<sup>e</sup>. That the Nephilim were in the Land of Canaan, is evident from the sons of Anak, who were of the Nephilim (Num.xiii.23). 4454<sup>e</sup>.

581. 'The Nephilim' (Gen.vi.4)=those who from a persuasion of their own height and pre-eminence, made nothing of all things holy and true.

— A persuasion concerning one's self and one's own phantasies increases, according to the multitude of things which enter into it, until at last the persuasion becomes indelible; and, when the doctrinal things of faith are added, then, from principles of deepest persuasion, men make nothing of all things holy and true, and become Nephilim. That race which lived before the Flood is such . . . that, with their most direful phantasies, which are poured forth by them as a poisonous and suffocating sphere, they so deaden and suffocate every Spirit, that the Spirits know not in the least how to think, so that they seem to themselves half dead. And unless the Lord, by His Advent into the world, had liberated the World of Spirits from such a venomous race, no one could have been there; and thus the human race would have perished . . . They are therefore now kept in a Hell under a cloudy and dense rock as it were, under the heel of the left foot . . . These are they who are called 'the Nephilim,' and who make nothing of all that is holy and true. Mention is made of them in the Word under this name, but their descendants were called 'Anakim' and 'Rephaim.' Ill. . . In Is.xxvi.14, their Hell also is referred to, from which they shall rise no more. (As also in Is.xxvi.19; Ps.lxxxviii.10). This (last passage) signifies that they cannot rise and infest the World of Spirits with the venom of their most direful persuasions; but that it has been provided by the Lord that the human race should no longer be imbued with such direful phantasies and persuasions. Those who lived before the Flood were of such a nature and genius that they could be imbued . . .

582. That they became Nephilim at the time when they immersed the doctrinal things of faith in their cupidities. Sig.

583. That the Nephilim were called 'mighty men' from the love of self. Ill.

640. The descendants (of the Most Ancient Church) derived by inheritance that cupidities, which are of the will, dominated with them, in which also they immersed the doctrinal things of faith, and thence became Nephilim . . . 927<sup>e</sup>.

1673. 'The Rephaim,' 'Zuzim,' and 'Emim' were of a similar kind to 'the Nephilim' (Gen.vi.4) . . . by whom are signified persuasions of falsity, or those who from a persuasion of their own height and pre-eminence made nothing of all things holy and true, and who infused falsities in cupidities.

—<sup>2</sup>. The most direful persuasions of falsity were with those who lived before the Flood, especially with those called 'Nephilim.' These were such, that, in the other life, they by their persuasions take away all the faculty of thinking from the Spirits to whom they come near, so that these seem to themselves scarcely to live, much less to be able to think anything true . . . Such were the wicked nations against whom the Lord fought in His first childhood . . . and unless the Lord had conquered them by His Advent into the world, not a man would have been left at this day upon this Earth . . . The same are at this day, from their phantasies, encompassed with as it were a misty rock, out of which they are constantly endeavouring to rise, but in vain. Ill. At this day also, especially from the Christian world, there are those who have persuasions, but not so direful . . . (Continued under PERSUASION.)

[A.] 7686<sup>2</sup>. Those who before the Lord's Advent were of the Church, and were evil as to life, were in such falsity as there had not been before, and neither shall be afterwards. The reason was, that those called 'Nephilim,' also 'Anakim,' and 'Rephaim,' and who were of the last posterity of the Most Ancient Church, had not as yet been shut up in Hell; but wandered about, and, wherever they could, infused direful and deadly persuasions; thus also into the evil in the Church; hence these had such falsity. Concerning these Nephilim, and their direful persuasions. Refs. When the Lord was in the world, these were cast by Him into the Hell which is at the left in front at some distance. Unless this had been done, very few could have been saved; for the falsity which they infused was attended with a direful persuasiveness, and was deadly, such as never had been, and such as never again can be.

D. 4448. Concerning the Hell of the Nephilim of this time, properly, of the Sirens.

— Held in the highest estimation (in the world) are the Sirens who are properly Nephilim, and who are inwardly the most filthy, being interior witches, and adulteresses above all others. They esteem as nothing the most wicked and abominable adulteries, and labour continually to destroy not only the conscience, but also to kill the body, and also burn to kill the soul to the lowest Hell.

4449. These female Nephilim, or Sirens, have often shown that they pervert the very sphere of the World of Spirits, namely, in that they imbue holy goods and holy truths, nay, the Lord, in their thought and persuasion; and, wherever they are carried, they carry with them the persuasion as if the Lord is there; and thus pervert the sphere, equally as did the Antediluvians. Further des., 4450. 4451. 4452. 4453.

4454. Hence it is evident of what quality are the Nephilim of this time, and what kind of a lot awaits them in the other life; as also that it is a flood by which they perish, in that at this day that other part which had been restored is destroyed in them, and is thus made persuasive, as was [the mind] of the Antediluvians as to both [parts]. Further des., 4455. 4456. 4457. 4458. 4459.

4933. The worst Hell . . . is towards the left in front, where are those who were called 'Nephilim' . . . and by David 'Rephaim.' It is the worst because they had been very greatly in the persuasion of self, and that there is no Divine except in themselves . . .

5812. Concerning the modern Nephilim. (See LAST JUDGMENT, here.)

5913. (Luther) was told . . . about the Nephilim . . .

E. 543<sup>13</sup>. By 'the Nephilim,' and 'the Anakim,' are signified those who are in the greatest persuasion of their eminence and wisdom above others; and, in the abstract sense, direful persuasions. Refs.

544<sup>2</sup>. The antediluvians who were called 'Nephilim' were in such a Persuasive above others; and unless the Lord, when He was in the world, had subjugated and cast them into Hell, and had closed it, no mortal could have been saved; for they infested, and almost murdered, whosoever they met in the Spiritual World. That the Lord delivered the Spiritual World from these and the like, is meant by that He saw Satan falling from Heaven; and that He gave to those who are in truths from good . . . the Power to trample upon serpents and scorpions.

Neptune. Neptunus.

A. 2762<sup>4</sup>. When they described the god of the sea [Neptune], as by the sea are signified knowledges in general, they gave horses to him also. W.H.4.

T. 159<sup>5</sup>. See APOLLO, here.

178. From this it would follow . . . that the ocean is a god below them, who may be called Neptune . . .

292. See JUPITER, the god, here. D.4775<sup>2</sup>.

Nerez. Nerez. D.4995. 5024. 5065.

Nero. Nero. T.73. D.2572.

Nerve. Nervus.

Nervous. Nerveus.

Nervule. Nervulus.

A. 4040. See BRAIN, here.

4303. 'The sinew' (Gen. xxxii. 32) = truth; for truths in good are circumstanced like sinews in the flesh; moreover, truths in the spiritual sense are sinews, and good is flesh. Ill.

—<sup>2</sup>. But when truths are distorted . . . they accede to falsities; hence it is that by 'the sinew of what is put out' is signified falsity. 4317.

5051<sup>2</sup>. That there is a communication, is evident from that great nerve in the thigh, which sends forth its branches not only through the loins to the members allotted to generation . . . but also through the feet to the soles and heels. It was then disclosed what is meant . . . by 'the nerve (or sinew) of the thigh' which Jacob had put out of joint.

5189<sup>6</sup>. The derivative actions are represented by the nerves which are from the fibres.

5435<sup>9</sup>. The nerves = truths. Refs.

8593. These Genii pertain to . . . that part of the spinal marrow which sends forth fibres and nerves to the involuntary things.

H. 95. The lungs reign there by the nervous and motor fibres.

W. 190. In the nerves from least fibres larger ones are compaginated, which appear like filaments; from these congregated together is compaginated the nerve.

192. The nervous fibres, least, larger, and largest, are homogeneous.

197. An application (of this principle) can be made to . . . the muscles, nerves, etc. . . In all these the first thing is singly and alone regnant in the subsequent things . . .

207. See FIBRE, here.

254. The case is like that of the fibril of a nerve, which contracts at the slightest touch of anything heterogeneous.

366. The fibres begin from (the cortical glands) . . . and successively confasciate into nerves; and the confasciations, or nerves, when made, descend to the sensory organs in the face, and to the motory organs in the body, and form them.

—<sup>2</sup>. The medullary substance everywhere begins and proceeds thence, and from this are the nerves, from which are all things of the body.

M. 44<sup>7</sup>. All the nerves fall at the sight of a harlot, and are in tension at the sight of a wife.

328. Than a nerve can enter into one of the fibres from which it is.

T. 147. Every nerve consists of fibres, and every fibre of fibrils.

258<sup>2</sup>. When falsity touches truth, it is like the point of a needle touching the fibril of a nerve . . . That the fibril of a nerve instantly coils itself into a spiral, and withdraws within itself, is known.

351<sup>3</sup>. All the nerves which proceed from (the medullary substance), and pass down into the body to perform various functions, are nothing but bundles and fascicles of fibres. . . These are such, because they correspond to the series into which the organism of the mind is disposed.

371<sup>7</sup>. Is evident from the optic nerve, in which fibres from both brains are folded together.

D. 1730. They also infest the fascicles of fibres, or nerveles.

1734. But those who are around the fascicles of fibres, and the interior nerves, are Spirits.

2611. Concerning the put out sinew (or nerve) of Jacob's thigh. 2613. 2617.

3612. I then felt a pain in the nerves of the left neck, so that I could scarcely turn my head on account of the pain from the hardness of the nerve (or sinew). The cause was that the reasoners did not want to be present, but began to recede.

D. Min. 4742. He inflicted some pain on the periosteums and nerves (or sinews) there.

E. 357<sup>12</sup>. 'They prepare the arrow upon the string' (Ps.xi.2)=that they apply to it falsities which appear as truths.

—<sup>20</sup>. 'The strings of the bow' (Ps.lxxvi.3)=the principal things of doctrine.

744<sup>2</sup>. The case is similar as with . . . the nerves in their ultimates, from which ligatures and membranes are spread over the interiors . . .

775<sup>2</sup>. From this medullary substance are protended visible fibres, which, being conjoined, are called nerves, through which the cerebrum, cerebellum, and spinal marrow form the whole body, and each and all things of it, and thereby effect that each and all things of the body are ruled by the brains . . .

VOL. IV.

D. Wis. ii<sup>3</sup>. All these (organs) are mere contextures of fibres and nerves flowing forth from both brains and from the spinal marrow.

Nest. Nidus.

Nest, To make a. Nidificare.

A. 776<sup>4</sup>. 'Where the birds make their nests' (Ps.civ.17). . . 'The birds' = his rational or natural truths, which are as it were nests. —<sup>5</sup>.

4776<sup>4</sup>. Hence they know how to construct nests.

10582<sup>7</sup>. This is meant by . . . 'to set the nest among the stars' (Obad.4).

T. 375. Like impregnated birds without nests.

D. 3340<sup>6</sup>. All animals have a sphere; as birds for building their houses or nests, never having been taught.

E. 281<sup>6</sup>. Their instruction in truths . . . is described by 'the eagle stirreth up her nest' (Deut.xxxii.11).

388<sup>20</sup>. Hence it may be evident what is signified by 'all the birds of the heavens made their nests in his branches' (Ezek.xxxi.6).

410<sup>4</sup>. That the love of self and the conceit of Own intelligence are meant, is evident from its being said . . . 'if thou shouldst exalt thy nest as the eagle, thence will I cast thee down' (Jer.xlix.16).

411<sup>22</sup>. 'Be like the dove that maketh her nest in the passages of the mouth of the pit' (Jer.xlviii.28)=the mental view of truth from without and not from within. . . . 'To make a nest'=the same as 'to dwell,' namely, to lead a life; but 'to make a nest' is predicated of a bird, and 'to dwell,' of man.

Net. Rete.

Reticular. Reticularis.

See CAUL.

A. 3309<sup>6</sup>. To this kind of hunting, nets are wont to be attributed.

4489<sup>2</sup>. The reticular work of the altar.

9348<sup>4</sup>. 'To spread a net over him' (Ezek.xix.8)=to entice by the delights of earthly loves, and by reasonings from them.

—<sup>7</sup>. As 'a snare,' 'a gin,' and 'a net'=such things, they also=the destruction of spiritual life, and thus perdition . . .

9726. 'Thou shalt make for it a grating the work of a net' (Ex.xxvii.4)=the Sensuous, which is the ultimate. Ex.

—, (So) everywhere in the outermosts of the body there are reticular forms, and as it were sieves or gratings, by which the things which approach from the world are sifted . . . There are such most exquisite forms in the stomach . . . The case is the same with the Sensuous . . .

9728. 'The net' (id.)=the outermost of life, which corresponds to the interior life, which is of the understanding and will.

9731. 'The net shall be even to the middle of the altar' (ver.5)=the extension of the Sensuous; 'the net'=the Sensuous.

R. 463<sup>e</sup>. They were girded with fishing nete as it were, around the loins, through which their nakednesses appeared.

D. 3409<sup>e</sup>. He could thus cast him into his own net.

3415. They said that they would wrap them in a net, and cast them into the sea.

3416. All whom he thus collected he wrapped in a great net, for by phantasies he induced a great net...

4735. See SPIDER, here.

5222<sup>e</sup>. Those who are being cast down from those places, appear as it were to be drawn in a net...

D. Min. 4719. What is meant by dragging a net...

E. 513<sup>11</sup>. The works of those who (teach others, and reform by means of knowledges) are meant by the letting out and the spreading out of nets. Ill.

—<sup>13</sup>. 'To gather into his net' (Hab.i.15)=into what is evil and false.

—<sup>15</sup>. From these things it may now be evident what is meant by 'the nets,' etc. which are so often mentioned in the New Testament. Ill.

—<sup>17</sup>. There are good natural men and evil natural men, and the separation of these appears in the Spiritual World like a net-rete seu sagena—let out into the sea, drawing together the fish, and hauling them up on the shore.

600<sup>7</sup>. 'Let down the net on the right side of the ship' (John xxi.6)=that they should teach the good of life. That thus they would convert the gentiles to the Church is signified by their finding abundance, so that they were not able to draw the net on account of the multitude of fishes. 513<sup>12</sup>.

654<sup>49</sup>. See FISH, here.

Net. Sagena. A.2449<sup>2</sup>. E.513<sup>17</sup>.

Nettle. Urtica.

A. 273. That 'nettle,' etc.=such things (as curse and vastation). Ill.

2455<sup>3</sup>. 'A place left to the nettle' (Zeph.ii.9)=vastated good. (=the ardour and burning of the life of man from the love of self. 10300<sup>6</sup>.)

M. 526<sup>2</sup>. How can a nettle be converted into a vine... B.112. T.642.

T. 78<sup>5</sup>. With those in Hell... there grow nettles, etc.

E. 653<sup>6</sup>. The devastation of all good is signified by 'a place of a nettle' (Zeph.ii.9).

Neuter. Neuter. M.151<sup>e</sup>. D.5950.

Never. Nusquam. A.2049<sup>4</sup>, etc., etc.

New. Novus.

Anew. E novo.

See under REGENERATE.

A. 16. The new creation of man.

780. A new creature. Sig.

927<sup>3</sup>. A new will implanted...

977<sup>2</sup>. A new will and a new understanding...

1001. This new Voluntary is the same as charity...

1438<sup>e</sup>. Therefore unless they receive from the Lord new seed, and a new proprium, that is, a new will and a new understanding, they cannot but be accursed to Hell...

1555<sup>e</sup>. Thus does he first receive new life...

2009<sup>2</sup>. 'Called by a new name' (Is.lxii.2)=created anew, or regenerated.

2272<sup>2</sup>. New thoughts (in temptations).

3138<sup>e</sup>. Man is made new by the influx of charity and faith, but the Lord by the Divine love...

3212. A new state. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. That the Lord as to the Human was made new, that is, glorified...

3254. What is new of representation. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>e</sup>. By 'old age' is signified what is new...

3318<sup>4</sup>. This is why man is regenerated, that is, made new, by temptations.

—<sup>5</sup>. But the Lord... was not made new like another man, but altogether Divine; for man, who is made new by regeneration, still retains in himself the inclination to evil...

3814. A new state of life. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. A state ever new as to the reception and exercise of good. Sig.

—<sup>e</sup>. The end of a former, and the beginning of a new state. Sig.

4063<sup>2</sup>. The new man is altogether different from the old. Des.

4067<sup>4</sup>. The middle delights and goods by which man is led by the Lord from the state of the old man to the state of the new man. Ex.

4292. A new given quality. Sig. and Ex.

4299<sup>2</sup>. Conscience is the new will and new understanding from the Lord...

4328. In (their Intellectual) the Lord... formed a new Voluntary, and, through this, a new Intellectual also. Refs.

4444<sup>6</sup>. The laws, etc., given to the Israelites were not new... 4449<sup>2</sup>.

4462<sup>e</sup>. Circumcision was not anything new...

4538<sup>3</sup>. When the Lord is making a man new...

4670<sup>3</sup>. 'Seventeen'=a beginning, and what is new.

4727<sup>2</sup>. Love to the Lord and charity towards the neighbour are what make man new.

4729. This worst falsity... is not eradicated except by a new life from the Lord.

4904<sup>2</sup>. Should put off the old man, that is, the loves of self and of the world... and should put on the new, that is, love towards the neighbour and to God.

5079. That they were contrary to the new state of the natural man. Sig. and Ex.

5113<sup>14</sup>. 'Until that day when I shall drink it new with you' (Matt.xxvi.29). Ex. E.376<sup>26</sup>.

5159. A new state with the man who is being regenerated begins when the order is inverted...

5351. 'Manasseh' = . . . the new Voluntary in the Natural. Ex.

5353. The new Voluntary comes forth by the influx of good from the Lord. Ex.

5354. 'Ephraim' = the new Intellectual in the Natural. Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. When, evils having been removed, man receives the influx, he then receives a new will and a new Intellectual; and from the new will he feels delight in benefiting the neighbour from no end for self, and from the new Intellectual he apperceives delight in learning what is good and true for their own sake and for the sake of life. As this new Intellectual and new Voluntary come forth by influx from the Lord, therefore he who has been regenerated acknowledges and believes that the good and truth with which he is affected are not from himself, but from the Lord . . .

5526<sup>2</sup>. From this good there is formed with man a new will . . .

5595. A new will in the Intellectual part . . . 6854<sup>2</sup>. 8806<sup>2</sup>.

5651<sup>2</sup>. That the old man is to be put off, and the new one put on.

—<sup>4</sup>. Then man is gifted with a new Natural . . .

5773<sup>2</sup>. With this good a new will is insinuated; and, with this, new freedom, thus a new proprium. Sig.

5804. Thence comes truth which is new. Sig. and Ex. 5812.

5812. The man then receives what is new of life through this new truth conjoined with good. Sig.

5954. 'Changes of garments' = truths which are new; and truths become new when they are initiated to good . . .

5972. New life. Sig. and Ex. 6036.

6392<sup>e</sup>. For this is in the new will . . .

6645. The end of a former state, and the beginning of a new one. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>e</sup>. Those of the Church are led successively into new states . . .

7342<sup>2</sup>. The affection of this love is what makes the new will.

8036. In (this charity and faith) are those who have been regenerated by the Lord, and have received from Him a new will and a new understanding.

8179<sup>2</sup>. Hence he has a new proprium . . . which is the new will.

8400. By 'fifteen' is signified what is new . . . here, what is new of life . . .

—<sup>e</sup>. 'Eight' = a certain beginning, thus what is new . . . Refs.

8403<sup>2</sup>. In order that a new life . . . may be insinuated.

— . The life of the new man cannot enter, except where the life of the old man has been extinguished.

8457. A new Voluntary by the insinuation of truth. Sig. and Ex.

— . For the new Voluntary is formed from good through truth with the man of the Spiritual Church, and it appears with him as conscience . . .

8521<sup>2</sup>. For in the intellectual part there is formed by the Lord a new will, which is, that the man wills to act according to the truth . . .

8548. He who is not . . . generated anew by the Lord cannot come into Heaven. Ill.

8552. Therefore, unless, as to the spiritual life, man from the Lord is conceived anew, is born anew, and is educated anew; that is, is created anew, he is condemned . . .

8754<sup>2</sup>. Afterwards, when man receives new life . . .

8772. He who knows the formation of good from truths . . . knows the arcana of the formation of man anew . . .

8891<sup>2</sup>. If otherwise his newness of life perishes. Refs.

9043<sup>e</sup>. When good is in the Natural, then the man is new . . .

9046<sup>e</sup>. This is the new life . . .

9212<sup>7</sup>. See GARMENT, here.

9258<sup>2</sup>. Then the good which has thus been formed produces a new man, as the Prolife in seed produces a new tree or a new plant. Thus all things become new . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. Good continually . . . produces itself through truths, and . . . is in the continual endeavour to produce new good . . .

9274<sup>2</sup>. The man who is being regenerated is gifted with both a new understanding and a new will by the Lord; and, unless he is gifted with both, he is not new . . . 9296<sup>2</sup>.

9297<sup>2</sup>. These truths are what make the new understanding of man, which makes a one with his new will . . .

9299. The good of worship not from proprium; but from the Lord always new. Sig. and Ex.

9708. That man may become a new creature.

9818<sup>4</sup>. 'A new heart' (Ezek. xviii. 31; xxxvi. 26) = a new will; and 'a new spirit' = a new understanding. T. 601.

10114. Not conjoined for a new state. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. A new state is every state of the conjunction of good and truth, which is when the man . . . acts from good . . . There is a new state also when those who are in Heaven are in the good of love . . . and there is a new state also when the old Church ceases and the new one commences.

10122<sup>4</sup>. Then those who have not a new will from the Lord rush into evils of every kind . . .

10124. This charity constitutes his new Voluntary, and the faith his new Intellectual: both constitute conscience.

10143<sup>2</sup>. Then he has a new will and a new understanding, consequently a new life.

10296. With the Spiritual . . . the Intellectual is preserved entire . . . and in it is implanted a new Voluntary . . . Refs.

N. 178. He who knows these (truths) can think them, then will them, and finally do them, and thus have new life.

L. 65. 'I make all things new' (Rev.xxi.)=that in the Church now to be instaurated by the Lord there will be new doctrine.

S. 262. The Lord does not pour in new truths immediately . . . T.208.

P. 264<sup>4</sup>. That genuine truths are now to be disclosed, is predicted by . . . 'I make all things new.'

R. 196. 'And My new name' (Rev.iii.12)=the worship of the Lord alone, together with new things which had not been in the former Church.

279. 'And they sang a new song' (Rev.v.9)=the acknowledgment and glorification of the Lord: that He alone is the Judge, the Redeemer and Saviour, thus the God of Heaven and earth. Ex.

— As (this) acknowledgment was not before in the Church, it is therefore called 'a new song.'

617. 'They sang as it were a new song . . .' (Rev. xiv.3)=the celebration and glorification of the Lord . . . in the New Christian Heaven; here, in special, that He is acknowledged as the God of Heaven and earth, as He is acknowledged in the ancient Heavens. The little expression 'as if' involves these things; for (the song) is not new.

886. 'Behold I make all things new'=that the Lord has executed the Last Judgment, and will then create a new Heaven and a new earth, and a new Church, together with each and all things which are in them.

M. 151a<sup>3</sup>. What news from the earth? 182<sup>3</sup>. 207<sup>2</sup>. 532. T.692. 693. 694. 846.

182<sup>8</sup>. From these new things from the earth, they perceive . . .

207. That they may open their new things from the Christian world.

—<sup>3</sup>. I will tell you a new thing from Heaven . . .

294. Such a thing is created in a moment . . . and represents something new on the earth.

323. They are always perceiving and feeling new things in whatever occurs.

381. Three new comers taken up into Heaven.

532. This is new: that the Lord has revealed arcana . . .

B. 95. That the opening and rejection of the dogmas of faith of the present Church, and the revelation and reception of the dogmas of faith of the New Church, is meant by . . . 'He who sits upon the throne said, Behold I make all things new; and He said, Write, because these words are true and faithful.'

T. 160<sup>3</sup>. Let us speak with some new comers . . . (who) did not know but that they were still in the natural world . . .

245<sup>2</sup>. Like those who know from hearsay-novellis . . .

304<sup>6</sup>. The gladness which comes from the new growths-novellis-in the fields.

571<sup>6</sup>. They produce new seeds, like a new offspring.

576. That the new generation or creation is effected by the Lord alone through charity and faith . . . the man co-operating. Gen.art.

601. That a regenerated man has a new will and a new understanding. Gen.art.

— A regenerated man is a renewed-innovatus-or new man.

604. The new will is above the old will . . . in like manner the new understanding . . .

640. Redemption was a certain creation of the angelic Heaven anew, and also of the Church.

650. (This doctrine) is new in the Church. Ex.

659<sup>2</sup>. There is (then) formed by the Lord a new will and a new understanding above the old, and there the Lord successively implants new goods through truths . . .

D. 277. Those have such phantasies who want . . . to change all things into new ones . . . Des.

E. 224. 'And My new name'=that they will acknowledge the Divine Human of the Lord.

248<sup>3</sup>. A Reciprocal with man which is his new will.

706<sup>14</sup>. 'New tongues' (Mark xvi. 17)=doctrinal things for a new Church.

857. 'A new song'=the acknowledgment and confession of the Lord, thus the glorification of Him. . . As there was the same Lord in the Ancient Churches, but celebrated under the name of Jehovah . . . and as thus the song concerning Him, regarded in itself, is not new, it is said 'as it were a new song.' Therefore it is here called 'new,' because it is for the new Church . . .

D. Wis. iv<sup>2</sup>. Man is thereby made new: not only in that a new will is given him, and a new understanding, but also a new body for his spirit. The former things are not abolished, but are removed so as not to appear, and new ones are formed through the love and wisdom which are the Lord . . .

New Church. Nova Ecclesia.

See NEW JERUSALEM, and SEVEN CHURCHES; and under HEAVENLY DOCTRINE, and NEW HEAVEN.

A. 28. A new Church. Tr. 31<sup>2</sup>. 40<sup>6</sup>.

324. A new Church exsuscitated called 'Enos.'

333. A new Church then arose, which is meant by 'Adah and Zillah' . . .

408. When the Church is so devastated that there is no longer any faith, it first begins anew; or a new light shines forth, which is called 'morning.' Ex. 409.

409<sup>6</sup>. (A new Church is transferred to the gentiles.) 410.

411. That the last time of vastation must come before a new Church can arise. Ill.

436<sup>6</sup>. 'The man and his wife'=the new Church before called 'Adah and Zillah.'

441. The worship of a new Church. Sig.

467. 'Noah'=a new Church. 838.

526. 'A son'=the origin of a new Church.

728<sup>4</sup>. The beginning of a new Church was represented by the deliverance and rebuilding of the Temple.

784. But this new Church was . . . in faith . . .

931<sup>2</sup>. A new Church is then always resuscitated by the Lord.

1148. From the time in which this new Church came forth. Sig.

1219. That a new Church came forth from the Ancient Church. Sig.

1228<sup>2</sup>. By (their being gathered together again and brought back from captivity) is meant the creation of a new Church.

1259<sup>3</sup>. A new Church, or that of the gentiles. Tr. 1551.

1366. The Church cannot come forth anew with any nation, until it is so vastated that nothing of evil and falsity remains in its internal worship. Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. As a new Church was to be restored, those were taken with whom the goods and truths of faith were to be implanted; with whom all the Knowledge of the good and truth of faith had been obliterated; and who, as gentiles, had become external idolaters.

1778. It was shown . . . that a new Church would revive . . . Tr. 1782.

1850<sup>2</sup>. A new heaven and a new earth, that is, a new Church, were created, which was called the Ancient Church . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. Therefore a new Church was exsuscitated with the descendants of Jacob . . .

—<sup>4</sup>. After this . . . a new Church, which is to be called the Primitive Church . . .

— . In some quarter of the globe—terrarum orbe—a New Church will be raised up, the present one remaining in its external worship, as the Jews do in theirs . . .

2243<sup>7</sup>. The Lord at the same time instaurated a new Church which was called the Christian Church . . .

2323. There is also an 'evening,' when charity shines forth, and consequently when faith, thus a new Church, rises up. This 'evening' is the twilight before the morning. . . For it is provided by the Lord that when a Church is ceasing to be, a new Church is rising up, and this at the same time; for without a Church somewhere on the globe, the human race cannot subsist . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. In (Gen.xix.) it treats concerning both states of the Church, namely, concerning the rise of a new Church, which is represented by 'Lot,' and concerning the destruction of the old one, which is signified by Sodom and Gomorrah . . .

2405<sup>3</sup>. See MORNING, here.

2830<sup>5</sup>. The New Temple and the New Jerusalem, in the universal sense, = the Lord's Kingdom; in special, a new Church.

2853<sup>3</sup>. Whenever any Church is consummated . . . then, of the Providence of the Lord, a new Church is always raised up. Enum.

2895. The Word written through the Evangelists was in a new Church.

2901. A new Spiritual Church. Tr. 2981.

—<sup>e</sup>. 'Hebron in the Land of Canaan' = the new Church.

2902. That the Lord instaurated a new Church, and was kindly received . . . Tr.

—<sup>e</sup>. Thus a new Church from the gentiles. Tr.

2906<sup>2</sup>. 'The year of good-pleasure of Jehovah' = the time of a new Church.

— . 'The year of My redeemed' = the time of a new Church.

2909<sup>3</sup>. That again there was a new Church, was represented by its being ceded to Caleb for an inheritance, as to field and villages.

2910<sup>2</sup>. Afterwards a new Church was exsuscitated by the Lord, which was called the Church of the Gentiles, and was internal . . .

—<sup>v</sup>. When a Church is consummated and perishes, then the Lord always exsuscitates a new Church somewhere; but rarely, if ever, from the man of the former Church; but from the gentiles who have been in ignorance. Tr.

2912. Because a new Church was to be exsuscitated in place of the former . . .

2913. 'The sons of Heth' = those with whom [there was to be] a new Spiritual Church. 2919. 2928. 2940. 2975.

—<sup>3</sup>. It treats in this verse concerning the new Church which the Lord instaurates when the former one expires . . .

2915. For it treats concerning a new Church; and, in this verse, concerning its first state, which is such that first of all the Lord is unknown to them; but still, as they live in the good of charity, and, as to civil life, in what is just and fair; and, as to moral life, in what is honourable and becoming, they are such that the Lord can be with them; for the presence of the Lord with man is in good . . .

2916<sup>4</sup>. That the Lord exsuscitated Lazarus from the dead, also involves the resuscitation of a new Church from the gentiles.

2919. A reciprocal state with those who are of the new Church. Sig.

2950. The Lord's joy on account of the good-will of those who were of the new Spiritual Church. Sig. and Ex.

2955. That 'I will bury my dead' = an emergence from spiritual night, and vivification, is also for the reason that when a former Church is dead, a new Church is exsuscitated by the Lord in its place . . .

—<sup>e</sup>. For there is always some Church on the Earth, and, when the old one expires, and night comes on, then a new Church rises again elsewhere, and there comes morning.

2978. That they were regenerated, and thus a new Spiritual Church was instaurated. Sig.

2981. 'This is Hebron' = that this is a new Church.

2986. 'From the sons of Heth' = that it was from the gentiles.

—<sup>2</sup>. It is to be known that when any Church becomes null, that is, when charity perishes, and a new Church is being instaurated by the Lord, rarely if ever is this effected with those with whom the old Church has been; but with those with whom there was no Church before . . . So was it done when the Most Ancient Church perished; then the new Church, which was called 'Noah' . . . was instaurated with the gentiles . . . In like manner when this Church perished, then the resemblance of a Church was instituted with the descendants of Abraham . . . for Abraham, when called, was a Gentile . . . and the descendants of Jacob in Egypt became still more Gentile . . . After this Church had been consummated, the Primitive Church was instaurated from the gentiles, the Jews being rejected. In like manner will it be with this Church, which is called Christian.

[A. 2986]<sup>3</sup>. The reason the New Church will be instaurated by the Lord with the gentiles, is that they have no principles of falsity contrary to the truths of faith . . . Principles of falsity imbued from infancy, and afterwards confirmed, must be shaken off before the man can be regenerated, and become the Church . . .

3325<sup>10</sup>. A new Spiritual Church. Tr.

3355<sup>e</sup>. A new Church internal and external. Sig.

3579<sup>2</sup>. A new Church. Tr. 3580<sup>6</sup>. 4697. 6000<sup>7</sup>.

3580<sup>6</sup>. 'Jezreel' = a new Church.

3654<sup>3</sup>. A new Church in general, and with each one in particular who is being regenerated or made the Church. Tr.

3708<sup>11</sup>. When a new Church is being instaurated with (the upright gentiles), the spirit of God is said 'to rest' there.

3881<sup>2</sup>. A new Spiritual Church with the gentiles. Tr.

3898<sup>2</sup>. The reason the interior things of the Word are now being opened, is that at this day the Church is vastated so greatly—that is, is so devoid of faith and love—that although men know and understand, still they do not acknowledge, and still less believe; except a few, who are in the life of good and are called 'the elect,' who can now be instructed, and with whom a New Church is to be instituted. But where these are the Lord alone knows; there will be few within the Church: it was the gentiles with whom new Churches were established before.

4058<sup>e</sup>. It treats also (in Matt.xxiv.) of the beginning of a new Church. 4060<sup>7</sup>.

4060<sup>9</sup>. 'They shall gather together the elect from the four winds . . . '=the instauration of a New Church.

4197<sup>4</sup>. 'The spirit of life from God entered into them, so that they stood upon their feet' = a new Church.

4230. See LAST JUDGMENT, here.

4231. 'Learn a parable from the fig-tree: When its branch is yet tender, and its leaves bud forth, ye know that summer is nigh' = the first of a new Church . . .

— (Thus) this parable involves that when a new Church is being created by the Lord, there first of all appears the good of the Natural, that is, good in an external form with its affection and truths. Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. Then the old Church is rejected, and a new Church is instaurated.

—<sup>e</sup>. (Thus) prediction is here made concerning the beginnings of a new Church.

4255<sup>e</sup>. 'The new earth,' or 'Holy Land,' = the Lord's Kingdom, and also a new Church, which is the Lord's Kingdom on earth. Refs.

4333. These words describe the quality of the state which will be when the old Church is being rejected, and the new Church is being instaurated . . .

4334<sup>5</sup>. 'Until the day that Noë entered into the ark' = the end of the former Church and the beginning of the new Church.

—<sup>e</sup>. By these words is described what would be the state as to good and truth within the Church, when it is being rejected, and the new Church is being adopted.

4423. How the case is with the rejection of an old Church, and the adoption of a new Church, scarcely anyone knows. . . Those of the old Church are not about to perish . . . but the Church perishes principally as to the states of its interiors . . . Heaven then removes itself from them . . . and transfers itself to others, who are adopted in their place. (Continued under Old Church.)

4449. A longing for conjunction with this new Church. Sig. and Ex. 4450<sup>e</sup>.

4516<sup>e</sup>. For no new Church is instaurated, until the former one has been vastated.

4535<sup>2</sup>. 'The new heaven and earth' = the Internal and External of the new Church which succeeds when the former one passes away. 5136. 5577.

—<sup>3</sup>. This last time of the former Church, and first of the new Church is what is called 'the consummation of the age' . . . and His Advent; for the Lord then recedes from the former Church, and comes to the new Church.

4588<sup>e</sup>. The daughters and sons which the Hebrew women bore = the goods and truths of the new Church.

4672. 'A boy' (Joseph) when predicated of a new Church = its first state . . . for the Church runs through its ages like a man . . .

4747<sup>3</sup>. Hence it is that when any new Church is being instaurated by the Lord, it is not instaurated with those who are within the Church, but with those who are without it, that is, with the gentiles. Rep. by Joseph's being cast into a pit by his brethren, and being drawn out by the Midianites and sold to the Ishmaelites; for by the brethren of Joseph are represented those within the Church who have confirmed themselves against the Divine truth, especially against these two things: that the Human of the Lord is Divine, and that the works of charity are effective for salvation, and this not only in doctrine but also in life. By 'the Ishmaelites,' however, are represented those who are in simple good, and by 'the Midianites,' those who are in the truth of this good.

4835. (Thus) the Jewish Church was not any new Church, but was a resuscitation of the Ancient Church, which had perished.

4904<sup>3</sup>. Therefore the Lord instaurated a new Church . . .

5247<sup>2</sup>. It there treats of the New Temple, and of the new Priesthood, that is, of a new Church . . .

5360<sup>e</sup>. This last state of the Church which precedes the state of the new Church, is what is properly meant in the Word by 'vastation' and 'desolation' . . .

6000<sup>4</sup>. 'Night' = the last time of an old Church and the first of a new Church.

6588. 'God in visiting will visit you' = . . . the last time of the old Church, and the first of the new Church.

This last time is called 'visitation,' and is predicated of . . . a new Church which is being born, and of an old Church which is expiring . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. 'To be visited,' here (Luke i. 68, 78) = the ex-suscitation of a new Church, and the illustration then of those who were in ignorance of the truth and good of faith; thus concerning their deliverance; and therefore it is said, 'He hath visited and made deliverance for His people;' 'He hath visited so that He might appear to those who are sitting in darkness and in the shadow of death.'

6895<sup>2</sup>. The Advent of the Lord takes place when the old Church is being rejected, and a new one is being instaurated by the Lord: and as a new Church was being instaurated with the descendants of Jacob, it is said, 'In visiting He hath visited us' . . .

—<sup>e</sup>. Thus the Advent of the Lord in love and faith with those who will be of the new Church.

7844<sup>4</sup>. 'Morning' = the light and rise of a new Church from the Lord.

7844<sup>3</sup>. See EVENING, here.

8427<sup>4</sup>. 'Tell us what is the sign of Thy Coming' . . . The Coming of the Lord = the acknowledgment of truth Divine by those who are of the New Church, and the denial by those who are of the old Church. Ref.

8891<sup>3</sup>. 'Adam and Eve' = a new Church . . .

8902<sup>3</sup>. It here treats concerning the last time of the Church, when a new Church is being resuscitated, the old one perishing; 'Jacob' = those who are in the external of the Church; and 'Israel,' those who are in the internal.

9042<sup>2</sup>. It here treats of a new Church from the Lord . . .

9050<sup>10</sup>. Concerning the new Temple, that is, a new Spiritual Church from the Lord. Tr.

9182<sup>6</sup>. Concerning the instaurated of a new Church. Tr.

9212<sup>7</sup>. 'No one addeth a piece of a new garment to an old garment . . . ' The Lord used this similitude to describe the truth of the new Church and the truth of the old Church . . . To sew . . . the one to the other is to destroy both; for the truth of the new Church is interior truth, thus truth for the internal man; whereas the truth of the old Church is exterior truth, thus truth for the external man. In this latter truth was the Jewish Church . . . whereas the Church at this day is in internal truths . . .

9256<sup>5</sup>. From these things it may be evident whence it is that a new Church is always instaurated with the nations who are outside the Church; which takes place when the old Church has closed Heaven against itself. Refs. Hence it is that the Church from the Jewish people was transferred to the gentiles; and also that the present Church is now also being transferred to the gentiles. Ill.

—<sup>7</sup>. The gentiles adore one only God under a human form; and therefore when they hear about the Lord, they receive and acknowledge Him; nor can a new Church be instaurated with others. Ill.

9325<sup>8</sup>. The new Church of the gentiles is meant by 'the barren and the desolate who shall have many sons' . . .

9407<sup>4</sup>. By 'the holy Jerusalem descending from heaven' is meant a new Church with the gentiles, after that the present one which is in our European world has been devastated.

9408<sup>5</sup>. By 'the creation' in the first chapters of Genesis . . . is meant a new Church; for 'creation,' there, is new regeneration . . .

9485<sup>2</sup>. It treats (in Jer. iii. 14, 16, 17) concerning a new Church. The representative of the former Church, which representative was then to be abolished, is meant by 'the ark, which was not to be spoken of any more . . . ' 'Jerusalem,' to which the nations will be 'gathered together,' is that new Church.

9642<sup>2</sup>. It treats (in Is. xliii. 6) concerning a new Church. 'To say to the north' = to those who are in darkness or ignorance concerning the truths of faith, who are the nations outside the Church.

9659<sup>5</sup>. It treats (in Ezek. xl.) concerning the New House, by which is signified the Lord's new Church.

9818<sup>4</sup>. 'To extend the heavens and to found the earth' = a new Church.

10134<sup>7</sup>. When the Church is in its night, in which it is when it is no longer in love to God and in faith, then, from the twilight, morning begins with another nation, where a new Church is being instaurated. Ex.

—<sup>11</sup>. 'The morning cometh, and also the night' = that although there is illumination with those who are of the new Church, still there is night with those who are in the old one.

N. 1<sup>2</sup>. 'The new heaven and the new earth' = a new Church both in the Heavens and on earth . . . J. 1<sup>2</sup>.

5. By 'the new earth' is meant a new Church on earth; for when the former Church is ceasing to be, a new one is being instaurated by the Lord . . .

J. 1<sup>2</sup>. It is said a new Church in the Heavens, because there is a Church there equally as on earth; for there is equally the Word there, and also preachings, and a like Divine worship as on earth; but with the difference that there all things are in a more perfect state . . .

34<sup>6</sup>. In the end of the Church evil increases over good, and therefore all are judged by the Lord, and the evil are separated from the good, and all things are reduced into order, and a New Heaven is instaurated, and also a new Church on earth, and thus the equilibrium is restored.

45<sup>2</sup>. It has been given me to see . . . also how a New Heaven has been formed, and a new Church has been instaurated in the Heavens, which is meant by 'the New Jerusalem.'

46<sup>2</sup>. By 'the creation of heaven and earth' is meant the instaurated of a new Church . . .

C. J. 12. That hence it is, that after the Last Judgment was accomplished, and not before, revelations were made for the New Church. Ex.

L. Pref.<sup>e</sup>. It is said, The Doctrine of the New Jerusalem, and there is meant the Doctrine for the New Church, which is at this day to be instaurated by the Lord; for the old Church has arrived at its end . . .

[L.] 3<sup>d</sup>. That the Lord came into the world in order to instaurate a new Church . . . 5, Sig. and Ill.

61. The reason these things concerning the Lord are now first made known, is that it is foretold in the Apocalypse, Chapters xxi. and xxii., that a New Church is to be instituted by the Lord at the end of the former one, in which this will be the primary thing. It is this Church which is there meant by 'the New Jerusalem,' into which no one can enter, except him who acknowledges the Lord alone as the God of Heaven and earth; and therefore this Church is called 'the Lamb's wife.' P. 263.

62. That a New Church is meant by 'the New Jerusalem' in the Apocalypse. Gen. art.

— 'The new heaven and earth' . . . mean what is new of the Church in the Spiritual World, and what is new of the Church in the natural world. Ex.

63. By 'the Holy City Jerusalem' is meant that New Church as to doctrine. Ex.

65. That in the Church now to be instaurated by the Lord there will be new doctrine. Sig.

S. 14<sup>2</sup>. By 'the gathering together of the elect . . .' is signified what is new of the Church as to love and faith.

F. 67<sup>e</sup>. By 'the evening the morning, when what is holy shall be justified,' is signified the end of that Church, and the beginning of a new one.

P. 264<sup>4</sup>. That genuine truths, in which is the spiritual sense . . . were not revealed until after the Last Judgment . . . and a New Church, meant by 'the Holy Jerusalem,' was to be instaurated by the Lord. Ex.

—<sup>5</sup>. (Thus) the spiritual sense . . . was to be revealed for the New Church, which will acknowledge and worship the Lord alone, and will hold His Word holy, and will love Divine truths, and will reject faith separated from charity.

328<sup>10</sup>. That it is provided also that a New Church shall succeed in place of the former devastated one. Ex.

R. Pref.<sup>2</sup>. From this New Heaven descends and will descend a New Church in the earth, which is the New Jerusalem. That this Church will acknowledge the Lord alone. Ill.

1. Pref. That this revelation . . . is received by those who will be in the New Church, which is the New Jerusalem. Tr.

2<sup>d</sup>. The Apocalypse treats . . . from beginning to end concerning the last state of the Church in the Heavens and on earth, and then concerning the Last Judgment, and after this concerning the New Church, which is the New Jerusalem. That this New Church is the end of this work, is evident, and therefore those things which precede treat concerning the state of the Church such as it is proximately before that New Church.

4<sup>2</sup>. By 'the consummation of the age' is meant the last state of the old Church; and by 'the Advent of the Lord,' the first state of the New Church.

9. Therefore unless a New Church, which acknowledges these two essentials, and lives them, rises up, no one can be saved. On account of this danger, the time is shortened by the Lord . . .

17<sup>5</sup>. Therefore the good of life is now being taught by the Lord for those who will be of His New Church, which is the New Jerusalem.

43. 'I saw seven golden lampstands' = the New Church, which will be in illustration from the Lord from the Word. Ex. E. 62.

—<sup>2</sup>. For those who will be of the Lord's New Church are only lampstands, who will give light from the Lord.

—<sup>3</sup>. By 'a lampstand' is signified a new Church also in Zech. iv.

—<sup>4</sup>. The illustration of the new Church by the Lord from the good of love through truth. Sig.

44. The Lord as to the Word, from whom is that New Church. Sig. and Ex.

53<sup>2</sup>. 'That day' = the Advent of the Lord, when the old Church has been destroyed, and the new one is to be instaurated.

64. Arcana in the visions concerning the New Heaven and the New Church. Sig. . . 'The seven stars' = the Church in the Heavens; and 'the seven lampstands' = the Church on earth.

65. 'The seven stars are the Angels of the seven Churches' = the New Church in the Heavens, which is the New Heaven. Ex. 237.

66. 'And the seven lampstands which thou sawest are the seven Churches' = the New Church on earth, which is the New Jerusalem descending from the Lord out of the New Heaven. 237.

—<sup>e</sup>. Hence it is that the universal New Church with its various things is described in the things which now follow by the seven Churches. 73.

67. The Faith of the New Heaven and New Church in the universal idea, stated. B. 116. T. 2. Compare F. 34.

68. All these (from the Churches in the Christian world) are called to the New Church, which is the New Jerusalem.

69. By (the seven Churches) are described all who are in the Christian world, who have religion, and from whom the New Church, which is the New Jerusalem, can be formed; and it is being formed from those who approach the Lord alone, and at the same time act repentance from evil works. The rest, who do not approach the Lord alone, from a confirmed denial that His Human is Divine, and who do not act repentance from evil works, are indeed in the Church, but have not anything of the Church in them.

70. As the Lord alone is acknowledged as the God of Heaven and earth by those who are of His New Church in the Heavens and those who will be of it on the earth, in the first chapter of the Apocalypse it treats concerning the Lord alone; and in these two following ones, it is He alone who speaks to the Churches . . . Ill.

71<sup>e</sup>. From these [passages] it is evident that the Lord alone is acknowledged in the New Church. Hence it is that this Church is called 'the Lamb's Wife.'

72. That the New Church, which is the New Jerusalem, is being formed from those who act repentance from evil works. Ill.

87. That he who understands these things should obey what the Divine truth of the Word teaches those who will be of the New Church, which is the New Jerusalem. Sig. and Ex.

145. That the few things which they know . . . from the Word, they should retain, and live according to them, until there are made the New Heaven and the New Church, which are the Advent of the Lord. Sig. and Ex.

154. Pref. (All these) also are called to the Lord's New Church.

166<sup>4</sup>. Therefore the Lord compares the truths of the former Church, which were external, and representative of spiritual things, to 'a piece of an old garment;' and the truths of the new Church, which were internal and spiritual, to 'a piece of a new garment.'

183. That those who are in falsities as to doctrine, provided they are not in falsities from evil, will receive the truths of the New Church, and will acknowledge them. Sig. and Ex.

187. The Advent of the Lord, and a New Church then from these. Sig. and Ex.

194. That the doctrine of the New Church will be inscribed on their hearts. Sig. and Ex.

237. 'There were seven lamps of fire before the throne, which are the seven spirits of God' (Rev. iv. 5) = thence a New Church in Heaven and on earth from the Lord through the Divine truth proceeding from Him. Ex.

— By 'the seven lampstands' is meant a New Church on earth . . . and by 'the seven stars' a New Church in the Heavens.

348<sup>3</sup>. From those who are here treated of (the 144,000) a New Heaven has been formed, and a New Church is being formed, by the Lord . . . —<sup>e</sup>.

350. Celestial love, which is love to the Lord; and this with all who will be in the New Heaven and in the New Church of the Lord. Sig. and Ex.

351. Wisdom from celestial love with those who will be in the New Heaven and in the New Church of the Lord. Sig. and Ex.

352. The uses of life, which are of wisdom from that love, also with those who will be in the New Heaven and in the New Church of the Lord. Sig. and Ex.

353. Mutual love, which is the love of doing good use to the community or society, with those who will be of the New Heaven and of the New Church of the Lord. Sig. and Ex.

354. The perception of use and of what use is with those who will be in the New Heaven and in the New Church of the Lord. Sig. and Ex.

355. The will of serving and of act with those who will be of the New Heaven and of the New Church of the Lord. Sig. and Ex.

356. Spiritual love, which is love towards the neighbour, or charity, with those who will be of the New Heaven and of the New Church of the Lord. Sig. and Ex.

357. The affection of truth from good, from which is intelligence, with those who will be of the New Heaven and of the New Church of the Lord. Sig. and Ex.

358. The good of life with those who will be of the New Heaven and of the New Church of the Lord. Sig. and Ex.

359. The conjugal love of good and truth also with those who will be of the New Heaven and of the New Church of the Lord. Sig. and Ex.

360. The doctrine of good and truth with those who will be of the New Heaven and of the New Church of the Lord. Sig. and Ex.

361. The life of truth from good according to doctrine with those who will be in the New Heaven and in the New Church of the Lord. Sig. and Ex.

362. Dan . . . could not signify anything in the New Heaven and New Church of the Lord, where there will be only those who are celestial and those who are spiritual: hence instead of 'Dan' there is 'Manasseh.' That instead of 'Ephraim' there is 'Joseph,' see explained in no. 360.

363. All the rest, who are not of those enumerated, and yet are in the New Heaven and in the New Church of the Lord, and are those who make the Ultimate Heaven and the External Church, whose quality no one knows except the Lord alone. Sig. and Ex.

434<sup>2</sup>. By 'the Woman encompassed with the sun,' whom the dragon has persecuted, is signified the New Church, which is the New Jerusalem.

469<sup>2</sup>. For this (doctrine of the Lord) is the very essential of the New Church. Sig.

473. The voices which the seven thunders spake . . . being the very essentials of the New Church, are said thrice.

—<sup>2</sup>. These things being done, the New Church, which would be the Lamb's Wife, descended from Heaven.

476. (Thus) the Church will expire, unless a New Church comes forth, which acknowledges the Lord alone as the God of Heaven and earth, and therefore approaches Him immediately. Sig. and Ex. 477. Sig. and Ex.

485. Pref. The quality of those who are interiorly in faith alone in their opposition to the two essentials of the New Church; which are . . . Tr. (See ESSENCE, here.)

—<sup>e</sup>. That the state of the New Church was manifested from the New Heaven. Tr.

491. That these two . . . essentials of the New Church are to be taught even to the end and the beginning. Sig. and Ex.

— By the '1260 days' is signified . . . to the end of the former Church, and thus to the beginning of the New Church. Ex.

494. That he who wants to destroy these two essentials of the New Church, perishes from infernal love. Sig. and Ex.

496. That those who avert themselves from the two essentials of the New Church cannot receive any truth from Heaven. Sig. and Ex.

[R.] 497°. That those who avert themselves from the two essentials of the New Church can see nothing but the falsities in which they are; and, if they confirm these by the Word, they falsify its truths. Sig.

498. That those who want to destroy these two essentials of the New Church cast themselves into evils and falsities of every kind, as often and in so far as they do it. Sig. and Ex.

500. That those who are in the internals of the doctrine concerning faith alone will oppose themselves to, and will attack, these two essentials of the New Church, and will reject them with themselves, and, so far as they are able, with others. Sig. and Ex.

501. That the two essentials of the New Church are altogether rejected by those who are interiorly in the falsities of the doctrine concerning justification by faith alone. Sig. and Ex.

505. When all who have been and shall be in falsities of doctrine, and thence in evils of life, from faith alone, at the end of the Church which still is, to the beginning of the New Church, have heard and shall hear concerning the two essentials . . . they have condemned and will condemn them. Sig. and Ex. 506.

509. That owing to their contrariety (to the two essentials received in the Reformed Church) the two essentials of the New Church, which is the New Jerusalem, are held in contempt, dislike, and aversion. Sig. and Ex.

510. That these two essentials of the New Church, at the end of the former one, while the New Church is beginning and progressing, are vivified by the Lord with those who receive them. Sig. and Ex.

— By 'three days and a half,' is signified . . . from the end of the Church which yet is, to the beginning of the New Church; here, with those with whom the New Church is beginning and progressing . . .

512. These two essentials of the New Church taken up by the Lord into Heaven . . . Sig.

523. The New Heaven and the New Church, where they will acknowledge Him to be the Only God . . . Sig. and Ex.

532. Pref. It treats (in Rev. xii.) of the New Church and its doctrine. By 'the woman' is here meant the New Church . . . The persecution of the New Church . . . on account of its doctrine, and its protection by the Lord, until from a few it increases among many. Tr.

532. A revelation from the Lord concerning His New Church in the Heavens and on earth, and concerning the difficult reception of and assault upon its doctrine. Sig. and Ex.

533. 'A woman clothed with the sun, and the moon under her feet' = the Lord's New Church in the Heavens, which is the New Heaven, and the Lord's New Church, which will be on earth, which is the New Jerusalem. Ex. (Continued under CHURCH.)

534°. 'The crown of twelve stars' upon the head of the woman = the wisdom and intelligence of the New Church from the Knowledges of Divine good and Divine truth from the Word.

535. The nascent doctrine of the New Church, and its difficult reception on account of the resistance by those who are meant by 'the dragon.' Sig. and Ex.

536. A revelation from the Lord concerning those who are against the New Church and its doctrine. Sig.

542. That those who are meant by 'the dragon' busy themselves to extinguish the doctrine of the New Church in its first rise. Sig. and Ex.

545. The protection of the doctrine by the Lord because it is for the New Church . . . Sig. and Ex.

546. The Church which is the New Jerusalem at first among a few. Sig. and Ex.

547. The state of this Church at that time, that meanwhile it may be provided with many, until it increases to its appointed state. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. The reason it is of the Lord's Divine Providence that at first the Church should be among a few, and should increase successively among many, is that the falsities of the former Church are first to be removed; for, before this, truths cannot be received. For the truths which are received and implanted before falsities have been removed, do not permanently remain, and are also diminished by the dragonists. The like took place with the Christian Church, in that it increased successively from few to many. The other reason is, that there must first be formed a New Heaven, which will make a one with the Church on earth; and therefore we read that be 'saw a new heaven,' and 'the holy Jerusalem descending from God out of heaven.' It is certain that a New Church, which is the New Jerusalem, will come forth, because it has been foretold in the Apocalypse; and it is also certain that the falsities of the former Church must first be removed, because these have been treated of in the Apocalypse up to chapter xx.

548. The falsities of the former Church fighting against the truths of the New Church. Sig. and Ex.

558. (That the dragonists) have been cast down from Heaven into the World of Spirits, and are thence in conjunction with the men of the Earth, whom, from hatred against the New Church, they excite to persevere in their falsities and the derivative evils. Sig. and Ex.

559. Because (the dragon) knows that a New Heaven has been formed, and that thus the New Church on earth is at hand, and that then he and his will be cast into Hell. Sig. and Ex.

560. That the dragonists in the World of Spirits . . . have immediately set about infesting the New Church on account of its doctrine. Sig. and Ex.

561. The Divine circumspection for the New Church, and protection while it is as yet among a few. Sig. and Ex.

562. That on account of the cunning of the seducers it is cautiously provided that the New Church may come among more, even until it increases to its appointed state. Sig. and Ex.

563. Reasonings from falsities in abundance to destroy the Church. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. This I can relate: that those in the Church who hereafter confirm faith alone with themselves, cannot recede from it, except by serious repentance, because they conjoin themselves with the dragonists, who are now in the World of Spirits, and are in great agitation, and there, from hatred against the New Church, are infesting all whom they meet . . .

564. That the reasonings . . . which the dragonists bring forth fall to nothing from the spiritual truths rationally understood, which the Michaels, from whom is the New Church, adduce. Sig. and Ex.

565. That they have endeavoured in vain to destroy the New Church. Sig.

—<sup>3</sup>. That by 'the seed' of the Woman are here meant those who are of the New Church, and are in the truths of its doctrine. Ill.

574<sup>2</sup>. At last (in Dan.vii.) there is described the Advent of the Lord, and the destruction of that Church then, and the instauration of a New one.

583. The opportunity to teach and to do the evils and falsities of that doctrine even to the end of that Church, until—dum—the beginning of the New one. Sig. and Ex.

593. That the man of the Lord's New Church is explored by temptations from them, as to his quality as to life and as to faith. Sig. and Ex.

— By 'the saints' are signified those who are of the Lord's New Church; in special, those who are in Divine truths there.

612. Pref. Evangelization concerning the Advent of the Lord, and a New Church then. Tr.

612<sup>2</sup>. This Heaven is the New Heaven, from which the Holy Jerusalem, that is, the New Church on earth, will descend (Rev.xxi.1,2).

626. The announcement of the Advent of the Lord, and of the New Church which will descend from Heaven from Him. Sig. and Ex.

628. These things are now said to those who will be of the New Church on earth, because the first of reformation is to live according to the precepts of the decalogue . . .

633<sup>o</sup>. In (Rev.xiv.6,7) it treats concerning the preaching of the Gospel; that is, of the Advent of the Lord to inaugurate the New Church.

639. A prediction from the Lord concerning the state of those after death who will be of His New Church; which is, that those who suffer temptations on account of faith in the Lord and a life according to His precepts, have eternal life and happiness. Sig. and Ex.

658<sup>e</sup>. 'Even to the consummation of the age'=even to the end of the Church, until—dum—the New Church, with which the Lord will then be.

700. That the falsities of these reasonings have been removed with those who are in truths from goods from the Lord, and are to be introduced into the New Church. Sig. and Ex.

— 'The rising of the sun'=the beginning of the New Church from the Lord.

—<sup>2</sup>. It treats here concerning the consummation or end of the present Church, and concerning the instauration or beginning of the New Church, and concerning contentions.

— The contentions (of the present Church) with those who will be of the New Church, are meant by the 'gathering together of the kings of the earth to battle.' But those who will be of the New Church, with whom they will contend, are meant by those for whom 'the water of the river Euphrates was dried up, that a way might be prepared for the kings from the rising of the sun.' This involves the like as the introduction of the sons of Israel into the Land of Canaan, with the difference, that for them the river Jordan was dried up, but for these the river Euphrates . . . because these latter contend by means of interior reasonings, which are to be . . . removed, before the introduction is effected; which also is the reason why their interior reasonings are disclosed in this Work . . .

704. Excitations of all in that whole Church, who are in the same falsities, to attack the truths of the New Church. Sig. and Ex.

— The reason it is to attack the truths of the New Church, is that it is said 'the great day of God Almighty,' and by 'that day' is signified the Advent of the Lord, and the New Church then. —<sup>2</sup>, Ill.

—<sup>e</sup>. As . . . the end of the old Church is when it is the Advent of the Lord and the beginning of a New Church, therefore by 'the day of Jehovah,' in very many places, is also signified the end of the former Church . . .

706. These things are said to those who will be of the Lord's New Church, in order that they may learn truths, and remain in them . . .

707. A mind to destroy the New Church, originating from the love of command and of supereminence. Sig. and Ex.

— Because the combat between the old Church and the new one is meant. —<sup>2</sup>.

—<sup>3</sup>. By 'that day' is signified the Advent of the Lord, and, then, the end of the old Church, and the beginning of the new Church. Ill.

— In Zech. xii. . . it is described: That the Lord is about to form a new Church (ver.1). That there will then be nothing of doctrine in the old Church, and that they will therefore flee from it (vers.2,3). That there will no longer be the understanding of truth, except only with those who are in the Word, and who are of the new Church (ver.4). That these will learn the good of doctrine from the Lord (ver.5). That the Lord will then destroy all falsities by the truths of the Word, lest the doctrine of the new Church should teach anything else than the truth (vers.6,7). That the Church will then be in the doctrine concerning the Lord (ver.8). That He will destroy all persons and things which are contrary to that doctrine (ver.9); and that then there will be a new Church from the Lord (ver.10). And that then each and all things of the Church will be in mourning (vers.10-14).

—<sup>4</sup>. The contents of the following chapter, xiii., are these: That the Word will be for the new Church, and will be open to them (ver.1) . . . That those who are of the devastated Church will perish; and that those who are of the new Church are to be purified and taught by the Lord (vers.8,9).

—<sup>5</sup>. The contents of chapter xiv. are these: . . . That truth will be multiplied in the new Church; nor will there be the falsity of evil there (vers.10,11) . . . That they will then accede to the worship of the Lord, even from the gentiles (or nations) who are external natural (vers.16-19) . . . These are the contents of (Zech.xii. xiii. and xiv.) unfolded, because in them also it treats concerning the last state of the old Church, and concerning the first state of the New Church. And as it is said that they are to be gathered together into a place called . . . Armageddon, it is evident that the same things were said in the Prophet concerning the last state of the present Church, and concerning the first state of the New Church.

[R.]750<sup>e</sup>. 'Even to the consummation of the age'= even to the end of the Church; and then, if they do not approach the Lord Himself, and live according to His precepts, they are left by the Lord; and, when left by the Lord, they become as pagans who have no religion; and then the Lord is solely with those who will be of His New Church. These things are signified by: 'until the words of God are consummated,' and by, 'even to the consummation of the age.'

803, Pref. An annunciation concerning the Advent of the Lord, and concerning the New Church from Him. Tr.

811. The joy of the Angels of the lowest Heaven, of the Angels of the middle Heaven, and of the Angels of the highest Heaven, that the Lord alone reigns in the Church which is now to come. Sig. and Ex.

813. 'And His Wife hath made herself ready'=that those who will be of this Church, which is the New Jerusalem, are being collected, inaugurated, and instructed. Ex.

814. That those who will be of the Lord's New Church are being instructed in genuine and pure truths through the Word from the Lord. Sig. and Ex.

816. An Angel . . . speaking to John concerning the Lord's New Church, and saying, that it was being given to know on earth, that those have eternal life who receive the things which are of that Church. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. This was done in order that it might be announced on earth . . . that a New Church is to be instaurated by the Lord on earth, as it has been instaurated in the Heavens; for the Church is first instaurated in the Heavens by the Lord, and afterwards, through the Heavens, on the earth.

—<sup>3</sup>. By 'the wedding of the Lamb' is signified the New Church, which is in conjunction with the Lord. By 'those who are called' are meant all who receive . . .

—<sup>4</sup>. The reason it is called 'the wedding supper of the Lamb,' is that this takes place in the last state of the Church, which is called 'evening' . . . but the first state of the New Church is called 'morning.' In the evening, man is called to the Church; and, when the called are present, it becomes morning.

831. The Lord from Divine love, and thence from Divine zeal, calling and convoking all who are in the spiritual affection of truth, and who are thinking about Heaven, to the New Church . . . Sig. and Ex.

—'. 'To come and be gathered together to the supper of the great God'=a calling and convocation to the New Church, and to conjunction with the Lord' . . . —<sup>o</sup>.

833. That all the interiorly evil, who have professed faith alone . . . will infest those who will be of the Lord's New Church. Sig. and Ex.

839. I saw an army upon red and black horses, (who) appeared like apes, with their faces and breasts turned towards the loins and tails of the horses . . . They cried, Let us fight against those who ride upon white horses; and they pulled the reins with both hands, and thus pulled back the horses from the fight . . . The Angels said, They are from the place called 'Armageddon,' into which they have been congregated to the number of some thousands, to fight against those who are of the Lord's New Church, which is called 'the New Jerusalem.' Fully des. and Ex.

—<sup>7</sup>. (The Angels) informed them, that at this day a New Church is being instaurated by the Lord, which is meant by 'the New Jerusalem' in the Apocalypse; in which there will be the worship of the Lord alone, as it is in Heaven: and that thus everything will be fulfilled which is contained in the Lord's Prayer from beginning to end.

859<sup>2</sup>. That the New Church to be instaurated by the Lord will be informed in truths and goods of every kind, and will be imbued with goods of every kind. Sig. (in Ezek.xxxix.17-21).

861. That, being excited by the dragonists, (those meant by 'Gog and Magog') would . . . endeavour to destroy all things of the New Church, and its very doctrine concerning the Lord and concerning life. Sig. and Ex.

876, Pref. It treats (in Rev.xxi.) concerning the state of Heaven and the Church after the Last Judgment: that, after it, through the New Heaven, the New Church will come forth on earth, which will worship the Lord alone (vers.1-8). Its conjunction with the Lord (vers. 9,10). The description of it as to intelligence from the Word (ver.11): as to doctrine thence (vers.12-21): and as to all its quality (vers.22-26).

879. A New Church to be instaurated by the Lord at the end of the former one, which will be consociated with the New Heaven in Divine truths as to doctrine and as to life. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>e</sup>. It is said 'descending from God out of Heaven,' because [the New Church is] from the Lord through the New Christian Heaven.

881. The New Church conjoined with the Lord through the Word. Sig. and Ex.

—'. John saw (the New Church) first as a city, and afterwards as a virgin bride; as a city representatively, and as a virgin bride spiritually; thus in a double idea, the one within or above the other . . .

886. That the Lord will create a New Heaven with a new earth, and a New Church, which is to be called the New Jerusalem; and that they may know these things for certain, and may remember them, because the Lord Himself has testified and said it. Sig. and Ex.

895. Influx and manifestation from the Lord from the inmost of Heaven concerning the New Church, which will be conjoined with the Lord through the Word. Sig. and Ex.

896. John translated into the Third Heaven, and his sight opened there, before which was manifested the Lord's New Church as to doctrine in the form of a city. Sig. and Ex.

897. That in this Church there will be the Word understood, because translucent from its spiritual sense. Sig. and Ex.

898. The Word in the sense of the letter, from which is the doctrine of the New Church. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>e</sup>. Because the doctrine of the New Church, which is signified by the 'city,' is solely from the sense of the letter of the Word.

900<sup>2</sup>. Guards lest anyone should enter into the [New] Church unless he is in these Knowledges from the Lord. Sig. and Ex.

902. That the Word in the sense of the letter contains all things of the doctrine of the New Church. Sig.

903. All things of doctrine from the Word concerning the Lord and concerning a life according to His precepts . . . (to which two things) all things of the doctrine of the New Church relate. Sig. and Ex.

904. That there is given by the Lord to those who are in the good of love the faculty of understanding and knowing what the Lord's New Church is as to doctrine and its introductory truths, and as to the Word from which [these are]. Sig. and Ex.

905. Justice in it. Sig. and Ex.

906. That good and truth in the New Church make a one, like essence and form. Sig. and Ex.

907. That all things of the New Church are from the good of love. Sig. and Ex.

909. The quality of the Word in the New Church: that from it are all its truths and goods. Sig. and Ex.

910. The quality of the New Church as making a one with Heaven. Sig. and Ex.

911. That with the men of the New Church all the Divine truth of the Word in the sense of the letter is translucent from the Divine truth in the spiritual sense. Sig. and Ex.

912. That thence everything of the New Church is the good of love inflowing together with light from Heaven from the Lord. Sig. and Ex.

914. That all things of the New Church appear in light. Sig. and Ex.

917. That all the truth of the New Church and of its doctrine is in form the good of love inflowing together with light from Heaven from the Lord. Sig. and Ex.

918. That in the New Church there will not be any external separated from what is internal. Sig. and Ex.

919. That the men of the New Church will not be in the love of self and in Own intelligence, and thence in natural lumen alone; but in spiritual light from the Divine truth of the Word from the Lord alone. Sig. and Ex.

920. That all who are in the good of life, and believe in the Lord, will live there according to Divine truths, and will see them within in themselves, as the eye sees objects. Sig. and Ex.

921. That all who are in the truths of wisdom from spiritual good, will there confess the Lord, and will ascribe to Him all the truth and all the good which are with them. Sig. and Ex. 923.

924. That no one is received into the Lord's New Church, which is the New Jerusalem, who adulterates the goods and falsifies the truths of the Word, and who does evils from confirmation, and so also falsities. Sig. and Ex.

925. That no others are received into the New Church which is the New Jerusalem, than those who believe in the Lord, and live according to His precepts in the Word. Sig.

932, Pref. (In Rev.xxii.) the New Church is still being described as to intelligence from Divine truths from the Lord.

932. The Apocalypse now opened and explicated as to the spiritual sense, where Divine truths in abundance have been revealed by the Lord, for those who will be in His New Church, which is the New Jerusalem. Sig. and Ex.

933. That in the inmosts of the Truths of doctrine and of the derivative life in the New Church is the Lord in His Divine love. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. This takes place with those who approach the Lord immediately, and shun evils because they are sins; thus who will be in the Lord's New Church, which is the New Jerusalem . . .

937. That in the Church which is the New Jerusalem, there will not be any who are separated from the Lord, because the Lord Himself will reign there . . . Sig. and Ex.

944. By 'to come' is signified that the Lord will come, not in person, but in the Word, in which He will appear to all who will be of His New Church.

951. That those have eternal happiness who live according to the Lord's precepts for the sake of the end that they may be . . . in His New Church through Knowledges concerning Him. Sig. and Ex.

952<sup>2</sup>. Therefore it is said that they shall stand 'without'; that is, shall not be received into the Lord's New Church.

954. That He is that Lord who was born into the world . . . and who will come with new light, which will arise before His New Church, which is the Holy Jerusalem. Sig. and Ex.

M. 43. I predict that no others will appropriate to themselves this (conjugal) love, than those who will be received by the Lord into the New Church which is the New Jerusalem.

82. Art thou he who wantest to seduce the world, by instaurating a New Church . . .

534<sup>2</sup>. Love truly conjugal with its deliciousnesses . . . is given to those who live according to the Lord's precepts; thus it is given to those who are received into the Lord's New Church, which is meant, in the Apocalypse, by 'the New Jerusalem.'

B. Title. Brief Exposition of the Doctrine of the New Church, which is meant by 'the New Jerusalem' in the Apocalypse.

44. This is the faith of the New Church in a simple form . . .

[B.] 63°. Before the time appointed for the New Church, when there is fulness and restoration.

68°. This marriage is the Church itself and is the New Church, which is now being instaurated by the Lord.

71°. By the Advent of the Lord is meant His Advent in the Word, and, then, the instauration of a New Church in place of the former consummated one. Ill.

91. That unless a New Church is instaurated by the Lord no one can be saved; and that this is meant by . . . 'Unless those days be shortened, not any flesh shall be conserved' (Matt.xxiv.22). Gen.art.

92. 'To shorten those days' means to put an end to the present Church, and to instaurate a New one. Ex.

94. The great arcanum, why, unless a New Church is instaurated by the Lord, no flesh can be saved, is this: that so long as the Dragon with his crew stays in the World of Spirits, into which he has been cast down from Heaven, so long not any Divine truth united to Divine good can pass through from the Lord to the men of the Earth, without being annihilated or perverted. . . Ill. T.182°.

95. That . . . the revelation and reception of the dogmas of faith of the New Church, are meant by . . . 'Behold I make all things new.' Gen.art. (See NEW, here.)

96. The reason the Falsities of the dogmas of faith of the present Church are first to be opened and rejected, before the Truths of the dogmas of the New Church are revealed and received, is that they do not agree in a single point or moment. Ex. 97.

102. That the faith of the New Church cannot possibly be together with the faith of the former Church; and that, if they are together, there takes place such a collision and conflict, that everything of the Church with man perishes. Gen.art. T.647.

103. The faith of the New Church is described by 'the Woman encompassed with the sun . . .'

—°. (Thus) those who have confirmed with themselves the faith of the old Church, cannot, except with great danger to their spiritual life, embrace the faith of the New Church, unless they have first disapproved one by one, and thus have extirpated, the former faith with its . . . dogmas. 104, Ex.

105. That if therefore (the Roman Catholics) recede in part from the externals of their worship, and approach immediately God the Saviour Jesus Christ, and also distribute the two kinds in the holy things of the Eucharist, they can be introduced into the New Jerusalem, that is, into the Lord's New Church, better than the Reformed. Gen.art. 108.

T. Title. The True Christian Religion, containing the Universal Theology of the New Church, foretold by the Lord in Dan.vii.13,14; and in Rev.xxi.1,2.

115. That redemption itself was . . . through these things a preparation for a New Spiritual Church. Gen.art.

—°. For at this day it is the Second Advent of the Lord; and a New Church is to be instituted, which cannot be instituted unless there precedes a subjugation of the Hells and an ordination of the Heavens . . .

—°. That the subjugation of the Hells, the ordination of the Heavens, and the instauration of the New Church, were redemption, is because without these no man could be saved. They also follow in order; for, first, the Hells are to be subjugated, before a New angelic Heaven can be formed; and this must be formed before the New Church can be instituted on earth. Ex.

154°. This arcanum is from the Lord Himself for those who will be of His New Church.

182. That unless a New Heaven and a New Church are constructed—conduntur—by the Lord, not any flesh will be saved. Gen.art. 758°.

—°. By to perform redemption is meant to construct a New Heaven and a New Church.

—°. At this day also the Lord is effecting redemption, by constructing a New Heaven, and instaurating a New Church, for the sake of the end that man can be saved.

303°. The state of peace into which men are to come, from the Lord, is treated of in Is.lxv. and lxvi., and elsewhere; and into it will come those who are received into the New Church which is at this day being instaurated by the Lord.

307°. This New Church (which is meant by 'the New Jerusalem'), and not the former one, is 'Wife' and 'Mother,' in the celestial sense.

330°. Two canons for the service of the New Church . . .

344. The Esse of the Faith of the New Church is . . .

—°. The Coming Forth—existentia—of the Faith of the New Church is . . .

—°. The States of the Faith of the New Church are . . .

—°. The Form itself of the Faith of the New Church . . .

354°. Those who will come into the Lord's New Church (although apparently simple, will be as wise as the wiser Angels as soon as they are taken up into Heaven). Ill.

465. (Why the dogmas and decrees of the New Church are contrasted with those of the present one.)

—°. The decrees of the New Church are these which follow.

508°. A temple seen which signified the New Church. Des. and Ex.

—°. But in the New Church it is allowed to enter and to penetrate with the understanding into all its secret things, and also to confirm them by the Word. The reason is that its doctrinal things are continuous Truths disclosed by the Lord through the Word . . .

—°. It is a canon of the New Church that . . .

536. I will add this new thing: All those who do what is good from religion, after death reject the doctrine of the present Church concerning three Divine persons from eternity, and also its faith as applied to these three in order, and convert themselves to the Lord God the Saviour, and with pleasure imbibe these things which are of the New Church.

—<sup>2</sup>. But the rest, who have not exercised charity from religion, have hearts as hard as adamant. These first approach three gods, afterwards God the Father alone, and finally no God. They regard the Lord God the Saviour as being merely the son of Mary . . . and then they discard all the goods and truths of the New Church, and presently join themselves to the Spirits of the dragon . . .

537. These who do the goods of charity from religion, and thence do not do evils, before they have accepted the doctrine of the New Church concerning the Lord. Des. by comparisons. In Heaven they are clothed in garments of a red colour; and, after they have been initiated into the goods of the New Church, they are clothed in garments of a bright crimson colour; which, as they receive the truths also, glitter with a beautiful golden radiance.

598<sup>2</sup>. What man would become in phantasy, if a New Church, in which genuine truths are taught, were not being instaurated by the Lord. Ex. and Sig.

599<sup>2</sup>. After redemption, the Lord instaurated a new Church.

667. At this day the spiritual sense of the Word has been opened for the sake of the New Church which is to be instaurated by the Lord.

700<sup>2</sup>. As now for the first time Christianity itself is arising, a New Church, which is meant by 'the New Jerusalem' in the Apocalypse, is now being instaurated by the Lord . . . it has pleased the Lord to reveal the spiritual sense of the Word, in order that this Church may come into the very use and enjoyment of the sacraments . . .

708<sup>2</sup>. 'The fruit of the vine which they were to drink new' = the truth of the New Church and of Heaven.

753. Concerning the New Heaven and the New Church. Chapter. 772.

761<sup>2</sup>. The Lord then departs from them to the New Church. Sig.

764. As the present Church . . . is 'night,' it follows that 'morning' is now at hand; that is, the first of the New Church.

771. Lest, therefore, the man of the New Church, like the man of the old Church, should wander in the shade . . . it has pleased the Lord to open the sight of my spirit . . .

773. That the Advent of the Lord is to form a New Heaven from those who have believed in Him, and to instaurate a New Church from those who believe in Him hereafter, is because these two things are the ends of His Advent.

779. Whom He has filled with His Spirit, to teach the doctrines of the New Church through the Word, from Him. Gen.art.

— . As the Lord . . . has foretold that He will come and construct a New Church which is 'the New Jerusalem,' it follows that He will do this by means of a man . . .

784. That a New Heaven must be formed before a New Church on earth. Ex. As this New Heaven, which makes the Internal of the Church with man, grows, in the same proportion from that Heaven descends the New Jerusalem, that is, the New Church; and therefore this cannot take place in a moment, but it takes place as the falsities of the former Church are removed . . . which will take place with the clergy, and so with the laity. Ill.

—<sup>2</sup>. 'The wheat' means the truths and goods of the New Church; and 'the tares,' the falsities and evils of the former one.

786. That this New Church is the crown of all the Churches . . . Gen.art.

787. The reason this New Church is the crown of all the Churches . . . is that it will worship one visible God, in whom is the invisible God, as the soul is in the body. Ex.

788. That this Church is to succeed the Churches which have come forth from the beginning of the world, and that it is to last to ages of ages; and that thus it will be the crown of all the Churches which have been before it, has been prophesied by Daniel. Ill.

789. Besides, the rest of the Prophets have foretold in many places what the quality of this Church will be. Ill.

790. What the quality of this Church will be, is fully described in the Apocalypse. Ill.

796<sup>2</sup>. (Luther) perceived that there is at this day the end of the former Church, and the beginning of the New Church, of which Daniel prophesied, and which the Lord Himself foretold in the Evangelists. He also perceived that this New Church is meant by 'the New Jerusalem' in the Apocalypse, and by 'the Everlasting Gospel' . . .

799. All who have led a life of charity, and, still more, those who have loved truth because it is truth, in the Spiritual World suffer themselves to be instructed, and they accept the doctrinal things of the New Church . . .

D. 4770. Concerning the beginning of the New Church.

— . It was said by many, that it has been announced that somewhere with the nations (or gentiles) there begins to take place a revelation from Heaven, in that Spirits and Angels are speaking to them, and are teaching the heavenly doctrine, and, first, concerning the Lord; and that those there are embracing it, and that thus a New Church from Heaven is arising. . . Hence there was gladness in Heaven. (4771) This appeared to take place to the left, in front, as if somewhere in Asia, in the vicinity of Africa. (4772) There then appeared many thence, namely, their Spirits, who were speaking with the Angels, and were being instructed through Heaven by the Lord concerning such things as are of the heavenly doctrine; and they said that they were communicating these things to their people . . . (—<sup>2</sup>. What the Angels said, in this connection, concerning those within the Church.)

4773. Concerning the New Church. Gen.art. (4774) I was led to a great palace (where) some said that a revelation had been promised, and that they had long expected it . . . There then appeared a kind of luminosity as it were in obscurity, from which they divined that the revelation is about to come . . . Then one of the Angels . . . spoke with them, and instructed them concerning the Lord . . . Those on the Earth, with whom there is thence communication and influx, are about the region of Africa, partly also in Asia, rather near the Indian Sea, but not at the Sea. (4775) I was presently brought from thence towards the right, where also I heard [people] speaking, and expecting revelations; and with whom the Angels were speaking, and instructing them concerning the Lord, and that they were about to receive the entire doctrine of the Church from Heaven; and also that they were about to receive a Bible, but a new Bible, from the Lord. . . (4776) These are in the entrance to Africa. (4777) It was afterwards shown in obscure vision how that heavenly doctrine would proceed in Africa. (Continued under AFRICA.) They were admonished also not to receive any doctrine from Christian emissaries; to hear them indeed, but not to believe them; and therefore also that heavenly doctrine is not divulged to those who are near the coasts; for Christians come thither, who introduce stumblingblocks . . . (4779) When I was departing from them, I heard them praising the Lord in a great congregation, singing Hallelujah. I was afterwards brought backwards, but higher up, where were Spirits from the regions of the north part of Asia; and it was perceived that they were of such a genius, from their life in the world, as to be able to receive the heavenly doctrine . . . I was afterwards brought back to a region where are those who are in knowledges . . . and it was apperceived there that all there could not possibly apprehend that the Lord could be the one only God . . . and thus that these can least of all receive the heavenly doctrine . . . But in a region further to the right there, more downwards, there were those who were in the faculty of receiving that doctrine. . .

[D.] 4783. As often as a new Church was to be instaurated, the Lord Himself has come, and has taught. . . So also now, with those with whom a New Church is to be instaurated, whom the Lord Himself is teaching through Angels.

E. 49<sup>e</sup>. Therefore the New Church is being instaurated by the Lord with the gentiles, where this (that the Human of the Lord is Divine) is not only known, but is also acknowledged. 52<sup>d</sup>.

62. A New Heaven and a New Church, which are in the good of love. Sig. and Ex.

91. That all these are in the New Heaven and in the New Church. Sig. and Ex.

— All things in the Apocalypse look as to their end and conclusion, to that which is signified by 'the seven golden lampstands,' namely, a New Heaven and a New Church. Concerning these, therefore, it treats in the last chapters. The rest of the things, which are antecedent, are such things as stand in the way and are to be removed . . . on the removal of which a New Heaven and a New Church arise and are manifest.

223. The doctrine of the New Church, which is in the Heavens. Sig. and Ex. —.

403<sup>15</sup>. That a New Church will then begin, which at the beginning will be external, is signified by, 'Behold the fig-tree and all the trees when they put forth' (Luke xxi. 29) . . . 'The kingdom of God' which is then 'near' = the Lord's New Church; for at the time of the Last Judgment the old Church is perishing, and a New Church is beginning.

405<sup>17</sup>. It treats in Jer. xvi. concerning the instauration of a new Church, which was represented . . . by the bringing back of the Jews from captivity. . .

418<sup>3</sup>. By the vision (of the resurrection of the dry bones) is described the reformation and instauration of a new Church from those who had not previously been in any spiritual life. Ex.

—<sup>5</sup>. By 'to gather together the elect from the four winds, from the extreme of the heavens to the extreme of them' is signified the instauration of a New Church. Ex.

422<sup>15</sup>. There is here described (by the vision of the waters) a new Church in the Heavens and on earth to be instaurated by the Lord, when all the Divine will proceed from His Divine Human. . .

624<sup>3</sup>. That for this reason the time is protracted, before, after the Last Judgment, the New Church is fully instaurated, is an arcanum from Heaven, which at this day cannot fall into the understanding, except with a few. Ill.

633. 'For forty-two months' = even to the end of the old Church, and to the beginning of the New one. Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. The beginning of the New Church . . . is signified by 'the end of forty years' (Ezek. xxix. 13).

—<sup>7</sup>. The beginning of a new Church after the end of forty years, is described by the introduction of the Israelites into the Land of Canaan . . . and is also meant by these words: 'to do good to thee at the last' (Dent. viii. 16); and also by these: 'I have led you in the wilderness forty years, to possess the land of the Amorite' (Amos ii. 10).

636. 'That they shall teach, and the things which shall be taught, even to the end of the old Church, and the beginning of the New one. Sig. and Ex.

— The beginning of the New Church is signified by that 'the spirit of life from God entered into them.'

641<sup>2</sup>. When the end of the Church is at hand, then the interior things of the Word, of the Church, and of worship, are revealed and taught. The reason is that the good may be separated from the evil; for (these things) are received by the good, but are rejected by the evil. . . Moreover, the interior things of the Word, which are revealed at the end of the Church, are of service to the New Church, which also is then being instaurated, for doctrine and for life. That it is so, may be evident from the fact, that when the end of the Jewish Church was at hand, the Lord Himself opened and taught the interior things of the Word. . . It has been done in like manner at this day; for it has now pleased the Lord to reveal many arcana of Heaven. . . The reason of the revelation at the end of the Church is . . . that thereby there may be effected a separation of the good from the evil, and also the instauration of the New Church; and this not only in the natural world where men are, but also in the Spiritual World where are Spirits and Angels; for the Church is in both worlds, and revelation takes place in both, and thereby a separation, as also the instauration of the New Church.

658<sup>2</sup>. By 'after three days and a half the spirit of life from God entered into them, and they stood upon their feet' is signified the beginning of the New Church after the end of the old one; for all the good of love and truth of doctrine has been extinguished at the end of the Church, but it is then also being resuscitated, which takes place with those with whom the New Church is being instaured by the Lord, which also is signified by 'the spirit of life' which 'entered into them.' 664. 665.

665. Illustration and reception of Divine truth from the Lord with some, to begin the New Church. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. When the end of the Church is at hand, it is then provided by the Lord that a new Church should succeed; for without a Church in which is the Word and in which the Lord is known, the world cannot subsist. Ex.

— . The reason why the beginning only of the New Church is meant, and not yet its instauration, will be told in the explication of the following verse.

—<sup>4</sup>. The instauration of the New Church by the inspiration of new life, or by regeneration, is signified by 'the nerves,' 'flesh,' and 'skin,' with which 'the bones' were clothed . . . and especially by 'the spirit' which 'entered into them,' from which they 'lived' (Ezek.xxxvii.).

667<sup>2</sup>. There is here described the state of those who are against the goods of love and the truths of doctrine, when it is the end of the old Church and the beginning of the New one. These, then, come into anxiety from the presence of those who receive love and faith in the Lord, from whom is the New Church. But this takes place in the Spiritual World, and not in the natural world. Ex.

670<sup>2</sup>. At the end of the Church . . . the interior things of the Word are manifested which are to be of service to the new Church for doctrine and life. This was done by the Lord Himself when the end of the Jewish Church was at hand . . . but still those things were not received immediately . . . as is known from ecclesiastical history. The reason was that they could not be received before all things in the Spiritual World had been reduced into order; for (until then) the goods of love and the truths of doctrine could not be understood nor perceived by men in the natural world . . . These things are said in order that it may be known what, in special, is signified by the two witnesses being commanded to ascend into heaven, namely, that the goods of love and the truths of doctrine manifested at the last time of the Church may not be injured by the evil.

—<sup>3</sup>. The like was done when the Most Ancient Church . . . arrived at its end. The representatives of heavenly things . . . were then collected into a one by those who were called 'Enoch,' and were reserved for the use of the new Church after the Flood . . . With these it was done in like manner, namely, that they were separated from the evil by being taken into Heaven, and thus protected, and this even until the old Church arrived at its last, and when the new Church was to be instaured. Sig.

VOL. IV.

—<sup>4</sup>. In like manner has it been done at this day. This Church, which was called Christian, has at this day arrived at its end, and therefore the arcana of Heaven and the Church have been revealed by the Lord, to be of service to the New Church, which is meant by 'the New Jerusalem' in the Apocalypse, for the doctrine of life and of faith; and this doctrine also has been taken up into Heaven, lest, before the instauration of the New Church, it should be injured by the evil. This, therefore, is what is (here) signified; and also by . . . 'the boy was caught up to God, and to His throne.'

691. 'Thou hast . . . entered upon the kingdom'= the instauration of the New Heaven and of the New Church, when the former Heaven and Church had been destroyed. Ex.

695<sup>14</sup>. A New Church from the Lord treated of (in John iv. 35, 36).

—<sup>16</sup>. 'There is hope in thine extremity' (Jer.xxxi. 17)=the end of the former Church, and the beginning of the new one. 'The sons shall revert into their own border'=that spiritual truths will come forth with those who will be of that new Church.

—<sup>17</sup>. These things also (Is.xlix.4) were said concerning the new Church to be instaured by the Lord.

699. 'There was opened the temple of God in Heaven'=the appearing of a New Heaven and of a New Church, where there would be the worship of the Lord. Ex.

— . For in this chapter (Rev.xi.) it has treated of the changes of state which precede the Last Judgment; namely, of the separation of the evil from the good, and of the removal of the former from the places where they had previously been. When this is being done, there then appears to those who are in the higher Heavens a New Heaven and a New Church. So long as these had been conjoined with the evil, they could not appear, because their interiors were closed, to prevent their being injured by the evil . . . But when they were separated and removed, the interiors were opened with the good . . . (and then) Heaven and the Church was manifest; for in proportion as the interiors, which are celestial and spiritual, are opened, in the same proportion Heaven is manifest such as it is as to the Church with those in whom is Heaven and the Church.

706. A Divine testification concerning the future Church; and concerning the reception of its doctrine; and by whom it will be attacked. Sig and Ex.

—<sup>13</sup>. 'What is the sign of Thy advent, and of the consummation of the age'=the beginning of the New Church, and the end of the former Church . . . and therefore the Lord in these chapters (Matt.xxiv.Mark xiii.Luke xxi.) instructs the disciples concerning the successive vastation of the former Church, and concerning the instauration of the New Church at the end of it.

—<sup>14</sup>. 'New tongues'=doctrinal things for the new Church.

—<sup>16</sup>. By this sign (on the sun-dial of Ahaz) was represented the new Church which was to be instaured by the Lord. Fully ex.

707. 'A woman encompassed with the sun'=the Church with those who are in love to the Lord, and thence in love towards the neighbour . . . That it is the New Church, which, after the end of this one which is in the Christian world, is to be instaurated by the Lord, follows. —<sup>2</sup>, Ex.

[E.] 708. By 'the moon under her feet' is signified the Church with those who are natural and sensuous, and who are at the same time in the faith of charity. Ex.

709. 'Upon her head a crown of twelve stars' = the wisdom and intelligence of those who are of that Church through the doctrinal things and Knowledges of all things of truth and good from the Word. Ex.

713. A Divine revelation concerning the attacking of the doctrine which is for the New Church, and by whom. Sig. and Ex.

724. 'She brought forth a male son' = the doctrine of truth which is for the New Church, which is called 'the New Jerusalem.' Ex.

—<sup>3</sup>. The reason this doctrine is for the New Church, which is called the New Jerusalem, is that this 'woman' . . . is she who is called 'the Bride, the Lamb's Wife,' which was the holy City Jerusalem descending out of Heaven from God . . .

727<sup>18</sup>. These things (in Is. xxx. 31, 32) treat concerning the time of the Last Judgment, when also there is a new Church. Ex.

728. 'Her child was caught up to God and to His throne' = the protection of the doctrine by the Lord, because it is for the New Church. Ex.

730. 'The woman fled into the wilderness' = the Church among a few, because with those who are not in good and thence not in truths. Ex.

— These words involve that the New Church, which is called 'the Holy Jerusalem,' which is signified by 'the woman,' cannot as yet be instituted, except with a few, for the reason that the former Church has become a desert . . .

731. 'Where she has a place prepared by God' = its state that meanwhile it may be provided with more. Ex.

732. 'That they may nourish her there 1260 days' = even until it grows into what is full. Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. There are a number of reasons why this Church, which is called 'the Holy Jerusalem,' will first begin with a few, be afterwards with more, and finally be infilled. The first is, that its doctrine, which is the doctrine of love to the Lord and of charity towards the neighbour, cannot be acknowledged and thence cannot be received, except by those who are interiorly affected with truths, who are no others than those who can see them; and only those see them who have cultivated their intellectual faculty, and have not destroyed it with themselves by the loves of self and of the world. The second reason is, that the doctrine of this Church cannot be acknowledged and thence cannot be received, except by those who have not confirmed themselves in doctrine and at the same time in life in faith alone; if only in doctrine, it does not prevent; but if at the same time in life, it does prevent . . . The third reason is, that the New Church on earth increases according to its increase in the World of Spirits; for Spirits from thence are with men; and they are from those who had been in the faith of their own Church while they lived on earth; and no others from them receive the doctrine than those who had been in the spiritual affection of truth: these, alone, are conjoined with Heaven, where this doctrine is, and they conjoin Heaven with man: the number of these in the World of Spirits is now increasing daily; and therefore, according to their increase, that Church, which is called 'the New Jerusalem,' is increasing on earth. These also were the reasons why the Christian Church . . . increased so slowly in the European world, and did not come to its fulness until after an age.

745. 'Now is come to pass the salvation, and the power, and the kingdom of our God, and the Power of His Christ' = that now the Lord has the power, through His Divine truth, of saving those who are of His Church, who are receiving it in heart and soul. Ex.

758. That those who are meant by 'the dragon,' from hatred and enmity, would reject and calumniate the Church which is the New Jerusalem, because it has the doctrine of life. Ex.

759. The spiritual intelligence and circumspection which are given by the Lord to those who are of that Church. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. As all who are meant by 'the dragon and his angels' . . . reason from appearances . . . and thereby seduce the simple, it has therefore been given to the men of the New Church, which is called 'the Holy Jerusalem,' to view the Divine truths which are in the Word, not sensuously—that is, according to appearances—but spiritually, that is, according to essences. Therefore has the internal sense of the Word been disclosed, which is spiritual, and solely for those who will be of that Church. . . The Divine truth is the Word, and those who are of that Church are illustrated from the spiritual light of the Word through influx out of Heaven from the Lord, for the reason that they acknowledge the Divine in the Lord's Human, and are from Him in the spiritual affection of truth. By these and not by others is the spiritual light received which constantly inflows through Heaven from the Lord with all who read the Word . . .

—<sup>4</sup>. Moreover, by 'the wings of the eagle' which were given to the woman, is signified the understanding of truth; for all who are of that Church have the understanding illustrated, from which they can see truth from the light of truth; that is, whether it is truth or not truth: and, as they thus see truth, they acknowledge it, and receive it in the affection which is of the will. From this, truths with them become spiritual; consequently the spiritual mind . . . is with them opened; and, being opened, it receives angelic sight, which is the sight of truth itself from the light of it. But verily those who are not of that Church—who are those who do not acknowledge the Divine in the Lord's Human, and who do not love truth because it is truth, thus spiritually—cannot have the understanding illustrated, from which to be able to see whether it is truth or not; but they see appearances of truth as genuine truths, and confirm them as genuine from the sense of the letter of the Word. (These latter further des.)

764. That those of the Church which is not in truths afforded assistance . . . to the New Church, which is called 'the Holy Jerusalem.' Sig. and Ex.

767. The hatred of those who are meant by 'the dragon' against the Church which is the New Jerusalem, incensed from the perception of its being favoured by more. Sig. and Ex.

768. And thence from the life of evil an ardent endeavour to attack the truths of doctrine of that Church. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>6</sup>. By these words is not meant the bringing back of the sons of Israel into the Land of Canaan ; but there is meant salvation by the Lord of all who receive Divine truth from Him, of whom is a New Church.

821<sup>8</sup>. That still the good of charity will remain with those who are the Lord's, even to the end of the Church, and when [there is] a New Church. Sig.

857<sup>e</sup>. This song is called 'new,' because it is for the New Church, which is hereafter to be instaurated by the Lord.

865. 'The firstfruits to God and the Lamb'=those in the New Church who are received by the Lord. Ex.

— . For those who are received in the New Church acknowledge the Divine Human of the Lord, and live according to His precepts. Others are not received into the New Church, which is called 'the New Jerusalem'; for the reason that those who do not believe this, and do not so live, are not in accord with the life of Heaven . . .

948<sup>2</sup>. That, before the Church has been fully devastated, the Word has been interiorly revealed . . . is because the New Church will then be instaurated, into which are invited those who are of the former Church ; and for the New Church interior Divine truth is revealed . . . It has now been done in like manner as it was done at the end of the Jewish Church ; for, at its end, which was when the Lord came into the world, the interior Word was opened ; for there were revealed by the Lord . . . interior Divine truths, which were to be of service to the new Church to be instaurated by Him . . . At this day also, for like reasons, the interior Word is opened, and Divine truths still more interior have thence been revealed, which will be of service to the New Church, which will be called the New Jerusalem.

—<sup>3</sup>. Now begins the New Church.

950<sup>2</sup>. The third reason is, that the New Church, which is meant by 'the Holy Jerusalem' in the Apocalypse, is conjoined with Heaven through the Divine truths of the Word which are in its spiritual sense ; for the Word . . . is conjunction when man perceives the Word in like manner as the Angels do.

951<sup>4</sup>. By the measuring of the temple is there described the New Church as to its quality . . .

985. Thus is the New Church, which is then to be instaurated, purified from (these evils and falsities).

1029<sup>5</sup>. The New Church which will then be instaurated by the Lord, is described in Dan.ii.44.

—<sup>8</sup>. That then that Church which has become Babylon will be destroyed, and a New Church which will worship the Lord will be instaurated, is meant in Dan.vii.13,14,27. Ex. . . From those who have not adored the Pope, nor saints and idols, but the Lord, a New Church is being collected by the Lord.

—<sup>13</sup>. A New Church to be instaurated by the Lord after the end of Babilonia (is signified in Is.xiv.1). Ex.

1109<sup>e</sup>. This has been revealed at this day for the sake of the New Church, which is called 'the Holy Jerusalem.'

Ath. 147. The essential doctrine of the New Church, which is called the New Jerusalem, is this one concerning the Lord ; and he who wants to be there acknowledges it ; for this Church is the Christian Church itself ; and no one is admitted thither except him who thinks of and believes in one God ; thus in the Lord alone.

213. When the Church was being instaurated by the Lord, the primary thing was to acknowledge and receive Him . . . In like manner is it at this day, when a New Church is being instaurated, which is called 'the New Jerusalem' . . . This is the cause of this Work ; for, without this faith, no one comes into the New Church, nor receives anything from its doctrine ; and thus henceforth cannot be saved. Ex.

P.P. Page 1<sup>21</sup>, 1<sup>2</sup>. [Latin edition] Refs. to passages in the P.P. on the subject of the New Church. See also Dan.xii. in the P.P.

Page 123<sup>e</sup>. As this Christian Church has arrived at its end, by the Last Judgment which has been executed, a New Church, which is called in the Apocalypse 'the New Jerusalem,' is now being instituted by the Lord. To this Church those things which are being published by me at this day will be of service. It is also being instituted elsewhere.

J. (Post.) 116. I have heard it announced, that at this day the Church is being instituted with many in Africa . . . 118.

258. See JERUSALEM, here.

352<sup>9</sup>. No one comes into the New Church, thus no one is hereafter received into Heaven, except him who acknowledges God, one in Person and in Essence, in whom is the Trinity, thus the Lord ; and unless by some combat he removes and shuns evils as sins against the Divine laws.

5 M. 15. See CHURCH, here.

Scia. The doctrines of the New Church in a Summary.

Can. Title. The Canons, or Entire Theology, of the New Church.

Trinity v. This Trinity of God is the Trinity of the New Church. 7.

x. That unless a New Church comes forth, which shall abolish the faith of the old Church . . . and deliver a new one, which is in one God, thus in the Lord God the Saviour Jesus Christ, no flesh can be saved, according to the Lord's words. Gen.art. 4.

5. After the Faith of the present Church has been condemned, the New Church descends and is instituted from the New Heaven by the Lord. Sig.

[Trinity] 7a. Hereafter no one can come into Heaven, unless he is in the doctrine of the New Church as to faith and life. Ex.

Abom. Page 142. Invitation to the universal world to the New Church.

Coro. III. Then through this New Heaven He successively initiates and instaurates a New Church on earth.

— From this New Heaven the Lord Jehovah derives and produces a New Church on earth, which is done through a revelation from His mouth, or from His Word, and through inspiration. 18, Gen.art.

VIII. After these four Churches, a New One will arise which will be truly Christian, foretold in Daniel and in the Apocalypse, and by the Lord Himself in the Evangelists, and expected by the Apostles.

XVIII. While the vastation lasts, and before the consummation supervenes, the Advent of the Lord is announced, and Redemption by the Lord, and, after this, a New Church.

XXVIII. And thus the instauration of a New Church.

XXXI. By His First Advent . . . the Lord could not form from Christians a New Heaven, and, from this, a New Church, because as yet there were no Christians . . .

XXXV. As the Lord foresaw these things, from the necessity that man might be saved, He promised that He would come again into the world, and would effect a Redemption, and thus would instaurate a New Church, which would be a truly Christian Church.

XXXVII. In like manner concerning the New Church, which is meant by 'the New Jerusalem' . . .

L. For many reasons this New Christian Church is not being established through any miracles . . . LI.

LII. This New Church truly Christian, which is at this day being instaurated by the Lord, will last to eternity, confirmed from the Word of both Testaments, and it has been foreseen from the creation of the world; it will be the crown of the four antecedent Churches, because there will be true faith and true charity.

LIII. In this New Church there will be spiritual peace, which is glory, and internal blessedness of life, also confirmed from the Word of both Testaments.

LIV. These things will be in this New Church, for the sake of conjunction with the Lord, and, through Him, with God the Father.

LV. An invitation to the universal Christian world to this Church; and an exhortation that they should worthily receive the Lord, who has foretold that He will come into the world for the sake of this Church and to it.

5. This is meant by these words concerning the New Jerusalem, which is the New Church truly Christian . . .

21. The doctrine of redemption is as it were the treasury of all the spiritual riches, or dogmas, of the New Church . . .

—<sup>5</sup>. The third thing of redemption was the revelation of truths from the New Heaven, and thence the raising up and instauration of a new church on earth . . .

—<sup>8</sup>. Finally a new church is implanted and produced through this, the internal of which is Heaven; and the external is from the internal; thus both together, with man, is that which is called the Church.

—<sup>9</sup>. All who reject the falsities of the former Church, and receive the truths of the new Church, can be redeemed . . .

44. For the sake of the end lest the New Church, truly Christian, be in thick darkness concerning Heaven and Hell . . .

Inv. Title. Invitation to the New Church.

[III.] The New Church is not instaurated until in the consummation of the former one.

[VII.] That this Church is not instaurated and established through miracles; but through the revelation of the spiritual sense, and through the introduction of my spirit, and at the same time of my body, into the Spiritual World . . .

[IX.] Invitation to the New Church, that they should go to meet the Lord (from Rev.xxi.xxii. and also from chapter i. etc.etc.)

25. The doctrine of the New Church does indeed bring a remedy, but only exteriorly.

Docu. 234. II. How soon may a New Church be expected? Answer: The Lord is preparing at this time a New Heaven of those who believe in Him . . . and look to Him in their lives . . . for from that Heaven the New Jerusalem is to come down . . . I daily see Spirits and Angels, from ten to twenty thousand, descending and ascending, and being set in order. By degrees, as that Heaven is being formed, the New Church likewise begins and increases. The universities in Christendom are now first being instructed, whence will come new ministers; for the New Heaven has no influence over the old [clergy] who deem themselves too learned in the doctrine of justification by faith alone. (February, 1767.)

240. They frequently inquire of me respecting the New Church, when it will come? To which I answer: By degrees, in proportion as the doctrine of justification and imputation is extirpated; which perhaps will be brought about by this work. It is known that the Christian Church did not take its rise immediately after the ascension of Christ, but increased gradually . . . (March 15, 1769.)

245. BB. I am certain of this: that after the appearance of (the Universal Theology of the New Heaven and of the New Church), the Lord our Saviour will operate both mediately and immediately towards the establishment throughout the whole of Christendom of a New Church based upon this Theology. The New Heaven, out of which the New Jerusalem will descend, will very soon be completed. (April 30, 1771.)

303. One memorable notice is to be added; namely, that all things of the New Church appear before one in illustration in the light of truth; but as soon as they are submitted to the orthodoxy of the Church at the present day, the light of truth becomes darkness.

New Earth. Nova terra.

See under NEW HEAVEN.

A. 348<sup>12</sup>. By 'the New Earth,' etc. in Ezekiel, nothing else can be signified than such a kingdom of the Messiah. 5044<sup>e</sup>. 8468<sup>2</sup>.

3708<sup>14</sup>. See NEW JERUSALEM, here. 3858<sup>1</sup>. 5044<sup>e</sup>.

4171<sup>2</sup>. Concerning the Lord's Kingdom, which is the 'New Earth' there.

4255<sup>e</sup>. That 'the New Earth' or 'Holy Land'=the Lord's Kingdom, and also a New Church, which is the Lord's Kingdom on earth. Refs.

N. 1. Concerning the New Heaven and the New Earth. Gen.art.

5. By 'a New Earth' is meant a New Church on earth. Ex. J.3, Ex. L.62.

R. 876. By 'the New Earth' is meant . . . the earth of that Heaven . . .

E. 342<sup>12</sup>. 'The New Earth'=the Church where men are, which will be new.

768<sup>10</sup>. 'The New Earth' (Is.lxvi.22)=the external Church.

New Heaven. Novum Coelum.

See under NEW CHURCH; and CANAAN, at A.7844<sup>2</sup>. 8054<sup>e</sup>.

A. 1733. 'New heavens and a new earth,' in the Prophets and Apocalypse, =nothing else than the Lord's Kingdom, and everyone who is the Lord's Kingdom, or in whom is the Lord's Kingdom. 2117<sup>e</sup>.

1850<sup>2</sup>. Then perished heaven and earth, that is, the (most Ancient) Church, and a new heaven and a new earth were created, that is, a new Church, which was called the Ancient Church.

—<sup>3</sup>. (The next) new heaven and new earth was the Hebrew Church . . .

—<sup>4</sup>. After (the Jewish Church) a new heaven and a new earth were created, namely, a new Church, which is to be called the Primitive Church . . .

2118<sup>e</sup>. The Last Judgment of . . . the Christian Church is what is meant in the Apocalypse by 'a new heaven and a new earth.'

3355<sup>e</sup>. By 'the new heaven and the new earth,' which would succeed in place of the former (Is.lxv.17; lxvi.22; Rev.xxi.1) nothing else is signified than a new Church Internal and External. Refs. 4447<sup>2</sup>. 5136.

4535<sup>2</sup>. By 'a new heaven and a new earth' (Rev. xxi.) is meant a new Church, which will succeed when the former one passes away; 'heaven'=its Internal, and 'earth,' its External.

5577. By 'a new earth' (in the Word) nothing else is meant than a new external Church, and by 'a new heaven,' a new Internal Church. —<sup>e</sup>, Refs. 8891<sup>e</sup>. 9325.

H. 307<sup>2</sup>. By 'a new heaven and a new earth' (Rev. xxi.) the Angels who are with a man understand a new Church.

N. 1. Concerning the New Heaven and the New Earth. Gen.art.

—<sup>2</sup>. By 'a new heaven and a new earth' (Rev. xxi.) in the internal or spiritual sense, in which are the Angels, is meant a New Church both in the Heavens and in the earth.

2. Something shall (first) be said concerning the New Heaven . . . After the Last Judgment had been accomplished, a New Heaven was created, that is, was formed by the Lord. This Heaven was formed of all those who after the Lord's Advent and up to this time had lived a life of faith and charity, since these alone were forms of Heaven. Ex. . . From these things it can be known of whom the New Heaven was made, and hence also the quality of it, namely, that it is altogether unanimous. Ex.

3. As this Heaven has been formed of all who had been such, even from the time of the Lord to the present time, it is evident that [it has been formed] of both Christians and gentiles; but as to the greatest part of the infants of all in the universal world who [that is, the infants] have died since the Lord's time; for all these have been received by the Lord, have been educated in Heaven, have been instructed by the Angels, and then have been preserved, so that, together with the rest, they might constitute the New Heaven. From this it may be concluded how great this Heaven is.

4. Further, as regards this New Heaven, it is to be known that it is distinct from the ancient Heavens . . . but still the latter together with the former have been so ordained, that they constitute one Heaven together. The reason this New Heaven is distinct from the ancient Heavens, is that in the (latter) there was no other doctrine than that of love and charity, and they did not then know about any doctrine of faith separate. Hence, also, it is, that the ancient Heavens constitute higher expanses, but the New Heaven an expanse beneath them . . . In the highest expanses are those who are called celestial Angels, most of whom are from the Most Ancient Church . . . in the expanses beneath these are those who are called spiritual Angels, most of whom are from the Ancient Church . . . beneath these are the Angels who are in the good of faith, who are those who have lived a life of faith. To live a life of faith is [to do so] according to the doctrine of one's Church; and to live is to will and do. But still all these Heavens make a one through mediate and immediate influx from the Lord. Refs.

J. 1<sup>2</sup>. By 'a new heaven and a new earth' is meant a New Church, both in the Heavens and in the earth . . .

2. In these passages by 'a new heaven' is not meant the heaven visible before our eyes, but Heaven itself, where the human race is collected . . .

4. Thus by 'to create a new heaven and a new earth' is signified to inaugurate a New Church in Heaven and on earth. III.

34<sup>e</sup>. As at the end of the Church evil increases over good, all are judged by the Lord, and the evil are separated from the good, and all things are reduced into order, and a New Heaven is inaugurated . . .

49<sup>e</sup>. From those who had been in truths and not in good came forth the former Heaven which passed away; and from those who are in truths and at the same time in good has been formed the New Heaven.

[J.] 59<sup>6</sup>. There are taken away from the Societies those who are interiorly good . . . these are by turns sent to the places of instruction before the Judgment . . . and thence are taken away into Heaven ; for these are they from whom is the New Heaven, and who are meant by those who are of the first resurrection.

67<sup>2</sup>. Hence it is that a Last Judgment has been effected twice before upon the inhabitants of this Earth, and now a third time . . . thus also twice before a Heaven with an earth has passed away, and a new heaven with a new earth has been created ; for 'heaven' and 'earth' are the Church everywhere. Hence it is evident that the 'new heaven and the new earth' which are mentioned in the Prophets of the Old Testament are not that 'new heaven and new earth' which are mentioned in the Apocalypse ; but that the former came forth from the Lord when He was in the world, and that this one is from Him now. III.

L. 62<sup>2</sup>. By 'the new heaven,' and by 'the new earth,' which John saw, after the former heaven and the former earth had passed away, is not meant a new starry and atmospheric heaven which appears before human eyes, nor a new earth upon which men dwell ; but there is meant what is new of the Church in the Spiritual World, and what is new of the Church in the natural world. As what is new of the Church in both worlds . . . was made by the Lord when He was in the world, therefore the like is predicted in the Prophets. III.

R. Pref.<sup>2</sup>. It is to be known that after the Last Judgment, which was accomplished in the Spiritual World in the year 1757 . . . there has been formed a New Heaven from Christians ; but from those alone who could receive [the fact] that the Lord is the God of Heaven and earth . . . and at the same time had in the world performed repentance from evil works. From this Heaven is descending and will descend the New Church on earth, which is 'the New Jerusalem.' III.

—'. 'A new heaven' (Rev. xxi.) is a New Heaven from Christians ; 'the New Jerusalem' is a New Church on earth which will act as a one with that New Heaven.

—<sup>3</sup>. The Christian Heaven is beneath the ancient Heavens. Into it, from the time of the Lord, when He was in the world, have been admitted those who had worshipped one God under three Persons, and who at the same time had not had the idea of three gods. . . .

65. 'The seven stars are the Angels of the seven Churches' = a New Church in the Heavens, which is the New Heaven. Ex.

—<sup>e</sup>. Thus by 'the Angels of the seven Churches' is meant the universal Church in the Heavens ; thus the New Heaven in the whole complex.

66. A New Church on earth, which is the New Jerusalem descending from the Lord out of the New Heaven. Sig. and Ex.

67. The faith of the New Heaven and of the New Church in a universal idea, stated. B. 116. T. 1<sup>2</sup>.

238. 'In sight of the throne was a sea of glass like unto crystal' = a New Heaven from Christians, who were in general truths from the sense of the letter of the Word. Ex.

342, Pref. In (Rev. vii.) it treats concerning those who are and who will be in the Christian Heaven : and, first, concerning the separation of them from the evil ; after this, concerning those who are in love to the Lord and thence in wisdom, of whom are the higher Heavens ; and concerning those who are in charity and its faith from the Lord, because they have fought against evils, from whom are the lower Heavens.

348<sup>3</sup>. From those who are here treated of (the 144,000 from the 12 tribes of Israel) has been formed a New Heaven . . . for they are the same as are mentioned in Rev. xiv. 1, 3, 4.

—<sup>e</sup>. The 144,000 . . . mean all who, of the New Christian Heaven, and of the New Church, will be in truths of doctrine from the good of love through the Word from the Lord.

350. Celestial love . . . with all who will be in the New Heaven and in the New Church of the Lord. Sig. and Ex.

351. Wisdom from celestial love with those who will be in the New Heaven and in the New Church of the Lord. Sig. and Ex.

352. The uses of life, which are of wisdom from that love, also with those who will be in the New Heaven and in the New Church of the Lord. Sig. and Ex.

353. (For the nine other goods and truths which are with those who will be of the Lord's New Heaven, see NEW CHURCH at these refs.) 354. 355. 356. 357. 358. 359. 360. 361.

363. All the rest, who are not of those enumerated, and yet are in the New Heaven and in the New Church of the Lord, and are those who make the Ultimate Heaven and the External Church, the quality of whom no one knows except the Lord alone. Sig. and Ex.

486. The Lord's command that he should see and know the state of the Church in the New Heaven. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. That it is the Church in the New Heaven which is meant, is evident from the last verse of this chapter (Rev. xii. 19). That at the beginning of this chapter the measuring of the temple is spoken of, is in order that there might be seen and known the state of the Church in Heaven, before that Church should be conjoined with the Church in the world ; (which latter) is meant by the court outside the temple, which he was not to measure . . . It is to be known that there is a Church in the Heavens equally as on earth ; and that they make a one like the internal and the external with men ; and therefore a Church in the Heavens is first provided by the Lord, and, from that, or through that, a Church on earth : hence it is said that the New Jerusalem descended . . . out of the New Heaven. By the New Heaven is meant a New Heaven from Christians, which is treated of many times in what follows.

523. The New Heaven and the New Church, where they will acknowledge Him as the Only God . . . Sig. and Ex.

529. 'The temple of God was opened in Heaven, and there was seen in His Temple the ark of His covenant' (Rev. xi. 19) = the New Heaven, in which the Lord is worshipped in His Divine Human, and they live according to the precepts of His decalogue, which are the two essentials of the New Church, through which is conjunction. Ex.

533. 'A Woman encompassed with the sun . . . '= the Lord's New Church in the Heavens, which is the New Heaven . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. As the Church in the Heavens does not subsist, unless there is also a Church on earth which is in concordant love and wisdom, and this is future, therefore there was seen under the feet of the Woman 'the moon,' by which, in special, is signified faith, through which, such as it is at this day, there is not given conjunction. The reason the Church in the Heavens does not subsist, unless there is conjoined with it a Church on earth, is that Heaven where the Angels are, and the Church where men are, act as a one, as do the internal and external with man . . .

547<sup>2</sup>. The second cause (of the New Church being at first among a few) is that there is first to be formed a New Heaven, which will make a one with the Church on earth; and therefore we read, that 'he saw a New Heaven, and the Holy Jerusalem descending from God out of Heaven.'

557. 'Rejoice, O Heavens . . . '= a new state of Heaven . . . By 'the Heavens' is meant the Heaven from Christians . . .

612, Pref. Concerning the New Christian Heaven, which is described in Rev. xiv. 1-5.

612. The Lord now in the New Heaven collected from those in the Christian Churches who have acknowledged the Lord alone as the God of Heaven and earth, and have been in truths of doctrine from the good of love from Him through the Word. Sig. and Ex. . . Concerning these it has treated in chapter vii., but there that they were sealed upon their foreheads, thus were distinguished and separated from the rest; here, now, that they are collected into a one, and that from them is a Heaven.

—<sup>2</sup>. The Heaven concerning which it here treats is the Heaven collected from Christians from the time of the Lord in the world, and from those thence who had approached the Lord alone, and had lived according to His precepts in the Word, by shunning evils as sins against God. This Heaven is the New Heaven, from which the Holy Jerusalem, that is, the New Church on earth, will descend. But the Heavens before the Lord's Advent are above this one . . . These Heavens communicate by influx with this New Heaven.

614. The Lord speaking through the New Heaven from Divine truths. Sig. and Ex.

— Here, through the New Heaven from Christians, which is meant by the Mount Zion upon which the Lamb was seen to stand, and with Him 144,000.

615. The Lord speaking through the New Heaven from Divine love. Sig. and Ex.

618. That no others from Christians could understand, and thus from love and faith acknowledge, that the Lord alone is the God of Heaven and earth, than those who have been received by the Lord into this New Heaven. Sig. and Ex.

623. The initiament of the Christian Heaven which acknowledges one God in Whom is the Trinity, and that the Lord is He. Sig. and Ex.

633<sup>2</sup>. From verse 1 to verse 5 of this chapter it has treated concerning the New Christian Heaven; and in verses 6 and 7, concerning the preaching of the Gospel, that is, of the Advent of the Lord, to inaugurate the New Church . . .

661. 'Standing beside the glassy sea, having the harps of God' = the Christian Heaven in its boundaries, and the faith of charity with those who are there. Ex.

669. By 'the Temple' is signified . . . here, the Christian Heaven. By 'the tabernacle of the testimony' is signified the inmost of that Heaven, where the Lord is in His holiness in the Word, and in the Law which is the decalogue. Ex.

670. Preparation by the Lord for influx from the inmost of Heaven into the Church, that its evils and falsities might be universally disclosed . . . Sig. and Ex.

674. The inmost of Heaven full of Divine truth spiritual and celestial from the Lord. Sig. and Ex. 674a.

676. Influx from the Lord from the inmost of Heaven into the Church of the Reformed . . . Sig. and Ex.

718. Influx now, and revelation from the Lord from the inmost of Heaven concerning the Roman Catholic religiosity. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. For by 'the seven Angels having the seven vials' is signified influx from the Lord from the inmost of the Christian Heaven into the Church to disclose the evils and falsities there. Refs.

826. 'The armies in Heaven followed Him upon white horses . . . '= the Angels in the New Christian Heaven, who were conjoined with the Lord in the interior understanding of the Word . . .

— The reason the New Christian Heaven is meant, is that this is the New Heaven, concerning which it treats in the Apocalypse.

—<sup>e</sup>. Concerning the New Christian Heaven, through which from the Lord the New Church will be.

856. That after those who hitherto had been . . . in the Lower Earth had been taken up by the Lord into Heaven, and the New Heaven had been increased by them, all those who had confirmed with themselves falsities of faith were let out. Sig. and Ex.

— This is evident from chapter xiv., where it treats concerning the New Christian Heaven. Refs.

865<sup>a</sup>. A universal Judgment upon all the new Heavens, upon those who were in civil and moral good and in no spiritual good . . . which Heavens with their earth have been completely dissipated . . .

876, Pref. It treats in Rev. xxi. concerning the state of Heaven and the Church after the Last Judgment: that after it, through the New Heaven, a New Church will come forth on earth . . .

876. 'I saw a new heaven and a new earth' = that a New Heaven from Christians has been formed by the Lord, which at this day is called the Christian Heaven, where are those who had worshipped the Lord, and had lived according to His precepts in the Word . . . in which Heaven are also all the infants of Christians.

[R. 876]<sup>2</sup>. Concerning this New Heaven it has treated above several times . . . especially in chapters xiv. and xv. It is called the Christian Heaven because it is distinct from the ancient Heavens . . . These ancient Heavens are above the Christian Heaven; for the Heavens are like expanses, one above another; and in like manner each Heaven; for each Heaven is by itself distinguished into three Heavens; an Innermost or Third, a Middle or Second, and a Lowest or First; in like manner this New Heaven. . . In this New Christian Heaven are all those who from the first instauration of the Christian Church have worshipped the Lord, and have lived according to His precepts in the Word . . . Concerning this Heaven see various things above. Refs. In like manner in this Heaven are all the infants of Christians, because they have been educated by the Angels in those two essentials of the Church . . .

878. That the external of the Heaven collected from Christians from the first instauration of the Church was in like manner dissipated after there had been taken out thence and saved those who were written in the Lord's book of life. Sig. and Ex. . . But the internal of the Heaven from Christians was not fully formed by the Lord until some time before the Last Judgment, and also after it, as may be evident from chapters xiv. and xv., where it treats concerning it; and from chapter xx.4,5. The reason it was not formed before, was that the dragon and his two beasts were dominant in the World of Spirits, and burned with the cupidity of seducing whomsoever they could; and therefore there was danger in collecting them into any Heaven before.

—<sup>2</sup>. Elsewhere, also, where the New Heaven is treated of, it is said that it extended itself to the sea of glass . . . by which sea also is signified the external of the Heaven from Christians.

879. The New Church . . . which will be consociated with the New Heaven in Divine truths as to doctrine and as to life. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>4</sup>. It comes down from the Lord through the New Christian Heaven . . . for the Church on earth is formed through Heaven . . . in order that they may act as a one and be consociated.

886. That the Lord will create a New Heaven with a New Earth, and a New Church . . . Sig. and Ex.

955. The reason Heaven is meant by 'the Spirit,' is that there are meant the angelic Spirits, from whom is the New Heaven, treated of in Rev. xiv. 1-7; xix. 1-9; xx. 4,5.

962<sup>o</sup>. They were conducted in glory into the New Christian Heaven, with which the Lord's Church on earth . . . will be conjoined.

M. 294<sup>o</sup>. The Society from which (the little boy) was sent, was a Society of the New Heaven . . .

352. That none (of the Angels of the Mohammedan or Gentile Heavens) can be consociated with the Angels in the Christian Heavens. Ex.

T. Title. The Universal Theology of the New Heaven and of the New Church. (See also the head line of every page in T.)

86<sup>o</sup>. Not by anything else (than the descent of Jehovah God into the world) could the New Heaven, which also was then made, be founded, formed, and ordained.

95. The acts of Redemption by which the Lord made Himself justice, were that . . . of the worthy He founded a New Heaven, and of the unworthy a Hell . . .

108. At this day a New Angelic Heaven is being founded by the Lord . . . from those who believe in the Lord God the Saviour, and approach Him immediately; and the rest are being rejected . . .

115<sup>2</sup>. As it has been granted me to see all things, I can describe how . . . the New Heaven has been founded and ordained.

—<sup>3</sup>. For the Hells must be subjugated before a New Angelic Heaven can be formed; and this must be formed before a New Church can be instituted on earth . . .

118. This (Redemption) was done by the Lord, in that He subjugated the Hells, and founded a New Heaven.

—<sup>o</sup>. (For) after the New Heaven was made, from that Heaven descended the New Jerusalem . . .

119<sup>3</sup>. Still, they are concealed somewhere by the Lord, and are reserved to the day of the Last Judgment, and then are raised up into the New Heaven. III.

536<sup>2</sup>. After a time, as they are separated from the New Heaven, they rush into crimes . . .

619<sup>o</sup>. The spheres of spiritual Truths there are as yet few, [being] only in the New Heaven, and with those beneath Heaven who are separated from the dragonists.

729. Infants and children born outside the Christian Church . . . are not commingled with those who are in the Christian Heaven.

753. Concerning the New Heaven and the New Church. Chapter.

772. That this second Advent of the Lord comes forth . . . in order that those may be saved who have believed and do believe in Him, and in order that from these may be formed a New Angelic Heaven . . . Gen. art. 773.

781. That this is meant in the Apocalypse by 'the new heaven and the new earth,' and 'the New Jerusalem' thence descending. Gen. art.

784. That a New Heaven be formed before a New Church on earth, is according to Divine order. (Continued under NEW CHURCH.)

— In so far as this New Heaven, which makes the Internal of the Church with man, increases, so far from this Heaven descends the New Jerusalem . . .

796<sup>3</sup>. As (Luther) perceived that the New Heaven [increased] . . .

797<sup>5</sup>. After the New Heaven began to be instaurated by the Lord, from the light from that Heaven (Melancthon) began to think that perhaps he was in error . . .

798<sup>4</sup>. This governor received (Calvin) into his house . . . until the New Heaven began to be instaurated by the Lord . . .

—<sup>5</sup>. It was granted to speak with him, first about the New Heaven which is at this day being founded of those who acknowledge the Lord alone . . .

799<sup>2</sup>. These latter remove themselves step by step from the New Heaven . . .

D. 5515. Concerning the African nation. Concerning the New Heaven and the New Earth. Gen.art.

5543. See LAST JUDGMENT, here.

5745<sup>e</sup>. All the good had been taken out thence, and had been concealed in various places, who afterwards constituted a New Heaven.

5750<sup>e</sup>. Hence now a New Heaven.

5762. In their place others were carried up by the Lord, who had meanwhile . . . been kept in concealment . . . and they succeeded in their place, and are making a New Heaven. (Continued under LAST JUDGMENT.) The elevation of the good to constitute a New Heaven (lasted) from the end of the month of April, into the month of May.

5763. They who had thus ascended are of the second resurrection, who also had been driven down and carried away, and the others had come in their stead; as also all such as had died as children and had been educated in the spiritual life; and they constitute there a New Heaven and a New Earth.

5882. Concerning the New Heaven.—I saw that those who had been reserved by the Lord were elevated, to [the number of] myriads . . .

5947<sup>2</sup>. I perceived the joy of the Angels who are in the Christian Heaven, by the communication; whence it was evident that there was a communication of the whole Heaven from the Christian Heaven where the Word is . . .

6012. Concerning new Heavens, which perish.

E. 62. The New Heaven and the New Church. Sig. and Ex.

91. That all these are in the New Heaven and in the New Church. Sig. and Ex.

97. From Whom is life for all in the New Heaven and in the New Church. Sig. and Ex.

123. That he who remains in the genuine affection of truth to the end of his life in the world will come into the New Heaven. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>6</sup>. As all who are saved come into the New Heaven . . .

258. In Rev.ii. and iii. it has treated of those who . . . are in the Former Heaven which is to be abolished, and of those who are in the New one which is to be formed.

294<sup>14</sup>. 'To create a new heaven and a new earth' = a New Church internal and external . . . —<sup>15</sup>. 304<sup>54</sup>.

365<sup>24</sup>. A new Heaven and a new Church. Tr. —<sup>25</sup>. —<sup>41</sup>.

391. From these, (the 'souls under the altar') there has been formed a New Heaven. Ex.

397. The reason why the evil were so long tolerated upon high places, and the good so long detained under Heaven, was . . . that the good might be of such a number as should suffice for a New Heaven formed from them . . .

400<sup>2</sup>. Those places, before the New Heaven was formed upon them, were seen to undergo remarkable changes. Dcs.

403<sup>19</sup>. Those who are interiorly good, from whom a New Heaven is to be formed, are meant by 'the basket of good figs' . . .

691. The instauration of a New Heaven and a New Church, on the destruction of the Former Heaven and Church. Sig. and Ex.

699. The appearing of a New Heaven and New Church, where is the worship of the Lord. Sig. and Ex.

768<sup>10</sup>. A New Church from Him is meant by 'new heavens and a new earth;' by 'new heavens,' the Internal Church; and by 'a new earth,' the External Church.

J. (Post.) 89. I said that in the Christian Heaven, the same is not believed . . .

105. Had made for themselves as it were new Heavens.

165. (Formation of the New Heaven dcs. See LAST JUDGMENT, here.) E.899<sup>2</sup>.

Coro. XXXI. By His first Advent . . . the Lord could not form from Christians a New Heaven . . . because as yet there were no Christians . . .

10. Their conjunction into heavenly order is effected by the ordination of the faithful into a New Heaven, and of the unfaithful into a new Hell under it. 14, Gen. art. 23. 44.

16. Each Heaven which is founded by the Lord after the consummation of each Church is made triplicate . . . Into the highest one are elevated those who are in love to the Lord and thence in wisdom; into the middle one those who are in spiritual love towards the neighbour and thence in intelligence; into the lowest one those who are in spiritual natural love towards the neighbour, which is called charity, and are thence in the faith of Truths concerning God, and in a life according to the precepts of the decalogue. These three Heavens make three expanses, one above another, and they communicate together by Divine influx from the Lord from the Sun of the Spiritual World . . . (Continued under NEW HELL.)

21<sup>8</sup>. With those who are being regenerated . . . goods are afterwards collected into a one and disposed into a heavenly form; and this is like a New Heaven . . .

23. (A New Heaven formed from the faithful of the Most Ancient Church.) 36.

44. Concerning the New Heaven formed from the Ancient Church.

Docu. 230. Besides, the New Heaven of Christians, out of which the New Jerusalem will descend . . . is not yet fully established. (Sep. 25, 1766.)

234. II. See NEW CHURCH, here.

245. BB. The New Heaven, out of which the New Jerusalem will descend, will very soon be completed. (April 30, 1771.)

New Hell. Novum infernum.

Coro. III. After these things, from the good elevated to Himself, He founds a New Heaven; and from the evil removed from Himself, a New Hell; and on both He induces order, so that they may stand under His auspices and under His obedience to eternity. 14, Gen. art.

[Coro.] 10. See NEW HEAVEN, here.

15<sup>2</sup>. The order which the Lord induces on the Hell, is that all there may be diametrically opposite to all in the Heaven: whence it is evident that as the Lord rules Heaven, He also rules Hell; and that He rules the latter through the former.

16<sup>2</sup>. In the deep beneath (the three expanses of the New Heaven) there are also three expanses into which the Hells are distinguished, between which in like manner there is a communication through the influx through the Heavens from the Lord. Through these communications there is effected a close and indissoluble conjunction of all things in the Heavens and of all things in the Hells; but in the latter it is a conjunction of all the cupidities of the love of evil; while in the Heavens it is a conjunction of all the affections of the love of good. (Shown by a comparison.) From this ordination induced on both, it follows that each stands under the auspices and obedience of the Lord to eternity.

21<sup>4</sup>. The second of Redemption was the co-ordination of all things in the Heavens, and the subordination of all things in Hell, by which the good were still more distinctly separated and delivered from the evil; and this is the New Heaven and the New Hell . . .

23. A New Hell formed from the unfaithful of the Most Ancient Church.) 36. 38, Des.

44. From the people of every Church, at its end, has been formed a New Heaven and a New Hell.

45. (The New Hell of the Ancient Church. Des.)

New Jerusalem. Nova Hierosolyma.

See under NEW CHURCH.

A. 648. The 'New Jerusalem' in John and Ezekiel . . . = the Lord's Kingdom in the Heavens and on earth. 935<sup>2</sup>. 940<sup>2</sup>. 1298<sup>2</sup>. 1458<sup>2</sup>. 1463<sup>2</sup>. 1530. 1613<sup>2</sup>. 2959<sup>6</sup>. 3481<sup>2</sup>.

1626. (The scenery of the New Jerusalem is such as there is in Heaven.)

2702<sup>15</sup>. It treats here of the New Jerusalem, or the Lord's Spiritual Kingdom. 2928<sup>4</sup>.

2830<sup>2</sup>. By 'the New Temple,' and 'the New Jerusalem,' in the universal sense, is signified the Lord's Kingdom; in special, a New Church.

— By 'the New Temple' and 'the New Jerusalem' is signified in special the Lord's Spiritual Kingdom; and by 'Zion,' the Celestial Kingdom.

2851<sup>15</sup>. The gates of the New Jerusalem, and of the New Temple, are much treated of in Ezekiel and also in the Apocalypse, by which nothing else is meant than the approach to Heaven. III.

3216<sup>6</sup>. By 'the Holy City' or 'the New Jerusalem' . . . are signified the doctrinal things of charity and of faith.

3708<sup>14</sup>. That by 'the east,' 'west,' etc. such things are signified, may be evident from . . . the description of the New Temple, of the New Jerusalem, and of the New Earth. — 17, III.

3858<sup>2</sup>. The 'Holy City,' or 'New Jerusalem,' = the Lord's New Church. Ex.

— 4. In like manner as in John, so also in the Prophets in the Old Testament, it treats concerning the New Jerusalem, and by it in like manner is signified the Lord's New Church; as in Is. lxxv. 18, 19, et seq.; Zech. xiv.; and especially in Ezek. xl. — xlviii.; where by 'the New Jerusalem,' 'the New Temple,' and 'the New Earth,' is described in the internal sense the Lord's Kingdom in the Heavens, and the Lord's Kingdom on earth which is the Church.

4434<sup>2</sup>. 'The Holy City' and 'the New Jerusalem' = nothing else than the Church . . . 'Jerusalem' = the Spiritual Church.

— 6. It treats here (Ezek. xlv.) of the Holy City, the New Jerusalem, and of the Heavenly Caanan, which = the Lord's Kingdom and His Church.

5044<sup>6</sup>. 'The New Jerusalem,' 'the New Temple,' and 'the New Earth' (in Ezek.) mean the Lord's Kingdom in the Heavens and on earth.

5313<sup>12</sup>. The Lord's Spiritual Kingdom is meant by 'the New Jerusalem' in Ezek., and also by 'the Holy Jerusalem descending from Heaven,' in the Apoc. The Lord's Spiritual Kingdom is where the principal thing is Divine truth in which is Good . . .

6419<sup>2</sup>. By 'the Holy Jerusalem descending from Heaven' a New Church is signified.

8988<sup>4</sup>. By 'the New and Holy Jerusalem' is signified the Lord's New Church, which will succeed the Christian one of this day.

9407<sup>7</sup>. By 'the New Jerusalem' (Rev. xxi.) is meant the New Church with the gentiles, after the present one which is in our European world has been vastated. 9643<sup>4</sup>. 9717<sup>6</sup>. 9863<sup>2</sup>.

9429<sup>6</sup>. 'The Holy Jerusalem' (Rev. xxi.) = the New Church.

9603<sup>2</sup>. By 'the New or Holy Jerusalem' is signified the Lord's New Church. In like manner by 'the New Temple.' —

10831<sup>6</sup>. This arcanum . . . is for those who will be in the Holy Jerusalem.

H. 73<sup>2</sup>. 'The Holy Jerusalem' (Rev. xxi.) is the Lord's Church; and, in a more eminent sense, Heaven.

307<sup>2</sup>. By 'the City Jerusalem descending from God out of Heaven,' the Angels understand the New Church's heavenly doctrine revealed by the Lord. Fully ex. N. 1<sup>2</sup>.

N. Title. Concerning the New Jerusalem and its Heavenly Doctrine.

6. By 'Jerusalem,' in the Word, is meant the Church itself as to doctrine; and this for the reason that there in the Land of Canaan, and not elsewhere, were the Temple, the altar, sacrifices, and thus Divine worship itself . . . Hence it is that by 'Jerusalem,' in the spiritual sense, is signified the Church as to worship, or, what is the same, as to doctrine; for the worship is prescribed in the doctrine, and is done according to it. The reason it is called 'the Holy City, the New Jerusalem, descending from God out of Heaven,' is that in the spiritual sense of the Word by 'a City' and 'a city' is signified doctrine, and by 'the Holy City,' the doctrine of Divine truth . . . The reason it is called 'the New Jerusalem' is for the like reason that the Earth is called 'New;' for . . . by 'the earth' is signified the Church; and by 'Jerusalem' that Church as to doctrine. The reason it is said 'descending from God out of Heaven,' is that all truth Divine, from which is doctrine, descends out of Heaven from the Lord. 7°. L.64. R.88o.

J. 45°. It has been given me to see . . . how there has been instituted a New Church in the Heavens, which is meant by 'the New Jerusalem.'

L. Pref. The Doctrine of the New Jerusalem concerning the Lord.

— The Doctrine of the New Jerusalem concerning the Holy Scripture. S.Title.

— The Doctrine of Life for the New Jerusalem from the Precepts of the Decalogue. Life, Title.

— The Doctrine of the New Jerusalem concerning Faith. F.Title.

—<sup>2</sup>. It is said the Doctrine of the New Jerusalem, and there is meant the Doctrine for the New Church which is at this day being instituted by the Lord . . .

62. That a New Church is meant by 'the New Jerusalem' in the Apocalypse. Gen.art.

63. By 'the Holy City Jerusalem' is meant that New Church as to doctrine, and therefore it was seen descending from God out of Heaven; for the doctrine of genuine truth comes from no other source than through Heaven from the Lord. S.43.

R. Pref.<sup>2</sup>. 'The New Jerusalem' is a New Church on earth, with which that New Heaven will act as a one.

8. The communion with the Angels of Heaven of those who live according to the doctrine of the New Jerusalem. Sig. and Ex.

49°. This arcanum is for those who will be in the New Jerusalem.

66. A New Church on earth, which is the New Jerusalem descending from the Lord out of the New Heaven. Sig. and Ex.

88. In the things written to the Seven Churches is described the state of all in the Christian Church who are able to receive the doctrine of the New Jerusalem, and to live according to it . . .

187°. This Church is now the New Jerusalem, into which will come those who are in truths from good from the Lord, to whom is this discourse.

194. 'The name of the city of my God, New Jerusalem' (Rev.iii.12)=that the doctrine of the New Church will be inscribed on their hearts. By 'the New Jerusalem' is signified the New Church; and by it when called 'a city,' is signified the New Church as to doctrine. Ex.

486°. As by 'the New Jerusalem' is signified the New Church . . .

533. The Lord's New Church . . . which is the New Jerusalem.

554. That by the Last Judgment those have been removed who have opposed themselves against the doctrine of the New Jerusalem. Sig. and Ex.

716<sup>3</sup>. The above named works for the New Jerusalem . . .

813. That those who will be of this Church, which is the New Jerusalem, are being collected, inaugurated, and instructed. Sig. and Ex.

879. 'I John saw the Holy City New Jerusalem descending from God out of Heaven' (Rev.xxi.2)=the New Church to be instituted by the Lord at the end of the former one, which will be consociated with the New Heaven in Divine truths as to doctrine and as to life. By 'Jerusalem,' in the Word, is signified the Church . . . which is called 'a city,' and is described as a city, from doctrine and from a life according to it . . . It is called 'Holy' from the Lord . . . and from the Divine truths which are in it from the Word from the Lord . . . And it is called 'New,' because He who sat upon the throne said, 'Behold I make all things new.' And it is said 'descending from God out of Heaven, because from the Lord through the New Christian Heaven . . . for the Church on earth is formed through Heaven by the Lord, so that they may act as a one and be consociated. 876.

886. A New Church which is to be called the New Jerusalem . . .

903. That all things of the doctrine of the New Jerusalem relate to these two things . . . —<sup>2</sup>.

912. Everything of the New Church, which is the New Jerusalem . . .

914. That all things of the doctrine of the New Jerusalem, taken from the sense of the letter of the Word, with those who are there, will appear in light according to the reception. Sig. and Ex.

— By 'the Holy city Jerusalem' is signified the Lord's New Church.

922. That those will be constantly received into the New Jerusalem who are in truths from the good of love from the Lord, because there is no falsity of faith there. Sig. and Ex.

924. That no one is received into the Lord's New Church, which is the New Jerusalem, who . . . Sig. 925.

932. For those who will be in His New Church, which is the New Jerusalem. Sig. 933<sup>2</sup>.

937. That in the Church, which is the New Jerusalem, there will not be any who are separated from the Lord . . . Sig. and Ex.

940. That in the New Jerusalem there will not be any falsity of faith; and that men there will not be in Knowledges concerning God from the natural lumen which is from Own intelligence, and from the glory originating from conceit; but will be in spiritual light from the Word from the Lord alone. Sig. and Ex.

946. That they are associated with men as brethren with brethren, with those who are in the doctrine of the New Jerusalem, and do His precepts. Sig. and Ex.

952. That no one is received into the New Jerusalem who makes the precepts of the decalogue of no account, and does not shun as sins any evils there named, and therefore lives in them. Sig. and Ex.

[R.] 954. Before His New Church, which is the Holy Jerusalem. Sig. and Ex.

962°. The New Christian Heaven, with which the Lord's Church on earth, which is the New Jerusalem, will be conjoined.

M. 1. It has pleased the Lord . . . to send me to teach those things which will be of the New Church, which is meant by 'the New Jerusalem' in the Apocalypse.

26°. What wonder is it that [such things should be seen] now also, when the Church is beginning, or when the New Jerusalem is descending from the Lord out of Heaven?

43. Those in the New Church, which is the New Jerusalem . . .

82. A New Church which thou understandest by the New Jerusalem . . .

— The doctrinal things of the Church, which is meant by the New Jerusalem . . .

B. Title. A Brief Exposition of the Doctrine of the New Church, which is meant by 'the New Jerusalem' in the Apocalypse.

1. After that some works and pamphlets—opuscula—concerning the New Jerusalem, by which is meant a New Church to be instaurated by the Lord, have been promulgated by me within some years, and after that the Apocalypse has been revealed, I have resolved to give to light the doctrine of that Church in its fulness . . .

16. There now follows a summary exposition of the doctrine of the New Church, which is meant by 'the New Jerusalem' in the Apocalypse . . .

99. That the New Church to be instaurated by the Lord is the New Jerusalem, concerning which it treats in Rev.xxi. and xxii.; and which is there called 'the Bride' and 'the Wife' of the Lamb. Gen.art.

T. 217. By 'the New Jerusalem' is meant the New Church as to doctrine from the Word . . .

307°. By 'the New Jerusalem' is meant the New Church which is being instaurated at this day by the Lord . . .

781. See NEW HEAVEN, here.

782. That the New Church is meant by 'the New Jerusalem descending from God out of Heaven . . .' is because Jerusalem was the metropolis in the Land of Canaan . . . (and) by 'Jerusalem' is meant the Church. III.

D. 3760°. That the Land of Canaan and the New Jerusalem=the Heaven of the Lord.

4388. Concerning the Jews and the New Jerusalem. Ex.

5471. In the other life . . . there is the Middle, where those are who are truly Christian; and in its midst is the New Jerusalem, four-square. (Shown by a diagram.)

5543. Concerning the Last Judgment and the New Jerusalem. (Fully quoted under LAST JUDGMENT.)

5577. Many of the English in the other life have received the Heavenly Doctrine, and thence have come into the New Jerusalem, because they are such that they receive the truths of faith when they see them; and they see them in a certain interior light, and thus remain in them. This the English do quickly; but the Dutch slowly . . . J.(Post.)4.

5792°. In their place have succeeded those who have been reserved by the Lord, who have been delighted with uscs, from whom is the New Jerusalem.

6053. These three things (adulteries, the love of commanding, and deceit) will be especially shunned by those who will be of the New Jerusalem.

E. 223. 'The name of the city of My God, New Jerusalem, which descends out of Heaven from My God'=the doctrine of the New Church, which is in the Heavens. . . 'The New Jerusalem'=the Church as to doctrine. Ex.

224. In . . . the Apocalypse it treats concerning those who will be in the New Jerusalem, and concerning those who will not be; and those who will be in the New Jerusalem will all acknowledge the Divine Human of the Lord.

4057. From these things it may be evident whence it is that the New Jerusalem, in which was the Temple, was seen by Ezekiel constructed upon a high mountain (xl.2).

4304. By 'the City Jerusalem' (in Rev.xxi.) is signified a New Church to be instaurated by the Lord, and its doctrine . . . —5.

4317. By 'the New Jerusalem' is meant the New Church as to doctrine . . .

6297. By 'the New Jerusalem' is meant the New Church; and by 'the City,' its doctrine . . .

7322. This New Church, which is called the Holy Jerusalem . . . 764.

758. That those who are meant by 'the dragon,' from hatred and enmity, would reject and calumniate the Church, which is the New Jerusalem, because it has the doctrine of life. Sig. and Ex.

7642. That the Church, which is called the New Jerusalem, will tarry among those who are in the doctrine of faith separated, while it increases into fulness, even while it is being provided among many. . . But the rest in the same Church (which is not in truths), who live the life of faith . . . are not dragons, although they are among them . . . From which it is evident that the Church from those who are not dragons is meant by 'the earth which helped the woman, and swallowed the flood which the dragon cast out of his mouth.'

8572. In the Church which is to be instaurated henceforth, which is meant by the New Jerusalem, the Lord alone will be celebrated . . .

11832. Because the end of this Church has come, and there is at hand the beginning of a New one, which will be the New Jerusalem; to which it is to be revealed that . . .

De Dom. 34. No one comes into the New Jerusalem, unless he acknowledges the Divine Human of the Lord.

Ath. 65. This (to know its God, thus the Lord) is the first of the Church, which is called the New Jerusalem.

J. (Post.) 258. See JERUSALEM, here.

359. Concerning Faith. . . This is the Faith of the New Jerusalem. Stated.

Can. Holy Spirit v. 5. Hence it is that the New Jerusalem, which is the Church which approaches the Lord alone, and imbibes truths from His Word, is called 'holy' . . .

Coro. 5. The New Jerusalem, which is the New Church truly Christian . . .

18. By 'the Holy City, New Jerusalem,' is meant the doctrine of the New Church, thus the Church as to doctrine . . . That the doctrine descended, is because the Church is the Church from doctrine and according to it . . .

New Jerusalem and its Heavenly Doctrine. (The Work.)

H. 73. (z) The Work referred to. 78°. 305°. W.H.6. L.Pref.12. S.10. Life 100. F.65. R.5<sup>2</sup>.etc. etc. D.5600<sup>2</sup>. E.130<sup>7</sup>. 825. etc.

R. 716. See HEAVEN and HELL, here.

D. 5946<sup>5</sup>. There was given (the Africans) the Works . . . THE DOCTRINE of the New JERUSALEM, etc., in order that they might select those things which they see to be useful.

New Moon. Novilunium.

A. 7093<sup>5</sup>. Occurs. 9188<sup>3</sup>. —<sup>4</sup>. E.403<sup>5</sup>. 939<sup>3</sup>. 1061<sup>3</sup>.

New Temple. Novum Templum.

A. 2830<sup>5</sup>. See New JERUSALEM, here. 2851<sup>15</sup>. 3858<sup>4</sup>. 5044<sup>9</sup>. 9603<sup>2</sup>.

New Testament. Novum Testamentum.

A. 2900. As concerns the Word of the New Testament, which is in the Evangelists; since the Lord spoke from the Divine Itself, therefore the several things spoken by Him were representative and significative. . .

3900<sup>8</sup>. 'The secret chambers' = the Word of the New Testament, because it teaches interior things, or concerning the internal man.

9396<sup>8</sup>. That the Word of the New Testament also is 'a covenant.' Ill.

R. 316<sup>3</sup>. 'New wine' = the Divine truth of the New Testament; thus of the New Church . . .

T. 730. 'This is My blood, that of the New Testament' (Matt.xxvi.28; Mark xiv.24; Luke xxii.20). 'The New Testament' is the new covenant; therefore the Word . . . written after the Lord's Advent through the evangelists and apostles, is called the New Testament or Covenant.

Newcomer. See under GUEST, NOVITIATE, and RECENT.

Newsmonger. Novalista.

D. 6109<sup>8</sup>. Those who are under the soles of the feet are newsmongers. They inquire for new things everywhere, and tell them to others. The communication is with those things which are in the crown of the head . . . They are very numerous.

Newspaper. Novella.

C. 189°. Diversions of charity . . . for the recreation of the mind (include) the reading of the news in newspapers.

Newton. Newtonus, Newtonius.

W. 82. I once heard the Angels speaking with Newton about a vacuum. . . Newton said that he knows that the Divine which is infills all things; and that he himself shudders at the idea of nothing as concerning a vacuum, because that idea is destructive of all things. He exhorts those who speak with him concerning a vacuum to beware of the idea of nothing, calling it a swoon . . .

D. 6064. Concerning Newton.—I have sometimes spoken with him. He is a very sincere man, and is among his own, and is loved. He said to me that he now knows that the Lord is the Sun of the angelic Heaven, and that all light is from Him, which in its essence is Divine intelligence . . . He had known also that there was one life, which causes anyone to live, and that this life appears with them as light . . . (Continued under COLOUR.)

J. (Post.) 265. Concerning Newton.—I have spoken with Newton concerning a vacuum, and concerning colours.

266. Concerning a vacuum, he said that in the world he had believed in the existence of a vacuum. (Continued under VACUUM.)

267. Concerning colours, he said . . . (Continued under COLOUR.)

—<sup>2</sup>. Newtoniana, occurs.

—<sup>3</sup>. These are Newton's own words, which he wants me to communicate.

273. In the suburb (of London) to the left dwell many of their learned, and, with them, Newton. They descend thither by a way sloping downwards.

Nicene Council. See under COUNCIL-concilium.

Nicene Creed. Symbolum Nicenum.

T. 632. The Nicene Creed quoted. See Ath. 133. 134. Can. Trinity v. 2. Inv. 30.

Can. Trinity iii. 6. A Trinity of Persons in the Divinity from eternity was first invented by the Nicene Council, as is evident from the two Creeds, the Nicene and the Athanasian . . . Ex. 7.v.

Nicodemus. Nicodemus.

A. 4904<sup>2</sup>. Mentioned. E.710<sup>10</sup>. 721<sup>2</sup>.

D. 151. There was one who was some time with me, who could perceive the more interior things . . . He said to me that he was Nicodemus, who could understand that they were truths; but after some stay and conversation with me, he either receded, or was among those who do not speak.

Nicolaitans. Nicolaitae.

R. 86. 'Thou hatest the works of the Nicolaitans, which I also hate' (Rev.ii.6)=that from their truths they know and thence do not will their works to be meritorious, because this is contrary to the merit and justice of the Lord. That 'the works of the Nicolaitans' are meritorious works, it has been given to know from revelation.

115. 'So hast thou . . . them that hold the doctrine of the Nicolaitans, which I hate' (ver.15)=that there are among them also those who make works meritorious. Ex.

T. 378<sup>2</sup>. That the Christian Church has been so vexed and torn from its infancy, is evident from . . . Nicholas, from whom the Nicolaitans were named, who are mentioned in Rev.ii.6; Acts vi.5; and also by Cerinthus.

E. 107. 'The Nicolaitans'=those who separate good from truth, or charity from faith . . . Ex. 142.

—<sup>c</sup>. That those who separate charity from faith are called 'Nicolaitans,' is chiefly from the sound of that word in Heaven; for its sound is from truth or faith, and not from good or charity.

Niggardly. Tenax.

See TENACITY.

A. 5177. See AVARICE, here.

Night. Nox.

A. 21<sup>e</sup>. All things whatever which are proper to man are compared to 'night,' because they are of thick darkness.

28<sup>2</sup>. See DAY, here. 936, etc.

30<sup>2</sup>. Faith from love is 'the lesser luminary,' which dominates 'by night.' 32.

38. 'To dominate in the night' (Gen.i.18) . . . By 'night' is meant evil; and therefore . . . evils are called works of the night.

221<sup>2</sup>. The Lord also calls . . . a state of no faith 'night,' as in John . . . 'the night cometh when no man can work' (ix.4).

786. 'Forty days and forty nights' (Gen.vii.4)=the duration of temptation, in which 'nights' are anxieties.

862. The faith which precedes being not yet so conjoined with charity, is . . . called 'night.' Faith is also called 'night,' in the Word, because it receives its light from charity, as the moon does from the sun . . .

931<sup>e</sup>. 'In that night there shall be two in one bed . . . ' (Luke xvii.34); here the last time is called 'night,' because there is no faith, that is, no charity. 2353<sup>3</sup>.

1712. 'Night' (Gen.xiv.15)=a state of shade. It is called a state of shade when it is not known whether there are apparent good and truth, or genuine good and truth. Ex.

1983. Sirens, who are interior witches, are those who insinuate in the night time especially, and then try to infuse themselves into the interior thoughts and affections of the man . . .

2335. The night which succeeds (the evening) is the last state, when there is no faith: it also=the Judgment.

2353. 'In the night' (Gen.xix.5)=the last time, when (the Lord's Divine Human and Holy proceeding) are no longer acknowledged; (for) 'night'=a time of darkness, when the things of light are no longer seen. The Angels did not come 'in the night,' but 'in the evening;' but as it is the men of Sodom who spoke . . . it is said 'in the night.' For 'night,' in the Word, =the time and state when there is no longer the light of truth, but merely falsity and evil; thus the last time and state, when there is the Judgment. Ill.

—<sup>3</sup>. 'If anyone walk in the night, he stumbleth . . . ' (John xi.10); where 'the night'=falsity from evil . . . for as all the light of truth is from good, so all the night of falsity is from evil.

—<sup>4</sup>. 'The night when no one can work'=the time and state where there are evil and falsity. (=falsity from evil. 6000<sup>3</sup>.)

—<sup>6</sup>. Because . . . when the sons of Israel went out from Egypt, there was represented the vastation of good and truth within the Church, and that nothing but evil and falsity reigned, it was commanded that they should go out 'at mid-night' (Ex.xi.4); and it came to pass that at mid-night all the first-born of Egypt were slain (Ex.xii.12,29,30). And as those who are in good and truth . . . are guarded among falsities and evils . . . that night, relatively to them, is called 'a night of the watches of Jehovah' (verse 42).

2465<sup>3</sup>. 'In that night' (Gen.xix.33)=when all things were in such great obscurity. —<sup>4</sup>.

2905<sup>2</sup>. The fourth state of the Church is like night: when this has come, there is fulness, or the end.

—<sup>3</sup>. When there is no longer any good and truth, or, as is said, no faith . . . then the Church has come to its . . . night.

2908. 'Sarah died'=night as to the truths of faith . . . The last time of the Church, when all faith, that is, charity, has expired . . . in the Word is called 'night.' 2910. 2912.

2917. That thus He would emerge and rise again from the night which was with them. Sig.

—<sup>c</sup>. Before the Lord is acknowledged, it is night, because He does not appear.

2923. 'Bury thy dead'=that thus they would emerge from the night . . . as to the goods and truths of faith. 2925. 2931. 2948. 2955. 2961.

3325<sup>13</sup>. The reason (the first-born were slain in the night) was that the night=the last state of the Church . . .

3438. 'Jehovah appeared to him in that night . . . (Gen.xxvi.24)=the Lord's perception concerning that obscurity . . . 'Night'=a state of shade, or what is obscure. By this Obscure is signified the literal sense of the Word . . .

3693<sup>4</sup>. 'Thou disposest the darkness and it becomes night' (Ps.civ.20)=to moderate a state of obscurity; for the Angels have changes of state . . .

4125. 'God came to Laban . . . in a dream by night' (Gen.xxxi.24)=the obscure perception of that good when left to itself. . . 'In a dream by night'=what is obscure.

4775. 'The cold (devoured me) in the night' (ver. 40)=temptations... 'Night'=a state of no faith or truth.

4638<sup>4</sup>. 'At mid-night there was a cry made' (Matt. xxv.6)=the time which is the last of the old Church and the first of the new one. In the Word this time is called 'night,' when it is treating of the state of the Church. 6000<sup>4</sup>.

5092. 'Each his dream in one night' (Gen.xl.5)=concerning the event which to them was in obscurity... 'Night'=what is obscure. In the spiritual sense, 'night'=a state of shade induced by falsity from evil; thus also what is obscure, namely, of the mind. The obscurity which is of night in the world is natural obscurity, but the obscurity which is of night in the other life is spiritual obscurity, (which) comes forth from the absence of the Sun of Heaven. Ex. 5233.

6000. 'God spake to Israel in the visions of the night' (Gen.xlvi.2)=obscure revelation... for 'night'=what is obscure; and obscurity in the spiritual sense is that truth does not appear. 'Night,' also in the Word,=falsity from evil; for those who are in falsity from evil are in the obscurity of night; hence all in Hell are said to be in night...

—<sup>2</sup>. That 'night'=what is obscure, and also falsity. Ill.

—'. 'To walk in the night'=to live in falsity.

—<sup>3</sup>. The last time of the Church is meant by 'night'; for then nothing of truth is received, because they are not in good... hence the light of truth is absorbed and suffocated in what is dark... and this is signified by 'the night coming when no one can work.' Such, also, is the time at this day.

—<sup>4</sup>. 'In that night... two in one bed...' 'Night,' here, in like manner,=the last time of the old Church, and the first of the new one.

—<sup>5</sup>. That the Lord was pleased to be taken in the night=that the Divine truth with them was in the obscurity of night, and that falsity from evil was in its place: and that Peter in that night denied the Lord thrice, also represented the last time of the Church, when the truth of faith is indeed taught, but is not believed; which time is night, because the Lord is then utterly denied in the hearts of men.

—<sup>6</sup>. 'What of the night? What of the night?... The morning cometh, and also the night' (Is.xxi.11,12). 'The morning'=the Lord's Advent, (which) was when there was no longer any spiritual truth in the earth, which is 'the night.'

—<sup>7</sup>. The day when it should be 'not day, nor night' (Zech.xiv.7) is when the Lord was born; for it was then evening; that is, the end of the representatives of the Church.

—<sup>8</sup>. Vastations are said to take place 'in the night' (Is.xv.1), because then truth is obscured, and falsity enters.

—'. Here, (Lam.i.2) it treats concerning the desolation of truth; 'night'=falsity.

—<sup>9</sup>. 'The dread of the night' (Ps.xci.5)=the falsities of evil which are from Hell. 9642<sup>9</sup>.

—'. 'No night there' (Rev.xxi.25; xxii.5)=no falsity.

—<sup>9</sup>. 'The visions of the night' (Dan.vii.2,7)=obscure revelation. (So also Zech.i.9.)

6110<sup>6</sup>. But... in Heaven there is no night, but only evening... whereas in Hell there is night... The night, there, is torment; and through all the alternations (in Hell) the night dominates: it is only the variations of shade and of the darkness of night which present these alternations.

6829<sup>2</sup>. This is the morning which succeeds the night in the other life.

7102<sup>10</sup>. 'The dread of the night'=the falsity which is hidden.

7193<sup>3</sup>. States of temptations, and of infestations, and also states of desolations, there, are evening and night...

7218<sup>2</sup>. With Spirits, when it is the state of evening and night, their thought is in a compulsory state; they are then compelled to think about the falsities which are being injected, and from this compulsion they cannot possibly loose themselves...

7680. 'The whole of that night' (Ex.x.13)=a state of obscure perception.

7776. 'About the middle of the night' (Ex.xi.4)=when there was total devastation; (for) 'the middle of the night'=when there is the densest thick darkness, that is, when there is mere falsity; for 'the night'=a state of falsity; and 'the middle' of it=the height of it.

7844<sup>2</sup>. But the state of these tends to night, which is casting down into Hell.

7851. 'In that night' (Ex.xii.8)=when it is the damnation of the evil; (for) 'night'=a state of the devastation of truth and good; thus damnation...

7870. 'In that night' (ver.12)=their state of evil; (for) 'night'=a state when there is nothing but evil and falsity... Hence by 'night' is also signified the last time of the Church... By 'night,' also, is signified total devastation; and likewise damnation. Refs. From these things it is evident that the state of those who are in Hell is called 'night'; not that there is the thick darkness of night with them, for they see each other; but because the state of truth and good which is in the Heavens is called 'day'; and hence the state of falsity and evil is called 'night'; moreover there is thick darkness there when anything of light from Heaven inflows thither...

7947. 'It came to pass in the middle of the night' (ver.29)=a state of mere falsity from evil; (for) 'the middle of the night'=total devastation; that is, the privation of all good and truth, whence there is a state of mere falsity from evil.

7952. 'Pharaoh arose in that night...' (ver.30)=that the damned... when they have been let into mere falsity from evil, would apperceive aversion and fear for those of the Spiritual Church; (for) 'night'=a state of mere falsity from evil, and thence damnation... 7955.

7989. 'A night of watches is this to Jehovah' (ver.42)=the presence of the Lord with those who are in truth and good, and with those who are in evil and thence in mere falsity. Ex... The presence of the Lord in what follows is described by 'the pillar . . . of a cloud by night . . .'

[A.] 7991. 'This is that night of the watches of Jehovah' (id.)=that then they are withheld from all falsity and evil.

8108. 'And by night in a pillar of fire to illuminate them' (Ex.xiii.21)=that when there is a state of obscurity it is tempered by illustration from good. Ex.

—<sup>c</sup>. When (in Heaven) it is evening and night, they have obscurity of the understanding; but this is tempered by the Lord by the good of love, as by a fire which illuminates . . .

8197. 'It illuminated the night' (Ex.xiv.20)=the illustration of the truth from good on the other side.

—, 'A pillar of fire by night'=a state of the obscurity of truth tempered by illustration from good.

8199. 'The whole night' (id.)=in the obscure state . . . By 'night' is here meant that obscurity which follows immediately after temptations; for those who are delivered thence first come into what is obscure before they come into what is clear; for the falsities and evils injected by the Hells inhere for some time and are dissipated only successively. 8202.

8211<sup>d</sup>. 'The night' (Is.xxi.)=the state then of man and of the Church, that they are in mere falsities from evil.

—<sup>5</sup>. It is said 'the morning watch,' because the night was divided into watches, of which the last of the night and the first of the day was the morning watch.

8426<sup>e</sup>. In Heaven there is not the night which there is in Hell.

8750<sup>2</sup>. See EVENING, here. 8812<sup>3</sup>.

9093<sup>4</sup>. 'The night' in which Belshazzar was killed=a state of evil and falsity.

10134<sup>3</sup>. By 'night,' or 'twilight,' in the Word, is signified a state of love in obscurity. . . There is not night in Heaven, but twilight . . .

—<sup>7</sup>. The fourth or last state of the Church is called 'night.' But, when the Church is in its night, in which it is when it is no longer in love to God and in faith, then, from twilight, morning begins with another nation . . . —<sup>9</sup>.

—<sup>11</sup>. 'The morning cometh, and also the night'=that although there is illumination with those who are of the new Church, there is night with those who are in the old one.

10135. With the Angels (there is) night or twilight . . . When they are in a state of love in obscurity or in some coldness, then they have night, or rather the twilight before the morning.

—<sup>6</sup>. Here, (Jer.vi.5) 'evening' and 'night'=the last times of the Church, when all things of love and faith have been destroyed.

H. 155<sup>2</sup>. Night corresponds to a state of no love and wisdom. But it is to be known that there is not a correspondence of night with the states of life of those who are in Heaven, but there is a correspondence of the twilight which is before the morning. The correspondence of night is with those who are in Hell.

—<sup>v</sup>. 'Night,' in the Word,=the deprivation of love and wisdom. Refs.

J. 38<sup>2</sup>. So that he sees Divine truth as in night . . .

C. J. 13. That the state of the world and of the Church before the Last Judgment was as evening and night . . . Ex.

W. 73<sup>3</sup>. When times are predicated of the Church . . . by 'night' is meant its end.

R. 153<sup>8</sup>. What they build by day falls down in the night.

380. 'They serve Him day and night' (Rev.vii.15)=that they live constantly and faithfully according to the truths . . . which they receive from Him.

414. 'The day shone not for the third part of it, and the night in like manner' (Rev.viii.12)=that there was no longer any spiritual truth nor natural truth serviceable for doctrine and life from the Word with them. . . By 'night not shining' is meant that there was no light from the moon and stars. . . The Divine truth in the natural sense of the Word is like the light of the moon and stars in the night. . . These things are meant by 'day,' and 'night,' in the following passages. Ill. E. 527, Ex. and Ill.

864<sup>2</sup>. By being 'tormented day and night' (Rev.xx.10) is signified to be interiorly infested continually.

922. 'There shall be no night there' (Rev.xxi.25)=no falsity of faith; for by 'night' is signified what is opposite to light . . . Hence by 'night' is signified that which is not from the good of love from the Lord; and this is falsity of faith. Ill. 940.

M. 79<sup>8</sup>. (They said) Are they not works of the flesh and of the night?

T. 760. That this last time of the Christian Church is the very night in which former Churches have set. Gen.art. 761, Ill.

764. That after this night there follows the morning . . . Gen.art.

—, As the present Church in Christendom is the night . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. In these passages, by 'evening,' and 'night,' is meant the last time of the Church. Ill.

E. 98<sup>5</sup>. 'Night'=the last time of the Church . . .

167<sup>6</sup>. 'In the nights my reins chastise me' (Ps.xvi.7). 'The nights'=the state of man when falsities rise forth . . .

179<sup>9</sup>. 'Night'=the last time of the former Church . . .

187<sup>2</sup>. 'Night'=a state of no faith and charity.

252<sup>8</sup>. 'Mid-night,' when 'the cry arose' (Matt.xxv.)=the Last Judgment; and, in general, the last of man's life, when he is being judged either to Heaven or to Hell.

285. 'Not to have rest day and night' (Rev.iv.8), when said of the Divine Providence and guard of the Lord, . . . =universally and perpetually . . .

401<sup>21</sup>. The reason it is said that the moon and stars were made for dominion in the night, is that 'the night'=the light of the natural man; for the light of this compared to the light of the spiritual man is like the light of night from the moon and stars compared to the light of day from the sun.

478. 'They serve Him day and night in His Temple' = that they are constantly kept in truths in Heaven. . . 'Day and night' = constantly and in every state. —<sup>3</sup>Ex.

504<sup>10</sup>. 'Night' = Divine truth in shade.

513<sup>18</sup>. 'They had laboured all the night, and had taken nothing' (John xxi.3) = that nothing [is effected] from self or proprium; but all things from the Lord.

527<sup>6</sup>. Natural light is signified by 'darkness' and 'night' (Ps.cxxxix.12).

624<sup>14</sup>. 'Night to you for vision' (Micah iii.6) = that the understanding of falsity shall be instead of the understanding of truth.

650<sup>10</sup>. As by 'darkness' and by 'night' is signified the lumen of the natural man, which is like night relatively to the light of the spiritual man. . . it is evident what is signified by, 'Thou disposest darkness that it may be night' (Ps.civ.20).

734<sup>16</sup>. The endeavour to destroy truths clandestinely is signified by, 'Arise, let us ascend in the night' (Jer.vi.5).

741<sup>6</sup>. 'With my soul have I desired Thee in the night' (Is.xxvi.9) = the life which is not yet in the light of truth.

747. 'Days and nights' = continually. Ex. 890.

768<sup>17</sup>. 'Night' = the light of truth such as is with men on earth; and also the light of truth such as is with those who are in the Heavens and in the earths under the Lord as a Moon. . .

890. 'The day' = the state of their falsity; and 'the night,' the state of evil; for, as to the thought man is in light, thus in day; and as to affection he is in obscurity or in night. . . Hence there was upon the Tent a cloud by day, and a fire by night. . .

Coro. 5. That of each Church there have been four successive states or periods, (the last of which) is meant by 'night,' Gen.art.

— But night does not overtake the man who suffers himself to be regenerated; for he walks in God, and thence is constantly in the day. . . III.

6. That in each Church the four changes of state have been consecutive. . . and the fourth has been its end; and then was its night, or consummation. Gen.art.

17. But night and winter do not contribute to the stability of the world.

Night, To pass the. Pernoctare.

A. 2335. 'We will pass the night in the street' (Gen.xix.2) = that He was as it were willing to judge from truth. . . 'To pass the night,' here, = to judge. Ex.

3111. 'Is there room. . . for us to pass the night?' (Gen.xxiv.23) = a state of remaining. 3115.

3170. 'They passed the night' (ver.54) = the peace thereof; (for) 'to pass the night' is to rest; and, in the internal sense, to have peace. Ex.

3240<sup>4</sup>. 'To pass the night in the forest' (Is.xxi.13) = to be desolated as to good. (Compare 3268<sup>7</sup>.)

3693. 'They passed the night there because the sun was set' (Gen.xxviii.11) = life in what is obscure; (for)

'night' = a state of shade; thus 'to pass the night' = to live in that state. Ex.

4213. 'They passed the night in the mountain' (Gen.xxxi.54) = tranquillity. . . That those who had entered into a covenant should pass the night in one place, was a ritual, because a passing of the night—pernoctatio—in one place signified that there was no longer any hostility; in the internal sense, that there was tranquillity and peace'. . .

4261. 'He passed the night there in that night' (Gen.xxxii.13) = in that obscure state.

5156. That he was 'not to pass the night upon the wood' (Deut.xxi.23) = perpetual rejection; for in the evening the day commenced anew. . .

5495<sup>9</sup>. This Natural is. . . a place of rest or of passing the night for scientifics.

9299. 'The fat of My feast shall not pass the night even to the morning' (Ex.xxiii.18) = the good of worship not from proprium, but always new from the Lord; (for) 'to pass the night' = that which is from proprium; for by 'night,' in the Word, is signified evil and falsity; thus also proprium.

10679. 'The sacrifice of the feast of the passover shall not pass the night to the morning' (Ex.xxxiv.25) = the good of worship not from proprium, but from the Lord always new.

E. 282<sup>6</sup>. As yet no hope of deliverance is signified by. . . 'I will pass the night in the wilderness' (Ps.lv.7).

659<sup>8</sup>. 'To pass the night in the wastes' (Is.lxv.4) = to remain and live in falsities.

887<sup>3</sup>. 'Full of judgment, justice passed the night' (Is.i.21) = where the truth of doctrine and the good of love were in abundance.

Nightingale. Näctergal.

D. 5905, 5906. Many of the spiritual cannot see those things which are in the interior Heaven. . . and this was illustrated by comparison with birds in forests, which see and sing by night, and which then see clearly; whereas in the light of day they flee away, because then they do not see. The nightingale was mentioned, and perhaps there are many others. But the infernals are compared to owls, etc.

Nightshirt. See SHIRT—indusium.

Nile. Nilus.

A. 5196. 'The river,' here, the river of Egypt, or the Nile, = a boundary. . . for the great rivers, namely, the Euphrates, Jordan, and Nile. . . were ultimate boundaries of the Land of Canaan. . . The Nile, or river of Egypt, represented the sensuous things subject to the intellectual part, thus the scientifics which are from them; for these are the ultimates of the spiritual things of the Lord's Kingdom.

6975. 'The waters of the river,' namely, of the Nile, = false scientifics.

9295<sup>9</sup>. 'The harvest of the Nile' (Is.xxiii.3) = good thence (that is, from scientific truth) outside the Church.

R. 444<sup>6</sup>. That the river of Egypt, the Nile. . . was a boundary of Canaan. III.

E. 538<sup>5</sup>. The river Nile = the false Scientific.

569<sup>5</sup>. 'The river of Egypt,' or Nile (as one of the boundaries of Canaan, and as being outside Canaan) signified such things as are of the natural man . . . It signified a termination of the Church, and also introduction into the Church. Moreover, the Knowledges and knowledges which are signified by the river of Egypt, introduce . . .

—<sup>10</sup>. The Scientific which is of the natural man is signified by the river of Egypt, the Nile . . .

Nimrod. Nimrod.

A. 1133. It treats concerning those who have external worship, in which are interior evils and falsities. 'Nimrod' = such worship.

1175. By 'Nimrod' (Gen. x. 8) are signified those who made internal worship external; and thus by 'Nimrod' is signified such external worship. . . To make internal worship external is to make external worship essential rather than internal . . . Such is the religion of those who separate faith from charity, in that they prefer . . . the things which are of the Knowledges of faith to those which are of the life; thus formal things to essential ones. Ex.

—<sup>e</sup>. Such worship is called 'Nimrod'; and it is born of the Knowledges which are 'Cush'; as these are born from faith separated from charity, which faith is 'Ham.'

1176. 'Cush begat Nimrod' (id.) = that those who had Knowledges of interior things instituted such worship. . . Knowledges of interior things are what they call doctrines. . . It is those who call mere Knowledges faith, who beget and institute such worship. . .

1177. 'He was a mighty one in the earth' (id.) = that such religion prevailed in the Church.

1178. 'He was mighty in hunting before Jehovah' (ver. 9) = that it has persuaded many; (for) faith separated from charity is such. Ex.

1179. 'Wherefore it was said, As Nimrod mighty in hunting before Jehovah' (id.) = that because so many were persuaded, such a form of speech became proverbial . . . As, in ancient times, they gave names to Things, they gave this name to this worship, saying that Nimrod — that is, this worship — was mighty in hunting, that is, was one which captivates minds. . .

1180. 'And the beginning of his kingdom was Babel, and Erech, and Accad, and Calneh, in the land of Shinar' (ver. 10) = that there were such worships . . . the externals of which appear holy, but the interiors are profane.

1185<sup>e</sup>. That such worship reasons about spiritual and celestial things, (is signified by) 'Nimrod went forth from that land into Asshur, or Assyria.'

1186<sup>e</sup>. 'The land of Nimrod' (Micah v. 6) = such worship as that which is signified by Nimrod, in which the interiors are evil and false.

Nine. Novem.

Ninth. Nonus.

A. 1988. 'Abram was a son of ninety years and nine years' (Gen. xvii. 1) = the time before the Lord fully conjoined the internal man with the rational; as is evident from the signification of 'nine' as coming before ten . . .

2075<sup>2</sup>. The number nine = conjunction . . . III.

2269. Nine = conjunction, or that which is conjoined.

D. 3270. They go to the ninth use. Ex.

E. 194<sup>2</sup>. By 'the third,' 'sixth,' and 'ninth' hour (Matt. xx. 5) is signified a like state of life . . . 'Three' = a full state, or what is complete even to the end. The like [is signified by] 'six,' and 'nine.'

401<sup>15</sup>. 'Darkness upon the whole earth, even to the ninth hour' (Luke xxiii. 45) . . . 'From the sixth hour to the ninth' = that there was mere falsity, and not any truth whatever; for . . . 'six,' and 'nine' = all things in the complex; here, falsities and evils.

Nineveh. Nineve.

A. 1184. 'Out of that land went forth Asshur, and built Nineveh . . . ' (Gen. x. 11) . . . 'Nineveh' = falsities of doctrinal things. . . 'Nineveh' = falsity from reasonings. 1187.

1188. That by 'Nineveh' are signified falsities of doctrinal things . . . is evident from the signification of Nineveh in the Word. . . There are falsities of this kind from three origins. The first is from the fallacies of the senses, in the obscurity of an understanding which is not illustrated, and from ignorance: hence is the falsity which is 'Nineveh.'

—<sup>2</sup>. That 'Nineveh' = falsities from the fallacies of the senses, in the obscurity of an understanding which is not illustrated, and from ignorance, is evident in Jonah, who was sent to Nineveh, which city was pardoned because they were such . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. In like manner in Isaiah, where it is said of the king of Asshur that he remained in Nineveh, and that when he bowed himself in the house of Niroch his god, his sons slew him with the sword (xxxvii. 37, 38) . . . Here, by 'Nineveh,' is signified external worship in which there are falsities; and because this was idolatrous he was slain . . . Further ill.

S. 21. (How it was that the science of correspondences came to be cultivated at Nineveh, etc.) 102.

102. The Ancient Word was at Nineveh, etc.

E. 401<sup>36</sup>. The gentiles are signified by 'Nineveh' (Jonah iv.). P. P. Jonah i.

650<sup>36</sup>. By 'Nineveh which He will place in wilderness, a dry place as the wilderness' (Zeph. ii. 13) are signified falsities of doctrine.

Nipple. Papilla.

D. 3655. The Angels (who resuscitate those who are spiritually dead) preside over the left nipple of the breast, and are the ribs.

Nissi. Nissi.

A. 8624. 'He called the name thereof Jehovah Nissi' (Ex. xvii. 15) = the continual war and protection of the Lord against those who are in the falsity of interior evil. . . 'Jehovah Nissi,' in the Original Language, means 'Jehovah my standard,' or 'banner-signum'; and by a 'banner' or 'standard,' in the Word, is signified a convocation to war; and, as it is said the war of Jehovah, protection by Him is also signified. III.

No. No.

A. 8398<sup>2</sup>. 'No' (Ezek. xxx. 15) = the falsity from which is evil.

E. 721<sup>18</sup>. By 'Egypt,' 'Sin,' and 'No' (id.) are signified the scientifics and fallacies which are of the natural man, which hinder man's reformation through the truths of the Word.

No account, Of. Naucus.

A. 1844<sup>o</sup>. They regard them as simple, vile, and of no account.

5433<sup>2</sup>. Hence heavenly things are to him of no account, and earthly things are everything to him.

5648<sup>3</sup>. Let anyone examine himself as to whether the things here contained in the internal sense are not of no account and loathsome to him.

M. 5<sup>o</sup>. The accessory joys (then) become first indifferent, afterwards as of no account, and finally sad and anxious.

No account, To hold of. Floccipendere.

J. 64<sup>o</sup>. T. 137<sup>o</sup>.

No one. Nemo.

A. 5225. 'No one' interpreted these things to Pharaoh' (Gen. xli. 8) = that it was unknown what would happen . . . for 'no one,' in the internal sense, = the negative of a Thing, thus not. For, in the internal sense, the idea of a person is turned into the idea of a Thing. Ex. 5253. 5310.

9165. 'No one seeing' (Ex. xxii. 10) = concerning which the mind is not conscious.

Noah. Noachus, Noë.

Noachic. Noachicus.

See under ANCIENT CHURCH.

A. 64<sup>o</sup>. By 'Noah' the Angels perceive the Church remaining with the descendants of the Most Ancient Church, and continued to the time of Abraham.

407<sup>o</sup>. From the Most Ancient Church there remained a residue even to the Flood, and it was continued after the Flood, which residue of the Church is called 'Noah.'

466. The tenth Church, parent of three Churches after the Flood, is 'Noah;' which Church is to be called the Ancient Church.

467. Noah is described (Gen. v. 29), that he = a new Church.

468. With a Church it is the case that in course of time it decreases, and finally remains among a few. Those few with whom it remained at the time of the Flood were called 'Noah.'

—<sup>2</sup>. The last remains are what are signified by 'Noah.'

529. 'Noah' = the Ancient Church, or the parent of the three Churches after the Flood.

530. By 'Noah' is signified the Ancient Church, or the doctrine which remained from the Most Ancient.

531. 'He shall comfort us for our work, and for the toil of our hands from the ground which Jehovah hath cursed' (Gen. v. 29) = doctrine by which what had been perverted should be restored. . . 'To comfort' refers to the son (of Lamech), or Noah, by whom is signified a new regeneration, thus a New Church, which is the Ancient one; by which, or by 'Noah,' is therefore also signified rest, and comfort from rest. . .

535. That the Church called 'Noah' is not to be numbered among those which were before the Flood, may be evident from verse 29 (as above). The 'comfort' was, that it should survive and endure.

559. Therefore in order that the human race might be saved, a new Church came forth, which is 'Noah.' Tr.

596. 'Noah found grace in the eyes of Jehovah' (Gen. vi. 8) = a new Church (through which) the Lord foresaw that the human race might be saved. 597. 598.

598. By 'Noah' is signified not only a new Church, but also the faith of that Church, which was the faith of charity.

—<sup>2</sup>. As the new Church called 'Noah' was not celestial but spiritual, it is not said to have 'found mercy,' but 'grace,' in the eyes of Jehovah.

599. It treats (in Gen. vi.) concerning the state of the Church which was called 'Noah,' before its regeneration.

600, 602. That the man of the Church called 'Noah,' who is described by 'the ark,' was such that he could be regenerated. . . Tr.

605. It treats now concerning the formation of a new Church, which is called 'Noah;' and its formation is described by the ark. . .

608, 609. When internal respiration ceased, external respiration gradually succeeded. . . and with (this) a language of words. . . As (thus) the state of the man of this Church which is called 'Noah' was altogether changed from that of the man of the Most Ancient Church, he could no longer. . . be informed and illustrated in the same way. . . because his internals were closed, so that he no longer had communication with Heaven, except such as was unconscious. Nor, for the same reason, could he be instructed except by the external way. . . On this account, of the Lord's Providence, doctrinal things of faith, with some of the revelations of the Most Ancient Church, were preserved for the use of this posterity. . .

611. 'These are the nativities of Noah' (ver. 9) = a description of the reformation or regeneration of the new Church.

612. 'Noah was a man just and perfect in his generations' (id.) = that he was such that he could be endowed with charity.

617. 'Noah begat three sons' (ver. 10) = that three kinds of doctrines arose thence.

628. Every man had become corporeal, (including) those called 'Noah' . . . for these were such before they were regenerated. . . In the following verses their regeneration is treated of. . . In this verse is signified that there was nothing true, and, in the following verse, that there was nothing good, except in the remains which were with those called 'Noah' . . . and also in the doctrinal things which they knew. But there was no understanding of truth, which is never possible except where there is a will of good . . . With the Most Ancients there was the will of good . . . and the derivative understanding of truth; but this understanding completely perished together with the will. A certain rational truth, and natural good, remained with those who are called 'Noah'; and therefore they could be regenerated.

[A.] 635. But with those who are called 'Noah,' remains had remained, which, however, could not present anything of understanding and will, but only rational truth and natural good . . . through the remains these could be regenerated . . .

639. That by 'the ark' is signified the man of this Church called 'Noah.' Ex. —°.

640°. The Lord (then) provided that the Voluntary should be separated from the Intellectual, and that man should be formed, not as before, through the will of good, but that through the understanding of truth charity should be bestowed upon him, which appears as if it were the will of good. Such was made this new Church which is called 'Noah' . . . Besides this Church there were also others at that time, as that which is called 'Enosh,' and others also of which no such mention and description are extant. Here, there is described only this Church Noah, because it was of another and an entirely different nature from the Most Ancient.

653°. The seeds of charity can never be sown in ground where falsities reign, but where truths reign. Thus it is with the reformation or regeneration of the spiritual man; and so also was it with the man of this Church which is called 'Noah.' Sig.

664. In this verse it treats concerning those to be regenerated, and thus saved, who are called 'Noah.'

682. 'Noah did according to all that God commanded him' (ver.22)=that thus it came to pass.

705. It treats here of the Flood, by which are signified not only the temptations which the man of the Church called 'Noah' had to undergo before he could be regenerated, but also the desolation of those who could not be regenerated.

709. It treats in the preceding chapter concerning the preparation of . . . the man of the Church called 'Noah' as to his intellectual things which are of faith; but here concerning his preparation as to the voluntary things which are of love.

726. Lest the celestial seed should perish, those were regenerated who are called 'Noah,' and in fact through spiritual seed.

728°. As it treats here both of the man of the Church called 'Noah,' and his temptation, and of the last posterity of the Most Ancient Church, which destroyed itself, by 'in yet seven days' is signified the beginning of Noah's temptation, and the end or last devastation and expiration of the Most Ancient Church. 730.

731°. This (celestial seed), in those called 'Noah' . . . gradually grew up . . .

736. As regards Noah, or the man of this new Church, he was such that he believed in simplicity those things which he had from the Most Ancient Church, which were doctrinal things collected and reduced into a certain form of doctrine by those who were called 'Enoch.' And he was of an entirely different nature from the antediluvians who had perished, called 'Nephilim' . . . Men of both these geniuses or natures exist at this day; but the former can be easily regenerated; but the latter with difficulty.

737. 'Noah was a son of six hundred years' (Gen. vii. 6)=his first state of temptation. Ex. (His second state of temptation. 755).

741. 'Noah entered into the ark from before the waters of the Flood' (ver.7)=that he was protected. Ex.

765. The end of the temptations was, that there might be reborn thence a man of the Church, or a new Church . . . This Church . . . was spiritual, which is such that man is born again through the doctrinal things of faith, which, having been implanted, conscience is then insinuated into him . . . and thus he is gifted with charity . . . That the Church is now treated of may be evident from the repetition: 'In the self-same day entered Noah, and Shem, and Ham, and Japheth, the sons of Noah, and Noah's wife, and the three wives of his sons with them, into the ark' (ver.13) . . . As the Church is treated of, the sons are mentioned by name, who (then)=the man of the Church; but when they are called 'sons,' without their names, they=the truths of faith. 768.

767. 'They entered into the ark' (ver.13)=that they were saved, namely, the man of the Church, who was 'Noah,' and the rest of the Churches descending and derived from him. 768, Ex.

770. 'Noah's wife'=the Church itself; and the three wives of his sons=the Churches themselves which were derived from that Church.

773. In Noah, by whom is meant the Ancient Church in general, are contained, as in a parent or seed, the derivative Churches . . . All these churches called 'Shem, Ham, and Japheth,' together constitute the Church called the Ancient Church.

782. To verse 11 it treated concerning the Church as having been preserved in those called 'Noah.' It now follows concerning the state of the Church . . .

786. 'Forty days,'=the duration of the Church called 'Noah.'

788. Noah was not the Ancient Church itself, but was as the parent or seed of that Church. . . But Noah, together with Shem, Ham, and Japheth, constituted the Ancient Church, which immediately succeeded the Most Ancient Church. Every man of the Church called 'Noah' was of the posterity of the Most Ancient Church, consequently was in an almost like state as to hereditary evil as was the rest of the posterity, which perished; and those who were in a like state could not be regenerated and made spiritual as could those who do not derive such [a quality] hereditarily. Examp.

—°. Converted Jews therefore fluctuate more than others between truth and falsity. In like manner did the first men of this Church, which was called 'Noah,' because they were of the race and seed of the Most Ancients. These are the fluctuations which are described here. . . That they were few has been evident to me from this: that the man of that Church is represented in the World of Spirits as a tall and slender man, clothed in bright white, in a narrow chamber. But still these were they who conserved the doctrinal things of faith, and had them among themselves. D.4072-4074.

832. It follows now (in Gen.viii.) concerning the man of the new Church, who is called 'Noah'; and in fact concerning his state after temptation, even to his regeneration, and further.

838. In the two chapters which precede it has treated of the new Church called 'Noah,' or of the man of that Church; and in fact first of his preparation to receive faith, and through faith charity; next of his temptation; afterwards of his protection when the Most Ancient Church was perishing. Here, now, it follows concerning his state after temptation, and in fact concerning the order . . . and at the same time concerning the order . . . with all who are to be regenerated . . .

841. 'God remembered Noah' (ver.1). By 'Noah' is signified, as before, the man of the Ancient Church . . .

851<sup>re</sup>. The rest of the spiritual man is expressed by a different word, from which he is named 'Noah,' which properly means 'rest.'

863. 'Noah opened the window of the ark which he had made' (ver.6)=the second state, when the truths of faith appeared to him.

865. 'He sent forth a raven . . .'=that Falsities still made disturbance. Ex.

871. 'He sent forth a dove . . .'=a state of receiving the truths and goods of faith. . . In what follows it treats concerning the three states of the man of this Church after temptations, which are signified by his sending forth the dove three times. See 874. 875. 876. 877. 878. 880. 882. 883. 884. 887. 889. 890. 891.

896. 'Noah removed the covering of the ark, and saw' (ver.13)=when falsities had been removed [there was] the light of the Truths of faith, which Truths he acknowledged, and in which he had faith. Ex.

902. 'The earth was dry'=that he was regenerated.

904. 'And God spake unto Noah' (ver.15)=the presence of the Lord with this man of the Church. Ex.

905. 'Go forth from the ark'=freedom. . . (For) so long as Noah was in the ark, and surrounded by the waters of the Flood, the signification was that he was in captivity, that is, that he was agitated by evils and falsities. Ex. 914, Ex.

906. 'Thou and thy wife'=the Church.

915. By 'Noah and his sons' (ver.18) is signified the man of the Ancient Church . . .

920. In this verse ('Noah built an altar to Jehovah . . .') is described the worship of the Ancient Church in general. . . Ex. 921.

981, 982. 'God blessed Noah and his sons' (Gen.ix.1)=the presence and grace of the Lord [with] the Ancient Church.

1019. The Truth of those Things which follow concerning the Spiritual Church, is meant by 'Noah and his sons with him' (ver.8). 1021. 1024.

1025<sup>s</sup>. For there was no Noah; but the Ancient Church was so called.

1058. 'Noah,' hero (ver.17)=the Spiritual Church in general, because Noah alone is named.

1061. 'The sons of Noah who went forth from the ark' (ver.18)=those who constituted the Ancient Church, who were regenerated.

1065. 'These three were the sons of Noah' (ver.19)=these three kinds of doctrines, which are those of Churches in general.

1068. 'Noah began to be a man of the soil' (ver.20)=in general man instructed from the doctrinal things of faith. Ex.

1069. 'He planted a vineyard' (id.)=a Church thence.

1071. 'He drank the wine' (ver.21)=that he wanted to investigate the things which are of faith.

1072. 'He was drunken' (id.)=that he thereby fell into errors.

1073. 'He was uncovered in the midst of his tent' (id.)=thereby perverted.

1090. 'Noah awoke from his wine' (ver.24)=that he was better instructed.

1104. 'Noah lived after the Flood 350 years. And all the days of Noah were 950 years; and he died' (vers. 28, 29)=the duration of the first Ancient Church, and at the same time its state.

1126. They said that a man clothed in white signified those who were called 'Noah,' or who were the first of all of the Ancient Church . . . and that they were thus represented because they were few.

1140. By Noah and his sons, Shem, Ham, Japheth, and Canaan, nothing else was meant than, abstractedly, the Ancient Church as to its worship; namely, by 'Shem,' internal worship; by 'Japheth,' external worship corresponding; by 'Ham,' internal worship corrupted; by 'Canaan,' external worship separated from internal . . . And therefore by 'Noah' nothing else was meant than the Ancient Church in general, as a parent comprehending all.

1145. 'These are the nativities of the sons of Noah' (Gen.x.1)=the derivations of the doctrinals and worships of the Ancient Church, which, in general, is 'Noah.'

1238. Noah, Shem, Ham, Japheth, and Canaan never existed. But because the Ancient Church in special, and, in general, every Church, is such that there is a true Internal, a corrupt Internal, a true External, and a corrupt External, therefore these names were given in order that all the differences in general might be referred to them and their sons, as to their heads . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. This first Ancient Church, signified by Noah and his sons, was not confined to a few. (Continued under ANCIENT CHURCH.)

1254. 'These are the families of the sons of Noah' (ver.32)=the worships of the Ancient Church in particular.

[A.] 4334<sup>9</sup>. 'Until the day that Noe entered into the ark' (Matt.xxiv.38)=the end of the former Church, and the beginning of the New one; for by 'Noah' is signified the Ancient Church in general . . . and by 'the ark,' the Church itself. Refs.

9960<sup>7</sup>. 'Noah' represents the man of the Ancient Church in the beginning; and these were such (as is signified by the drunkenness of Noah).

P. 328<sup>2</sup>. The Ancient Church is described by Noah and his three sons, and by the descendants from them. It was a large Church, and was extended through many kingdoms of Asia . . . With these was the ancient Word . . .

D. 4071<sup>2</sup>. The ancient Church preserved its axis, who was Noah . . .

4074. By 'Noah' is signified the Church which lasted in the posterity from the Most Ancient one as a nucleus, or axis; and by 'Noah' were signified these remains.

E. 644<sup>27</sup>. By 'Noah' and his sons is signified a New Church which is to be called the Ancient Church, and its instaurator after the devastation of the Most Ancient Church.

— The saving of the Noachic family.

650<sup>20</sup>. By the Noachic Flood is described the destruction of the Most Ancient Church, and also the Last Judgment upon the men of that Church; and by 'Noah and his sons' is meant and described the succeeding Church, which is to be called the Ancient Church . . .

724<sup>28</sup>. See JOB, here.

Q. ix. The reason Noah is mentioned in Ezek.xiv. (although there was no individual man called Noah) is that he was mentioned in Genesis; and hence the same is signified in the Prophet as in Moses; namely, that the man with his three sons were significative of the succeeding Church.

Coro. 2. That . . . the second Church (on this Earth) is to be called the Noachic one.

34. The fifth state (of the Most Ancient Church, was the separation of the good from the evil . . . This state is described by 'the Flood' . . . and by 'Noah and his sons,' by whom are meant all the good who were saved.

39. Concerning the Noachic Church, or the Ancient one of this Earth. Gen.art.

— As every Church is a trine: inmost or celestial, middle or spiritual, and external or natural, therefore Noah had three sons; and by 'Shem' is signified the Celestial Church, by 'Japheth' the Spiritual Church, and by 'Ham' the Natural Church.

45. The Hells from the men of the Noachic or Ancient Church consist for the most part of magicians. Des.

Noble. Nobilis.

Nobility. Nobilitas.

Ennoble. Nobilitare.

Ennobling, An. Nobilitatio.

A. 5113<sup>4</sup>. 'A noble vine' (Jer.ii.21)=the man of the Spiritual Church.

—<sup>10</sup>. 'The noble vine' (Gen.xlix.11)=the Intellectual which is of the Celestial Church.

5622. (These nuts) are of a less noble tree, and the things which are exterior are signified by such things as are less noble . . .

6393<sup>3</sup>. Those who love to serve without recompense . . . are preferred to more noble uses . . .

C. J. 39<sup>e</sup>. Something here concerning the noble (or notable) English nation.

S. 77<sup>e</sup>. The Church is noble if in genuine truths, ignoble if not . . .

110<sup>e</sup>. The Word is held holy by a noble (or notable) nation among the Papists. (This statement is omitted in T.270.)

P. 257<sup>4</sup>. This noble nation (which holds the Word holy) is the French nation. R. 745<sup>2</sup>.

M. 148<sup>3</sup>. They compared (it) to noble fruit . . .

161<sup>e</sup>. As the love is then ennobled, it remains in its strength . . .

201<sup>e</sup>. From the ennobling of this form are born noble fruits . . .

505<sup>3</sup>. In this Hell there are many of noble descent . . .

T. 814. Hence this noble (or notable) nation (the Germans) devote themselves little to things of judgment . . .

D. 3925. Concerning a noble offspring of the Most Ancient Church. 4068.

E. 675<sup>7</sup>. By 'the noble man' (Luke xix.12) is meant the Lord.

1084<sup>4</sup>. The purest sap, which is also nobler, for the fruits . . .

— Aliments of such diverse purity and nobility.

1226<sup>3</sup>. In the deserts and Hells I have seen many of noble descent who in the world had given themselves up to idleness . . .

De Conj. 13. In those caverns there are noble wives, nay, those of such men as had been of the first nobility; but all there are driven to labours . . .

92. Harlots of noble family . . . are cast into the marshy lake . . .

Nod. Nod.

A. 398. 'In the land of Nod' (Gen.iv.16)=outside of truth and good; (for) the word 'Nod' means to be a wanderer and a fugitive; and to be a wanderer and a fugitive=to be deprived of truth and good.

Nod. Nutus.

Nod, To. Nutare.

A. 8626<sup>2</sup>. The least of Divine power masters (them) at every nod . . .

10823. At pleasure—ex nutu.

H. 228. At its pleasure—ad omnem nutum.

453<sup>3</sup>. At their command—ad suum nutum.

528<sup>e</sup>. It totters till it falls.

593<sup>e</sup>. The Divine proceeding . . . sees everywhere where anything is tottering.

W. 136. The will and understanding rule the body at their nod. —.

R. 396. The state of the Church with them tottering to destruction. Sig. and Ex.

M. 58°. Regards other women with disinclination-nutu inanimato, and his only one with inclination-nutu animato.

125°. Depend on the pleasure-a nutibus-of their wives.

D. 3179°. 'To those who are suffused with shame there appears a head nodding in front.

4686°. When a man is not far from the end of his life his head droops. 4687.

E. 400°. 'The earth in staggering staggers like a drunkard' (Is.xxiv.20).

1029°. Indignant if not allowed as gods to dispose all things at their nod.

1053°. Takes other servants in their place if they do not serve at his nod.

D. Wis. ii<sup>3</sup>. The will together with the understanding actuates the muscles at its nod.

Noise. Streptitus.

See under SOUND.

A. 2129. A noise was heard as if of many waters, and a conflict among them . . . which originated from the confusion of opinions concerning certain Truths . . . Des. and Ex.

6015°. 'The noise of his wheels' (Jer.xlvii.3)=sensuous things and their fallacies which urge on.

R. 411°. I heard a noise from them as of wood split up by the fire in a furnace.

T. 71. I once heard beneath me as it were the noise of the sea. Ex.

137<sup>13</sup>. At these words, a noise was made; but it was stilled by light descending from Heaven.

D. 4648. Whenever he moved, a noise was heard beneath, like the noise of punishments. Ex.

E. 323°. 'I will make the noise of thy songs to cease' (Ezek.xxvi.13)=vastation as to the Knowledge of good.

326°. 'The noise of songs' (id.)=the joys of confessions.

706°. 'The noise of the peoples' (Ps.lxv.7)=contradictions by falsities.

714<sup>16</sup>. 'The voice of a noise,' and 'a great tumult out of the land of the north' (Jer.x.22)=falsities combating against truths, and evils against goods.

Noisome. See under HARM and HURT.

None. Nullus.

A. 379. Occurs. 1843°. 7401. H.82. 293. etc. etc.

D. Wis. xii. 4°. Beware of thinking of the infinite as of nothing.

Noon, Noonday. See under SOUTH-meridies.

Noph. Noph.

A. 5044°. Truths in the ultimate of order falsified are 'the princes of Zoan,' and 'the princes of Noph' (Is. xix.13).

E. 654<sup>50</sup>. 'The princes of Zoan have become foolish, the princes of Noph have been carried away' (id.)=that the truths of wisdom and intelligence from spiritual light in the natural man have been turned into the falsities of insanity. Zoan and Noph were in the land of Egypt, and signified the illustration of the natural man from spiritual light.

Nordberg. Nordberg. D.4543. 4811.

North. Septentrio.

Northern. Septentrionalis.

See under QUARTER.

A. 195°. The darkening thence is signified by 'the people of the north' (Jer.xlvi.24).

426°. That which 'comes from the north' (Jer.xv.12) = what is sensuous and natural; for, relatively to what is spiritual and celestial, what is natural is as thick darkness, or as is the north to light and the south.

737°. 'The north' (Ezek.xxxix.2)=falsities.

1154°. 'The sides of the north,' in the opposite sense, =perverted doctrinal things.

1326°. 'The north' (Jer.l.3)=thick darkness, or no truth.

1458°. 'The north' (Is.xliii.6) = those who are in ignorance.

1605. 'Towards the north,' etc. (Gen.xiii.14) . . . 'The north' = those who are outside the Church, namely, those who are in darkness as to the Truths of faith; it also = the darkness with man.

2009°. Those who are 'from the north' (Gen.xvii.5) are those who are outside the Church, and in ignorance concerning the name of Jehovah, who nevertheless call upon His name when they are living in mutual charity, and adore a Deity the Creator of the universe . . .

2468°. 'The king of the north' (Dan.xi.40)=those who are in evils and falsities.

2702°. 'The land of the north' (Jer.xxxi.8) = the ignorance or desolation of truth.

2851°. 'A smoke out of the north' (Is.xiv.31)=that there is falsity from Hell.

—<sup>12</sup>. 'The door of the inner gate that looketh towards the north' (Ezek.viii.3)=the place where there are interior falsities. 'The door of the gate of the house of Jehovah towards the north'=the place where there are interior evils.

3325°. 'The king of the north'=falsities; or, what is the same, those who are in falsities. 3448°.

3708. 'Thou shalt break forth . . . to the north and to the south' (Gen.xxviii.14)=the infinite extension of truth; thus all states of good and truth. . . 'The north' = truth as yet in obscurity. Il.

—<sup>5</sup>. 'From the north and from the sea' (Ps.cvii.3) = those who are in ignorance of truth.

—<sup>6</sup>. 'The north' (Is.xlix.12)=those who are in obscurity as to truth.

—<sup>7</sup>. 'To run to and fro from the north even to the east' (Amos viii.12)=from those Knowledges which are in obscurity to those which are in light.

[A.3708]<sup>8</sup>. 'The north' (Jer.iii.12,18)=those who are in ignorance of truth, and yet are in a life of good.

—<sup>9</sup>. 'The north' (Jer.xvi.15)=ignorance of truth.

—<sup>9</sup>. 'The land of the north' (Jer.xxxi.8)=ignorance of good, because of truth. . . The parts of Canaan which were distant from Zion and Jerusalem represented what is obscure as to good and truth; all this which is in obscurity is called 'the land of the north,' and also 'the sides of the earth.'

—<sup>10</sup>. Moreover as all the good which inflows with light from the Lord is terminated in the obscurity of man, the north is also called 'an assembly.' III.

—<sup>11</sup>. 'The north' (Ps.lxxxix.12)=those who are more remote from the light of good and truth.

—<sup>11</sup>. 'The land of the north' (Zech.vi.6)=those who are in ignorance of good and truth, but in a life of good, in which are the upright gentiles. . .

—<sup>12</sup>. 'Out of the land to the north' (Jer.xxiii.8)=from the obscurity of ignorance of good and truth.

—<sup>13</sup>. These are said to be 'from the north' (Jer.xv.12) because from the Natural where there is relatively obscurity and a terminus.

—<sup>14</sup>. That 'the north,' and 'the west,' in the opposite sense,=falsity and evil. III.

—<sup>15</sup>. (From these passages) it is evident what is signified by 'the north' in the opposite sense; namely, the falsity from which is evil, and the falsity which is from evil. . .

—<sup>16</sup>. From the obscurity which is of the natural man there arise both truth and falsity. Ex. . . Hence it is that with the former 'the north'=truth, and with the latter falsity. . .

—<sup>17</sup>. That 'the north'=the thick darkness of falsity. . . is evident from Dan.viii. . . Concerning 'the king of the south' and 'the king of the north'; where by 'the king of the south' are signified those who are in the Knowledges of truth; and by 'the king of the north,' those who are in falsity (Dan.xi.) . . 'The king of the north'=those who are at first in shade, and afterwards in the thick darkness of falsity. . .

4592<sup>8</sup>. 'Evil out of the north' (Jer.vi.1)=from man's Sensuous and the derivative Scientific.

6385<sup>5</sup>. 'The king of the north'=falsities from evil.

8313<sup>3</sup>. 'A people out of the land of the north' (Jer.vi.22)=those who are in falsities from evil.

8408<sup>3</sup>. 'The north' (Jer.i.13)=the Sensuous and Corporeal of man, from which 'evil' springs.

9042<sup>2</sup>. 'To bring them out of the land of the north' (Jer.xxxi.8)=out of the obscurity of faith.

9642. This state of truth in shade is signified by 'the north.'

—<sup>2</sup>. 'To say to the north' (Is.xliii.6)=to those who are in darkness or ignorance concerning the truths of faith, who are the gentiles outside the Church.

—<sup>7</sup>. 'The king of the north'=reasoning from scientifics concerning truths.

9648. 'For the other side of the Habitation to the angle of the north' (Ex.xxvi.20)=towards the exteriors of that Heaven where truths are in obscurity. . . 'The north'=the exteriors where truth is in obscurity.

—<sup>1</sup>. There are four states to which correspond the four quarters. . . The north corresponds to a state of truth in shade. . . The state of truth to which the north corresponds is an exterior one. . .

9668<sup>3</sup>. In Heaven. . . to the north are those who are in the shade of truth.

9685. 'Thou shalt put the table at the side of the north' (Ex.xxvi.35)=good in obscurity. . . 'The north'=what is obscure as to the truths of faith; and, when truth is in obscurity, good also is in obscurity with it. For, in the Lord's Spiritual Kingdom, good appears through truth. . . Hence it may be evident why that table was placed at the side towards the north.

9750. 'And so at the corner of the north in length' (Ex.xxvii.11)=where the good of truth is in obscurity. 'The corner of the north'=where truth is in obscurity. . .

9927<sup>8</sup>. 'The north' (Ezek.xlvi.)=the state of the truth of faith in the external man.

10061<sup>3</sup>. 'The north' (Ps.lxxxix.)=those in the Church who are in an obscure state as to truth.

10105<sup>6</sup>. 'The north' (Jer.i.13,14)=an obscure state as to the truth of faith; and also thick darkness from falsities.

10179. 'Breadth' is reckoned from the south to the north; and by 'the south' and 'the north' is signified truth from one terminus to the other. Such is the case in Heaven. . . Those who are in the obscure light of truth are in the north.

10189. For the sides, which are called 'ribs,' look to the south and the north. . . and by 'the north' is signified truth in shade.

—<sup>2</sup>. In Heaven. . . on the left hand are those who are in the shade of truth, thus those who are in the north.

10261<sup>9</sup>. Those are said to be 'at the north' (Zech.xiv.4) who are in falsities.

H. 141. In Heaven. . . at the right is the south, and at the left is the north; and this in every turning of the face and body. 142.

148. To the south and north dwell those who are in the derivative wisdom. . . to the north those who are in the obscure light of wisdom.

149. In like manner in each Society of Heaven. . . to the north are those who are in less light of wisdom and intelligence.

150. Hence. . . the north=wisdom and intelligence in obscure light.

151. The north (to those in Hell) is on the left.

—<sup>9</sup>. Those (infernals) who are in the falsities of evil dwell from their south to their north.

513. Instructions are given. . . especially by those Angels who are in the northern and southern quarters; for those angelic Societies are in intelligence and wisdom from the Knowledges of good and truth. The places of instruction are to the north. . .

558<sup>2</sup>. Evil Spirits whose dwellings are in the middle quarter between the north and the west. . .

587<sup>4</sup>. There are many Hells in the northern and southern quarters. In these are those who. . . had been in the love of the world, and thence in evils of various kinds . . . The worst Hells of this kind are in the northern quarter . . . Their direfulness increases in proportion as they are nearer to the western quarter . . .

596. That (kingdom of Hell) which is opposite to the Spiritual Kingdom is in the northern and southern quarter; and those who are there are called Spirits.

J. 48. The Germans (appeared) towards the north.

58<sup>3</sup>. In the north dwell those (Babylonians) who had excelled less in cleverness, and had confirmed themselves less in their religiosity, from the fact that they had been in an obscure faculty of seeing, and thence had been in blind faith. There was not so great a multitude there as in the south. Further des.

61<sup>2</sup>. The Last Judgment upon those in . . . the northern quarter, where also there was a great city. Des.

C. J. 42<sup>2</sup>. In the northern quarter (of London there) dwell those who surpass all the rest in loving the freedom of speech and writing.

79. After the Last Judgment the Jews were translated into the north . . . D.5619<sup>2</sup>.

F. 53. 'Waters ascending out of the north' (Jer. xlvii.2)=falsities from Hell.

W. 121<sup>2</sup>. Those who are in a lower degree of wisdom dwell in the north. Hence 'the north'=wisdom in shade.

125<sup>2</sup>. Those who are less in wisdom see the Lord obliquely to the left; therefore these are in the north.

R. 20<sup>3</sup>. 'The king of the north'=those who are in falsities. (=those who are in darkness from evil. E.31<sup>4</sup>.) E.355<sup>21</sup>. 514<sup>14</sup>.

442<sup>3</sup>. These (here treated of) pass their time in the northern quarter . . . 456<sup>2</sup>.

484. I heard a sound as of a mill; it was in the northern quarter . . .

—7. In the northern quarter . . . I heard as it were a noise of waters . . .

901. 'On the north three gates' (Rev.xxi.13)=that the Knowledges of truth and good . . . by which there is introduction into the New Church, are for those (also) who . . . are less in wisdom or the affection of truth. Ex.

—e. Those who are less in wisdom from the affection of truth . . . dwell in the north.

M. 3. (Two companies of Spirits from the north: their sentiments concerning eternal happiness.)

5. They were introduced to an assembly in the northern quarter . . .

77<sup>5</sup>. If polygamists invade, they are cast out into the darkness of the north. . . The darkness of the north is dulness of mind, and ignorance of Truths.

78. The people of the Iron Age pass their time in the north on the side of the west . . .

82. A man came running vehemently from the northern quarter . . .

261. In the higher northern quarter near the east . . .

there are places of instruction for boys, for youths, for men, and also for old men. Into these places are sent all who die as infants, and are being educated in Heaven . . . This tract is near the east, in order that all may be instructed through influx from the Lord . . .

268<sup>2</sup>. They were looking towards the west and the north.

T. 134. A black cloud coming out of the north . . .

160<sup>2</sup>. I saw in the north a paved way, so crowded with Spirits that there was scarcely room to step between two. Ex.

185<sup>2</sup>. I was brought in spirit into the north. (The frozen scenery of the boreal Spirits des.)

476. In boyhood, as man learns the first lessons of religion, he gradually (as to his spirit) leaves the north for the south . . . For in the Spiritual World . . . in the north dwell those who are in ignorance.

D. 4739. Concerning the north, and concerning those who dwell there. Des. . . Those who are there are those who have been in natural truth, and have lived a good life in it or according to it.

5233. See LAST JUDGMENT, here. 5346<sup>8</sup>. 5476. 5503. 5654.

5482. In the northern quarter, towards the west, there are those who are dull . . . but towards the east there, dwell those who have insinuated and seduced by lies, thus who have been cunning and malicious in that way . . .

5674. To the north (in the other life) are those who are not in light, thus are in worldly things, and in riches; thus who are relatively in darkness and poverty.

5692<sup>8</sup>. Therefore the most cunning and deceitful are near the north there, where are the most stupid. Such are their Hells.

E. 21. When Europe is mentioned, the Angels perceive the north.

175<sup>9</sup>. 'The north' (Jer.vi.)=falsity from evil.

208<sup>8</sup>. 'The north' (Jer.i.)=falsity; here, the falsity from which is evil.

239<sup>10</sup>. 'The north and the south' (Is.xliii.)=where the truth of faith is in obscurity, and in clearness.

—13. 'The land of the north' (Jer.xxxi.)=where is the falsity of ignorance.

275<sup>15</sup>. 'A people coming from the north' (Jer.l.)=those who are in falsities from evil.

298. To the left there, is the north . . . and by 'the north' is signified Divine truth in shade.

316<sup>16</sup>. By 'the west, the north, and the south,' towards which the ram pushed (Dan.viii.4) are signified the goods and truths which those receive who are in charity and the derivative faith, and by which they disperse evils and falsities.

340<sup>22</sup>. The multiplication of truth thence is signified by its 'spreading itself towards the north and the south' (Gen.xxviii.14).

355<sup>9</sup>. By 'the north' (Zech.vi.) is meant what is obscure of truth with them.

[E. 355]<sup>16</sup>. By 'the north' from which he will come (Ezek.xxvi.7) is signified the source whence all falsity comes; in special, the Hell from which it arises.

—<sup>19</sup>. 'The land of the north' (Jer.vi.)=whence are falsities. . . For by 'the north' is signified that which is remote from truths.

—<sup>20</sup>. 'The sides of the north' (Ezek.xxxviii.15)=what is remote from goods and truths; and thus whence come falsities of evil.

357<sup>16</sup>. 'The land of the north' (Jer.i.)=the Hell where there is nothing but falsity.

386<sup>11</sup>. 'From the north to the east' (Amos viii.12)=on every side where there are truth and good; 'the north'=where truth is in obscurity.

388<sup>11</sup>. By 'the north' (Zeph.ii.13) is signified the natural and sensuous man, and the Scientific which is there.

401<sup>28</sup>. 'The north' (Is.xli.25)=what is obscure of truth; thus those who are outside the Church. . .

405<sup>23</sup>. 'The north' (Zech.xiv.4)=where are those who are in the falsities of evil, because in darkness.

—<sup>27</sup>. 'The sides of the north' (Ps.xlviii.2)=truths from celestial good . . . because those who are in the Lord's Celestial Kingdom, in Heaven, dwell in the east; and those who are in truths from this good, towards the north there.

—<sup>28</sup>. 'The sides of the north' (Is.xiv.13)=the truths in the Lord's Celestial Kingdom.

412<sup>10</sup>. By 'Cry ye to the north' (Jer.iii.12) is signified to those who are in falsities and the derivative evils . . . because those who are in falsities and the derivative evils, in the Spiritual World, dwell in the northern quarter.

—<sup>29</sup>. 'The north' (Ezek.xx.47)=the exterior or ultimate things of the Church . . . because, in the Spiritual World . . . in the northern quarter are those who are in what is obscure of truth from the Lord; and beneath them in the Hells there, those who are in falsities, but not in any natural lumen by which they have confirmed their falsities.

417<sup>2</sup>. In the northern quarter dwell those who are in the obscure light of truth.

418<sup>2</sup>. Into the two quarters northern and southern, the Lord inflows with Divine truth more strongly than with Divine good; whence these are more in wisdom and intelligence.

419<sup>11</sup>. With those who dwell below the Heavens upon the earths . . . the determinations of the winds are from the quarters into which the Divine inflows, especially from the north.

422<sup>3</sup>. Those Angels and Spirits who are in truths from the good of love to the Lord dwell in the south and the north . . . The Divine truth which inflows from the east into the west is in its essence the good of love; whereas that which inflows into the sides both ways is in its essence truth from that good; hence those who dwell in the south and in the north . . . are in the light of truth; those who are in the south are in the clear light of truth, and those who are in the north are in the obscure light of truth. The light of truth is intelligence and wisdom. . . Therefore (in the Word) 'the south'=truth from the good of love in clearness; and 'the north,' truth from that good in obscurity.

—<sup>4</sup>. But . . . in the southern and northern quarter (under the Lord as a Moon, which is 30 degrees distant from the former one) are those who are in truths from the good of charity towards the neighbour, which are called the truths of faith. These quarters also are sometimes mentioned in the Word . . .

433<sup>15</sup>. 'The land of the north' (Jer.iii.18)=a state of ignorance, and (also) the falsity of religion.

438<sup>6</sup>. The tribe of Asher encamped on the north, because in Heaven those dwell to the north who are in the affection of spiritual Knowledges from the good of charity.

449<sup>7</sup>. 'The north' from which 'evil looks forth' (Jer.vi.1)=the falsity of evil.

518<sup>34</sup>. 'Waters from the north' (Jer.xlvii.2)=the falsities of doctrine which are from Own intelligence. Coro.34<sup>2</sup>.

—<sup>38</sup>. 'The north' (Jer.xlvi.6)=those with whom there is falsity, and the source of it.

539<sup>6</sup>. 'The north' (Is.xiv.31)=the Hell where and whence are falsities of doctrine and falsities of faith. . . Hence 'a smoke cometh from the north'=vastating falsity from the Hells.

569<sup>19</sup>. 'The north where they have stumbled and fallen' (Jer.xlvi.6)=the source of these falsities.

573<sup>12</sup>. 'The king of the north'=those within the Church who are in the falsities of evil. (=those who are in knowledge from the Word, and yet not in life . . . 717<sup>17</sup>.) 811<sup>11</sup>.

600<sup>9</sup>. In Heaven . . . to the left is the north . . . and in the north are those who are in the obscure light of truth from good.

—<sup>10</sup>. 'The north and the right hand thou hast created' (Ps.lxxxix.12) . . . As these things, or those who are in them, are in the north and in the south . . . it is said 'the north and the right hand.'

650<sup>56</sup>. 'The north upon which Jehovah will stretch out His hand' (Zeph.ii.13)=the Church which is in falsities.

652<sup>2</sup>. Those who are in an obscure perception of truth dwell in the northern quarter (of the cities in the Spiritual World), and also walk there. J.(Post.)12.

714<sup>16</sup>. 'The land of the north' (Jer.x.22)=where are those who are in the falsities of evil.

717<sup>17</sup>. The reason of this signification of 'the king of the north,' is that 'the north'=night, and also a cold light, such as is the light in winter, from which . . . there is no fructification.

721<sup>10</sup>. 'The north' (Jer.xxxi.8)=falsities.

—<sup>20</sup>. 'A people coming from the land of the north' (Jer.vi.22)=those who are in the falsities of evil; and, abstractedly, the falsities of evil which are in the Church then vastated. (=those in Own intelligence who falsify the Word. 734<sup>16</sup>.)

724<sup>20</sup>. 'The north' (Is.xliii.5)=the truth of doctrine in obscurity, such as is with those who from ignorance of truth are in falsities, and still long for truths. 768<sup>6</sup>.

817<sup>9</sup>. 'The north' (Is. xiv. 31) = Hell.

971. The Spiritual Kingdom consists of the Heavens . . . which are in Divine truth ; and these Heavens are in the southern quarter and in the northern quarter.

J. (Post.) 268. To the north (of the London there) dwell those who are not lettered, and who are in the highest freedom of speech, which they love.

Nose. Nasus.

See NOSTRIL, and under ODOUR, and SMELL.

A. 3103. The ornament—monile—of gold' (Gen. xxiv. 22) was placed upon the nose, as is evident from . . . verse 47 ; for the reason that the nose signified the life of good, from the respiration which is there, which, in the internal sense, is life ; and also from the odour, which is what is grateful of love . . .

3869<sup>9</sup>. 'To remove the nose and the ears' (Ezek. xxiii. 25) = to remove the perception of truth and good, and the obedience of faith.

5058<sup>2</sup>. The upper part of his nose appeared filthily furrowed . . .

8286<sup>e</sup>. Hence it is that by 'the nose,' when predicated of the Lord, is also signified wrath ; thus the punishment, vastation, and damnation of those who are in evils and falsities. III. E. 741<sup>22</sup>.

10163. (In the Second Earth) their eyes and nose are small, (which) with them is a beauty.

10754<sup>e</sup>. (In the Fifth Earth) with the men, the nose is more snowy than fleshy in colour.

H. 354<sup>2</sup>. The head (with those who have confirmed themselves against the Divine and in favour of nature) appears callous, as if of ebony, even to the nose ; a sign that they no longer have any perception.

W. 254<sup>3</sup>. The natural man who has been made sensuous through evils and the derivative falsities, in the light of Heaven appears . . . with nose retracted. The reason the nose is drawn in, is that the nose corresponds to the perception of truth.

P. 310. In the Spiritual World it is said of (these sensuous ones) that, as they confirm themselves, so do they close up the interiors of their minds, even to the nose at last ; for the nose = the perception of truth . . .

—<sup>5</sup>. Such do they become who in the world do not believe that there is anything of Divine Providence, and who explore nothing with others than their cupidities and desires, and thus lead them until they dominate over them . . . Seen in the light of Heaven, they appear without a nose . . . They are more sensuous than all others.

R. 611<sup>8</sup>. The understanding, when closed up by religion . . . has nothing in it but thick darkness, (which) . . . establishes a barrier against all spiritual light in the Corporeal Sensuous, far below the Rational . . . that is, puts it close to the nose, and fixes it in the cartilage of it ; owing to which it cannot afterwards have even a scent of spiritual things . . . By scent I mean perception.

D. 1126b. These serious Spirits were said to act into the interior left part of the nose ; for on the septum of the nose, as an axis, the rest of the things of the face depend, as circumferences.

1376. His nose was rather sharp, and had so decreased with age that scarcely any nose remained, only some of the tip.

6016. Therefore they have no nose, and some of them but little of a nose ; for they cannot have perception.

D. Min. 4732<sup>2</sup>. The upper part of his nose was seen to be filthily furrowed with a filthy wound . . .

E. 272<sup>8</sup>. 'A nose-jewel—monile—upon the nose' (Ezek. xvi. 12) = the perception of good.

324<sup>16</sup>. 'In thy nose' (Dent. xxxiii. 10) = to perception.

923<sup>4</sup>. 'A hook in his nose' (Is. xxxvii. 29) = that he will be stupid and silly ; for 'the nose' = perception, and 'a hook' the extraction of it ; properly, immersion in the Corporeal Sensuous, which, separated from the Rational, is stupid.

1056<sup>3</sup>. Lastly, the natural mind is closed, even to the sensuous mind, which is expressed in Heaven by its being said, Even to the nose ; and thus they become merely sensuous, who are the most stupid of all in spiritual things . . .

Nose-jewel. Monile.

A. 3103. 'The man took an ornament of gold' (Gen. xxiv. 22) = Divine good . . . It was customary . . . to give the bride an ornament of gold and bracelets . . . and the good of the Church was represented by the ornament . . . the ornament of gold was placed upon the nose. (Continued under NOSE.) 3132.

—<sup>2</sup>. That 'a nose-jewel' was an ensign of marriage as to good. III.

—<sup>4</sup>. 'A nose-jewel' (Hos. ii. 13) = an ensign of the good of the Church.

4551<sup>e</sup>. The ear-rings were of two kinds . . . those which were applied above the nose to the forehead were ensigns representative of good, and are called 'nose-jewels.'

9930<sup>9</sup>. 'A ring upon the nose' (Ezek. xvi. 12) = the perception of good. E. 272<sup>8</sup>.

10540<sup>3</sup>. 'A ring' (id.) = truth as to perception.

E. 195<sup>7</sup>. 'The bracelets,' 'chain,' 'nose-jewel,' etc. (id.) are insignia by which are signified spiritual things of various kinds . . . That 'nose-jewels' and 'ear-rings' are representatives of perception and obedience. Ref.

577<sup>3</sup>. 'A ring upon the nose' (id.) = the perception of truth from good.

Nostril. Naris.

See NOSE, and under MUCUS, ODOUR, and SMELL.

A. 94. 'To inbreathe into his nostrils the breath of lives' (Gen. ii. 7) = to give him the life of faith and love.

96. By 'the nostrils' was understood whatever was grateful, from the odour, which = perception. III.

4403<sup>e</sup>. Those who are at the nostrils are those who enjoy perception.

4622. Concerning the correspondence of Odour and of the nostrils with the Grand Man. Gen. art.

[A.] 4624. To the province (of the sense of smell and thence of the nostrils) pertain those who are in general perception, so that they may be called perceptions. To these corresponds the smell, consequently its organ. Hence it is that to smell, to scent, to be keen-scented—sagax, and also the nostrils, in common discourse are predicated of those who by divination come near the Thing, and also who perceive.

4625<sup>2</sup>. I have spoken with those who, in the Society into which I was sent . . . pertain to the province of the nostrils, from which it has been given me to know . . . that they are perceptions; for they perceived whatever has happened in the Society in general; but not so much in particular as those who are in the province of the eye . . .

4627. But those who relate to the interiors of the nostrils are in a more perfect state as to perception than those who relate to the exteriors of them. (A representative of them seen.)

—<sup>2</sup>. The abodes of those who constitute the province of the internal nostrils were there; for they were of the female sex; and the clearness of the perception of those who dwell there is represented by such holes. Ex. D. 4028.

—<sup>3</sup>. Those who were cast down (from among them) relate to the mucus of the nostrils, who are dull and stupid. Des.

—<sup>4</sup>. There was then shown me the lucidity in which those live who relate to the internals of the nostrils. Des. It was also shown that they have holes opening at the side, through which they see as it were the sky with stars in the azure. (Further representatives of the perceptions in which are those who correspond to the smell of the internal nostrils.) Des. D. 4031.

5180. The region (of these Spirits) was observed from the plane of the septum of the nostrils rising up towards the plane of the left ear.

6013<sup>o</sup>. The nostrila (are formed) to the sense of the fluent parts in the atmosphere. 6057.

8286. 'The wind of Thy nostrils' (Ex. xv. 8) = Heaven . . . because by it is meant the breath of life, thus the Divine life; and as this makes the life of Heaven, by 'the wind of the nostrils of Jehovah' is signified Heaven.

—<sup>3</sup>. It is said 'through the nostrils' (Gen. ii. 7), because the respiration is through them, and through the respiration there is life.

—<sup>4</sup>. As by the presence of Heaven where the Lord is evils and falsities are cast into Hell, this effect also is signified by 'the wind of the nostrils of Jehovah.' Ill.

9049<sup>o</sup>. The nostrils correspond to the perception of truth.

9936. The interiors . . . which are of perception (have their province allotted) in the province of the nostrils.

H. 96<sup>2</sup>. Those in the Grand Man who are in the nostrils are in perception.

97. Hence by 'the nostrils' (in the Word, is signified) perception.

W. 383<sup>3</sup>. As the respiration passes through the nostrils, by them is signified perception; and one who is intelligent is said to be a man of sharp nostril; and one who is not intelligent to be of dull nostril. D. Wis. vi<sup>4</sup>.

M. 132<sup>3</sup>. 'In the nostrils' (Gen. ii. 7) = into the perception that the will of good and the understanding of truth—and thus 'the soul of lives'—was in him.

I. 8<sup>2</sup>. 'To inbreathe into the nostrils the soul of lives' = to implant the perception of good and truth.

T. 159<sup>o</sup>. They were so enraged that smoke and fire came out of their nostrils.

186<sup>o</sup>. When they hear these truths they compress the nostrils, lest the odour of them should . . . excite nausea; but they open all their senses to falsities, and draw them in as whales do water.

371<sup>8</sup>. There is a like reciprocal mutual conjunction . . . of odour and the nostril.

569<sup>5</sup>. With his nostrils stopped up he went near those who were in the odour of Heaven . . .

D. 939. The mamillary processes imbibe the phlegm of the medullary substance of the brain through their interstices, and excrete it into the nostrils . . . 1267.

1793<sup>2</sup>. These are altogether external men, because they obstruct the respiration through the nostrils; and therefore it is determined through the mouth, and thus into the pharynx, otherwise than is wont to be the way of natural respiration, which is through the nostrils, by reason of the concordance of the brain and its animation with external things . . .

3322<sup>o</sup>. Such a respiration (of the Most Ancients) flowing out through the lips, and entering through their mouth, thus through the nostrils, and through the Eustachian tube into the ear . . .

5143<sup>o</sup>. They inflicted on my left nostril an uncomfortable coldness . . .

E. 419<sup>7</sup>. For 'the spirit,' and 'wind,' of 'the nostrils,' in the supreme sense, = Divine truth. Ill.

427. The nostrils correspond to perception.

684<sup>32</sup>. 'The spirit of our nostrils' (Lam. iv. 20) = the life of the perception of good and truth.

1080<sup>2</sup>. The perception of the mind corresponds to the odour of the nostrils . . .

D. Wis. vi<sup>4</sup>. The nostrils, from the correspondence of the respiration through them, = perception . . .

x. 5<sup>o</sup>. The continuance (of the lungs) thence is into the nostrils and the tongue . . .

Not. Non.

A. 2334. 'They said, Nay' (Gen. xix. 2) = the doubting which is wont to be of temptation.

2945. 'Nay, my lord, hear me' (Gen. xxiii. 11) = that . . . they were in obscurity of faith . . .

3428<sup>3</sup>. (Wisdom thought to consist in proving that it is not so.) 3833.

3990. 'Not to give anything' (Gen. xxx. 31) = not to be brought . . .

5225. 'No one,' in the internal sense, is the negative of a Thing, thus not . . . 5253.

5256. 'Saying, Not to me' (Gen.xli.16)=that it was not from the human alone.

5434. 'To say to him, Nay, my lord' (Gen.xlii.10)=that they were not seeking for gain.

5444. 'And one is not' (ver.13)=that the Divine Spiritual a quo does not appear.

9166<sup>2</sup>. Hence the celestial Angels . . . merely say Yea or Nay. The reason is, that they perceive and see truths from the Lord.

10124<sup>3</sup>. These are they who are meant by the Lord in Matthew: 'Let your discourse be, Yea, yea; Nay, nay; that which is beyond these is from evil' (v.36,37); for to reason from truths as to whether it is so is not from good, because then truth is not perceived, but is only believed from authority and the consequent confirmation by one's self . . .

Life 58. In the second Table . . . it is said that man shall not do this or that evil . . . The reason is that man cannot do any good from himself, but when he does not do these evils, he then does good not from himself but from the Lord. (Compare T.329.)

Note. See under TONE.

Nothing. Nihil.

A. 1271. They infused into them to say that they were nothing . . .

1396. A certain Spirit who wanted to arrogate merit to himself . . . said that he was nothing . . .

3938<sup>5</sup>. For that which is unknown is believed to be nothing.

4981. He then makes (honours and riches) as nothing . . .

5025<sup>6</sup>. The natural man . . . regards (spiritual influx) . . . as nothing . . .

5094<sup>3</sup>. The sensuous man . . . supposes that to be nothing which he does not see and touch.

5125<sup>6</sup>. The happiness and blessedness within the delights of sensuous things he regards as nothing. That which is unknown to anyone is believed not to be.

5145<sup>6</sup>. When (good and truth, or justice and equity) are held to be relatively as nothing . . .

5185<sup>6</sup>. When (the Spirits of these ducts) are in their natural state, they think nothing. To think nothing is to think obscurely about many things at once, and nothing distinctly about anything.

5224<sup>2</sup>. To him . . . internal things are as nothing.

5651. That whatever is in each Natural is as nothing. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. In order that man may become spiritual, his Natural must become as nothing, that is, so that it can do nothing whatever from itself . . .

5985. As the Subject (Spirit) thinks or speaks nothing whatever from himself . . . those who inflow suppose that the Subject is as it were nothing . . .

—<sup>e</sup>. It once happened that he who said that the Subject was nothing was made a Subject; and then the rest said concerning him that he was nothing, at which he was very angry.

6000<sup>3</sup>. The things of Heaven, to these persons, are relatively as little or nothing.

8995<sup>4</sup>. When a man . . . holds himself, and also the world, as nothing; and if he regards himself as anything, it is in order that he can serve the Lord (he is regenerate); but the contrary had been the case with him; for, when he looked to himself, he had held the Lord as nothing, and if as anything, it was only in order that he might have gain and honour therefrom.

9131. 'If he has nothing' (Ex.xxii.3)=if not anything remains of the good and truth taken away.

9981. 'Hoping for nothing' (Luke vi.35). Ex.

10185<sup>6</sup>. If the communication were taken away, all things of the Earth would fall into nothing.

10236<sup>4</sup>. (Snch) believe nothing.

—<sup>6</sup>. The things which do not appear before their senses they believe to be nothing.

W. 55. It is said that the world . . . has been created out of nothing; and concerning nothing the idea is cherished as of utterly nothing; when yet from utterly nothing, nothing is made, nor can be made. . . From nothing, which is not, to create that which is, is quite contradictory.

82. See NEWTON, and EMPTY=vacuus, here. J.(Post.) 265.

282. That the Lord from eternity . . . created the universe and all things of it from Himself, and not from nothing. Gen.art.

283. (For) not anything can be made out of nothing; for nothing is nothing; and to make something out of nothing is contradictory.

373<sup>6</sup>. A vacuum is nothing, and in nothing nothing is done; and from nothing nothing comes forth.

P. 19<sup>2</sup>. As the evil have nothing of power, the universal Hell before the Lord is not only as nothing, but is utterly nothing as to power.

309. (They said,) Would not a man thus be nothing and emptiness?

—<sup>3</sup>. Of all these it can (truly) be said that they are nothing and empty . . . and therefore such are called 'dead,' also 'nothing and empty' (Is.xl.17,23).

M. 444. The two Angels said . . . Leave out these things, because they are nothing. But I replied, This (scortatory) love . . . is not nothing, because it exists—datur.

—<sup>3</sup>. Evil is not from creation; and yet evil, regarded in itself, is not nothing, although it is nothing of good. When this least degree of good becomes nothing, evil rises up on the other side . . .

T. 76. (We had thought) that all things were created by God out of nothing; and yet we now perceive that from nothing nothing is made . . .

—<sup>4</sup>. All things lead to the conclusion that God did not create the universe out of nothing; because, as you said, From nothing nothing is made . . .

D. 910. A Spirit who as if in sleep said, I am nothing, I am nothing . . . (from fear of robbers). Ex.

2043. What is signified by being nothing. Gen.art.

—<sup>e</sup>. Spirits who did not understand what was meant by its being said that we are to be annihilated, or to become nothing . . . have often said to me that I was nothing, and should become nothing . . . But it was given me to reply to them that I desired this, namely to be nothing, nay, utterly nothing; for then I should first begin to be something.

[D.] 2044. They were afterwards instructed that nothing signifies this: that a man should lose all that is his own; that is, his cupidities, thus his iniquities; and thus that he should come forth as another person; and that they could not be anything until they had lost that which was theirs; and that in the proportion in which they lose it, or are annihilated, they begin to be something; and that then they would have whatever they should ever long for. Further ex.

2060. Why a man or a Spirit ought to know nothing from himself; and that he is then wise for the first time. Ex.

—<sup>e</sup>. This is the same as to say that he who is nothing is something; or, that in proportion as he is nothing, he is more than nothing; because then first the Lord is with him . . .

2327. When this proposition had been confirmed by the Angels, (the Spirits) . . . confessed that they are nothing; and it was said to them, that such a confession [made] with intellectual faith is the beginning of humiliation.

2418. Concerning the understanding and perception of evil Spirits . . . concerning the fact that they are nothing.

—<sup>e</sup>. What is said as to their being nothing they tolerate less than other things of the doctrine of faith; and this from the love of self; others, partly from ignorance.

2465. When the Spirits said that thus they are nothing, it was replied that it is true; and that it is enough for them that they seem to themselves to have ability, think, speak, and act, as from themselves, and to be their own. What more do they want?

2467. Some were indignant that thus they were nothing, and thus are not able from themselves to lead themselves; which is a familiar thing with almost all Spirits, except the best ones. [One of them] said that he did not want this to be shown so manifestly, that he was so led and thus was nothing; and that it is sufficient if he knows this, and can say that it is so. But it was given me to reply, that it is not enough; but that it is necessary to believe it. 2671<sup>2</sup>.

2470. I have manifestly perceived that nothing else is required with man, than to be a yielding vessel . . . In order that man may not be resistant, but yielding, it is needful for him to be faith . . . to be nothing . . . and to suffer himself to be driven. He thus acts as it were from himself, with ineffable happiness. . . This was confirmed by the Angels, who say that they are in such a state, when it so pleases the Lord.

2520. Heaven consists . . . in everyone regarding himself as nothing.

2944. Certain Spirits said, that they wanted to reduce me so that I should be nothing. Wherefore it was replied to them that they themselves confess that there is a nothing . . .

3430. He who thus appeared . . . said that he was nothing . . . and this often . . . and therefore . . . evil Spirits could not do any evil to him; for it was from his persuasion that he was nothing, and that his life consisted in this. But how he was nothing . . . I could not perceive, but only that it was not from humility towards the Lord; nor from the fact that in him there was nothing except what is evil and filthy . . . for [such] suppose themselves to be thus pure . . . 3431, Ex.

3579. Concerning Spirits who say that they are nothing, and yet want to be everything; or concerning the Antediluvians. Gen. art.

3587. They held with themselves this: that all others compared to them are nothing . . . This Persuasive penetrates others . . .

3645. That in the World of Spirits every one supposes another to be nothing. Ex.

3648<sup>e</sup>. (This pontiff) wanted to humble himself, saying that he was nothing . . .

3786. Spirits speaking through another consider that other . . . as nothing . . .

3816. A certain Spirit said to me that I am nothing . . .

3907. Without the Lord's love and His derivative mercy, not only would each and all things be indeterminate, but utterly nothing; and therefore the Lord is all in all.

3939. What it is to be nothing. Ex.

—<sup>e</sup>. It was perceived that to be nothing signifies to be nothing but evil; for, in itself, evil is death, and therefore relatively to life it is nothing. That good and truth is everything, is evident; and therefore evil and falsity is nothing. Hence humiliation goes to the point that one is nothing, with the internal confession that there is nothing of good and truth in self . . . It signifies, also, that, relatively to the Grand Man, one is only the very smallest particle, so as to be as it were nothing . . . As, then, relatively to the Grand Man, he is almost nothing, he is in the Truth of faith when he holds himself as nothing relatively to a General, whatever it be, which is good and true.

4067. What it is to be nothing. Ex.

—<sup>e</sup>. The most deceitful ones above the head . . . said that they cannot destroy me, because there is nothing; but if there were anything, they could . . .

—<sup>e</sup>. Thus is he safe, who in the Truth of faith, believes himself to be nothing.

4100. Concerning nothing. — Spirits are especially unable to tolerate the expression that they are nothing. But it was said to them that they are always something, but that (something) is from the Lord . . .

4228. They said that I am nothing, because I am carried to think, to speak, and to all things; and thus there is nothing from me. (The advantage of being in this state. Ex.)

4341. What it is to be nothing. — A certain upright Spirit . . . said that he was nothing . . . I perceived that he had the conception of being nothing as relatively to the multitude of Spirits and of the whole universe. But it was given to say that this is one conception, but that there are many others; namely, that he has no power from himself; also that he has no thought from himself; then, that he has no life from himself; especially, that, from himself, he is a dead thing, filthy, and nothing but evil, and thus that all good is from the Lord; and that these are the ideas of nothing.

4434. That Spirits have absolutely nothing of ability, and thus that they are nothing. Ex.

E. 328<sup>16</sup>. 'Asshur oppressed them for nothing' (Is. lii. 4) = the falsification of these things through the reasonings of the natural man... 'To oppress for nothing' = falsification; for falsities are nothing, because there is nothing of truth in them.

Notice, To. Animadvertere.

Animadversion. Animadvertentia.

See under APERCEIVE.

A. 24<sup>3</sup>. The second thing which a man notices when he is being regenerated...

219. 'The voice of Jehovah' = ... conscience, or internal animadversion...

295. They took notice that they were in evil: this is called 'nakedness.'

450. They took notice with shame that...

1270<sup>2</sup>. On awaking, I noticed that they were near me.

1311<sup>2</sup>. As it appears at first as if the Lord does not see or notice that the evil exists...

1410. 'Jehovah said to Abram' = the first animadversion (or act of taking notice) of all...

—c. As when in the Ancient Church anyone was made to take notice through conscience, or through another dictate, or through the Word, that it was so, then it was said in like manner that 'Jehovah said.'

1426. What is said from the first verse to this, represents and signifies the first animadversion that He was putting on celestial things, and thus Divine ones.

1491<sup>e</sup>. Animadversion comes through knowledge.

1820<sup>2</sup>. As soon as they notice the smallest thing which a man loves, or apperceive as it were by scent what is delightful and dear to him...

1884<sup>2</sup>. I noticed that I was in another place. H. 441.

1936. It noticed that it ought not to trust to itself. Sig. and Ex.

2488. The Spirits with man know and observe the smallest things of his memory and thoughts...

2831<sup>2</sup>. The celestials know at once from a certain internal animadversion whether it is good and whether it is true; for the Lord insinuates this, because they are conjoined with the Lord in love; whereas spiritual men have not such a perception of good and truth...

2953<sup>3</sup>. It is noticed at once by the Angels that a man's ideas are from the Word.

4658. I observed that there were Spirits who...

5075<sup>e</sup>. The understanding is called the internal sight... Animadversion and obedience are called hearing and hearkening; the apperception of a Thing, smell; and so on.

6258. 'He could not see' = no animadversion.

6484<sup>e</sup>. Brute animals have like senses, a like life, and also animadversion and prudence.

6663<sup>2</sup>. He who defends his opinion against others who attack it, confirms himself in it more and more, and also finds many things confirmatory of his opinion which he had not noticed before...

7281. 'In stretching out My hand upon the Egyptians' = when they observe in themselves the Divine power.

8542. If they observe that any begin to think wrongly about God, they first admonish him...

10217. The same word as that by which 'to number' is here expressed, in the Original Language means to survey—lustrare, to estimate—censere, to animadvert.

10736. After I had observed that I was in the starry heaven as to my spirit... For this may be observed from the changes of state...

10813<sup>2</sup>. That they fled at the mere idea of absolute command or domination, I observed from the fact that...

H. 109<sup>e</sup>. When I have been in gardens... I have noticed the correspondences in Heaven...

143<sup>2</sup>. The presence of the Lord was observed before my face.

452<sup>2</sup>. When (after their decease) they take notice that they are alive...

W. 266<sup>2</sup>. Let everyone consult himself, and he will observe that it is so.

341<sup>2</sup>. Once in my garden I observed that...

382. Everyone can observe in himself that...

P. 34. How the body operates these things is observed; but not how the soul.

42. The more distinctly he appears to himself as his own, the more evidently he animadverts that he is the Lord's. 44.

58<sup>e</sup>. The Angels take notice also that the conjunction is only what may be called adjunction.

71<sup>2</sup>. Whoever attends to his acts of will... will observe that such a determination comes in between.

234. The Divine Providence... where it observes man to swerve...

235<sup>2</sup>. Those who have confirmed themselves in favour of human prudence... in whatever they see, hear, and read, notice nothing else...

T. 449. If they do not observe the same things in the person after death, they at once recede from the friendship.

459<sup>18</sup>. I noticed this from their faces.

504<sup>2</sup>. I noticed that smoke, as it were, ascended from Hell...

526. Whereinsoever ye shall perceive yourselves to have offended...

650<sup>e</sup>. In the Spiritual World I have often observed this transmutation and turning.

796<sup>2</sup>. As Luther observed that the number of those who resorted to him diminished daily...

D. 892. There is a certain interior perception, or animadversion, in those who are led by the Lord, as to the things which are to be done with them, especially in the doing . . .

[D.] 3842. From the animadversion given me by the Lord, I perceived this so manifestly . . . If the animadversion had not been given, I should not have at all perceived whence (the influx came).

4627<sup>8</sup>. Hence from light are thought, apperception, reflection, animadversion, etc.

—<sup>11</sup>. I have observed from frequent experience . . .

5640. (Those) in a lower sphere . . . have not interior perception, nor animadversion from Knowledges.

D. Min. 4721<sup>e</sup>. The animadversion of resistance, or its reception, is sometimes sufficient.

Notion. Notio.

A. 449. What notion they have conceived of Heaven . . .

3857<sup>3</sup>. (Being in worldly and corporeal affections, man) can have notions concerning celestial and spiritual ones.

4269. General notions must precede . . .

4301<sup>2</sup>. In order that some notion may be had of this Thing . . .

4893<sup>2</sup>. Those things fall into the shade (of the understanding) which do not coincide with the things of which it before had some notion.

4901<sup>2</sup>. (Spirits) have thought from states of life, and this without notion of times.

— Hence no notion of time enters their thoughts; but a notion of state and its progressions. Notions are taken from those things which are and come forth before the senses.

5354<sup>10</sup>. The Intellectual of the Church is the understanding with the men of the Church concerning truths and goods . . . thus their notion, concept, or idea, concerning them.

H. 162. Nevertheless the Angels have no notion and idea of time and space . . . 191. 195.

T. 4<sup>3</sup>. As the idea concerning God, with all notion of Him, has been torn to pieces . . .

D. 982. Even general notions (of this science) would fill innumerable sheets.

1126. Those things which are of life . . . are successively inserted into this general notion.

1935. For each notion contains infinite things . . .

2697. The notion of this has been sometimes given me in sleep.

3476<sup>2</sup>. Therefore the notion of time and space does not exist with Spirits, except with those who are corporeal . . . and even with them there is no reflection upon such things, and without reflection there is no notion of such things; as may be evident from man in the body: when he is not reflecting upon such, and corporeal, things, neither is he then in the notion of them.

3477. As they (then) have no other notion than that of time . . . they deduce absurdities . . .

3482. I have been led into a certain perception of forms, the notion of which far surpasses . . . the notions taken from geometrical things; for the forms . . . so surpass the forms of geometrical notions, that they cannot possibly be perceived from them. 3484.

3945. Concerning the notion of love and of heaven.

— An idea or notion of it occurred exceedingly gross, which ideas and notions can scarcely be described . . . But when the persuasive life of Spirits occurred, the idea or notion was subtle . . .

3954<sup>2</sup>. That he should have the notion (of the spirit) which he has now, had been impossible . . .

5623. As the Sun is not such as it is in the world, they can have no notion of time; but only of state . . .

5625. How that natural thought, and especially sensuous thought, cannot recede from the notion of space and time.

5627. Still, they have a notion of heat and cold, and also of light and shade; but not from time; but from the state of their life.

E. 388<sup>12</sup>. From this general notion concerning the contents, it may be seen . . .

Nourish, To. Nutrire.

Nourishment, Nutrition. Nutritio.

See NURSE.

A. 1973<sup>e</sup>. Knowing and learning are as it were the food (of Spirits) by which they are nourished.

3951<sup>3</sup>. As with the nourishment of man; nutrition has for its end that there be a sound mind in a sound body. If a man deprives the body of its nourishment, he deprives himself also of the state of the end; and therefore he who is a spiritual man does not despise nourishment, nor the pleasures of it either; but he does not have it for the end, but for a means of serving the end.

4459<sup>6</sup>. For example: the nourishment of the body, and the nourishment of the soul. He who is in merely external pleasures, takes care of his skin, indulges his stomach, loves to live sumptuously, and places the height of pleasure in eatables and drinkables; but he who is in internals, also has pleasure in these things, but his regnant affection is that the body may be nourished with foods with pleasure for the sake of its health, to the end that there may be a sound mind in a sound body; thus principally for the sake of the health of the mind, to which the health of the body subserves as a means.

4792. As food and nourishment correspond to spiritual food and nourishment, the taste corresponds to the perception and affection thereof. (Continued under FOOD.)

4795. In so far as the tongue subserves nourishment, it corresponds to the affection of knowing, understanding, and being wise as to truths . . .

4976<sup>2</sup>. Man in the other life is not nourished by any natural food and drink; but by spiritual food and drink, (which are) good and truth . . .

—<sup>e</sup>. Hence it can be seen . . . how the truth of faith without the good of charity can nourish the internal man, in that it is as drink alone does without food . . .

5147. Full of celestial good for the nourishment of the Natural. Sig. and Ex.

—<sup>3</sup>. That such things yield nourishment to the spirit of man, when material foods are [doing so] to his body, may also be evident from the fact, that foods without delights conduce but little, but with delights they nourish. The delights are what open the passages or ducts which receive and convey into the blood; but things undelightful close them. These delights with the Angels are the goods of love and of charity . . .

5293. Food, in the internal sense, properly signifies those things which nourish the soul of man; that is, which nourish him after the life of the body . . . These are the things with which the Angels are nourished, and which are therefore called spiritual and celestial foods . . . The mind of man is nourished with no other food. (Continued under Food.)

5360. These are the things with which Angels and Spirits are nourished. (Continued under Food.)

5576. Famine there . . . is famine for such food as nourishes their minds . . . Wonderful to say, the Angels are nourished by this food. (Continued under Food.)

—<sup>3</sup>. He who enjoys material food for the nourishment of the body, is better nourished by such food if at the same time he is cheerful in spirit, and is engaged in conversation about such things as are favourable thereto. (Continued under Food.)

6078. If man takes food [in the intervals] between speaking and listening, the vessels which receive the chyle are opened, and he is nourished more fully than if alone. Spiritual truths, and instructions in them, would have such an effect with men, if they were in the affection of good.

— But in order that scientifics may yield health-bringing nourishment to the soul, there must be in them life from the goods of truth . . .

6110. Truths and goods, and the Knowledges thereof . . . are the celestial and spiritual foods with which (the Angels) are nourished . . .

6158. 'For seed of the field' = for the nourishment of the mind.

—<sup>3</sup>. When the mind is in the genuine sense a man, it is nourished and supported by truth and good; and, as truth and good are signified by 'seed,' nourishment also is signified by it . . .

7996. See FEAST=convivium, here.

8352<sup>3</sup>. The nourishment of the spiritual life is good and truth . . . On account of this correspondence, food and drink nourish the body better and more suitably, when at supper or dinner a man is at the same time in the delight of conversation with others about things he loves. (Continued under Food.)

8410. 'Bread' = the primary thing which nourishes the soul . . .

9003<sup>2</sup>. When man becomes a Spirit . . . his nourishment or support is not from natural meat and drink, but from spiritual; which, to an evil Spirit, is falsity from evil; and, to a good Spirit, truth from good. The nourishments of human minds, while they are living in the body . . . are no other; and hence it is that all things which relate to food, as bread, flesh, wine, water . . . = such things as are of spiritual nourishment.

VOL. IV.

9013. He who is in deceit meditates on evil, and thereby nourishes his understanding . . . and thus destroys everything there which is of man . . .

H. 274. Moreover, knowledge, intelligence, and wisdom are spiritual nourishment, as food is natural nourishment . . .

340<sup>2</sup>. For intelligence and wisdom are spiritual nourishment itself; and therefore the things which nourish the minds (of infants there), nourish also their bodies, and this from correspondence; for the form of the body is nothing but the external form of the interiors. M.411<sup>2</sup>.

479<sup>5</sup>. For every love wants to be nourished by its own things; an evil love by falsities, and a good love by truths.

Life 37. In order that good may come forth, it desires . . . truths: from these are its nourishment and formation. 39.

W. 331. Uses to sustain the body relate to its nourishment, etc. . . The uses created for the nourishment of the body are all things of the vegetable kingdom which are for food and drink (enum.) also all things of the animal kingdom which are eaten (enum.).

333<sup>2</sup>. Nutrition is to be applied (by correspondence) to the goods of love; clothing, to the truths of wisdom . . .

420<sup>2</sup>. That the blood nourishes itself with conducive things from the indrawn air. Ex.

—<sup>3</sup>. That the blood in the lungs purifies and nourishes itself correspondently to the affections of the mind . . .

P. 233<sup>8</sup>. In the memory there are . . . spiritual foods, which are meant by truths, and, in themselves, are Knowledges: in proportion as man takes out thence by thinking, and as it were ruminating, them, in the same proportion his spiritual mind is nourished. The love of the will is that which longs for . . . them, and causes them to be imbibed, and to nourish. If this love is evil, it . . . longs for unclean things; but if good, it longs for . . . clean ones; and those things which do not agree, it separates, dismisses, and casts out; which is done in various ways.

T. 494. The soul is in the supremes, and its nutrition is from no other foods than spiritual ones . . .

709. Every man . . . can know that there are natural nourishment and spiritual nourishment, and that natural nourishment is for the body, and spiritual nourishment for the soul. 111. Now, as the body dies, and the soul lives after death, it follows that spiritual nourishment is for eternal salvation. Who cannot see from this, that these two nutritions are by no means to be confounded? . . .

D. 4757<sup>2</sup>. The Word contains in it the most arcane things which are open in the three Heavens in order; and the Divine wisdom is in it; and thence is their celestial and spiritual nourishment . . .

[D.] 6088<sup>6</sup>. As the food is from a spiritual origin . . . and as Spirits and Angels . . . are endowed with a spiritual body, therefore such spiritual nourishment is of service to them . . .

6095. The Africans imbibe truths from longing desire more than others : this they call being nourished . . .

E. 329<sup>3</sup>. Spiritual nourishment is from the good and truth which proceed from the Lord ; as all the nourishment of the body is from meat and drink . . .

386. The spiritual life itself equally needs its nourishment and sustenance . . .

403<sup>10</sup>. That there is no spiritual nourishment. Sig.

444<sup>6</sup>. 'An inn' is where meat and drink are bought, by which are signified the Knowledges of good and truth, and thence the spiritual nourishment which is given by instruction.

507. For whatever is born in gardens and fields, and subserves for the nourishment of either man or beast, has a correspondence with such things as subserve for the nourishment of the animus and mind ; which nourishment is called spiritual nourishment.

617<sup>2</sup>. To be spiritually nourished is to be instructed and imbued, consequently, to know, to understand, and to be wise. Unless man enjoys this nourishment together with the nourishment of the body, he is not a man, but a beast ; which is the reason why those who place all delight in eatings and feastings, and who daily indulge the palate, are obese as to spiritual things, however well they can reason about the things of the world and of the body ; whence, after death, they lead a life ferine rather than human ; for in place of intelligence and wisdom they have insanity and folly.

710<sup>8</sup>. 'My mother's breasts' = spiritual nourishment in such things as are of the Church.

725<sup>7</sup>. As all spiritual nourishment is from the truths which are from good, the law was delivered, that 'a male among the priests should eat the holy things' . . . (by which) was signified spiritual nourishment.

727<sup>2</sup>. 'Thou settest a table before me . . . ' = spiritual nourishment through Divine truth . . .

750<sup>15</sup>. As by 'the manna' is signified spiritual nourishment, it is also the faith and understanding or intelligence of man which are spiritually nourished ; and, as the sons of Israel had no natural nourishment, they said, 'Our soul is dry . . . ' By 'there is nothing but manna before our eyes' is signified that there is only spiritual nourishment ; and, as they loathed this, the flesh of quails, or of selav, was given them, by which flesh is signified natural nourishment.

—<sup>16</sup>. By 'eating,' 'drinking,' and 'food,' is signified spiritual nourishment, which is the nourishment of faith, and, with this, the nourishment of the understanding, whence is intelligence in spiritual things . . .

780<sup>10</sup>. When they were instructed concerning goods and truths from the Word, even to the full nourishment of the soul. Sig.

911<sup>14</sup>. By all things which are of natural nourishment, as wheat, barley, oil, wine, and many other things, are signified such things as are of spiritual nourishment . . . and the things which are of spiritual nourishment, in general relate to good and truth, and the Knowledges of them ; thns to doctrine, and to life according to those Knowledges. Ill.

Novitiate. Novitius.

New-comer. Novus advena.

See under CHOIR, and SOUL.

A. 318. A certain (novitiate Spirit) supposed himself to be in the world ; and when it was given him to know that he was in the other life, and that now he had not anything . . . he was affected with anxiety . . . He was transferred among celestial Spirits, who were of the province of the heart ; these performed all offices for him . . . Being again left to himself, he began from charity to think how he could repay such great kindness ; from which it was evident that while in the life of the body he had been in the charity of faith, and he was therefore at once taken up into Heaven. D. 2030. 2042.

1106<sup>6</sup>. When the time of vastation has passed, they are taken up into Heaven ; and, as novitiates, are instructed in the truths of faith ; and this by the Angels by whom they are received.

1641<sup>2</sup>. Good Spirits love nothing more than to instruct novitiates . . .

1708. 'The trained men,' or novitiates, of Abram, = the goods in the external man which can be conjoined with the interior man.

2016. The Angels confess (that all good and the derivative truth are from the Lord) before novitiate Souls . . .

2209<sup>8</sup>. This might be evident from novitiate Spirits, who take the greatest delight in the appearances which they have brought with them from the world ; saying that if these were taken away from them they do not know whether they could think.

2704<sup>8</sup>. The Angels perceive nothing more blessed and happy than to teach novitiate brothers, and imbue them with the truths and goods which are of heavenly order.

3704<sup>8</sup>. Novitiates who are coming into Heaven (are taught) with solicitous care that there is one God ; and those who had been within the Church, that all the Trine is in the Lord.

4415. Recent Souls, or novitiate Spirits, namely, those who some days after death are coming into the other life, are very greatly surprised that there is light there . . . These, if they have been good, in order that they may be instructed, are elevated to heavenly Societies, and from Society to Society . . .

H. 391. There are some Societies who protect novitiate Spirits—who are those who come recently from the world—from infestations by evil Spirits.

520. The ways which lead from the places (of instruction) to Heaven, and through which novitiate Angels are introduced. Des.

P. 290<sup>2</sup>. Novitiate Spirits wonder at this my state ; not seeing otherwise than that I do not think and will anything from myself, and am therefore like some empty thing . . .

R. 153. I. When they are dead, and revive as to the Spirit, which generally happens on the third day after the heart has ceased to beat, they appear to themselves to be in a body like that in which they had been . . . so that they know no otherwise than that they are living in the former world . . . II. After some days they see that they are in a world where there are various Societies instituted, which World is called the World of Spirits . . . III. The novitiate Spirit, or spiritual man, is conducted and transferred into various Societies, both good and evil, and is explored as to whether he is affected with truths, and how; or whether he is affected with falsities, and how. IV. If he is affected with truths, he is led away from the evil Societies, and is led into good Societies, and also into various ones, until he comes into a Society corresponding to his natural affection; and he there enjoys the good which agrees with that affection: and this until he puts off his natural affection, and puts on a spiritual one; and he is then elevated into Heaven. But this takes place with those who in the world have lived a life of charity, and thus also a life of faith; which is, that they have believed in the Lord, and have shunned evils as sins. V. But those who in doctrine and in life have confirmed themselves in faith even to justification by it alone . . . are led away from the good Societies, and are led into the evil Societies, and also into various ones, until they come into a Society corresponding to the concupiscences of their love: for he who loves falsities cannot do otherwise than love evils. (Their subsequent experience described at great length.)

565. (The dragonists) attacking novitiates with the design of seducing them. Sig. and Ex.

875<sup>3</sup>. There was with me then a novitiate Spirit who inquired . . . And the Angel replied . . .

M. 44. I once saw three novitiate Spirits from the world, who were wandering about, examining, and making inquiries. They were in wonderment that men lived altogether as before . . . In order that they might be deprived of all doubt that they were truly men, they by turns looked at and touched themselves and others, and felt at objects, and by a thousand things confirmed themselves that they were now men as in the former world; besides that they saw each other in a brighter light, and objects in a superior splendour, and thus more perfectly. (—<sup>2</sup>.) Then by chance two angelic Spirits met them, and stopped them, saying, Whence are you? And they replied, We have deceased out of a world, and again we live in a world; thus we have migrated from a world into a world. We are now wondering at this. And then the three novitiates interrogated the two angelic Spirits concerning Heaven; and as two of the three novitiates were adolescents, and from their eyes there darted out as it were a spark of lust for the sex, the angelic Spirits said, Perhaps you have seen women; and they replied, We have. And as they had made inquiry about Heaven, they said these things: In Heaven there are all magnificent and splendid things, and such as the eye has never seen; and there are virgins and youths there; virgins of such beauty that they may be called beauties in beauty's own form; and youths of such morality that they may be called moralities in morality's own form; and the beauties of the virgins and the moralities of the youths correspond to each other, as forms mutual and coadaptable. And the two novitiates asked whether in Heaven there are human forms altogether similar to those which are in the natural world; and it was replied that they are altogether similar; nothing is taken away from the man; and nothing from the woman . . . retire, if you like, and examine yourself as to whether anything is wanting . . . (Continued at length under LOVE OF THE SEX.)

182. I saw them ascending as before from the Athenian city and its confines, and in the midst of them three novitiates from the world. These three were from Christians, one a priest, one a politician, and the third a philosopher. . . (—<sup>3</sup>. After entering the Palladium, the three novitiates tell them the news from the earth; first about Swedenborg, and the revelation concerning the Spiritual World given through him, and then of the reception accorded thereto by the people of the Earth.) T.693.

461. I once spoke with a novitiate Spirit, who, when he was in the world, had meditated much about Heaven and Hell. By novitiate Spirits are meant men newly deceased, who, being then spiritual men, are called Spirits. He, as soon as he entered the Spiritual World, began to meditate in like manner about Heaven and Hell . . . When he observed that he was in the Spiritual World, he at once asked where Heaven was, and where Hell . . . And they replied, Heaven is above your head, and Hell is beneath your feet; for you are now in the World of Spirits . . . But as to what and of what quality are Heaven and Hell, we cannot describe in a few words. And then, as he burned with the longing desire to Know, he threw himself upon his knees, and prayed devoutly to God that he might be instructed. And behold an Angel appeared at his right hand, and raised him, and said, You have supplicated to be instructed about Heaven and Hell. Inquire and learn what delight is; and you will know; and, having said this, the Angel was taken up. (Continued under DELIGHT—jucundum.) T.570.

—<sup>8</sup>. When (the three devils) saw the novitiate Spirit with the Angels, fury came upon them . . .

T. 12. Once, while speaking with the Angels, there were present some novitiates from the natural world. Seeing them, I wished them a happy arrival, and told them many unknown things about the Spiritual World. (They state their opinions concerning God and nature; and receive much instruction from Swedenborg on these subjects.)

16. I saw some new-comers from the natural world . . . talking together about three Divine Persons from eternity; they were dignitaries of the Church, and one of them a bishop. (They state to Swedenborg their ideas on this subject, and then are instructed by him.)

797<sup>2</sup>. As soon as Melancthon entered the Spiritual World, a house was prepared for him like the house in which he had stayed in the world. This is also done with most of the new-comers, from which they know no otherwise than that they are still in the natural world, and that the time which has passed since their death has been only like a sleep. In his chamber also all things were like: a like table, etc. . . and therefore, as soon as he came thither, he at once, as if he had awakened from sleep, placed himself at the table, and continued to write. (Continued under MELANCTHON.)

[T.797]<sup>6</sup>. When any novitiates from the world entered his chamber to speak with him and to see him, he summoned one of the magical Spirits . . . who then adorned his chamber . . .

D. 299. The Angels are greatly gladdened at newcomers, and with the greatest assiduity want them to be associated; but, from that exquisite perception, they at once know and perceive whether he is such that he can be among them; if not, they grieve; but still they labour with the greatest assiduity to initiate him; but, when there is no concord, they separate themselves, and so it is again given to the Soul to be transferred around as in vehicles . . .

357. I have observed that Spirits as yet novitiate . . . are snatched along in a spiritual stream . . . I have observed the resistance of these Spirits; but still they were compelled to be among them, and little by little they were drawn towards interior things . . .

E. 208<sup>2</sup>. When novitiate Spirits are being introduced into a heavenly Society, there is opened to them by the Lord a way which leads to it; and, when they come thither, there appears a gate with a door at the side where are guards, who intromit him; and then others appear who receive and introduce him.

5 M. 4. When any man goes after death into the Spiritual World, which for the most part takes place on the third day . . . he appears to himself in a like life to that in which he had been in the world, and in a like house, chamber, and bed; in a like covering and clothing; and in a like company within the house; if he has been a King or Prince, in a like court; if a husbandman, in a like cottage . . . This happens to everyone after death . . . in order that death may not appear to be death, but a continuation of life; and in order that the last of natural life may become the first of spiritual life, and, from this, may progress to its goal, which must be either in heaven or in Hell. (5.) The reason such a fresh likeness of all things appears to the deceased, is that the mind remains the same with them . . . and as the mind is not solely in the head, but is also in the whole body, [the novitiate] has a like body . . . and as, after death, he is the same man, there exist like things according to the ideas of his mind which he possessed in the world when at home; but this lasts for some days only. . . (6.) When novitiate comers are in this first state in the Spiritual World, Angels come to them for the sake of wishing them a happy arrival, and at first they are exceedingly delighted from their conversation with them, because they know that they are then thinking no otherwise than that they are still living in the former world; and therefore they interrogate them as to what they think about the life after death; to which the strangers reply in conformity with their former ideas . . . (7.) The Angels (then) say, Welcome, we will make manifest to you a new thing . . . that every man lives a man after death in a body exactly as he had lived before. To these things the novitiate Spirits retort, That is impossible. Whence has he a body? Does it not lie dead in the grave with all things belonging to it? To these things the Angels merrily reply, We will demonstrate this to the eye. And they say, Are you not men in a perfect form? Look at yourselves, and feel at yourselves. And yet you have died out of the natural world. The reason you have not known this until now, is that the proximate state of life after death is exactly like the last state of life before death. On hearing these things the new guests are astounded, and exclaim from joy of heart, Thanks be to God that we are alive; and that death has not extirpated us! I have often heard novitiates instructed in this way concerning their posthumous life, and exhilarated by their resurrection.

Now. Nunc.

A. 6984. 'From now,' or from to-day (Ex.iv.10)= what is eternal; thus to eternity; because it involves the subsequent time. Refs.

T. 508<sup>3</sup>. Now it is allowable . . .

E. 899. 'Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord from now' (Rev.xiv.13)=their resurrection into eternal life . . . The reason it is said 'from now,' is that those are meant who have lived this life heretofore, and will live it henceforth. Ex.

Noxious. See HURT.

Nucleus. See KERNEL.

Number. See under MORE.

Number, A. Numerus.

Number, To. Numerare.

Numeral. Numeralis.

Numeration. Numeratio.

Numerous. Numerosus.

See ONE, TWO, THREE, etc., TWENTY, THIRTY, FORTY, etc., HUNDRED, THOUSAND, and MYRIAD.

A. 481. '130 years' (Gen.v.3)=the time before a new Church arose . . .

487<sup>2</sup>. The Most Ancients had their numbers, by which they signified various things of the Church, as the numbers 3, 7, 10, 12, and many which were compounded of these and others; and thus they comprehended the states of the Church; and therefore these numbers contain arcanæ . . . It was a computation of the states of the Church. The like occurs also in the Word passim, especially in the prophetic one. In the rites of the Jewish Church also there are numbers, of both times and measures . . . which everywhere signify holy things according to their application. . . In what follows . . . it shall be told what the simple numbers signify up to 12. Unless these are first known, what the composite numbers signify cannot be apprehended.

493. Whenever they are applied, by the numbers of the days and years, and also by the numbers of the measures, is signified something abstractedly from the times and measures, according to the signification of the number. Examps. . . Here the numbers are such as signify a something which is peculiar abstractedly from those things to which they are applied; and when they are abstracted, there are then the states which are signified by the numbers.

520. 'All the days of Enoch were 365 years' (Gen.v. 23)=that they were few.

575. 'The days of man shall be 120 years' (Gen.vi.3) =that he ought to have the remains of faith.

— Here in like manner there occur numbers of years, which no one can ever know the signification of, unless he knows what lies hidden in the single numbers from 1 to 12, and so on. Ex. . . But what the number 120 involves, is evident solely from 10 and 12, from the multiplication of which it is composed ; namely, that it =the remains of faith. Ex.

647. The numbers '300,' '50,' and '30' = remains, and, indeed, few. Those who are in the internal sense, as good Spirits and Angels, are outside of all those things which are terrestrial, corporeal, and merely mundane ; thus are outside all things which belong to numbers and measures ; and yet it is given them by the Lord to perceive the Word fully . . .

648. That the numbers and measures in the Word = celestial and spiritual things, may be manifestly evident from the measurement of the New Jerusalem and Temple in John and Ezekiel.

—<sup>2</sup>. Here, also, the numbers, regarded in themselves, signify nothing but the holy Celestial and Spiritual abstracted from the numbers. So all the numbers of the dimensions of the ark ; of the propitiatory ; of the golden table ; of the habitation ; of the altar ; and all the numbers and dimensions of the temple. III.

716. In the internal sense, there is nothing whatever which is from numbers ; as here ; for they who are in the internal sense, as Angels and angelic Spirits, do not even know what number is . . .

—<sup>e</sup>. From these things also it is manifestly evident that the numbers in the Word . . . never signify numbers.

730<sup>3</sup>. (A round number taken instead of the exact one.)

737. 'Noah was a son of 600 years' (Gen.vii.6)=his first state of temptation ; as is evident from the fact, that here, up to Heber, by the numbers, and by the ages of the years, and by the names, nothing else is signified than Things . . . That here '600 years'=the first state of temptation, may be evident from the numbers which dominate therein ; which are 10 and 6, twice multiplied into themselves. A greater or less number from the same [factors] changes nothing. 755.

813. '150' (Gen.vii.24)=the last and first terminus. . . (For) '15'=so few as to be scarcely any ; thus still more so the number 150, which is composed therefrom by multiplication into 10, which=remains. The multiplication of a few—as the multiplication of a half, a fourth, or a tenth—makes it still less, so that at last it becomes almost nothing, consequently the end or the last terminus. The same number occurs in the following chapter (viii.3), where it is said : 'the waters receded at the end of 150 days,' where it signifies the like.

—<sup>2</sup>. The numbers in the Word are to be understood in a sense entirely abstractedly from the sense of the letter. They are inserted only to connect together the historic series . . . Thus where '7' occurs, it=what is holy, quite abstractedly from the times and measures with which it is wont to be adjoined. For the Angels, who perceive the internal sense of the Word, know nothing of time and measure, still less of the number designated ; and yet they understand the Word fully when it is being read by man. And therefore when any number occurs anywhere, they can never have the idea of any number, but of the Thing signified by the number. So here, by this number, they understand the last terminus of the Most Ancient Church ; and, in the following chapter (ver.3), the first terminus of the Ancient, or new, Church.

849. '150 days'=a terminus . . . here, the terminus of the fluctuation, and of the new life.

893<sup>2</sup>. 'It came to pass in the 601st year' (Gen.viii.13) =the last terminus ; (for) the number 600 . . . =a beginning ; and, indeed, there, the beginning of temptation : its end is designated by the same number, a whole year having passed . . . and therefore it is added, 'in the first month, the first day of the month ;' by which is signified the first terminus. Ex.

901. No numbers in Heaven.

1429. That the numbers of the years of Abram, in the internal sense, =other things . . .

1709. '318 men' (Gen.xiv.14)=their quality, namely, that they are the holy things of combat. The number 18 involves this, as also the number 300 ; for these numbers are composed from 3 and 6 ; and '3'=what is holy, and '6,' combat.

1808. 'Number the stars' (Gen.xv.5)=the representation of goods and truths by a view of the constellations. 1809.

1847. '400 years' (ver.13)=the duration and state ; namely, of temptations ; (for) '400'=which number =the same as 40=the durations and states of temptations . . . In the literal sense these words have regard to the duration [or stay] of the sons of Israel in Egypt ; and that this was 430 years is evident from Ex.xii.40 ; although the duration was not so great from the coming of Jacob into Egypt, but from the sojourning of Abram there. The number 430 is said, because this number involves temptations, which they represented by their servitude in Egypt ; and also afterwards by the 40 years afflictions in the desert.

1856. Whether a number be greater or less, provided it be of the same stock, it involves the same. Examp.

1941. 'It shall not be numbered for multitude' (Gen.xvi.10)=multiplication beyond measure. Ex.

1963. From these three numbers (40, 6, and 10) is composed the number 80 and 6, which involves such things, and which thus signifies the state of the Lord as to the celestial goods acquired through the combats of temptations. For all the numbers in the Word = Things. Ex.

1988. 'Abram was a son of 90 years and 9 years' (Gen.xvii.1)=the time before the Lord fully conjoined the internal man with the rational ; as is evident from the signification of '9' when it precedes '10 ;' or, what is the same, '99' when it precedes '100 ;' for Abram, when Isaac was born to him, was 100 years of age . . . All numbers whatever, in the Word, = Things. Examp. 2106.

[A.1988]<sup>2</sup>. So is it with the number '99;' and that it signifies the time before the Lord fully conjoined the internal man with the rational is evident from the signification of '100 years.' (Continued under HUNDRED.)

2075. 'Shall Sarah, a daughter of 90 years, bear?' (ver.17)=that truth conjoined with good will do this . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. The number '9'=conjunction, and still more the number '90,' which is composed from 9 multiplied by 10; for '10'=remains through which is conjunction . . .

2227. 'Abraham in being shall be for a nation great and numerous' (Gen.xviii.18)=that from the Lord will be all good, and all the derivative truth . . . 'Numerous' is predicated of truth. —<sup>v</sup>.

2252. The numbers themselves; as, here '50;' and, in what follows, '45,' '40,' '30,' '20,' and '10,' by those who are in the internal sense, are never perceived as numbers; but as Things, or states. Refs.

—<sup>3</sup>. The Ancients also designated the states of their Church by numbers, and what the nature of their computation was, may be evident from the signification of the numbers in the places cited. They had the signification of the numbers from the representatives which come forth in the World of Spirits, where, when anything appears as numbered, it does not signify anything determined by the numbers; but the Thing, or state . . .

—<sup>4</sup>. For from the Ancients (the Israelites) had certain (or fixed) representative and significative numbers, which they observed, and which were also commanded in their rites; but most did not know what they signified.

2269. The simple numbers retain their signification even when they are multiplied; and thus the greater numbers have a signification like that of the less. Examp.

2575<sup>4</sup>. Yet by the numbers, equally as by the names, in the Word, are signified Things. Refs.

2625<sup>3</sup>. By the numbers, in the Word, are not signified numbers; but certain states in special.

2905. '100 years and 20 years and 7 years' (Gen. xxiii.1)=their fullness. Ex.

2959. 'Land of 400 shekels of silver' (ver.15)=the price of redemption by truth. . . Because '400'=vastation.

—. As '400,' when predicated of time, as '400 years,'=the duration and state of vastation, so when '400' is predicated of shekels, it=the price of redemption.

—<sup>2</sup>. That '400 years'=the duration and state of vastation. III.

— (Why Israel was said to be 400 years in Egypt.)

2966<sup>e</sup>. With those who believe all good and all truth to be from the Lord, the price of redemption is signified by '40,' and in a higher degree by '400.'

3104<sup>e</sup>. 'Mene,' or 'He has numbered,' is predicated of truth . . .

3239<sup>e</sup>. The half of a number involves the same as the whole one; for multiplication and division, provided there is what is like therein, do not vary the Thing itself as to what is essential.

3252. '100 years and 70 years and 5 years' (Gen.xxv.7)=the things which are of its state. Ex.

—<sup>e</sup>. For in number, as number, there is nothing holy.

3275. '100 years and 30 years and 7 years' (ver.17)=the things which are of that state.

3325<sup>e</sup>. '144' (Rev.xiv.1), or 12 times 12,=those who are in the faith of charity.

3812<sup>7</sup>. 'I can number all my bones' (Ps.xxii.17)=to want to dissipate Divine truths by reasonings and falsities.

3858<sup>3</sup>. '12'=all things in one complex; in like manner '144;' for this is 12 times 12. 6419<sup>4</sup>.

3960<sup>e</sup>. Half a number, and the double of it, are of the same signification in the Word, when it treats concerning the same Thing.

4177. For a number doubled, and multiplied into itself, does not take away the signification.

4248. 'And 400 men with him' (Gen.xxxii.6)=the state of good now, that it may take the first place; (for) '400,' properly, =temptations and their duration. 4341.

4264. All the numbers in the Word=Things . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. Sometimes the speech of the Angels, when it has fallen down into the World of Spirits, has fallen into various numbers; and where numbers are read in the Word, by the Angels there are understood Things; for number never penetrates into Heaven; for numbers are of measure and space, and also of time; and these are of the world and of nature, to which in the Heavens correspond states and the changes of states. The Most Ancients . . . knew what was signified by the single numbers, and also by the composite ones; and hence the signification of them was derived to their descendants.

4495. That the numbers 3, 7, and 12 involve arcana, cannot but be evident to everyone who searches into the Word as to its interiors; and if there is an arcanum in these numbers, it follows that there is in the rest of the numbers which are in the Word; for the Word is holy everywhere.

—<sup>2</sup>. Sometimes, when I have been speaking with the Angels, numbers have been seen, as it were written before the eyes, like those which are seen on paper in clear day; and it was seen that the Things themselves which were being spoken of fall into such numbers; from which experience also it has been given to know that every number in the Word contains some arcanum. III.

—. The number 666 is from a ternary and sextary number.

4518. 'I am mortals of number' (Gen.xxxiv.30)=easily; (for these words)=few; but when quality is meant instead of quantity . . . there is signified easily . . .

4617. '100 years and 80 years' (Gen.xxxv.28)=the quality of the state; (for) all the numbers in the Word

= Things (Refs.); thus '100 years and 80 years' = the quality of the Thing, or the quality of the state, which is being treated of. '100' = a full state; and '80' = temptations; here, through temptations; besides many things which cannot be known; for the numbers have their signification from the more simple numbers . . . as this number from 12 and 15, and also from others still more simple.

4670. That all the numbers in the Word = Things and states. Refs.

—<sup>2</sup>. It appears, indeed, as if numbers of years . . . = nothing else, because in these there is something more historical than in the other numbers; but still that these also involve Things and states, may be evident from . . .

5265<sup>2</sup>. That '7' = holy things, is from the signification of numbers in the World of Spirits. Every number there involves some Thing. There have sometimes appeared to my sight numbers, simple and compound, once also in a long series, and I wondered what they signified, and it was said that they came forth from angelic speech; and that Things also are sometimes wont to be expressed by numbers; which numbers do not appear in Heaven, but in the World of Spirits, where such things are presented to the sight. This was known to the Most Ancients, who were celestial men, and spoke with Angels, and hence they formed an ecclesiastical computation by numbers, by which they expressed universally those things, which by words they expressed singularly. But what each number had involved did not remain with their posterity, solely what was signified by the simple numbers, namely, 2, 3, 6, 7, 8, 12, and thence 24, 72, and 77; especially that by 7 was signified what is most holy, namely, in the supreme sense, the Divine Itself; and, in the representative sense, the Celestial of love. Hence it is that the state of the celestial man is signified by 'the 7th day.'

—<sup>3</sup>. That numbers = Things, is manifestly evident from very many numbers in the Word. Refs.

—<sup>c</sup>. The number 144 is from 12 multiplied into itself; and from these comes the number 72.

5291. The half and the double, as to the numbers in the Word, involve what is like; as 20 the like with 10; and 4 the like with 2; 6 with 3; 24 with 12, and so on; and the like also by numbers still further multiplied; as 100 and also 1000, with 10; 72, and also 144, the like with 12. What, therefore, the compound numbers involve, can be known from the simple numbers from which and with which they are multiplied. What, also, the numbers more simple involve, can be known from the whole numbers; as what 5 involves, from 10; and what 2½ from 5; and so on. In general, it is to be known that numbers multiplied involve the like, but more fully; and that numbers divided involve the like, but not so full.

—<sup>2</sup>. '5' has a double signification. . . It = a little, from its relation to those numbers which = much, namely, 1000, and 100, and thus also 10, which, from them, also = much; . . . That '5' = remains, is when it relates to '10,' and '10' = remains.

—<sup>3</sup>. What the ideas are, or what the Things are, to which numbers correspond, can indeed be known; but whence is this correspondence, is as yet hidden; as whence is the correspondence of 12 with all things of faith; and the correspondence of 7 with holy things; and also the correspondence of 10 and also of 5, with the goods and truths stored up in the interior man by the Lord, and so on; but still it is enough to know that there is a correspondence, and that from this correspondence all the numbers in the Word signify something in the Spiritual World, consequently that the Divine inspired even into these lies stored up therein. Examps.

—<sup>10</sup>. The brazen sea was 10 ells from lip to lip, and 5 ells in height, and 30 ells in circumference, in order that holy things might be signified both by the numbers '10' and '5,' and by '30,' which number of the circumference does not indeed answer geometrically to the diameter, but still it spiritually involves that which is signified by the compass of that vessel.

—<sup>11</sup>. That all numbers = Things, in the Spiritual World, is manifestly evident from the numbers in Ezek. . .

5346. 'Till he ceased to number it, because there was no number' (Gen. xli. 49) = of a quality in which is the Celestial from the Divine; (for) truth in which is the Celestial from the Divine, is indefinite, thus without number. The Lord alone had such truth when He was in the world . . .

5708. For as numbers multiplied signify the like with their simple numbers, so numbers divided [signify the like with] those multiplied; as 5 with 10, and also with 20, and likewise with 100, and with 1000, and so on.

—<sup>2</sup>. 5 measures were given to Benjamin . . . on account of the signification of the Thing in the internal sense; because 10 measures could not be given; for these would have been exceedingly superfluous.

— The Ancients also knew, by traditions from the Most Ancient Church, what some numbers signified; and therefore they used those numbers when anything occurred of such a quality . . .

5955. 'To Benjamin he gave 300 of silver' (Gen. xlv. 22) = that the medium had what is full of truth from good. . . '300' = what is full. . . The reason '300' = what is full, is that it arises from 3 and from 100 by multiplication; and '3' = what is full, and '100' = much; for what the compound numbers involve, is evident from the simple ones from which they are. '300,' when mentioned elsewhere in the Word, also involves the like. Ill.

6096. '30 and 100 years' (Gen. xlvii. 9) = the state and the quality; (for) all the numbers in the Word = Things; thus the state and quality of the Thing which is being treated of; and therefore this number in special = the state and quality of the life which had been in Jacob hitherto . . .

6175. 'The days of Jacob, the years of his life, were 7 years and 40 and 100 years' (Gen. xlvii. 28) = the general state and its quality, as may be evident if the numbers '7,' '40,' and '100' are evolved. Refs. But the numbers compounded thus cannot be easily explicated; for they contain more things than can be reduced into a sum [total], and be expressed to the apprehension. These numbers contain in general the entire state of the Thing represented by Jacob, and the quality of it. The Angels see these things in one complex, merely from this number; for all the numbers in the Word fall, with them, into the ideas of Things; as also has been evident from the fact, that sometimes numbers in a long series have been seen by me, and it was then said by the Angels, that they involved in a series the Things about which they had spoken among themselves. Hence also the Most Ancients . . . had a computation, also constant, from numbers, into which were introduced heavenly things not so well comprehensible in ideas of the natural mind. But after their times these things perished together with the perception of heavenly things, and there remained only the Knowledge of what was signified in general by the simple numbers; as 3, 6, 7, 12, but not so [well] what the compound numbers signified . . .

[A.] 6582. 'Joseph lived 110 years' (Gen.i.22)=the state and quality . . . of the Thing; (that is) the state and quality of the life of scientifics from the Internal. 6594.

6648. 'They were multiplied and became numerous exceeding exceedingly' (Ex.i.7)=that they increased the most as to truths from good. . . 'They became numerous'=a further derivation; thus an increase of truth continually . . .

—e. The Things of wisdom are infinite in number.

6654. 'The people of the sons of Israel is many and numerous above us' (Ex.i.9)=that the truths of the Church prevail over alienated scientifics. . . 'Numerous' is predicated of truth.

7284<sup>e</sup>. All numbers=Things, and indeed the state and quality. Refs.

7285. 'Aaron was a son of 83 years' (Ex.vii.7)=the state and quality of doctrine. . . But the state and quality in special cannot be known, except from the reduction of this number into its simple numbers, and then from the application to those with whom is the doctrine.

7336. 'In the number of the souls, everyone to the mouth of his eating, ye shall number upon the small cattle' (Ex.xii.4)=thus the impletion of good for innocence from so many truths of good, according to its appropriation; (for) 'the number of the souls'=so many truths of good; for 'number,' in the Word, is predicated of truth . . .

7900. For the simple and the compound numbers involve the like.

7973. 'As it were 600,000 of foot men' (Ex.xii.37)=all things of the truth and good of faith in one complex. (For) the number 600,000=all things of faith in one complex; for this number arises from 6 and also from 12; and '12'=all things of faith and charity . . . (and) a greater and a lesser number, or one multiplied and divided, involves what is similar with the simple numbers from which it is. This is manifestly evident from the number 12. This number, whether divided into 6, or multiplied into 72, or into 144—that is, 12 into 12—or into 12,000, or into 144,000,=the like. Ill.

7984. '30 years and 400 years' (ver.40)=the quality and state of them; (for) '30'=a full state of remains, because this number arises from 3 and 10 multiplied together, and by '3' is signified a full state, and by '10' remains; and '400'=the duration of vastation, and the derivative conjunction of good and truth. That all numbers=Things and states; and a composite number the like with the simple ones from which it is composed. Ref.

8148. 'He took 600 chosen chariots' (Ex.xiv.7)=all and each of the doctrinals of falsity which are of faith separated in their order; (for) the number '600'=each and all things of the truth and good of faith in one complex . . .

8400<sup>e</sup>. That all the numbers in the Word=Things. Refs.

8469. 'The number of your souls' (Ex.xvi.16)=a quantity [sufficient] for all in the society. Ex.

8472. 'The numerous and the few' (ver.17)=the difference of power. Ex. —e. 8474.

8715. That princes were ordained over 1000, over 100, and over 10, represented, abstractedly from all number, many things in the first, second, and third degree, in like manner as in the Word elsewhere. Ill.

—e. For the lesser numbers=the like with the greater ones multiplied by a like number. Refs.

8988<sup>4</sup>. '144'=the like as '12'; for 144 is a number composed from 12 multiplied into 12; (and) by these numbers are signified all truths in the complex.

9011<sup>e</sup>. 'A number that a child may describe' (Is. x.19)=few.

9198<sup>4</sup>. 'That 3 years and 6 months' (Luke iv.25)=to the full, is evident from the signification of '1260 days' in Rev.xi.3; xii.6, which days make 3 years and 6 months, and which=to the full, or even to the end. In like manner from the signification of '3 days and a half' (Rev.xi.9,10); and also from the signification of 'time, and times, and half a time' (Rev.xii.14; Dan. xii.7), which=to the full, or even to the end.

9326. 'The number of thy days I will fulfil' (Ex.xxiii.26)=even to a full state. . . 'To fulfil the number'=to the full.

9600. For numbers multiplied=the like with the simple ones from which they are.

9603<sup>2</sup>. '12,000' (Rev.xxi.)=all truths and goods in the complex; in like manner '144' . . . H.197.

10127<sup>2</sup>. It is to be known that all numbers in the Word=Things, which is very well known in the other life, where sometimes papers are let down from Heaven to the Spirits beneath full of numbers, and those of the Spirits who receive influx from the Lord know thence the things which are signified, in a continual series, as if they were written with letters . . . Some of the Most Ancients, also, who as to their interiors were in consort with the Angels, involved in numbers the Things of their Church, and heavenly arcana, and stored them up as a memorial for themselves.

10217. 'As to the numbered of them' (Ex.xxx.12)=as to ordination and disposition; (for) 'to number,' when said concerning all things of the Church, which are the truths and goods of faith and love,=the ordination and disposition of them . . . 'To number'=this, because to number involves a survey, and that which is surveyed by the Lord, is also ordained and disposed . . . Ill.

—<sup>2</sup>. 'To number,' in these passages, =to ordinate and dispose. Ex.

—<sup>3</sup>. (From this) it may be evident why David was not allowed to number the people . . . because it belongs to the Lord alone to ordinate and dispose the truths and goods of faith and love with everyone in the Church and in Heaven . . .

—<sup>5</sup>. 'To number days' (Ps.xc.12)=to ordinate and dispose states of life; and the days are said to be 'numbered' when they are ordained and disposed; thus when they are completed—finiti. Ill.

—'. 'Numbered' (Dan.v.25)=what is completed—absolutum; as when a line is drawn under a number on finishing a calculation.

—<sup>6</sup>. The reason why 'to number'=to ordinate and dispose, is that by 'number' is signified the quality of a Thing and of a state; and the quality is determined by the number adjoined; hence 'to number'=to qualify; and the qualification of a Thing in spiritual things is effected by ordination and disposition by the Lord. Ill.

—<sup>8</sup>. 'To compute the number of the beast' (Rev. xiii.18)=to explore and know these falsified truths of the Church; 'the number of a man'=the Thing and the state of that Church; '666'=its quality as to all truths falsified from evil, and also the profanation of what is holy, and likewise the end . . . for the number '6'=the same as the number '12,' because it is the half of it; and '12'=all the truths and goods of the Church in the complex; and hence, in the opposite sense, all evils and falsities in the complex. The triplication of the sextary number involves also the end; and the end is when truth has been completely profaned.

—<sup>9</sup>. From these things it is manifestly evident that numbers in the Word involve Things and states, and signify the quality according to the determined numbers. Ill.

10218. 'And they shall give everyone the expiation of his soul in numbering them' (Ex.xxx.12)=purification or deliverance from evil through the acknowledgment and faith that all the truths and goods of faith and love, and their ordination and disposition, are from the Lord, and nothing from man. Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. It was prohibited to number the sons of Israel, because 'to number'=to ordinate and dispose, and by the sons of Israel, and by the tribes into which they were distinguished, were signified all the truths and goods of faith and love in the complex; and because the ordination and disposition of these was of the Lord alone, and not of man, therefore to number them was a prevarication, such as there is with those who claim to themselves the truths which are of faith and the goods which are of love, and the ordination and disposition of them. . . These are such as justify themselves by this: that they ascribe to themselves for merit all things of faith and love, and consequently believe that they merit Heaven from faith and from works from self. This evil was involved in the numbering of the people by David . . . 10219<sup>4</sup>.

—<sup>3</sup>. In order, therefore, that they might be delivered from sin in numbering the sons of Israel, the half of a shekel was given for expiation . . . 10219.

10219<sup>6</sup>. What is full was signified also by 'the 70,000 men' who died.

10225. The first state of man is from birth to the fifth year of his age: this state is a state of ignorance, and of innocence in ignorance, and is called infancy. The second state is from the fifth year of age up to the twentieth; this state is a state of instruction and of knowledge, and is called childhood. The third state is from the twentieth year of age to the sixtieth, which state is a state of intelligence, and is called adolescence, young manhood, and manhood. The fourth and last state is from the sixtieth year of age and upwards, which state is a state of wisdom, and of innocence in wisdom. (—<sup>2</sup>.) These successive states of the life of man are signified by the numbers of the years of the age, '5,' '20,' and '60,' in . . . Lev.xxvii.2-7. (These four states fully ex.)

10235<sup>7</sup>. The diameter (of the brazen sea) of '10 cubits'=what is full; and the circumference of '30 cubits'=a plenary complex; 'the 200 of baths'=the conjunction of good and truth; thus purification and regeneration . . . '2000'=the same as '2'; for multiplied numbers=the like with the simple ones from which they are; and '2'=conjunction.

10253. '500' (Ex.xxx.23)=what is full. . . The reason '500'=what is full, is because this number is composed from 5 and 10 multiplied together twice; or from 5 times 100; and by '5' is signified much, in like manner as by '10,' and by '100'; and hence by '500' is signified what is full.

—<sup>2</sup>. That numbers=Things, is manifestly evident in Ezekiel xl.-xlviii.

—<sup>3</sup>. That '500'=the whole, from one end to the other, thus what is full, is evident in Ezekiel there. Ill. From these things it is evident that '500'=the whole in the complex, or everything holy from one end to the other; thus what is full . . .

—<sup>4</sup>. That '500'=much, and its tenth part, or '50,' =somewhat, relatively, is evident from the Lord's words to Simon in Luke vii.41-end.

10255. 'Half thereof 50 and 200' (Ex.xxx.23)=as much as is correspondent; (for) a number, the half of a former one, =something, and as much as is sufficient, or as much as is for use, thus also as much as is correspondent. Hence it is that '50 and 200,' being the half of the former number 500, =as much as is correspondent. For example, when '10'=all, its half, or '5,' =some; when '10'=what is full, '5,' =as much as is sufficient; but when '10'=much, '5,' =something . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. Whether a number be greater or less, is of no consequence, because the greater numbers=the like with the lesser ones from which they are.

—'. From these things it is evident that this number, which is the half of the former one, does not =the half of the perception of interior truth relatively to the perception of exterior truth; but as much as is correspondent; for Things in the Heavens are not measured and numbered as are Things on earth; because in the Heavens there are not spaces, nor times, but in place of them states, which are perceived as to quality and quantity, without respect to any numeration; for numeration and mensuration involve such things as are of space and of time . . .

[A.] 10259. '500' (ver. 24)=what is full. The reason why '500 in the shekel of holiness' were taken of myrrh, and 500 of cassia, but only 50 and 200 of aromatic cinnamon and aromatic calamus, was that 'myrrh'=sensuous truth, which is the ultimate truth in order; and 'cassia,' the truth which proceeds immediately from good, which is inmost truth; whereas 'aromatic cinnamon,' and 'aromatic calamus,'=the interior truths, which are middle; and of the last and the inmost there must be what is full, but of middle things as much as is correspondent; for middle things must hold themselves correspondently to what is first and last.

10262<sup>5</sup>. In the Spiritual Kingdom there correspond the numbers '12,' '6,' and '3,' because by these numbers are signified all things; and, when they are predicated of truths and goods, all things of truth and good in the complex . . . The reason these numbers involve like things, is that the greater numbers=the like with the simple ones from which they come forth by multiplication. Refs.

10492. 'There fell in the people in that day to 3000 of men' (Ex. xxii. 28)=the plenary closing up of the Internal. . . '3000'=what is plenary; for by '3' is signified what is full and complete; in like manner by '3000'; because the greater numbers=the like with the lesser ones from which they come forth by multiplication.

10624. For in the Word all numbers=Things; and some numbers pertain to the spiritual class, and some to the celestial class. The numbers 3, 6, and 12, pertain to the spiritual class; and the numbers 2, 4, and 8, to the celestial class. The numbers which are of the spiritual class are predicated of truths or falsities; those of the celestial class, of goods or evils . . .

10652<sup>o</sup>. '24,000' (Num. xxv. 9)=all truths and goods of truth in the complex, in like manner as '12,000.'

H. 73<sup>2</sup>. '144'=all truths and goods in the complex. E. 629<sup>7</sup>.

263. I have seen writings from Heaven of mere numbers, written in order and in a series, just as in writings of letters and words; and I have been instructed that this writing is from the Inmost Heaven; and that their celestial writing . . . is presented in numbers with the Angels of a lower Heaven when the thought from it flows down; and that this numeral writing in like manner involves arcana, some of which cannot be comprehended in thought, nor expressed in words. For all numbers correspond, and according to the correspondence signify, equally as words; yet with this difference: that numbers involve generals, and words singulars; and, as one general involves innumerable singulars, hence it is that numeral writing involves more arcana than literal. From these things it has been evident to me, that the numbers in the Word signify Things equally as do the words there . . . In that writing in Heaven there is always prefixed the number on which those which follow in the series depend, as on their subject; for that number is as it were the index of the Thing which is being treated of, and from which is the determination of the following numbers to the Thing in special.

— (The simple and the compound numbers enum.)

379<sup>o</sup>. The beatitudes of love truly conjugal can be enumerated to many thousands, of which not even one is known to man . . .

J. 41<sup>o</sup>. The books of the Old Testament . . . have been conserved entire even to a jot . . . by the care of many who have numbered the most singular things there.

S. 43<sup>2</sup>. By the number '144' are signified all the truths and goods of the Church from doctrine from the sense of the letter of the Word; in like manner as by '12.'

71<sup>o</sup>. It is the like with numbers: neither are these in the Word which is in Heaven; but instead of them are the Things to which the numbers which are in our Word correspond.

F. 60<sup>o</sup>. 'His number is 666'=all the truth of the Word falsified.

P. 244. That David numbered the people . . . from which so many thousands of men perished . . . Ex.

336. Infinite in number . . .

R. 10. That numbers=Things, or rather that they are like certain adjectives to substantives, contributing some quality to the Things, is because number in itself is natural; for natural things are determined by numbers; but spiritual things by Things and their states; and therefore he who does not know the signification of numbers in the Word, and especially in the Apocalypse, cannot know many arcana which are contained therein.

287. 'The number of them was myriads of myriads, and thousands of thousands' (Rev. v. 11)=all in truths and in goods. By a number in the natural sense is meant that which has relation to measure or weight; but by a number in the spiritual sense, that which has relation to quality . . . and 'a myriad' is predicated of truths, and 'a thousand,' of goods. The reason . . . is that a myriad is the greater number, and a thousand the less; and truths are manifold, but goods simple . . . Ill.

313<sup>2</sup>. By 'Mene,' or 'to number,' is signified to know the quality of it as to truth.

348. 'I heard the number of the sealed, 144,000' (Rev. vii. 4)=all who acknowledge the Lord as the God of Heaven and earth, and are in the truths of doctrine from the good of love from Him through the Word. Ex. By the number '144,000' are meant all these; for the like is signified by this number as by '12'; for it arises from the multiplication of 12 into 12, and then from multiplication by 100 and by 1000; and any number whatever, multiplied into itself, and then by 10, 100, or 1000,=the like with the number from which it is; thus the number 144,000, the like with 144; and this the like with 12, because 12 into 12 make the number 144. In like manner the 12,000 sealed from each tribe, multiplied into 12, makes 144,000. (Continued under TWELVE.)

—<sup>2</sup>. That all numbers=the adjunctives of Things, determining their quality or quantity, may be manifestly evident from the numbers in the Apocalypse . . .

363. 'A great multitude which no one could number' (ver.9)=all the rest . . . whose quality no one knows except the Lord alone.

— 'To number,' in the spiritual sense, =to Know the quality . . . 364, Ex. and Ill.

427<sup>2</sup>. Times . . . =state; and the numbers determine its quality.

448. 'I heard the number of them' (Rev.ix.16)=the quality of them perceived . . . By 'number' is signified the quality of the Thing and state.

491. By the '1260 days' (Rev.xi.3) is signified to the end and the beginning; that is, to the end of the former Church, and thus to the beginning of the New one . . . Because by this number the like is signified as by 3: for the number 1260, reduced into years, makes three years and a half; and by '3½' is signified the end and the beginning. 547. E.636. 732.

608. 'Let him that hath intelligence compute the number of the beast' (Rev.xiii.18)=that he who is in illustration from the Lord can know the quality of the confirmations of that doctrine . . . 'To compute the number'=to Know the quality: by 'number' is signified the quality . . . And as the quality which is signified by 'the number,' is the quality as to truth . . . E.845.

609. 'For it is the number of a man' (id.)=the quality of the Word and thence of the Church.

610. 'His number is 666' (id.)=this quality—that all the truth of the Word has been falsified by them. . . . By '666' is signified all the truth of good; and, as this is said concerning the Word, there is signified all the truth of good in the Word, here, falsified, because it is the number of the beast. The reason this is signified, is that '6'=the like as 3 multiplied into 2; and '3'=full and all, and is predicated of truths; and '2'=the marriage of good and truth. And as 6 is composed of these two numbers multiplied into each other, it therefore=all the truth of good in the Word; here, falsified. The reason the number 666 is said, is that 6 is tripled in this number; and triplication completes. The multiplication by 100, whence comes the 600; and by 10, whence comes the 60, changes nothing. See 348.

612. 'With Him 144,000' (Rev.xiv.1)=all those who acknowledge the Lord alone as the God of Heaven and earth, and are in truths of doctrine from the good of love from Him through the Word.

613. For by 'the 144,000 sealed out of the 12 tribes of Israel,' are meant the Angels of the higher Heavens, who are all in the good of celestial love.

618. 'No one could learn that song but the 144,000' (ver.3)=that no others . . . could understand . . . that the Lord alone is the God of Heaven and earth, than those who have been received by the Lord into this New Heaven. . . . By 'the 144,000' are meant those who acknowledge the Lord alone as the God of Heaven and earth.

654. 'For 1600 furlongs' (ver.20)=merely falsities of evil. . . By '1600' are signified evils in the whole complex. For by '1600' is signified the same as by '16'; and the same by '16' as by '4'; because 16 arises from 4 multiplied into itself: and 4 is said concerning good, and concerning the conjunction of good and truth; and thence, in the opposite sense, concerning evil and concerning the conjunction of evil and falsity, as here. And as the multiplication of a number by 100 does not take away the signification, but exalts it, hence by '1600 furlongs' is signified the mere falsity of evil. That all the numbers in the Word=Things. Ref. And that a number=the quality of the Thing. Refs.

660. 'The number of (the beast's) name' (Rev.xv.2)=the falsification of the Word. (=the like thereof as to love and faith. E.933.)

738. For the numbers in the Apocalypse, and, in general, in the Word,=the quality of the Things with which they are coupled; they are like certain adjectives coupled to substantives; or like certain predicates adjoined to subjects . . . Here, therefore, '5'=all the rest, because '7'=all the holy things of the Word; and it follows 'one is' and 'another will come'; thus that there are two out of all which remained. Hence it is evident that by '5 have fallen' is signified that all the rest have been destroyed.

842. 'And bound him 1000 years' (Rev.xx.2)=that . . . there should be no communication with them for a while or for some time. . . The reason why by '1000 years' is not meant 1000 years, but for a while or for some time, is that 1000, without other numbers added, signifies this in the Spiritual World. He who believes that '1000 years'=1000 years, does not know that all the numbers in the Word=Things, and so may be mistaken; especially in the Apocalypse, concerning the sense of the Things where numbers occur; as 5, 7, 10, 12, 144, 666, 1200, 1600, 12,000, 144,000, and many others: in the latter of which numbers 1000=only something qualifying—adjectivum; and when 1000 is employed to designate times, it=somewhat more; but where it is mentioned alone, as here, it=a while, or for some time. That it is so has been told me from Heaven; where, in the Word which is there, no number is read, but the Thing instead of the number; and instead of '1000,' 'a while.'

860. 'The number of whom is as the sand of the sea' (ver.8)=the multitude of such. Ex.

907. 'He measured the city with the reed unto 12,000 furlongs' (Rev.xxi.16)=the quality of that Church from doctrine . . . By '12,000 furlongs' are signified all the goods and truths of that Church. '12,000'=the like things with '12'; and '12'=all goods and truths, and is said concerning the Church. Ref.

909. 'He measured the wall of it, 144 cubits' (ver.17)= . . . the quality of the Word in that Church, that from it are all her truths and goods.

D. 765. By vision there was shown me 57, or 1657. The numbers were written before the eyes; but what they signify I do not fully know.

906. A certain Angel represented . . . how many genera of felicities there are in the interior Heaven . . . which being enumerated . . . within the first 4 or 6 minutes, were in number 468, or almost 500. Hence, I suppose [the signification of] the number 500.

[D.] 2690. A vision concerning the number of certain years . . . When I was in bed, with closed eyes, there was seen clearly as in light, and more so, before the eyes, and indeed at a distance from the right eye, a little upwards, at first the number of the years 1-48; and, when this number disappeared, at a greater distance, the numbers 1-53, 1-94: the numbers between the 1 and the 48, and also between the 1 and the 53, and the 1 and the 94, were not observed . . .

3935. When I took away the numbers by which I had designated the things extracted . . . they complained that thus they would not have anything which they could think. I supposed that such was a foot to them . . .

5571. Concerning numbers in Heaven.—Sometimes numbers appear; a paper filled with them; and also on the walls, which=such things as the celestials are thinking; but scarcely anyone can know them except those who are from such a Heaven. When the numbers are simple, they then signify according to those things which are described in the Arcana Coelestia; as 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, etc. up to 12; but when they are compound, they have another sense; as 358, 90356: these=God be with thee, and each number something . . . These numbers determine the meanings into such a series. Those who are from that Kingdom understand at once, and this without information, as it were from themselves. Every idea has its own number. In general, the even numbers correspond to good; as 2, 4, 8: and the odd numbers to truth; as 3, 9.

5584. Hence what all the numbers signify comes from the Celestial Kingdom . . . Hence the numbers in the Word; as 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, to 12, and so on. I have seen writings from numbers alone sent thence. But the numbers are differently written there . . .

5604. In the Word (in Heaven) there are not names, nor numbers, but in their place Things.

5621. Why the Jews were impelled to number all the several letters.

D. M. 4830. (A writing seen in which numbers were intermingled.)

E. 336. Number=quantity and quality; quantity in the natural sense, and quality in the spiritual sense; the number applied determines them. But still by all the numbers in the Word is signified something of the Thing . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. For numbers multiplied by a like number=the like with the simple numbers by which they have been multiplied.

—Moreover, when two multiplied numbers, the one greater and the other less, which=the like, are mentioned together; as when 10 and 100, or 100 and 1000, then the less is said of goods, and the greater of truths. The reason is that each good consists of many truths . . .

373<sup>3</sup>. 'Numbered, numbered' ('Mene, mene')=exploration as to good and as to truth. 453<sup>4</sup>.

384<sup>2</sup>. When the discourse with the Angels has been concerning the conjunction of good and truth, or of love and faith, and that discourse has been determined into numbers, there has gone out the number 4, sometimes also the number 2, or the number 8, or the number 16, because these numbers=like things; for numbers multiplied and divided into themselves=like things with the numbers by which they have been multiplied or divided.

386<sup>10</sup>. (David was punished for numbering the people because) the people of Israel represented . . . the Church as to all its truths and goods; and 'to number'=to know its quality, and then, according thereto, to ordinate and dispose those truths and goods; and no one can know and do this except the Lord; and the man who does it, deprives himself of all good and truth and spiritual life . . . 453<sup>2</sup>.

429. 'I heard the number of the sealed'=the quality of those who are in good, and who are separated from the evil. 'The number'=the quality of the Thing treated of.

—<sup>2</sup>. By number and measure, in the spiritual sense of the Word, is meant the quality of the Thing which is being treated of; the quality itself is determined by the numbers which are expressed . . . (for) spiritual things are not numbered or measured; but still they fall into numbers and measures when they fall out of the Spiritual World . . . into the natural world . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. That the spiritual things of Heaven, such as are those which the Angels are thinking and speaking, fall also into numbers, has often been shown me. They have spoken among themselves, and their speech has been determined into mere numbers seen upon a paper; and they have afterwards said that their speech had been determined into the numbers; and that those numbers, in a series, contained all the things which they had spoken. I have also been instructed what they signified . . .

430. '144,000'=all things and all persons, and is predicated of truths from good. Ex. —<sup>4</sup>, Ex.

—<sup>2</sup>. There are simple numbers which are more significative than the rest, and from which the greater numbers derive their signification; namely, the numbers 2, 3, 5, and 7. 2=union, and is said of good; 3=full, and is said of truths; 5=much, and something; and 7=what is holy. From the number 2 arise the numbers 4, 8, 16, 400, 800, 1600, 4000, 8000, 16,000; which numbers=the like with 2, because they arise from the simple number by multiplication into itself and by multiplication with 10. From the number 3 arise 6, 12, 24, 72, 144, 1440, 144,000, which numbers also=the like things with 3, because they arise from this simple number by multiplication. From the number 5 arise 10, 50, 100, 1000, 10,000, 100,000, which numbers also=the like with 5, because they arise therefrom by multiplication. From the number 7 arise 14, 70, 700, 7000, 70,000, which numbers also=the like with 7, because they arise from it.

—<sup>4</sup>. The like is also signified by the number 144,000; for a greater or lesser number, provided it is from a like origin, has a like signification; for a greater number is employed when there will be a greater multitude, or when it embraces many genera together; as 144,000, which embraces all the genera of truth from good, which are signified by the 12,000 sealed from each tribe; and as the measure of the wall, which is said to be '144 cubits,' because it includes both the gates and the foundations, which are 12 in number.

—<sup>15</sup>. '5000 men, besides women and children' (Matt. xiv. 21)=all who are of the Church in truths from good; 'men' those who are in truths; 'women and children,' those who are in goods.

433. '12,000'=all men and all things.

434<sup>14</sup>. 'Number' (Deut. xxxiii. 6)=a little and a few.

438<sup>7</sup>. '500 and 4000' (Ezek. xlviii. 34)=all truths from good; and '18,000'=all truths of doctrine girding and guarding.

453. 'Which no one could number' (Rev. vii. 9)=that the quality and quantity of the good and truth with them the Lord alone knows. 'Number'=the quality of the Thing; and hence 'to number'=to know the quality of the Thing . . .

—<sup>3</sup>. 'To number' (Ex. xxx. 12)=to know their quality, or the quality of the Church with them, and to ordinate and dispose according thereto . . .

—<sup>4</sup>. 'Numbered' (Is. xxxviii. 10)=explored and concluded.

—<sup>5</sup>. That 'to number,' and 'to be numbered,' have a different signification in the spiritual sense of the Word . . . may be evident from the fact that in Heaven with the Angels there are not numbers and measures in their spiritual idea; that is, that they do not think from numeration or mensuration; but from the quality of the Thing; which thought of theirs falls into numbers and measures when it falls down from thence into the natural sphere . . .

—<sup>6</sup>. That 'to number,' in the Word, =to know the quality of a Thing, and to ordinate and dispose according thereto. Ill.

—<sup>10</sup>. 'To number the towers (of Zion)' (Ps. xlviii. 12)=to ponder on the higher or more interior truths which are of that Church; 'to number'=to see and ponder on their quality.

—<sup>12</sup>. That 'to number' also=to dispose evilly, consequently to destroy by means of falsifications. Ill.

—<sup>13</sup>. From these things it may be evident what is signified by 'to number days,' 'steps,' and 'hairs.' Ill. . . . By 'to number,' here, is signified to know the quality from the least to the greatest, and according thereto to ordinate and dispose; that is, to provide.

506<sup>2</sup>. Numbers multiplied into themselves, and divided by themselves, =like things with the integers from which they are.

532. As all the numbers in the Word=Things and states, and the compound numbers derive their significations from the simple numbers of which they are compounded; and as the simple numbers are especially 2, 3, 5, 7, it is important to show what these numbers in the Word signify . . .

—<sup>6</sup>. From the simple number 3 many compound numbers derive their significations; as 6, 9, 12, 60, 72, which from that=all truths and goods in the complex; in like manner the numbers 30, 300, 3000 . . .

556<sup>4</sup>. 'No number' (Joel i. 6) is predicated of the power of falsity.

574. 'I heard the number of them' (Rev. ix. 16)=their quality perceived. . . 'The number'=the quality of the Thing which is being treated of . . .

633<sup>6</sup>. The vastation of the Church with the sons of Jacob by the 400 years of servitude in Egypt. Sig. By '400' the like is signified as by '40'; as the like is signified by '1000' as by '100'; and the like by '100' as by '10.'

658<sup>2</sup>. By a number halved, as also by a number doubled, the like is signified as by the number of which it is a half or the double . . .

676. 'There were slain in the earthquake the names of men 7000' (Rev. xi. 13)=that in that change of state there perished with them all the truths of good, and thus all things of Heaven and the Church. . . '7000'=all things of Heaven and the Church; for by '7' are signified all things, and it is predicated of the holy things of Heaven and the Church . . . and its signification is retained when it is multiplied by 10, or 100, or 1000; for these numbers=all things.

734<sup>15</sup>. 'To number the army of the war' (Is. xiii. 4)=to ordinate truths from good against falsities from evil.

768<sup>12</sup>. 'To be numbered' (Ps. xxii. 30)=to be ordained and disposed; here, to be adnumerated or added to; thus to be His.

841. 'Number'=the quality of the truth of faith and the derivative intelligence; hence by 'the number of the name' (Rev. xiii. 17) is signified the quality of the truth of faith and of the derivative intelligence, from the quality of the good of love and the derivative life; here, in the opposite sense. 933.

—<sup>e</sup>. The reason 'number'=the quality of truth and the derivative faith, is that number involves multitude . . .

846. 'Number'=the quality of the faith.

847. '666'=all falsities and thence all evils in the complex. Ex.

851. 'With Him 144,000'=according to truths in the whole complex. Ex.

924. '1600 furlongs'=evils in the whole complex. Ex. 928.

1063<sup>2</sup>. All the numbers in the Word=the qualities of the Things which are being described.

D. Wis. 1<sup>5</sup>. (300 learned men collected, of whom 260 entered the way of foolishness, and only 40 the way of wisdom.)

Nun. Nonna.

M. 513. See MONASTERY, here. D. 6110<sup>20</sup>.

D. 5469a. See LAST JUDGMENT, here.

Nuptial. See under WEDDING.

Nurse. Nutrix.

See under SUCK.

A. 3183. 'And her nurse' (Gen. xxiv. 59)=from the innocence appertaining thereto. . . 'A nurse,' or one who gives suck, =innocence. Ex.

[A. 3183]<sup>e</sup>. 'Kings thy nursing-fathers-nutritii' (Is. xlix.23)=intelligence . . .

4563. 'Deborah the nurse of Rebekah' (Gen.xxxv.8) =hereditary evil. A nurse, in so far as she nourishes and suckles an infant, properly=the insinuation of innocence through the Celestial Spiritual; for milk=the Celestial Spiritual; and the infant whom she suckles =innocence. (Continued under DEBORAH.)

—<sup>2</sup>. This hereditary evil yields them nourishment, or is as a nurse up to the time when they have judgment . . .

6740. 'A nurse woman from the Hebrews' (Ex.ii.7) =that good from the Church itself was to be insinuated therein. 'A nurse woman'=the insinuation of good; for by the milk which the nurse insinuates is signified the good of truth . . .

—<sup>2</sup>. That 'a nurse'=the insinuation of good. III.

—. 'Kings thy nursing-fathers'=the insinuation of truth, which is of intelligence; 'queens thy nursing-mothers'=the insinuation of good, which is of wisdom. E.175<sup>4</sup>.

—. 'Thy daughters are carried at the side by nurses' (Is.lx.4)=the goods which are continually being insinuated. 9256<sup>6</sup>.

10110<sup>4</sup>. At that time man has the good of innocence and the good of love towards his parents, and towards his nurse . . .

H. 277<sup>2</sup>. Infants love their parents, their nurse . . .

M. 393<sup>2</sup>. Sometimes infants are loved by their nurses more than by their mothers . . .

T. 441. They are like nurses who suckle infants solely for the hire . . .

D. 5158<sup>2</sup>. Like a mercenary nurse . . .

5668. (Infants there) are with nurses, whom they call their mothers.

—<sup>11</sup>. Nurses are given them who in the world had loved infants; and also to mothers in like manner; and a perception is given as if they were their own infants; but it is not given to any others than those who are in good, and can receive influx from Heaven.

Nut. Nux.

A. 5622. 'Turpentine nuts and almonds' (Gen.xliii. 11)=the goods of life corresponding to those truths. Ex.

M. 364. (Example of a nut or almond, and their kernels.) E.1058<sup>2</sup>.

Nyctalopia. Nyctalopia. T.346<sup>e</sup>. D. Love xxi<sup>3</sup>.

Nygatan. Nygatan.

D. 5711. See LAST JUDGMENT, here. 5721.

Nymph. Nympha.

A. 2758<sup>2</sup>. From the transformation of worms into nymphs or chrysalids . . . 8848. H.108<sup>2</sup>. D.3472.

W. 354. Worms . . . there become chrysalids, aureliae, erucacae, nymphs, and at last butterflies.

